NAVAL DEMONSTRATION

To Be Substituted For Diplomacy and Discussion

PATIENCE IS EXHAUSTED

In the Effort of France to Make Ottoman Government Meet Its Obligations—Other Nations Will Look on With Complacency

Paris, Nov. 1.—The decision to make a naval demonstration against Turkey was taken at a meeting of the cabinet Tuesday, at which M. Delcasce, the minister of foreign affairs, explained the sultan's procrastination regarding the French demands.

Admiral Caillard's squadron, which will proceed to Turkish waters and seize a customs port, consists of three armored cruisers, two second class cruisers, and a third class cruiser. The crews aggregate 2286 men and the two vessels will also carry landing parties.

The newspapers approve of the government's decision. The Journal Des Debats says: "Every one at Constantinople and other capitals must be aware that France and Russia are completely in accord on this matter. Under these circumstances, it is difficult to believe that the Ottoman government will not come to its sense and, recognizing its error before it is too late, relieve us of the necessity of using other menas than those of diplomacy and courteous discussion."

La Liberte remarks that the fact that Admiral Caillard has embarked 2000 marines is a warning to the porte that France will not stop before a slight show of resistance, but will go to the end, even though war should ensue.

Late last night the following dispatch was received from Toulon:

"The complete Mediterranean squadron returned to Toulon this evening and anchored in the roadstead."

This would include Admiral Caillard's division, whose departure has thus been either countermanded or postponed. If the dispatch be correct, it would imply that the government has received news from Constantinople which has not yet been divulged and which has induced a change of plan.

It was reported that Admiral Caillard had been ordered to cruise within reach of a dispatch boat yesterday for possible further instructions; and it is significant that the torpedo boat destroyer Hallebards left Toulon at full speed during the afternoon to rejoin the squadron.

Editorially The Figaro and other morning papers express surprise at the perplexing and unexplainable move after the dispatch of Admiral Caillard to the Levant had been officially announced.

The Marseilles correspondent of The Matin says the return was due to the fact that the squadron was supplied with only two days' rations.

Other Nations Won't Interfere

Washington, Nov. 1.—M. Margerie, the charge of the French embassy here, had a short interview with Secretary Hay yesterday, after which the secretary left at once for the White House. M. Margerie may be considered an expert in matters pertaining to the Levant, having spent several years at Constantinople recently as an attache of the French embassy.

He feels confident that there is not the slightest danger of a dissolution of the concordat owing to the action of the French government in sending warships to make a naval demonstration in Turkish waters and to seize a customs port. The other nations, parties to the concordat, understand the situation perfectly; in fact, most of them have grievances and claims themselves like the French complaints, so they may look with complaceny upon the effort to make the porte meet its obligations.

There also is a precedent for this action, for a few years ago Austria seized a Turkish port in the Gulf of Alexandria and held it until her claims were paid, yet the incident did not cause protest by the other powers or even attract much attention. It is confinedtly expected that it will not be necessary for the French admiral to proceed to any great length before the Turks will meet his demands.

Mexia Litigation Ended

Dallas, Nov. 1.—The famous Mexia will contest case has been settled out of court. Mrs. Mary G. Mexia and her daughter of Paterson, N. J., the principal contestants, got one-fourth of the $1,000,000 estate of the late General E. A. Mexia, the Mexican soldier-statesman, who died in 1896. The balance of the estate goes to the defendants, three daughters by another wife.

UNDER $2500 BAIL EACH

Surrender of Brokers For Whom Officers Had Been Searching

Boston, Nov. 1.—J. M. Fisher and Fred E. Betts, of J. M. Fisher & Co., the State street brokers who had been searched for since Monday, when warrants against them were issued, charging the use of the mails for a scheme to defraud, surrendered themselves yesterday afternoon to the United States authorities. The matter of bonds had previously been arranged by their attorney, and after a brief conference with Assistant United States District Attorney Casey, the two men were arraigned before the bail commissioner. They waived the reading of the complaint and bail was fixed at $2500 each. Mr. Baker, attorney for both men, asked for a continuance until Nov. 19, and the continuance was granted. Thomas G. Kavanaugh was accepted as bondsman.

It was intimated during the afternoon that Mr. Baker had secured satisfactory bonds, and that Fisher and Betts would give themselves up, therefore it was no surprise when, accompanied by their attorney, the two men walked calmly into the office of the United States district attorney. In less than 20 minutes after they had made their appearance in the federal building they had departed.

Fisher, when asked for a statement about the case, said: "Not guilty," adding, "I really cannot say anything until the matter comes into court." Betts was equally uncommunicative. Attorney Baker also declined to make any statement and Mr. Casey said that the complaint contained all the information that he would divulge at this time.

The whereabouts of George A. Adams, another member of the firm of J. M. Fisher & Co., are still unknown.

Miss Toppan Pleads Not Guilty

Barnstable, Mass., Nov. 1.—Miss Jane Toppan, a professional nurse, 45 years old, charged with murder, was held without bail for further hearing Nov. 8 in the district court here yesterday. The prisoner has retained James S. Murphy of Lowell as counsel. The defendant pleaded not guilty. The specific death with which Miss Toppan is charged is that of Mrs. Mary E. Gibbs. Other charges are held in reserve. Mrs. Gibbs's was the fourth sudden death within a period of six weeks in her parents' family.

Concentration at Springfield

Springfield, Mass., Nov. 1.—Important changes are to be instituted in the Boston and Albany railroad at Springfield by the New York Central railroad, lessee, with a view of bettering the service in all departments. Hereafter all towermen must be telegraph operators. Increased safety and economy, it is claimed, will result from the latter move. The tendency will be to continue to concentrate interests at Springfield, the half-way point between Albany and Boston.

Lowell Has the Shakes

Lowell, Mass., Nov. 1.—At about 10 o'clock last night a distinctly vigorous seismis disturbance of several seconds' duration was felt in various parts of the city. The shock was sufficiently heavy to cause many to believe that a terrible explosion had occurred in or near the city. On Pawtucket street the houses trembled to such an extent that crockery and glassware were broken, and in several instances people fled in alarm to the street.

Borden Quits Buying

Fall River, Mass., Nov. 1.—M. C. D. Borden has withdrawn from the market as a purchaser at 3 1-8 cents for regulars. Treasurers and brokers began early yesterday looking for his representatives to offer him more goods on the basis they had been selling to him, but about noon it was stated definitely by his local brokers that he was no longer a buyer at present prices. In fact, he did not care to buy at any figure.

End of Strike Agitation

Fall River, Mass., Nov. 1.—There will be no strike for more wages in the print cloth mills next Monday, and for the present the wage question here is settled. The Textile Council's action was summed up last night in the adoption of a resolution declaring that the wage question is off for the present and advising the members of the respective organizations to remain at work.

To Try For New Trial

Montpelier, Vt., Nov. 1.—Charles Doherty, convicted three years ago of the murder of Fred Murphy at Bolton Falls, and sentenced to be hanged last spring, the carrying out of which sentence was delayed by an appeal for a new trial on the ground of insanity, was brought here yesterday to appear before the supreme court on his petition for a new trial.

Merging of Boston Banks

Boston, Nov. 1.—Ninety percent of the stockholders of the Shoe and Leather bank having assented to the consolidation with the National Bank of Redemption, the actual merger took place at close of business yesterday. All checks outstanding on the Shoe and Leather bank on and after today will be paid by the National Bank of Redemption.

Shot by Unknown Person

Canaan, Me., Nov. 1.—Henry Chase, a farmer of this town, reports that his son, Cecil, was shot while returning from Pittsfield. Cecil Chase is in a critical condition from a bullet wound through the nose, inflicted while he was riding along the country road. Efforts to discover who was in the vicinity of the spot have failed.

REBUTTAL TESTIMONY

Has Begun Before Naval Court of Inquiry

ADMIRAL IS CONTRADICTED

By Chadwick's Statement as to Navy Department's Precautionary Dispatches—Reputed Conversation Involving Sears Declared Immaterial

Washington, Nov. 1.—In the Schley court of inquiry yesterday a number of witnesses were introduced by Judge Advocate Lemly to testify in rebuttal of the evidence given on Admiral Schley's behalf. The court decided early in the day that no witnesses could be introduced at this stage of the proceedings to give testimony on immaterial points.

This announcement was made in connection with an effort to prove a conversation on board the Massachusetts in which Lieutenant Sears, who was Admiral Schley's flag lieutenant, was reported to have said: "For God's sake don't discourage him (meaning Commodore Schley); it is all that we have been able to do to work him up to this."

It had the effect of relieving Lieutenant Commander Grant, Lieutenant Commander Potts and other officers of the Massachusetts, who had been called to testify of the reputed conversation involving Mr. Sears, which was said to have occurred on the Massachusetts just before the reconnaissance of May 31.

On the other hand, the court held that it was not bound by the ordinary procedure of civil courts as to the time when testimony can be taken, and therefore witnesses might be called or recalled by it at any time for the purpose of making additions to former statements, but that none of them could reiterate testimony previously given. This decision was rendered upon an objection raised by Mr. Rayner to allowing Captain Sigsbee to give new testimony when called as a witness for rebuttal.

The witnesses called in rebuttal were: Captain Sigsbee, Captain Chadwick, Captain Eaton, Lieutenant Roys and Chief Quartermaster Anderson, all of whom testified to incidents connected with the campaign of 1898.

Captain Chadwick said in his statement yesterday that the precautionary dispatches from the navy department in regard to attacking the Spanish shore batteries were not communicated to Schley. This statement is regarded as of great importance by Schley's opponents, because it distinctly contradicts the Admiral's own statements.

Captain Sigsbee testified concerning his interview on the Brooklyn with Schley. Captain Eaton was the commander of the dispatch boat Resolute during the war, and his testimony related largely to events which occurred just before and just after the battle on July 3. Lieutenant Roys served on board the Eagle, and his statement bore upon the Eagle's meeting with the Brooklyn when the latter was enroute to Cienfuegos and again while the flagship lay off that port. He stated that Lieutenant Commander Southerland asked not to be sent to Port Antonio for coal and asked also to be allowed to coal from the Merrimac. Mr. Anderson was chief quartermaster of the Brooklyn during the Spanish war and was at the wheel during the battle of July 3. He said Commander Schley gave the order of "hard-aport" but that when the order was given the vessel was already hard-aport.

Before these witnesses were introduced for the department the court heard Captain Borden of the marine corps, who served on the Brooklyn, in Admiral Schley's behalf. He was the last of the admiral's witnesses and he testified that the admiral bore himself honorably during the battle of July 3.

Slightly "Off"

Washington, Nov. 1.—General Gillespie, chief of engineers, says an error was made in his office in making up the estimates for river and harbor works for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1903. According to the original figures, these estimates aggregated about $12,000,000, whereas in fact the estimates totalled $20,000,000.

Big Collections on Spirits

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 1.—The collections of internal revenue for the fifth, or Peoria district, for the month of October amounted to $3,375,428. This represents about 3,000,000 gallons of spirits. At this rate the collection for the year will approximate $40,000,000, an increase over last year of nearly $10,000,000.

A Facetious Forger

Macon, Ga., Nov. 1.—The local recruiting station has received a postal from E. C. Benjamin, who is wanted for the alleged forgery of United States checks while sergeant at the office here. He wrote the card from Kiel, Germany, saying: "Best regards to you, I am well. Yours, E. C. Benjamin."

Hub Democrats' Choice

Boston, Nov. 1.—Patrick A. Collins will be nominated for mayor by the Democratic municipal convention a fortnight hence, for when the nomination papers for delegates were opened yesterday no opponent to Mr. Collins appeared.

The alarm from Box 35 at midnight proved to be a false alarm.

Mrs. George F. Pratt of Quincy Neck passed away this morning.

The teachers of the public schools are in attendance today at the Norfolk County Teachers' convention in Boston.

Dr. Thomas Dion, secretary of the Board of Health, and Mrs. Dion returned Thursday from a trip to Canada.

Don't forget the football game at Franklin Field Saturday afternoon between the Cathedral A. A. and the Atlantic A. A. A good game is expected.

A social dance under the anspices of the choir of the Universalist church was held at Colonial hall, Thursday evening. Richardson's orchestra furnished music.

James Knowlton of Swampscott, spent Thursday in Quincy, as the guest of his son, the Commissioner of Public Works. He was surprised at the extent of the granite work in the city.

Miss Eva Marden entertained a Hallowe'en party Thursday evening at her home on Coddington street. There were a number of young people present, and at midnight the usual Hallowe'en charms were indulged in.

INSULT TO COUNCIL.

The Intemperate Letter of Henry H. Faxon So Considered.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

I notice in the Daily Ledger of the 30th ultimo, an article under the caption of "Experience Bad" (referring to the Quincy City Council), from the pen of Mr. Henry H. Faxon, which in my opinion is a grave insult to that honorable body of which I am a member.

It is humiliating in the extreme to read from time to time in the daily papers of Boston and Quincy such intemperate references and wholesale denunciation from one of our own citizens as are charateristic of Mr. Faxon. Abuse is not argument and without intending any disrespect to this gentleman who is many years my senior, and while ready to acknowledge that in many ways he has been a public benefactor, having the true interests of the city of Quincy at heart as he sees them; I cannot believe that the people approve of such extravagant expressions as "The cheapest Council that ever disgraced a municipality, the members of which being devoid of business ability have blindly followed etc, etc," but rather take it from the source from whence it came.

The position of a Councilman is not over and above delightful and men who are willing to give their time and whom the citizens choose to send to the City Council are entitled to something besides Billingsgate through the public press. The records of the Council are open for inspection, and the citizens and taxpayers can in no better way estimate the quality of their representative in the City government than by an examination of them.

Walter F. Nichols.

"Last winter an infant child of mine had croup in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist, of Filley, Mo. "I gave her a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and in a short time all danger was past and the child recovered." This remedy not only cures croup, but when given as soon as the first symptoms appear, will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

The teachers in the schools of Quincy were largely represented Thursday evening at the High School hall at the opening of the winter socials of the Quincy Teachers' Association. President Finch outlined the course of entertainments arranged for the public, and the work of the year. Hallowe'en games and refreshments followed.

BOTH SURRENDER.

Betts and Fisher Now Out on Bail. In Quincy Last Night.

Frederick E. Betts and John M. Fisher, the much-sought Quincy men, spent Thursday night at their homes in this city, but not until they had surrendered to the authorities and secured bail.

This morning both men were about the city, but left by early trains for Boston, probably to go to their places of business on State street.

The Globe has the following story of their arrest:

John M. Fisher and Frederick E. Betts, members of the firm of J. M. Fisher & Co. whose affairs have been exploited lately, surrendered themselves to the federal authorities in the late Thursday afternoon. Arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Fiske they were each held in $2,500 bail which was furnished by Thomas B. Cavanagh of Taunton. The case was put over till Nov. 19 for hearing at the request of counsel for the defendants whose professional engagements prevented his attending a hearing earlier.

George A. Adams, accused jointly with Fisher and Betts of employing the mail pursuant to a scheme to defraud, is still at large and if any credence may be placed in the story told at the federal building he is on the ocean enroute to foreign shores.

Fisher was stylishly attired, wearing a blue suit, dark top coat and patent leather shoes. His mustache was carefully curled. He has a sharp, penetrating look.

Betts is smooth faced. He too was fashionably attired, wearing a light top coat, dark coat and light striped trousers. His hair is cut pompadour. Counsel having attended to the minutest detail incident to preliminary arraignment, the principals were subjected to little, if any, inconvenience when they arrived at the federal building shortly before 4 o'clock.

In the district attorney's office the formal arrest was made by Deputy Marshal Waters, who had been on the trail of the men since they quitted their office early in the week.

The complaint sets forth that Fisher, Betts and Adams obtained money on the strength of false representations as to the status of their business and in other respects, and converted the same to their own use.

All the federal officials intimately connected with the case have been enjoined by Judge Lowell from divulging the evidence which the government has gleaned, and the mandate is being rigorously obeyed. No information is ascertainable at the federal building, contrary to the custom which has been in vogue from time immemorial.

Although it has been learned that a number of complaints have been made against the firm, still only one has been made the subject of criminal prosecution, so it is not unlikely that when the grand jury convenes the affairs of the firm will be aired. The possibility of the other complaints attaining tangible form in the shape of indictment, is a matter which Asst. Dist. Atty. Casey will neither affirm nor deny.

The complaint sets forth that "divers persons, to your complainant unknown," have been made the victims of the defendants, which leads to the belief that further investigation will culminate in an inquiry generally into the business of the concern.

According to the complaint, the defendants obtained money from various persons under representations that they purposed investing it in accord with the custom of a legitimate brokerage house, and simply converted the money to their own use.

Their offices in the Fisk building, 89 State street, were sumptuously furnished. It was said at the Federal building yesterday that business would be resumed today. The defendants firmly assert that they have been conducting a legitimate business and are confident that the prosecution will amount to naught.

It may be said that the firm did not take out a license as brokers or as a bucket shop, hence they paid no tax.

THE NOMINATIONS.

Four Republicans Formally in Field for Mayoralty.

The envelopes containing nominations to be voted for at the Republican Municipal caucuses next Wednesday night, were opened in all wards of the city at 7 o'clock Thursday evening. There was no excitement attending the opening, and everything passed off quietly. In fact no one seemed to take any particular interest in the opening.

A glance at the nominations in the several wards shows that lists favorable to Charles M. Bryant for Mayor have been filed in four of the six wards Lists favorable to Elisha Packard have been filed in two wards. There is one list favorable to Edward E. Jameson, and one list favorable to Frederick L. Jones, and out of the lot there is but one list marked unpledged, although there is one list that has no mark of any kind except Mayoralty delegates.

A complete list of all the nominations in the several wards follows:

Ward One.

There were but few persons present at Republican headquarters Thursday evening at 7 o'clock when the nomination papers were opened. The ward committee were not all present either. There were eight papers in all, two lists of mayoralty delegates, five of councilmen and one for ward committee.

It was expected that some action would be taken over the squabble at delegates, but there was none and delegates favorable to Elisha Packard head the list.

When asked about the protest, Chairman Holt said that according to the ruling of the chairman of the City Committee, any protest must be made in writing to the committee, before the time for opening the nomination papers. No such protest had been made, and they therefore had no protest to consider.

The contest in this ward for mayoralty delegates is between Messrs. Packard and Bryant. The three present Councilman are candidates for renomination, with two rivals. There is no contest for Ward Committee.

WARD ONE.

Arthur W. Stetson
Edward Johnson

WARD TWO.

There are contests in the Quincy Point ward for Mayoralty delegates and for Councilmen. For the Mayoralty delegates there are two lists. The first is an unpledged list, but is said to be equally divided between Messrs. Jameson, Packard and Jones. The second list is favorable to Charles M. Bryant.

For Councilmen there are two new names, Messrs. Adams and Thompson are again in the field, while Mr. Hultman does not desire a reelection.

Mr. Smith is the only name suggested for School Committee, and there is but one list for the Ward Committee.

For Mayoralty delegates:

WARD THREE.

The South Quincy ward is keeping up its reputation for contests, for it has double lists for everything except School committee, and for that the name of Miss Adams is proposed for renominations.

The first list of delegates is unpledged, although throughout the ward it is known as a Bryant list.

For Councilmen, five names are proposed, and of these Thomas W. Smith and William T. Spargo are up for renomination. The other three are new men.

There is also a contest for ward committee. The first list is composed of nearly all new men, while the second list includes about all of the present committee.

For Mayoralty delegates:

John Robie
Warren H. Rideout
John Lawry
Peter Dackers
Charles Martin
John E. Sprague
George Main
John L. Johnson
Malcolm A. McDonald

Favorable to Frederick L. Jones:

John P. Bigelow
Harry S. Nichol
Alexander Clark
Julius Johnson
William McCalder
Thomas L. Smith
William Pratt
Daniel F. Tinney
Lester M. Pratt

For School Committee:

Mabel E. Adams

For Councilmen:

Thomas W. Smith
William T. Sprague
Walter E. Piper
Alfred O. Diack
Charles L. Orne

For Ward Committee:

Thomas W. Smith
John Kennedy
Harry S. Nicol
John S. Roberts
Alfred O. Diack
Walter E. Piper
Oscar F. Frick

John P. Bigelow
James W. Jones
Frank W. Flower
Daniel McLennan
Frank L. Carlton
James W. Pierce
William T. Sprague

WARD FOUR.

An unpledged list of delegates heads the list in the West Quincy ward, which is followed by a second list favorable to Elisha Packard. But three councilmen are up for nomination and they are all new men. There is but one list for Ward Committee.

For Mayoralty delegates:

(Unpledged)

Andrew Anderson
Arthur Craig
Fred S. Crowell
William H. Frige
Willard B. Jones
Pev. Person
John Williams

Favorable to Elisha Packard:

Erie A. Carlson
Mayo P. Fuller
Albert Farnham
Theodore H. Hermanson
John C. Kapples
Michael Owens
Jonas Shackley

For Councilmen:

William H. Frige
William S. Murray
Adolphe S. Sandberg

For Ward Committee:

Andrew Anderson
James F. Allan
Thomas F. Burke
Hiram W. Campbell
William B. Donald
William H. Teasdale
Edward J. Sandberg

WARD FIVE.

In the Wollaston ward, the home of Candidates Jameson and Bryant, there are two lists of Mayoralty delegates, both of which are pledged. The first to Edward E. Jameson and the second to Charles M. Bryant. Both are composed of representative men and it will be a square fight to see who will win.

For Councilmen there are five names only three of which can be nominated. Walter F. Nichols and Richard R. Freeman, two of the present Council are seeking nomination. The other three are new men. There is but one list for Ward Committee, and hence it will be noticed that Chairman Jameson of the city committee is not a candidate for reelection.

For Mayoralty delegates:

Favorable to Edward E. Jameson:

Charles A. Macfarlane
John B. Cornish
James T. Bates
Walter S. Pinkham
Samuel F. Delano
Walter J. Coombs
Charles G. Lee
Eugene F. DeNormandie
Walter C. Sanders
George E. Thomas

Favorable to Charles M. Bryant:

Herbert T. Whitman
Walter J. Wellington
Richard R. Freeman
Henry O. Fairbanks
Walter O. Parker
Walter M. Chase
Ephraim A. Snow
Enoch S. Thomas
Frank W. White
George L. Cole

For Councilmen:

Herbert J. Polk
Walter F. Nichols
Herman J. Hahn
Richard R. Freeman
John H. Whitehead

For Ward Committee:

Edgene H. Sprague
Walter S. Pinkham
Eugene F. DeNormandie
Richard R. Freeman
George E. Thomas
Charles F. Marr
Walter J. Coombs
Henry O. Fairbanks
Walter M. Chase

WARD SIX.

The Atlantic ward is the only one in the city in which there is no contest. But one list of delegates is filled for Mayoralty delegates and these are favorable to Charles M. Bryant. For the Council, the three present members are seeking renomination.

The nominations:

For Mayoralty delegates:

Favorable to Charles M. Bryant:

Roger H. Wilde
Henry W. Read
William G. Gassett
Arthur C. Beal
Charles A. Hall
Walter P. Hill

For Councilmen:

William G. Gassett
Charles A. Hadlock
Louis F. R. Langelier

For Ward Committee:

Daniel McGrath
Louis F. R. Langelier
Herbert D. Gearwar
Ralph W. Hobbs
Charles R. Hendrie
Elwyn R. Thorpe
Herbert S. Barker

The annual meeting of the Wollaston Branch of the Quincy Home Science Association will be held in the vestry of the Wollaston Unitarian Church, Friday, Nov. 1, at 3 P. M. Members and friends are cordially invited. Miss Elizabeth Johnson, the president, will give a short account of the summer's work. Mrs. James Slade will read her prize essay on "The relation of domestic help to employers;" their rights and privileges," and the various reports will be given.

To the Public.

Allow me to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I had a very severe cough and cold and feared I would get pneumonia, but after taking the second dose of this medicine I felt better, three bottles of it cured my cold, and the pains in my chest disappeared entirely. I am most respectfully yours for health, Ralph S. Meyers, 64 Thirty-seventh street, Wheeling, W. Va. For sale by al druggists.

ORIGINATORS OF TRADING STAMPS.

FULLY PAID UP CAPITAL,

$1,000,000.00

A PARTIAL DISPLAY OF THE MANY HIGH GRADE ARTICLES MAY BE SEEN IN THE WINDOWS OF THE

where our lady demonstrator will give you such information as you may desire regarding the system of collecting GREEN TRADING STAMPS.

THIS COMPANY OWNS AND OPERATES MORE STORES THAN ANY OTHER CONCERN IN THE WORLD.

Do not fail to call at our Boston Headquarters, 160 Tremont Street, when convenient, as there will be on exhibition goods in greater variety and of finer quality than have ever been offered by a trading stamp company. As a matter of FACT, there is no comparison between the stores and the methods of this Company and those of any similar concern in existence. In this business WE STAND ALONE.

THESE ARE POINTS YOU MAY NOT FULLY APPRECIATE. WE DESIRE TO PLACE THEM BEFORE YOU.

SEEING IS BELIEVING. WE WANT YOU TO SEE.

You will always receive courteous attention from the attendants in our store. It is their DUTY to show you all goods and to explain the improved methods of this corporation. REMEMBER no article on exhibition is for sale, but all may be had without cost to you, as each is given in exchange for

GREEN TRADING STAMPS.

THE LEADING BOSTON AND QUINCY MERCHANTS
INDORSE THIS PLAN.

Fifteen hundred of them have investigated our methods of doing business, assured themselves of our responsibility and have signed contracts agreeing to give our stamps to all persons who will pay SPOT CASH.

It remains for you to improve the opportunity.

The Sperry & Hutchinson Co.

THE SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF MASSACHUSETTS

Recently declared the law against trading stamps to be unconstitutional. By that decision not only are the methods of this corporation sustained, but the legality of

Its VALUABLE GREEN TRADING STAMP is Upheld.

Our Representatives.

In the preva ent contention about the pominee for Mayor, we should not lose sight of the fact that on next Tuesday we are to vote for two Representatives in the Legislature. The names of the only candidates who stand any show of election are as follows:

Frank E. Badger of Atlantic.
Harrison A. Keith of Ward 2.
John McKnight of Ward 1.
George H. Wilson of Ward 1.

Look these names over carefully. Decide which of them, by reason of long residence here and aquaintance with the needs of the city, would make the most worthy representative of Quincy, and vote accordingly. H.

Ernest Burch of Squantum street had his leg broken Thursday evening while playing football at Norfolk Downs. He was removed to the Quincy Hospital.

Resolutious.

Whereas, it has pleased Almighty God to remove from our midst our late brother Michael J. Burns, and

Whereas, the intimate relatons held by our late brother render it proper that we should place on record our appreciation of his services as a Hibernian and his merits as a man; therefore be it

Resolved, that we, the members of Division 18, A. O. H., assembled in public meeting, while humbly submitting to the will of God, do none the less mourn the loss of our brother who has been called away.

Resolved, that in the death of Brother Michael J. Burns our division has lost a member who has always been ready to help the welfare and prosperity of the order, and one who was upright and honest, a friend, a man and a brother dear to us all; a man leading a noble life is mourned by all his fellow citizens; a kind husband; a loving father; therefore be it

Resolved, that the heartfelt sympathy of this Division be extended to his sorrowing wife and family in their bereavement, and that God in His infinite mercy will console and comfort them in the loss they have sustained.

Resolved, that these resolutions be entered in the minutes of this Division, a copy sent to the family of our deceased brother, and published in The Hibernian and Quincy press.

Jumped on a Ten Penny Nail.

The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake made of ten-penny nails, and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and a second one half way through. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes later the pain had disappeared and no more suffering was experienced. In three days the child was wearing her shoe as usual and with absolutely no discomfort. Mr. Powell is a well known merchant of Forkland, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and heals such injuries without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. For sale by all druggists.

The joint committee on Fire Department and Ordinances of the City Council met Thursday evening.

Birthday Party.

A very enjoyable party was given Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. A. G. MacDonnell of Madison avenue, Quincy Point. Whist was enjoyed, the prizes being won by Mrs. Annie Weston, 58 points; Mrs. Flora Gomez, 53 points: Mrs. Celia Page, consolation prize.

Mrs. MacDonnell was the recipient of a china tea set and handsome bric a brac. A collation was served.

ANOTHER FIGHT IN SAMAR

Handful of Americans Viciously Attacked by a Large Number of Insurgents, Who Are Finally Routed —Affairs Unsatisfactory In Bohol

Manila, Nov. 1.—General Hughes reports the complete surrender of the insurgents in the island of Cebu, consisting of 450 men and 60 officers, with 150 rifles and eight brass field pieces.

The pouring of troops into the island of Samar is believed to have had a good effect on the Cebu insurgents, who had been wavering for some time. The malcontents kept up the conflict by saying that a majority of the American troops had left the Philippines.

Advices received at Manila from Catbalogan, Island of Samar, say that 12 men, under command of Sergeant Willford, who had been sent from Basey to San Antonio to investigate and report in regard to the number of bolomen in the vicinity, were viciously attacked by 140 insurgents, who rushed on them with great violence, killing two of the soldiers and wounding two others. Willford remained cool and collected during the attack and the survivors say he acted splendidly. Fourteen of the insurgents were killed. Captain Bookmiller commends Willford for a medal of honor and Privates Swanton and Moro for certificates of merit.

The Philippine commission has drafted an act against treason and sedition. The penalty prescribed for treason is death, and the act is framed to include those persons giving aid and comfort to the insurgents. Persons who utter seditious words or speeches or who write libels against the United States government or the insular government are punishable by the imposition of a fine of $2000 or two years' imprisonment. For breaking the oath of allegiance a fine of $2000 or imprisonment for 10 years is fixed as the penalty. Foreigners are pledged under the same laws as are Americans and natives.

Washington Hears the News

Washington, Nov. 1.—An important cablegram was received at the war department from General Chaffee. It follows in part:

"The following from Brigadier General Hughes.

"Manila, Nov. 1.—Adjutant general, Washington, D. C.—The following from Brigadier General Hughes:

"'Insurrecto forces Cebu island have come in, laid down arms in good faith in obedience to demand of people for peace; 15 rifles, eight brass pieces, 90 officers, 470 men. Affairs not yet satisfactory Bohol island; may move additional troops there to force settlement.'

"This settles for present, at least, disturbance hereto existing Cebu. Future disorder that island will be made by deliberate action inhabitants, as peace may be easily preserved if people disposed to do so. Shall advise Hughes waste no time, but move on Bohol immediately. Chaffee."

Boers to Settle In Wyoming

Cheyenne, Wyo., Nov. 1.—A number of Hague bankers and other wealthy men of Holland are making arrangements to establish a colony of Boers and Hollanders in Wyoming. A tract of 300,000 acres has been secured. Surveys have been made for a gigantic canal and irrigation system. Construction is to be commenced at once. The prospective settlers are now being brought over to do the work. A large beet sugar factory will be established in the colony.

Release Not Yet Effected

London, Nov. 1.—"Miss Stone's release is not likely to be effected within a week," says a dispatch from Sofia to The Daily Telegraph. "Mr. Dickinson, in the name of the United States government, has given an assurance that neither the receivers of the ransom nor Miss Stone's guides will be prosecuted. He asserts that Turkey agreed a fortnight ago to reimburse the ransom."

Accessory to Murder

Chicago, Nov. 1.—The grand jury yesterday voted an indictment against Dr. Orville Burnett, charging him with murder as an accessory before the fact. Dr. Burnett was with Mrs. Charlotte Nichol when the latter committed suicide recently, fulfilling an agreement which Burnett says they made to die together rather than be separated.

Masons Put Shutters Up

Macon, Ga., Nov. 1.—The grand lodge of Georgia masons yesterday approved the recommendation that persons who engage in the sale or manufacture of liquor after joining a lodge shall be expelled. The report does not apply to druggists selling liquor for medicinal or scientific purposes.

Lived Away Beyond a Century

London, Nov. 1.—Mrs. Elizabeth Hanbury, who was born June 9, 1795, is dead. She was notable half a century ago in anti-slavery, prison reform and other philanthropic matters. She could see to read and write up to her 100th year. She spent the last year of her life mostly in bed.

Marlboro Man Kills Himself

Marlboro, Mass., Nov. 1.—Bernard Harold, a well known resident of this place, committed suicide yesterday by shooting through the head. Illness is the only cause assigned for the deed. Mr. Harold was 55 years of age, and a veteran of the Civil war. He leaves a family.

WAR OF EXTERMINATION

Morley Says England's South African Policy Is a Mistake

London, Nov. 1.—John Morley, M. P., addressing his constituents yesterday at Arbroath, said: "The government are aggravating the essential mischief of the situation in South Africa by their management of the concentration camps. The death rate of children, measure it as you will, is hideous, excessive and appalling. The policy of devastation has been admitted to be a mistake.

"I wonder what Lord Palmerston would have said of a government justifying themselves by saying that Russia in Poland and Austria in Bosnia had done something like the same. The war has entirely changed in character and is drifting into a war of extermination of people fighting for their own land.

"The policy of the unconditional surrender and submission means extermination and annihilation. The present attitude of the government is one of sullen desperation. There is nothing worse than mettle in a blind horse.

"The king will perhaps at no distant date have to seek other ministers with a better insight and a more pliant mind in face of the dangerous and complex situation which confronts the country."

New Gun a Success

New London, Conn., Nov. 1.—The new dynamite gun which has lately been in process of erection at Fort Wright, Fisher's island, was tested for the first time yesterday and both the government authorities and the constructors of the piece express their satisfaction at its ultimate success. The test included the firing of the gun, which is of 15-inch calibre and 50 feet long, loaded with projectiles containing nitro-glycerine pure 87 percent. Six eight and 10-inch projectiles were fired from the gun out to sea.

To Let Emperor Down Easy

Pekin, Nov. 1.—The repairs to the walls, towers and palace have been almost completed. A temporary structure of wood and cloth has been erected in place of the destroyed Chien-nen tower, under which Emperor Kwang-Su will pass when entering the Forbidden City. It is painted to resemble the old stone tower, with cannon in the windows, and looks like a piece of theatrical scenery. Every effort is being made to conceal from the court the evidence of conquest.

Lynchers on His Trail

Macon, Ga., Nov. 1.—A young negro named Theodore Booth, on the farm of George Daughtry, in Wilkinson county, attacked Mrs. Daughtry. She escaped him and ran to the house, where she seized a revolver and prevented his entrance. Her cries aroused neighbors and Booth fled to the swamp. Posses with dogs are now in pursuit of him and his capture is expected, since he can be readily identified. Mrs. Daughtry was not personally injured.

Mountain Forests Ablaze

Roanoke, Va., Nov. 1.—Forest fires are raging along the slope of mountains in Tazewell county and owing to the fast falling leaves and absence of rain for several weeks the flames have ample fuel. The entire mountain is a sheet of flame and a vast amount of fine timber and fences have been ruined.

White's Tribute to Ka'ser

New York, Nov. 1.—Andrew D. White, ambassador to Germany, sailed yesterday on board the Deutschland. Before sailing he said: "The Americans do not know the emperor. Those of us who know him know that he is a statesman. His control over men shows his great force and ability."

Barry's Slayer Surrenders

South Norwalk, Conn., Nov. 1.—Benedetto d'Onofrio, the Italian for whom the police have searching the woods in this vicinity, and who is wanted for the killing of Garrett Barry, voluntarily gave himself up to the police last night.

Anarchist Most Turned Loose

New York, Nov. 1.—John Most, the anarchist, recently sent to the penitentiary for the publication in his paper of an article entitled: "Murder vs Murder," was released yesterday in bonds of $1500. He has been granted a certificate of reasonable doubt.

FOR OLD AGE

To the old, as to babies, the even balance of health is more important than anything else in the world. The possible health, in age, is not high and strong; it is only even.

There is no end, but death, to the trouble that comes of its loss.

It ought to be watched like a baby's.

Their future is short; but oh how it turns on comfort! on whether the wrinkles are wrinkles of pain or of long serene enjoyment!

Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil—for very old and very young in different ways—is the food to secure this even condition of health.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

LOYAL TO PRESIDENT

Southerners Express a Desire For a Visit From Chief Executive

Washington, Nov. 1.—President Roosevelt was yesterday invited to attend the South Carolina interstate and West Indian exposition to be held in Charleston, beginning Dec. 2. The president said that he would attend if public business would permit. The committee which extended the invitation said that the south would receive the president most cordially and wishes only an opportunity to show its respect for the chief executive.

Lynchburg, Va., Nov. 1.—A few days ago members of the Lynchburg Gun club decided to send to President Roosevelt an invitation to participate in a big camping out hunt from Nov. 10 to Nov. 20. On account of the Booker Washington incident the action of the club has been criticised.

Now the gun club has taken the matter up and unanimously indorsed the sending of an invitation to the president. The members in decided terms declared that if Mr. Roosevelt would accept the invitation the club would consider it the greatest possible honor, for they regarded Mr. Roosevelt as a thorough gentleman, and a courageous, broad-minded man, whom they would delight to receive and entertain. The membership of the club includes a number of prominent business and professional men.

After the Corporations

Chicago, Nov. 1.—Mayor Harrison is in favor of seeing what can be done to collect the back taxes of corporations under the supreme court decision just rendered if the corporations affected attempt to move from Illinois. "If I were a member of the board of equalization and the corporations moved out of the state," said the mayor, "I should be very much inclined to see what could be done to collect the taxes due from 1877 to 1900. During that period the capital stock was not taxed. I think that would be a discourager of emigration."

Popular Sir Thomas

London, Nov. 1.—Immediately after his arrival in London yesterday Sir Thomas Lipton drove out to his suburban residence at Southgate. An assemblage met him about two miles from the house with a band, unharnessed the horses and drew the carriage home. Responding to an address of welcome presented on behalf of the village of Southgate, he said he had hoped to drink from the cup in Southgate, but it had stuck in spite of the jerk he had given it. "I mean to lift it yet," he said in concluding his speech of thanks.

Alleged Contempt of Court

Chicago, Nov. 1.—Judge Hancey of the circuit court issued an order last evening summoning before him next Monday the owner of the Chicago American, William R. Hearst, and six employes of the paper, to show cause why they should not be punished for contempt of court. The publications on which this action was taken were news items, editorials and cartoons bearing upon the motives of the judge in a recent decision.

Two Vessels Missing

St. Johns, Nov. 1.—Three schooners were driven ashore on the Labrador coast during a gale. One was laden with the families of fishermen returning from a summer soujourn on the coast. The women and children were rescued with great difficulty. The crews were all saved. Two other vessels have been missing for 10 days. Twelve lives are involved and it is feared that all have perished.

Says He Didn't Reveal Secret

Crawfordville, Ind., Nov. 1.—Professor Emery, who yesterday retired from the chair of chemistry in Wabash college, which he held for several years, has issued a statement denying in toto charges that he had given to a rival corporation information concerning the secret mixing process of a match company. O. M. Gregg, superintendent of one of the companies, is a trustee of Wabash college.

Argued For Twenty-Four Hours

Little Valley, N. Y., Nov. 1.—The jury was discharged yesterday in the case of Emmett Wheeler, the Erie railway detective who shot and killed George Sharpe, 18 years old. It failed to agree after having been out 24 hours. Wheeler asserted that he intended only to frighten Sharpe and his companions, who had been stealing a ride on a freight train.

Presidential Bee In Maso's Bonnet

Havana, Nov. 1.—General Bartolome Maso surprised Mr. Palma and the latter's supporters by coming out yesterday with a manifesto declaring himself a candidate for the presidency of Cuba. He makes a strong bid for the autonomist, Spanish and negro vote.

Will Soon Relieve Cridler

Washington, Nov. 1.—Herbert Pierce, the newly selected third assistant secretary of state, has arrived at his home in Cambridge, Mass., and has communicated to Secretary Hay his intention to come to Washington to relieve Mr. Cridler next week.

Accidentally Shot

Block Island, R. I., Nov. 1.—Tunis Ball, while quail hunting yesterday with Frank Flynn, was going over a stone wall when Flynn's gun was discharged. The charge of small shot lodged in Ball's wrist and thigh.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Saturday, Nov. 2.
Sun rises—6:18; sets—4:37.
Moon rises—10:46 p. m.
High water—3:30 a. m.; 3:45 p. m.

The high pressure that has persisted over the New England coast for the last few days gave way slowly yesterday. The temperature changes have been unimportant. The rain area will advance slowly, causing rain and colder weather in New England. The winds along the coast will be fresh southwesterly.

Quincy, Oct. 28. 6t

YOU HAVE YOUR CHOICE

of plodding along in the old treadmill way, or of using your thinker to get a little ahead without so many blisters and sore spots.

DON'T COMPLAIN

if your landlord is getting rich; it's your fault. You may as well have an income as to pay it all out in house rent; that little deposit you are holding till something happens to eat it all up would be just as safe invested in a house and would bring in a hundred or more every year. Besides, you would have the advantage of a good home in a clean new house.

I have now nearly completed, another of those popular two-family houses on Federal avenue, Quincy Adams, which will pay 25 per cent profit on your investment. Bring deposit, and look this up, as these always sell to the first one who investigate.

I have single houses too, to suit the most exacting, and all sold at the lowest possible limit.

All sizes; all prices; one kind—the best.

Friday afternoon Mrs. J. H. Slade of Quincy, read her original essay, intitled "The Paid Workers in the home—their relation to their employers—their rights and privileges, the rights and privileges of their employers, their social standing as it is, and as it should be in comparison with workers in other occupations,"—to a very appreciative audience of ladies in Wollaston in the vestry of the Unitarian church. This essay was awarded the prize offered by the Quincy Home Science Association. It has attracted considerable interest from the fact that the subject appeals so strongly to woman generally.

Mrs. Wm. B. Rice is hostess next Tuesday afternoon for Miss Thompson. The subject of the talk will be "In Praise of London," Charles Lamb's Essays and Letters. The quotation serving as text being "I am a Christian, Englishman, Londoner, Templer." Miss Thompson announces that the last talk of the course on the nineteenth of November will be at the home of Mrs. George W. Morton.

For Representatives.

We had occasion at the time of the Representative Convention to state that the good feeling displayed towards Candidate John McKnight, indicated a flattering vote at the polls, and we feel he is entitled to it. He has taken an active interest in the working of his party and is in every way qualified to be represent our city—we have had a good word to say about him from time to time, and we feel that the citizens of Quincy will do well in choosing him as one of their Representatives to the General Court.

An interview with Representative Badger, who is a candidate for reelection, will convince most voters that Mr. Faxon's attack is unwarrantable. Mr. Badger always votes "No-license" and is a strong advocate of temperance, and temperance legislation. Perhaps the most important issue relative to temperance before the last Legislature was the so-called "semi-colon bill." Representative Badger was one of the two dissenters and made a stubborn fight against the bill, and it was defeated.

Relative to the abutters' bill, investigation by Mr. Badger showed that people bought property adjoining a saloon that they might demand hush money, and that property holders situated thus voted for license for their own profit. That the object of the law on the statute books was to give abutters a chance to object. Where a saloon has been located two years it should not be subject to blackmail annually thereafter.

Relative to allowing sales of liquor until midnight Representative Badger realized that there was no chance of passing the bill, and it was only in one of its earlier stages that he happened to be absent.

The Sunday golf bill, so called, made no reference to golf and that was not its chief aim.

Mr. Badger says he looked at the Hebrew bill from a religious standpoint. Where so much is permitted on Sundays, he questioned if the Hebrews who observe Saturday as their Sabbath should be compelled to close their places of business. He admits that it was quite a problem with him, and that even now he is not sure whether he voted right or not.

All in all the votes of Representative Badger were all right. He is a man of the people, and honest in his convictions, and he should be able another year to give even a better account of himself than in his first year.

DEAD FOR A YEAR.

Skeleton of a Man Found in the Blue Hills.

Linemen employed by the American Telegraph and Telephone Co., found the skeleton of a man yesterday afternoon at the Blue Hills near the line between Randolph, Milton and Quincy, but on the Quincy side. The body had evidently been there a long time, for there was nothing but bones left. The clothing on the remains was of the heavy winter kind, and aside from this the only thing left to identify the remains was a pair of glasses.

Sargent Hawkins of the Metropolitan police was notified, and he in turn notified the Quincy police. Medical Examiner Jones viewed the remains and ordered them removed to Undertaker Hall's. Dr. Jones said the man had probably been dead a year or more.

From the glasses and clothing it is believed that the remains are those of a man named Taylor of Brockton. Taylor was a drover, and was in the habit of driving cattle over this route. He has been missing for a year. Some months ago the Metropolitan police found a note near the spot where the remains were found. The note was signed, John Graham, and gave a Boston address. The note stated that the writer intended to commit suicide, and that they would find his body in the well near by. At that time the well was searched but no body was found, and no one by the name of Graham could be found at the address given.

This morning Medical Examiner Jones made a more thorough examination of the effects of the skeleton. He found a bullet hole in the head, and the bullet imbedded in the skull probably showing the method of death. He also found a 32 calibre revolver of the bull dog pattern and a box of cartridges. Other things found were a note written upon a letterhead of the New England House, Boston, to Lewis drug store. The note said the writer was sick and unable to come after the medicine. The signature could not be made out. A bottle containing laudnum with the following blown in the glass "Joseph G. Ham, pharmacist, Livermore Falls, Me. Two powders which Dr. Jones said were either arsenic or sulphanol. A pawn ticket issued by the Bay State Loan Co., Boston; an umbrella check marked 20 New England House, and an order issued by the American express.

The most important find however, and that which probably fixes his identity, was a bunch of keys. On this was a tag probably made from an old baggage check. On one side was stamped the name "George M. Treat, Livermore Falls, Me." and on the reverse side "B. & T. Co., 214."

Senator Sprague.

It is pleasing to note that the city as well as the Republicans, is enthusiastic over the reelection of Eugene H. Sprague to the Senate. It is an honor to have a Quincy gentleman in the Senate, and Senator Sprague is an honor to Quincy, so honors are even, and his majority on Tuesday next should be large.

Wedding at Braintree.

A pretty home wedding was solemnized at the residence of Mrs. Annie A. Richardson of Braintree on Wednesday evening, Oct. 30, when her daughter Ora A. was united in marriage to Mr. Charles Sumner Parker of Rochester, N. H., Rev. H. S. Snyder officiating.

The floral decorations, consisting of begonias, ferns, roses and chrysanthemums, were very effectively arranged, forming a beautiful background for the bridal couple during the wedding ceremony.

The wedding was attended by only a few relatives and intimate friends. Very dainty refreshments were served at the close of the reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker were the recipients of numerous beauriful gifts, as tokens of esteem, from their many friends.

They will reside in Somersworth, N. H., where the best wishes of a large circle of friends follow them.

To the Public.

Allow me to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I had a very severe cough and cold and feared I would get pneumonia, but after taking the second dose of this medicine I felt better, three bottles of it cured my cold, and the pains in my chest disappeared entirely. Friday afternoon Mrs. J. H. Slade of Quincy, read her original essay, intitled "The Paid Workers in the home—their relation to their employers—their rights and privileges, the rights and privileges of their employers, their social standing as it is, and as it should be in comparison with workers in other occupations,"—to a very appreciative audience of ladies in Wollaston in the vestry of the Unitarian church. This essay was awarded the prize offered by the Quincy Home Science Association. It has attracted considerable interest from the fact that the subject appeals so strongly to woman generally.

YOUR CHOICE

of plodding along in the old treadmill way, or of using your thinker to get a little ahead without so many blisters and sore spots.

DON'T COMPLAIN

If your landlord is getting rich; it's your fault. You may as well have an income as to pay it all out in house rent; that little deposit you are holding till something happens to eat it all up would be just as safe invested in a house and would bring in a hundred or more every year. Besides, you would have the advantage of a good home in a clean new house.

I have now nearly completed, another of those popular two-family houses on Federal avenue, Quincy Adams, which will pay 25 per cent profit on your investment. Bring deposit, and look this up, as these always sell to the first one who investigate.

I have single houses too, to suit the most exacting, and all sold at the lowest possible imit.

Alas, my love is far away,
And there is naught can comfort me!
A gallant wooed me yesterday
Beneath the shady greenwood tree.
"Fair sir," I said, "thy vows are vain;
This heart is wrung with heavy pain,
And he I love— Thou art not he."

With gauds of jewels and of gold
And robes of pearl and silver thread
Came a great lord who would me wed
And give me all his heart to hold.

And then came Death. O sweet and fair,
Stretch forth thine arms and clasp me there!
Dear Death, do thou my body bear
There where my love is lying cold!
Only thy breast should stay her head
Who never may be comforted.
—Rosamund Marriott Watson in Harper's.

HIS LITTLE WARD

A Story Having More to Do With the Child's Governess Than the Child Herself.

It was very annoying. Leslie Thomas threw the letter impatiently on the table and gazed for some time into the glowing embers of his bachelor fireside.

What had he done? He, a sober minded, single man, to be saddled with a child for the rest of his days; he, who disliked children, to be the guardian and protector of a girl who was nothing to him until she should arrive at an age to take care of herself. Yet he had promised the child's father.

With an impatient sigh, he picked up the letter again and read the contents.

Dear Mr. Thomas—I trust you will not consider this a piece of interference on my part, but I thought it necessary for you to know that your little ward, Eva Gresham, has now reached the age of five, without once having seen the face of her guardian. I am anxious to know what you intend to do in the way of her education and thought perhaps you would better judge by coming down soon to see her. Yours faithfully,
ROSE HERSCHEL.

"A piece of impertinence," said the devoted guardian, biting his nails. "What is it to do with Miss Rose Herschel, I should like to know? The child is nothing to me. However, I suppose I must do my duty by her. I'll run down to Sevenoaks and set matters right straight away, packing my ward off to a boarding school and Miss Impudence about her business. She has had a nice, soft time of it looking after that child, and now perhaps she will be sorry she had a finger in the pie."

That was how Mr. Leslie Thomas found himself the following afternoon outside a snug little villa at Sevenoaks. He hesitated before knocking. The cottage, he thought, looked rather fine for such humble inhabitants, and yet there was the name written up over the porch right enough—Woodbine Cottage—in big gilt letters. Filmy lace curtains fluttered at the windows, through which a glimpse of a daintily furnished drawing room could be seen. The window boxes were gay with flowers, and the whole house had a thoroughly well kept appearance.

In some surprise Eva's guardian reached up and lifted the shining door knocker, wondering in spite of himself that he had never had the curiosity to venture here before. The door was opened by a spruce maid, to whose skirts clung a little, girlish mite of five.

"Miss Herschel?" he inquired, with a glance of interest at the child.

"Will you please come in, sir?" said the girl, and Mr. Thomas followed the girl into the snuggest little drawing room ever furnished. He had hardly taken a chair ere Miss Herschel entered, with Eva on her hand.

She was a tall, graceful girl of about eight and twenty, with a sweet, womanly face, frank eyes and a rich, glowing color.

"Mr. Thomas! I'm so glad you've come. I thought you would," she said, with a smile, betraying a bewitching dimple in either cheek. "I did so want you to know your little ward. Isn't she a darling?"

"A nice little girl indeed," stammered Leslie. "I am glad you sent for me. She is now at an age when she should mix up with other children. I will see about a boarding school at once."

"A boarding school!" The color deepened suddenly in Miss Herschel's cheek, and her eyes flashed indignantly. "A boarding school," she repeated warmly, "for a delicate child like that! Nonsense! She wouldn't live a month of it. Besides, I love her and cannot part with her."

The haughtiness and assurance with which she spoke surprised and irritated Mr. Thomas, who considered himself a masterful man in his way.

"Indeed," he said dryly. "But the future of the child must be considered before personal desires."

"She could go to a day school about here, or—or I could spare time to teach her."

"Thank you, but I prefer the idea of a boarding school," said Leslie Thomas. "You forget I am the child's guardian."

"And you seem to forget that I have taken the place of the child's mother," said the girl quickly.

"Well, you have been paid for it."

They were insulting words, and Leslie was sorry the moment he had uttered them. Even then he was surprised to see the effect they had upon the girl.

She rose instantly, trembling in every limb, the color coming and going in her cheeks and with her eyes ablaze with indignation.

"Paid for it! Yes," she said rapidly. "And for all you knew and for all the interest you took in me and the child I might have been a wicked, worthless woman who accepted the money for her own use and shamefully neglected and ill used the child."

With this she swept him a look of utter disdain and contempt and, walking over to her writing table, unlocked a drawer and drew forth a small box in which reposed a little hoard of bank notes and golden coins.

"Here are Eva's savings," she said stiffly; "fifty pounds yearly for nearly five years. It is a nice little sum. Will you please take it with her now?"

Leslie Thomas turned abashed from the scornful brown eyes and by way of diversion picked up the child, who beat him furiously with her little doubled fists.

Leslie laughed awkwardly and set her down.

"She is a little mite," he said. "I suppose she will not be the worse for a little more coddling. What do you say? Shall we keep the peace for another twelve months?"

The girl swept him a deep courtesy. "My lord is gracious," she said, with mock gratitude; and then, with a sudden change of manner, she turned from him, with a sob, and caught the child passionately to her breast.

* * * * * * *

Emboldened by a strong sense of duty, which had never troubled him before the interview with Eva's good friend, Leslie Thomas paid frequent visits to the little villa at Sevenoaks. Miss Herschel was consulted about a school in the neighborhood for his little ward, her talents were discussed, her toys chosen and her pleasures arranged, and in the mutual interest for the child's welfare the altercation at their first meeting was forgotten, and the two became fast friends—nay, more, for the fine color in Miss Herschel's cheek deepened to an alarming degree when the familiar knock came at the door, and, although Leslie Thomas had as yet spoken no words but those of kindly friendship, his eyes were unconsciously eloquent.

But silence could not be maintained for long, and one day when Leslie had accidentally met her returning from a walk he purposely returned to the subject of a boarding school for the hapless little Eva.

This time Miss Herschel maintained her composure and smiled severely. She knew her power now.

"Do you want to be saddled with the child all your life?" he demanded.

"If you put it that way—yes."

"But you may marry," this anxiously.

"In such an event," began Miss Herschel, coloring and with a swift, upward glance, "she would still be in the care of her guardian."

"Then you would leave her?" asked Leslie.

"Oh, no. She would still remain as my little daughter."

This time her eyes were withdrawn, for, with a burst of eloquence, Leslie had caught her in a close embrace.

"Do you really mean it, Rose?" he murmured at length. "Can you really look upon me as a lover after—after my rudeness to you and my brutality to that child?"

"Yes, I think I can," said Rose, smiling, "even after your 'brutality.' But listen, and don't think me quite disinterested with regard to little Eva. Her father was once betrothed to me."

"To you!" said Leslie, suddenly releasing her.

"Yes, but you needn't be jealous, dear. It was a most prosaic affair, and he afterward fell in love with and married Eva's mother, who died, as you know, soon after the little one's birth. Perhaps it was natural for my poor Herbert when he knew that he was dying to wish to place the little orphan in my care."

"Then you love the child for her father's sake?" said Leslie almost resentfully.

"No; for her own and for his sad memory," said Rose gravely. "Is she to be your little daughter, too, or only mine?"

"She shall be ours," said Leslie, with some fervor. "She was the means of bringing us together, and for that alone I owe her a debt of gratitude I shall never be able to repay."

"Except by being good to her and her adopted mother for the rest of your life," said Miss Herschel, lifting her lips temptingly.

Verdi on Berlioz.

"Berlioz was a poor invalid, at odds with everybody, acrid and malignant. He possessed great, acute genius. The rare gift of instrumentation was his. He forestalled Wagner in many orchestral effects. The Wagnerites will not agree to this, but it is so nevertheless. He did not know moderation. He lacked the calm and, I will say, the equipoise that are indispensable to completeness in art. He always went to extremes, even when he did a praiseworthy thing. He was treated badly enough while he lived. Now he is dead, hosanna!"

In 1871 Arrivabene sent some verses on the nightingale and asked Verdi to set them to music. Verdi wrote his excuses.

"Your verses are pretty, but you know well that I am not good at doing fugitive pieces. And, then, do you imagine that after I had made a few trills and a few ascending scales, thinking to imitate the nightingale, that I should have a melody? Ah, no! Melodies are not made of trills and scales.

"Don't be angry with me if I run down Rossini a little, for Rossini need have no fear of abuse. Art will be the gainer when critics know enough and have the courage to speak the truth about him."—Verdi's Letters.

Early Icehouses.

In America icehouses have been known for at least 200 years. They were first very primitive affairs, being nothing more than deep cellars, the flooring made of boards or stone, upon which was placed a layer of straw or sawdust. The sides were lined with boards set about a foot from the wall, and this space was filled in with sawdust, tan bark or straw. A rough, thatched roof completed the structure, which was then filled with ice, between the layers of which tan bark or sawdust was strewed.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Nov. 3—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—God's leading in our lives.—Ps. xxiii.

No words of the psalmist have had such a universal appreciation and influence as those contained in the Twenty-third Psalm. Their beauty and strength have been the delight of childhood, the admiration of manhood and the support of old age. Nowhere is the fact of God's leading in our lives more beautifully set forth than in the figure in this psalm of the shepherd leading the sheep into green pastures and beside the still waters.

The psalm suggests a number of facts concerning God's leading in our lives.

1. God leads us. This is the doctrine of this psalm. God does not drive us, but leads us. The eastern shepherd went before his sheep and led them. So the Lord as our shepherd leads us. What a comforting truth! The Lord is our shepherd and leads us. Our lives are not aimless and purposeless. God is in them and directs them.

2. God leads us daily. Daily the shepherd watched over his sheep and led them to the green pastures and by the cooling streams. Daily the Lord leads us. Day by day He gives us our daily bread. Constantly His providential care is over us. In the Shepherd's daily, hourly care of His sheep we may hear a voice saying unto us, "Every day will I bless thee."

3. God leads us individually. The singular personal pronoun is used throughout this psalm, and it gives it increased meaning and preciousness to read it, laying emphasis on the personal pronouns. "My," "I" and "Me" are everywhere used. "The Lord is 'my' shepherd, 'I' shall not want. He maketh 'me' to lie down in green pastures." God knows us and leads us as individuals, regardless of the multitudes of others in the world.

Thou art as much His care
As if nor man nor angel
Lived in earth or heaven.

4. God leads us at all times. In storm and sunshine the shepherd cares for the sheep; in storm or sunshine, in adversity or prosperity, in life or death, the Lord leads us on. "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me, Thy rod and Thy staff they comfort me!"

5. God's leading in our lives gives us calm and peace in all the conditions of our lives. Since the Lord leads us, we "shall not want" and need "fear no evil." This psalm breathes a spirit of calm and assured trust in God which should possess all who have accepted the leading of God in their lives.

The Gain of Suffering.

The apostle in writing of the Captain of Our Salvation said that He was made perfect through sufferings. He was a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief. His life was one of toil, poverty, privation. Notwithstanding it all, there was a joy set before Him which inspired Him to endure the cross and despise the shame. Therefore, as children and heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ, we are called to suffer with Him that we may be also glorified together. For the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us. The fruit of the Spirit develops and ripens more rapidly in the shade of trial or sorrow than in the sunshine of health and prosperity. It becometh the divine Husbandman to cut back and prune with severity the branches of the true vine that they may bring forth more fruit. We are in school under tutors and governors until the time appointed of the Father. Many of the lessons we receive are hard and test our faith and patience to the utmost, but if we "endure as seeing the invisible" the cloud as it passes will wear a silver lining, and at eventide it shall be light.—Christian Uplook.

Bearing the Monotony In Life.

There is a fatal monotony in all our lives. We have to set ourselves morning after morning to tasks that look to be utterly insignificant and disproportionate to the power that we bring to bear upon them—like elephants picking up pins with their trunks—and yet we may make all our commonplace drudgery great and wondrous and fair and full of help and profit to our souls if over it all—our shops, our desks, our ledgers, our studies, our kitchens and our nurseries—we write "My meet is to do the will of Him that sent me."—Alexander McLaren.

A Religious Life.

A religious life is not a thing that spends itself like a bright bubble on the river's surface. It is rather like the river itself, which widens continually and is never so broad or deep as where it rolls into the ocean of eternity.—Lutheran.

The Joy and the Glory.

You shall have the joy of success when you are ready to give God the glory of it.—Matthew Henry.

The Best Way.

One of the best ways of growth in faith is to take God's word and test it.—Episcopal Recorder.

The Larger Self.

Our natures to the night and day
Their qualities of life impart;
The heavens and earth grow old and gray
As we grow old and gray in heart.

To some the last lone age appears,
And Time has nothing to fulfill;
To others, lo, the endless years!
The morning stars are singing still.

ARE IN FIGHTING TRIM

Boers Inflict Severe Punishment Upon British

OVER SIXTY ARE KILLED

Many of Them Being Commissioned Officers—A Hundred and Sixty Wounded—British Also Lost Two Guns In Fight at Close Quarters

London, Nov. 2.—Lord Kitchener has reported to the war office a disaster to the British near Bethel, eastern Transvaal, in which two guns were lost, several officers were killed or wounded, and 54 men were killed and 160 wounded. The following is the text of Lord Kitchener's dispatch, dated Nov. 1.

"I have just heard of a severe attack made on the rear guard of Colonel Benson's column when about 20 miles northeast of Bethel, near Brakenlaagte, during a thick mist.

"The strength of the enemy is reported to have been a thousand. They rushed two guns with the rear guard, but it is uncertain whether they were able to remove them.

"I fear our casualties were heavy. Colonel Benson was wounded, but not severely. A relieving column will reach him this morning."

Later Lord Kitchener telegraphed as follows: "Colonel Barter, who marched from the constabulary line yesterday, reached Benson's column early this morning (Friday) unopposed. He reports that Colonel Benson died of his wounds.

"The other casualties are the following: Killed—Colonel E. Guiness, Major F. D. Murray, Captains M. W. Lindsay and J. T. Thorold, Lieutenants E. V. Brooke and R. E. Shepard, and Second Lieutenant A. J. Corlett.

Died of his wounds—Captain Eyre Lloyd."

Lord Kitchener then gives the names of 13 other officers who were wounded, most of them severely, and announces that 54 non-commissioned officers and men were killed and 160 wounded, adding that four of the latter have since died of their wounds.

The dispatch then says: "I assume that the two guns have been recovered and the enemy has withdrawn, but I have no further details.

"I deeply regret the loss of Colonel Benson and the officers and men who fell with him. In Benson the service loses a most gallant and capable officer, who invariably led his column with marked success and judgment.

"The fighting was at very close quarters and maintained with great determination by both sides. The enemy suffered heavily, but I have not yet received a reliable estimate.

"The Boers retired east."

Colonel Benson had been for some time operating in the vicinity of Bethel, which is northeast of Standerton. He surprised a Boer laager Oct. 22 near Trichardsfonte, taking 37 prisoners. Three days later, according to Lord Kitchener's report at the time, after a long night march, the commandoes under Grebelaar and Erasmus, "heavily attacked Benson's rear guard and flanks at Yzirvarkfontein, but were easily driven away."

Whether this was the attack which resulted so disastrously or whether the Boers, who had been repulsed, took advantage of the mist to renew the attack, is still unexplained. Lord Kitchener does not give the date of the Bethel engagement.

QUESTION OF REPRISALS

Sentiment of Fighting Burghers and Boer Authorities Is Divided

Amsterdam, Nov. 2.—The Boer deputation here summoned Messrs. Leyds and Van Boeschoter by telegraph from Brussels, to consider dispatches received from the Boer leaders in the field, saying that the fighting burghers are determined to make reprisals if the British continue hanging and shooting rebels, and other dispatches to the effect that the Boer authorities in South Africa affirm that the adoption of reprisals would be bad policy, and that, in order to strengthen their position, they request Mr. Kruger to let them know his opinion, because he still has the greatest hold on the minds of the burghers. The meeting lasted four hours and it was decided to advise Mr. Kruger to comply with the request of the Boer authorities and to take the opportunity to bring the subject of British executions in South Africa before the European public in an open letter. Dr. Leyds has gone to Hilversum to present the matter to Mr. Kruger.

Took Seventy-Eight Boers

London, Nov. 2.—A dispatch from Lord Kitchener says that Colonel Kekewich, during a night surprise of Van Albert's laager, northeast of Rustenburg, captured 78 Boers.

New Lease of Life

Newburg, N. Y., Nov. 2.—Governor Odell has granted another respite to Nov. 20 in the case of Fred Krist, under sentence of death for shooting his sweetheart at Waverly. The court of appeals fixed Nov. 11 in which to consider a motion for a re-argument of the case. Krist is in Auburn prison and was to have been executed on Monday next.

Lucky to Have the Thousand

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 2.—Jacob Nickelson did not believe in banks and kept his money hidden in his house. On Thursday robbers stole $4500 in greenbacks. Yesterday Nickelson deposited in bank $1000 in gold which the robbers overlooked.

HER LIFE IN DANGER

Miss Stone's Abductors Insist Upon Original Ransom Asked

Constantinople, Nov. 2.—The case of Miss Stone has become more serious. The brigands, it appears, are still holding out for the £25,000 ransom and it is feared that should they persist in their demand Miss Stone will have to be sacrificed. Nevertheless the negotiations are still proceeding.

Anxiety prevails at the United States legation, whence there has been an active exchange of telegrams between Spencer Eddy and various points. Mr. Eddy had a long conference with Sir Nicholas R. O'Conor, the British ambassador here, who is actively assisting in the efforts to bring Miss Stone's release.

Sofia, Nov. 2.—The best method of transmitting the ransom demanded by the brigands for the release of Miss Ellen M. Stone, the abducted American missionary, and of assuring the safety of the captives, are the matters now engaging the attention of the Samakov missionaries who are negotiating with the kidnappers. It is felt that unusual precautions are necessary in order to safeguard Miss Stone and the others, as there undoubtedly is danger that the captives will be murdered after the ransom is paid.

Not Many Troops Needed In West

Washington, Nov. 2.—General H. C. Merriam, commanding the department of Colorado, with headquarters at Denver, is in Washington. He will retire at the end of this month, after 40 years of continuous service. "It would not surprise me to see the standing army in the United States reduced," he remarked in speaking of the field of recent service. "There is no longer any necessity of a large number of troops here, the Indians are no longer hostile, and the danger from Indian outbreaks is very small. It will be necessary only to keep small detachment at various points near the reservations to exert a restraining influence.

Children Afflicted With Rabies

Chicgo, Nov. 2.—Eight children, accompanied by their parents, ended a 1500-mile race for life last evening at Chicago institute. Another child will arrive today. The children, ranging in age from 4 to 9 years, came from Colorado Springs, Colo., where they were bitten last Sunday by a dog afflicted with rabies. Fearing hydrophobia, their parents began the long journey to have their children treated. If the children had not arrived yesterday Dr. Logorio says the rabies probably would have developed and death might have resulted. Dr. Logorio said last night that the children would recover.

Evidence of Business Expansion

New York, Nov. 2.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Although the latest railroad returns indicate that transporting facilities have greatly improved, the nation's business has expanded more rapidly. Car shortage has become the chief retarding influence. From all sections of the country and many lines of industry complaints are heard regarding the inability to move goods.

Grand Jurymen Hauled Up

Indianapolis, Nov. 2.—The members of the grand jury were brought before the criminal court yesterday for alleged contempt of court because they did not return indictments against saloonkeepers against whom evidence was offered by the Civic alliance of this city. The court held, however, that such a proceeding was beyond its jurisdiction, and the members of the grand jury were discharged.

Business Suspended For Man Hunt

Prescott, Ark., Nov. 2.—City Marshal Cox was shot and killed by Charles Levy, colored, yesterday afternoon. Cox attempted to arrest Levy on a trivial charge. Levy escaped. Citizens generally closed their stores and offices and arming themselves, started in pursuit of the negro. There are hundreds scouring the woods in search of the fugitive.

Workmen In Railroad Smashup

Valparaiso, Ind., Nov. 2.—Two men were instantly killed and dozens of others injured in a collision at Plymouth last evening between a local freight on the Pennsylvania road and a work train of the Clifford Construction company. Not a man on the work train crew escaped uninjured and it is feared several of them are fatally hurt.

Went Right to Work

San Juan, Nov. 2.—Charles Hartsell of Colorado, the newly appointed secretary of Porto Rico, has arrived here. After an all-day consultation with Governor Hunt and the cabinet, Mr. Hartsell immediately assumed office. He will become acting governor Monday, when the governor starts on a trip into the interior.

No Cable to Canaries

Washington, Nov. 2.—In a report to the state department Consul Berliner at Teneriffe says that all the islands of the Canary group are now cut off from cable connection with the outside world and with each other, except Teneriffe, which has cable coanection with Bathurst, Africa.

TO MAKE CORRECTIONS

Schley and Others Will Again Take Witness Stand

COURT NEARING THE END

A Few Details to Be Gone Over on Monday and Argument Will Then Begin—May Be Many Weeks Before the Verdict Is Rendered

Washington, Nov. 2.—The hands of the clock in the hall occupied by the Schley court of inquiry pointed to 12:45 o'clock yesterday when Judge Advocate Lemly announced that he had no more witnesses to call and Mr. Rayner, following him, said that no witnesses would be summoned on behalf of Admiral Schley in sur-rebuttal.

For a moment it appeared as if the famous case was about to reach a sudden conclusion. But this delusion was soon dissipated by the announcement on the part of Captain Lemly that he might ask to be allowed to bring in one more witness on Monday and also a statement from Mr. Rayner that Admiral Schley himself would desire to return to the stand on Monday to correct errors in his evidence as officially reported.

There is probability that the admiral will consume considerable time in going over the printed record of what he said, and there also is an understanding that he will make some additions to his former statement. But it is not believed that beyond what he may have to say there will be much more testimony taken in the case. The only witness that the judge advocate still has in mind is Lieutenant Strauss, and Captain Lemly announced that if the lieutenant's attendance could be secured he would detain the court for a short time only. Captain Sigsbee will also return to the stand Monday to make corrections in the testimony previously given by him.

These details completed, the argument of counsel will begin and then counsel and the public will withdraw and leave the court to its deliberations. The task before the court is not a light one, and it may be weeks before the final verdict will be reached.

Yesterday's witnesses were Sylvester Scovel, a former newspaper correspondent who saw service in the Cuban campaign; Lieutenant Hood, who commanded the Hawk during the Spanish war, and also a number of officers who were heard Thursday and who returned to the stand to correct testimony. The court held only one session and adjourn over till Monday.

The attendance on the court yesterday was the smallest since the sessions began. Comparatively few of the reserved seats were occupied at the beginning of the sitting and Lieutenant Crawford, Admiral Dewey's private secretary, who has handled the distribution of tickets with rare tact, invited those present to the front when he discovered that the seats would not be claimed by ticket holders, thus giving the court an audience and at the same time affording the chance visitors a good opportunity to hear the proceedings.

New Jersey Is Prospering

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 2.—The fiscal year for the state government ended yesterday with a balance of over $2,250,000 in the treasury, the largest depository of the state. Financial prosperity last year has enabled the state government to pay 35 percent of the school tax, heretofore raised by taxation in the various districts, and to make many improvements in the state institutions. There is no direct state tax in New Jersey, the railroad, canal and miscellaneous corporation taxes furnishing its equivalent.

A Shot at Ford and Redmond

London, Nov. 2.—Referring to a report that Patrick Ford was among those who welcomed John Redmond, M. P., on his arrival in New York, the Dublin correspondent of the Times says: If the dictates of Mr. Redmond's conscience indeed permitted him to enter New York under the auspicies of the scoundrel responsible for the fiendish suggestions contained in the Irish World of Oct. 19, the financial conditions of the rish party must be desperate in the extreme.

Morocco Removes Coast Tariff

Washington, Nov. 2.—The state department has been informed that the Sultan of Morocco has decided to open the coast trade in his country so as to permit grain, fowls, vegetables and other articles of food to be transported freely from port to port. Heretofore there has been a tariff which prevented such trade.

Maso a Strong Candidate

Havana, Nov. 2.—The manifesto of General Bartalome Maso in declaring himself a candidate for the presidency of Cuba has caused a stir in political circles. It is generally admitted that he will prove a strong candidate if he receives the support of the autonomist party.

Had Long Argument Over It

Melbourne, Nov. 2.—After a continuous sitting of 27 hours the federal house of representatives rejected, by a vote of 39 to 25, a resolution of no confidence in the government introduced by the opposition leader in connection with the tariff bill.

Overcome by Nervousness

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 2.—James Callahan, on trial for alleged perjury in his testimony during the trial in the Cudaby kidnapping, collapsed from nervousness yesterday and had to be removed from the court room.

COMPANY CONTRIBUTES

Providence Railway Puts New Pension System In Effect

Providence, Nov. 2.—The system of pensions and insurance inaugurated by the United Traction company went into effect yesterday. The amounts of the pensions, of the life insurance and of the accident and sickness benefits are graduated according to the wage scale.

Those who earn less than $9 a week pay an insurance premium of 10 cents a week and get a life insurance of $500, an average annual pension of $273 beginning at the age of 70 and a weekly accident and sickness benefit of $4.

Those who earn more than $9 but less than $12 a week pay an insurance premium of 15 cents a week and get a life insurance of $750, at an annual average pension of $382.20, beginning at age of 70 and a weekly sickness and accident benefit of $6.

Those who earn $12 a week or more pay an insurance premium of 20 cents a week and get a life insurance of $1000, an average anual pension of $573.30 beginning at age of 70, and a weekly accident and sickness benefit of $8.

All the cost of the insurance system beyond these small payments of the workmen is contributed by the company.

Roosevelt Interested In Indians

Washington, Nov. 2.—The president has gone over the Indian situation very carefully with Commissioner Jones, and it is predicted that radical changes in our policy toward the red man will be witnessed in this administration. The changes will be substantially on the lines of Commissioner Jones's recommendations in his last report, and they will look towards removing those influences which tend to pauperize the Indian. Rations will generally be cut off, and instead of paying annuities on Indian funds, the aim will be to use the money in local improvements. Particularly will the government work for the more rapid breaking up of tribal relations, although even at its best this process will be slow. President Roosevelt's acquaintance with the west and with Indian life deepens his interest in this subject.

Death In Anti-Toxine

St. Louis, Nov. 2.—The list of deaths attributed to lockjaw as a result of the administration of diphtheric anti-toxine manufactured by the city chemist now numbers 11, two more deaths having been reported yesterday. Eleven other children are reported to the health officials as suffering from lockjaw with slight chances for recovery. The cause of lockjaw in each case is said to be poisoning from the city's diptheric anti-toxine.

Call For Martial Law

Tampa, Fla., Nov. 2.—In view of statements which continue to reach the cigar manufacturers of this county in regard to certain people in Key West, The Times calls upon the governor to declare martial law in Key West. It is alleged that one man was taken from the boat at Key West and thrown overboard and many other serious charges are made.

Did Not Return to Toulon

Paris, Nov. 2.—The dispatch from Toulon announcing the return of Admiral Caillards' division of the French Mediterranean squadron to that port proves to be incorrect. The officials of the foreign office say that the admiral has not returned and that he is now on his way to Turkish waters.

Two Hundred Quarantined

Glasgow, Nov. 2.—No additional cases of the plague have been officially reported. Two hundred employes of the Central Station hotel are confined to the hotel precincts for observation.

Rich Man to Be Hanged

Indianapolis, Nov. 2.—The supreme court yesterday decided that Joseph Keith must be hanged Nov. 15 for the murder of Nora Kifer at Elberfield. Keith is very wealthy.

No Challenge Next Season

London, Nov. 2.—It may be taken for granted, says The Times today, that Sir Thomas Lipton will not issue a challenge for the America's cup next season.

Good Afternoon

The Joker says it is unfortunate that all the Republican municipal caucuses are to be held on one evening this year. Many, he says, would like to have the Ward Five caucus held first so that the neighbors of Edward E. Jameson and Charles M. Bryant might pick out their "favorite son." In Wollaston however there does not seem to be much doubt as to the result, for some are claiming the ward by over two to one for Mr. Jameson. Under the circumstances a majority of fifty votes would be a handsome victory. Mr. Jameson has the written endorsement of about one hundred of the best known voters of Ward Five, and the assurance of the support of fully 200 more, which should be sufficient to carry the ward.

Should Mr. Bryant lose Ward Five, he would probably lose the nomination.

Even Wards One, Four and Six, should he carry them, would yield but 25 votes and 26 are necessary. Any other three wards outside of Wollaston would figure still less. Wards Three, Four and Six would foot up but 22 votes, and Wards Two, Three and Six the same. Wards One, Five and Six would give Mr. Bryant the nomination with some to spare.

The chances of Elisha Packard in Ward One seem to be about as good as those of Mr. Jameson in Ward Five. He carried the ward last year and this year he has the support of many who were with Mayor Hall for a reelection last year. Mr. Packard also has a strong list of delegates in Ward Four.

The sharpest skirmish promises to come in Ward Three between Frederick L. Jones and Charles M. Bryant. The true worth of Mr. Jones is well known, but Mr. Bryant has made a great many friends, and push often wins over in such a case.

The Republican convention will be entitled to the following number of delegates:

Ward One,	12 Delegates
Ward Two,	7 Delegates
Ward Three,	9 Delegates
Ward Four,	7 Delegates
Ward Five,	10 Delegates
Ward Six,	6 Delegates
Total,	51 Delegates
Majority,	26 Delegates

Drift of Opinion.

☞Henry Watterson is not only one of the most picturesque figures in American politics, but one of the most brilliant of American journalists. Like Webster's Old Soldier, he has come down to us from a former generation, or, it may be said of him, from former generations. The editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal is really the last of the great editors of this country who imparted so much of their own individuality to their work as to make the newspapers they controlled the medium of their own forceful and dominating personality. Of this class were Greeley, Bennett, Raymond, Dana, Bowles. In the fulness of their time it was not the Tribune, the Herald, the Times the Sun, the Springfield Republican which were quoted but the deliverances of the editors who controlled them. It was once commonly said that the multitiudes of the readers of the Tribune confidently believed that Horace Greeley wrote every line which was printed in that newspaper, including the advertisements. Henry Watterson's contemporaries in what is now traditionally known as "personal journalism" have all passed away; he alone survives.—Philadelphia Ledger.

FAXON FOR ECONOMY.

Not in Favor of Opening up Faxon Park Now.

The City Already Too Much in Debt.

Many Present Advocated the New Street.

The Committee on Streets of the City Council gave a public hearing last evening in the Council chamber on the petition for laying out a new street from Franklin street to Quincy avenue, in accordance with the terms of the deed of gift of Faxon park, and also on the petition to widen Howard street. There was quite an attendance of citizens in favor of the first petition, but no one appeared for or against the second.

Faxon park was given to the city in 1895 by Henry H. Faxon, and one of the conditions was that a street should be built but it never has been.

Oscar Fisk said many people ask why there was not a street under the deed of gift? a street should be built. We claim the city is legally bound to build. All citizens in that vicinity think the street should be laid out. In summer many people use the park, and if there was a street there would be many more visit it. The street would also make a continuous street from South Quincy to Quincy Point.

Mr. Costa was in favor of the street.

There is an increasing demand for it as the locality is building up rapidly If not built now, Mr. Faxon may not live to see it. The time has arrived when it should be done.

Commissioner Knowlton in response to a question as to cost, said that he had not been over the proposed street very carefully, and would not want to give an estimate of the cost of building. However he thought it might be done under $3,000.

Mr. Young said, when Kendrick avenue was petitioned for, he was surprisd to find it only extended part way to the park. As it is now, if anyone wants to go to Quincy Point they must go down Franklin street which was considerably out of the way. It would be a great convenience to the public.

Mr. Swain was of the opinion that the quicker the road was built the quicker returns would come from it. He considered this the prettiest section in Quincy.

Mr. Faircloth thought it would be a great convenience and should be built.

Simeon Scammell thought the road very necessary and it would be a great convenience. It was a long time since the park was given to the city, and he would be glad to see the street laid out and built.

Henry H. Faxon was present but did not intend to speak. He was called upon and improved the opportunity to rap the City Council for its extravagance. He said he did not care whether it was built or not. He would like to see it if we were not so much in debt. Parks were expensive. He was going in for economy as long as the city was in debt. If laid out a policeman, a live policeman should be put on duty to keep people from stealing wood. While we had such an extravagant Council, who expended money right and left, and passed orders over the Mayor's veto, he should not advocate any improvements.

Oscar Frisk said he never heard anyone kick about taxes if they got something for them. We have some good councilmen in Ward Three but the ward does not get much. He supposed of course that Mr. Faxon would be in favor of the street.

Mr. Faxon in reply said there was no question but what the street would be a good thing but he did not believe in going into debt for it.

This hearing was then closed.

The hearing on widening Howard street was then called but as no one appeared for or against the petition it was adjourned for two weeks.

MAKE LIGHT OF IT.

J. M. Fisher & Co. Resume Business But All Mail is Held.

J. M. Fisher & Co., the brokers on the fifth floor, Fiske building, State street, were doing business at the old stand yesterday says the Globe, which prints the following:

Mr. Fisher, the head of the firm, radiant with smiles and jolly in word and bearing, was on hand early and ready to extend a hearty greeting to the many callers who came to see him.

Attired in a faultlessly fitting suit of gray and doing justice to a fragrant Havana, Mr. Fisher may be said to have held a veritable reception. The occupants of the building had pleasant words for him and the incomers from without — the latter including many trim-looking men with the business instinct — also came to extend congratulations as well as assurances of their confidence.

Mr. Fisher talked good naturedly regarding trade, the industrials and other things of a commercial and speculative value. He gave his friends every assurance that his firm was still in business.

The click of typewriters and mellifluous voices of the pretty clerks and hello-girls in the office appeared to confirm his statement.

Touching the general subject involved in the case, on which the members of the firm Thursday were held by the U. S. commissioner for a hearing, Mr. Fisher had little to say. To all queries as to the likelihood of the concern continuing in business, Mr. Fisher gave an emphatic nod of assent.

A Globe reporter, who called on the firm shortly after noon, was courteously received by Mr. Fisher. The latter, beyond remarking that the firm was still in business, had but little to say except that the present was not the time to talk, and the future would prove the firm to be engaged in an honorable and legitimate business.

He spoke depreciatingly in a general way of the grossly exaggerated statements published in some of the papers.

Braintree Pine Tree Club.

Necrology committee, Irving W. Horne.

Reception committee, Col. A. C. Drinkwater, Mrs. T. H. Dearing, Mrs. J. W. White, Mrs. H. A. Jones, Mrs. E. L. Wright, Miss Nellie A. Hale, Mrs. G. W. Duckworth, Mrs. S. A. Woodman, Mrs. W. H. Foss, Mrs. J. B. Poore, Miss Mattie Mayhew.

Our Representatives.

In the prevalent contention about the nominee for Mayor, we should not lose sight of the fact that on next Tuesday we are to vote for two Representatives in the Legislature. The names of the only candidates who stand any show of election are as follows:

Frank E. Badger of Atlantic.
Harrison A. Keith of Ward 2.
John McKnight of Ward 1.
George H. Wilson of Ward 1.

Look these names over carefully. Decide which of them, by reason of long residence here and aquaintance with the needs of the city, would make the most worthy representative of Quincy, and vote accordingly. H.

☞A new light on the fourth commandment comes from the antipodes: "The man who does not labor during six days of the week is as great a sinner as the Sabbath-breaker." So says an Australian Anglican divine, who lays emphasis on the first part of the injunction, "Six days shalt thou labor." He considers that the party enjoining rest on the Sabbath is naturally more popular and better known than the one ordering work on the six previous days. It is open to argument, whether this reading involves the fallacy of accent, as the logicians call it.—London Chronicle.

Jumped on a Ten Penny Nail.

The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake made of ten-penny nails, and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and a second one half way through. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes later the pain had disappeared and no more suffering was experienced. In three days the child was wearing her shoe as usual and with absolutely no discomfort. Mr. Powell is a well known merchant of Forkland, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and heals such injuries without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. For sale by all druggists.

Finals for the Merrymount golf championship cup today. Fairbanks vs. H. Porter.

Mr. Jesse Marr Ray, of 275 Farrington street, passed quietly away on Thursday, at the ripe old age of 86 years. A friend says his was a useful life, and he is not dead but dwells with God.

At the Fore River Ship and Engine works the keel for a seven masted schooner was laid Thursday. The company have secured the contract from the U. S. government for a large lot of gun forgings.

The next mothers' meeting at the Bethany church will be a reception on Wednesday afternoon to mothers and young children. Mrs. Hardy will read a short paper on "What Constitutes a Good Mother," and an entertainment by children will be presented.

Mrs. Coleman, colored missionary worker, spoke to the Women's Home Missionary society of Wollaston at the Baptist church last evening. She gave some of her own experiences with the Negro, and mentioned many of the trials and tribulations which the colored have had to put up with.

The schooners Carrie A. Lane and Stephen G. Hart of Savannah are discharging lumber at the wharf of the Fore River Engine Co. The schooner Day is just outside with another cargo. This is part of an order of three million feet of lumber which has been placed by the firm.

Committee Conference.

A Christian Endeavor Committee Conference was held at the Braintree Baptist church on Monday evening.

Mr. Charles Boyd of Randolph, president of the East Norfolk C. E. Union presided. Delegates were present from C. E. societies of Holbrook, Randolph Baptist, Quincy Baptist and First church of Braintree.

Hymns were sung and prayers offered.

The paper on Social Committee work was written by the Social Committee of the Randolph society and read by Miss Lovejoy of the same society.

This paper showed that the Social committee could so arrange their Socials as to have them interesting and helpful and they were urged to have a purpose in all their socials, the purpose of winning souls for Christ. The work of the Prayer meeting committee as disclosed in a paper read by Mr. Blanchard of the Holbrook society showed that the prayer meeting should be conducted in such a manner that both strength and help would be obtained from it because of personal experiences there revealed and Christ's promise of "where two or three are gathered in My name there am I in the midst of them."

Miss Keith of the First church, Braintree, read the paper on Missionary committee work as prepared by Miss Holbrook of the same society. This urged the committee to interest the members of their societies and others in the work by setting it forth in an interesting manner. To understand themselves the subject which they are trying to present to others. The last paper was on the Lookout committee work read by Mrs. Fisher of the Braintree Baptist church. This paper brought out the need of personal work.

Rev. Mr. Burrows of the First church delivered the address of the evening which was very helpful and practical.

He forcibly impressed upon the mind and hearts of his listeners the need of searching out the details of whatever work we have to do. Not to make it so general or reaching over the heads of those around us but to get at the details that we may thoroughly understand it and so make it a reality ourselves and then we would be able to awaken the spark of enthusiasm and eagerness in others.

A question box was conducted by Rev. Mr. Whitehouse. This brought forth many questions old and new and solutions which could be followed and thereby benefiting many. The service was closed with the Mizpah benediction. The evening was pronounced one of great help to all present.

A Card.

Norfolk County Commissioner.

MR. BOWKER'S SPEECH.

To the Voters of Norfolk County:

I have refrained from discussing my personal affairs in the newspapers or otherwise, because it has seemed to me that life was too short to refute and disprove all the false and unfair statements that have been made regarding me, but now something more than my own personal reputation is at stake. The Republican County Convention, representing the entire Republican party of Norfolk County, has placed me in nomination for Commissioner of Norfolk County. That nomination was by that convention made unanimous. I am, therefore, the Republican candidate and an attack on me is an attack on the political party and my Brookline friends which nominated me. This fact more than anything else has brought me to make this statement:—

I took my seat on the board of County Commissioners the first Wednesday in January, 1894, succeeding George W. Wiggin, Melville P. Morrell and John Q. A. Lothrop being my associates. The board continued with this organization until the death of Mr. Lothrop, September 24th, 1894. Mr. Thomas Blanchard was elected in the fall of that year to succeed Mr. Lothrop. He took his seat in January, 1895, and continued one of the members of the board for the remaining two years of my time.

Eighteen months before I became a member of the board the plans for the new Court House were accepted and contracts for the rear portion, amounting to $160,000, were made. This did not include furniture, gas fixtures, decorating and many other items. The contract, all the plans for which were prepared by the former board for the front portion of the building, was signed shortly after I came into office, and was signed by all the members of the board, the same being true in regard to all contracts. In fact, there were only about three months when the board did not have a full membership and during that time no contracts were signed and no business of importance was taken up.

My first chance to take an active part in conducting the affair connected with the building came when the plans and details of lighting fixtures and the furniture, both movable and stationary were considered by the board. The number of lighting fixtures was fixed on the original plans; we considerd the styles only. I have no apologies to offer for the furniture. It did cost money, but it will be in service long after those who criticise the building have passed from earth.

I have talked with several members of the State House Investigating Committee, and have also received letters from them assuring me that the committee was unanimously of the opinion that I was not guilty of any dishonest act, and just what I was criticised for they could not explain.

Was I expected to revolutionize all the methods employed for many years by the Commissioners in the transaction of County business and to set aside Judge Hoar's interpretation of the laws under which they were acting?

I went upon the board in good faith, supposing that everybody connected with it was honest, and it never occured to me that it was part of my duty to assume that the chairman or any member of the board was dishonest. I was the junior member of the board, and I had no reason to think that I was elected as a private detective for the purpose of ferreting out wrong-doing. The fact that the State House Investigation Committee was unable to put its finger on any wrong-doing, and after an exhaustive investigation and the examination of witnesses whose printed testimony occupies 2,200 pages, assisted as they were by one of the shrewdest cross-examiners in Boston, and the investigation at no time rising above a suspicion, leads me to assert that it would have been impossible for me to have discovered any wrong-doing.

Many of the finishing touches to the Court House, such as the painting, the decorating, providing for filing case, the screens, etc., fire-proofing of the registry of deeds and probate rooms, were given into my charge, and I have heard no criticism thereon as to the money expended for them, or the character of the work. On these articles alone I succeeded in making a saving of not less than $10,000 from the original estimates.

I gave nearly my entire time to the work of the building and in the workshop of contractor, and not one dollar was paid by the County while I was a member of the board for superintendence.

It seems to me somewhat remarkable that having had a fair reputation for personal integrity, and honesty as a builder, and as a town officer, which, so far as I have been able to learn, has never been impugned, I should be so hounded for what I was in no wise responsible.

The appended letter of Mr. Blanchard's, which has become public, was written, as will be seen by the date, at a time when I was practically out of office, and I did not expect at that time ever to be a candidate. It is simply testimony which cannot be refuted.

There is another fact of which I must speak. Two Boston papers in editorial articles have spoken of my having been a defeated candidate two years ago. These statements are false. I have been a candidate before only at two Norfolk County Conventions, that of 1893 and that of 1901, both of which Conventions endorsed my candidacy for the nomination.

Among the many letters received since my nomination from members of the Investigation Committee and members of the Legislature during the investigation, I present this letter from the Hon. Francis W. Darling of Hdye Park. Mr. Darling took a very prominent part in the matter and was the Senator who originally offerd the order calling for the investigation. The letter requires no comment from me.

Watts H. Bowker.

Brookline, Oct. 31st, 1901.

—Canton Journal.

Hyde Park, Mass., Oct. 10, 1901.

Watts H. Bowker, Esq.

My dear Sir,—Permit me to congratulate you on your nomination as County Commissioner. I believe your further service in the board will be active, efficient and impartial, and that there is no reason why you should not have the loyal support of the party.

Yours respectully,

Francis W. Darling.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 14, 1896.

Mr. Thomas Blanchard.

Dear Sir,—As a citizen of the town of Brookline I wish to ask you two or three questions regarding the report of the committee of investigation on the doings of the Norfolk County Commissioners As both the legislative and the town committees are agreed that you are not amenable to any criticism that is made, you are naturally free to give your unbiassed opinion.

Have you read the Town Committee's report, if so, what do you think of it?

From your knowledge of and connection with Mr. W. H. Bowker as a fellow comissioner, what is your opinion of his character and services on your board? Thanking you in advance for your answer, I am,

Yours truly,

John J. Henry.

Stoughton, Mass., Dec. 15, 1896.

Dear Sir,—Your favor of the 14th inst. at hand, and I gladly answer the same, although it must be hastily, a previous engagement allowing me only a few moments. I have read the report of the Town Committee in your daily papers, and am astonished and grieved that any body of gentlemen should render a verdict (for such it is) without making an investigation and hearing both sides; as well might a judge convict a man on the evidence of the plaintiff without listening to the defence. Two years of association with Mr. Watts H. Bowker has proved him to be strictly conscientious and honest. I consider him to be Honor and Integrity personified. He has given much time and thought to the detail of the completion the building of the Court House. I say completion, because, the work was well under way before he became a member of the board. By his knowledge of such work, and by careful watching over the same, he not only obtained good work, but in several cases has saved the county considerable money.

Contrary to what has been said, the documents on file show that contracts amounting to some $160,000 were made on the Court House before Mr. Bowker's term, therefore the $75,000 bugbear has no standing. These contracts did not include the front part of the building. The main if not the sole object of the undertaking, was a new or more commodious Registry of Deeds office, and this was to be in the front portion, according to the plans adopted by the former board, which plans, signed by George W. Wiggin, are on file at the Court House and could have been seen by your committee. Small corridors, narrow stairs, extravagant marble dadoes (this is a mere matter of taste), insufficient room in the Registry of Deeds office, etc., Mr. Bowker is in no way responsible for, all such having been determined upon, contracts made and much of the work thereon completed before he took office. Certainly Mr. Bowker should not be blamed or criteised for the doings of the former board.

Your committee seem to have entirely forgotten that Mr. Bowker was a new member of a board consisting of three the other two being old members who, presumably, knew about the work under way. A new man, at best, must have time to learn, and I submit that it is not fair to hold him responsible for what possibly he knew nothing about, or at least, had to give way to, by the decision of the other two, as the committee lead the community to infer.

The custom of paying bills and vouchers, with only the signature of the chairman for approval, is wrong, and largely relieves Mr. Bowker of any responsibility in connection with said vouchers not being made out properly. Your committee would have done well to have looked into this matter before passing judgment.

I hardly know if the above answers your questions, but have not time to say more much to my regret for I feel that Mr. Bowker has been unjustly censured, and a faithful, conscientious and capable official injured in an infamous way, and this by the indifference of men who undertook a duty which they neglected (unintentionally, I hope,) to attend to.

Trusting you will excuse haste, I am

Respectfully yours,

Thomas Blanchard.

Let Us be Fair and Square.

Quincy, Oct. 3, 1901.

To the Editors of the Quincy Ledger,

Gentlemen: In your last evening's issue, you express great sympathy in my behalf, and I am truly grateful for the consideration shown.

I am not unmindful however to say that Andrew A. Meyer is twenty-one years of age, able bodied, and is not asking alms of anybody, except that which will come in a just and equitable manner.

You say that the present incumbents in office should be re-elected until such time as they desire to retire. Well, that is a matter of opinion.

Some people think Mr. Faxon has been in long enough, others think that he should be a Councilman-at-large. There are still others that think him fitted to be Mayor of Quincy, and another element think that his success lies in strict attention to his business affairs, and the avoidance of politics.

Now Mr. Editor, all these people think that they are right, and for the sake of peace, I concede, that they are all right.

As for Dr. Sherman it is well known that he defeated me last year by a very few votes, and a good many people who voted for him last year, say that they expected great things of him. They now say that they are disappointed, and want a change. There is another element who believe that he is a good conscientious Christian gentlemen, but totally unfitted for the duties of a Councilman. There are still others who believe that he should be re-elected however little he may do or say on great public questions which are daily coming up in a growing city like Quincy.

"There are others" in Quincy who like Mr. Bass very much, and I am free to say that I appreciate Mr. Bass and his efforts in behalf of Houghs Neck. I think he is a good man, thoroughly conscientious, but all the people don't think that way, and when you come down to the fine thing, it is a matter of opinion all the way through.

There is still another element in the City of Quincy who would like to have Andrew A. Meyer councilman. Those people believe they are right.

Now Mr. Editor, let's be fair and square, let all the candidates fight, let them present their claims of merit to the people, and let them select their candidates without intimidation and without prejudice.

We are living under a Republican form of government, and a constitution guaranteeing equal rights. However we may differ on political questions let us be fair to others, honest to ourselves, and just and impartial in our convictions.

Again thanking you for the great interest manifested in my behalf, I am,

Yours very truly,

Andrew A. Meyer.

TODAY'S COURT.

The continued case of James Connell of Weymouth for the illegal sale of liquor to John W. Barrett was called. He was found not guilty and discharged.

The cases against Michael Holden of Randolph, for the illegal sale of liquor and for assault, were called, and he was discharged on payment of costs.

The continued case of James C. Starr o Milton for non-support was placed on file.

VOTE FOR WRIGHT.

Representative Republicans Recommend His Election.

To the voters of Quincy:

We the undersigned Republican voters of Quincy respectfully urge your support and vote for Marshall P. Wright of Quincy who has been nominated by the Democrats and Independent Republicans. Mr. Wright, as a business man of ability and integrity, will, when elected carry to the office of County Commissioner, qualifications, which all good citizens ought to demand, in our public officials.

Court Business.

Probation officer Francis A. Spear reports that the whole number of criminal cases before the East Norfolk District court for the month of October was 99, divided as follows: Adultery, 3; arson, 3; assault, 7; attempt to rescue prisoner. 1; breaking and entering, 7; bastardy, 1; cruelty to animals, 2; drunks, 35; disturbing the peace, 4; larceny, 11; malicious mischief, 5; riding bicycle on the sidewalk, 1; threat, 2; trespass, 3; vagrant, 1; violation of by-laws, 3; violation of Park rules, 1; search for stolen goods, 3. Liquor cases: sale, 3; illegal transportation, 1; search, 2.

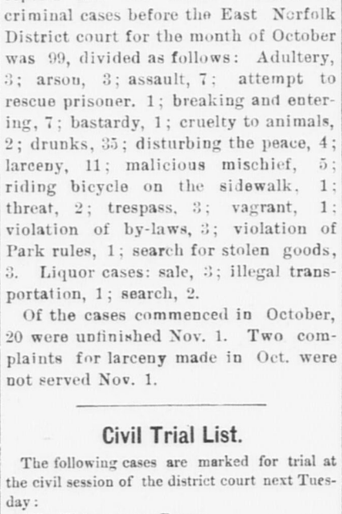

Of the cases commenced in October, 20 were unfinished Nov. 1. Two complaints for larceny made in Oct. were not served Nov. 1.

Civil Trial List.

The following cases are marked for trial at the civil session of the district court next Tuesday:

280—Waterman vs. Brasee.
286—Glidden vs. Hall.
291—Peters vs. Morgan.

For COUNTY COMMISSIONER.

GUSTAVE B. BATES.

Mr. Bates has always been in favor of union labor, and has assisted them in obtaining their just demands by voice, pen and purse. At the time the journeyman plumbers demanded eight hours in Quincy, Mr. Bates declared through the columns of Quincy Daily Ledger as follows:

July 1st, 1901.

"On and after this date all journeyman plumbers in our employ will work eight hours per day."

Mr. Keith's Candidacy.

Editors of the Patriot:

All the candidates nominated for the legislature are gentlemen of undoubted worth and ability. Without disparagement of the others, the writer of this article claims that Harrison A. Keith is a particularly desirable man for the place.

His qualications are many. To begin with he is a native of Quincy, a man of mature age and judgment, knows the people and is familiar with the city's business in all its branches. Mr. Keith has filled many offices under both town and city government with credit to himself. When he was mayor he was very succesful at the State House in obtaining favorable legislation for Quincy. The citizens should not forget the boulevard which was secured in his administration. Since that time nothing has been accomplished.

Who as representative could better push our claims for the appropriation we are entitled to for the construction of the parkway and boulevard?

Mr. Keith is popular, courteous and approachable. Whether as city clerk or as mayor he was ever ready to do a favor. Many persons who voted against him for his second term as mayor regretted the necessity of so doing in order to get at somebody else. Those persons are now glad to have the opportunity of showing their appreciation of his many services. Let us hope that the old and young friends of Mr. Keith will come out in strong numbers and give him a complimentary vote to round out his public career.

Charles H. Craig has returned from the Pan-American exposition.

The Mission of Our Saviour celebrated the fourth anniversary of its foundation last Sunday. At the evening service, Ellsworth hall was crowded to the doors. The improvised chancel was tastefully decked with flowers and autumn leaves. Mr. Frederick C. Williams the layreader of the Mission assisted Mr. Reese in the conducting of the service. Before the sermon which was upon the need of patience in the building of christian character and the church, Mr. Reese announced that a certain gentleman who wished his name withheld, had kindly offered to present certain furniture and furnishings for the new Mission chapel, to the value of about $400. This gift was prompted by the stand which the people of this mission had taken in resolving to raise from their own ranks the money for their church even though this took many years and not to ask or seek outside help.

After the close of the service, Mr. Reese called the members of the mission together, stated that he did not believe in talking finances in the midst of a religious service, and after speaking of the value of a free church said that the present amount of the subscriptions did not meet the running expenses. He asked, therefore, that tonight these subscriptions be increased so that the full expenses of the coming year be pledged, such was the hearty response that in about twenty minutes the amount required was pledged. The Mission starts its fifth year with about $1,200 raised for the new church, expenses for the coming year met, and a strong enthusiasm for the work.

The National Period of American Literature

BY LORENZO SEARS, LIT. D.,
Professor of American Literature in Brown University.

IV.—At the Beginning of the Nineteenth Century.

IF some name to place upon the century milestone were sought for, none more significant could have been found than that of John Quincy Adams. He was at least a notable representative of the thinkers and writers then abounding. Politics were running high and strong. Letters themselves were full of politics, schemes and partisanship. Yet the outlook of the nation was growing broader and more cosmopolitan. With all this the son of the second president was in sympathy. His training for it had begun as a boy of 11, when he accompanied his father, who had been sent on a diplomatic trip to France. His schooling followed in European courts and cities among embassadors and statesmen. As a consequence he received a singular preparation for college, but one which placed him in the junior class when he entered Harvard. After graduation came the study of law and then the customary waiting for clients. It was at this period that his literary proclivities began to appear, and, of course, in polemics, as became the heir of a Puritan line. Thomas Paine's "Rights of Man" inspired young Adams to write an anonymous refutation which was by some attributed to his father. The question of neutrality next enlisted his ready pen, with other topics which were then of absorbing interest. These started him in a diplomatic career in Holland, Prussia, Russia and England.

The first year of the new century was that of the publication of his "Tour Through Silesia," one of his incidental journeys during the residence in Europe. It was typical of the American abroad and the forerunner of numerous books of travel when more Americans began to go into all lands and to publish their impressions, grave and otherwise. It was also indicative of the wider view of men and affairs which provincialism was bound to take when rubbing elbows with the nations and an antidote to separatism, isolation and undue conceit. In form this record of travel into an out of the way region was a series of letters to the writer's brother in Philadelphia, written with the freedom and unreserve of family correspondence. But an enterprising editor of The Portfolio saw that they would prove interesting reading and printed them with the consent of the recipient, who was doubtless proud to honor their author without his knowledge or consent. The occurrence is a comment on the freedom of literary manners of the time, particularly as these letters were carried to London and reprinted in a volume three years later, where the author first saw them in print. Afterward they were published in German and French translations, revealing sundry references to persons and conversations that were intended for the eye of a single individual in America.

The age of the Adamses was the golden age of such productions, and the family itself was as distinguished in this minor department of letters as in others. The correspondence of John Adams and his accomplished wife is an example of what may be attained in this informal method of communication and interchange of ideas. In these days the old style may not seem altogether informal; neither would the manners of the time. Besides, it is possible that in the necessity of writing long letters and at long intervals the writers were not unmindful of what had hitherto been done in this direction.

John Quincy Adams' recognition as a man of letters rests on proficiency in no single department. Harvard college admitted this in appointing him to the chair of rhetoric and belles lettres in 1806, where for three years he delivered lectures which were afterward printed and for a time had great repute. This was in the line of the oratorical composition which served him in his career as a statesman in the legislative assemblies to which he was chosen at a later day and as a framer of state papers. His collected works, apart from his diary and correspondence, are those of a publicist rather than of a man who has made literature the pursuit of a lifetime. In this he may be here contrasted with two of his contemporaries.

On the 24th of January, 1807, the first number of a paper called Salmagundi appeared in the shop of D. Longworth, publisher, in the city of New York. The first of the four articles which it contained announced that the intention of the editors was "to instruct the young, reform the old, correct the town and castigate the age. This is an arduous task, and therefore we undertake it with confidence. Like all true and able editors, we consider ourselves infallible, and therefore with the customary diffidence of our brethren of the quill we shall take the liberty of interfering in all matters either of a public or private nature." The town was fairly warned what to expect, and they were not disappointed in their expectations. Launcelot Langstaff, William Wizard and Anthony Evergreen were equal to every occasion. Manners, fashions, the theater, social assemblies, concerts, travelers, young men and maidens, train bands, politics and the weather came in for a share of running comment and criticism. Even well known citizens imagined, with more or less reason, that they were sometimes held up before the public in names painfully transparent. A large portion of the next issue would then be devoted to denials and assurances as bad as the original exhibition. The dinners of the Giblet family, the virtues of Miss Wearwell and the eccentricities of Miss Dashaway, the singing of Demy Semiquaver, the federalism of Uncle John, the resources of the Cockloft family, the career of Straddle, the diversions of Gotham, its foibles or its follies, are prolific themes for the occupant of the "Elbow Chair," prototype of the "Easy Chair" of a worthy successor. "Lolling in my elbow chair this fine summer morn, I feel myself insensibly yielding to that feeling of indolence the season is so well fitted to inspire. Surely never was a town more subject to midsummer fancies or dog day whimwhams than this most excellent of cities. No sooner does a new disorder or a new freak seize one individual but it is sure to run through the whole community. Last summer it was the poplar worm. This summer everybody has had full employment in planning fortifications for our harbor. Politics is a kind of mental food soon digested. It is thrown up again the moment it is swallowed. Let but one of these quidnuncs take in an idea through eye or ear, and it immediately issues out at his mouth. He begins to talk; he is like one charged with electricity. Present but a knuckle and he begins to talk. To rise in this country a man must first descend. The aspiring politician may be compared to that indefatigable insect called the tumbler, which buries itself in filth and works in the dirt until it forms a little ball, which it rolls laboriously along, sometimes head, sometimes tail, foremost."

It is when the fashionable nonsense of the town comes under the point of Langstaff's pen that most amusement is afforded, and also the information that society a century ago was not unlike itself today. "It is highly amusing to observe the gradation of a family aspiring to style. While beating up against the wind and tide they keep bowing and bowing, as McSycophant says, and absolutely overwhelm you with their friendship and loving kindness. But, having once gained the envied prominence, never were beings in the world more changed, assuming the most intolerable caprices," etc.

No reader of Addison's Spectator, then 100 years old, could fail to see that these papers were after the manner of that delectable classic. It was a day when the question of imitation was not so vital as of fidelity in the copy. Independence of Great Britain politically had not been successfully followed by attempts at literary independence. Some clamored for this, but their struggles for it did not meet their aspirations. The material to work upon was here in abundance in a new country, but methods and style are matters of growth and inheritance rather than of discovery. Consequently the authors of this early venture in the field of light literature showed their good sense in following the best model that could be found in the line of their undertaking. Considering, too, that they were young men and young Americans they displayed more wisdom than if they had yielded to a demand for a purely national literature, which was already beginning to be made. As it was, there was sufficient originality in design and execution to free the enterprise from the charge of being a servile copy. It was simply the similarity of subject and manner of treatment, to which must be added, in the case of the principal writer, a nature not unlike Addison's.

This writer, as everybody knows, was Washington Irving, and associated with him as the other chief contributor was James K. Paulding, a cousin of Major Andre's captor. It will be following the order of development to speak of Paulding first, for he represents the American idea of literary independence as soon as he is writing by himself after The Salmagundi partnership with Irving. Experiences during the Revolutionary war had made him a hater of everything English, and when the war of 1812 was declared he published "The Diverting History of John Bull and Brother Jonathan," in which, however, the style is more British than American in his following of Swift, an Irishman in his eyes. His pamphlet on "The United States and England" and "A Sketch of Old England" and "John Bull In America," with parodies on Scott's poems and novels, betray the same anglophobia. He was better in his "Dutchman's Fireside," a story of the old French war, which passed through six editions in a year and was republished in England, France and Holland. Interspersed with the titles already mentioned were novels, poems and sketches, stories, comedies, more Salmagundi and a life of Washington, for youth, and even a defense of slavery, which all together required a literary life of nearly half a century to produce. Yet this was a remarkable achievement for a man who had only fifteen dollars' worth of schooling. He had his admirers in his own generation among those who were more discriminating in political matters than in literary and with whom Americanism counted for more than cosmopolitanism. He represented a tendency to break with colonial bondage to the British manner because it was British, and in so far was a pioneer in a movement that would be sure to be started when the opportune time should arrive. The difficulty was that the time had not come when the American author could turn his back upon his English predecessors and contemporaries and be sure of a literary renown that would last for three generations. Irving saw this, but Paulding did not. This is not the only reason why the one is read and reread and the other almost forgotten, but it accounts in part for the different future which was awaiting the two youthful partners in Salmagundi.

STRIKE TALK HARMFUL

To Manufacturing Interests of New England

MAKES BUYERS CAUTIOUS

And Causes Uncertainty Among Mill Owners—Need of a More Stable Wage Basis Demonstrated by Recent Events at Fall River

Fall River, Nov. 2.—Manufacturers are free to admit that they are well pleased with the outcome of the wage agitation. There is no feeling of exultation among them, however, as the matter has been so long drawn out they have lost much of the fall trade they might have had if they felt free to make contracts with a certainty of being able to fill them.

Mr. Borden having retired from the field they call the affair a drawn battle, and they are glad it is that kind of a battle. Had they been compelled to fight out a strike and felt certain of winning they would have then lost more than they could regain in years, and they would have won only the thing they feel they ought to have without fighting, i. e., the right to base their wage scale on the margin between the prices of cotton and cloth. Had the margin been more favorable to the operatives, they say they could not stand against Borden, whether they believed he was speculating or not.

One manufacturer spoke of the situation in this way: "I fear we are not as close to our operatives as we thought we were and I am certain were we to engage in a strike it would appear to both sides that more is to be gained here by peaceful talk than by recommendations to strike and counter-decisions to resist a strike. If the wage margin is unfair, as some of the secretaries think it is and have led many operatives to believe it is, we must come to an early agreement about it if cotton manufacturing in New England is to prosper.

"It is an unfortunate condition for Fall River that it must fight for all New England, but being so, there is an added duty on both sides to arrive at conclusions peacefully. The mills here are no longer on a print-cloth basis, but if they were, it must be apparent to the operatives that we cannot follow Mr. Borden's move. He can take one piece of his investment and live happily, but our stockholders cannot do this, and they cannot immediately put themselves in a position to take even bank interest without a full allowance for depreciation of their plants. If there was a disposition manifested by both sides to come to an early understanding to maintain a more stable wage scale we could stand better with the world of manufacturing than we do now, and there ought to be intelligence enough among us to come to that sort of a decision.

"The present misunderstanding has taught us that Mr. Borden has exceptional advantages, and the reports of the past few weeks have shown that some of the mills must be put in condition to come up to the general average, or not stand in the way of mills that have been so placed. I hope now that both sides will see the advantage of dropping the ceaseless agitation which has been demoralizing us for the past year. Strike talk hurts many of our mills today just as much as a strike would, because it makes the buyers cautious and manufacturers uncertain. If it is to kept up by the officials representing either interest here we are not only going to drive manufacturing out of our own city, we are going to drive it out of all New England and into less favored localities for comfortable living.

"I am satisfied more than ever that the common sense of our people will lead them to do the right thing, provided we can place the truth before them is an unprejudiced light. The duty to do this bears as much on the manufacturers as it does on the labor leaders, and I hope that there will be no more talk of lower or higher wages until we can settle down and do some of the business that is being offered to us."

Manufacturers believe the market will fall down in a few weeks, but it is not likely to entail much loss until after the new year at least.

More Land For Settlement

Devil's Lake, N. D., Nov. 2.—Special Agent McLaughlin of the interior department has concluded a treaty with the Fort Totten reservation Indians and the government. The Indians agree to sell 104,000 acres for $350,000, the sum of $145,000 to be paid after ratification and $20,000 a year for 20 years. They also agree to relinquish all rights to a recognized claim against the government of $80,000.

Would-Be Slayer Will Die

Milwaukee, Nov. 2.—William Raash stabbed his wife with a penknife yesterday and then cut his own throat. The woman will recover, but Raash will die. The two had not been living together.

PLUM ISLAND MYSTERY

Now Thought That Abele Was Murdered and Thrown Into Water

Newburyport, Mass., Nov. 2.—The body that was found among the driftwood on Plum island last Sunday was yesterday identified as that of John A. Abele of Cambridge, the indentification being made by his sister, Miss Christina Abele of Cambridge.

Medical Examiner Hurd expresses his opinion that the man was killed by strangulation, his opinion being based on the condition of the throat and lungs. He did not find any traces of alcohol in his stomach, and as his stomach did not contain any water the medical examiner is of the opinion that the man was dead before he came in contact with the water.

Miss Abele informed the state police that her brother had formerly been engaged in the cooperage business, and had accumulated several thousand dollars. She says he usually carried considerable money, and owing to the fact that nothing of value was found on the his clothing she is quite positive that he was murdered and that the body was then thrown into the water.

State Officers Hammond and Neal are working to the theory that he was murdered, and will make a vigorous attempt to run down the murderer.

Mr. Abele was unmarried and beside the sister he is survived by three brothers, two of whom, William H. and Charles S., are members of the Cambridge police force, and the other is an employe in the Boston postal service.

Damaging Evidence

Concord, N. H., Nov. 2.—The authorities believe they have found another important witness in the murder of Mrs. Mary Folsom at Boscawen. The newly found witness is James Murphy of this city, an inmate of the county farm at North Boscawen. The police say that about three weeks ago Murphy and George Greenleaf, who is accused of the murder, were talking together at the county farm, when Mrs. Folsom passed by in a team. It is claimed that Greenleaf, when he saw the woman, made a horrible threat.

Alleged Thief Run Down

Haverhill, Mass., Nov. 2.—In the arrest of Charles Moore, colored, here yesterday by Boston and Haverhill officers, the police believe they have at last captured the leader of the gang of colored highwaymen that have been a source of great annoyance to Boston police during the past three months. Several pawn tickets for clothing and jewelry, and a gold chain and a few pieces of jewelry were found in his pockets. The officers took him to Boston last night.

Evidence of Incendiarism

Boston, Nov. 2.—After the firemen had extinguished a brisk blaze in a wooden dwelling at 39 Charles street last night, they discovered the furniture in a promiscuous condition and evidences that a lounge and mattrass had been saturated with kerosene. There were no occupants in the house and the firemen were obliged to break in the doors. Upon their arrival nearly every article of furniture was ablaze.

Woman Charged With Stabbing

Milo, Me., Nov. 2.—County Attorney Durgin and Sheriff A. E. Leonard returned here last night from Chesuncook lake, where they had been investigating the murder of Thomas Gero at that place. Before their return the coroner's jury which had been impanelled at Chesuncook reported a verdict finding that Gero came to his death from wounds inflicted by his wife, Mrs. Gero, with a knife.

Doherty Must Hang

Montpelier, Vt., Nov. 2.—Charles Doherty, convicted three years ago of the murder of Fred Murphy, at Bolton Falls, and sentenced to be hanged last spring, the carrying out of which sentence was delayed by an appeal for a new trial on the grounds of insanity, was yesterday denied the petition and was sentenced by the supreme court to be hanged at Windsor state prison on Dec. 6.

Charge of Fraud Not Sustained

Boston, Nov. 2.—Captain Walter I. Rand, who was arrested some time ago on the charge of making a fraudulent use of the mail service in connection with the sale of good luck rings, has been discharged by Judge Lowell, at the request of the district attorney. It is said that the grand jury did not find sufficient evidence for holding him.

Statesman Near to Death

Pekin, Nov. 2.—Li Hung Chang's foreign physicians pronounce his condition grave. He has had hemorrhages for the last two days. His death would probably affect the negotiations as to Manchuria, which he has been conducting with Paul Lessar, Russian minister to China.

Yaquis Killed Ranchmen

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 2.—Reports from Sonora, Mex., are to the effect that Yaqui Indians attacked Mexican ranchmen near Onias, killed three persons and escaped to the mountains. Troops are in pursuit.

Danvers, Mass., Nov. 2.—An epidemic of measles prevails here, more than 100 cases having broken out within the past few days.

PIMPLES

And other eruptions which mar the skin are more than a disfigurement and annoyance; they are a positive detriment to the business interests and social successes of the man they mark. Other things being equal, the man with a smooth skin and clear complexion will find it easier to get a good position or a good wife than the man whose face shows the impurity of his blood. That's the real point. The blood is bad. And for that very reason any treatment which is designed to cleanse the skin must cleanse the blood.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cleanses the blood from the clogging impurities which breed and feed disease, and so cures pimples, boils, eczema, and other diseases which have their cause in impure blood.

The sole motive for substitution is to permit the dealer to make the little more profit paid by the sale of less meritorious medicines. He gains. You lose. Therefore, accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery."

"I have used your 'Golden Medical Discovery' in a case of scrofula, and cured it," writes Mr. Wm. D. Shamblin, of Remy, Cherokee Nation, Ind. Territory. "I took five bottles of it for my blood. I had 'ringworms' on me and I would burn them off and they would come right back, and they were on me when I commenced using 'Golden Medical Discovery,' which took them away, and I haven't been bothered anymore."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the bowels and stimulate the sluggish liver.

BRAINTREE.

During October there were no deaths in Braintree. The last death recorded was Sept. 28.

Mrs. Charlotte P., wife of William A. Allen, passed peacefully away at her home in South Weymouth, early Thursday morning. During her early life, she resided in this village, where she has a large circle of friends and relatives. She was the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Edson of Union street and also leaves three brothers, a husband, and a daughter, who have the sincere sympathy of their many friends in their great bereavement.

The Republican precinct two committee of Braintree held a smoke talk Wednesday evening in Cochato hall. There were many voters present from Braintree and Weymouth, and several ladies graced the occasion with their presence.

Div. 21, A. O. H. initiated five new members at its regular meeting Monday evening.

Mrs. Fred M. Crocker has returned from a two weeks' visit with her mother in East Weymouth.

Mrs. Emma Chamberlain of Rochester, N. H., is the guest of Mrs. Richardson, Front street.

The Jonas Perkins School Association will meet with Mrs. C. O. Miller, Tuesday evening next, instead of at Mrs. Loring's,as previously announced.

Mrs. Charles Baldwin, Mrs. Allen P. Babin and Miss Kathryn A. Hann, of Lisle street, attended the conference of Old Colony Association of Universalists at North Weymouth, last Wednesday afternoon and evening.

Mrs. Gates of Holbrook avenue has been making improvements on her residence.

Henry H. Marston returned from a trip to the Pan-American exposition Thursday.

The many friends of Miss Sarah Arnold will be glad to know that she has returned much improved in health.

The new house being erected by Mr. Smith of Boston on Frederick road is being rapidly finished by Contractor Borden.

The Pond street cemetery association will meet at the home of Mrs. Foster F. Tupper, Central avenue, Tuesday afternoon.

Harry and Bernie Simonds were on a gunning trip to North Middleboro the first of the week, they brought home some fine birds.

The Braintree club will have for their opponents at their club house Tuesday evening the Commonwealth club of Weymouth.

Gen. Sylvanus Thayer W. R. C. will be inspected in G. A. R. hall Monday evening. Following the inspection a supper will be served.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the M.E. Church, will meet with Mrs. E. A. Fisher Franklin street, Wednesday afternoon Nov. 6, at 3 o'clock.

Hon. James T. Stevens attended the board of directors meeting of the Emperor Oil Company which was held in Boston Thursday. Both Mr. Stevens and son George W. Stevens are directors.

Park Theatre.

"Lover's Lane" at the Park Theatre has captured Boston just as it previously captured Chicago, New York, and other great cities. William A. Brady has introduced many notable successes to Boston, but none more emphatic in every sense than his delightful Clyde Fitch play of New England village life. One moment he tugs at the heartstrings of an audience, and the next inspires it to a tumult of merriment. A Boston first night audience seldom exhibits such spontaneous and sweeping enthusiasm as that evoked by "Lover's Lane." There was curtain call after curtain call, and the excellent players were given individual ovations,—notably Ernest Hastings as the young village clergyman; Blanche Hall, a most delightful ingenue, as his sweetheart; and Millie James, a young woman out of her teens, who plays a naughty little girl of eleven with such wonderful fidelity as to make it impossible to believe that she is not herself a child. Of the thirty speaking parts every one is a character bit perfectly cast. The scenery and light effects are exquisite, particularly the contrasting views of an apple orchard in orchard in autumn leafage and springtime blossom. Many thousands will be delighted and entertained by "Lover's Lane," before it leaves the Park.

Castle Square Theatre.

The management of the Castle Square Theatre announces as the attraction at this theatre for the coming week the famous Irish drama by Dion Boucicault, "The Shaughraun" which has not had a Boston production for many years. Older playgoers will recall with pleasure the presentations of this play, with the actor-author in the title part, and it is interesting to know that all of the original scene effects, business and all minor details will be reproduced in the Castle Square performances under Mr. J. R. Pitman's direction, he having been identified with the first production of the play in this city. Some very elaborate scenic and mechanical effects will be introduced in "The Shaughraun" and the scene of Conn's escape will show the resources of the stage department at their best. The cast arranged is as follows: Captain Molineux, John Craig; Robert Ffolliott, Charles Mackay; Father Doolan, J. L. Seeley; Corry Kinchella, William J. Hasson; Harvey Duff, Edmund Breese; Conn, John T. Craven; Sergeant Jones, Lindsay Morison; Dan Sullivan, Edward Wade; Clare Ffolliott, Eva Taylor; Arte O'Neale, Marian A. Chapman; Mrs. O'Kelly, Leonora Bradley; Moya, Mary Sanders; Bridget Madigan, Maye Louise Aigen.

Colonial Theatre.

New England playgoers will have their first chance to see the great romantic success of the season at the Colonial Theatre next week when, on Monday, Nov. 4, "The Last Appeal" will come to Boston direct from its long run in Chicago. Everywhere that this drama has been presented it has proved an unqualified triumph, and there is no question, but that similar prosperity awaits its coming to Boston. Leo Doetrichstein, the author, has made many successes in Boston, and there will be special interest to see the newest play from his pen, especially when it is one which is so fraught with dramatic situations. Everything that money could do has been employed to make a dazzling production, and the uniforms and gowns will be splendid.

"Last winter an infant child of mine had croup in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist, of Filley, Mo. "I gave her a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and in a short time all danger was past and the child recovered." This remedy not only cures croup but when given as soon as the first symptoms appear, will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

BOTHA DIRECTED FIGHT

Which Brought Disaster to Benson's Column

CONFLICT WAS DESPERATE

Burghers Repeatedly Tried to Overwhelm Whole British Force Until Latter Obtained Relief—Casualties Said to Be Over Three Hundred

Pretoria, Nov 4.—Further details have been received regarding the attack by the Boers under Commandant General Louis Botha last week upon Colonel Benson's column near Brakenlaagte, Eastern Transvaal. Not only did General Botha direct the attack, but he personally shared in the fighting.

GENERAL BOTHA.

It appears that General Botha, who had been joined by another big commando aggregating 1000 men, attacked Colonel Benson's rear guard Oct. 30 on the march and captured two guns but was unable to retain them. Colonel Benson fell mortally wounded in the fight.

Major Wools-Sampson took command, collected the convoy and took up a position for defence about 500 yards from entrenchments prepared by Boers. The captured guns were so situated that neither side could touch them.

The Boers made efforts to overwhelm the whole British force, charging repeatedly right up to the British lines and being driven back each time with heavy loss.

The defence was stubbornly and successfully maintained through the whole of the following day and the succeeding night, until Colonel Barter, who had marched all night from Bushman's Kop, brought relief in the morning of Nov. 1. The Boers then retired. Their losses are estimated as between 300 and 400.

London, Nov. 4.—Special dispatches from South Africa reveal practically nothing further about the disaster to Colonel Benson's column. It appears that the first attack was made in a blinding rainstorm. The heaviest casualties occurred while Major Wools-Sampson was gathering the convoy under the brow of a hill, a most difficult task.

It is assumed in London that the two 15-pounders remained in the possession of the British, but the telegrams are not clear on this point.

Edgar Wallace, a correspondent of the Daily Mail, writing from Pretoria, again protests against official optimism, and declares that the war will not be ended for another year. He argues the immediate dspatch of large reinforcements of both men and horses.

A Cowardly Murder

Columbia, S. C., Nov. 4.—Two machinists working in the Southern railway shops here, Walter Binder and William Seaver, were shot in their house last night by a party of men. Seaver was killed instantly and Binder desperately wounded. According to the ante-mortem statement of Binder the attacking men were former employes who were bent upon killing the "scabs." Harry Jones and Arthur McCraney have been arrested.

Hawaiian Recommendations

Washington, Nov. 4.—Authority for the conversion of all Hawaiian silver coins into corresponding coins of the United States, and for the immigration of a limited number of Chinese laborers, conditioned upon their engaging in agricultural pursuits only during their residence in the territory and their return to their own country upon ceasing to be farmers, are the chief recommendations of Acting Governor Cooper of Hawaii in his annual report.

A SENSATION PROMISED

When State Officers Present Evidence Against Miss Toppan

Boston, Nov. 4.—"When we have told all we know to support the charge we have made against Miss Jane Toppan, the Robinson poisoning case, the most famous that has ever been heard in a Massachusetts court, will sink into insignificance." This statement, The Herald says today, was made yesterday by Officer Whitney of the state police, who reached his home in Medford Sunday morning from New Hampshire.

The Herald says further: "Miss Toppan probably would not have been arrested when she was, had not District Attorney Holmes and Officer Whitney feared she might commit suicide. Officer Whitney remembered that a short time before Miss Toppan had made two attempts to end her own life.

Following is the list of mysterious deaths so far discovered, all patients of Miss Toppan:

Israel P. Dunham of Cambridge, died 26, 1895, aged 83. "Strangulated hernia." Ill four days.

Mrs. Lovey P. Dunham, wife of Israel, died in Cambridge, Sept. 19, 1897, aged 87. "Old age."

Miss Connors, Woods Hole, died at Cambridge in 1900. "Complication of diseases."

Mrs. Alvin P. Davis of Cataumet, died in Cambridge, July 4, 1891; aged 62. "Chronic diabetes."

Mrs Annie G. Gordon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin P. Davis, died at Cataumet, July 1901; short illness; no death certificate.

Alvin P. Davis died at Cataumet, July, 1901; few days' illness; no death certificate.

Mrs. Mary D. Giggs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin P. Davis, died at Cataumet, Aug. 13, 1901; two days' illness; no death certificate.

Mrs. O. M. Brigham of Lowell, died in Lowell, Jan 15, 1900; short illness. "Heart failure."

Florence N. Calkins, housekeeper for O. M. Brigham, died in Lowell, Jan. 15, 1900; short illness. "Heart failure."

Mrs. Edna Banister of Tunbridge, Vt., sister of O. M. Brigham, died in Lowell, Aug. 27, 1901, aged 77; two days ill. "Heart failure."

Charged With Stealing $1554

Boston, Nov. 4.—Inspector Shields of Chief Watts' force is expected to arrive home this afternoon from New York with Sydney A. Sanderson, a salesman for High & Hoyt, sales agent for the National Cash Register company, in this city. Sanderson was arrested last week on the charge of having stolen from the collections which he made, the sum of $1554. The United States Guarantee company, who was on Sanderson's bond, makes the complaint. Sanderson agreed to come back without the formality of requisition papers.

Fell Among Thieves

Danbury, Conn., Nov. 4.—Daniel Mahoney, aged 50, who says his home is in Cambridge, Mass., was found on Main street at an early hour Sunday morning in a semi-conscious condition. Besides being badly bruised about the face and body Mahoney had one and possibly more broken ribs. Mahoney says he was attacked by four highwaymen, knocked down, and kicked about the head and body, and a valuable gold watch and considerable money taken from him.

$150,000 Fire In New Hampshire

Lisbon, N. H., Nov. 4.—Starting in the peg mill of James G. Moore yesterday fire destroyed a large part of the business section of this town. The burned buildings include Brigham's hotel, the bank building, Cogswell & Oliver's store, a block owned by Mrs. Charles Parker, the store of the Fred Parker company, Oliver's livery stable, H. C. Libbey & Co.'s feed mill and English's grist mill, besides two or three halls. The total loss will amount to $150,000.

Yachtsman Drowned

Newport, R. I., Nov. 4.—While off Conanicut island in a catboat yesterday, Clarence H. Coffin fell overboard while at the wheel and was drowned before he could be rescued by his companions, F. J. Davis and William P. Dawley. Coffin was considered one of the best amateur skippers on Narragansett Bay.

Persistent Train Wreckers

Torrington, Conn., Nov. 4.—Another attempt was made to wreck a train on the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad on Saturday night. A large stone was found on the tracks in almost the identical spot where one was placed about a week ago. The engineer saw it in time to slow down his train

The Crew Reached Shore

Halifax, Nov. 4.—The Norwegian steamer Kong Haakon, laden with deals, ran on Jaaven's island shoal, on the Cape Breton coast at 8 o'clock on Saturday night. The steamer tore a great hole in her bottom and she soon after filled with water. There was a hvy s eeaeseecmfwy shrdlu et cmfwyx heavy sea running at the time, but the crew managed to reach the shore in safety.

Tortured and Robbed

Masillion, O., Nov. 4.—Balzer Race, his wife and two sons, living near this city, early yesterday morning were tortured by burglars until they gave up over $1000 in certificates of deposit and $40 in money. The burglars set fire to the hair of their victims and threatened to roast them alive. One of Race's sons may not recover. The burglars escaped in vehicles stolen from Race.

THREE BULLET WOUNDS

Caused Death of Mrs. Jones at Langdon, N H

SHOT BY GEORGE S BIGGS

Who Had Been Quarreling With Her Son and Is Said to Have Threatened to Wipe Out the Whole Family—Slayer Surrenders After Tragedy

Bellows Falls, Vt., Nov. 4.—After a quarrel between Cleveland Jones, 15 years old, and Geaorge H. Briggs, a neighbor, in Langdon, N. H., young Jones' mother, Mrs. Chauncey Jones, was shot and killed on Saturday by Briggs. Briggs gave himself up and was taken to Newport, N. H. His case will come up before the grand jury, which meets at Newport next Tuesday.

Briggs was driving home some cattle from a pasture near the Jones house, when Cleveland Jones came into the field and Briggs alleges that the boy purposely frightened the cattle, causing them to scatter. Young Jones claims that he went into the field to get an old copper boiler there, and that he did not intentionally scare the cattle. A lively dispute is said to have ensued, in which hard names were called by both and there was much profanity. Finally Jones made a retort that angered Briggs so that the boy says Briggs said, with a horrible oath, "I'll clean out the whole lot of you."

Briggs then went to his house, a short distance away, and after securing a revolver, went to the Jones house. From the highway in front of the house he yelled that he would shoot the first one who came out of the house. Mrs. Jones and her five children, of whom Cleveland Jones is the eldest, were in the house at the time. Cleveland Jones says that none of them went into the yard, and that Briggs then came to the back door. The mother went to meet him in the hall, when young Jones says Briggs fired his revolver and Mrs. Jones ran into the kitchen, crying, "My God, he has shot me."

Briggs, according to the boy, then rushed into the kitchen and shot Mrs. Jones in the back twice. She ran into the sitting room and fell to the floor. Young Jones grabbed Briggs by the knees and he says Briggs fired two shots at him, neither taking effect. The revolver by this time was empty, and the children succeeded in escaping to a neighbor's.

Cleveland Jones went to the office of A. S. Cram, a justice of the peace, and said Briggs had shot his mother, but that she was not much hurt. Mr. Cram at once drove to Alstead, N. H., where he went to the office of Lawyer Smith, to have papers made out against Briggs. While he was there, Briggs himself came into the office and said that he would give himself up, at the same time handing to Cram a revolver, supposed to be the one with which the shooting was done. At this time it was fully loaded.

Briggs seemed greatly excited, but was finally persuaded to return to his home with Mr. Cram. Deputy Sheriff Boyd of Claremont, N. H., was summoned and took Briggs into custody.

When the neighbors and the town authorities reached the Jones house they found Mrs. Jones' body lying on the floor in the sitting room, where the woman had fallen when shot in the back. The chin was black from powder, showing that one shot must have been fired at very close range. There were also two wounds in the back, within three inches of each other, and both directly back of the heart. The doctor said death must have been instantaneous after these two shots were fired.

The neighbors say there has been much trouble between the Briggs and Jones families for the past six months, it having started over a dispute as to a right of way through land which Briggs claimed belonged to him. Mr. Jones made an application to the selectmen for this right of way. Briggs resisted the laying out of the road, and it is said by the neighbors that there have been continual quarrels between the two families ever since.

Briggs is 45 years old and lived in Langdon with a wife and two children, having come there three years ago. It is said that he has a wife and one or two children living in the vicinity of Barre, Vt., but it is not known whether or not he has been divorced from the woman.

Mr. Jones, the husband of the dead woman, has been a millwright in the employ of the International Paper company at Bellows Falls for 15 years. He is a quiet man ad has a large circle of friends. Mrs. Jones was about 40 years of age.

Briggs' wife was in the field near the Jones house at the time of the shooting, but says she did not see it done and knows nothing about it.

"Last winter an infant child of mine had croup in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist, of Filley, Mo. "I gave her a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and in a short time all danger was past and the child recovered." This remedy not only cures croup, but when given as soon as the first symptoms appear, will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

Good Afternoon.

If all the Democratic gains in the Legislature have as much foundation as those of possible success in the First Norolk Senatorial district there will be no gains at all. The anti-Bowker feeling in Norfolk county will strengthen the other Republican candidates, because it will bring out the Republican vote. The Republicans will vote for Marshall P. Wright for County Commissioner, but they will vote also for the reelection of Hon. Eugene H. Sprague to the Senate, and Frank E. Badger and John McKnight as Representative. When Josiah Quincy was nominated by the Democrats for Governor, we thought that he would run far ahead of his ticket in Quincy, his native city, but there has been no spontaneous movement in his favor, and Gov. Crane's business administration will receive a handsome endorsement. There should be no apathy over the election even though it be an off year. It is the duty of every voter to go to the polls and vote for good government.

To Councilman Nichols and a few other members of the City Council, who have taken a stand against some of the appropriations and other procedures of the legislative branch of our city, the criticism of Henry H. Faxon is particularly cutting. Mr. Faxon evidently took the Council as a whole, all being held responsible for the votes of the majority. The present City Council may not be an ideal one, but it is questionable if such intemperate criticism by Mr. Faxon will accomplish the object desired. However, more attention should be paid to the nomination and election of Councilmen, and there should be an attempt made to secure independent business men, who are property taxpayers, who will vote for each order on its merit, and not enter into deals. We do not consider it the duty of Councilmen to secure for their particular ward all the appropriations they can. The city should be progressive but not extravagant.

Henry H. Faxon, it must be admitted, is consistent in his stand for economy in city affairs. Although he has criticised many appropriations by the City Council this year, most people thought he would favor the proposed avenue to Faxon park, because it would open up a large and desirable residential property, abutting the park, owned by him; but at the hearing he advocated delay, because the city already has debt enough. As Mr. Faxon does not care whether the street is built or not, it is probable that the city will now hasten to comply with terms of the deed. When this street is laid out a comprehensive plan might be considered which would give a delightful ride from City Square to the Blue Hills reservation via. Chestnut street, Bigelow street, Bigelow street extension, the new Faxon Park avenue, Kendrick avenue, High street, Centre street and West street. Such a route would be free from car tracks and very desirable.

☞The two German opinions quoted in our news columns today are amusing. New York's reputation is a great injury to the country, but there are more honest men than the Vossische Zeiting gives the city credit for. The national Zeiting is welcome to the opinion that it would be impossible to build so many warship simultaneously in America, but we have surpassed the Old World on land and sea, and Germany should not underrate the abilities of this country and its industries. The Quincy plant alone could speedily be enlarged to build several new warships for Uncle Sam at short notice.

The petition of the School Committee for a new schoolhouse at Atlantic should be promptly referred by the City Council, to the Council of 1892. The present City Council seems to have all it can grapple with in getting a start on the proposed school house at Quincy Point, for which it has purchased land and it has also before it the request of the School Committee that the High schoolhouse be enlarged.

When we read that the principal of a Kansas City school and well known educator was burned to death while building a fire with oil, we wonder that he was ever successful as a teacher. Certainly he did not learn readily from the experience of others.

Drift of Opinion.

☞The Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle says that the prettiest thing in the world is a pretty woman, and next to her is a pretty horse. That may go in Georgia, but up this way the place next to a pretty woman is considered a lucky possession by man.—Haverhill Gazette.

RECOMMEND FORTY.

Some More Work for Shipyards of the Country.

A Washington dispatch to the Herald says: Secretary Long has made public the report of the board of construction, showing the program of naval increase that will be the basis of the recommendation to Congress.

Over and above the four warships for which Congress at its last session directed him to prepare plans as a basis for appropriation at the next session, Secretary Long has before him the recommendations for 40 more naval vessels of all classes from battleships down to tugboats.

The plans for the two armored cruisers and two battleships projected by Congress last session have already been prepared and look to the construction of about 16,000-ton battleships and 14,000-ton cruisers. The batteships and cruisers additional to these which the construction board proposed will probably be of about the same size and general type.

Three sea-going battleships of 16,000 tons total displacement.

Two sea-going armored cruisers of 14,500 tons total displacement.

Six 200-ton gunboats.

Two colliers of 15,000 tons capacity.

One repair ship of 7,500 tons displacement,

Six training ships of 2,000 tons displacement.

Four tugboats.

The small gunboats are designed for service in the Philippines, South America and China, where the small rivers do not offer passage for larger ships.

While the above appears to be a startling amount of naval construction to recommend to Congress, it is stated that it is, after all, nearly a repetition of the program submitted to that body through Secretary Long by the construction board last year, and is even smaller than the aggregate tonnage proposed by the general, or Dewey board for authorization.

In each case, it is explained, the recommendations are but the steps necessary to carry out the general policy of providing the United States with a modern navy of sufficient strength, and one made up of harmonious units. This policy was thought out carefully by the boards, and if it should be carried out as proposed, they declare that the symmetrical navy finally provided would be very much more effective than the more numerous navies of several of the European states.

A GERMAN OPINION.

A Berlin dispatch of Nov. 2 has the following comment on the above report:

"A naval expert, in the National Zeitung, discusses President Roosevelt's naval program, and asserts that it is impossible to carry it out, since the American shipyards are unable to build so many vessels simultaneously.

"The newspapers are devoting much attention to New York's Mayoralty contest. The Vossische Zeitung describes the police corruption in New York as being horrible and the New York corrspondent of the Kreuz Zeitung says: "If Low tries to fill the offices with honest men he will fail, since there are not enough honest men in New York."

STUBBORN FIRE.

Pretty Residence of Representative Sheppard.

Loss Will be About $2,500.

Street Opening for Sewer Handicapped Firemen.

The alarm from Box 28 at 8.25 Sunday morning called the fire department to a stubborn fire in the house of Eben W. Sheppard on Greenleaf street. The fire started in a small closet in the kitchen near the hot water boiler, and probably by some old stove rags becoming overheated.

The servant discovered the fire and quickly aroused the family. Mr. Sheppard coupled on his lawn hose but was unable to get any pressure of water, and it was useless. Meanwhile one of his sons ran to Box 28 and turned in an alarm.

Greenleaf street is badly blocked by the building of the Metropolitan sewer and in order to get to the house the Hook & Lader truck and Wollaston apparatus went by Merrymount road and Putnam street. The central station combination however turned down Greenleaf street and attaching a line of hose to the hydrant near the corner of Linden place succeeded in getting it across the sewer trench to the house. The steamer was also located on Greenleaf street, but its services were not needed. The Combination proceeded down Greenleaf street and succeeded in getting to the rear of the house.

Chemical hose lines from the two Hook & Ladder trucks and Combination were run into the house, and these were used almost exclusively in fighting the fire. But little water was used.

From the closet the fire crept through the partitions and back of the ceiling making it most difficult to get at. Starting from the first floor the firemen chased the fire up through the partitions to the roof. In order to do so it was necessary to tear away the plastering and wood work, and as fast as the fire was uncovered a well directed chemical stream quickly extinguished it. In this way the fire was put out.

But little of the furnishings were removed although there were plenty of willing hands should it have been found necessary to remove it.

The loss to the building and contents will be all of $2500; about $2000 on the house and the balance on the furnishings. The house was insured for $7000 in the Dorchester, the Traders and Mechanics, and the Holyoke companies.

The fire demonstrated one thing and that is the department should be supplied with rubber covers. In a fire of this kind, much of the furniture would be saved from damage by water and chemicals if it could be covered with rubber covers.

Mr. Sheppard when seen in regard to the fire, said that could he have got any water pressure he could have easily put out the fire at the start.

Commissioner Knowlton says there was a good pressure on the hydrant service and that the lack of pressure on Mr. Sheppard's house was probably due to the service pipe becoming clogged up with rust.

TWO-ALARM FIRE.

Lamp Overturned at Children's Party the Cause of It.

There was a two-alarm fire from box 71 Saturday night. The first alarm was rung in at 6.55 P. M., and the second alarm two hours later. Both fires were in the house at the corner of Washington and Mill streets owned by George W. Morton and occupied by Charles Woods.

The fire was caused by the accidental overturning of an oil lamp. A children's party was in progress and while playing games a pillow was thrown which struck the lamp. The oil spread and a brisk fire was soon in progress. The children were badly frightened and hastily left the house. The parlor was badly gutted before the fire was extinguished.

The firemen remained at the house for sometime after the fire had been extinguished to see if the fire made its appearance again, but it did not.

Two hours later, however, the fire which had probably been smoldering behind the walls, broke out in the upper part of the house, and the second alarm was sounded. When the department arrived the firemen found a brisk fire in progress, and the whole house was badly gutted before the fire was extinguished. The loss on the building is estimated at $400, and on the contents $300. The house was insured for $600 in the Royal.

The Critic a Necessity.

The article in the Ledger, copied from the New Bedford Standard, contains suggestions enough to write volumes; yet, how many of the readers will stop to think, and read between the lines in how far it applies to them or the whole human race? Alas, very few. Otherwise, the practice of existing conditions—expounding the true and the false could not exist in fact.

An evil may be forced upon the public by necessity at a time to relieve suffering. It may also be forced upon the public by the employment of divers means for personal gain of the promoter and by misrepresentation of fact and as it is comparatively easy to secure evidence to bolster up either side of an argument, either real or fictitious, the real critic—able to see through the scheme and call for its arrest or abolition if found necessary. His duty ends with presenting impartially both sides of the question at issue.

That an evil in one sense may be a blessing in another is well illustrated by numerous instances. For instance:—

The discovery of oleomargarine is considered an evil by the butter producer because coming in conflict with butter; and were it not for the critic, the former would still be selling under the name of butter, instead as now. By means of Legislation, it was forced to create its own field of usefulness; and, in which it is really a blessing. The reason that large quantities of this product are consumed proves the necessity for it; the manufacturer has no moral right to make claims for it other than it contained.

Cold storage eggs too, are considered in the same light as the former, because considered less valuable than fresh laid eggs. This too, is regulated for the benefit of those that are willing to pay the extra cost of fresh over storage eggs. Milk also, we find, comes under this regulation. It was the critic that laid bare the practices of adulterating milk, and thus aroused the public to require a higher standard. The results of this are felt by all, even though not appreciated by some. For this there is not and never was a necessity, as any purchaser of milk can dilute same to his own requirements and at less cost.

In Maine, carcass of meat condemned is saturated with kerosene oil to prevent its being sold for food. So much for food, the first necessary of life, health and happiness.

Next in line to this stands clothing. Here, as in the foregoing we find numerous evils; and mostly caused by artificial creations. There was a time in our history when adulterations in woolens could have been considered a blessing to mankind. There never was a necessity for adulterating fine silk fabrics with wool or cotton; nor yet to adulterate the fine muslins with cotton and sell to the unsuspecting consumer as the real production.

It is done for a profit to manufacturers and the unscrupulous dealer.

There never was a necessity for manufacturers of worsted goods to weight such fabrics with cholride of zink, and other substances positively injurious to the fabric when loaded in excess.

These goods are sold by weight, and the consumer pays a premium of seven cents on every yard so doctored and injured, for the benefit of manufaturer and dealer in such goods. With first class wool selling at from 24 to 40 cents per pound there is no necessity for an indiscriminate use of shoddy, mungo, flocks and cotton, and, sell the goods or clothing made therefrom as all wool. Yet such is the case; and so extensive is this practice that a strictly all new wool cassimere is an exception, and goes to exclusive trade.

With such nefarious practices, and impositions on the public, the critic is absolutely necessary; and while he may not be able to change the conditions, he can at least point out the danger, which most necessarily be considered the foundation for the change that follows.

High School Loses.

Quincy High School lost to Volkman Friday afternoon at Merrymount park by 23-5.

Volkman has one of the largest and heaviest teams about Boston, and has defeated Harvard freshmen. Their men were five to ten pounds larger than Quincy High.

Quincy missed the services of McDonald, who has recently injured his leg. Captain Wright was on the field in his suit but did not enter the game. Parlin and McGregor acted as substitutes, the former holding his man well at times, the latter failing to make gains and repeatedly losing yards around the ends. Quincy put up as good a game as was expected, and Jones, by a 45-yard run, saved High from being whitewashed. Were it not for Fuller's effective tackling and Jones' long runs, High would not have been in it. Barbour played a snappy game, holding his man at all points of the game and breaking through for many tackles.

At the executor's sale at the late residence of Mrs. Horton on Tuesday afternoon of next week several pieces of antique furniture will be sold.

The furniture of Charles Woods which was partly destroyed by fire Saturday night, was insured through the agency of Charles H. Johnson.

It is against the City Ordinances to deface telephone poles with posters, etc. The social Democrats seemed to have overlooked this, as their posters occupy conspicuous places on the telephone poles on Hancock street.

A course of five entertaining concerts and lectures is announced by the Quincy Teachers Association to begin at High School hall Thursday, Nov. 14. The Albion Quartette is the first attraction, to be followed by Dr. Alfred Henneguin, Leland T. Powers, Dr. G. Stanley Hall, and Boston Ideal Banjo Mandolin and Guitar Club. Season ticket are now on sale.

Because of the large accumulation of political literature the postoffice force was kept at work nearly all day Sunday. The carriers made one delivery. In the mail were Daily Ledgers with marked article in favor of Senator Sprague and Candidates Frank E. Badger and John McKnight for Representatives; Advertisers booming McKnight and George H. Wilson for the Legislature; literature in favor o Marshall P. Wright for County Commissioner, and also general mail; and there was a mountain of mail for delivery today.

VOTE FOR WRIGHT.

Representative Republicans Recommend His Election.

To the voters of Quincy:

We the undersigned Republican voters of Quincy respectfully urge your support and vote for Marshall P. Wright of Quincy who has been nominated by the Democrats and Independent Republicans. Mr. Wright, as a business man of ability and integrity, will, when elected carry to the office of County Commissioner, qualifications, which all good citizens ought to demand, in our public officials.

SAVE THE COUNTY.

Every Republican Should Vote Against Watts H. Bowker.

The Boston Journal says editorially today:

"The Republican majority in Norfolk County is from 5,000 to 7,000, and Mr. Bowker of Brookline has the Republican nomination for County Commissioner. Even though he got no support from Democrats his defeat would require that from 2,500 to 3,500 Republican votes should be cast for his opponent. Those are large figures, but they should be reached easily in a county which is so intelligent as Norfolk and has suffered so much in pocket and reputation from the misdeeds of the Board of County Commissioners, of which Mr. Bowker was a member in 1894 and 1895.

"Mr. Bowker, we are told is seeking another election after four years of retirement as a 'vindication.' We submit that if it were the business of the Republican Party to 'vindicate' anybody, and emphatically it is not, the work of the former County Commissioners on the Dedham Court House would be too heavy a load to take up. Mr. Bowker's share in the responsibility for that work was less than that of one other member, but it was clear and considerable as defined unanimously by a legislative committee of investigation, composed of seven Republicans and two Democrats.

"Every Norfolk County Republican who reads the Journal ought to be one of the 2,500 to 3,500 Republicans who are needed to save the credit of their party by voting against Mr. Bowker. So much that pertains to good government and good example is involved in the defeat of Mr. Bowker that it would be well worth the while of any Norfolk County Republican to go to the polls tomorrow for that purpose alone."

Note—The Journal sets the Republican majority too high for an off year. It will not be necessary to change 2000 votes to defeat Mr. Bowker.

Silver Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kennedy observed the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding at their home on Pleasant street on Thursday evening, October 31. About sixty of their friends assembled to help in the celebration.

The early part of the evening was spent in singing and piano selections, and numerous other pastimes, all of which were enjoyed by the company present. At ten o'clock the company formed in couples and proceeded to supper, and the spread provided by Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy reflects great credit on their good taste. It is needless to add that those present did ample justice to the supper and to themselves.

After supper Mr. Francis Morrison, in a few well chosen remarks, reminded Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy and their friends present of the happy occasion which they had met to celebrate, congratulated the happy couple on their passing the twenty-fifth milestone of their married life, and extended to them the good wishes of all present, to which Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy fittingly responded.

The couple were the recipients of numerous presents, among which were the following: Silver lemonade pitcher silver coffee pot, silver chocolate pot, silver tea pots, silver butter dish, silcrumb tray and scraper, silver wine tankards, silver pickle jars, silver cake baskets, silver fruit baskets, silver cracker jar, silver knives and forks, silver tea spoons, silver ladle, silver berry spoon, silver sugar spoon and butter knife, toilet set, hall lamp, parlor table, linen tray cloths and last but not least, a wedding cake.

WAS GEO. M. TREAT.

The Blue Hills Suicide Identified by His Son.

Harry M. Treat of Portland, Me., came to Quincy on Sunday and his visit leaves no doubt but what the skeleton found in the woods near the Randolph line, Nov. 1, was the remains of his father George M. Treat of Livermore Falls, Me.

He said he had not seen his father for nearly two years. He also said he was in the habit of using drugs which would account for the laudanum and powders found upon the clothing of the skeleton.

When the remains were found, the revolver was in the left hand and this led some to believe that the man had been killed and the revolver placed in his hand. The son, however says, that his father was left handed.

The unfortunate man was a son of Ezekiel and Martha Treat of Livermore Falls. He was born in Jay, Me., but moved to Livermore Falls with his parents when a child. His father was a prosperous business man, and at one time owned the whole town. When he died he left the most of his wealth to his son George, who had gone through it all.

He left the New England house last February and it is thought that he was hard up and that he pawned some article for $1, and of this amount he had expended all but the 32 cents found in his clothing. That he became tired of life and ended it by shooting himself.

He was a married man and had a wife and five children living, most of whom reside in Portland, Me. The son has no doubt his father's death was due to suicide. He will not remove the remains to Maine but left orders to have them buried in Quincy.

CAUCUSES OF 1900.

How Republicans Voted for Municipal Delegates—Political Notes.

The votes for delegates at the Republican caucuses last year will be of interest:

	Hall.		Opposition.
	Highest.	Lowest.	Highest.	Lowest
Ward One,	215	209	221	217
Ward Two,	105	102	73	69
Ward Three,	152	143	119	111
Ward Four,	153	142	119	102
Ward Five,	59	40	31	23
Ward Six,		No contest.

The polls will open at 6 A. M., and close at 4. P. M.

Fortunately, both precincts of Ward One will vote tomorrow at City Hall, for only a few voters know in which precinct they reside.

But 86 votes were cast at the Ward Five Republican caucus last year. Will there be 486 this year?

It is said that Republicans who supported Andrew A. Meyers in the Ward One Republican caucus last year will not do so this year, because he failed to abide by the decision of the caucus. After being defeated in the caucus he got out nomination papers and also accepted a Democratic nomination, and at the polls was again defeated.

Over 5000 ballots have been printed by Geo. W. Prescott & Son to be used in connection with the Republican municipal caucuses to be held on Wednesday evening. The demand for sample ballots is unprecedented.

Quite a breeze has sprung up in Ward Four among Republicans, because the ward committee changed the order of the names in the delegations. They have arranged them alphabetically, whereas in other wards they have always been printed as filed. The Packard men are angry because, their list was headed by ex-Councilman Jonas Shackley, who is regarded as a strong man.

Among the instructions issued to the police on duty at the election booths in Boston tomorrow is the following: If at any time there are less than four election officers on duty in any booth at the same time call your men's attention especially to the fact that when the ballots are counted one election officer representing one of the leading political parties must call off and another election officer representing the other leading political party must tally, and that each of these two officers must be under the supervision of an election officer of a different political party from himself. Thus it requires four election officers to count one batch of ballots. And as there are only six election officers at a precinct, only one batch of ballots can be counted at once.

TODAY'S COURT.

Kusti Harsila and Haelman Bargmar were fined $5 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

Jeremiah Kelleher was arraigned for unlawfully taking an express wagon at Quincy. He was fined $2, the cost of the complaint.

Thomas O'Day was fined $5 for drunkenness at Milton.

Frank Perror was fined $5 for drunkenness at Cohasset.

Catherine Fitzgera'd was fined $15 for drunkenness at Quincy.

—Harvard and Pennslyvania will play at Cambridge on Saturday.

LABOR ENDORSEMENT

Carpenter's Union of Brookline Out for Watts H. Bowker.

Watts H. Bowker, the candidate for County Commissioner, was required to give an apprenticeship of seven years when he learned the trade, and it gave him a good thorough training. Brookline Union of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America give him the following endorsement:

At the present time it seems advisable for the only labor organization in Brookline to have a word to say regarding the candidacy of one of our foremost fellow-citizens for County Commissioner for Norfolk.

Mr. Watts H. Bowker the nominee from Brookline seems to be a most fitting candidate for men connected with labor organizations to support.

His record as a friend of the working man during a long and successful career as a builder and the active part he has taken in improving the conditions of town employes as regards wages and hours, are well known to his fellow townsmen.

In Mr. Bowker we have a candidate fully capable of superintending any constructive work which the County may undertake and we feel assured that as far as possible he will promote the interests of organized labor in public works built under the supervision of the County Commissioners.

A. M. Watson, President,
James Keefe, Financial Secretary.
Brookline Carpenters Union, No. 438 United Brotherhood Carpenters and Joiners of America.

Our Representatives.

In the prevalent contention about the nominee for Mayor, we should not lose sight of the fact that on next Tuesday we are to vote for two Representatives in the Legislature. The names of the only candidates who stand any show of election are as follows:

Frank E. Badger of Atlantic.
Harrison A. Keith of Ward 2.
John McKnight of Ward 1.
George H. Wilson of Ward 1.

Look these names over carefully. Decide which of them, by reason of long residence here and aquaintance with the needs of the city, would make the most worthy representative of Quincy, and vote accordingly. H.

Council Business.

At tonights meeting of the City Council, the Committee on Streets will report on petitions for locations of poles on Copeland and Liberty streets, Howard avenue, Washington, Beach, Valley and Field streets; also on rebuilding a portion of Woodward avenue; on street light for Squantum street near Hucklings avenue; street lights on East Elm avenue; and on the petition of John Kilmartin for damages by surface water.

The Committee on Legislative Matters will report on the communication of the Mayor, relative to the hearing before the Harbor and Land Commissioners.

Reports may also be expected from the Committee on Finance.

Jumped on a Ten Penny Nail.

The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake made of ten-penny nails, and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and a second one half way through. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes later the pain had disappeared and no more suffering was experienced. In three days the child was wearing her shoe as usual and with absolutely no discomfort. Mr. Powell is a well known merchant of Forkland, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and heals such injuries without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. For sale by all druggists.

PROTECTION OF PRESIDENTS

Assault on Chief Executive to Be a Capital Crime.

The special commission that has been at work for several years codifying the federal laws, says the Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger, has completed its work on the criminal code, with the single exception of an addition to the statutes providing penalties for an assault on the person of the president of the United States. The work of the commission on the criminal laws and its final report are in the hands of the attorney general. A draft has been made of the proposed amendment in regard to safeguarding the life of the president which will be submitted in a few days. No little difficulty was found in dealing with the matter. As the law now stands, there is no more protection for the president than for the lowliest citizen of the land.

The commission went over all the statutes of the various states, and it was found that in a number of states the assailant of the president, in case of the president's recovery, could not be punished at all. Another point is that state law takes jurisdiction as against federal law, and under the constitution there is no way of getting around it. The commission has framed an amendment to cover all territory belonging to or controlled by the federal government, such as sites of post-offices, navy yards, custom houses, federal buildings, arsenals, forts, reservations and similar places.

A separate amendment also makes it a crime, punishable with a fine of $5,000 or imprisonment commensurately, to threaten the life of the president and a capital crime to attack his person. The commission does not attempt to bring the crime of attacking the president under the head of treason. It is recognized that in all the assassinations that have occurred there was no feeling against the individual, but the crime was against the office. The amendment also provides punishment for accessories before the fact. This is made to cover those who encourage violent intentions toward the president and is intended to apply to anarchists.

MORGAN'S BIG BANK.

Two Institutions Consolidated With Capital of $20,000,000.

A consolidation of the National Bank of Commerce and the First National bank, which will make the strongest bank in the United States, with a capital of $20,000,000, eclipsing the National City bank, with $10,000,000 capital, says the New York Journal, is now being worked out by interests in control of the former two institutions. One of the first steps will be the admission to the directory of the First National bank of J. P. Morgan and probably James J. Hill. This would place in the hands of these two financiers—one the head of a school of managers who has so revolutionized railway operating as to earn big dividends and cause great economies, and the other the great corporation organizer—enormous financial backing within their own control for the carrying out of plans which they have already conceived in the western railway field.

The stock of the First National bank was originally held by a coterie of financiers who were known as "the First National bank party," with George F. Baker at their head. The financial strength of this institution as originally constituted was fully attested when the bank simply "wrote off" the amount stolen by Alvord, its old note teller, without impairing its surplus, profits or capital. After this incident, and perhaps simply a preliminary step to the present plans of consolidation with the National Bank of Commerce, the capital was increased to $10,000,000, which made it equal with the National Bank of Commerce and the National City bank in capitalization.

FRICK PLANS BIG TRUST.

Steel Combine With $2,000,000,000 Said to Be Forming.

With the opening of the new year will be organized one of the greatest steel corporations in the world, says a Cleveland dispatch to the New York Journal. Capitalists in that city and throughout the Mahoning valley, who are experienced in the steel business, will be largely interested as stockholders in the new corporation.

The men who were largely responsible for the great success of the underlying steel companies constituting the United States Steel corporation, and who disposed of their holdings, will be prominently identified with the new company.

Independent steel corporations which have refused large offsets to turn their business and plants over to the United States Steel corporation will be large stockholders in the new organization.

H. C. Frick of Pittsburg will, it is said, be president of the new corporation and the capital stock will be $2,000,000,000.

Negotiations are now in progress with Pittsburg, Youngstown and Philadelphia capitalists with a view of bringing the interested parties together in a solid organization.

Little information will be given out until a charter for the corporation is secured under the laws of New Jersey.

Girl Lived In Chicken Coop.

A diet of raw eggs and a home in a chicken coop make a novel experience of twelve-year-old Nellie Biegenwald of Gloucester, N. Y. The police had been searching for Nellie for three days, and friends and neighbors began to entertain grave fears for her safety. Nellie came forth finally from her queer retirement, which was a chicken coop. She told, with evident relish, of her three days' subsistence on raw eggs.

MAJOR ARMES TO WED

Announcement of Coming Marriage of the Spirited Officer.

HE HAS A REMARKABLE RECORD.

Has Been Arrested Twenty-four Times on Various Charges—Declares That His Troubles Have Always Arisen Out of the Fact That He Would Not Be Imposed Upon.

Major George A. Armes, United States army, retired, the man who pulled Governor James A. Beaver's nose for some fancied wrong done him while the governor was acting as grand marshal of President Harrison's inaugural parade, has announced his engagement to Miss M. C. Howard of Rochester, N. Y. So says a Washington dispatch.

He says the marriage will take place shortly. Major Armes was court martialed for his assault on Governor Beaver and sentenced to remain within the District of Columbia for two years. Major Armes' wife, from whom he has been separated for a number of years, and several children live in Washington. About a year ago he was sued for breach of promise by his former housekeeper. The case was settled out of court.

Major Armes has been in the army since he was a boy, and at the beginning of the civil war one of the first things he did was to get into trouble. Since then he has been getting into trouble with the most persistent frequency, having been under arrest twenty-four times and having been court martialed nine times. Major Armes says his troubles have been due to the fact that he will not submit to being imposed upon.

Major Armes was born May 20, 1844, and in a book gives a history of his early life in Fairfax county, Va., up to 1860, when he declined to join his companions in the Confederate service. He went to Washington and began life as a newsboy. One day he accosted Secretary Seward on the street to ask him for a position and later received appointment as confidential messenger to that statesman, thereby gaining access to President Lincoln. From that time on he was arrested many times.

His twelfth arrest was in 1867 for assault upon Captain Lauffer, who, Major Armes declared, was the aggressor in the quarrel. For this act Major Armes says he was ordered to Leavenworth for his second court martial, which honorably acquitted him.

Arrest No. 13 occurred the following spring, and a month later he was sent before his third court martial at Fort Hays, which honorably acquitted him of several charges, but found him guilty of allowing a negro to dance in a sutler's store. After being reprimanded he was released. Four other arrests closely following resulted only in release.

"March 27, 1889.—While at the Riggs House this afternoon I noticed Governor Beaver shaking hands with several of his comrades in the lobby, and upon his discovering me he excused himself from his friends and came over and shook hands. I asked him if he had received my note, demanding an apology. He said he had, but proposed to let the matter drop, as it had passed. I reminded him that it was a too serious matter to let drop, when he explained he knew nothing about the affair that happened on the 4th of March and that everything was done by his adjutant general, Hastings. I suggested that he put that in writing at once in order that I could publish the explanation over his signature, when he remarked he had to sustain his adjutant general.

"I told him that it was very singular that I should suffer an insult, and that he should sustain a drunken loafer in an ungentlemanly act, and that I did not propose to let the matter drop, and he then asked me what I proposed to do about it. He at once informed me that he would throw off his position as governor of the state of Pennsylvania while in Washington and put himself down on the same platform with me, and that I could do my worst, which I resented." (At this point Major Armes tweaked the governor's nose.) "One of his comrades threw his arms about him and took him out to his carriage. Another ex-soldier threw his arms around me, when I reminded him that the matter was all over."

For this he was court martialed and sentenced to confinement in the District of Columbia with fifty miles limit. Before the expiration of the term of sentence he was pardoned by President Harrison. His twenty-fourth arrest was made on the order of General Schofield, but he was released on the order of Justice Bradley.

To Join In French Demonstration Against Turkey If Necessary.

Paris, Nov. 4.—M. Delcasse, minister of foreign affairs, yesterday telegraphed M. Bapst, councillor of the French embassy in Constantinople, directing him to present at once to the Ottoman minister of foreign affairs a note asking how the Turkish government proposes to pay the Lorando claim and demanding the execution of the sultan's irade dealing with the matter. The note will also request satisfaction regarding the rights of France which are defined in the various capitulations and treaties, and which in some cases have not been respected and in others have been encroached upon by Turkey.

Admiral Caillard is expected to reach his destination today. The foreign office has received no news from him since his division left the other divisions of the Mediterranean squadron en route for Turkish waters.

It is pointed out that the absence of news is not surprising, as the instructions to Admiral Caillard were to steer due south and avoid passing in sight of Bonfacio, Corsica, or traversing the strait of Messina in order to prevent his movements being signalled.

It is expected that Admiral Caillard will be joined en route by the torpedo cruiser Condor, which is stationed in Cretan waters, and may be met by the torpedo dispatch boat Vautocor, which is stationed at Constantinople. It is also probable that the armored cruiser Admiral Charner, which arrived at Port Said Oct. 31 from the far east, is being held there in order to join Admiral Caillard if needed. It is further reported that three other warships are held in readiness at Toulon to reinforce him should their presence be necessary.

Evidently Deliberate Suicide

Manchester, N. H., Nov. 4.—Across the grave of his wife in Pine Grove cemetery was found the body of Theodore Becker. He had killed himself with a revolver. He was clean shaven and in his best clothes. He was 43 years old and leaves two daughters and a son.

Fatally Shot by Playmate

New Canaan, Conn., Nov. 4.—As a result of the accidental discharge of a 32-calibre revolver Craig Zersoy, aged 15, is fatally injured. Zersoy and Bert Saunders, a playmate, were holding the revolver and in some maner it was prematurely discharged.

NEWS IN BRIEF

A statue of a union soldier of the Civil war type, in South Park, Fall River, Mass., was presented by Samuel Watson to the Richard Borden post 46, G. A. R.

The body of Justin Burnham, 50 years old, of Lynn, Mass., was found floating in the water near Lynn beach. Despondency is supposed to have been the cause of his suicide.

Samuel W. Wentworth was stopped, choked and robbed of $125 by three masked men while on his way to Derry, N. H., where he owns a woodlot, to pay off his men.

The body of Alonzo Hill, aged 50, was found at the base of Mt. Washington, at Intervale, N. H., and the surrounding conditions suggest that he took his own life.

ED STOKES PASSES AWAY

Though Handicapped by Shadow of the Gallows He Became Conspicuous In Great Enterprises and Amassed a Vast Fortune

New York, Nov. 4.—Edward S. Stokes died Saturday afternoon at the home of his sister, Mrs. McNutt. Succeeding a severe attack which came while he was travelling in Canada, Stokes had been for some time in failing health.

EDWARD S. STOKES.

The career of Edward S. Stokes is almost without a parallel in the history of our country. Heavily handicapped by the dark shadow of the crime which first brought him into prominence, his wonderful business ability enabled him to amass a great fortune, become one of the best known bonifaces in the country and to assume a controlling interest in some of the greatest enterprises of his day.

Stokes was born in Philadelphia in 1841. He was educated in Pennsylvania and won fame as a sportsman and athlete in his college days.

At 20 years of age he was a clerk in his father's provision store in New York, but looking for a wider field of enterprise soon found a position in a Wall street broker's office. Here his natural ability and business shrewdness won for him the confidence and friendship of James Fisk, Jr., a friendship which proved of great financial assistance to Stokes, and which continued until a dispute arose over Helen Josephine Mansfield, an exceedingly beautiful woman, under the protection of Mr. Fisk. Fisk accused Stokes of trying to alienate from him the regard of Miss Mansfield.

The vice-president of Erie road then began a series of operations against the financial position of Mr. Stokes. He brought up the claims against his former protege, and sought to force him to the wall. He had him arrested in 1871 on a charge of fraud. Stokes was a fighter, and in these proceedings and in several others he stoutly defended himself. It is said he expended the sum of $38,000 for counsel fees in the course of one year. He charged that Fisk owed him $200,000 on a transaction in oil wells.

Owing to the intrigue of the Mansfield woman, a suit for libel was also begun against Stokes. From the very first Stokes had considered himself an injured and aggrieved person. The various law suits came to a tragic ending on Jan. 6, 1872, when Fisk was shot by Stokes at the Grand Central hotel. Stokes and his friends have always maintained that the provocation was great, even leaving out the element of self defense.

The first trial ended on Jan. 15, 1872, the jury disagreeing. On Jan. 4, 1873, Stokes was convicted of murder in the first degree. He was sentenced to be hanged on Feb. 28, 1873.

Stokes' life was saved by the court of appeals, which reversed the conviction on the ground that a collateral issue had been tried, and a new trial was granted. This time the verdict was manslaughter in the third degree. It was found on Oct. 29, 1873. Stokes was sentenced to four years' imprisonment, but was freed three years later on account of his good behavior.

While in prison Stokes met Richard Croker and John J. Seaunell, who were awaiting trial on charges similar to his own, and the trio formed a friendship which lasted to the end.

Fifteen years after the tragedy Stokes was a representative business man. He spent $1,000,000 in refurnishing and adding to the Hoffman house. He became the head and front of three important telegraph lines, a director in the Mackay-Bennett Cable company, and his directing and sagacious hand was felt in several other enterprises of more or less note. In appearance Stokes was then as fine looking as he was 20 years before, the only noticeable change being the snowy whiteness of his hair.

In manners Stokes was the most elegant gentlemen imaginable having that courtly, quiet bearing which evidenced beyond a doubt his native refinement and aristocratic associations. He was very fond of horse racing and the theatre. As a connoisseur of statuary, painting, music and horseflesh, he stood unrivalled in this country.

In the closing days of the life of Stokes a woman who gave the name of Rosamond Barclay advanced the claim that she was married to him.

THE JOY OF THE house is the baby. No matter how many have come before, the latest arrival brings joy to all.

When the little one takes his first glimpse of the world, he is in, it is a minute of keenest joy.

Father is proud, mother is fond, brother is eager, sisters are tender, nurse is devoted; the whole human world is kind.

There is another, an under, world with enemies in it.

When baby gets into its shadow, be quick with Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil—he is sure to get into its shadow; let him get no futher than into the edge of it. Health is the baby's life.

AMERICAN SOVEREIGNTY

Must Be Respected by Inhabitants of the Philippine Islands

Manila, Nov. 4.—There was a public discussion before the Philippine commission yesterday of the draft of the act against treason and sedition. Many prominent Filipinos were present. Vice-Governor Wright explained the object of the bill, saying that the Spanish code was unsatisfactory.

"There are a number of people living in the Philippines," remarked Mr. Wright, "who, so long as there is no punishment for treason, will take advantage of the fact to clog the wheels of the insular government. It must not be overlooked that a turbulent spirit exists in the pacified provinces. The masses of the people are susceptible to inflammatory utterances and liable to be influenced by scheming demagogues.

"The recent renewed attempts at an insurrection in the island of Samar and the province of Balangas (Luzon) and at a few other points, due to noisy Filipino agitators, have caused a feeling of unrest in the minds of both Filipinos and Americans; and the effect of their cotinuance would be to make impossible the very things these agitators claim they most desire. Such endeavors serve to recruit the ranks of the insurgents and to postpone the era of good feeling and fellowship which must come.

"No excuse exists for secret political organizations. Their intent must be evil. No matter what may have been the opinion of the Filipinos regarding the sovereignty of the American government, the fact remains that the Americans are here, and moreover, here they intend to stay."

Had Been Dead Long Time

Bridgewater, Mass., Nov. 4.—In a swamp in this town yesterday, the body of an aged man was found, badly decomposed, apparently having been there several months. In the pockets were 95 cents in change, a silk handkerchief, and old-fashioned silver watch, a pocket knife, tobacco and a pipe.

Guarding Against Plague

Washington, Nov. 4.—There were no advices yesterday to the marine hospital service from its representatives in Liverpool or Glasgow regarding the bubonic plague. The officials will exert every effort to prevent the introduction of the plague into the United States.

Attempt to Kill Empress Dowager

Pekin, Nov. 4.—While the dowager empress was embarking to cross the river on Saturday, before entering Ho Nan, an assassin attempted to murder her and killed an attendant with a spear before he was cut down. The court has left Ho Nan, enroute for Pekin.

Mangled by Trolley Car

Leominster, Mass., Nov. 4.—While on the track of the Worcester Consolidated line here last evening Leonard Field, 35, a laborer, had his left leg cut off, his right leg broken and his skull fractured by a trolley car. He died on the way to a hospital.

Fast Time on Motor Bicycle

New York, Nov. 4.—At the Vailsburg track yesterday Albert Champion, on a motor bicycle, broke all records from two to ten miles, and came close to his own record for a mile. He did five miles in 6:22 3-5 and 10 miles in 12:47 1-5.

Concluded to Obey Doctors

Pekin, Nov. 4.—The condition of Li Hung Chang shows improvement. His physicians diagnose the malady as ulceration of the stomach. As a rule he is an intractable patient; but having been told that his life depends upon his adhering to a liquid diet, he is complying with the medical orders.

Miss Stone's Fate Unknown

Constantinople, Nov. 4.—Nothing is publicly known here regarding the whereabouts and fate of Miss Ellen M. Stone, or the progress of the negotiations for her ransom. In the absence of news there is considerable disquietude.

Thought to Be a Lowell Man

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 4.—A man supposed to be Patrick Kirby of Lowell, Mass., was found unconscious in an alley early yesterday morning. He died later without regaining consciousness. Foul play is suspected.

A DRAMATIC SCENE

Excommunicated Priest Humiliated In Presence of Many Parishioners

Chicago, Nov. 4.—In Holy Name cathedral yesterday, in the presence of fully 1000 parishioners, Jeremiah Crowley, the excommunicated Roman Catholic priest, was publicly humiliated by order of the authorities of the church.

Father Crowley had entered the church unobserved, passing down the center aisle, and had taken a seat almost under the pulpit. Solemn high mass was being celebrated at the time. When the presence of Father Crowley became known, Chancellor Barry was hurriedly sent for. Upon entering the cathedral he went to the seat where the excommunicated clergyman was kneeling and ordered him to leave the church. Father Crowley refused to go, saying: "Put me out if you dare."

The strain was intense. There was no resort to force, however. Chancellor Barry signalled to a man in the choir loft and the sound of the organ ceased and the singing of the choir was hushed. The priests in the altar stopped the solemn service and walked to the benches and laid aside their vestments. The altar boys marched out of the sanctuary through a side door and the priests, clad in their cassocks, followed. The next moment the hundreds of incandescent lights in the vaulted arches were extinguished and the candle lights on the altar were put out.

The strain was broken when Chancellor Barry appeared in the pulpit and said: "Owing to the presence in this sacred edifice of an excommunicated priest, the solemn high mass has been suspended. We will proceed with a low mass."

No sermon was delivered, however, and the mass was at an end before the congregation was calm again. The parishioners lingered around the cathedral and watched the deposed priest as he hurried away. None spoke to him.

Sentence None Too Severe

Washington, Nov. 4.—"To be confined one year in such a place as the secretary of the navy may direct; to do extra police duty during that time; to lose all pay except $2 a month for prison expenses and the further sum of $20 to be paid to him at the expiration of this confinement, and to be dishonorably discharged from the service of the United States," is the sentence imposed by court-martial upon John W. Stoll, an electrician on the receiving ship Columbia, for foul abuse of the late President McKinley.

Ministers Against Tammay

New York, Nov. 4.—The feature of the local political campaign yesterday was the active part taken in it by the pastors of the churches. Thirty-one pastors, clergymen and two leaders of independent church societies advertised themselves to speak on the issues of the election and all these clergymen took for their subjects the alleged maladministration of the present city officers. Rev. J. Ducey of St. Leo's Roman Catholic church was alone in those reported who spoke on the election for the Shepard side.

Murder Aboard Ship

Philadelphia, Nov. 4.—Schooner Thomas Winsmore, from Brunswick, Ga., with a cargo of yellow pine lumber, arrived here yesterday and Captain Conwell reported that on Nov. 1 Daniel Brown and David Loremor quarreled and Brown stabbed Loremor three times. The victim died almost instantly. The murderer had to be clubbed into subjection. On the arrival of the schooner, Brown was turned over to the police.

Minister Wu to Leave Us

Pekin, Nov. 4.—The recall of Wu Ting-Fang, the Chinese minister at Washington, has been decided upon. He will be offered a subordinate position in the foreign office beneath his abilities, which it is believed he will decline. Li Hung Chang's interpreter, Tseng, is a prominent candidate for the Washington mission. He is 30 years of age and was educated in England.

Another Heir to Belgian Throne

Brussels, Nov. 4.—Princess Elizabeth, who was married Oct. 2, 1900, to Prince Albert, heir presumptive to the throne of Belgium, yesterday gave birth to a son, who will be christened Leopold. The king visited Prince Albert to congratulate him upon the event, expressing his joy and promising to act as godfather.

Motor Cars Crashed Together

Columbus, O., Nov. 4.—Four persons were seriously hurt, one of them perhaps fatally, and several others were slightly cut and bruised in a collision of two motor cars yesterday a few miles west of Columbus. The collision was caused by the brakes on a descending car failing to work.

Got More Than Bargained For

San Francisco, Nov. 4.—A captive balloon containing one woman and eight men broke from its fastening Saturday evening and floated to the neighborhood of La Honda, over 30 miles distant, where the occupants of the balloon landed none the worse for their unusual experience.

Requisition Refused

Indianapolis, Nov. 4.—Governor Durbin has refused to grant requisition for the return to Kentucky of ex-Governor Taylor and Charles W. Finley, who were indicted by Kentucky courts for alleged complicity in the murder of William Goebel.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Tuesday, Nov. 5.
Sun rises—6:22; sets—4:33.
Moon rises—12:52 a. m.
High water—6:30 a. m.; 7 p. m.

The cold wave will continue its eastward and southeastward movement and will extend into New England. Rain is indicated for New England. On the coast winds will become variable and shift to northwest with increasing force.

MEN AS THEY PASS.

Cornelius Vanderbilt has since last July received three patents for inventions of his, all having to do with railway cars.

Edward N. Dingley of Kalamazoo has nearly completed a comprehensive biography of his father, the late Congressman Dingley.

George Vierling, the composer, who died recently in Berlin, left to a charitable institution of that city the substantial sum of 1,500,000 marks.

W. S. Loat, superintendent of the survey of the fishes of the Nile, has returned to Egypt to continue his work and will thoroughly explore the Blue Nile.

Lord Morris, who died recently at his home in Galway, was the originator of the famous phrase, "Thank God, nobody who ever hears me speak will take me for anything but an Irishman."

Captain John Glover died recently at Harwich, England, his native place, aged eighty-two. He had assisted in saving over 300 lives from wrecks on the Gunfleet, Heap, Sunk and Long sands.

An unusual record is afforded by William H. Eder of Elkton, Md., who has read every issue of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, beginning with the first day of publication in 1836. Mr. Eder appears to be the original "constant reader."

Thomas Skelton Harrison, who has succeeded Daniel Baugh as president of the Philadelphia Art club, was until a year ago diplomatic agent and consul general of the United States at Cairo, Egypt, having been appointed by President McKinley.

Dr. W. D. Shelby, captain and assistant surgeon in the United States army, has given Hanover college, Indiana, a fund, from the proceeds of which a medal will be given each year for the student who ranks highest in scientific studies.

John P. Babcock, for eleven years chief deputy of the California fish commission, has resigned to accept an appointment as fish commissioner for British Columbia. Mr. Babcock is regarded as the foremost authority on salmon propagation in America.

PEN AND BRUSH.

Mme. de Mirmont, the celebrated French miniature painter, who has had the czarina as one of her patrons, does all her work with her left hand, her right having been crippled.

Legouve, the oldest of the French "Immortals," is ninety-four and is still industrious. It was he who said: "It is often said that God condemned man to work. This is absurd. God condemned man to live and gave him work as a mitigating circumstance."

Maurice Barres, the French novelist, has given up politics and will stick to literature hereafter. He was the brightest of the young men who rushed into the Boulangist movement, and, though in recent politics he was naturally a Nationalist, he managed not to make himself prominent.

Marion Crawford, the novelist, works very systematically every day. When in New York, he has a room at his publisher's and goes there to write for an hour every morning. That done, he considers himself at liberty to spend the rest of the day in amusement and generally takes a long drive or walk.

HIVE AND BEE.

Windbreaks in winter are beneficial.

Arrange so that no stock shall run in the apiary.

Be sure that each colony has a good fertile queen.

It will not do to confine bees on combs of pollen.

Bees must be kept very quiet if they are to winter well.

Bees may readily be wintered in a cellar if an even temperature can be kept up.

The cheapest and best way to protect the bees in winter is by using good chaff hives.

Before winter sets in every colony should be strong. In other words, each hive should be full of bees.

All colonies that are weak enough to spare room for division boards should be united in the fall.

STATE LINES.

Alabama is third among the coke producing states.

YOU HAVE YOUR CHOICE

of plodding along in the old treadmill way, or of using your thinker to get a little ahead without so many blisters and sore spots.

DON'T COMPLAIN

if your landlord is getting rich; it's your fault. You may as well have an income as to pay it all out in house rent; that little deposit you are holding till something happens to eat it all up would be just as safe invested in a house and would bring in a hundred or more every year. Besides, you would have the advantage of a good home in a clean new house.

I have now nearly completed, another of those popular two-family houses on Federal avenue, Quincy Adams, which will pay 25 per cent profit on your investment. Bring deposit, and look this up, as these always sell to the first one who investigate.

I have single houses too, to suit the most exacting, and all sold at the lowest possible limit.

GOVERNMENT IS UPHELD

In the Despatch of Warships to Turkish Waters

AN EXAMPLE TO OTHERS

Who Have Long Standing Claims Against the Ottoman Empire—Its Administration So Rotten That Heavy Blow Might Pulverize It

Paris, Nov. 5.—In the chamber of deputies yesterday M. Sembat (Radical Socialist) interpellated the government on the Franco-Turkish dispute, criticizing the action taken as being for a material end and contending that France ought to have intervened at the time of the Armenian massacre.

The foreign minister, M. Delcasse, replied that France's patience was exhausted by the porte's breaking its own promises. France, in the present difficulty, pursued no fresh advantage. But everybody would agree that this effort on the part of France ought to at least serve to put an end to the annoyances and unjust treatment of which French works in the Orient, scholastic and hospitable establishments, and commercial and industrial enterprises, had been the object.

The foreign minister's statement was greeted with applause.

M. Sembat was not satisfied with M. Delcasse's statement and moved that the chamber, convinced that France would fail in her duty if she did not protect the Armenians in an effectual manner, resolves that the government facilitate this protest by an agreement between the powers.

Premier Waldeck-Rousseau then rose and said that M. Delcasse's declaration showed that the government's task was heavy and complex. As the government desired to secure respect for the interests of its fellow citizens, so it intended to defend the patrimony of moral interests devolving upon France. It needed the confidence of the chamber in order to accomplish its task.

M. Sembat's motion was rejected by 294 to 75 votes.

M. Castenet then moved that the chamber, confident the government would enforce respect for the interests and honor of France, pass to the order of the day.

The motion was adopted by 305 to 77 votes and the house adjourned.

Whatever the result of the French naval demonstration against Turkey the chief significance of the incident is the example it will set to other powers which have claims against Turkey. It is asserted, no doubt, on the authority of the French foreign office, that France had hitherto refrained from employing demonstrative measures against the porte to secure a settlement of the French claims simply because the whole fabric of Ottoman administration is so rotten that a heavy blow might pulverize it.

Joint action on the part of the powers cannot be much longer delayed. The misgovernment of Macedonia, the excesses committed in Armenia and the dissatisfaction existing in Crete have reached such a point as to constitute a standing menace to the peace of Europe. Acting on the initiative of Russia and France, the powers are even now discussing the basis of an understanding for making representations to the porte and for eventful action to compel the sultan not only to carry out the clauses of the treaty of Berlin relating both to Macedonia ond Armenia, but to give guarantees for the execution of these and further reforms.

"The porte has asked Great Britain," says the correspondent of the Echo De Paris, "to fulfill the terms of the convention of 1878 whereby, in exchange for the Island of Cyprus, Great Britain guarantees the integrity of the sultan's Asiatic possessions. The porte claims under this convention that Great Britain should protect Asiatic Turkey against attack by France and suggests that Great Britain should send a squadron to the levant for that purpose."

Caillard Reported at Smyrna

London, Nov. 5.—The Paris correspondent of the Daily Mail says that he understands that dispatches have been received at the French capital announcing that Admiral Caillard's division of the French Mediterranean squadron has arrived at Smyrna and seized the customs.

Edward Possesses New Title

London, Nov. 5.—King Edward, at a meeting of the privy council yesterday, signed the proclamation giving him his new title, as follows: "Edward the Seventh, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions beyond the Sea, King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India."

A LIFE SACRIFICED

Through Fear of Law Relating to Accidental Shooting by Hunters

Machias, Me., Nov. 5.—Leslie Bowker died from a bullet wound yesterday, the victim of a hunter's mistake. His friends consider that his life was sacrificed in the operation of the new statute in this state which imposes punishment on a hunter convicted of killing another person. Bowker on Saturday was gunning in the vicinity of Great Falls on the Machias river. He was crossing an open field and was shot by a gunner in he nearby woods. The rifle ball cut a furrow across the left leg and passed entirely through his right thigh. He shrieked from pain and the hunter in the woods made off as quickly as possible. Bowker buckled his belt around his wounded limb and attempted to walk. He fell after going about 300 yards, completely exhausted.

On reviving he repeatedly discharged his rifle to attract attention and finally a party of four hunters were attracted. These men took Bowker to the river and in a canoe paddled five miles, then carrying him to a vehicle by which he was driven two miles to his home. Bowker was so weak from loss of blood and the journey, together with exposure, that he died yesterday. Had he received assistance at the time he was shot or a reasonable time thereafter his life would have been saved. The circumstances as Bowker described them to the hunters who found him indicated that the shooting was accidental, but the responsible party was afraid to give aid out of fear of the law. Bowker was 28 years old.

About the Toppan Case

Boston, Nov. 5.—In its discussion of the Toppan case The Journal today says that it has learned that the reason the government has selected the case of Mrs. Gibbs, who was the last of the four members of the family to die, as the one on which to prosecute the case against Miss Toppan, was that it was the most recent. The condition of the internal organs of the body was such that they could, perhaps, be better submitted to the chemical test.

Highest For Twenty-Five Years

Fall River, Nov. 5.—The new wage scale went into effect in the Iron Works mills yesterday, weavers on regular printing cloths receiving 21.8 cents per cut. This is the highest wage paid for this work in over a quarter of a century. The Bourne mills will pay 5 percent less and the other mills 10 percent less. There was no trouble of any kind reported at any of the mills and none of a serious character is expected.

Assignment of Shoe Company

Claremont, N. H., Nov. 5.—The C. H. Washburn company, manufacturers of boots and shoes, has made an assignment to Frank P. Maynard for the benefit of creditors. The failure is attributed to the charp competition in shoe manufacturing, requiring shoes to be sold at a very small advance on the cost of production. There is at present a large amount of unfinished work at the factory which will be finished.

Brothers Suspect Foul Play

Boston, Nov. 5.—Two brothers of John J. Abeels, the man whose body was found at Plum Island, having become of the opinion that the dead man was the victim of foul play, called on Chief of Police Wade yesterday and expressed this belief. The fact that no trace of the dead man's money has been found seems primarily to determine the belief of the murder theory. State detectives are at work on the case.

Square-Rigger on Shoals

Chatham, Mass., Nov. 5.—A square-rigged vessel was sighted ashore on Handkerchief shoal a 10 o'clock last night. The vessel burned torches and Captain Eldredge and crew of Monomoy lifesaving station started to her assistance in the darkness with their lifeboat. The wind is northeast, but the crew are in no danger. They can be taken off if the vessel leaks badly.

Captain Was Left Alone

Gloucester, Mass., Nov. 5.—Schooner Dakotah, from Rockland for Boston, anchored inside Dog Bar breakwater yesterday with her flag union down. A tug went out to give assistance and ascertained that the crew of the schooner on Sunday night took the only boat and rowed ashore, leaving the captain to navigate the craft alone, and with no means of reaching shore.

Says Woman Assaulted Him

Boston, Nov. 5.—Daniel Keefe was taken to the city hospital with a broken back last night, and his sufferings are terrible, but the surgeons think an operation may relieve him. Keefe says he is the victim of an assault from a woman whose name he does not know. He says he was finally thrown down a flight of stairs.

Potato Farmers Made Happy

Houlton, Me., Nov. 5.—Two weeks ago potatoes were bringing from $1.25 to $1.45 a barrel, according to quality and brand. Today the price is up to $1.75 to $1.85 a barrel. This increase of from 40 to 50 cents a barrel in so short a time indicates a much livelier demand for the tubers than was anticipated a month ago.

"Chinks" Were Chattering

Concord, N. H., Nov. 5.—Three Chinamen were hauled out of a sealed freight car yesterday by Deputy United States Marshal Horner, who had been notified by the railroad men. It is thought the Chinamen came through from across the border, thereby transgressing the exclusion act. Trainmen overheard their chattering.

BATTLE OF BALLOTS ON

Elections Being Held In Thirteen States Today

UNITED STATES SENATORS

A Republican plurality of from 30,000 to 40,000 is the concession of the Democratic leaders in Massachusetts. Republican leaders say that their plurality will be 55,000.

Connecticut will elect delegates to the convention to revise the constitution of the state, in accordance with the result of the popular vote cast at the election on the question held on Oct. 7.

Iowa will elect a full ticket of state officers and legislature, to which falls the duty of electing a United States senator for the term which began March 4 last. For the state officers there are five regularly nominated tickets in the field: Democratic, Republican, Prohibition, Populist and Socialist.

Kentucky will elect its legislature, which will choose a United States senator to succeed William J. Deboe, Republican, his term ending March 4, 1903. The present legislature of Kentucky is Democratic in both houses—by 12 in the senate and 20 in the house of representatives; 32 on joint ballot.

Maryland will elect controller and clerk of the state court of appeals, and the members of the state legislature, which will elect a United States senator as successor to George L. Wellington, who was elected as a Republican, and whose term will end March 4, 1903. The Maryland senate consists of 27 members and the house of delegates of 91. Of the senators 13 hold over—10 Democrats and 3 Republicans. Thus the Democrats will need to elect but four members to control that body. For the two state officers there are six tickets in the field.

Mississippi will elect state treasurer and secretary of state for four years, the term ending January, 1904. This will be a special election by order of the governor.

Nebraska will elect supreme court judge and two regents of the state university.

New Jersey will elect governor and legislature. For governor four nominations have been regularly made, as follows: Democratic, James M. Seymour; Republican, Franklin Murphy; Prohibition, Joel W. Brown; Social Democratic, Charles H. Vail. The last named is a clergyman.

New York will elect the members of the assembly and fill two vacancies in the senate. A congressman is to be chosen in the 24th district to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Albert D. Shaw. Nine judges of the supreme court are also to be chosen—four in the 1st district, one each in the 3d, 4th and 7th districts, and two in the 6th district.

Ohio will elect state officers and legislature. The legislature to meet in January next, will choose a United States senator as successor of Joseph B. Foraker, Republican, whose term will end March 4, 1903.

Pennsylvania will elect state treasurer and judge of the supreme court, and vote upon three proposed amendments to the state constitution. For the two state offices the Democrats and the new union (anti-machine Republican) party have fused.

Rhode Island will elect state officers and legislature. For state officers there are three tickets in the field.

Virginia will elect state officers and legislature.

Betting Favors Low

New York, Nov. 5.—At midnight last night both sides of the municipal contest were claiming the victory. The fusion leaders were more in evidence at their headquarters than were the Democrats at theirs, the latter, after the distribution of campaign funds in the afternoon, having hurried to their several election precincts to give their last orders to their followers. Wagers were laid at 10 to 7 on Low and the rest of the city ticket.

Good Afternoon

A good indication of prosperous times in Quincy is the payment of taxes. Collector Baker reports deposits for Oct. 31, Nov. 1 and 2 to have amounted to $73,421.00 this year against $43,841.00 for the three same dates last year.

Credit should be given to the City Council for turning down the order to appropriate $2000 for the trial of land damage cases against the city. When the City Solicitor was placed on a salary it was understood that there should be no extra appropriations. If there is an over paid city officer, that official is the City Solicitor. It is the biggest plum in the gift of the Mayor.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ One of the greatest instances of self-restraint that has recently come to notice is that of the Missouri woman who refrained from boxing her husband's ears because he had been gone 10 years after a package soda that she sent him to the grocery store for, one day, when he wasn't in a hurry.—Lynn Item.

☞ If municipalities would pay half the attention to securing their just dues from franchises and taxes before they are reduced to financial straits that they do after they have become impoverished, figuratively speaking, everything might run smoothly at all times. Cities that are plunged head over ears in debt do not become so unknowingly or without being able to avoid it.—Lynn Item.

☞ The Somerville Daily Times is to make the experiment of giving that city a daily newspaper. The proximity of the city to Boston has always been an insurmountable obstacle for such an enterprise, but it would seem that in a city of 68,000 inhabitants, even with the supply of Boston newspapers right at hand, there is a field for a daily which will dish up in an interesting manner the local happenings which the Boston papers do not have the room to handle.

☞ Admiral Schley's comment that "no man except the press correspondents, who brave all dangers, can always have paper and pencil at hand when a battle is in progress, and as a consequence there is failure to record many occurrences that should be recorded," coupled with the fact that nobody seems to know exactly what happened, or that no two agree as to what happened, in the Santiago campaign, suggests that perhaps it would be well to establish a department of official recorders upon the outbreak of the next war.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ It is hard to imagine a prophet in modern clothes and eyeglasses, yet it is certain that if one of the Hebrew prophets were in New York today he would do just what Mr. Jerome did yesterday. He would, that is to say, go to those who were supercilliously at ease in Zion, and tell them that their guilt was greater than that of the ignorant and wronged poor, whom they would not touch with the tip of one of their gloved fingers. Long enough have we attempted to deceive ourselves with silly sighs about the "dangerous classes" on the east side. Our most dangerous classes are on the west side, and in the "brownstone" section. There live the powers that pay, who keep alive the powers that prey.—New York Evening Post.

VOTE WILL BE LARGE.

The Apathy Not as General as Many Had Supposed.

Marshall P. Wright Sure to Receive a Majority in This City.

Otherwise the City Will Go Republican for Every Candidate.—Counting of the Votes Began at 2 O'clock.

It is Republican weather and Quincy will give a large Republican majority for all candidates except County Commissioner for one year and Representatives to the General Court. The strong anti-Bowker feeling is manifest among Republicans and Marshall P. Wright will have a majority in this city. While Badger and McKnight will run behind their ticket, the consensus of opinion is that they will both win out, particularly as the Democrats are not united. It is said that one strong Democrat—either Keith or Wilson—could have been elected; but not both. Then it is said that many Democrats are voting bullets; some for Mr. Keith and others for Mr. Wilson; which of course weakens the chances of both.

The Republican majority in the city for Governor will be upwards of 500.

The counting of the votes began in all precincts at 2 p m and some returns may be expected before 6 o'clock.

THE TOTAL VOTE.

The total vote of the city at 2 o'clock was practically 2891. At that time the heaviest of the voting was over. The polls, however, had two hour more to remain open, but it is doubtful if the total vote of the day will go much over 3300.

At the State and Presidential election last year the vote was phenomonal the total being 4,187, against 3,153 in 1899, and 2,244 in 1897, four years ago. This year, like 1897, follows a Presidential election, but the vote will be largely in excess of that year, and possibly equal to 1899. The figures by precincts are given for the three years:

Ward One,	835	576	447
Ward Two,	519	378	280
Ward Three, Pre. 1,	434	361	270
Ward Three, Pre. 2,	400	324	229
Ward Four, Pre 1,	410	314	247
Ward Four, Pre. 2,	429	348	238
Ward Five,	632	509	349
Ward Six,	528	343	184
	4,187	3,153	2,244

The voting lists for four years at state election show these figures:

	1901	1900	1899	1898
Ward One, Pre. 1,	402	911	797	738
Ward One, Pre. 2,	485
Ward Two, Pre. 1,	221	587	586	558
Ward Two, Pre. 2,	347
Ward Three, Pre. 1,	469	466	451	454
Ward Three, Pre. 2,	402	428	401	393
Ward Four, Pre. 1,	352	443	408	401
Ward Four, Pre. 2,	441	469	454	430
Ward Five,	723	701	624	579
Ward Six,	555	579	504	445
	4,407	4,581	4,228	3,998

WARD ONE.

Ward One is voting today in two precincts, but both polling places are conveniently located in the Council chamber of City Hall,—Precinct 1 on the north side of the entrance and Precinct 2 on the left. Each precinct has its own officers, as follows:

Precinct 1.—Messrs. Kittredge, Dunphy, Jenness, Dunn, Johnson and Welch, with Officers Hanson and Sandberg as guardians of the peace.

Precinct 2—Messrs. Packard, Davenport, Coyle, Holt, Cook and Goodridge. Police Officers Murray and Stewart.

The ward is getting out a good vote this year, in spite of "Gen. Apathy" as the one o'clock total last year was but 653, and the grand total in 1897 but 447. The figures by hours:

	Precinct 1	Precinct 2
7 o'clock,	46	53
8 "	79	93
9 "	126	140
10 "	155	170
11 "	180	199
12 "	198	220
1 "	242	261
2 "	263	302

When it is remembered that last year was Presidential year, the vote today compares very favorably. The total of the ward last year at 1 o'clock was 653, and the total vote of 1897 was but 447.

Contrary to expectation, the Democrats rather than the Republicans are backward in voting, so that the ward will give a large Republican majority.

WARD TWO.

The Quincy Point ward is voting in precincts for the first time today, and should get out a good sized vote. Precinct one is located at the Hose House, and Precinct two in the building on Washington street opposite Mill street.

The voting during the morning hours was rather quiet in both precincts. In precinct one, 120 votes had been cast at 11.30. As this is nearly half the registered vote of this precinct it is not so bad.

In precinct two the number does not register correctly. At 11.30 the box register showed 164, but the actual vote was probably a little less than this number.

This gives the whole ward 284, or four more votes than in 1897. While the vote will not come up to that of last year it will exceed that of 1899.

The election officers on duty are:

Precinct 1—Sampson, Weston, R. H. Newcomb, Maurice R. Newcomb, Cain and Cleverly. Police—Officers Larken and Donovan.

Precinct 2—Edwin W. Newcomb, Carey, Holmes, Scammell, Kennedy and Ford. Police—Officers Goodhue and Morrissey.

The two o'clock vote was in Precinct one, 163; in Precinct two, 250.

WARD THREE.

A light vote will be cast in the South Quincy ward if this morning's vote can be taken as an indication. Up to 11 o'clock the whole ward had cast but 311 votes. Of this number precinct one had 170 and precinct two, 141. The total vote of the ward in 1897 was 499 and it is probable that the vote this year will not only surpass that but come near the vote of 1899, which was 685. Precinct one this year is located in the Swingle & Falconer Block on Water street, and is much better situated than in other years.

The election officers on duty are:

Precinct 1,—Cahill, McCalder, Nutting, Sullivan, Kennedy and Kelley.

Precinct 2,—Dakers, Boyle, Heaney, Campbell, Shea and Pratt.

Police,—Officers P. H. Bradley and John Bradley.

The vote of Precinct 1 at 2 P. M., was 307.

WARD FOUR.

The West Quincy ward which should poll a large vote was not holding its own this morning, the whole ward having cast but 268 votes at 10.45 o'clock. This is unusually small. The polling places are very quiet. There was an absence of the usual crowd hanging about outside the polling places and a stranger would never know an election was in progress. Precinct One is the ward in which Marshall P. Wright the candidate for County Commissioner votes, and it was 10.40 o'clock when he came and voted, his vote making the total 132. A year ago at the same hour the vote was 194.

In Precinct two the vote at 10.45 was but 136 and it was fully as quiet here as in the first precinct.

The election officers are:

Precinct 1—Crowley, Loud, Fuller, Williams, Burke and Barry. Police Officers,—Reddington and Lyons.

Precinct 2—Teasdale, Markham, Walters, Campbell, Egan and Flaherty, Police Officers—Gordon and Hinchon.

WARD FIVE.

Considering the general lack of interest in today's election, Wollaston is getting out a very good vote. There is an increase of one hundred voters over last year and the ward should do even better than last year, but if it does as well, not much fault can be found. The total vote a year ago was 632 and today at 2 o'clock the box registered 465.

The polls will remain open two hours longer and the total should not be far from last year. The election officers are:

Warden, Sherman, Clerk, Chase, Inspectors Olney, Nash, Twitchell and Deneen.

WARD SIX.

Voting in the Atlantic ward is fully as quiet as in the wards at the opposite end of city. The ward committee men on duty at the polls say that it is simply impossible to get the voters out. A year ago this ward cast 528 votes, but up to 1 o'clock today but 342 votes had been cast, or about 100 less than a year ago at the same hour.

The 1 o'clock vote, however, was ahead of the total vote of 1899 and nearly twice as large as the total vote of 1897.

The election officers on duty are: Messrs. Pope, Drew, Nelson, Weymouth, Duggan and O'Brien. Police-Officers Holloran and McCarthy.

The vote at 2 P. M. was 355.

Poison by Absorption.

The slow absorption of many poisons changes in some more or less modified form the complexion, but arsenic and ammonia show their effect about as quickly as any. The popular belief that arsenic clears the complexion has led many silly women to kill themselves with it in small, continued doses.

It produces a waxy, ivorylike appearance of the skin during a certain stage of the poisoning, but its terrible after effects have become too well known to make it of common use as a cosmetic.

The effects of ammonia upon the complexion are directly opposite from that of arsenic. The first symptoms of ammonia poisoning which appears among those who work in ammonia factories is a discoloration of the skin of the nose and forehead. This gradually extends over the face until the complexion has a stained, blotched and unsightly appearance. With people who take ammonia into their systems in small doses, as with their water and food, these striking symptoms do not appear so soon. The only effect of the poison that is visible for a time is a general unwholesomeness and sallowness of the complexion.

Undigested Food.

The recurrence of the flavor of food for some time after eating is always an indication, writes a physician in a medical journal, that the food is not being properly digested. "I can taste it," we say after eating canned fruits and vegetables preserved by adding salicylic acid or formaldehyde, substances that embalm food against the digestive juices as completely as they protect it from the microbes of the outer air. And "I can taste it" would probably be the report of one who had made a hearty meal on a turkey kept several months in cold storage. "A man trying to live on such meat would simply starve to death or die of blood poisoning," adds the physician.

He does not fail to remind us that the storage warehouse is generally a convenience and a benefit and only when misused a source of danger. But neither he nor any one else could find a good word to say for manufacturers who put slow poison into a food product. The fitting punishment for them would be to give them nothing to eat but their own canned stuff.

The Bird That Flies Longest.

Mr. J. Lancaster, naturalist, who spent five years on the west coast of Florida studying birds there, came to the conclusion that of all the feathered tenants of the air the frigate bird can fly the longest without resting. He has seen one flying for a whole week night and day without repose.

The frigate bird can feed, collect materials for its nest and even sleep on the wing. Apparently its wings can be controlled automatically, without the power of its will, and it probably adapts itself to take advantage of the upward or bearing force of the wind. The spread of the frigate bird's wing is great, and it can fly at a speed of ninety-six miles an hour, without seeming to flap its wings much.

The albatross—that "king of the high seas," as it has been called—is larger than the frigate bird, but if it follows a vessel for four or five days it has to rest on a rock or on the ship itself.

An Impudent Dog.

One day Beau Nash joined some fine ladies in a grove and, asking one of them who was crooked whence she came, she replied, "Straight from London."

"Confound me, madam," said he, "then you must have been warped by the way!"

She soon, however, had ample revenge. The following evening he joined her company and, with a sneer and a bow, asked her if she knew her catechism and could tell him the name of Tobit's dog.

"His name, sir, was Nash," replied the lady, "and an impudent dog he was!"

Proving Polarization.

The polarization of the human body can be proved by allowing a strong current to flow through the body from one end to the other, the hands being placed in two basins connected with the poles. The hands are then dried and placed in two other basins of water connected with the wires of a delicate galvanometer. A current in the reverse direction to the original one is then found to flow from the body.

Whist at Atlantic.

The Smart Set whist club of Atlantic met on Monday evening with Miss Corinna Wilde of Billings street. All twelve members were present and whist began promptly at 8 o'clock. At ten, the highest scores were taken and the first prize awarded to Miss Ruth Bassett, the second prize was won by Miss Laura Hall. Salad with olives and tiny French rolls were served at the close of the game, followed by sherbet with assorted cake and hot chocolate. The party was a very merry one, and Miss Wilde proved herself to be a very charming hostess.

Merrymount Golf Club.

The finals for the club championship of the Merrymount golf club were played off Saturday. In a 36 hole contest H. W. Porter beat H. M. Fairbanks.

The playing of the former was exceptionally steady. On one round he pulled out a 36 which is the amateur record for the club. On 15 holes Fairbanks was only 3 down, but on 18 holes was 6 down. Only 25 holes were played, Porter taking the next six holes. On 25 holes Porter had Fairbanks 12 up and 11 to go. The result for the second round of caddies championship tournament is as follows:

Cox beat Hoyt, 8 up 6 to go.
Hoxie beat Woodman, 8 up 6 to go.
Farrington beat Thomas, 1 up in 20 holes.
Massey beat Loud, 1 up.

Next Saturday in the semi-finals, Cox plays Massey, and Hoxie plays Farrington.

Spectre Horse.

A few nights ago, during the mystery of the preparations for hallowe'en, a citizen of Ward Six came home some what late from town. It was ideal moonlight outside, and after going up stairs, this appreciative citizen bethought himself to take a peep at the glory without before turning in. What was his horror, to behold a spectre horse of gigantic proportions standing in a great stream of moonlight which caressed his back yard. For a second he was tempted to cry out, but instead he rubbed his eyes nervously to see if his sight had not played him false, but no! there stood the white ghostly outline, perfectly motionless.

Now it isn't to be supposed that this citizen had any reason to believe he would see such mental pictures and the only way to free his mind was to go out and find the truth of the spectre picture.

As he closed his back door the white outline moved—threw up a very lively pair of heels and a piece of exquisite lawn in the bargain, and trotted off, to browse in other yards. It was nothing but a poor stray animal belonging to some neighbor. The citizen slept very soundly that night. Somehow a great weight had been lifted off his mind.

Chrysanthemum Show.

The new Horticultural hall in Boston will be opened this week with an exhibition of chrysanthemums, plants, flowers and vegetables, which will be held in the hall Thursday, Nov. 7, will be one of the most unique and brilliant affairs in the annals of the society. The vast building will be aglow with the golden flowers, while the exquisite roses, carnations, orchids, and other rare blossoms exhibited will be a scene of beauty rarely witnessed. The show will continue from Thursday noon until 10 p m Sunday, Nov. 10, and there will be music every afternoon and evening.

Shipbuilding.

The shipbuilding industry in the United States, exclusive of the navy yards, according to a preliminary report of the census bureau, had a total invested capital of $76,699,651 in 1900. This is an increase of 181 per cent. since 1890. The value of products, including custom work and repairing, was $73,444,753, an increase of almost 93 per cent. There were 1083 establishments and 46,121 wage earners, with total wages of $24,388,109. Miscellaneous expenses amounted to $3,582,257 and cost of materials used to $33,031,280.

Heavy Orders For Brick

Hartford, Nov. 5.—The brick manufacturing plants of the Connecticut district are having great difficulty in meeting the demands which are made upon them. The price of brick has recently advanced from $5 to $7 per thousand, and the indications are that a further increase will soon be made.

Killed by Fall From Church Roof

Chelsea, Mass., Nov. 5.—Edward Morse, a painter, fell from a church roof to the street pavement yesterday and his body was frightfully mangled. Morse was on the First Baptist church roof at the ridge pole and the snow guards failed to hold him. He was 50 years old.

To the Public.

Allow me to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I had a very severe cough and cold and feared I would get pneumonia, but after taking the second dose of this medicine I felt better, three bottles of it cured my cold, and the pains in my chest disappeared entirely. I am most respectfully yours for health, Ralph S Meyers, 64 Thirty-seventh street, Wheeling, W. Va. For sale by al druggists.

BRYANT LOVE FEAST.

Enthusiastic Rally of His Supporters at the Greenleaf.

The candidacy of Charles M. Bryant for Mayor received a boom in Ward One, Monday night, at a gathering at The Greenleaf of the Bryant delegates from Ward One and a number of the leading Bryant men from other wards. The party, some thirty in number, met in the hotel parlors where Mr. Bryant was given an informal reception. At 9.30 an adjournment was made to the dining rooms where Landlord Estabrook served a pleasing menu. Mr. Bryant occupied the seat at the head of the table, and during the dinner entrancing music was furnished by the Lord family.

After dinner there was an informal discussion of the situation, and an exchange of ideas. The meeting was very enthusiastic and the reports from the various sections of the city were so encouraging as to leave no doubt in the minds of those present that Mr. Bryant would secure the number of delegates necessary to secure him the nomination, after which his election was almost certain.

It was a kind of love feast and as the party was made up of men who have the reputation of getting out and working, it will not be their fault if they do not land Mr. Bryant.

Charles H. Johnson presided, and among those to make brief addresses were: Henry P. Kittredge Dr. Herbert S. Hayford, Henry French, Charles M. Jenness, Robert Johnson, Fred E. Goss, W. R. Lofgren, F. F. Green, Harry Matthews, Benjamin Johnson, Jr., Horace A. Feltis, Will Cannon, John Q. Cudworth, Arthur W. Ryder, William Field and J. S. Swingle.

The last speaker was Candidate Bryant who reviewed the situation and outlined the plan of campaign.

Wollaston Park Candidate.

Editor of Ledger:—In an item which appeared in the Patriot of last week you stated that J. Polk is the candidate of the Wollaston Park section of Ward V for the City Council. I would beg to say that Mr. Herbert J. Polk is the correct name. While Mr. Polk has been a resident of Wollaston for ten years, and a real estate owner for eight years, he probably is not very well known in other parts of the ward. Wollaston Park is entitled to one representative in the Council, and I think it is the desire of the voters of the other sections that they should have one, so I wish it be widely known that Mr. Polk's name will appear on the ballot at the caucus Wednesday night. As the candidate from that section, because of a written request of a sufficient number of representative citizens to convince him that there is a desire for his service. He is making no canvass himself, and has requested his friends not to do so. I trust that this may enable all who may see it to understand the situation.

Yours truly,
Ward Five.

—The umbrella and parasol were used by the eastern nations many years before the Christian era. The oldest chinaware shows pictures of ladies and mandarines shaded by parasols of patterns similiar to those now in use.

—A giant crustacean of unknown species, but which from its appearance must be the father of all lobsters from the beginning of time, was found in a scoopful of sand and stone at the excavation at the big Wachusett dam at Clinton, Saturday. It is 31 1-2 inches long, and no one in Clinton has ever seen any fresh water creature like it.

November Magazines.

The Woman's Home Companion for November opens with a Thanksgsving story by Mary E. Wilkins. Another New England story is "The Diplomacy of Grandma Gage," by Sophie Swett. An especially timely article is "Football Heroes," by Mrs. Walter Camp. The beginning of a series dealing with "Curious Marriage Customs" deals with marriage in Russia. Published by The Crowell & Kirkpatrick Co., Springfield, Ohio; sample copy free.

The initial number of Country Life, the new aspirant for popular favor is an elegant portrayal of what its name denotes. Among the contents is an article by the editor on Abandoned Farms, what they are and what may be done with them, with charming illustrations; an illustrated account of ex-Governor Levi P. Morton's place, Ellerslie; a two page collection of suggestive pictures of Pleasant Country Homes; the history of the frog from tadpole to froghood, with remarkable photographs by A. R. Gugmore made from life; articles on planting the lawn, the art of letting things grow, the newest fruits, and a vast amount of practical matter about the garden, the greenhouse, and even the window box, all of which is abundantly illustrated. Published by Doubleday, Page & Co., 34 Union square, New York.

"Last winter an infant child of mine had croup in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist, of Filley, Mo. "I gave her a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and in a short time all danger was past and the child recovered." This remedy not only cures croup but when given as soon as the first symptoms appear, will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

THE PASSING OF DOOLEY.

Death of Chicago Character Made Famous by Dunne.

James McGarry, who is known in Chicago as the original of Mr. Dooley, from whom Finley Peter Dunne gathered his inspiration for this famous character in humor and philosophy, died at the County hospital, says a Chicago dispatch.

He had been ill for several weeks from a complication of diseases and a general breakdown of the system. He was sixty-three years old. Hidden away in an old tin box at the home of his nephew was $28,000 in bonds, savings from the famous saloon on Dearborn street which McGarry kept for nearly thirty years.

In Chicago James McGarry was known as Jim. He antedated the big fire and had the history, habits, family connections and worldly possessions of all the old Chicagoans at the tip of his tongue. He was a publican of the sort that is passing away, a man who won money and friends by the power of his personality, who was proud to stand behind his own bar.

The saloon of James McGarry was not a gilded palace. It was quite dark, somewhat musty and far from spotless in its appointments, but owing to the inimitable wit of the proprietor it was a popular resort, particularly for newspaper men.

For a time the genial saloon keeper was highly flattered at the prominence given his opinions by young Mr. Dunne. He read the sketches and laughed at them. One day a crowd of writers in a spirit of fun got McGarry to believe that Dunne was holding him up to ridicule. The old man took it to heart, and so vigorously did he protest that the thinly veiled McGarry in the Dunne sketch was changed to Martin Dooley.

Dooley became famous, and McGarry grew old and declined in health. He retired from the saloon business some years ago and had since lived at a hotel. Of late he had been more or less of a recluse. The pressure of years had bent his good nature, and he spent much time in bitter thought.

Here's an old yarn related of McGarry when Pat Casey, now also dead, was tending bar for him:

A man went in for a drink, and after disposing of it he "extended the finger"—that is, required to have it charged.

"Is Murphy good for a drink?" called the bartender to McGarry, who was in the rear.

"Has he got it yit?" McGarry called back.

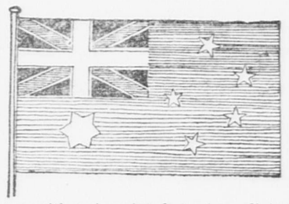

"He has," the bartender answered.

"He is," replied McGarry.

AUSTRALIA'S FLAG.

Selection Made From the Thirty Thousand Designs Submitted.

The judges appointed by the government of the Australian commonwealth have made their selection from the 30,000 designs submitted in the recent competition open to Australian artists and others. The flag decided upon has the union jack in the top left hand corner, with a six pointed star immediately beneath it, emblematic of the six federated states, while the other half of the flag is devoted to depicting the southern cross.

The government and official color is to be blue, while the mercantile marine of the new commonwealth will fly the flag with a red ground. The approved design was submitted by several competitors.

Drydock Traps Mackerel.

Everybody was eating mackerel the other day at the navy yard in Brooklyn, says the New York Sun. It was broiled, baked and fried, and there was so much of it left over that the air was reminiscent of Fulton market on Friday. Nobody paid for the feast. Uncle Sam flooded drydock No. 3 to float in the torpedo boat Bailey recently and the mackerel—thousands of them—tumbled in with the inrushing water. The dock was pumped out and the mackerel, a writhing, jumping, glistening mass, were discovered on the floor. Workmen and sailormen gathered in the fish by basketful and bucketful, and every officer and man on shipboard and off had a mess for many meals. The drydocks have caught fish before, notably shad, but never in so large a quantity as this time. One of the workmen said there must have been about 50,000 mackerel trapped.

Failed to Resent at the Time.

Because Frank Hendricks did not keep his promise to marry her Martha Dambrowski caused his arrest for kissing her several weeks ago in Chicago. "What do you accuse this man of having done to you?" asked Justice Doley of the young woman. "Why, he kissed me in the parlor of my home." "Did you object to it?" asked the court. "Oh, no!" came the quick reply. Hendricks was discharged.

Ancient Deed Filed.

A parchment deed 110 years old couched in quaint language and written with old style letter has been placed on file in the county clerk's office at Albany, N. Y. The deed bears date of Nov. 1, 1791, and conveys certain property in Rensselaerville to the trustees of the Reformed German church. The deed had, strangely, never been recorded, and it perfects the title to a valuable tract of land.

Union's Efforts Were Fruitless

Havana, Nov. 5.—The local union of cigarmakers attempted to prevent 40 Havana workmen from sailing for Tampa yesterday to take the place of strikers there. The police arrested 30 of the demonstrators and escorted the workmen to the steamer Florida, which left for Key West during the afternoon.

Remembered by Old Comrades

Washington, Nov. 5.—Adjutant General Corbin received a very beautiful gold lined silver punch bowl and silver stand for glasses yesterday from the officers of his old regiment, the 24th infantry, in which he served over 20 years ago. This regiment is now in the Philippines.

Washington Nov. 5.—A cable message from Governor Taft says that on account of the recent operation he has undergone he will be incapacitated for duty for about three weeks. The operation was successful and his convalescence is progressing satisfactorily.

Negroes Won't Be Discharged

Indianapolis, Nov. 5.—The striking coremakers at the National Malleable Casting company's plant in Haughville have not returned to work. The officers of the company say that they are firm in their determination not to discharge the colored employes.

No Notice of Recall

Washington, Nov. 5.—Wu Ting Fang has yet no notice from his government of its reported purpose to recall him to China. He was at the state department yesterday, but found the officials there without any confirmation of the report.

Book Brought $3500 at Auction

London, Nov. 5.—At an auction sale of a library here yesterday an original copy of Blake's "Songs of Innocence," and "Songs of Experience," was sold for $3500. It is understood hat it was purchased for an American.

Expulsion Order Cancelled

Berlin, Nov. 5.—The police order expelling from Prussia Joseph Herrings, the American newspaper correspondent, on the ground of an alleged evasion of military service 19 years ago, has been cancelled.

Gets Prize of 100,000 Francs

Paris, Nov. 5.—The committee of the Aero club yesterday proclaimed Santos-Dumont the winner of the prize of 100,000 francs offered by M. Deutsch for a dirigible balloon. The vote was preceded by a warm discussion.

British Lost the Two Guns

Pretoria, Nov. 5.—It is known that the Boers got away with the two guns captured from Colonel Benson's column in the recent engagement near Brakenlaagte, eastern Transvaal.

Takes Father's Old Title

London, Nov. 5.—It is announced that the Duke of Cornwall and York will shortly receive the title of Prince of Wales.

Jumped on a Ten Penny Nail.

The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake made of ten-penny nails, and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and a second one half way through. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes later the pain had disappeared and no more suffering was experienced. In three days the child was wearing her shoe as usual and with absolutely no discomfort. Mr. Powell is a well known merchant of Forkland, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and heals such injuries without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. For sale by all druggists.

NEW EVIDENCE BARRED

Two Witnesses Were to Testify In Schley's Behalf

ADMIRAL ON THE STAND

To Clear Up Ambiguous Points In His Evidence—Argument Stage Begins, Hanna Making Presentation of the Government's Case

Washington, Nov. 5.—The Schley court of inquiry reached the argument stage at the beginning of the afternoon session yesterday. The morning sitting was devoted to listening to Admiral Schley and Captain Sigsbee while they made corrections in their testimony which had been given previously, and the introduction by Judge Lemly of numerous documents bearing upon different phases of the inquiry.

Admiral Schley did not make any material additions to his previous statements, but devoted himself largely to the clearing up of ambiguous points in his evidence. An effort was made to introduce two new witnesses, who were expected to give testimony on Schley's behalf, as to what information Sigsbee communicated to Schley when he arrived off Santiago in May, 1898. One of these witnesses was Frank B. Richards and the other George Lynch, both of New York and both newspaper correspondents who were on duty in Cuba and in Cuban waters during the war with Spain. Mr. Lynch was on the press boat Somers N. Smith, and Mr. Richards on the Premier. They were to have testified concerning the meeting of these vessels with the St. Paul, of which Sigsbee was in command. The court, however, decided not to hear them.

The opening speech of the argument in the case was made on behalf of the government by E. P. Hana, assistant to the judge advocate. He began his presentation of the case a few minutes after the court convened at 2 o'clock, and when the court adjourned, two hours later, he had not covered more than half of the ground involved in the controversy.

Mr. Hanna referred to the fact that in May, 1898, the coast of the United States was menaced by the Spanish fleet. The seaboard cities were exposed to attack. Military operations were pending for the relief of Havana, but they could not be carried out while the whereabouts of the Spanish fleet was unknown. Mr. Hanna told of the arrival of the flying squadron at Key West and read a number of preliminary orders to Commodore Schley. Speaking of the run of the flying squadron from Key West to Cienfuegos, he asserted that the trip was not made as expeditiously as possible.

In taking up the question of the blockade at Cienfuegos Mr. Hanna said that Admiral Schley had testified that the vessels in the daytime tried a ruse to induce the enemy to come out. He called attention to the fact that this was not communicated to the captains of any of the vessels. He then read from the official documents to show that coaling was a practicability and that it was continuously going on at the time reports regarding its impracticability were made.

He then proceeded to follow the operations of the flying squadron and quoted a number of Admiral Schley's dispatches. He said that the time of leaving Cienfuegos was under order No. 8, telling him that if he was satisfied that the Spanish fleet was not at Cienfuegos to proceed with all despatch but cautiously to Santiago. "How it was possible," said the speaker, "in view of this order to report to the secretary of the navy, as Admiral Schley did, that he would not move until the next day, is inexplicable." He then stated that while Admiral Schley had reported that he would not leave until the 25th he did actually start on the eve of the 24th.

Mr. Hanna also quoted the order directing Commodore Schley to leave Cienfuegos before daylight of May 23, and said that as this order had directed that, if possible, the squadron should leave before daylight of that day, it should be constructed as a message of urgency. "Clearly," he said, "Commodore Schley was under urgent instructions to leave for Santiago; he did not do so, but he did not leave until the evening of the next day."

Respecting the order that the flying squadron on leaving Cienfuegos should mask its movements, Mr. Hanna said that this order was not carried out.

In concluding the subject of the first and second specifications, Mr. Hanna presented the following points covering these specifications, which, he said, he had made in the form of inquiries:

1—Why the flying squadron was dilatory in arriving at Cienfuegos.

2—Why the squadron was held there after the receipt of Sampson's order written and dated off Havana May 21, saying "Be at Santiago May 24."

3—Why nothing was done to communicate with the Cubans after the receipt of the McCalla memorandum 8:15, May 23; and particularly why the three light signals that had attracted general attention on board the fleet were not investigated after Commodore Schley learned that there were Cubans in the neighborhood where such signals were displayed.

4—Why order No. 6 directing that steps be taken to prevent the enemy from continuing work on certain new fortifications was not obeyed.

5—Why the order directing the masking of the movements of the fleet on leaving Cienfuegos was not obeyed.

6—The nature and causes of the current said to have accounted for the steaming of the ships off shore at night, while on blockade at Cienfuegos.

7—Why, after learning positively that the Spanish squadron was not there and accepting this report as conclusive, the commodore sent official letters and telegrams saying not that he would leave at once, but on the following day.

8—Why the commodore failed to report to any high authority that he actually did leave Cienfuegos on the eve of the 24th if as appears, he did so fail to report; and generally,

9—Why, irrespective of signals, orders or aids from any source, the commanding officer of the flying squadron did not, while at Cienfuegos, of his own motion and with resources under his command, do something to gain information of the Spanish fleet.

In taking up the third specification of the precept, concerning the cruise from Cienfuegos to Santiago. He admitted that the Eagle had delayed the progress of the squadron, but said this was not due to the weather, but to the water in her compartments. "As to whether the fighting ships should have been held back for the Eagle I do not express an opinion before this court," said Mr. Hanna, and then with this sentence he landed the squadron 25 miles south of Santiago, May 26, and then took up the retrograde movement.

He said that in making this movement Commodore Schley had not only taken away from Santiago the fighting ships of the flying squadron, but also the scout vessels located there by the government to watch the mouth of the harbor. "During this time," he said, "the gates of the harbor were left entirely unguarded, and it was not our fault that Cervera's fleet did not get away without being destroyed."

Mr. Hanna had not completed his argument when the court adjourned for the day.

STILL GREATER SACRIFICES

Likely to Be Asked of the Subjects of Great Britan

London, Nov. 5.—What is regarded as an important announcement preparing the people of Great Britain for new taxes and fresh loans was made last night by Chancellor of the Exchequer Hicks-Beach, in a speech at Bristol. After alluding to the "enormous increased ordinary expenditures" of the government, and reviewing the war taxes, and saying that the ever-increasing demand of the national exchequer gives reasons for careful thought and even anxiety for the future, he proceeded: "The cost of the war in South Africa is enormous. It still drags on. It may be, when next year comes, that I may have to ask the people of this country to bear even greater burdens and to make even greater sacrifices."

Real Danger Ahead

London, Nov. 5.—John Morley, M. P., speaking yesterday at Forfar, Scotland, asserted that the ordinary annual expenditures of the British government had increased £28,000,000 during the last 10 years, or, including the suspension of the sinking fund, £32,000,000. He declared that there was a real danger ahead of the country.

Exonerated For Killing Father

Chicago, Nov. 5.—Dan M. Hogan, known widely as a bookmaker and sporting man, was shot and killed by his son, Dan M. Hogan, Jr., in the family's country home at Wilmington, Ill. The immediate cause assigned for the shooting was abuse and brutality of the head of the household in striking his wife, it is alleged, until shot down by his son. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of "justifiable homicide." Hogan was 59 years old and left property vauled at upwards of $60,000.

From Cotton to Woolen Mills

Millbury, Mass., Nov. 5.—The Mayo Woolen company has bought the Wheeler Cotton mill and is fitting it up for making woolen goods. More than $25,000 will be expended and the new plant will give employment to 100 hands. The other mill of the company here, which is one of 15 owned and run by the firm, is running night and day with 125 hands at work.

Just a glimpse of a woman's face is often all that is needed to tell the story of her daily suffering. No woman can endure for long the pangs of womanly diseases without falling off in face and form.

Women who have been cured of womanly diseases by the use of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription, frequently refer with pleasure to the gain in appearance as well as in feelings, which has come with their cure.

"Favorite Prescription" cures irregularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence treated as sacredly private and confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"Your medicines have done me so much good I feel like a different woman," writes Mrs. Mary Murphy, of Milton, Trimble Co., Kentucky. "Six months ago I began to think I would not see another well day, but had made up my mind to follow your advice and give Dr. Pierce's medicines a thorough trial. I have taken six bottles of 'Favorite Prescription,' six of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' four vials of Dr. Pierce's Pellets, two bottles of 'Smart-Weed.' Also some 'Lotion Tablets.' Have gained five pounds since last August. I will tell the good news to all suffering invalids, for it was a 'Heavenly message' to me when I found out what to do for relief."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

A BLANKET OF FOG

Brought Business to a Standstill In the British Metropolis

London, Nov. 5.—A fog such as Great Britain had not experienced for years enveloped London and half of the United Kingdom yesterday, blockading shipping, deranging railways and throwing business into confusion.

So dense was it that a walk into the streets was an adventure. The fog descended upon the metropolis and the suburbs so thickly that between 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon the principal avenues of traffic resembled the steam room of a Turkish bath.

Hundreds of thousands of London's surburban residents vainly endeavored to grope their way to the railroad stations. The few who succeeded found the trains all stalled.

Around Trafalgar square and the houses of parliament scenes unparalleled for years were witnessed. Hundreds of omnibuses, cabs, carts and wagons formed an inextricable and immovable mass. The mounted police, in trying to clear away the jam, got lost themselves. Many vehicles were in collision. The drivers, not knowing where they were, stood at the heads of their horses patiently awaiting the lifting of the premature darkness.

Lanterns were at a premium. Newsboys transformed their papers into temporary torches. Highwaymen pursued their vocation. Casualities were frequent and even hardened Londoners freely expressed a dread of the continuation of such fogs which yesterday reached a climax.

Terrible Attempt at Suicide

St. Paul, Nov. 5.—Mrs. William Mayer piled newspapers into the bathtub at her home yesterday, saturated them with kerosene and lighted them. Then bending over the burning papers she remained in that position until the entire upper portion of her body was horribly burned. The smoke attracted attention and she was found lying on the floor unconscious. Later she regained consciousness and said she tried to kill herself because she was a burden to her family. It is believed she cannot recover.

Many Entries For Auto Contest

New York, Nov. 5.—The preliminary arrangements for the automobile race meet to be held Nov. 14 on the Coney Island boulevard are practically complete and indications point to a large entry list. Among the entries already made are: W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Henry Fournier, Louis Charley, Albert Champion, Thomas B. DeWitt, Kenneth A. Skinner, Foxhall P. Keene, C. J. Field and C. H. Tangeman.

Was Driven to Desperation

New York, Nov. 5.—Anthony J. Frank, who recently threw red pepper in the eyes of a jeweler and then tried to steal a tray of diamonds, was sentenced to five years in Sing Sing prison yesterday. It was shown that Frank, who had the support of a large family, was without work or money and that the crime was planned in desperation to secure money for medicine for a dying child.

Ready For Diamond's Trial

New York, Nov. 5.—All the preliminaries for the trial of Captain Diamond in Albany tomorrow, on the charge of neglect of duty, have been arranged. Captain Diamond was indicted for neglect of duty in that he had failed to close the alleged disorderly house of Lena Schmitt. Bissert, the ward man, was convicted of receiving a bribe from the Schmitt woman.

Chamberlain Rebuked

Berlin, Nov. 5.—The students of the University of Griefswald have sent to the other universities resolutions adopted by them in denunciation of the alleged offensive references to the conduct of the German troops in 1870 made by Mr. Chamberlain, the British colonial secretary. They ask the co-operation of the other universities in their rebuke.

Making Scientific Tests

St. Louis, Nov. 5.—The coroner's inquiry into the infection of anti-toxine serum with tetanus germs, which, it is alleged, caused the death of 10 children and the serious condition of others, was concluded yesterday. The verdict will be postponed until the three experts who are making bacteriological tests of the serum have made their report.

In Need of Coke

Pittsburg, Nov. 5.—Eighteen blast furnaces have or are about to close down for want of coke. The car and motive power shortage on the railroads is responsible for this condition. No relief is in sight and it is probable other furnaces will have to close, with the result that independent steel mills will be materially affected.

Alleged Stabber In Custody

Plymouth, Mass., Nov. 5.—John Moran, a laborer, is under arrest on the charge of assaulting Charles McLaughlin. McLaughlin was stabbed in the thigh, the wound being an exceedingly painful one. Both men are said to have been under the influence of liquor at the time of the assault.

Steamer Had No Doctor Aboard

St. Johns, Nov. 5.—Steamer Bruce burst a steampipe in Cabot strait and three men were seriously scalded. The steamer was delayed 12 hours in reaching her port in consequence of the accident. The injured men had no medical aid until the vessel arrived in port.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Wednesday, Nov. 6.
Sun rises—6:23; sets—4:32.
Moon rises—1:53 a. m.
High water—7:30 a. m.; 8 p. m.

The low temperature area has extended into the western upper lake region, the Appalachians and the East Gulf states. There will be rain probably in the greater portion of eastern New England. On the coast winds will be fresh and mostly west to north.

His First Business Venture.

An American capitalist who has made a fortune running far into the millions likes to tell a story of his first business venture and how he saddened the local grocer. At this time he was fond of frequenting a public salesroom near his home where all sorts of bargains were offered:

One day I noticed several boxes of soap of a certain brand which I had often been sent to buy at the corner grocery. I thought to myself, "That will go cheap," so I ran to the grocery and received a promise from the man in charge to buy as much of the soap at a certain figure as I could furnish. Of course he never suspected that I could furnish any of it.

I returned to the salesroom, and when the soap was put up I bid it in, and it was knocked down to me. My name was demanded, and when I gave it in a shrill voice everybody laughed, for I was then only eleven years of age.

Amused as they were at the sale, the bystanders were amazed when I bid in the whole lot of twenty-two boxes. I had them carried over to the grocery and received the price agreed upon. The grocer wore a weary look when he heard how I had obtained the soap. He said:

"Well, I guess I could have done that myself."

I replied that I guessed he could, too, but he hadn't.—Youth's Companion.

Man Who Named America.

Few Americans are aware of the fact that the name of their continent is due to a German scholar. In 1507 Martin Waldseemuller, also known as Hylacomylus, of St. Die, in the Vosges, edited a book called "Cosmographiæ Introductio," in which he gave a translation of Amerigo Vespucci's description of his voyages.

That was just the time when Amerigo's fame filled the world, while Columbus' disgrace overshadowed his merit, and evidently his name had never reached the quiet village in the Vosges when Amerigo trumpeted forth his own glory. So Hylacomylus proposed that, since the new continent was, after all, not a part of the Indies, no name would suit it better than that of his famous explorer, Amerigo.

The book was read far and wide, and so quickly was the proposition accepted that, when later on the true discoverer was known, the name was already rooted too deeply in general use to be abolished, and was even extended to the north part of the continent, while Hylacomylus had only meant it for the present South America.—National Geographic Magazine.

For Tired Eyes.

Eyes will be greatly strengthened by putting the face down into a glass or eyecup of water the first thing in the morning and opening them under water. This is somewhat difficult to do at first, but if the water for two or three days be tepid and gradually made colder by imperceptible degrees until it is no shock to put the face into quite cold water it will soon become quite easy and is very invigorating and refreshing.

If done regularly every day, this treatment alone will preserve the sight into quite old age. There is a right and wrong way of wiping the eyes after this, too, and the right way is to pass the soft towel very gently from the outer angle inward toward the nose.

If after a long day the eyes feel so hot and tired that they seem dim when one tries to read or to do a little necessary sewing for oneself, they should be bathed with cold tea from which the leaves have been removed.

It Jarred Him.

"Pleasant offices you have here," said a policy holder who visited a life insurance office in the Postal Telegraph building in New York to pay his premium. The windows overlook the City Hall park and the Nathan Hale statue.

"Yes," replied the insurance man, "but the inscription on that Hale statue, patriotic and inspiring though it is, strikes a discordant note in the soul of one who is underwriting risks on men's lives. Look at it—'My only regret is that I have but one life to give in defense of my country.'"—New York Times.

Dealing In Futures.

Mr. Newed—I have an option on that Blank avenue house. How would you like it for our home, my dear?

Mrs. Newed—Oh, it's a pretty place, but you know it is said to be haunted. Mamma says she wouldn't set her foot inside the door for any amount of money.

Mr. Newed—That settles it. I'll close the deal for it the first thing in the morning.—Chicago News.

Arab Music.

Arab music has been described as the singing of a prima donna who has ruptured her voice in trying to sing a duet with herself. Each note starts from somewhere between a sharp and a flat, but does not stop even there and splits up into four or more portions, of which no person can be expected to catch more than one at a time.

To Save Time.

Visitor—No, I won't come in. Could I see Mr. Jones for two minutes?

Servant—What name shall Oi say, sorr?

Visitor—Professor Vondersplinkentoofleheimer.

Servant—Och, sure ye'd better step in and bring it wid ye, sorr!—Punch.

Not Necessary.

"When you are at a loss for a suitable word, do you ever apply to your wife?"

"No," replied the writer; "I don't have to. Her entire vocabulary is coming my way most of the time."—Chicago Post.

Crane Returned by 70,408 Plurality

Republicans Make It "Twelve Straight" In Ohio

How Yesterday's Elections Resulted In the Other States

Boston, Nov. 6.—W. M. Crane of Dalton, Republican, was re-elected governor of Massachusetts for the third time by a plurality of 70,408 over Josiah Quincy, the Democratic candidate. The Republicans also elected their entire state ticket and will have the usual heavy majority in the legislature of 1902.

GOVERNOR CRANE.

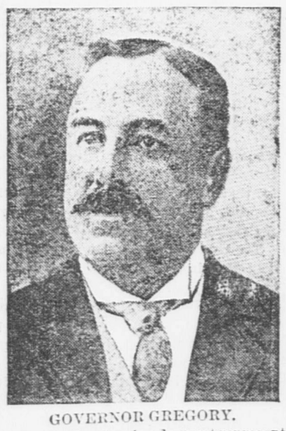

The total vote of the state ran over 300,000, the largest vote ever cast in the state in an off year. The legislature of 1902 will stand 199 Republicans, 79 Democrats and 2 Social Democrats on a joint vote of both houses. The Democrats made a gain in the house, but suffered a loss in the senate.

Much interest in the returns centered in this city, which went for Quincy by almost exactly 7700, a little more than the Republican estimate and a little less that the Democratic. The Democrats also elected all their candidates for offices in Suffolk county by much larger margins than that given Mr. Quincy.

The standing of the two branches of the legislature is as follows: Senate—32 Republicans, 8 Democrats. House—167 Republicans, 71 Democrats, 2 Social Democrats.

RHODE ISLAND

Providence, Nov. 6.—The Republican plurality for Governor Gregory and the state ticket promises to run well over 6000. This is a net loss of 2500 from last year, but the showing does not represent the true situation because of the light vote through the state. The general assembly will be strongly Republican.

OHIO

Columbus, O., Nov. 6.—The Republicans carried Ohio by an increased plurality on their state ticket and with an enlarged majority in the legislature. The result continues the Republicans in power of the state, making an epoch of 12 years in succession for that party in Ohio, and it insures the re-election of Senator Foraker.

The extent of the Republican success is attributed to the silver Democrats not voting, to the attitude of John R. McLean, Democratic candidate for governor two years ago, and Ohio members of the Democratic National committee; to the superior organization of the Republicans and other causes. The Republicans attribute the result largely to the popular desire not to disturb the prevailing prosperity in accordance with Senator Hanna's appeal to "let well enough alone;" to desire to support President Roosevelt in carrying out the policy of McKinley and to the endorsement of Governor Nash and Senator Foraker.

At Democratic state headquarters no official statements have been given out except the concession of the state to the Republicans. Chairman Dick of the Republican state headquarters said good night after issuing the following:

"Returns at midnight indicate the election of Governor Nash by 60,000 and upwards and the election of 22 to 25 of the 33 members of the senate and 70 to 85 of the 110 members of the house.

CONNECTICUT

New Haven, Nov. 6.—Connecticut chose delegates to the first constitutional convention to be held in the state since 1818. Of the towns thus far heard from Republican delegates were elected in 105; Democrats in 44, and Citizens or non-partican candidates in 16.

NEW JERSEY

Trenton, Nov. 6.—Late returns indicate that Frankin Murphy, Republican, has been elected governor by about 10,000 plurality. Partial returns from the different counties show that most of them gave about the same pluralities as were given three years ago, when Voorhees, Republican, was elected governor by 5499 plurality. One of the exceptions is Essex county, which gave Voorhees 4687, and is expected to be carried by Murphy by from 8000 to 10,000. Both branches of the legislature will be Republican.

NEBRASKA

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 6.—Indications are that Nebraska has reaffirmed her verdict of last year in favor of the Republicans. Figures show a Republican gain of four to the precinct over a year ago, when the average Republican majority was 3800. If these gains are sustained Sedgwick (Republican), for supreme court justice, will carry the state by from 6000 to 10,000. At Republican headquarters the claim is made of 10,000, but the indecisiveness of the figures are admitted.

MARYLAND

Baltimore, Nov. 6.—Returns show a tremendous falling off in the vote both in the city and the counties and indicate that the Democrats have been victorious in both city and state, although it is impossible to give any figures because of the meagre returns. Chairman Goldsborough of the Republican state central committee still claims to have elected his ticket and asserts that the Republicans will have a majority on joint ballot in the general assembly, while Chairman Van Diver of the Democratic committee makes a like claim for his party.

PENNSYLVANIA

Philadelphia, Nov. 6.—Returns this morning indicate the election of the Republican state ticket—Frank G. Harris for state treasurer and William P. Potter for supreme court judge—by from 60,000 to 70,000 plurality. The vote in favor of the proposed constitutional amendments in the interests of ballot reform is overwhelming.

IOWA

Des Moines, Nov. 6.—Returns are coming slowly from the state, but so far they indicate that the majority for Cummins will come up to the estimate. The ticket is a long one and it will take some time to complete the count. Thus far a gain of 10 percent is shown in the majority for the Republican ticket, but a 25 percent loss of the total vote. If this average of loss continues in the remaining precincts the total vote will fall fully 100,000.

VIRGINIA

Richmond, Nov. 6.—Although in the election the Democrats polled only about 75 percent of their vote, the result surpassed their most sanguine expectations. The negroes took little interest in the contest, and the indications now are that the Democratic majority for the state ticket will be more than 25,000.

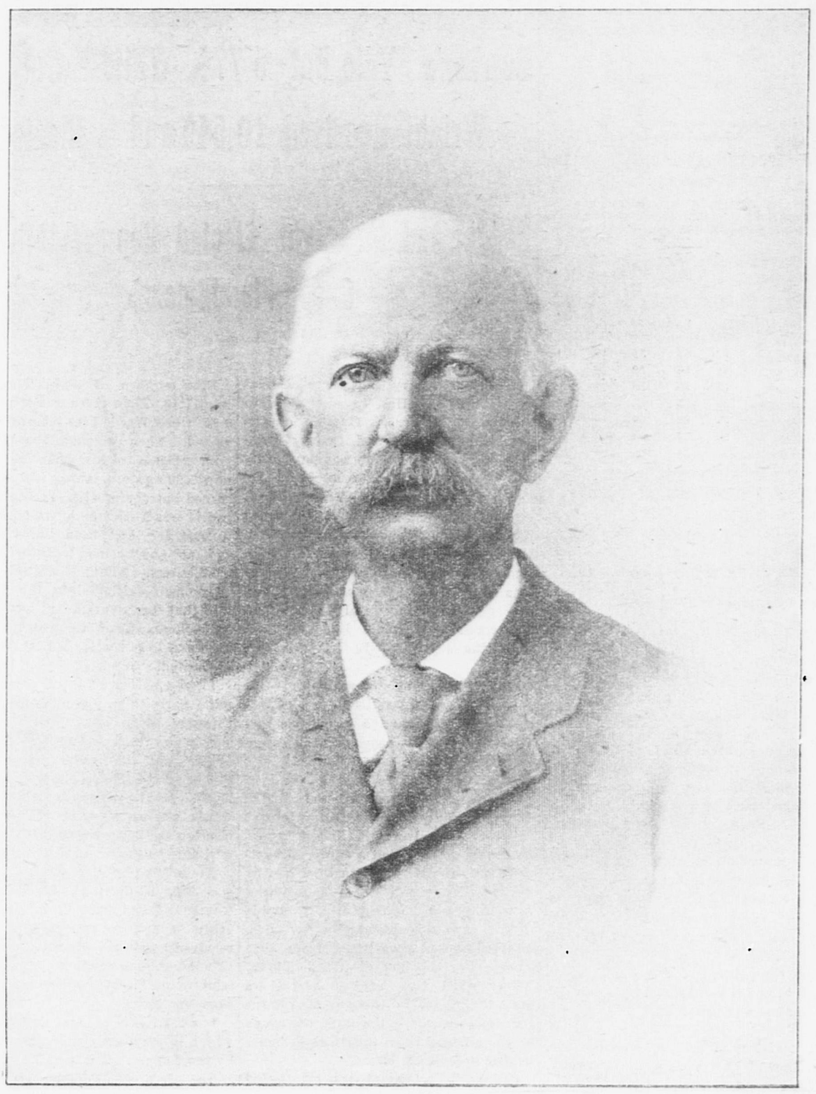

KENTUCKY

Louisville, Nov. 6.—The entire Democratic city and county tickets are elected. The returns from the state so far received show the Democrats have gained five members of the lower house and one member of the senate of the general assembly.

MISSISSIPPI

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 6.—As only the offices of state treasurer and secretary of state were to be filled, little interest was shown in the election in this state. Returns indicate that the temporary incumbents, George W. Carlisle and Joseph W. Powers, who are appointees of Governor Longino, have been elected state treasurer and secretary of state, respectively. All the candidates were Democrats.

Smyrna Falls If Turkey Falls

Paris, Nov. 6.—An official dispatch announces the arrival of Admiral Caillard's squadron yesterday at the island of Mitylene. The three principal ports were occupied. The government decided that Admiral Caillard should occupy a couple of ports on the Island of Mitylene, which is conveniently close to Smyrna. So, should the government's impression that the sultan will satisfactorily settle the monetary questions without delay prove unjustified, and the customs receipts at Mitylene not suffice to meet the French claims, Smyrna can yet be occupied.

Murderous Plot Discovered

Manila, Nov. 6.—A plot to massacre the American garrison at Moncad has been revealed by the wife of one of the conspirators. Several of the town officials are implicated in the scheme. The woman hid a detective beneath a house in which the leaders of the conspiracy were meeting. Arrests followed and many incriminating papers were seized. The plan was to set fire after dark to a house close to the barracks and, when the soldiers came out, 150 conspirators armed with bolos were to rush on the guard, capture their arms and proceed to massacre the garrison.

Withdrawal From National Body

Chicago, Nov. 6.—The directors of the Chicago Board of Trade by a unanimous vote last night decided to send no delegates to the annual convention of the National Board of Trade. The decision of the local board amounts to withdrawal from the national organization, and may result in the destruction of that body. The action of the board of directors was occasioned by the belief that the National Board of Trade had not accomplished any of the objects for which it was organized.

Chamberlain In Hot Water

Berlin, Nov. 6.—Popular resentment continues to spread regarding the recent reflections of Joseph Chamberlain upon the conduct of the German troops in the Franco-Prussian war. The Darmstadt veterans of 1870 have formally repudiated with the deepest indignation the aspersions cast upon the German army. A mass meeting held at Hamm adopted a similar resolution.

"Last winter an infant child of mine had croup in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist, of Filley, Mo. "I gave her a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and in a short time all danger was past and the child recovered." This remedy not only cures croup, but when given as soon as the first symptoms appear, will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

Andrew A. Meyer for Councilman.

Good Afternoon.

Congratulations to Commissioner Wright, and Senator Sprague, and Representatives Badger and McKnight.

The duty of the voters of Ward One is plain. Councilmen Bass, Faxon and Sherman have been among the best members of the City Council of 1901. All are entitled to a reelection.

There was not so much apathy over the election of Tuesday as many feared. The vote of 3,361 in Quincy was 200 larger than at the election of 1899, and has been exceeded only at the last two presidental elections. It was a newspaper campaign, free from oratory and hurrah, and the voter made his decision at his home untramelled.

The victory of Wright over Bowker, and Low of New York over Tammany, are examples of the fact that honest men can control the elections if they will realize their power. Both were contests for good government over corrupt government; politics were cast aside; and the people voted according to their conscience. The election of Mr. Wright was not only a rebuke to ex-Commissioner Bowker, but the Norfolk County Republican Committee which engineered his nomination, and a warning for the future.

The lesson is one which Quincy politicians can take home and profit by. The use of beer in elections; the coersion of voters, and the use of threats and trickery will not long be tolerated, and the verdict at the caucuses tonight may be along the same line, as that of yesterday at the polls.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ All things considered we have cause for thanks that mankind is no worse, considering the temptations.—Milwaukee Journal.

☞ There are different ways of throwing bouquets. An Omaha husband has sued for divorce because his wife threw flower pots toward his buttonholes.—Beverly Times.

☞ A contemporary has a correspondent who must be a woman for the item reads as follows: "A savage cow caused considerable excitement at Loring's corner Wednesday evening. He became alarmed and ran madly about the square." No male writer is guilty of calling a cow "he."—Old Colony Memorial.

☞ It is quite possible to make a denial when we are protesting all the while that we are strenuously maintaining the faith. There are two kinds of atheism, for example. One of these consists in an intellectual denial. The other is far more fearful, and consists in a practical denial. There are men who will say they believe in God the Father, and then live in such relations with their fellow-men as if there were no Father God at all. This is the awful heresy of practical atheism. True belief must color conduct and find expression in practical life. The creed must be incorporated in the deed, or it is a dead thing.—Zion's Herald.

CITY REPUBLICAN.

Nearly a Thousand Plurality for Governor Crane.

Bowker's Vote But 5,774, While Marshall P. Wright Received 10,549 and is Elected.

Badger and McKnight Elected Representatives by Good Pluralities.

It was not a very lively crowd that gathered at City Hall Tuesday night to receive the returns. Outside of the local Representative and County Commissioner contests there was practically no interest. The early unofficial returns from Wards One, Two and Four made things look a little dubious for Messrs. Badger and McKnight; then one precinct of Ward Three came in and brightened things up a little. It was then seen that if Wards Five and Six gave their usual Republican majorities there would be no question as to the election of Badger and McKnight.

Ward Five came in with its rousing majority and was followed by Ward Six which also gave a handsome Republican majority, especially for Representative Badger.

At this time there was a crowd of less than one hundred gathered in the City Clerk's office where the returns were being received.

The crowd was not a very enthusiastic one, and they dropped out one by one, so that at 10 o'clock there were but few people left in the hall, outside of the newspaper men and a few boys. Everything had been heard from then except Precinct one of Ward Three. This ward has always proved a stumbling block in the way of returns for it is invariably the case that one or the other of these precincts is hours behind everything else.

Quite a little interest was manifested in the vote of Mr. Wright for County Commissioner and now and then a telephone report would be received from Boston and elsewhere. These were very encouraging, and as town after town was reported to have given Wright a majority it was evident that the voters had given Mr. Bowker a vindication, but not in the manner he desired.

The first official returns to be received were from Precinct One of Ward One. These came in at 6.20. They were followed ten minutes later by both precincts of Ward Four. Both precincts of Ward Two came in at 6.45, and as the town clock was striking 7 the missing precinct from Ward One came in.

Precinct Two of Ward Three came in at 7.19. Then there was a wait until 8.22 when Ward Five returns were reported. Then came another wait of an hour when Ward Six came in. It was now 9.30 and everything had been returned but one precinct in Ward Three, and it was a tiresome wait for this. Not a thing had been heard from it, and no one seemed to know what the trouble was. About 10 o'clock a Ward Three man drifted into the hall and said that the counters had lost one vote somewhere. That they had searched high and low for it, but it could not be located.

There was some talk of organizing a relief party to go up and help out, but this was given up. The time went slowly and it seemed an age before the officer with the returns came in. A glance at the clock showed it to be 11.25. If the officers in some of the wards are as slow at the municipal election as they were at this the result will not be known until the next day.

The city's plurality for Gov. Crane was 980, while that for Lieutenant Governor Bates was 10 larger. Every other Republican except Mr. Bowker received handsome pluralities, and the two Republican candidates for the Legislature are elected by larger pluralities than last year.

The total vote of Quincy was 3,361, which is practically the vote estimated by the Ledger. The vote by precincts and wards was as follows:

Ward One, Precinct One,	407
Ward One, Precinct Two,	364
Ward Two, Precinct One,	183
Ward Two, Precinct Two,	278
Ward Three, Precinct One,	373
Ward Three, Precinct Two,	314
Ward Four, Precinct One,	321
Ward Four, Precinct Two,	299
Ward Five,	509
Ward Six,	413
Total	3,361

Election Straws.

Several of the ballot boxes did not work right at Tuesday's electon, and it might not be a bad idea for the city to throw away all of the old boxes and get those that are up to date.

The fight has been made and tonight will tell the story.

The total vote of Weymouth was 1695.

Bellingham and Wrentham were the only two towns in the county to give majorities to Bowker.

If it took the election offices in Ward Three Precinct One, from 4 o'clock to 11 to count 373 ballots, how long will it take them to count the vote at the municipal election?

The City Council Committee on Elections found out Tuesday night that it is not all fun being a Councilman.

Representatives Badger and McKnight if you please, and the Hon. Eugene H. Sprague

Marshall P. Wright must feel all right today.

Bowker wanted a vindication and he got it where the chicken caught the axe.

Boston, Lawrence and Holyoke were the only cities in Massachusetts which went Democratic

Only about 15 of the present Senators were reelected. "Gene" should be a prominent member of the Senate of 1902.

One new representative from Quincy each year will be a good plan to follow.

To the Public.

Allow me to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I had a very severe cough and cold and feared I would get pneumonia, but after taking the second dose of this medicine I felt better, three bottles of it cured my cold, and the pains in my chest disappeared entirely. I am most respectfully yours for health, Ralph S. Meyers, 64 Thirty-seventh street, Wheeling, W. Va. For sale by al druggists.

Owing to opening of another trench on the road to Houghs Neck, passengers on the cars to that section have another walk, and when they get to the end of of the trench they are transported in open cars the remainder of the distance. Open cars were all that the company had at that end of the line when the trench was opened, and they had no way of getting a box car across.

CAUCUSES TONIGHT.

Let Every Voter Do His Duty and Vote Right.

Republican caucuses to elect Mayoralty delegates and Ward Committees, and to nominate Councilmen will be held in all wards tonight. From present indications they will be the largest attended of any municipal caucuses yet held. The interest centers in the election of delegates.

Charles M. Bryant has filed lists in every ward and his supporters have been working night and day to carry the caucuses for him.

The friends of the other candidates have not been idle, and they will do their best to elect delegates favorable to their candidate. This means big cacuses, and it would not be surprising if the total vote tonight was over 2,000.

The only ward in which there is no contest is in Atlantic, and that list is for Mr. Bryant.

It is hard to tell just when the returns will be known but judging from the past, it will be midnight before some of the wards are heard from.

In Ward Five, the friends of Mr. Jameson and Mr. Bryant are equally confident of carrying the ward. The general impression is that whoever carries it will not have a great majority.

A New Fad.

The Lynn Item says: "Perhaps the Lynn Historical Society may conclude to establish a "century chest," a project which is now occupying the attention of the Peabody Historical society. The society of our neighboring town proposes to procure an iron chest and in it will be placed material of local interest, sketches, pictures, writings, a message to the people of 2002, directories and the like, and after the box has been sealed it is to be deposited in the Peabody Institute, to remain until June 14, 2002, when it is expected that it will be opened and the contents enjoyed by the people of that day. The resources of Lynn should permit of preparing a very interesting box of that description for future generations to ruminate."

November Magazines.

The making and dressing of dolls has always been a favorite occupation of womankind; no girl child, from the highest to the lowest rank, in life, has been able to do without the facination of "a baby of her own." All sorts and conditions of dolls, of ivory, wood, corn-husks and even the Soudanese doll, a veritable "rag, a bone and a hank of hair," are pictured in a lengthy article in the December Delineator that will be interesting to both the adult and child. In the same issue, in another place, are given a variety of styles for doll's wardrobes.

NEWS IN BRIEF

At a special town meeting at Bolton, Mass., the voters accepted $10,000 from the heirs of Captain Joseph Whitney, the money to be used for a library.

In a fire that destroyed the barn of F. E. Kimball at Newbury, Vt., 18 horses, 100 head of cattle and 40 hogs were burned. Three hundred tons of hay, a large lot of grain, several carriages and a great variety of farming tools were also burned. The loss exceeds $15,000.

Sick with pneumonia and despondent, James J. McCabe, 25 years old, of Woonsocket, R. I., ended his life with a bullet through the head.

THE GREAT VICTORY.

Marshall P. Wright Elected Commissioner.

And Nomination of Mr. Bowker Rebuked.

Only Two Small Towns "Vindicate" the Latter.

The majority for Marshall P. Wright of Quincy over Watts H. Bowker for County Commissioner to fill vacancy exceeds all expectations. While many were confident of overthrowing the Republican majority of 5000, no one anticipated that Mr. Wright would be elected by nearly 5000, but the figures are: Wright, 10,549; Bowker, 5,774. At the same time Governor Crane received 11,233 votes and Mr. Quincy 6,230.

Brookline, home town of Mr. Bowker which went 960 Republican, cast a plurality of 519 against the Brookline candidate, while Quincy the home town of Mr. Wright, also Republican by a 1000, gave a plurality of 1414 against Mr. Bowker.

But it was not Brookline and Quincy alone which defeated Mr. Bowker, for with the exception of two small towns, every city and town in the county was against him.

Jumped on a Ten Penny Nail.

The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake made of ten-penny nails, and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and a second one half way through. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes later the pain had disappeared and no more suffering was experienced. In three days the child was wearing her shoe as usual and with absolutely no discomfort. Mr. Powell is a well known merchant of Forkland, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and heals such injuries without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. For sale by all druggists.

SENATOR SPRAGUE

Re-elected by Plurality of 2,621 Votes.

Nearly Equal to Presidential Year.

Randolph the Only Town to Favor Mr. King.

Senator Sprague was handsomely endorsed in the district, where he received 5,268 votes to 2,647 for the Democratic candidate, Mr. King, 842 for the Social Democrat, Mr. Packard and 169 for the Prohibitionist, Mr. Wildes.

The Republican plurality was 2,621, which is within 300 of the plurality in Presidential election of last year. Every city and town except Randolph gave Senator Sprague a plurality and his own city led with 907.

Mr. Packard, of Quincy, the Social Democrat, polled a good sized vote, but "Mr. Blank" probably received more.

The full vote for Senator in the district:

A Lost Vote.

Marshall P. Wright lost one vote in Quincy Tuesday in the person of Dr. Everett. When the Assessors made their rounds last May Dr. Everett was residing temporarily on Revere road, as his residence on Miller Stile road was undergoing repairs. When he visited the polls on Tuesday he found that his residence was given as Revere road and he left the polling place, declaring that he had lost his vote.

He then visited the registrars who were in session and made his complaint to them. They explained to him that the assessors had found him on Revere road and had so made their return. The registrars offered to have the matter changed and told him he could vote just the same, but he would not have it, and declared that Mr. Wright had lost a vote.

Then he found out that the assessors had given his occupation as "Professor" and his anger knew no bounds. He declared that he was no professor, nor bootblack, but simply a teacher, and with this parting shot he left the hall.

WAS NOT DISOBEDIENT

But Schley Might Have Shown Bad Judgment

SAMPSON SAW THE COLON

While She Lay For Over Four Hours Without a Gun Being Fired at Her—Argument of Captain Parker in Behalf of Admiral Schley

Washington, Nov. 6.—The time of the Schley court of inquiry yesterday was entirely devoted to hearing arguments in the case of Admiral Schley. Mr. Hanna finished his argument on behalf of the department which had been begun Monday and Captain James Parker began, but did not conclude, his presentation of the case for Admiral Schley.

Mr. Hanna considered the retrograde movement, the bombardment of the Colon and the charge made against Admiral Schley of disobedience of orders. Captain Parker had only reached the coaling question when the court adjourned. He defended the conduct of his client at all stages of the campaign so far as he went. It is expected that Captain Parker will conclude his speech today, when Mr. Rayner will begin.

Referring to the cruise from Cienfuegos, Captain Parker referred to the sending away of the Eagle. He said that Commodore Schley had not sent that vessel away from choice, but because of his great need for auxiliary cruisers.

Captain Parker referred to the dispatch from the department received by the Harvard at Mole St. Nicholas, May 20: "Proceed at once and inform Schley and senior officer present off Santiago de Cuba" he read from the dispatch. Quoting further from the dispatch Captain Parker read: "The department's information indicates that the Spanish division is still at Santiago."

"Is there anything positive about that?" he asked. "If the department had chosen to say that the Spanish squadron 'is at Santiago' that would have been another thing, but it did not say that. There were still some doubts apparent in the mind of the department on that subject."

Referring at this point to the testimony of Captain Sigsbee, Captain Parker said it was not necessary to impeach anybody's veracity, "but slippery memory after all these years is a very unsafe thing to go by," he continued, "and the memory of four or five persons as to what Sigsbee said is better than that of Sigsbee. I think the court can be sure that Captain Sigsbee did not say to Commodore Schley, when he came aboard the Brooklyn, that 'the Dons are not there.'"

Again quoting from the dispatch, Captain Parker read "The department looks to you to ascertain facts."

"Didn't the commodore ascertain facts?" he asked.

"And that the enemy therein does not leave with out decisive action," he continued reading.

"Well, was there not decisive action?" he asked.

"The poor old Spanish admiral had his flags flying gaily at his mast heads on that Sunday morning and before 1 o'clock of that day he saw his ships on the beach, burning, blowing up and all destroyed. He came on board the American ship without shoes for his feet, or hat for his head, and a pair of drawers and an undershirt. Decisive action? Was there anything that was more decisive than that?"

"There is no doubt," he went on, "from one end to the other, there is nothing positive about it. Then follow injunctions about coal, but they cut no ice whatever. No doubt the commodore could have gone somewhere for coal, but I do not believe it was ever contemplated that he should have gone off 125 miles for it. So there is nothing positive or mandatory in the Harvard dispatch."

Then he took up Commodore Schley's dispatch, forwarded by the Harvard, and defended the position taken by the commodore in this message. He then referred to the sentence in which the commodore informed the department that he had been unable to obey orders, "earnestly as all have striven."

"If a subordinate informs us that he is unable to obey orders, we do not charge him with disobedience. We may censure him for bad judgment," he continued, "but for nothing more serious. Failure under such circumstances is not always disobedience. We can all look back and see how we could have done differently. Now, I say that Commodore Schley never had any orders. It was merely a suggesstion as to what he should do. He was to find out if that squadron was there and to see that it did not leave without a decisive action. Even if true that the commodore committed gross errors of judgment, which I do not admit, he had no motive but to do his whole duty as from the beginning he had always done it—no more, no less."

Concluding his remarks for the day, Captain Parker said: "That brings us to a discussion of the so-called reconnaissance, which I think can be summed up in a very few words. We have had the information of all the gentlemen who were clothed with the responsibility in the case that they could, and they would, etc. Well, perhaps they would, undoubtedly they could have gone in the whole of them and risked the ships and been called fools for their pains. They might have come out successful, they might have done something to the Colon which was not done; they might have sunk her. I do not think that is in the least probable

"There is one little incident about the matter. We are permitted to go up to the first of June, and we see by the log of the Colon that she was there until 10:35. At 7 o'clock in the morning Commander-in-Chief Sampson came there and the Colon was pointed out to him, and there she lay for four hours and a half without a gun being fired at her. I am not faulting anybody for this.

"The exercise of the slightest judgment"—the speaker said, when the clock struck 4. "Time's up," said Admiral Dewey, and without giving the captain an opportunity to conclude the sentence the court adjourned.

KITCHENER "FALSEHOODS"

Call Forth a Counter Proclamation From Boer Commander

Paris, Nov. 6.—The text of General Botha's counter-proclamation to Lord Kitchener's recent proclamation has reached here. It was issued on Sept. 15. It declares:

"Whereas, no official of the Orange Free State or the Transvaal republic, and no general, commandant or burgher, intends to obey Lord Kitchener's proclamation or to trouble with it; and,

"Whereas, the proclamation contains falsehoods habitual to the English; and,

"Whereas, Lord Kitchener's proclamation has strengthened the determination of all burghers to resist to the end; now,

"Therefore, I, Louis Botha, commandant-general of the republican forces, with the consent of the governments, officers and burghers of both republics, proclaim Lord Kitchener, his staff and the officers and soldiers serving under his orders fighting us now to be outlaws in South Africa, and all officers and burghers in the two republics and in Cape Colony are ordered to shoot every armed Englishman whom they meet."

MISS STONE IS WELL

Brigand Are Still In Communication With Consul Dickinson

Sofia, Nov. 6.—United States Consul General Dickinson of Constantinople returned here from Samakov yesterday. He authorizes the statement that he is satisfied that both Miss Stone and her companion, Mme. Tsilka, are alive and well treated. Mr. Dickinson's return is not due to any interruption in the exchange of communications with the brigands, which are still going on.

It has been ascertained that the band intended to kidnap a missionary at Salonika at the same time as Miss Stone, but the design failed.

Ten days before Miss Stone was abducted brigands fired five shots at a gendarme near Rasalog and the local authorities, knowing that there were bandits in the neighborhood, should have supplied an escort.

It is stated here that the brigands will not abate the ransom originally demanded. In Macedonian circles it is maintained that Miss Stone will be murdered on that territory in order to remove all traces of the original Macedonian instigators of the capture.

Columbia's Deal With Chili

London, Nov. 6.—It is reported that Columbia has signed a secret treaty with Chili, undertaking to support Chili at the Pan-American congress in Mexico city, says the Buenos Ayres correspondent to The Times, providing to supply Colombia with munitions of war against Venezuela. It is stated that Chili had previously offered warships to Ecuador.

Dropped at Post of Duty

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 6.—Alexander Thompson, an engine driver, is at his home unconscious from a stroke of apoplexy. The fireman had no idea of any trouble until the train ran past Elmira Heights station, when he turned to find the engine driver dropping forward in his seat, with his whole right side paralyzed.

FOR CHILDREN

Nothing, that comes in a bottle, is more important for children than Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil. And "important" means that it keeps them in even health, on the highest plane of physical life.

"Do they live on it then?"

No; they don't touch it, except when they need it.

"When do they need it?"

Whenever they show, in whatever way, the least disturbance of even balance of health. It is not for acute diseases, with some exceptions; it is for a slight falling off from first-rate condition.

It is to be used as a food, whenever their usual food does not quite answer the purpose of food.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

TAMMANY'S WATERLOO

Fusion Ticket Triumphant In Greater New York

LOW IS ELECTED MAYOR

Justice Jerome, Prominent Leader In Anti-Vice Crusade, Will Be District Attorney—Van Wyck Loses Fight For Supreme Court Judgeship

New York, Nov. 6.—Seth Low, ex-president of Columbia university and four years ago the Citizen's Union candidate for the first mayor of Greater New York, was yesterday elected the second mayor of Greater New York on a Fusion ticket, by a plurality ranging anywhere from 30,000 to 40,000, defeating Edward M. Shepard of Brooklyn, the Democratic nominee. The campaign was an exciting one and the vote, though somewhat less than the presidential election a year ago, was the largest ever polled in a municipal contest in this country.

SETH LOW.

In addition to the canvass for mayor public interests largely centered in the nomination by the Fusionists of William T. Jerome for district attorney and Mayor Robert Van Wick by the Democrats for justice of the supreme court. Both the offices were voted for only in the territory contained in New York county. Returns indicate that Jerome has been elected by a comfortable plurality, and that Mayor Van Wyck has been defeated, running behind his ticket from 15,000 to 20,000.

Returns also indicate the triumph of the rest of the Greater New York Fusion ticket, besides Mr. Low.

The result of the election of borough presidents, unless modified by the official figures, will give the Fusionists complete control of the taxing machinery of the city as well as of the various boards concerned in the appropriation and distribution of the public funds.

For justices of the supreme court, Morgan J. O'Brien, Samuel Greenbaum, John Proctor Clark and James A. Blanchard, the Fusionist candidates, were all elected, defeating Robert A. Van Wyck, Charles W. Dayton and Charles H. Knox. Justice O'Brien was nominated upon both tickets. Mayor Van Wyck ran heavily behind his associates on the judicial and county ticket.

Seth Low said, at his home where he was receiving election returns: "It bears out what my friends have anticipated and I am very much gratified by the result. This is a pleasant outcome of a hard struggle. I appreciate heartily the splendid support the newspapers have given this movement. I think they have been a splendid and important factor in bringing about the result."

Richard Croker, at 8:45 o'clock last night, conceded the election of Low. He said he was much disappointed at the Brooklyn vote, as he had expected Mr. Shepard to make a good showing there, it being his home borough.

As to the causes for the defeat of the Democratic ticket, Mr. Croker said he was inclined to ascribe it to the large silent vote, and the fact that the people sometimes feel that they want a change.

Mr. Croker, later commenting on Mr. Shepard's defeat, said he could not ascribe it to any one issue. "The people wanted a change," said he, "and the organization bows to the will of the people. Tammany hall has been in power for practically 17 years, and if any one party were to remain in control for too long a period the tendency would be toward a perpetuation of power until the result would resemble a monarchy. Tammany has always profited by defeat and I hope will do so this time."

Edward M. Shepard made public acknowledgement of his defeat at police headquarters in Brooklyn. He sent a telegram of congratulation to Mr. Low and dictated a statement to the reporters in which he expressed his hope that the incoming administration would be a successful one.

Mr. Croker, Maurice Untermeyer and Senator T. D. Sullivan were together at dinner last night and a little later Mr. Croker said this was his last political fight. Mr. Croker asked Senator Sullivan who he desired as leader. Senator Sullivan answered that John F. Carroll would be pleasing to him. Then and there Richard Croker abdicated his leadership of Tammany hall and hurried it over to John F. Carroll.

Returns from the various sections of New York state show that the Republicans will retain control of the lower house of the state legislature, the number of Republicans and Democratic assemblymen not differing materially from the figures of preceding years.

MURDERED FOR MONEY

Theory of Detectives at Work on the Abele Case

Newburyport, Mass., Nov. 6.—By gathering together threads of circumstantial evidence, State Detectives Hammond and Neal have now reached the conclusion that John J. Abele was murdered at a distance from Plum Island and that the body was carried to the island and placed upon the beach solely for purposes of concealment. All other theories have been adandoned, and the detectives, with the brothers of the dead man, are now trying to locate the murder house.

This task of finding where Abele lived and where he was killed is no easy matter; for the man's life was as strange and uncanny as the mystery of his murder. At 9 years of age Abele was sick in bed to death, and finally, when the doctor said he would live, it was found that in illness the boy had totally lost the sense of hearing.

When this misfortune came upon young Abele, the parents were poor and unable to send the little deaf boy to a school where he might learn to converse by the lip reading or sign language. In consequence he grew up in a little world by himself, unable to communicate easily with anyone.

Now that the man has been murdered, all these little circumstances are considered of great value by the detectives. Anyone who has seen Abele since October ought to remember it, for the man, when compelled to carry on any conversation with a stranger, produced a slip of paper and asked to have the questions written upon it. Abele could talk in both English and German, but with some difficulty, as is the case of most entirely deaf persons.

Everything so far learned points to the conclusion that this deaf man was murdered for his money. Abele was 42 years old. He worked steadily for 15 years, practicing the most severe thrift all the time. His brothers knew that he had 15 bankbooks, indicating that his money was in that many banks.

Many Public Bequests

Nashua, N. H., Nov. 6.—The will of Mrs. Emeline Balch of Manchester as filed in the probate office here contains public bequests as follows: To the Manchester Institute of Art and Science Mrs. Balch leaves her magnificent residence in Manchester, containing many vaulable pieces of furniture, paintings, silverware, etc.; Franklin Street Congregational church of Manchester, $2000; Bates college at Waterville, $5000; Manchester Children's home, $2000; North Street Free Baptist society of Bath, Me., $5000; New Hampshire Orphans' home at Franklin, $2000; Elliott hospital at Manchester, $3000; Women's Christian Temperance Union Mercy home at Manchester, $1000.

A Ten Percent Reduction

Fall River, Nov. 6.—Notices were posted yesterday in the four cotton mills of the Fall River Iron works, controlled by M. C. D. Borden, announcing that on Nov. 18 a 10 percent reduction in wages would go into effect. The reduction will place the wage scale at the Iron works where it was before the advance of 5 percent, made this fall, and bring it back to the level of that paid by the mills in the Fall River Cotton Manufacturers' association.

Loss of Over $200,000

Portland, Me., Nov. 6—The loss by yesterday's fire will be considerably more than $200,000. The Milliken-Tomlins company's loss alone will foot up to about $160,000. The company carried an insurance that will come to within about $10,000 of the loss. The building was owned by James P. Baxter and William G. Davis, and was valued at $30,000; it was insured for $20,000.

Thought to Be a Robber

Wiscasset, Me., Nov. 6.—Deputy Sheriff Ware yesterday arrested a young man who arrived in town from the north on suspicion of being implicated in the robbery of the postoffice at China. The man refused to give his name. He was turned over to the Kennebec authorities.

His Life Crushed Out

Athol, Mass., Nov. 6.—Crushed beneath a rock weighing over two tons, Joseph Gilbert, 50 years old, was instantly killed while working on the foundation of a new factory. The rock slipped from the banking and fell on him. He leaves a wife and six children.

Dynamite Brought Into Use

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 6.—A car on the Scranton Railroad company, while going from this city to Carbondale yesterday, was dynamited and hurled crosswise of the tracks. The windows and the front platform were shattered. The motorman, a non-union man, was hurled into the street and severely bruised. This is the first outrage of the kind in connection with the strike of the company's employes.

Smallpox In Girls' College

Philadelphia, Nov. 6.—A case of smallpox has been discovered at Bryn Mawr college, which is attended by 500 girls, many of them daughters of Philadelphia and New York millionaires. James McChrystal, a laborer employed at the college, was stricken with the disease and was taken to the Bryn Mawr hospital. Dr. Gerhard, the chief physician, ordered the hospital quarantined. Sixteen patients are there.

Klondike Riches

Vancouver, Nov. 6.—A new Klondike find has been reported on Conglomerate creek, a tributary of Montana creek, according to news brought here by the steamer Amur. The price of claims jumped from $100 to $5000 in a few days.

Kaiser Praises Good Work

Berlin, Nov. 6.—Emperor William has issued an army order expressing the warmest appreciation of the work of the troops in China who had "added fresh laurels to the ancient glory of the German arms."

TAMMANY'S DOWNFALL

Brings Congratulations From European Press

OHIO'S LATEST RETURNS

Show That Republican Plurality Beats All Records For an Off Year —Revised Figures From Other Sections of the Country

London, Nov. 7.—This morning's papers vie with yesterday evening's journals in expressions of rejoicing over the defeat of Tammany hall, in the achievement of which Mr. Roosevelt's strong influence is regarded as the mainspring.

"President Roosevelt could have wished for no brighter omen for his term of office," says The Daily Telegraph. Upon this occasion the fusionists have attacked without gloves, and Tammany has received what will probably prove the most decisive defeat in its history. The reformers must now show that they have learned from former failures to crush corruption without attempting to inaugurate the millenium of methods irksome to average human nature."

The Times says: "President Roosevelt's congratulations to Mr. Low accurately describe the situation. The battle has been fought between the forces of decency, belonging to all parties, arrayed against the most corrupt, brutal and demoralizing organization that can be found in the civilized world, with, perhaps, the exception of the Mafia and the Camorra.

The Daily Mail says: "Tammany will probably rise again, but this is the end of the reign of Croker. New York is well rid of him; but it is impossible not to feel a little pang of regret as he sinks, silent and majestic, below the horizon."

"Such a magnificent victory for the cause of purity and municipal government," says The Daily News, "will send a thrill of encouragement through all who retain an invincible belief in Democracy. Let us hope that the nightmare has now ended once for all. Mr. Low has a task that will call for every resource of practical ability. His one hope is that Mr. Roosevelt is behind him."

The Standard says: "Tammany has been badly repulsed, but it is not yet conquered. The reformers will have to work more cheaply and better than Tammany in order to secure the victory they have won."

Similar views are expressed by other papers in England and Germany.

The Ohio Situation

Columbus O., Nov. 7.—With almost complete returns in it is noted that the Republican plurality beats all records in what is known as the quadrennial "off-year," and, with two exceptions, the records of other years. In the "off years," or those following a presidential election the Democrats have carried Ohio, the exceptions being in 1881 after the death of Garfield, and in 1885 and 1893, after the Cleveland elections. In two of these three exceptional years, the president was a Democrat and those were considered "off years" for the Democrats. With the single exception of Hoadley in 1893, the Democrats never elected a governor of Ohio in any other than "off years," since the Republican party originated, and then they won on a local issue of liquor taxation.

The state was carried on national issues involved in the support of President Roosevelt and the endorsement of Senator Foraker for re-election. In interviews, Senator Hanna, Governor Nash and Chairman Dick of the Republican side, and Colonel Kilbourne, Chairman Daughtery and Secretary Gilliam, on the Democratic side agree that the result was due to trend of sentiment on national affairs, and none of these six leaders or others interviews on the result refer to the silver question as a factor in the figures.

Nebraska Count Not Finished

Lincoln, Neb. Nov. 7.—Nearly complete returns increase the pluralities for the Republican state ticket in Nebraska. If the ratio of gain shall be maintained Sedgwick, Republican candidate for supreme judge, will have a plurality of 12,000.

Pennsylvania's Vote

Philadelphia, Nov. 7.—Practically complete returns from the state give Harris, (Republican) for state treasurer 52,360 plurality, and Potter (Republican) for supreme court judge 47,939 plurality.

Republicans In Control

Baltimore, Nov. 7.—Returns, partly official and partly estimated, indicate that the Republicans will be able to organize the house of delegates.

GENERAL CORBIN WEDS

One of Washington's Society Favorites Becomes His Bride

Washington, Nov. 7.—Major General Henry C. Corbin, adjutant general of the army, and Miss Agnes Patten, were married at noon yesterday at the Patten residence in this city, in the presence of a notable assemblage, which included President and Mrs. Roosevelt and representatives of official, diplomatic and resident society.

Cardinal Gibbons performed the ceremony, assisted by Rev. Dr. Stafford of St. Patrick's church. A wedding breakfast followed.

General Corbin and his bride left in the afternoon for New York, where today they will attend the marriage of Colonel George R. Dyer and Miss Grace Scott, before continuing on their honeymoon trip to Montreal. Upon their return they will reside at the Arlington hotel here until their future home in the west end of the city is completed.

The wedding presents filled several large rooms, their number running into the hundreds. They included laces, fans, antiques in gold, silver and porcelain, as well as jewelry, of which there was a dazzling collection.

Government Wants Its Money

Chicago, Nov. 7.—Oberlin M. Carter, now a convict in the government prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kas., is to have a rehearing of his case before a civil tribunal. All the evidence is to be reviewed before Judge Kohlsaat in the United States circuit court in this city. This is the result of the suits brought by the government for the purpose of recovering the proceeds of $722,582, which, it was proved, Carter had embezzled from the United States. His uncle, L. D. Carter, and his brother, I. S. Carter, were said to have reinvested this money and secreted it for the purpose of having a fortune ready for the former army officer upon his release from the military prison.

Filipinos Are Poor Workmen

Tacoma, Wash., Nov. 7.—George H. Allen, general manager of the Hong Kong and New York Furniture company, declares that the Filipinos are the worst specimens of workmen he ever saw. He found them lazy, unwilling to learn and without ambition to do anything more than exist and fight game cocks. He believes the Philippines are superior to the adjacent islands of Java and Sumatra in their wealth of mahogany, teak and other woods capable of taking a high polish, but the factory of the company will be built at Hong Kong instead of Manila because of the laziness of native workmen.

Celebration Over Floating Dock

New Orleans, Nov. 7.—The New Orleans floating dock was received here yesterday with an extraordinary outpouring of people and elaborate ceremonies, in which federal, state and city officials and members of congress participated. The ceremonies lasted well into the night, concluding with an elaborate land parade in Algiers and display of fireworks.

Congressmen Held Up

Washington, Nov. 7.—A dispatch from Manila confirms the news that the transport Warren is disabled. The Hancock, which has just arrived at Manila, has been dispatched to Kobe, Japan, where the Warren now is, to bring the Warren's passengers to San Francisco. The congressional party which has been visiting the Philippines were among the Warren's passengers.

Thirteen Deaths From Lockjaw

St. Louis, Nov. 7.—The 13th fatal case of lockjaw, resulting from the injection of anti-toxine for the treatment of diphtheria, was reported yesterday. Charles Oytron, 11 years old, was the victim. His death occurred several days ago, but was not reported at the time.

Release Near at Hand

Constantinople, Nov. 7.—The officials of the United States legation here have received news, through Salonica, that indicates the early release of the captives in the hands of the brigands. On Oct. 29 Miss Stone and Mme. Tsilka were both well.

A storm of considerable energy is central over southeastern Minnesota and is moving southeast. There has been practically no precipitation other than that mentioned above. The weather will be generally fair in New England. On the coast fresh northerly winds will become variable.

Can't See a Rebuke

New York, Nov. 7.—Maurice B. Blumenthal, chairman of the Tammany hall committee of speakers, sent a letter yesterday to each of the 625 speakers employed by Tammany during the campaign. He said that "the verdict of the people was nothing more than a warning to the Democracy of the metropolis, not a rebuke."

New Trunk Line Proposed

Parkersburg, W. Va., Nov. 7.—Senator Elkins, together with the Gould interests, is working, it is stated here, on a plan for a trunk line to run from the great lakes to the seaboard through the West Virginia coal fields.

Germany's Big Debt

Berlin, Nov. 7.—The German imperial deficit has heretofore been estimated at 100,000,000 marks. It is now asserted that the budget will assume a deficit of 140,000,000 marks.

LI HUNG CHANG DEAD

Famous Diplomat Passed Away at Pekin

DISEASE OF THE STOMACH

For Which the Aged Statesman Refused to Be Treated According to Western Methods Was the Cause of Death—Chinese Officials Uneasy

Pekin, Nov. 7.—Li Hung Chang died at 11 o'clock this morning. The cause of death was disease of the stomach. He was 79 years old.

Early yesterday a hope of further prolonging the life of Earl Li was abandoned, though the aged chief showed wonderful vitality, again and again surprising the doctors by his rallies. As evening came on, however, he grew weaker and the burial clothes were put on.

Earl Li's persistent refusals to refrain from attending to government business aggravated his malady, while the refusal of the family to permit certain measures customary in western medical practice for relieving the stomach has contributed to bring his end near.

LI HUNG CHANG.

Then the courtyard of his residence began to fill up with life-size paper horses and chairs with coolie bearers, which his friends are sending, in accordance with Chinese custom, to be buried in order to carry his soul to Heaven.

The Chinese officials are somewhat uneasy concerning the effect of his death will have on the populace, and, to guard against a possible anti-foreign demonstration, the Chinese generals have disposed their troops around the city in such a way as to command the situation. Trouble, however, is improbable.

Earl Li has been the most progressive man in China, and has looked with kindly eye on the civilization of the west. Whether his successor will do the same is a question of much importance.

"Rainy Daisy" Skirts the Best

New York, Nov. 7.—Health Commissioner Henry Meigs of Bayonne, N. J., finds that he has brought fame to himself and his city by his proposal to force all women to wear short skirts. The commissioner says: "We hope to make it a serios misdemeanor for women to wear skirts sweeping the pavement. There is hardly any greater cause of contagion than these iniquitous dresses with long trains, which gather up germs of every description, carry them into the household and breed disease."

Wrath Grows More Intense

Berlin, Nov. 7.—The demonstrations against the reflections cast upon the conduct of the German troops in the Franco-Prussian war by Mr. Chamberlain in his Edinburgh speech continue. A number of societies of veterans and organizations composed of the clergy have protested. The students of Leipsic university have issued a call for an indignation meeting.

"Coal Against Her Face"

Atlanta, Nov. 7.—Nora Brittain was found dead in bed yesterday. A small hole in her temple showed she was murdered. J. J. Carroll was arrested last night, charged with the crime. Carroll admits that, in an argument with the woman, he "put a piece of coal against her face, scratching it." He declares he did not injure her.

Atlanta Theatre Burned

Atlanta, Nov. 7.—The Lyceum theatre, a vaudeville house, was destroyed by fire yesterday, caused by crossing electric wires. When the fire was discovered the audience was dismissed. The people left the building without disorder. A fireman and an electrician at the theatre were badly burned. The loss is $75,000.

Jumped on a Ten Penny Nail.

The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake made of ten-penny nails, and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and a second one half way through. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes later the pain had disappeared and no more suffering was experienced. In three days the child was wearing her shoe as usual and with absolutely no discomfort. Mr. Powell is a well known merchant of Forkland, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and heals such injuries without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. For sale by all druggists.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ One of the cruel things said by Justice Jerome in his campaign speeches was the remark to an audience in the "brownstone," district, of the educated wealthy class. "Because they think a little, they think they are the only ones who think." Yet the saying has some truth in it along with its delicious sarcasm. — Springfield Republican.

☞ There is one form of monopoly that we abhor, and that is the monopoly of the telephone. The man or woman who gets at a wire and holds it for a long time, unless that holding is absolutely necessary, is a thief of the time and the rights of others, and unfair to the person on the other end of the line, and who may have somebody waiting to get him on the line to do some business with him of value to himself. There is altogether too much carelessness shown in this direction. The telephone is not a plaything, and it ought to be used with speed and with brevity in expression. When you want to take a nice, long sleep, don't do it leaning against an open 'phone.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞ Why do the people like Sheriff Pearson of Cumberland county? Because he does his duty, is fearless, incorruptible and draws but one salary. Why does the talk that prohibition doesn't prohibit slink into the back alleys when Pearson comes around? Because he has shown in Cumberland county that prohibition does prohibit and because he has shown that a conscientious, faithful sheriff may repeat in every Maine county the efficient collapse of Nuisance. Granted that Pearson is not uniformly judicious in his speeches, the people like him because he cannot be bribed, because he stands for his oath of office and for executing the mandate of the people. A man in whom the public have confidence could unquestionably be elected to enforce all laws in every county in Maine. We have had enough of anarchy in this country and nullification always plants the seeds of anarchy. The result of enforcement in Cumberland county is that the rum business is no longer the most profitable business in Portland as it seems to be in Lewiston today. But the dry goods, the clothing, the grocery, and other business in Portland are prosperous as they could not possibly be when money is wasted on drink $50,000 a month more than today.—Lewiston Journal.

CONVENTION MUST DECIDE.

A Majority of the Republican Delegates are Anti-Bryant.

Charles M. Bryant, However, the Leading Candidates for Mayoralty Nomination.

Handsome Victories for Packard in Ward One, Jones in Ward Three, and Anti-Bryant List in Ward Two.

The following table shows that Charles M. Bryant is not the popular choice of the 2374 voters who went to the Republican caucuses on Wednesday evening. The total Bryant vote in the six wards was 1053 while the opposition mustered 1194, a clean majority of 141. The anti-Bryant vote was a majority of the grand total which included about 127 blanks.

	Bryant.	Anti-Bryant.
Ward One,	222	324
Ward Two,	140	201
Ward Three,	161	321
Ward Four,	210	141
Ward Five,	275	207
Ward Six,	45	000
Total,	1,053	1,194

The Republican Municipal convention of Nov. 16 will be entitled to 51 delegates, and vacancies can be filled if any are not present, so that a full convention is assured, and 26 will be necessary for a choice. It will be made up as follows:

Ward One,	12 Delegates
Ward Two,	7 Delegates
Ward Three,	9 Delegates
Ward Four,	7 Delegates
Ward Five,	10 Delegates
Ward Six,	6 Delegates
Total,	51 Delegates
Majority,	26 Delegates

Ward Five and Six are for Charles M. Bryant for Mayoralty candidate and probably Ward Four also; which give him 23 out of the necessary 26.

Wards One, Two and Three with 28 votes are anti-Bryant, but divided as follows: Ward One with 12 for Elisha Packard; Ward Three with 9 for Frederick L. Jones; and Ward Two divided among Edward E. Jameson, Elisha Packard and Frederick L. Jones.

It is evident that if the opposition to Mr. Bryant can be united, that Mr. Bryant will not be the Republican candidate.

The convention will also nominate five candidates for Councilmen at large, and two candidates for the School Committee at large.

The six caucuses are fully reported below:

WARD ONE.

A phenomenal vote was registered in the Quincy ward, a total of 570 out of a possible 895. The vote of the ward at the State election (Republicans and Democrats) was 671, which was but 101 in excess of the vote of the caucus. At times there were a large number waiting to vote, but they were kept moving, and during the first two hours over 200 voted per hour.

The caucus officers were chosen without a contest, the chairman being Frank F. Prescott and the secretaries, Wilson Marsh and Jesse F. Curtis. The chairman did not propose to keep the anxious ones waiting long for the returns, and with the assistance of the following tellers and a new method of counting was able to announce the result in fourteen minutes after the polls closed: Arthur Hall, Henry P. Kittredge, Franklin Jacobs, N. B. Furnald, D. E. Wadsworth, John Newcomb, A. H. Gilson, T. B. Davenport, E. L. Goodridge, and Charles H. Johnson.

There was not a hitch from start to finish, and nothing exciting. No votes were challenged, and no questions raised. The Packard delegates for the municipal convention won out by about 100 majority. N. B. Furnald, the highest man, received 324, and 314 was the lowest; while Joseph C. Morse who lead the Bryant list received 222 and the lowest man had 211. The vote for candidates for the Council was: Bass, 404; Meyer, 296; Faxon, 274; Sherman, 233; and Stewart, 210.

The votes for the Ward Committee ranged from 414 to 400, although seven men received one vote each.

The delegates elect (pledged to Elisha Packard)—Charles F. Pettengill, Archibald F. Mcleod, Dexter E. Wadsworth, Napoleon B. Furnald, Edward L. Goodridge, Otto Gelotte, Lewis Bass Jr., William T. Isaac, Andrew Stewart, Carl Tinglof, John W. Hersey and Joseph W. Johnson.

The nominees for the City Council—Lewis Bass, Jr., Andrew A. Meyer and Henry M. Faxon.

The following Ward Committee was elected without a contest: Isaac M. Holt, Archibald F. Macleod, John McKnight, William T. Isaac, John Q. Cudworth, Arthur W. Stetson and Edward Johnson.

The result was announced at 9.14.

WARD TWO.

Quincy Point caucus was the largest and liveliest ever held.

In a room upstairs the Board of Registrars were kept busy enrolling new voters, the larger number of them being from other parts of the city. Altogether 54 new names were added to the voting lists, of whom 15 came from Ward Five and were enrolled early in the evening so that their votes could be cast in Wollaston before the caucus closed. About ten or twelve of the new voters ballotted in Ward Two and in each case they were challenged, but as the Board of Registrars decided that they were fully entitled to vote their votes were cast under protest. Probably nothing more will be done regarding the protest as the result would not be affected should their ballots be thrown out.

The anti-Bryant list won by a decisive majority, Frank E. Burrell the leading man receiving 201 and the lowest in the list 187, while the leading Bryant man had but 140 and the lowest man 129.

The delegates elect are: Frank E. Burrell, Thaddeus H. Newcomb, George Taylor, Edgar F. Hayden, Melville C. Holmes, Edwin W. Newcomb, Eugene C. Hultman.

George E. Adams, Alexander W. Thompson and Joseph L. Whiton, Jr., are the candidates for City Council, the vote being: Adams, 235; Thompson, 237; Whiton, 241; Barrows 71.

The Ward Committee elect: Eugene C. Hultman, Edwin W. Newcomb, John R. Graham, Melville C. Holmes, Rollin H. Newcomb, George E. Adams, George A. Sidelinger.

T. H. Newcomb was chairman of the caucus and John S. Gay secretary.

The total vote cast was 353, out of a total 575 Republicans and Democrats.

WARD THREE.

In South Quincy 502 attended the Republican caucus and voted. It would be unfair to say that they were all Republicans for it is a well-known fact that many Democrats were present and participated in the caucus.

The fight in this ward was Jones vs. an unpledged list which was understood to be for Bryant. This ward was one in which a lot of work was done. Workers for the unpledged list claimed that they were sure to win out. The Jones men said nothing and the impression got abroad that Jones would not be in it. The result, however, showed that while apparently in a dormant state the Jones men were very much alive, and they were on a quiet hunt. They came out solid at the caucus and gave the unpledged list a black eye. That Mr. Jones is popular in his own ward no one can doubt and the vote of Wednesday night clinches the argument.

The largest vote of any man on the unpledged list was 163 and the lowest 150. On the Jones list the largest vote of any one delegate was 321 and the lowest 308.

There was also quite a fight for candidates for Councilmen. It is said that the Jones men had their knives out for Mr. Spargo the reason given being that Mr. Spargo as Councilman was a supporter of President Bryant. Then it is said that Mr. Spargo came out for Jones and later went over to Bryant, so that no one knew just where to place him, but he was finally placed in the Bryant ranks.

The result was that Mr. Spargo not only failed to receive the nomination for councilman but he was also defeated for ward committee.

For the Ward Committee there were two lists filed and these lists were split up with Bryant and anti-Bryant men. The result showed that those men of pronounced Bryant feeling were defeated.

The only members of the present Council to be renominated was Councilmen Smith.

The delegates elected: John P. Bigelow, Harry S. Nicoll, Alexander Clark, Julius Johnson, William F. McCalder, Thomas W. Smith, William Pratt, Daniel F. Tenney, Lester M. Pratt.

Councilmen nominated: Thomas W. Smith, Walter E. Piper, Alfred O. Diack

Ward Committee elect,—Thomas W. Smith, Harry S. Nicoll, John G. Roberts, Alfred O. Diack, Walter E. Piper, John P. Bigelow, Frank L. Carlton.

WARD FOUR.

The caucus at West Quincy for a Republican one, was as large as any ever held in this ward, the total vote being nearly four hundred, which is more Republicans than has usually been given this ward. There are but 803 voters in the ward. Many, in fact a great many, of those who attended the caucus Wednesday night were simply Republicans for the time being. Men who had always been identified with the predominating party in this ward were present and voted. This ward, it has been claimed all along, would go to the unpledged list, and although the opposition made a determined fight to defeat this list they were unable to do so. The unpledged list it is generally understood is favorable to Mr. Bryant. The second list was pledged to Mr. Packard but he was not able to carry the ward.

The highest vote in the unpledged list was 210 and the lowest 204. In the Packard list the highest was 141 and the lowest 132. There was no contest for Councilmen or Ward Committee.

Arthur W. Woodward was chairman and Arthur W. Loud secretary.

The tellers were: Thomas F. Burke, Eugene McCormack, Everett Pollard, George O'Brien and Cornelius Driscoll.

These delegates were elected: Andrew Anderson, Arthur Crag, Fred S. Crowell, William H. Fuge, Willard B. Jones, Per. Person, John Williams.

Nominees for Councilmen: William H. Fuge, William S. Murray, Adolph S. Sandberg.

Ward Committee elect: Andrew Anderson, James F. Allen, Thomas F. Burke, Hiram W. Campbell, William B. Donald, William H. Teasdale, Edward J. Sanderg.

WARD FIVE.

All eyes were on Wollaston and there was much speculation as to whether Bryant or Jameson would carry the ward. Never has the ward been so divided against itself as at this caucus. It was a fight to the finish between the two gentlemen, and friends of both left no stone unturned to get out the voters. It made no difference whether they were Republicans or Democrats. Ward Five has but few Democrats at best and these were nearly all out.

The friends of Mr. Jameson had a list of those Democrats who it was rumored would attend the caucus, and they were prepared and did challenge many. These challenges brought out one fact, however, that Democrats were brought in by both parties. One little incident illustrates this.

A dyed-in-the-wool Democrat, with a brogue as long as your arm, approached the rail to vote, and was promptly challenged as a Democrat. When asked if he was a Democrat he replied: "Begora I was brought here to vote for Jameson."

That is not the question, "Are you a Democrat?"

"Begora then I'll vote for Bryant," and he went inside and probably voted for Bryant.

Officer Barry was on duty but his services were not required to preserve peace.

There was a crowd of nearly two hundred present at 7 o'clock when the caucus was called to order by Chairman Jameson who read the call.

Charles R. Sherman was nominated and elected chairman.

Mr. Bryant moved the nomination of Eugene H. Sprague as clerk.

Mr. Jameson promptly objected and said as Mr. Sprague was a candidate he could not serve.

Mr. Bryant said that made no difference.

Caucus laws were brought out and Chairman Sherman read section 127, part of which provides that "no person shall serve as a caucus officer at any caucus wherein he is a candidate for an elective office or for a nomination to an elective office, a candidate for Ward or Town committee."

As Mr. Sprague was a candidate for ward committee he was debarred from serving.

John B. Given was then elected as clerk and the following as inspectors: Albert G. Olney, Henry M. Fairbanks, H. G. Fay, A. L. Baker, W. S. Sayward, F. B. Smith and N. G. Nickerson.

Upon motion of Mr. Bryant it was voted to keep the polls open until 10 o'clock.

Upon motion of Mr. Bryant it was voted that the method of procedure be the same as at elections.

The polls were then opened and voting commenced and continued in a steady stream until the polls were closed. The total vote was 503.

The result was announced shortly after 11 o'clock and Mr. Bryant carried the ward. The highest man on Mr. Bryant's list received 275 votes and the lowest 268, while the highest on Mr. Jameson's list received 203 and the lowest 201.

The delegates elected were as follows: Herbert T. Whitman, Walter J. Wellington, Richard R. Freeman, Henry O. Fairbanks, Walter O. Parker, William M. Chase, Ephraim A. Snow, Enoch S. Thomas, Frank W. White, George L. Cole.

The Councilmen nominated were: Herbert J. Polk, Walter F. Nichols and Richard R. Freeman, the latter gentleman receiving the largest vote.

For Ward Committee there were nine on the list, and but seven to be elected Mr. DeNormandie and Mr. Marr, both said to be pronounced Jameson men, were left. The vote of the lowest man elected was 275, and Mr. DeNormandie's vote was but 270. Those elected: Eugene H. Sprague, Walter S. Pinkham, Richard R. Freeman, George E. Thomas, Walter J. Coombs, Henry O. Fairbanks and William M. Chase.

WARD SIX.

Less than 50 votes were cast at the Atlantic caucus, as there were no opposing lists either for delegates, the Council or Ward Committee. J. H. Cunningham was chairman and George H. Sherwin secretary, who were assisted by Fred A. Maxwell, George Prentiss and Daniel J. Nyhan.

These Mayoralty delegates, favorable to Charles M. Bryant were elected: Roger H. Wilde, Henry W. Read, William G. Gassett, Arthur C. Beal, Charles A. Hall, Walter P. Hill.

The nominees for the Council: William G. Gassett, Charles A. Hadlock, Louis F. R. Langelier.

Ward Committee: Daniel McGrath, Louis E. R. Langelier, Herbert D. Gearwar, Ralph W. Hobbs, Charles R. Hendrie, Elwyn R. Thorpe, Herbert S. Barker.

The total votes of the Republican and Democratic candidates for Mayor of the city, during the last seven years, have been as follows:

Year	Dem.	Vote	Rep.	Vote
1894	Hodges	1576	Moxom	1548
1895	Adams	1722	Hammond	1543
1896	Adams	1888	Hammond	1643
1897	Hodges	1526	Sears	1826
1898	Keith	1687	Sears	1741
1899	Keith	1636	Hall	1895
1900	Keith	1664	Hall	2036

The votes for delegates at the Republican caucuses last year will be of interest:

	Hall. Highest.	Lowest.	Opposition. Highest.	Lowest
Ward One,	215	209	221	217
Ward Two,	105	102	73	69
Ward Three,	152	143	119	111
Ward Four,	153	142	119	102
Ward Five,	59	50	31	23
Ward Six,		No contest.

The voting lists for four years at state election show these figures:

	1901	1900	1899	1898
Ward One, Pre. 1,	402	911	797	738
Ward One, Pre. 2,	485
Ward Two, Pre. 1,	221	587	586	558
Ward Two, Pre. 2,	347
Ward Three, Pre. 1,	469	466	451	454
Ward Three, Pre. 2,	402	428	401	393
Ward Four, Pre. 1,	352	443	408	401
Ward Four, Pre. 2,	441	469	454	430
Ward Five,	723	701	624	579
Ward Six,	555	579	502	445
	4,407	4,584	4,228	3,998

CARD OF THANKS.

I desire to extend my most sincere thanks to the citizens of Ward Five who voted for the delegates favorable to me, at the Ward Five Caucus last evening. I assure them that I am truly grateful and appreciate their assistance.

November Magazines.

The November Review of Reviews devotes special attention to the municipal campaign in New York city. Besides the editorial discussion of the issues, illustrated by several pages of telling cartoons. there are brief sketches of the opposing candidates for the mayoralty, Seth Low and Edward M. Shepard, together with a summary of the existing political situation in New York from the pen of Dr. Milo Roy Maltbie. These articles, taken together, make intelligible to the outsider the peculiar conditions which at the present juncture confront the New York voter.—[Astor Place, New York city.

Thirty writers contribute to the November "National Magazine." Its interest extends into every land where men are doing anything of large interest to Americans. In this number is a powerful story by Maxim Gorky, a great Russian writer of the time. It is of especial interest as a reflection of conditions in the realm of the White Czar. American politics, finance, industry, art, letters, drama and home life all are represented well in the November National.—[Boston.]

ACADEMY WINS.

Defeats Quincy High in a Close Foot Ball Match.

Adams Academy defeated the High school Wednesday afternoon at Merrymount park 5 to 0.

This game, like previous ones between these two teams, was full of disputes. High school had most all the decisions in their favor but was handicapped, in having two players in poor condition. Captain Wright and Donald were both back while Jones was unfit to play.

High school lacked the vim of Adams, which helped greatly towards the latter's vicory. High could not break up Adams new formation and the latter gained continually through the guards and tackles. High gained very little through Adams centre line, but made long end plays.

The first half High kicked off to Adams who were downed on their thirty yard line. For two downs they made gains. On the third down Adams fumbled, the ball coming into High school's hands. High ripped up Adams line at first and it looked like an easy touchdown. Gradually their gains were checked and they were held for downs on Adams five yard line.

Adams now played together strongly and made repeatedly from 5 to 8 yard gains through Highs guards. First they would gain through the tackles and ends and then guards until they were within a few yards of High's goal. High at this point defended their line bravely, and for nine downs Adams gained but one or two yards a down.

The ball was on High's one yard line and Adams third down. High used their utmost efforts to prevent the goal. Thomas had the ball a foot over the line but was immediately pushed back by Barbour. O'Brien succeeded in taking the ball from Thomas and made a touchdown. The umpire claimed it was a forward pass, to which decision, the winning team resisted. Finally the ball was given to High on their one yard line and in a few downs they had brought the ball to their twenty yard line when time was called. High played a steadier game the second half and had they not fumbled the ball would have played Adams a tie game.

Adams kicked to High, the second half, who gradually gained down the field until they lost the ball in the middle of the field.

Adams gained but little and were forced to punt. Flaherty punted thirty yards, Jones fumbled and Thomas as quickly picked up the ball and made a touchdown. O'Brien failed to kick. High kicked off again about twenty-five yards. Adams no longer ripped up High's line but were forced to punt. Miller fell on the ball on the formers 50 yard line. For the next few minutes Jones, Miller and Barbour distinguished themselves by long gains. High had the ball on Adams ten yard line but for an off side play lost and the ball soon went to Adams who gained but little and High again got the ball.

Miller's attempt for a goal from the field failed. The half ended with the ball on Adams twenty yard line.

Sudden Death.

Mr. Charles Biganess died suddenly at his home on Goddard street Wednesday noon. He went to his rooms in the upper part of his house to do some drafting about 11.30. A short time later his wife heard a heavy fall. She went to the stairway and asked if anything was the matter, but receiving no reply she hastened up stairs and found her husband unconscious. Assistance was summoned but he passed away in a few minutes.

Mr. Biganess was born in Canada 63 years ago, but has spent the greater part of his life in Quincy. He learned the granite business and for several years the senior member of the firm of Biganess & LeClair. Two years ago failing health compelled him to retire from active business. He leaves a widow, two sons and three daughtern.

To the Public.

Allow me to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I had a very severe cough and cold and feared I would get pneumonia, but after taking the second dose of this medicine I felt better, three bottles of it cured my cold, and the pains in my chest disappeared entirely. I am most respectfully yours for health, Ralph S. Meyers, 64 Thirty-seventh street, Wheeling, W. Va. For sale by al druggists.

Enjoyable Afternoon.

A very successful Mothers' meeting was held at Bethany chapel yesterday afternoon. Over seventy-five mothers and children were present. Mrs. King entertained the children with games while the mothers listened to Mrs. Hardy's most interesting reading of a paper on "What constitutes a good mother."

A short entertainment followed of especial interest, as it was by children for children. "The Sick Doll" was an amusing dialogue by two young mothers Ella and Ruth Packard and the doctor Dorothy Packard, over a severe case of membraneous croup which required a critical operation. It was most successfully performed and there was no longer a sick doll. Three cradle songs were given very prettily by Mabel Wentworth. Two recitations about children by Roberta Smith and "The House that Jack Built" by eleven boys and girls, little Frederick Blanchard bringing in the house. Henry Prescott was excellently tattered and torn, Phillips Hardy made a fine priest for the marriage ceremony and Carl Marsh a typical farmer.

Refreshments were served and a most social hour was enjoyed, when the young mothers with new babies were the centre of attraction. Congratulations to those who helped make the reception such a pleasant affair.

Arrested But Escaped.

It was reported to the police Tuesday afternoon that there was a man on Beale street, near the Wollaston depot, who was exposing himself to women and children. Officer Barry put on citizen's dress and went down to locate the fellow. He was successful in locating what he supposed was the party, and after chasing him about he apprehended him as he was about to board the train for Boston. The fellow said he belonged in Boston and had come to Quincy to see a friend. On the way to the police station he told another story.

There is no question but what the fellow apprehended was the right party, but the witnesses differ. Some said he was the party and the others that he was not. The lady who notified the police would not come into court and for lack of evidence the police were obliged to let the fellow go.

New Voters.

The registrars of voters held a busy session Wednesday night at the Hose house, Quincy Point, and many of those registered voted later in the different wards in the city. Many of them especially in Wards Two and Five were challenged and voted under protest. The total number added to the lists was 57. Of this number 43 were new names and 14 were restored. Of the total number 7 were in Ward One; 14 in Ward Two; 12 in Ward Three; 4 in Ward Four; and 20 in Ward Five.

That Male Cow.

In the Daily Ledger Wednesday there was a dainty bit of satire referring to an article which read: "A savage cow caused considerable excitement at Loring's corner Wednesday evening. He became alarmed and ran madly about the square." No male writer is guilty of calling a cow "he." It has been said that women give a graphic discription at whatever cost of grammar. No doubt the person who saw the cow evincing such stubborn determination not to be caught, and showing such bull-like instincts of escape, that the woman—of course it must have been a woman—never gave the matter second thought, but called the animal "he" without any scruples about English or criticism of other kind dailies.

"Last winter an infant child of mine had croup in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist, of Filley, Mo. "I gave her a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and in a short time all danger was past and the child recovered." This remedy not only cures croup, but when given as soon as the first symptoms appear, will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

THE POULTRY YARD.

In selecting a place for a poultry yard choose a light, sandy soil.

A heavy clay soil is always damp and unless care is taken will always favor roup.

A cock or hen that is too fat is not in physical condition to transmit all the good qualities necessary for healthy offspring.

A week or ten days of careful feeding before sending to market would often add much to the quality and insure better prices.

Have all the internal arrangements of the poultry house movable, so that when it is desired to clean they can all be taken out.

When desired to fatten the fowls, feed corn and other grains which contain fattening elements. For general feeding give a variety of grains.

When you begin to feed fowls for market, separate them from the ones intended to be kept for future use on the farm, as they should not have fattening food.

Discrimination Charged
Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 7.—A popular barber, Prospere LaFlamme, has been summoned to appear on a charge of discrimination against a negro Harvard student. LaFlamme's place of business is in Harvard square, and many of his customers are students.

Neglect of Wife a Felony
Minneapolis, Nov. 7.—In Minnesota now the man found guilty of failing to provide for his wife is punished as a felon. A man just convicted in Minneapolis received a sentence of 90 days in the workhouse, although he might have been sent to the penitentiary for three years, that being the extreme limit for this offense. This being the first case, the court was disposed to exhibit leniency.

More Non-Unionists Coming
Havana, Nov. 7.—The cigarmakers who were arrested in connection with Monday's disturbance are still in jail. It is expected that a number of workmen will sail for Tampa today. The police have recommended keeping the ring-leaders of the disturbance until the departure of the non-union workmen.

Stokes' Will Filed
New York, Nov. 7.—The will of Edward S. Stokes was filed in the surrogate's office yesterday. The will was executed Feb. 13, 1891, before Mr. Stokes had the disagreement with his cousin, W. E. D. Stokes, who is the chief beneficiary under the will. No petition setting forth the vaule of the property left by Mr. Stokes was filed with the will. Mr. Stokes says in the last clause of the will that he is unmarried and has no children.

Brethren Found Him Guilty
Harrisburg, Nov. 7.—Rev. Dr. Silas C. Swallow was yesterday convicted of falsehood by a committee of the Central Pennsylvania Methodist conference and was suspended from the ministry until the next annual conference, which will meet next March. Dr. Swallow was the Prohibition nominee for state treasurer in 1897 and the Prohibition and good government candidate for governor in 1898. He was the presidential nominee of the Christian Advocate party last November.

Ten Killed In Theatre Fire
Hurley, Wis., Nov. 7.—The Klondike theatre was burned yesterday while most of the inmates were in bed. Nine men and one woman are missing and there may be others who lost their lives. The entire town was barely saved from destruction. The Klondike theatre building was three stories high. It was vauled at $10,000. It was occupied by 25 people, consisting of the Leclare family and a stock company who gave a vaudeville entertainment six nights in the week.

Sickness Hand caps Treasury
San Juan, Nov. 7.—Acting Treasurer Dix, who was recently operated upon for appendicitis, shows no improvement in condition. His illness seriously embarrasses the government, since there is no treasurer and Mr. Dix alone is empowered to execute treasury department papers.

ADMIRAL SCHLEY WEPT

As Did Others Who Heard Rayner's Eloquent Argument

VERDICT OF POSTERITY

Will Be Awaited by His Client Under the Guidance of Divine Providence —Court and Audience Joined In Extending Hearty Congratulations

Washington, Nov 7.—The climax of the Schley court of inquiry came yesterday afternoon when Mr. Rayner, chief counsel for Admiral Schley, concluded his brilliant argument of three hours with a peroration so eloquent and impassioned that all within the sound of his voice were profoundly touched.

This remarkable trial, he said, sought to condemn the man who had brought to a successful termination as great a naval triumph as was ever won. In vivid colors he painted the picture of the Brooklyn with Commodore Schley on the bridge fighting the entire Spanish fleet until the Oregon appeared out of the smoke.

The thunders of the Brooklyn, music for the ears of his countrymen, he said, aroused Admiral Schley's envious foes. He pictured the victorious sailor suffering as few have suffered for three long years, while the fires of persecution leaped around him, and now, awaiting the hour of his vindication in the verdict of the court.

"And when it comes," he concluded, "he can, from the high and exalted position that he occupies, look down upon his traducers and maligners and with exultant pride exclaim: "I care not for the venomous gossip of clubs, drawing rooms and cliques, and the poisoned shafts of envy and of malice. I await under the guidance of divine providence the verdict of posterity."

The scene in the court room as he finished with these words was thrilling. The attendance had been large all day. As Mr. Rayner began his eulogy of Admiral Schley those in the audience, many of whom were ladies, leaned forward in their seats. The spell of his oratory was over them, and when he described the admiral's gallant deeds and long persecution to which he had been subjected many of them broke down and wept. The members of the court displayed evidences of emotion and Admiral Schley himself was plainly moved. He sat, leaning back, with his hands behind his head. His chin twitched and as his counsel said he could afford to wait the verdict of posterity, two big tears rolled down his cheeks. He moved uneasily to conceal his emotion and, under the pretense of adjusting his glasses, brushed the tears aside. For fully 30 seconds after Mr. Rayner closed there was not a sound. Then the tension broke in a loud burst of applause.

Admiral Dewey, after about half a minute, arose to remind the spectators that such a demonstration was out of place. A moment afterward the court adjourned, the judge advocate pleading that he could not well go on.

Then another remarkable thing happened. As soon as the gavel fell the entire audience surged forward to shake the hands of Admiral Schley and Mr. Rayner. But the on-coming spectators fell back a moment as they saw Admiral Dewey and his two associates move around the table as if by a common impulse and congratulate Admiral Schley and his counsel. Judge Advocate Lemly also came forward to join in the congratulations. Then the public had its inning and for 15 minutes after the court adjourned Admiral Schley and Mr. Rayner were kept busy shaking hands.

Mr. Rayner's argument consumed the whole day of the court except for half an hour at the opening, which Captain Parker, his associate counsel, occupied in concluding.

Mr. Rayner took up the specifications one by one, reserving those relating to the retrograde movement until the last. So far as he was able to do so he used the testimony of the department's witnesses to prove his contentions. With regard to the retrograde movement, which he discussed with greater seriousness than he did the other specifications, he adduced in justification not only all Admiral Schley's reasons for believing the Spanish fleet was not in Santiago, but he argued that every officer charged with the responsibility of command necessarily must be clothed with discretion in carrying out instructions.

He displayed good temper in adverting to the testimony of most of the officers, especially the ranking officers who seemed to contradict his client, giving them in each case credit for honesty of purpose. But, with a few, he dealt unsparingly. Wood, Potts and Bristol he held up to ridicule.

Mr. Rayner referred sarcastically to the testimony of Lieutenant Bristol, saying among other things, "His vision was a divine inspiration. Sextants and stadimetres, compass bearings, government measurements and hydrographic plates, were all dim and obscure in comparison with the miraculous power of his unaided vision which lit up and illuminated the entire harbors of Cienfuegos and Santiago with the unerring precision of the morning sunbeams. Government experts with mathematical accuracy had measured the heights of Morro castle and Socapa battery, but down they went 100 feet when they encountered Bristol's miraculous eye."

Mr. Rayner, in discussing the specification which dealt with the loop of the Brooklyn on July 3, and the possibility of colliding with the Texas, said he stood upon the testimony of Captain Cook, who had the best opportunity to give all the information about the loop. What might have happened had the Brooklyn turned to port was purely a matter of conjecture. The turn in the other direction was completely successful. It was intimated that the turn to the southward had not been to get away from the enemy, yet it was an undisputable fact that the turn had brought the Brooklyn closer to the Spanish fleet and she received 30 of the 43 shots which struck the American ships. Captain Cook's testimony, he said, illumined this manoeuvre and he planted himself upon this testimony.

Mr. Rayner then discussed the testimony of Heilner and Hodgson and in this connection ridiculed the chart prepared by the navigators of the ships in the battle.

In his evidence, said Mr. Rayner, Lieutenant Commander Heilner said the Brooklyn passed across the bows of the Texas less than 150 yards away, while on the chart which he helped to prepare, the distance between the two ships is given as 2400 feet.

This whole controversy about the loop seemed to have been started to prove that the Brooklyn ran away. When this failed an attempt was made to drag in the alleged danger to the Texas.

The testimony of Captain Cook, he declared, exploded both. The counsel on the other side, he said, would have to argue that Captain Cook's testimony could not be relied upon or abandon the specification about the loop and the danger of colliding with the Texas.

After reading the testimony of several officers as to the splendid bearing of Admiral Schley, Mr. Rayner read the testimony of Mr. Potts to the effect that the admiral appeared nervous; "that he got up and sat down."

"Lieutenant Potts," went on Mr. Rayner, "has covered himself with renown. His name will echo through the ages of undying fame. When Manila shall be forgotten and Santiago will be buried in oblivion, the name of Potts shall live. Whenever an admiral or a commodore or a captain is engaged in the carnage of mortal conflict, beware of Potts. Beware of your looks. Be careful how you walk. Be careful how you sit down. Be reserved and reticent in your speech. Model your entire course and conduct of action according to Potts, that precocious child of the kindergarten, who confesses he was always scared in battle, but who, unfortunately, was never engaged in any battles sufficient enough to arouse his timidity."

Discussing dispatch No. 7, known as the "dear Schley" letter, Mr. Rayner contended that the order conveyed in that message made it incumbent upon Schley to remain at Cienfuegos. He declared that this was the key to the whole case and that it did not admit of any construction than that Schley should remain at Cienfuegos. Mr. Rayner read the department's orders to Sampson directing him to notify Schley by the Iowa, to proceed off Santiago. Sampson, instead of transmitting that order and re-enforcing it, had transmitted it with directions to Schley to remain off Cienfuegos on the ground that the holding of that port would offer the best chance of capturing and destroying the Spanish fleet.

This modification of the department's orders by Admiral Sampson had been followed by order No. 8, directing him "if satisfied that the fleet was not in Cienfuegos to proceed, but cautiously to Santiago." In this connection Mr. Rayner discussed the McCalla memorandum, which he said had never been intended for Schley, but the commander-in-chief at Key West. The memorandum contained not a word about the means of communicating with the insurgents. Order No. 8, upon which the counsel on the other side laid so much stress, he said, did not permit Schley to leave until satisfied that the Spaniards were not in Cienfuegos. If it had reached Schley, as Sampson believed it would, by 2 a. m., April 23, he could not have left. That dispatch reached Schley at 8 a. m., April 23, and on that day the Adula was sent in—a fact which Mr. Rayner said he regarded as one of the most important of the campaign. When the Adula did not come out the next day, as her skipper had agreed to do, Schley was still further confirmed in the belief that Cervera was at Cienfuegos.

"I want to say right here," continued Mr. Rayner, "that as brave a man as McCalla is and as daring and fearless a soul as he is, he never pretended to land any boats on the Cuban coast and he was around there eight days. This is not criticism of him, but to show that you are criticizing one man for not doing what another man never attempted to do."

Mr. Rayner next devoted his attention to the message delivered by the Eagle to Schley when the latter was en route to Cienfuegos and met McCalla's subsquadron returning to Key West. Telling of the landing of the Scorpion to intercept the Eagle, he said: "Where is the megaphone message of Commander Sutherland? Is it still in the megaphone, or is it vibrating upon the tropical breezes of the Carribean? Southerland must have either gotten at the wrong end of the instrument, or perhaps the instrument was like the stadimetre and was not correct in recording sound for a distance of more than 30 yards. At any rate, the message that the Scorpion did receive, and which has been sent to us by Commander Marix from the Philippines was what? That there was an insurgent camp in the vicinity of Cienfuegos? Oh, no. That a signal code had been agreed upon with the friendly natives? Oh, no. These were all mysteries that it was not proper to communicate to the commander of the flying squadron. Instead of that dull thud fell upon his listening and anxious ear: 'No news of the Spanish,' was the thrilling intelligence that he received and with it the Eagle and her megaphone went on her way rejoicing, and the Marblehead sped to the presence of the commander-in-chief at Key West with this profound secret buried in the bosom of her fearless commander."

GETS EIGHTEEN MONTHS

Sentence Imposed Upon Mrs Fisher, Who Tried to Extort Money

Worcester, Mass., Nov. 7.—The jury in the case of George H. Buzzo and Mrs. Bernice Fisher of Worcester, charged with an attempt to extort $8000 from Charles S. Barton, president of the Rice, Barton & Fales company, one of the wealthiest and most prominent business men of Worcester, by threatening to kidnap his son unless the money was paid, reported in the criminal court yesterday. The jury found Buzzo not guilty, but Mrs. Fisher was declared guilty and was later sentenced to 18 months in the women's reformatory.

Mr. Barton had got several letters demanding money and the final one ordered him to drop $8000 in bills in a package under a designated tree in Elm park at a certain hour of the night. He reported to the police and detectives were on the ground when Mrs. Fisher picked up a decoy package that Mr. Barton had placed under the tree. Buzzo was in company with Mrs. Fisher at the time and both were arrested. Buzzo claimed he was met earlier in the evening by Mrs. Fisher, who asked him to go to the park with her. He claimed that he knew nothing of the attempt to extort until he was set upon by the detectives.

Fireman Found Dead Body
New Haven, Nov. 7.—While putting out a fire in the grocery store of Louis Resnick, firemen last night found the body of the proprietor in the cellar. Resnick had been missing and his relatives detected the oror of gas issuing from the basement. A match was struck and an explosion followed, which caused the fire. The man had, from all indications, shut himself up in the cellar and opened the gas cock. Despondency, due to ill health, is said to be the cause.

Mayor Won't Sign Licenses
Salem, Mass., Nov. 7.—The application of 13 Salem druggists for a writ of mandamus to compel Mayor Hurley to sign the sixth-class licenses which the alderman voted them last August will be fought by Mayor Hurley, who has retained counsel, believing that he has found grounds upon which to refuse to sign licenses in a no-license city. The outcome of the case will have a bearing on other no-license cities or towns where druggists' licenses to disperse liquors are issued.

Anger at Borden's Inconsistency
Fall River, Mass., Nov. 7.—There is a great revulsion of feeling in the city against M. C. D. Borden, not only among business men and manufacturers, but among operative leaders and the operatives themselves. Among his own operatives and those in other mills it is felt that if he had maintained a high scale until Christmas at least, he would have been sustaining the promises held forth in his notices and interviews.

Storti Case Up Again
Salem, Mass., Nov. 7.—Before the full bench of the supreme judicial court, the habeas corpus proceedings in the case of Luigi Storti, the condemned murderer, were argued by his counsel yesterday, the contention being that Storti should be set at liberty because he is being unlawfully kept in custody. The case was taken under advisement.

Embezzled Town Funds
Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 7.—Roland A. Swan, formerly an assistant to the town treasurer of Arlington, was sentenced yesterday to serve from 8 to 10 years in the state prison. The crime for which Swan was indicted and to which he finally pleaded guilty was that of embezzling several thousand dollars from the town of Arlington.

Young Man Charged With Forgery
Boston, Nov. 7.—Upon charges of forgery and uttering forged checks upon the Beacon Trust company, Myron A. Nichols, 21 years old, is in custody. It is charged that he forged the name of a cousin to checks aggregating $151.30, which the trust company cashed without question.

The Dog Knows
That there is something wrong with his master. They have no more romps and rambles. He tries in vain to coax the listless youth from his chair.

When the lungs are diseased, physical weakness soon begins to show itself and the active outdoor life is given up. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the lungs and other organs of respiration. It cures obstinate, deep-seated coughs, bleeding lungs, emaciation and other conditions which if neglected or unskillfully treated may find a fatal termination in consumption.
"After using about five bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery my boy seems to be all right," writes Mr. J. W. Price, of Ozark, Monroe Co., Ohio. "He was very bad when I commenced to give him the 'Golden Medical Discovery.' The doctors claimed he had consumption and we doctored with them until he was past walking. It has been ten months since he stopped taking your medicine and he is in good health. We are very thankful to you for saving our son."
Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach, blood, and lungs. Substitution means a little more profit for the dealer but a loss for you.
Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation and its consequences.

A RUSTIC FRAME.

It May Be Made of Wood, Covered With Leather.

A wooden photograph frame may be handsomely embellished with a cluster of small but symmetrically formed pine cones tacked to one corner of the frame. A few well chosen hemlock or spruce twigs will add to its appearance. The frame may be purchased or made at home of wood, sawed out and polished along the inside. A cigar box cover sawed out may be covered with leather. The edges of the leather should be tacked down with tiny upholstering nails. A decorative line can be drawn in gold paint if it is desired. If the maker is artistic, a fancy design in gold paint may be added. The glass from honey boxes is valuable for the cover. A photograph of a loved one in such a frame will make a valued gift. The cones may be gilded or varnished.

When it is inconvenient to make a fancy gift, something which will be of practical use is often acceptable for the holidays.

There are many worthy and good men and women who are more or less dependent upon the thoughtfulness of friends for dainties. They are provided with the necessities of life, but many of them long for a little jelly or homemade preserves, such as most housekeepers make in abundance every fall. It would be a gracious thing if all women would think of the old folks of this most unhappy class and when putting up preserves provide a dozen glasses for them. A dozen glasses would go far to make each of these men and women happy, and the sweetmeats would be hoarded with care. Nothing rounds out a dinner so well for those who are old as a spoonful of jelly. Women can each spare a few glasses from their winter stock.

BUREAU SCARF.

A Handsome Moire Affair Embroidered With Leaves and Berries.

By studying the sketches any needlewoman can make the piece of fancy work illustrated here. The material needed for this handsome Christmas present is pale blue moire, though any other color would be as suitable if adapted to the rich coloring in the embroidered berries. Similar designs are worked on both ends of the scarf. It is lined with pale blue moire silk.

The fringe which trims it is especially rich and is made of the two colors used in the embroidery. The shorter tassels of the fringe are of dull green floss, and the longer ones, which are partly crocheted, are of the dark red. All the lines and stems are in one shade of green, and that a dark one, while the berries are dark red.

The manner in which the embroidery is wrought is clearly shown and is called satin stitch. The tassels are attached directly to the satin, being sewed through so that they outline diamonds.

There is a kind of embroidery silk which is shaded in the skein, and this can be used with artistic effect to work these berries.

The scarf may be used on a table instead of a bureau. When mailed or given to the one for whom it is intended, it should be inclosed in a white pasteboard box and folded up inside of white tissue paper.

THE CLOSING ARGUMENT

Made by Captain Lemly For the Government

NO PERSONAL MISCONDUCT

As Commander-in-Chief of the Flying Squadron, but "Unsteadiness in Purpose and in Push and Failure to Obey Orders"—End of Inquiry

Washington, Nov. 8.—After sittings covering 40 days and with a record which, when completed, will cover about 2000 pages, the Schley court of inquiry at 3:45 p. m. yesterday, adjourned its last public session.

To Captain S. C. Lemly, the judge advocate, had been assigned the duty of making the closing argument in the case and soon after he had completed his speech, Admiral Dewey, bringing his gavel down upon the big table, said: "There being no further business the court is adjourned."

As was the case on Wednesday, when Mr. Rayner spoke, the attendance was large. There was only one session during the day. It began at 2 o'clock and the entire time was devoted to Captain Lemly's address. He read his speech in clear and distinct tones and was given careful attention. The speech, in the main, was an analysis of testimony, but occasionally a conclusion was drawn and frequently there was criticism of the course pursued by Admiral (then Commodore) Schley. Speaking of Commodore Schley's conduct, Captain Lemly said:

"From my knowledge of the man, having served under his command on two cruises, I have never believed, nor do I claim from from the evidence, that personal misconduct, or, to call a spade a spade, cowardice was exhibited by Commodore Schley in any part of his career as commander-in-chief of the flying squadron. But I submit with regret that in the passage from Key West to Cienfuegos, while at the latter port, en route to the southward of Santiago without settled destination in the retrograde movement, in the return to the vicinity of Santiago and in the affair of May 31, the commodore exhibited unsteadiness in purpose and in push and failure to obey orders."

This statement was made toward the close of Captain Lemly's remarks. After adjournment the members of the court, Admiral Schley and counsel lingered for a time about the hall in which they recently have spent so much of their time, and there were many affectionate words of farewell spoken. Admiral Schley, as usual, was called upon to receive the greetings of a number of admirers and a hundred more people waited at the door of the building to bid him adieu.

Captain Lemly used no formality in beginning his address when the court convened, but rising quietly from his seat opposite the president of the tribunal, began to read. He said at the outset that his plan contemplated, first a response to criticisms of Admiral Schley's counsel and then a presentation of the subject in hand on an independent basis.

"Commodore Schley has testified," said Captain Lemly, "that he consulted Commodore Remey at the naval base, Key West, May 18, and at that time the latter had no information as to the movements of the Spaniards. So had Admiral Sampson on the 18th. And for what, if not to meet the enemy's fleet, was Commodore Schley sent to Cienfuegos? Not because he expected to find them already in there, as the order No. 5 and Admiral Schley's testimony will clearly show. It was simply expected that the Spaniards would endeavor to reach Cienfuegos and not that they were there."

"Some of the scouts had been off Santiago since May 21. This information of Sigsbee's, then, meant that if the Spanish fleet had been there in the first place, it had not left. The dispatches will clearly show that there was no doubt as to the Spaniards having been at Santiago; the only doubt that ever existed was as to whether they had left.

Referring to the information given Commodore Schley by the scout boats upon the commodore's arrival off Santiago, May 26, Captain Lemly said it was reported to him, as agreed by Captain Sigsbee and the commodore, that nothing had been seen of the Spanish fleet.

Continuing on this point he said:

"It has been intimated by counsel that had the applicant been otherwise advised by Captain Sigsbee, or had he been in any way advised by Captain Wise, he might not have undertaken the retrograde movement; but both of these officers testifying that when they came up with the flying squadron the retrograde movement was already begun and Sigsbee has testified that the questions principally discussed on board the flagship were not of the whereabouts of the Spanish fleet, but the question of coaling.

"As to the question of disobedience of orders," said Captain Lemly," counsel has properly stated that a report that orders would be disobeyed does not constitute disobedience. Commodore Schley's conduct is being scrutinized in the light of the facts, and not alone in the light if the statements which he made concerning his intentions. Counsel has cited the disobedience of Nelson; but at Copenhagen Nelson disobeyed orders and went for the enemy. The applicant's disobedience, if proved, will be shown to be in delaying in bringing himself into the presence of the enemy."

Speaking of the alleged colloquy on the Brooklyn during the battle, Captain Lemly said: "As to the testimony upon the point whether this substantial exchange of remarks really occurred, we have Hodgson's sworn statement before this court, his statement in the investigation before Captain Chadwick and his several letters to the applicant, in which he adheres to the substantial accuracy of the newspaper report as printed."

With this conclusion of Captain Lemly's remarks, the court at 3:45 p. m., adjourned with the intention of holding no more public sessions.

MOTION PICTURES

Of Great Value In Obtaining Records of Primitive Customs

Washington, Nov. 8.—A new government enterprise is the application of the motion picture machine to the analysis of primitive man. Never before this year was this attempted. Professor O. P. Phillips of the University of Pennsylvania, commissioned a few months ago by the government's bureau of ethnology to initiate this work in the far west, has just returned from the field.

"This year I conceived the idea of analyzing the customs of primitive man by means of the cinematograph camera," said Professor Phillips. "The American Indian is fast passing away as a child of nature, and many of his aboriginal practices have gone out of existence within the past few years. Ethnologists can obtain a more accurate conception of Indian customs from 10 minutes' study by aid of moving life pictures than from a day's observation by the unaided eye. With the best equipment to be had in the world I started for the field last July and have since spent my time photographing all of the Pueblo Indians, Zunis and Moquis of Arizona and New Mexico, also the Diggers of the high Sierras. From Canon Diablo, a small station on the Santa Fe railroad, we journeyed north in a covered wagon to the Seven Cities of Tusayan, discovered by the Spanish under Coronado 350 years ago.

"Generous tipping is essential to successful photography such as I carried on in the Indian country. I soon discovered this. Each primitive red man or woman demanded a fee anywhere from 25 cents to $2 before consenting to pose. Even when I snapped them clandestinely they made me pay up as soon as realizing that they had been taken. In addition to distributing lucre in generous quantities, I had to keep stocked with an abundance of calico, yeast cakes, candy, matches and tobacco. The common camera has ever excited Indian superstition. The cinematograph camera, by reason of the rumbling of the films, has an even more noise was audible. When heard it in most all cases excited fear."

RECIPROCITY HINDERED

Reason For Abandonment of Treaty With Argentina

Washington, Nov. 8.—It has been decided by the friends of the reciprocity treaties, in the final battle for their ratification, which will soon open, to abandon the Argentine treaty. This will obviously not be done formally, for that would be discourteous to the Argentine government, which has renewed the time at our disposal for the treaty's consideration; but the "tip" has quietly been given to let that compact drop, and with it out of the way to see what can be done with the others.

The reason for this move is plain. The Argentine treaty has been the "Jonah" of the group. It attacked wool, appropriately termed the "Keystone of the protective arch." While the remissions it offered were but slight and would still leave a very handsome protection, the wool-growers are so strongly entrenched politically that they do not need to make any concessions whatever and will not do so. The treaty because of this effect on wool has been more widely discussed and its terms have become better known than any other, and hence it has served to discredit the whole group with those who "feel the sorrows" of the wool grower.

Carnegie's Custom Followed

Pittsburg, Nov. 8.—Carnegie Steel company officials evidently intend keeping up the custom, originated by Andrew Carnegie, that of rewarding faithful employes, for Wednesday the directors called to headquarters several veteran steel workers from the Edgar Thompson plant, Braddock, and gave them the company's bonds and stock in amounts from $10,000 to $100,000. As the gifts were made the men were told they were rewards for service and were asked not to talk much about the affair.

GUARDS OVERPOWERED

By Convicts Working on New Prison Site

THEY HAD TWO REVOLVERS

When Rush Commenced, and When It Was Over Twenty-Six Desperate Men Had Gained Their Freedom—One of the Convicts Killed

Leavenworth, Kas., Nov. 8.—One man was killed, three others dangerously wounded and 26 desperate convicts are at large, as a result of a mutiny late yesterday afternoon at the site of the new United States prison, two miles southeast of here, where 400 prisoners from the federal prison, in charge of 30 armed guards, were at work.

When the trouble began the rebellious prisoners had only two revolvers. These had been secreted in one of the walls of the building by some unknown person. Two walls are partly completed and the remainder of the site of the building is surrounded by a high wooden stockade.

Gus Parker, one of the ringleaders of the mutiny, under pretense of a necessity, walked to the corner of the stockade in which the revolvers were concealed, and under cover of some weeds secured them without being detected. He returned to the gang and passed one of the revolvers to Frank Thompson, negro, who secreted it about his person. When T. E. Hinds, superintendent of construction, and three armed guards prepared to round up the men at the end of the day's work, the two armed convicts covered them with the revolvers and, encouraged by the other mutinous convicts, forced the men to walk before them to the northeastern corner of the stockade where they expected to make a rush through the opening.

On the outside of the stockade was an armed guard and the convicts were met at the opening by C. E. Barrows, a guard, who fought them back, but who received two shots in the neck. The convicts then rushed over to the south wall to another opening and were met by Arthur Treelford, an armed guard, who is in charge of all the convicts. Treelford resisted and was shot twice, but not dangerously wounded.

Defeated in their attempt to escape at this point, the men rushed to the guard-house, a temporary frame structure, where the arms are kept. The guards from the outside rushed in at this point and drove the convicts away from the guard house.

J. P. Waldrupe, a guard, shot and killed Ford Quinn. The prisoners then made a grand rush for the main entrance and 26 of them succeeded in escaping. Most of the escaped men are from Indian Territory. Closely followed by the guards, the men ran into a nearby forest and succeeded in evading their pursuers.

The men went in the direction of Easton, Kas., and it is reported here that they have held up many farmers.

OUTRIGHT ANNEXATION

And Free Trade With Cuba Issues Which Democrats May Raise

New York, Nov. 8.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Washington asserts that the Democrats in congress, eager to make political capital out of the issue for next year's campaign, will insist at the coming session on absolute free trade with Cuba, and on outright annexation of the island to the United States without waiting for a trial at independent self-government by the Cubans themselves. The indications now are that the Republicans in both the senate and house will align themselves solidly against both propositions, and that Cuba will get neither free trade with the United States nor annexation. It is expected, the dispatch continues, that the Democrats will divide on both propositions, just as they did in the house on the Foraker Porto Rico bill, with exception that the division over Cuba will in the end produce a more decisive schism than that over the treatment of Porto Rico.

The Louisana delegation in Congress, for example, is warmly opposed both to the annexation of Cuba and to any reciprocity arrangement affecting sugar and tobacco, while other southern Democrats are like minded. On the other hand, the younger element among the Democratic senators is disposed to disregard this opposition and make a square fight on free trade, or at least a wider reciprocity between Cuba and the United States, with ultimate annexation of the island in the background.

The Republican policy on these matters has not yet been matured in detail, but Senator Platt of Connecticut, undisputed leader of the senate on all legislation as to Cuba, is known to favor a limited degree of reciprocity, which will take the form of generous concessions to Cuba, but he is also known to be opposed to annexation, immediate or remote.

A Further Postponement

New York, Nov. 8.—The argument on the motion to dismiss the indictment against Roland B. Molineux for the murder of Mrs. Adams in December, 1898, which was set down for yesterday, was adjourned at the request of the district attorney until Thursday next.

TOPPAN CASE GOES OVER

Lawyers Want More Time to Get Preliminaries Into Proper Shape

Barnstable, Mass., Nov. 8.—When Miss Jane Toppan was arraigned in the district court before Judge Swift this morning to answer to the charge of murdering Mrs. Mary Gibbs, the state, through District Police Officer Letteney, requested and was granted a postponement until Nov. 18, at which time it is expected that another continuance will be asked for, as it is next to an impossibility for either the prosecution or defense to get its case in proper shape within the next two or three weeks.

Miss Toppan is bearing up well under the terrible strain to which she is subjected. Her appetite is good, she sleeps well at night and has a very comfortable cell on the south side of the prison, where she enjoys tahe full benefit of the sun. At her request the hour heretofore allowed her for exercise in the forenoon has been divided and she is allowed to walk in the corridor half an hour in the forenoon and half an hour in the afternoon. She has received many letters since she has been at the jail and much of her time is passed in reading and writing.

James S. Murphy of Lowell, who will defend Miss Toppan, arrived here last night, and it is stated that a well known lawyer of Boston, whose name is not yet made public, will be associated with him in the defense when the case comes to trial.

VISITORS FROM ABROAD

Bring Greetings From English City to Its American Namesake

Gloucester, Mass., Nov. 8.—The mayor's room at the city hall was yesterday the scene of a pretty and interesting ceremony which served to illustrate the closeness of the union of the American city of Gloucester with her sister city and namesake in England. The participants were Hon. Russell Rea, M. P., from the district of Gloucester, England, and Mrs. Rea. Together with J. P. McTaggart and wife of Boston they came here yesterday to pay their respects to the city officials and present to the city some beautifully engrossed resolutions on parchment with reference to the death of President McKinley, and others extending the greetings of the English city and its city [illegible]. Mr. Rea brought introductory letters to Mayor French and photographs of city officials, which he delivered here. Mayor W. W. French entertained the guests at his residence later a reception was tendered them at the city hall. Mr. Rea and his wife are to remain in America for some time.

Concerning Druggists' Licenses

Salem, Mass., Nov. 8.—The effort of 13 Salem druggists to compel Mayor Hurley to sign and issue the sixth class license which the aldermen voted to them came before the full bench of the supreme court here yesterday on a writ of mandamus ordering the mayor to comply. Only one petition was heard that of F. P. Fitzgerald. The others are exactly like this and will stand or fall with the one being heard. The case was taken under advisement.

Yee Goes Free

Concord, N. H., Nov. 8.—Yee Hop Mow, the last of the three Chinamen who were taken from a freight car in this city Monday last, was yesterday discharged from custody by order of Commissioner Hodgman. The other two Chinamen were found guilty of illegally entering this country and were ordered deported. Two Boston Chinamen testified that Yee Hop Mow was born in this country.

Hayes Convicted of Murder

Litchfield, Conn., Nov. 8.—John T. Hayes, charged with murdering his former sweetheart, Miss Winnifred Cooke, was this morning found guilty of murder in the second degree. The prisoner was immediately sentenced to imprisonment for life. Hayes seemed indifferent when the sentence was passed upon him. The jury had been out since 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Miss Reagan Sent to Prison

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 8.—A woman burglar was sentenced yesterday, when Nellie Reagan was ordered by Judge Lawton to spend two years in the Middlesex county house of correction. Miss Reagan broke into a house in Newton. She entered a plea of guilty.

Herrick May Succeed Meyer

Washington, Nov. 8.—The report that Ambassador Meyer will not serve out his term at Rome, but will return next year, if not sooner, to be succeeded by President McKinley's friend, Myron T. Herrick, the Cleveland banker, is revived.

Jumped on a Ten Penny Nail.

The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake made of ten-penny nails, and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and a second one half way through. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes later the pain had disappeared and no more suffering was experienced. In three days the child was wearing her shoe as usual and with absolutely no discomfort. Mr. Powell is a well known merchant of Forkland, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and heals such injuries without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. For sale by all druggists.

Good Afternoon.

The participation of Democrats in the Republican caucuses is a matter which demands the serious attention of the Republican City Committee. It is a practice which should be promptly stopped. Democrats not only assist in the selection of Republican candidates, but by an organized effort are in some cases able to defeat the choice of the Republicans. For instance, if there are 450 Republicans in a ward, and 250 favor one candidate and 200 another candidate the minority with the assistance of 60 Democrats may win. The Democrats not only assist in the selection of Republican candidates, but they also assist in the organization of the Republican Ward committee and in turn the City Committee.

If the caucus laws permit such things then the Republican City Committee should unite with other Republican committees in securing new laws. The enrollment law suggested at the last Legislature, which required all voters to enroll themselves before the caucuses with the party with which they desired to affiliate might be a good one to put upon the statute books.

Chairman Jameson of the Republican City Committee as will be seen by a challenge in this issue, is emphatic against inviting or encouraging Democrats to vote in Republican caucuses, and candidates, who resort to such methods should not be supported by Republicans.

We want nothing but clean politics in Quincy, and it is the duty of all voters who believe in good government to attend the caucuses and the polls and assert their power.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The same apathy which is responsible for evil government in the large cities is to be found in the village and rural life of the country. Little or nothing is done for the suppression of nuisances that retard the moral and material life of the community, for the removal of untoward conditions that tend to produce the village hoodlum and idler, for the repression of drunkenness or other allied forms of vice, for the securing of better sanitary regulations, or for the promotion of civic pride and nobler ideals of citizenship. In the village and rural community, just as in the city, the good people are often unorganized for the promotion of the general welfare, and are sometimes found working at cross purposes. Much has been done in recent years to remedy this evil by the organization of civic leagues, but much yet remains to be done in bringing home to each individual the responsibilities that rest upon him. A civic league will not of itself regenerate a community unless it has behind it the united and organized conscience of the whole community. The desire for political, social and moral betterment must be general. And when this is the case throughout the whole country it will not be long before the municipal problem of the greater cities is solved.—New York Tribune.

A CHALLENGE.

Candidate Jameson Asked No Democrats to Vote for Him.

Candidate Jameson is emphatic against allowing Democrats to vote in Republican caucuses, and says he never invited a Democrat to vote in a Republican caucus and never should. Neither should he countenance such a practice by a Republican committee or by a gentleman at work in his favor. He challenges any man to prove to the contrary. He reports to the Ledger that he has made inquiries of Chairman Sherman and other officers of the Ward Five caucus, and none of them heard any such conversation as reported, of a Democrat who said he was brought there to vote for Jameson. It is possible he says that a few Democrats may have voted for him but he does not know who they are. He is very anxious to learn the name of the man who made the talk reported; also the name of the man who brought him to the caucus to vote as reported. He says, it is more probable that the man was told to vote for his opponent, but if questioned, to say as he is reported to have said.

Wollaston Social.

At the Congregational church, Wollaston, Thursday evening. The regular monthly social was held. At 6.15 a delicious supper was indulged in by all.

The bill of fare was: Eatables—Haricots, Huitres (escalloped) and "Fixis."

Drink—Cafe au lait Cafe noir and Aqua Pura.

The program for the evening included: cornet solos by Miss Mackay accompanied by Mr. Frost, piano solos by Master John Merrill, and Miss Annie Perry, vocal numbers by Mr. Arnold, recitation by Miss Tobey, readings by Rev. Edward A. Chase and Miss Corinna Barbour; and stories illustrating the wit of Negro and Irish by Rev. Mr. Chase.

Chrysanthemum Prizes.

James Nicol takes special pride in his chrysanthemums, and every year some of his finest can be seen at the annual Horticultural show in Boston. He is also fortunate in the way of capturing prizes, and that he does is quite a credit, when it is understood that he has to compete with the wealth of the Commonwealth who spend hundreds of dollars to secure the coveted first prizes. This year Mr. Nicol was unusually fortunate having captured four first prizes and one second. His first prizes were awarded for twelve distinct blooms, a white, red and yellow; and the second on white.

Nearly 100,000 Tons.

A Gloucester dispatch to the Herald says a big blast on Thursday. The stone measured 300 by 84 by 60 feet, and required 20 steam drill holes 41 feet deep loaded with 42 kegs of powder and 130 kegs of crushed stone for tamping. It took 15 men six hours and a half to load the holes. The report was not extremely loud, but caused a heavy jar which was felt a considerable distance from the ledge. The stone was beautifully split.

It is estimated that it will take a number of years to work up the huge stone, the weight of which is estimated at between 90,000 and 100,000 tons.

All-Day Sewing Bee.

At the Unitarian vestry Wollaston on Wednesday, about twenty ladies were present at the all-day sewing meeting, and a jolly good time was participated in. The meeting will be repeated next Wednesday at the same place, and it is hoped a large number will be present as there is much work to be accomplished before the Christmas sale. In the afternoon of the same day at three o'clock, Rev. Frank N. Pratt will address the members of the Alliance. "King Alfred" will be his subject.

Accident.

Motorman Abbott of the Old Colony street railway received a painful injury to his left arm Thursday night. He was running a car to Weymouth. Landing and while going down the hill into East Braintree he used both hands in setting the brake. When the foot of the hill was reached he released the break and the handle flying around struck him in the wrist inflicting a a painful wound. He was attended by Dr. Garey. It was his first accident in seven years of railroading.

Mrs. Cowles' Loss

Washington, Nov. 8.—Mrs. W. S. Cowles, sister of President Roosevelt, was robbed, or lost, about 10 days ago, a diamond brooch valued at about $5000. It is believed that the loss occurred during Mrs. Cowles' recent trip to New England and detectives of several cities through which she passed are working on the case.

MILTON

John Garrity is building a house on Church street.

There was a slight fire at the chocolate mills Thursday morning.

The Thursday Evening club held a whist party this week.

Officer James Wigley, who has been on duty at the police station during the summer months has returned to his beat at East Milton.

All eyes this week are on the Rummage sale of the ladies of St. Catherine's Guild at the store at the corner of Granite place and Adams street. Many desirable articles were shown, and as the prices were reasonable they met ready sale. A good sum was netted as a result of the two days' sale.

Christopher Graham is confined to his home by illness.

Work has been commenced on the section of the sewer throughout the Cunningham and Dowditch estates.

The regular business of the Unquity club will be held next Wednesday evening.

The observance of the Fifth anniversary of the pastorate of W. H. Rogers at the East Milton Baptist church passed off very successfully. The offerings for the day amounted to about $120. More than was asked or expected on this one occasion. The mortgage on the church is being steadily reduced. The congregations were very large, both morning and evening.

The Baptist social on Tuesday evening was a most happy occasion. Dr. Horr of Boston, Pastor Whitehouse of Braintree and Pastor Long of Neponset added much by their words, and Banker Willis gave delightful readings. Refreshments were served.

Secretary Long's Report.

The annual report of Secretary Long says a Washington dispatch to the Herald was completed Wednesday evening. Mr. Long has used the recent report of the construction board, presenting a plan for naval increase, as a basis in his recommendations for new vessels, and while his report does not approve of so many vessels being authorized this session as recommended by the board, he urges a liberal increase of battleships, armored cruisers and smaller vessels. No recommendation is made for either torpedo boat or submarine boats. The defects developed in the former have occasioned much adverse criticism in the navy.

The secretary directs attention to the shortage of officers and recommends that the output of the naval academy be annually increased by authorizing senators to make appointments. Even with an increase of cadets at Annapolis it will be many years before the present large number of vacancies in the lower grades can be appreciably diminished.

Attention is called to the shortage also of men in the navy, and a recommendation is made that a large number additional be authorized.

A Help to Children.

The Educational Publishing Company of Boston, of which Councilman Langelier is the Boston manager, is doing a grand work for the schools of America, with its graded list of books for supplementary reading. There is the literature series with Æsops Fables, Water Babies Stories, the Red children, Hiawatha and such books. The Georgraphy series with "Little Lucy's Wonderful Globe," Science Ladders, etc. History series with stories for youngest readers; stories of great men, great inventors, American pioneers, Colonial children, our authors, etc. The Nature series with "Plant babies," friends of the field, Aunt May's bird talks, stories of animal life, etc.

Supt. Dutton of Brookline schools says: "The American History stories, are, in my opinion among the most valuable aids to the work of introducing history in the lower grades. Reading and language are best developed in connection with what is intensely interesting, and I predict a large demand for books of this sort.

The large clear print, and the extremely low price, make these books of the Educational Publishing Company very popular. Send for catalogue or when in Boston, drop into their rooms at 50 Bromfield steet.

Gov. Crane concurs with Presidsnt Roosevelt in the selection of Thursday, No. 28, for Thanksgiving day.

The Republicans polled over 56 per cent of the entire vote cast in the state on Thursday: the Democrats less than 36 per cent.

The Epworth league of the West Quincy Methodist church hold a harvest supper at the church next Wednesday evening.

The Rummage sale which was so successful at Wollaston last year will be repeated in the vestry of the Unitarian church next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Teasdale of Dorchester are the guests of West Quincy relatives for a few days, prior to their departure for the Adirondacks.

The vote of the Social Democrats and Socialist Labor parties in the State on Tuesday will entitle them both to make caucus nominations next year.

The Registrars of Voters met in Ward Three Thursday night, but had little to do. Two names were added to the voting lists and two names were restored.

The Quincy church goers will have the privilege of hearing Dr. Allbright of Boston, at Bethany church Sunday morning. Dr. Allbright exchanges with Mr. Hardy.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Hinkley and daughter, who have been the guests of Howard G. Hinkley of Standish avenue have gone to California for the winter.

Charles Wood, who was burned out Saturday night and was insured through the agency of Charles H. Johnson, received a check for $325 this morning to cover his loss.

As Marshall P. Wright was elected on the board of County Commissioners to fill a vacancy he will probably take his seat as soon as the proper canvassing board passes upon the election returns.

This week's instalment of the home study course in American Literature is devoted to Washington Irving, the humorist and historian. It has an illustrated sketch of the author. See Saturday's eight-page Ledger.

The quick returns at the Ward One Republican caucus continue to be one of the nine-day wonders, and the caucus officers are receiving words of praise, and many inquiries as to how so large a vote was counted so quickly.

Mr. Henry F. Barker will play the following selections at the Unity club meeting tonight at the Wollaston Unitarian church vestry: Concerto, Accolay; Serenade, Moszkowski; Mazur, Mlynarski. Miss Bertha Hanson will accompany him on the piano.

A large gathering partook of a most appetizing supper at the Wollaston Baptist church Thursday evening. Twelve tables were fully occupied from six to seven o'clock. The orchestra which was to furnish the music for the evening failed to appear and the young folks entertained themselves by singing late songs.

Mrs. Harry E. Winslow entertained the Entre Nous whist club, Wednesday afternoon, at her home on Edwards street. Prizes were taken by Mrs. E. P. Henderson, Mrs. Shirley Nutting of Quincy and Mrs. Pratt of Weymouth. Refreshments were served. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Dexter Groves of Chestnut street.

"Last winter an infant child of mine had croup in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist, of Filley, Mo. "I gave her a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and in a short time all danger was past and the child recovered." This remedy not only cures croup but when given as soon as the first symptoms appear, will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

THE DUDLEY GANG.

They Will be Sentenced Today for Burglaries.

Quincy people can rest assured of one thing, and that is their houses will not be burglarized by the so-called "Dudley gang" for some time. Herbert S. Dudley, Kenneth McLean and Frank B. Gordon, the three men composing the gang, have plead guilty to an indictment of the Middlesex grand jury charging them with twenty-five breaks in that county and today they will receive their sentences.

Besides the 25 breaks in Middlesex county, the gang has confessed to breaks in other places, including Quincy and Milton. On the latter cases the men were brought to Quincy a few days ago and pleaded guilty to the complaints upon which they were arraigned. Warrants were also issued against them for other breaks in Quincy, and if the gang ever gets before the Norfolk grand jury these cases will be brought against them.

It will probably be years, however, before they finish the sentences which they will receive today, and by that time many will have forgotten the matter.

Hundreds of dollars worth of goods were stolen by these men, and when the police searched their effects, large quantities of silverware and jewelry were recovered.

Quincy families who had been victims, visited police headquarters in Boston and were able to recognize some of the articles that had been stolen from them. Some of the goods, however, were not recovered and probably never will be.

The arrest and conviction of these fellows is of more than local interest from the fact that two of them, at least, have made their homes here.

To Move a Stone House.

It is not often that a stone building is moved nowadays, but a dispatch to the Herald from Marquette, Mich., reads: It is stated by a close friend that J. M. Longyear the well-known capitalist and mine owner probably the wealthiest man in the upper peninsula, contemplates the removal of his palatial home, overlooking Lake Superior, to Brookline, Mass. Mr. Longyear is at present out of the city. One of the causes given for Mr. Longyear's determination is that he considers that he is discriminated against in the matter of taxation.

The Longyear mansion was built 10 years ago, at a cost, including the beautifying of the grounds, of over $500,000. It is built of native sandstone, and the interior finishing is of the best. The Longyears were bitterly opposed to the building of the Marquette & Southeastern railroad along the lake in front of their property. Now that the road has been built, it is his alleged plan to move the house, literally stone by stone, to the East.

CARNEGIE'S BIG SCHOOL

Thirty-three Millions For the Pittsburg Institution.

TRUSTEE OUTLINES THE PLANS.

The Greatest Polytechnic Institute In the World Is What the Ironmaster Has In View—Building to Cost From $5,000,000 to $8,000,000—An Endowment of $25,000,000.

Plans and estimates for a Pittsburg polytechnic institute, says the New York Herald, are being prepared at the request of Andrew Carnegie which call for an outlay of from $5,000,000 to $8,000,000 for buildings and an endowment fund of $25,000,000 more for maintenance. Mr. Carnegie is now on his way to this country. When he reaches Pittsburg, the committee, which has for several months been busily engaged, will make a report to him. It is believed by the citizens of Pittsburg that an institution is to be founded which will be the means of educating thousands of skilled artisans.

Judge Josiah Cohen of the orphans' court of Pittsburg, who is a member of the committee appointed at the request of Mr. Carnegie, is in New York. He was seen at the Majestic hotel. He admitted that the committee had made considerable progress in preparing its report for Mr. Carnegie, but was reticent when asked for the exact details.

Judge Cohen is a trustee of the Carnegie institute, which is now in operation. On account of their experience the trustees of the institute were asked to ascertain what would be required for the founding of a polytechnic institute.

"It is proposed," said Judge Cohen, "to found in Pittsburg, which I consider the greatest industrial city in the world, an institution for the training and education of apprentices and students in all trades. Such an institution will require at least sixty acres of ground for the various buildings necessary. The ground will be given by the city of Pittsburg in all probability. The proximity of so many industrial establishments to Pittsburg, as well as the fact that there are so many manufacturing establishments in the city itself, makes Pittsburg pre-eminently an appropriate place for a great polytechnic institution.

"It will be necessary to have many departments. Mr. Carnegie asked the trustees of the Carnegie institute to determine what courses of study should be pursued, what structures should be built and how much money would be required to maintain such an institution."

According to the plans there are to be a college, a school and day and night schools for apprentices. These will give an opportunity for young men to obtain a thorough training in any of the trades which they may choose.

Judge Cohen did not know when a definite report would be made to Mr. Carnegie. The Carnegie institute, which has done much for the education of the people of Pittsburg along the lines of music and art, has on many occasions been in receipt of millions of dollars from Mr. Carnegie. The polytechnic school is intended to follow more practical lines and to educate the young men of the country in trades. Pittsburg alone has many establishments where a high grade of skill is required, such as glass blowing, ironworking and the building of machinery. The course of instruction will not only include training in the various mechanical processes, but the college will furnish the theories and the principles on which the practical work is based.

Mr. Carnegie's benefactions extend over a period of twenty years, and he has given to various institutions and cities more than $30,000,000. He has contributed large sums to the maintenance of libraries in many of the cities of the country, and only recently he gave to New York $5,500,000 for library purposes. He has assisted the universities of Scotland, and his contributions to the cause of education in this country are many. It is his object to induce others to give at the same time that he does, and thus he has been the means of placing many an institution of learning upon a substantial basis. The chief doctrine by which he is guided in all his works of benevolence is that it is best to teach people the best way of helping themselves.

For this reason Mr. Carnegie always has been interested in technical education. He has followed the work of trade schools all over the world. He recently contributed $300,000 to Cooper Union, which has for many years been equipping young men and women for useful callings.

Grave and Solemn Suitors These.

In a mining camp some eighty miles from Coolgardie, in Western Australia, a carpenter died, and his widow had offers of marriage from the doctor who attended the deceased, the undertaker, the clergyman who read the burial service, the local apothecary who made up the medicine prescribed for the departed and the custodian of the cemetery where he was interred; likewise from about a score of mine managers and miners. She did not accept one of the suitors and departed for her home in Melbourne.

She Itemized the Damages.

A suit has been brought by Miss Keller, aged seventeen years, for $5,000 damages against Henry Borrel at Reading, Pa. The plaintiff alleges that last June Borrel came in her mother's house and tried to kiss her. She objected and alleges that she fell off the porch, striking a paling fence and was internally injured.

Athletes and Giants.

Athletes are short lived, and giants seldom live out the allotted time of threescore and ten. They expend too much of their vitality.

A Copying Ink.

To make an ink which will copy on dry paper, mix together aniline black, water soluble, 30 parts; aniline blue, water soluble, 2 parts; ammonia alum, 16 parts; glycerin, 1,000 parts, and water enough to make 3,000 parts.

Early Silks.

Silk thread fabrics were brought from southern Persia and India to Greece as early as 325 B. C.

Alaskan Violins.

The Alaska Indians have a violin closely resembling in form the primitive instrument of the same kind used among the Persians and Turks. It has two strings and is played with a small bow.

The Orange.

The orange came to Europe from Africa about the year 1630. It was not known in England till the sixteenth century and was first planted in Australia in 1788.

Trade In Skulls.

A fairly brisk trade exists in England in skulls, and they fetch anything from 3 shillings to £5, according to their antiquity and rarity. Medical students are not the only persons who purchase them, for they are bought by private people and by museum authorities.

Strength of Granite.

It takes a weight of 24,500 pounds to crush a half inch cube of granite.

The Burmese Soung.

The Burmese soung is a harp, the body being modeled like a boat, with a long, high prow. The instrument has a scale from low A in the bass clef to F in the G clef. It is used to accompany vocal music.

Fleas and Dogs.

If your dog has fleas, wash him with an infusion of coculus indicus or with coal oil and then with soap and warm water.

Lancewood.

The strongest known wood is said to be lancewood. Its tensile strength per square inch is 23,000 pounds—that is to say, that weight is required to tear asunder a piece of it one inch square.

Hail and Bombs.

The plan of destroying hail clouds by exploding bombs among them was suggested nearly 100 years ago by Professor Parrot of Riga.

Hiccough.

For this affection, which is so often provokingly obstinate, close the ears with the tips of the fingers, exert a certain pressure therewith, and at the same time drink in small drafts any sort of a liquid offered by another person, and the hiccough will cease instantaneously.

The Skylark.

The skylark sometimes sings during winter, and there is a Scottish proverb which runs to the effect that if it be heard before Candlemas there will be bad weather after that period.

Shorn Tipplers.

Madrid has a law by which habitual drunkards have their heads shaved every four weeks.

"Pilgrim's Progress."

Bunyan took the otherwise unemployed hours of three years to finish "Pilgrim's Progress," which was written almost entirely in Bedford jail. The "Holy War" required but one year.

The Letter "E."

"E" is the most common letter. In 1,000 letters "e" occurs 137 times in English, 184 times in French, 145 in Spanish, 178 in German.

Pepper and Cream.

A dash of black pepper, says an old housekeeper, greatly improves vanilla ice cream.

Cast Iron Plows.

Cast iron plows were first made in this country in 1797 and were greatly objected to from the belief that the cast iron poisoned the ground and prevented the plants from growing.

Bolivia's Tin Mines.

The Bolivian tin mines are situated at an altitude of 14,000 feet above sea level in the departments of Oruro, Potosi, La Paz and Cochabamaba.

The Best Lumber.

The best lumber in a tree is said to be the nearest the ground.

The Danes.

The Danes as a nation may be said never to have been conquered unless perhaps by the Prussians in 1864, but their offshoots in Sweden and Norway have both conquered and been conquered by the original race.

The Mexican Republic.

There are 33 museums, 139 libraries, 40 scientific and literary societies and 702 newspapers in the Mexican republic.

Saving Coal.

There is a simple method of making half a ton of coal go as far as fifteen hundredweight. The plan is to place a quantity of chalk in the grates. Once heated this is practically inexhaustible from combustion and gives out great heat.

Round the World by Mail.

A postal card sent from Paris to Paris via Moscow, Vladivostok and San Francisco made the trip around the world in eighty days at a cost of 2 cents.

Jenkins Defeats McLeod

Cleveland, Nov. 8.—Tom Jenkins last night won the catch-as-catch-can championship of the world when he defeated Dan McLeod, an opponent, who gave him the severest struggle of his wrestling career. Jenkins weighed 190 pounds and McLeod about 170, but despite the difference in their weights the Scotchman gave his Cleveland adversary a struggle that roused the onlookers to intense enthusiasm. The event was for a purse of $2500 and the championship, 75 percent to the winner and 25 to the loser.

TOM JENKINS.

More Trouble For Chandler

New York, Nov. 8.—It is understood that John Armstrong Chandler will make application to the courts here within a short time to have the New York committee, Prescott Hall Butler, discharged from the control of his property and this property restored to him. Mr. Chandler's family will oppose such application. The decision in Virginia, affirming his sanity, will have no effect on any proceedings in this state.

Counsel Ammon Arrested

New York, Nov. 8.—Robert A. Ammon, counsel for William F. Miller of the failed "Franklin Syndicate," was arrested at the hearing to inquire into the assets of the failed brokerage firm of Seymour, Johnson & Co. Assistant District Attorney Byrne announced that Ammon was arrested on the charge of receiving stolen goods, knowing them to have been stolen.

Russia Sees a Setback

St. Petersburg, Nov. 8.—The newspapers here anticipate that, following the lead of France, other powers will discover claims against Turkey. The Russian newspapers generally welcome the French naval demonstration in Turkish waters, as a setback to what the Rossiya terms "German pretentions in Turkey."

The Brakenlaagte Fight

London, Nov. 8.—Lord Kitchener, cabling supplementary details of the recent fight near Brakenlaagte, says: "The Boer loss was 44 killed, including General Opperman and 100 wounded. The Boers got nothing beyond the guns. The Boer attack was easily repulsed until the arrival of Louis Botha with 600 men."

Acknowledges Theft of $57,000

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 8.—Charles D. Thompson, treasurer and supreme finance keeper of the supreme tent Knights of Maccabees, has confessed that his accounts are short $57,000. He has written a letter to Supreme Commander Markey acknowledging the shortage.

A LOSS TO THE WORLD

Earl Li Understood How to Deal With Foreigners

WAS THOROUGH CHINAMAN

Used Best Efforts Toward Strengthening Empire—Possessed Great Patience and Was Not Greatly Bothered by Conscientious Scruples

Pekin, Nov. 8.—The end of Li Hung Chang was quiet. His vitality slowly ebbed. For a time he lost consciousness, but he showed great tenacity, rallied at midnight, became semiconscious, partook of nourishment and appeared to recognize his relatives.

The flames of the procession of paper effigies, chairs, horses and bearers, burned in the courtyard of the Yamen to carry his spirit to Heaven, told the crowd of officials who were gathered in the narrow street outside that the end had come. Soon afterward a procession appeared, bearing a costly coffin of teak wood, beautifully lacquered. This coffin Li Hung Chang took on his trip around the world and he brought it from Canton when he came to Pekin to settle the Boxer trouble. Since that time it had been kept in the temple here. The body was placed in the coffin this morning with the customary rites.

The interment will be made at the birthplace of the dead statesman, a little village in the province of An-Hui. The time has not yet been decided upon.

The ministers of the powers are personally sending messages of sympathy. The first letter received at the Chinese foreign office came from Mr. Conger, the United States minister, saying that Secretary Hay had instructed him to tender the regrets of President Roosevelt and the United States government at the death of the great viceroy.

There are no signs of mourning in the city, although the populace is considerably excited.

The ministers of the powers consider Yuan Shi Kai the strongest man in China after Li Hung Chang and they think his presence here would have a good influence on the court, but they fear the results from removing him from the province of Shan Tung, the most turbulent province in the empire and the seat of the Boxer movement.

Yuan Shi Kaai has controlled the province with an iron hand. The situation there is particularly delicate on account of the friction with the Germans; and the substitution of a man with less tact would doubtless mean uprisings and a conflict between the Chinese and the Germans.

The death of Li Hung Chang is doubly regretted because he was the only influential Chinaman who could deal with foreign governments with an appreciation of the foreign point of view.

Li was at times the supreme actual authority, emperor in power but not in name; but he was a thorough Chinaman, with so close a knowledge of his countrymen that he was content with the substance while it lasted and never bothered himself about the trappings. In the course of the 40 years which had passed between his great part in the Chinese drama and his death he knew many vicissitudes. He held high office and he suffered degradation, but he was philosophical in both and waited patiently for time to bring round the opportunity for his reinstatement. His knowledge of foreigners and foreign ways was his great value. He was valuable to China and to foreigners, too. If Pekin was loaaht to call him into power, the foreigners pressed for his appointment because he was a man with whom they were best able to do business. They knew him and were used to him. He was eminently a good man of business, seeing at once the heart of a question and knowing how to get at it without offending the susceptibilities of his countrymen.

Li did not love the foreigners. He was not their enemy; but, on the other hand, he was not particularly their friend. Their ways, so far as they could be applied to the strengthening of China, he was anxious to adopt. Foreigners appealed to his head but not to his heart. To him it was clear that a steamer was better than a junk; that a railroad was better than packhorses; that the telegraph was to be preferred to the ancient method of transmitting correspondence by relays of couriers. He designed that all these improvements should be for China and for her strength.

His patience was one of his great qualities. If the people of any place where a railroad was building came to Li and told him that the earth trembled, and that the work disturbed the sleeping dragon who would arouse himself and do great havoc, Li only stopped that enterprise until superstition had abated. He could then point out that the dragon had permitted the rails to be put down in some other place, and the protested enterprise was resumed.

Judged by what he had sought to do for China, Li must be deemed to have failed if we can measure results by their present value. The navy built up by him was knocked to pieces by the Japanese; the foreign trained army was valueless; the railroads have aided foreigners. The policy of peace with foreigners until China should be strong enough to meet them either in war or trade on something approaching equal terms went to pieces in the mad outbreak at Pekin, and the last public service with which Li was identified was the negotiation of a treaty of peace on terms that stripped China of her military resources and mortgaged her revenues to foreign powers. Yet possibly this strong man may have planted a seed yet to germinate for the benefit of his country and the world.

It is the fashion to write and speak of Li as if he were a man of western culture that in some mysterious way had been dropped into the chair of Chinese authority, but in reality he was an oriental. He was subtle, not bothered by scruples; daring, where he felt himself unquestionably strong; obsequious, where obsequiousness would serve; tolerant of corruption where corruption was the inducement that held an agent loyal to him; and eminently "practical" in building up his own fortune, variously estimated at from $50,000,000 to ten times that sum, by using the worst methods at the time best for him. The world knew him for almost 40 years, and yet he remains to be known.

Such a career and such service as he rendered to his country could only be possible to a man of pronounced and conspicuous ability. He made a great impression on General Grant when he saw him on his visit to China during his tour of the world after the Civil war, and a strong friendship grew up between the two great men, one of the east and one of the west. Subsequently he made a similar impression on the whole civilized world. In the summer of 1896 his tour through Europe and the United States was a triumphant one. Everywhere he was received with distinguished honor. At Moscow he participated in the ceremonies incident upon the coronation of Czar Nicholas II, and he was the guest of the head of the empire while at St. Petersburg, every courtesy having been shown him by the nation at large. From Russia he went to Berlin, where the kaiser personally welcomed him. He was the guest of Bismarck at Freidrichsruhe. In Paris he was enthusiastically welcomed and the republic vied with the empires of Russia and Germany to do him honor. The president gave him a banquet at the Elysee, and a great military review was held especially for him. In England the queen entertained him, giving him a special audience at Osborne, the Prince of Wales took him upon a cruise in the royal yacht, and a naval demonstration upon a grand scale was organized for him. Lord Salisbury gave a garden party for him and Mr. Gladstone entertained him at Hawarden castle. While in London the distinguished visitor placed a wreath upon the tomb of his old friend, General Gordon. He visited the United States in the latter part of August, 1896, and was received as the nation's greatest guest. He visited the tomb of General Grant, and thereon placed a magnificent wreath. He made a short visit to Washington, and visited Niagara Falls and other places of interest.

WITHOUT RESISTANCE

France Lands Marines and Occupies Customs at Midilli

Paris, Nov. 8.—A dispatch from Admiral Caillard has just been received, announcing that he landed marines on island of Mitylene yesterday and occupied the customs at Midilli with out resistance.

The French government has received satisfactory replies from all the powers without exception, to its note explaining the measures taken against Turkey. An excellent impression has been created in official circles by the tone of the response of the United States, which is couched in the most friendly terms.

Pressure of 1100 Pounds to Inch

Weston, W. Va., Nov. 8.—What is said to be the largest natural gas well in the world is now flowing near Weston. The roar of the escaping gas prevents persons living two miles away from sleeping, and men working near the well stuff their ears with cotton to keep their hearing. The pressure of the gas seems to be 1100 pounds to the square inch. When the gas was struck at a depth of 3000 feet, it blew out the tools and the cable, weighing altogether four and a half tons.

Life Sentence For Old Man

Fort Wayne, Ind., Nov. 8.—Charles Dunn was yesterday found guilty of murder and sentenced to the penitentiary for life. Dunn was charged with the murder of Alice Cothrell, aged 10, whose body was fished from a cistern beneath Dunn's kitchen at Wallen. The body bore evidence of criminal assault. Dunn is 61 years old.

ROBERT BALL'S VIEWS.

British Astronomer Interviewed by Professor Serviss.

THE DISCOVERIES OF AMERICANS.

They Are the Most Important of Recent Developments, Declares the Visiting Savant—Refers to Professor Keeler's Nebular Contributions to the Stellar Science.

Sir Robert Ball, astronomer royal for Ireland—he is an Irishman whose Celtic wit finds inspiration in the scintillation of the heavenly bodies—Lowndean professor of astronomy in the University of Cambridge, England, and author of many astronomical books, writes Professor Garrett P. Serviss in the New York Journal, came here to attend Yale's celebration, to visit some of our great observatories and to give lectures. When he says that America is now at the head of astronomical advance, the statement may be accepted as expressing the opinion that prevails in the land that nurtured that great autocrat of astronomy, Sir William Herschel. The scepter of Herschel, with the opening of the twentieth century, has passed to the western shore of the Atlantic.

"What in your opinion is the greatest advance that astronomy has recently made?" Professor Serviss asked.

"It is what you Americans have been doing," replied Sir Robert Ball. "It is the work accomplished by your Professor Keeler at the great Lick observatory in California. I don't know of anything in astronomy so important as what he did a little before his death, when he took the Crossley telescope, which came from Mr. Common's in England, and with it discovered the nebular wonders of the heavens.

"We knew before that there were nebulæ, but we did not know how immense was their number. A few of the larger ones, visible with telescopes, had been studied, but they were comparatively rare phenomena among the multitudes of the stars. Then came Keeler with his Crossley photographing telescope and suddenly pictured the nebulæ for us by thousands. From the sample that he got he estimated that there must be at least 120,000 nebulæ within the reach of that telescope.

"But the discovery of nebulæ in such enormous numbers is not all. Keeler found, as you know, that about one-half of them are spiral in shape. Now, that seems to me a discovery of immense importance and significance. I do not know of anything that can be compared with it in the recent advance of astronomy. It is particularly interesting because of the light that it throws upon the origin of the solar system. It has a special importance for us because it tells us something of the beginnings and the manner of formation of such systems.

"I remember very well," Sir Robert continued, "when there was a disposition to discredit the existence of such things as spiral nebulæ. Fifty years ago the greatest telescope in the world was Lord Rosse's, at Parsonstorm, in Ireland. And Lord Rosse, with his great telescope, which was the wonder of the world at that time, discovered a few nebulæ having the form of spirals. His description and drawings of them made a great deal of talk. Very few observers could have the privilege of seeing them. There was no other telescope in existence powerful enough to show them, and many persons suspected that there was some illusion concerned and refused to believe that such things could exist. A spiral shaped nebula was too wonderful a phenomenon to be readily believed in.

"Lord Rosse was right, of course, and those things actually did exist, and gradually more of them were found. We began to discover them by twos and by threes. But, all told, the number of them was small, and they seemed to be exceptional phenomena and by no means characteristic of the structure of things in the heavens.

"And thus the case remained for years, until suddenly Professor Keeler comes and astonishes us with his great discovery that spiral nebulæ are scattered thick in space; that they are so numerous, in fact, that one may almost say that a spiral nebula is one of the most characteristic objects in the universe. It seems to be the common plan on which nebulæ are constructed—this plan of the spiral."

"And you regard this discovery as lending support to the nebulæ hypothesis of the origin of our solar system?"

"I most certainly do. I think it furnishes very strong evidence in favor of that theory and goes far to establish it. With Laplace, as you are aware, that theory was purely hypothetical. I do not suppose that Laplace had ever seen a nebula, certainly not a spiral nebula. But think, if he could have seen what Professor Keeler's photographs show—thousands and thousands of such spirals! It is overwhelming!"

"Of course you do not think that the process of evolution in these spiral nebulæ will result in the formation of solar systems exactly like ours?"

"No," replied Sir Robert Ball, "for in the first place the amount of matter involved in them is immensely greater than that constituting our solar system. Those nebulæ will form vastly greater systems of some kind. Enormous suns and Brobdingnagian planets? Well, of that it is impossible to speak."

"Have you any opinion as to the possible extent of the systems resulting from the condensation of the larger class of the spiral nebulæ?"

"They may form new Milky Ways," was the reply.

"In that case their distance from us must be almost infinitely great—far greater than the distance of the stars constituting the Milky Way?"

"To be sure it must," replied Sir Robert, "for we are in the Milky Way, but these nebulæ lie far beyond it. We have no certain parallax of a nebula. We cannot tell how distant they are. Their discovery gives us a much grander conception of the extent of the universe."

"What other great step in advance has astronomy recently made in your opinion?"

"Well, I would instance among other things the progress in the study of the sun. There has, you know, been great advance at the Yerkes observatory, which is now the Mecca of astronomers. The advance is in the direction of solving one of the problems whose solution we would like best to possess, and that is, 'What are the substances contained in the solar corona?' The bulk of the chemical elements that make up the solar system we know here on the earth, and we find a great many of them in the sun, but there are things in the corona of the sun that we do not understand. It is important to find out what they are, and that is one of the great lines of advance of astronomy for today."

"And how about the popular problem of life in other worlds? Do you think there may be inhabitants in such planets as Mars, for instance?"

"I do not see why it is impossible," said Sir Robert. "I see no improbability in Mars having life in some form."

"Would you regard it as being rather some form of vegetation than of animal life?"

"No, I cannot say that. Evidently life might take other forms than those we know of. I don't know that such terms as 'animal' and 'plant' would be applicable to life in another world."

"Assuming that you favor the view that life is not confined to the earth, what do you regard as, perhaps, the strongest argument in favor of its existence elsewhere among the heavenly bodies?"

"Well, the existence of carbon might be regarded as supporting such an argument. Carbon is an element which we find on the earth invariably associated with organic life. We find carbon in every organic substance. Now, carbon is one of the most widely distributed substances in the universe. We find it in the sun and in the stars. It is apparently everywhere. This universal distribution of carbon, the physical basis of organic substances, might be regarded as placing the supposition that life is scattered widely through the universe above the level of a mere guess. Put the argument the other way. Suppose that while we find carbon always characteristic of organic existence on the earth we had no evidence that there was any carbon anywhere else in the universe. Would we not conclude from that fact that there was no life except on the earth? But, as a matter of fact, we do find carbon everywhere in the universe, and so we may conclude that wherever there is carbon, provided the local conditions are favorable, there may be life."

HORSE RACING ALL RIGHT.

Lexington Clergyman Creates Sensation by So Declaring.

Rev. Baker P. Lee, dean of Christ Church cathedral, at Lexington, Ky., has created a sensation in religious circles at that place.

He not only indorsed the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' association, but attended the races during the trotting meeting and watched the operations in the betting ring. He sent a letter of commendation to Secretary Horace W. Wilson of the association, with a five dollar bill inclosed, as his contribution toward the material welfare of the meeting, with the wish that the "mite" was a hundred times as great.

All criticism Dean Lee answered in a sermon in which he compared the lives of John the Baptist and the Saviour and showed how the latter was a man among men and rubbed elbows with publicans and sinners.

Dean Lee is a descendant of the Lees of Virginia and was born at Hampton thirty-three years ago. His father was Baker Perkins Lee, a major in the Confederate service and a distinguished jurist.

Maine Kippered Herring.

A local concern after nearly a year of experimenting, says a Lubec (Me.) dispatch, has finally succeeded in producing kippered herring which have stood the test of the market, and the success of a new Maine industry seems assured. There is every indication that, like the successful imitation of the French sardine, the Maine packers will put upon the market kippered herring to compete successfully with the Scotch and English brands which have heretofore monopolized the markets. The herring used are found in great abundance. They are too large for sardines and, in fact, useless for any merchantable purpose. The supply is almost unlimited. The Maine kippered herring are put up in a package of the same shape as the imported, and the article itself, so far as a novice can see, is fully equal to the Scotch or English pack.

McKinley Autograph Brought $6.25.

For the first time since the death of President McKinley his autograph has been sold at public aution in New York, says The Times. It was included in a lot if Americana and scarce miscellaneous works sold by Bangs & Co. at 91 Fifth avenue. The autograph consisted just of the president's name written in full, "William McKinley," across an original cabinet photograph of him by Sarony. After spirited bidding the item was secured by George D. Smith for $6.25.

THE DEMOCRATS

Make Nominations for City Council.

Peter T. Fallon Wins Out with Stickers.

Delegates Elect Are All Unpledged for Mayoralty.

The Democratic caucuses of last evening are fully reported below. As far as the public know none of the delegates are pledged, and generally have no preference.

WARD ONE.

Just nine voters participated in the Quincy caucus, and some of those had to be drummed up to secure a legal organization. When chairman Cook began to read the call there was not a man present who was eligible as chairman or secretary, as all were candidates for the Ward Committee. F. F. Green drifted in and was elected chairman, and it was 25 minutes before he could secure a secretary. He made nominations himself, and was voted down. If he happened to declare a man elected, the vote was doubted, and the chairman was invariably thrown down. He even counted reporters and republicans who did not participate in the caucus. At 8.10 Walter M. Packard arrived and reluctantly accepted an election as secretary, and the polls were opened. A motion was made to keep the polls open 30 minutes. The chairman suggested that 15 minutes would be long enough, but when the law was quoted to him it was voted that the polls remain open 30 minutes.

Among the nine to vote were Luke J. Coyle, Thomas McDonald, Philip D. Cook, George H. Wilson, Walter B. Wilson, Frank M. Hodges, F. F. Green and W. M. Packard.

The polls closed at 8.40 but the vote was not declared as quickly as at the Republican caucus where 570 voted.

The result was as follows:

Delegates—George H. Wilson, William A. Hodges, A. F. Schenkelberger, Edward Powers, Fred B. Rice, John Murray, Walter B. Wilson, Frederick W. Tirrell, Dennis McGee, Thomas J. Dunphy, Luke J. Coyle, Thomas McDonald

Councilmen—Edward H. Angier, Walter B. Wilson and Frank M. Hodges.

Ward Committee of Nine—Walter B. Wilson. Philip D. Cook, Thomas McDonald. John F. Walsh, James E Dunn, Harold B. Faxon, Luke J. Coyle, F. M Hodges, John W. Fitzgerald,

During the voting the chairman entertained a motion, and declared it carried, which authorized the chairman and secretary of the Ward Committee to fill any vacancy in delegates, candidates for the Council and members of Ward Committee.

After announcing the result he modified it by dropping vacancies in delegates, as delegations fill their own vacancies. He might also have dropped Ward Committees, as they also fill their own vacancies.

Adjourned at 8.57.

WARD TWO.

Quincy Point Democrats had no contest and the caucus resulted as follows:

Delegates—Timothy J. Carey, Michael F. King. Dennis J. Ford, William H. Sampson, Jr., John W. Walsh, Joseph G. Kennedy, Edward P. Connor, William E. Cain, Charles Mullane.

Councilmen—George K Carter, Charles C. Foster, John C. McGuane.

School Committee—Frederick H. Smith.

Ward Committee of Nine—Timothy J. Carey, Dennis J. Ford, Michael F. King. Joseph G. Kennedy, Charles Mullane, William F. Cain, James M. Cleverly, Perry Green, Henry P. Moynihan.

The chairman was W. H. Sampson, Jr., and the secretary William H. Sullivan.

WARD THREE.

There was a small attendance at the South Quincy Democratic caucus compared with the usual attendances at caucuses in this ward. There was a contest over delegates to the Mayoralty convention and for Ward Committee, but even this did not bring out many, as less than 75 votes were cast.

William A. Kelly called the caucus to order and read the call. John J. Dasey was elected chairman and Richard Gray, clerk. The inspectors elected were: Michael Donahue, John Gallagher, Daniel Doherty and John Gill. The polls were kept open half an hour.

The delegates elect: William A. Kelly, Henry Clare, James E. Maxim, John Boyle, George D. Cahill, David J. Flowers, Andrew W. Howley, James P. Dougherty, James F. Parker, Thomas F. Shea, Albion I. Dixon, Andrew S. Costa, Patrick W. Driscoll.

For Councilman: Edward H. McGinty.

For School Committee: Mabel E. Adams, Dennis P. Donahue.

Ward Committee: William A. Kelly, George D. Cahill, Andrew W. Howley, Henry Clare, James P. Dougherty, Timothy F. Ford, Michael J. Hartrey, David J. Flowers.

WARD FOUR.

The largest attended caucus was at West Quincy, where 141 ballots were cast. It was interesting from the fact that unbeknown to many ex-Councilman Peter T. Fallon appeared and entered the contest for Councilman, and was successful in winning out. Mr. Fallon's name did not appear upon the official ballot, but he had his name printed upon stickers. These were circulated and 125 of them were used. It so happened that on thirty-seven of the ballots the voters neglected to put a cross against Mr. Fallon's name, and the caucus officers threw them out. Mr. Fallon, however, received 88 votes.

The vote between the three names on the ballot was very close, there being but four votes difference between the lowest and the highest man. Of these three, William P. Hughes received 67 votes, James H. Elcock 65 and William H. Callahan 63.

After the vote had been announced Mr. Fallon made one of his characteristic speeches, in which he scored the policy of reckless extravagancies of the present Council, and promised to question carefully every expenditure of money during the next year.

John W. Burke was chairman of the caucus and Joseph Keating was secretary. The counters were: Matthew Morrissey, Dennis Ford, Dennis Shea, Jr., William J. Hayes and Joseph McNeeley.

The result of the caucus was as follows:

Delegates—James H. Elcock, William P. Hughes, Richard H. Walsh, John J. Dugan, James F. Burke, James S. Fennesey, Michael Arnold, William T. Shea, John H. Ash, Peter T. Fallon, Peter J Gilraine, John McGilvery, Philip Garrity, James A. White, Timothy Driscoll, William J. Callahan, William J. Dell, Richard H. Walsh, John Corcoran.

Councilmen—James H. Elcock, Peter T. Fallon, William P. Hughes.

Ward Committee of Nine—James F. Burke, Cornelius Crowley, John J Dugan, Timothy E. Driscoll, Henry M. Hughes, James P. Dillon, Jr., Martin A. King, William T. Shea, John E. McDonald.

WARD FIVE.

The Democrats of Wollaston either forgot that their party was to have a caucus last night or they all voted at Republican caucus Wednesday night for there were not enough present to hold a respectable caucus. The only persons to put in an appearance was the chairman and secretary of the Ward Committee. There was no contest.

Delegates elected: David J. Roche, Carruth street, Thomas Collagan, Woodbine street, James Maloney, Fayette street. John McCormick, Gilmore street, Daniel O'Meara, E. Elm avenue, William J. Collagan, Gilmore street.

For Ward Committee: David J. Roche, Carruth street, Daniel O'Meara, E. Elm avenue, John B. McCormick, Gilmore street, Jeremiah Deuneen, Fayette street, James Maloney Fayette street, Francis R. McCormick, Gilmore street, Edward Twitchell, Highland avenue, Clinton Jones, Marion Street, William J. Collagan, Gilmore street.

WARD SIX.

A baker's dozen was present at the caucus in Atlantic. There was no contest for either delegates or Ward Committee, and no nominations were made for Councilmen.

Michael J. Canty was chairman of the caucus and Norman McLane secretary.

The result:

Delegates elected: Stephen H. Edwards, Jr., Martin W. Cunniff, Charles A. Duggan, Bernard Cullen, Thomas Hayes, Lawrence Curtin.

For Ward Committe: Martin W. Cunniff, Stephen H. Edwards, Jr., Bernard Cullen, John Canty, Mathew Ryan, Michael Hayes, Charles Duggan, Edmund A. Shea, Robert Clifford.

Surprise Party.

At their home, 54 Rodman street, last night, Mr. and Mrs. D. M. McLeod were agreeably surprised by a number of their friends who took the liberty to call and pay their respects and incidently to place in Mrs. McLeod's front parlor an elegant wine colored plush Morris chair for her own use.

Mr. McLeod in behalf of his wife thanked the party for their kndly rememberance of his wife; he also welcomed them to enjoy the privilege of his house for the evening.

A very pleasant time was spent until an early hour in the morning. Refreshments were abundantly served.

THE STOLEN DYNAMO

A Story of an Inventor and a Thief.

Extract from the "Agony Column" of The Daily Telephone, Dec. 1, 1898:

Dynamo—Am searching for you and intend to kill you. When we come face to face, east, west, north or south, I will take my lawful vengeance.
VICTIM.

The electrical engineering works of Messrs. Bradley, Headstone & Co., limited, were situated in Little John street, Westminster. All day long, from 6 a. m. to 5 p. m., you might hear the constant whir, whir of machinery, the shrill cry of the circular saw, the rattling and groaning of the belting as it flew round overhead, below and all around. All day long you might see tired men and boys bending over their lathes or vises, their faces as gray as the gray skies of Westminster, worn, weary and hopeless.

It is perhaps time that some act of parliament should get more reasonable working conditions for busy toilers, for, no matter how zealously inclined, workers cannot thrive properly on the small amount of sleep necessarily involved by the present hours of labor, and the worn, haggard faces of the men show plainly how small is the amount of rest they enjoy as compared with the work performed during the day. Go any morning a journey eastward in one of the workmen's trains and see what the men are doing as they travel toward their toil. Reading? No. Smoking? No. Talking, joking, quarreling? No. Not at all. Merely sleeping, endeavoring to catch a few moments more of oblivion before the day opens for them and the old task claims them once more. Surely such a life is drudgery indeed, and the wonder is that the constitution is able to bear it for so long a time.

The 5:30 a. m. train from Hammersmith to Westminster bore its usual complement of dozing men one showery morning in April, but there was a certain man seated in a corner of a third class carriage whose wakefulness touched the abnormal. His eyes glowed with the lurid light of excitement, his cheeks burned with suppressed fever; for John Steele was debating in his brain the details of an invention which if successful would revolutionize the world of electrical generation.

The man was a genius, and he was contemplating the formation of a new dynamo machine the simplicity and economy of which would only be equaled by its enormous power of production. Nearly all the expensive elements of dynamo construction would be eliminated from his new process, and it seemed to him as he sat on the hard bench and dreamed dreams that fame and fortune were close at hand now.

For six years he had toiled in the armature winding room at Messrs. Bradley, Headstone & Co.'s huge factory, taking small rest and no diversion. While his shopmates spent their evenings at music halls, theaters or drinking saloons he sat rigidly at work in his silent lodging, concentrating himself with well nigh superhuman energy on the details of his invention.

And now all was completed. The last word of the specification had been traced, the last line of the working drawings penciled out. The toil of six weary years of long, arduous days and hot, feverish nights had touched its end. Today he was to interview Mr. Philip Headstone, the junior director of the firm, and to lay before him the details of the apparatus. A small brown paper parcel lay beside the inventor. The parcel contained all the data and drawings in connection with the dynamo. He stroked the package with loving hands.

"Little parcel," he murmured, "you are going to bring me all that makes life worth living. Money, fame and glory all lie within you, for my dynamo shall revolutionize the world. I know it—I know it—I know it."

He patted the parcel again and then lapsed into thoughts which brought a scarlet tinge of joy to his pallid cheek.

* * * * * * *

Toward noon the inventor took his way to the boardroom and tapped at the door. "Come in," said a quiet, well modulated voice, and a moment later John Steele stood in the presence of the junior director, who eyed him keenly.

"Oh, ah, of course," he remarked carelessly. "You've come to speak to me about that fancy of yours in connection with the dynamo, eh, my man?"

"I hope and believe that it is something more than a fancy, sir," replied Steele, speaking in a low, firm tone; "but you shall see for yourself."

Mr. Philip Headstone whistled a few bars from an opera which he had heard on the previous evening and then drew forth his cigar case.

"Fire away, my good chap," he said as he lit the weed, "but don't be longer than you can help, for I have to be in the city in an hour's time."

"Ten minutes will suffice, sir, to show you all there is to see."

"Good. Brevity is the soul of specifications, eh? But, first of all, before I glance at the papers, let me hear your verbal description of your masterpiece."

Steele did not appreciate the bantering tone in which the young man spoke, but naturally he could not very well criticise his employer's words. He therefore held his peace for a moment and then proceeded to explain in a few well chosen words the details of his scheme.

Headstone's eyes glistened with amazement as the marvelous plan was unfolded to him, for his quick perception took in the fact that this obscure workman had solved at last the problem which the world's wisest electricians had been unable to solve, the production of electrical power at infinitesimal cost. But he checked the enthusiastic praises that hovered on his lips, for already a subtle plan was germinating in his brain, and too much enthusiasm might be fatal to its working.

He therefore merely nodded his head in careless fashion—opined that "there might be something in the idea, though it was just a trifle fantastic"—and then turned to examine the drawings and specifications which Steele had placed upon the table. Having inspected these documents for some little time, he glanced hurriedly at his watch.

"I must be off now," he cried abruptly. "Just leave me these papers, and I'll look into them this evening at home."

Before Steele could utter a word of remonstrance he had bounced on his hat, gathered up the papers and thrust them into the breast pocket of his frock coat. Following him to the door, the inventor ejaculated hastily:

"But surely, sir, you cannot do anything with them in the city. Let me have them back now, and I will tie them up in readiness for your return to the works."

"My good man, I don't intend returning to the works this afternoon. I'm going straight home after I leave the city. Come, surely you can trust your employer, can't you?"

Without waiting for an answer to this ironically phrased question the young man darted down the staircase and hailed a passing hansom. Steele slowly returned to his workshop, his brow wrinkled with thought.

"He didn't seem to think much of the idea," he pondered, "and yet he appeared in a violent hurry to collar the papers. However, it'll be all right, of course."

But had John Steele been priviliged to follow the progress of Philip Headstone's hansom he would not have comforted himself with the assurance that everything was "all right," for Headstone drove straight to the office of a well known patent agent and, thrusting the specifications and drawings of the dynamo into that gentleman's hands, ordered him to take out protection for the apparatus without a moment's delay in his name.

In other words, the junior director of Bradley, Headstone & Co., limited, was an unprincipled scoundrel, and he had stolen the invention confided to him by his employee.

* * * * * * *

Next morning Steele went straight to the boardroom and asked Headstone for his decision regarding the apparatus. The latter stared at him with an admirable assumption of amazement.

"To what papers do you refer, my man?" he inquired coolly. "Upon my word I cannot imagine what you are driving at."

Steele gazed at him in hopeless amazement.

"Are you joking, sir?" he asked thickly as a mighty terror began to shiver through his being. "Surely you must remember that I handed you yesterday morning all the papers connected with my invention."

"I remember nothing of the sort. You are mad or drunk, perhaps both. Leave this room at once, and if you come here again with your ridiculous insinuations I will have you turned out of the factory by a policeman." In one awful instant of illumination the truth forced itself into John Steele's brain. The man who stood before him had played him a subtle and disgraceful trick, and he had fallen into the trap with abrupt swiftness.

"You scoundrel!" he breathed hoarsely as he swayed toward his employer. "Give me back my invention or I will kill you where you stand."

Headstone leaped back with a quick movement and rang his bell. A moment later the two men were struggling in deadly combat, but the arrival of the office boy who answered the bell and who promptly departed for assistance put an end to the encounter. Steele was pinioned by a couple of stalwart fellow workmen, and a constable was summoned from the street.

"I give this man in charge for assaulting me," cried Philip Headstone as he brushed from his clothes the dust that the struggle on the floor had brought there. "Take him away."

The blue coated official shook his head. "There ain't been no bloodshed as I can see, sir," he replied stolidly, "and your only remedy is to summon this man for the assault. I can see 'im off the premises if that's what you want, but nothin' else."

"Only take him out of my sight, and I don't care what you do with him," cried Headstone angrily. "And look here, my man," he added, turning to Steele, who, white to the lips, stood rigid and silent, "if ever you show your face in these works again I'll have you kicked out. Now be off and thank your lucky stars if I don't prosecute you."

"Mr. Headstone," he said in a voice which trembled with passion, "it is your turn today, but mine will come in the future, and then take heed to yourself, for I will have no mercy on you."

The policeman laid a heavy hand on the speaker's shoulder.

"Come, my lad, no threats," he said quietly. "You'd best go before you make matters worse."

Steele went down the stairs like a man in a dream. The invention which was as dear to him as his lifeblood had been stolen from him by the man whom he had trusted, and it seemed to him as he stood motionless in the gray street that there was no possibility of unmasking the thief. He had never mentioned the invention to his acquaintances. He had not a single proof at his disposal to point to the ownership of the same, and, after all, in a court of law it would simply be a case of his own word against the word of Philip Headstone. Possession was nine points of the law, and Headstone possessed the all important documents. There was nothing to be done—nothing to be done.

When he reached his lodgings, he found there a letter from a solicitor saying that his uncle had passed away in Liverpool and had left him the sum of £500. He tossed aside the communication with a bitter laugh.

"If that note had come two days ago," he muttered, "I should not have gone to Philip Headstone for help in bringing out the dynamo. Now it is too late, and fate is mocking me with this legacy."

Three weeks passed slowly. Three months later the electric journals teemed with descriptions of the new "Headstone" dynamo, and Steele's invention was lauded to the skies. Enormous sums were offered by American and foreign firms for the patent rights, and the miserable victim of the fraud ground his teeth in impotent rage as he realized that the fame and fortune which should have belonged to him had gone instead to the scoundrel who had stolen his invention.

And even as he read the glowing words in the journals there came upon him an overwhelming desire for revenge upon his betrayer, and, falling upon his knees, he besought the Almighty to give his enemy into his hands.

"Vengeance, vengeance, vengeance!" he sobbed. "Give me vengeance, O God, upon this man, and I will thank thee all the days of my life!"

But Headstone had gone abroad, and, although Steele did all in his power to trace his whereabouts, his efforts were doomed to failure. The firm of course refused to give up the director's address, and it seemed to Steele that nothing but a miracle would bring him face to face with the missing man.

It was about this period that The Daily Telephone, a paper which circulated in all parts of the globe, began to publish the following advertisement from time to time in its "Agony Column:"

Dynamo—Am searching for you and intend to kill you. When we come face to face, east, west, north or south, I will take my lawful vengeance.
VICTIM.

The man who had inserted that terrible announcement was John Steele, and the threat embodied therein was no empty resolve, for he had determined to take Philip Headstone's life when fate or chance delivered him into his power.

One day the long desired clew to the fugitive's whereabouts arrived. A friend of Steele who had been employed on an electrical installation in Paris had seen Headstone enter the Hotel Splendide in that city. This was enough for Steele, and two hours later he was en route for the French capital. The money bequeathed to him by his uncle enabled him to exist without following his trade, and he had resolved to devote the legacy to the accomplishment of his vengeance.

At the hotel disappointment awaited him. Headstone had left on the previous evening for Rome. With set teeth Steele looked out a train for that city, and night saw him on the road to Italy. Here again he was doomed to failure, for it transpired that Headstone had gone south and was bound for Brindisi.

To that port the inventor journeyed. Once again his quarry had escaped him, he having caught the P. and O. steamer to Sydney.

"To Sydney," muttered Steele, "I shall go." Six weeks later he stood upon Australian soil. He had journeyed over 10,000 miles by sea and land in pursuit of his betrayer, and it seemed to him that the pursuit was about to touch its end. His fingers closed with iron grip upon the revolver that lay in his pocket, and once more the old prayer went up to heaven:

They had told him at Brindisi that the "milord Anglais" had ordered any letters which arrived for him to be posted to the Victoria hotel, Sydney, and to that building Steele took his way on his arrival without waiting to enjoy food or sleep.

A prim faced clerk looked at him keenly as he stood at the desk.

"I want to see Mr. Philip Headstone," he said in a low, hoarse tone. "Is he in the hotel?"

The clerk shook his head.

"He is in the hotel," he replied, "but you cannot see him."

"What do you mean?"

"Mr. Headstone is dead. He died of fever last night and will be buried at noon tomorrow. Er—are you ill, sir?"

For Steele had clutched wildly at the desk, and a strange look was in his eyes. This was the hand of the Almighty. The man whom he had traveled 10,000 miles to kill lay dead, struck down by the power which was mightier than the power of man.

He reeled from the hotel, and the passersby thought that he was drunk, so queer was his gait, so stricken his gaze. Then he walked the streets for hours until the gray night grew into the golden morning, and he was able to realize dimly what had occurred.

* * * * * * *

Among the papers of the deceased man was found a will wherein he bequeathed to John Steele the whole of his fortune and admitted that he had stolen his invention. The document placed the inventor in full possession of his rights, and the final words of it took the form of a request for forgiveness.

"I did him the greatest wrong that man could deal out to man," said the penitent testator, "and I trust that he will accept this document as a proof that I have repented my wickedness."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Nov. 10—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Our national bondage.—Hab. i, 13-17; Amos vi, 1-6. (Temperance meeting.)

Nations come into bondage unto sin as well as individuals. Every nation of the past has had its besetting national sins, and so has every nation in the world today. Sometimes the sin of nations has been an insatiate desire for glory in war, sometimes greed for territory and sometimes one of the vices to which its people have most universally and readily yielded. One of the greatest of the national sins today in the civilized nations of the world is the sin of intemperance. Intemperance is a national sin of France, Germany, England and America. The drink traffic is extended and protected by law. Thousands in high places and in low places are moderate or habitual indulgers in intoxicating drinks. The greatest woes of the people are the direct or indirect result of the wide prevalence of this gigantic evil, and yet the nations seem powerless in its grasp. It is national bondage indeed and, to our shame, "our national bondage."

The forbearance of God toward nations as toward individuals will some time come to an end. How wonderfully patient God is—patient in the creation of the world, patient in its preservation! God is far more patient and forbearing with evil than man is. Habakkuk's burden was a burden of complaint at God's seeming slackness and indifference toward the prevalence and power of evil, but God's forbearance cannot last forever. The purpose of his forbearance is to arouse repentance, but if sin is not repented of and abandoned it will be punished, even the national sin of intemperance. The curse of God has been pronounced against intemperance, and it will be executed. "Woe to them that are at ease in Zion and trust in the mountain of Samaria, which are named chief of the nations, to whom the house of Israel came * * * that drink wine in bowls and anoint themselves with the chief ointments, but they are not grieved for the affliction of Joseph."

Unless the national sin of intemperance is overcome it will bring a direful punishment upon our land. We are sowing the wind, and no power can prevent our reaping the whirlwind. The future is great with opportunities. It is also fraught with great dangers. To take advantage of our opportunities and to avoid our dangers physical, mental and moral strength of the finest caliber is demanded of us; but whence is it to come if we become a nation of drunkards? It cannot come under such conditions. The very life and perpetuity of our nation depend upon our breaking the bonds of intemperance, which are fastening themselves about us and in becoming free from this national sin. May God help us as Endeavorers to do our part both in prayer and in service to bring about such a desirable condition of affairs.

THE PRAYER MEETING.

Have a special temperance address on the topic.

BIBLE READINGS.

Ex. xx, 13; Lev. x, 8, 9; Judg. xiii, 1-14; Prov. xiv, 34; xx, 1; xxiii, 29-32; Ps. xxxiii, 12-20; Math. xviii, 7; xxvi, 41; Luke i, 13-15; Gal. v, 19-26.

To the Eye of Faith.

Only to the Christian is the world very fair today as well as yesterday. He knows that change must come and knows not what a day may bring forth. But the reflection does not disturb him, because it is accompanied with the knowledge that his Father still rules and does according to His will among the children of men. He alone has the assurance that "all things"—yes, every event—shall work together for his good. To the eye of faith the world is very fair today, and tomorrow or some other day not distant will surely usher in one that is fairer and brighter, even a morning without clouds.—Episcopal Recorder.

Power Against Sin.

We have no power against a sin until we are able to see that it is forbidden by one of the commandments of the word of God. But having realized that it is so forbidden we at once have great power against it, the Lord's own omnipotent power which He gives in His commandments. It could not be that in the letter of the word there should be forbidden every sin of love, thought and deed to which man is heir, but when the light is allowed to shine forth out of the earthern covering then it will be seen that there is not one sin we are ever tempted to do but has its warning commandment, "Thou shalt not," in the word.—Helper.

This Life and the Next.

In considering the relations of this life to the next, of the life that now is to the life that is coming, the first thing of which note must be taken is the continuity of life; that there really is but one life; that death is not a break in the soul's existence, but only an experience in its continuous life. Death is like sleep in that we live while we sleep. We live right on through a night's repose into a new morning; so we live right on through death into the new day and the new world.—Universalist.

Trust.

I do not know, I cannot tell,
What time may bring to me,
But this I know—God doeth well,
And He will care for me.
Sometimes my path in darkness lies,
My heart is sore perplexed;
I lift to God my longing eyes
And feel no more oppressed.

Thus light is cast upon my way,
All darkness disappears;
My dreary night is changed to day;
Trust triumphs over fears.
Oh, blessed, blessed attitude
That brings my God so near,
Inspires my heart with fortitude
Through afith serene and clear!
—Evangelist.

THOMPSON'S STEALINGS

Are Found to Have Amounted to $60,000

BOND COMPANIES TO SETTLE

Arrest of Defaulting Treasurer of the Maccebees Expected to Occur Today—Selection of His Successor the Important Matter Before the Order

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 9.—It now develops that the Fidelity and Deposit company of Maryland, which carried the bond of Charles D. Thompson, the self-confessed defaulting supreme finance keeper of the supreme tent of Knights of Maccabees, before being released late last July, is still liable for any loss which the order may have sustained by the defalcation.

Representatives of the company, it is said, have informed Maccabee officials that the loss will be paid. Therefore it is now probable that Thompson will be arrested today. This was assumed last night from a talk with officials of the order, and the arrest will come as a result of the conference of the Maccabee trustees and representatives of the bonding company. The heaviest loss it is said, falls upon the Maryland Fidelity company, as Thompson's defalcations since August, when the National Surety company assumed the risk, were comparatively small.

It is announced that Thompson's shortage is $60,000 instead of $57,000. All data concerning the embezzlement is in the hands of the bond companies and orders are being awaited from headquarters.

In relation to the Maryland Fidelity company's risk, it is said that when that company assumed the bond of Thompson, a clause was inserted in the bond providing that if a defalcation was discovered within six months from release, the company would be held liable. It is intimated that the company has notified the Maccabee officials that the loss will be paid.

The most important matter for consideration before the trustees is the selection of a successor to Thompson. The laws of the order require that the official must be a resident of Michigan and the trustees have not heard from their probable selection as to whether he will move to Michigan permanently.

Yaquis on Mountain Tops

Tucson, Ariz., Nov. 9.—Great fires are built almost every night by the Yaqui Indians in the mountains near Guaymas, Mex. In the recent fight between the Yaquis and the Mexican cavalry, a large number of Indians were killed and their comrades are now holding weird ceremonies over the bodies, which they took to the highest point on the mountains surrounding Guaymas. They watch the approach of posses and are able to fight to advantage. The Yaquis make raids nightly on ranches. The situation is now more serious than it has been for some time.

Callahan Not Convicted

Omaha, Nov. 9.—The jury in the case of James Callahan, after being out 36 hours, brought in a verdict last night, finding the defendant not guilty. The prisoner was then discharged. This is the latest echo of the Cudahy kidnapping case. The accused was arrested last February and charged with being an accessory to the kidnapping of Edward A. Cudahy, Jr. The evidence on which Callahan has been tried would probably prevail in case Pat Crowe were tried on the same charges.

Jockey Perhaps Fatally Hurt

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 9.—At Douglas park yesterday, in the fourth race, the field had not straightened out before Tristram, with Jockey Turner up, was badly jostled and was seen to plunge forward, throwing her rider into the moving field. Turner sustained a broken back and injuries which may prove fatal.

A Most Hopeful Outlook

San Juan, P. R., Nov. 9.—Governor Hunt has returned from his tour of the island. He reports that the crops indicate a heavy sugar production and a large yield of coffee. Improvements in municipal arrangements are also noticeable, and intense interest is shown in education wherever he went.

Jeffords Knocked Out

Baltimore, Nov. 9.—Peter Maher put a sudden stop to the championship aspirations of Jim Jeffords last night by knocking him out in the second round of what was to have been a 10-round contest. Both men stripped as fit as a fiddle, with Jeffords having all the best of it in height and reach.

Used a Rope Ladder

Wheeling, Nov. 9.—William Lee, a life prisoner, and J. E. Walter, under a 10-year sentence, escaped from the Moundsville penitentiary yesterday by scaling the 25-foot wall by means of a rope ladder. Lee is a cripple. A searching party with bloodhounds is on the trail of the fugitives.

Cables Between Philippine Islands

Washington, Nov. 9.—A cablegram from Manila announces that the islands of Masbate and Panay have been connected by cable. It is expected that this cable will materially assist the army operations now in progress.

Steamer and Crew Lost

Victoria, B. C., Nov. 9.—Steamer Queen Adelaide brought news of the loss of the steamer Tsuruhiko Maru, a 2000 ton vessel, which ran on the rocks off Goto island. The crew of 50 were drowned.

TURKEY COMES TO TIME

France Will Soon Relinquish Occupation of Mitylene Island

Paris, Nov. 9.—France has scored a complete triumph in the Turkish dispute. The foreign office has received advices announcing that the Sultan has yielded to the entire demands formulated by the French government, and only a question of form regarding the execution of the engagements remains to be settled. This may be done within the next 24 hours, or, it is expected, at the latest in two or three days. Then Admiral Caillard will relinquish his occupation of the island of Mitylene.

Vienna, Nov. 9.—The Neue Freie Presse publishes the contents of a circular note addressed by the ottoman foreign minister to the representatives of Turkey abroad, announcing that the porte has satisfied all the French demands and expressing a hope that France will appreciate the conciliatory spirit thus displayed and resume the relations so unfortunately interrupted.

Uncle Sam Calmly Looks on

Washington, Nov. 9.—The answer of the United States government to the French overture respecting France's movement in Turkish waters is understood to have consisted of a statement that the United States government is not concerned immediately in the republic's doings, in view of the French statement that it was not proposed to affect further trade interests unfavorably. It is surmised also that the government is not dissatisfied at the establishment by France of a precedent for the collection of indemnity from Turkey.

Consumers Will Benefit Meanwhile

New York, Nov. 9.—Rival baking corporations, backed by millions of capital, are planning to absorb the business of hundreds of small bakeries here. Bread produced by machinery amid hygienic surroundings and in large quantities is shortly to be offered to the public in New York and other cities. There are three large concerns, and possibly four, about to enter the field here, and a war is predicted that may cut prices in half. Cincinnati now has a similar war, in which the price has been cut to 2 cents a loaf. A branch of the National Biscuit company is giving away thousands of loaves daily in its fight with B. H. Kroger, who made the 2-cent rate.

Shooting Demoralized Bandits

Phoenix, Ariz., Nov. 9.—One bandit was killed and one injured as a result of an attempt by three masked men to hold up the gambling house of Deel & Co., at Naco, a border town, last night. The dead bandit has been indentified as Will Cravens. A group of gamesters and loungers obeyed when the desperados entered the saloon and ordered "hands up." Cravens approached the roulette table and proceeded to fill a bag with several thousand dollars. L. Ellis drew a revolver and Cravens fell lead when shot. The other bandits were demoralized and fled.

Looking After the Boys

Indianapolis, Nov. 9.—At the request of the National Curfew association, Governor Durbin has written a letter to the governors of states and territories, requesting them to call the attention of their respective legislature to certain laws or reforms among the youths of the country. Among these is the curfew law, the law for preventing the imprisonment of boys with older criminals and another compelling officers to return to their homes all tramping, truant and runaway boys.

Jenkins Ready For All Comers

Cleveland, Nov. 9.—George V. Touhey, manager for Tom Jenkins, announces that Jenkins is open to challenges from any man in the world to contest for the catch-as-catch-can wrestling championship for a purse ranging from $2500 to $10,000 a side. The weight limit is 250 pounds.

Speedy Work With Auto

New York, Nov. 9.—As an incident to the automobile show, Louis Clark of Philadelphia yesterday made the journey from Philadelphia to New York by way of Camden, Trenton, Perth Amboy and Staten Island in six hours and five seconds, which includes all the time spent on ferries.

Alleged Shortage of $10,000

Philadelphia, Nov. 9.—P. J. McGuire of Camden, former secretary of the Brotherhood of Carpenters, who is charged with being short $10,000 in his accounts, appeared before a Philadelphia magistrate yesterday and waived a hearing. He was released on $5000 bail.

For New Cabinet Office

New York, Nov. 9.—The chamber of commerce has gone on record as favoring the creation of a new cabinet office, that of secretary of the department of commerce and industries, which will also be a new department.

King of Equine Jumpers

Chicago, Nov. 9.—At the horse show last night Heatherbloom, a bay gelding, 6 years old and 16 hands high, owned by Howard Willets of White Plains, N. Y., broke the world's indoor record for jumping horses. He cleared the bar at 7 feet 4½ inches.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Mother Bickerdyke, famous for her work among Union soldiers during the Civil war, died at Bunker Hill, Kan., aged 84 years.

Bishop O'Connell has appointed Rev. Edward F. Hurley to be vicar general of the diocese of Portland, Me. Father Hurley will remain as heretofore the rector of St. Dominic's church, Portland.

Stewart F. Weld, the son of a family which gained distinction in the slavery days as abolitionists, died at his home at Hyde Park, Mass. He devoted his life to literature and teaching the classics.

TWAIN'S SIMPLE CURES

Mark Recommends Watermelon For Dysentery.

TELLS HOW TO CURE BALDNESS.

Humorist Says He Has an Infallible Preventive For It—Also Tells a Settlement Association In New York How to Cure Heartburn Without Medicine.

Mark Twain entertained the Fellow Citizenship Association of the East Side House Settlement in New York the other night by reading one of his stories to its members. The association is an organization which aims to bring into a common bond of fellowship persons of all classes. The ambition is somewhat idealistic; but, despite the difficulty of the situation, Mark Twain dug out a story which fitted the case, says the New York Sun. The moral of the tale he read was that nothing is impossible if you only go about it in the right way. It was inevitable, of course, that Mark should depart now and again from his text and make what are theatrically known as "asides."

Part of his story dwelt upon the efficacy of watermelons in cases of dysentery, and that led the humorist, still adhering to the moral of the piece he was reading, to describe how almost incurable ailments might be overcome by simple remedies, if you can only find them out. Running his hand through his own bushy crop of silvery hair, he maintained that no one need be bald if he would only subject the top of his head to a very simple but effective treatment.

"Some years ago," he said, "my hair began to fall out. I knew at the time a man of about seventy years who had a very thick mop of hair. I asked him what the secret was, and he told me to just plow my scalp with a hard brush. Well, I tried his advice, and I have not lost a single hair in eleven years.

"People make a mistake in using so called restorers. Some of them try without avail every liquid they come across which is contained in a bottle labeled 'hair' something or other. Just such a man was a minister I once knew in Hartford. He was passing through his wife's room one day when he saw a bottle on her dressing table with the word 'hair' on it. He grabbed it, saturated his scanty white locks with it and went to bed. He awoke next morning to find his hair a bright green. The bottle contained hair dye and not a hair restorer. He had to preach that morning and found the task somewhat embarrassing because his congregation seemed to take more interest in his hair than in his sermon. He got into that predicament by refusing to take the advice I gave to him."

Then Mark Twain went on to give away gratuitously a remedy for heartburn.

"For eight years," he explained, "I was troubled with indigestion which took the form of an insurrection in my stomach after I went to bed. Various things which I had eaten and which I thought were good things got to quarreling. While this warfare was going on I happened to get to a place in Sweden where there was no drug store and where I could not get carbonate of soda, which I found usually smothered the heartburn.

"While I was in this out of the way place the heartburn came on in the middle of the night, and I thought to myself that I would have to stand for it. In my pain I stretched myself on my left side and threw out my arms. Singularly enough, the pain passed away. I thought it was an accident, but after turning over on my back and getting up a heartburn again just for the satisfaction of the thing I found that lying on the left side actually did bring relief. When I got back to London, I asked the secretary of the Royal Medical society why this was, but he didn't know, so I persuaded him to question some of the great doctors with whom he came in contact.

"He asked doctor after doctor about the mystery, but none of them could enlighten him, and at last he spoke to the celebrated Sir William Thompson. Sir William, after thinking a moment, said: 'Why, yes, I've heard about that remedy, but I had not thought about it for fifty years since. In fact, I was a student in Germany. I suffered then from an attack of heartburn, and an old village farmer told me to lie on my left side. I did so and got quick relief, but I had forgotten all about it and have continued to treat my patients with sand.'"

One more cure Mark gave to his audience free of charge. Watermelon, he asserted, would always drive away dysentery. If one slice didn't take effect, then take a second and a third. No matter how serious the case was three slices, he insisted, would cure it.

"And yet," he added, "although watermelons are so efficacious in dysentery, in the civil war signs were hung up threatening with punishment any one who carried watermelons into a camp where this disease prevailed. If watermelons had been brought into those camps, thousands of men who died from dysentery would have been saved."

Canaries With Red Feathers.

M. Bourez, a canary breeder of Paris, has found a method of producing red canaries, according to the Chicago Record-Herald. The color is obtained by feeding the parent birds on finely ground cayenne pepper, which gradually changes the color of the feathers. M. Bourez has already produced a reddish, orange colored bird and hopes in time to get a brilliantly red bird.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Difficulty Arising From Car Shortage the Chief Retarding Influence

New York, Nov. 9.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: More seasonable weather in many sections has stimulated retail distribution of merchandise during the past week and collections are generally prompt, with few extensions asked. Little relief has been afforded the leading manufacturing industry in the matter of transporting facilities. In fact the situation on the whole is less satisfactory, since inability to secure coke has brought about the banking of some furnaces. This in turn tends to harden the market for pig iron.

As this industry is considered the best business barometer, present conditions and future prospects are certainly most encouraging, for orders are abundant and plans enlarging capacity in order to handle the growing business. Labor troubles and low water have been added to the difficulty arising from car shortage, making three retarding influences affecting the output of coal just when the export demand has become a factor of importance.

Textile mills in New England are busy and there is no longer any fear of labor controversy at Fall River. Print cloths have ceased to be inflated, standard widths resuming the former quotation of 3 cents and meeting with a fair demand. Domestic buying of all staple cottons is seasonably quiet and views of exporters are still below those of sellers. In woolens there is a free movement of women's dress goods and orders are plentiful in heavy weight lines for immediate delivery. Fine wool is firm at last week's advance, and western manufacturers are beginning work on spring orders. Shipments from Boston for the year thus far exceed last year's by 500,000 cases. As production at the west and south is also rapidly increasing the nation's output for 1902 will far surpass all records.

Weather conditions were the chief factors in determining price changes of staple products. Low temperature in grain growing states brought a higher level of quotations, corn rising 23 cents above the figure ruling at the corresponding date last year and 25 cents over 1899.

Carter Not to Be Tried Again

Washington, Nov. 9.—The cabinet meeting yesterday developed the fact that there exists an entire misapprehension concerning the legal proceedings which are to take place in Chicago in the case of Captain Oberlin M. Carter, who was convicted by military court-martial of embezzlement and sentenced to a term in the penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kas. Attorney General Knox explained to the president and cabinet that Carter was not to be given a new trial before Judge Kohlsaat.

Growth in American Ships

Washington, Nov. 9.—The report of Mr. Chamberlain, the United States commissioner of navigation, says that the past fiscal year has been the third successive year of notable prosperity and growth in American shipping, exceeding the two previous years. The extent and nature of work under way or projected in shipyards promises an even greater growth for the current fiscal year. American tonnage now has attained practically the former maximum of 1861.

Gold Goes to Government

Helena, Mont., Nov. 9.—A ledge of free milling gold ore was struck yesterday in grading the foundation for the United States Federal building which is now under construction. The ledge is a very strong one of iron-stained quartz containing free milling gold. The government, in awarding the contract for the building, explicitly stipulated that any discoveries of mineral made by the contractors should go to the government.

Front Seat For Lawson

New York, Nov. 9.—From the advance sale of boxes for the New York Horse show, $30,000 was netted. This is nearly $5000 higher than the amount netted at the sale for the show last year. Most of the bidding was done by agents, and there was strong competition for choice seats. Thomas W. Lawson bought the first arena box offered, No. 27, for $635. Last year he paid $625 for this box, the top price of the sale.

Desperado Hanged In Public

Madison, Fla., Nov. 9.—Will Jones, a negro, who recently killed three men in one day, two blacks and one white, and shot several members of the sheriff's posse, was publicly hanged here yesterday. Several hundred people witnessed the execution. Jones showed no weakening of nerve, and made no confession or speech of repentance.

Disastrous Explosion of Gas

Indianapolis, Nov. 9.—Two of the city's fire cisterns, connected by a 100-foot tunnel, were wrecked by a gas explosion yesterday and two members of the city repair gang were fatally injured. The middle of the street for a distance of about 150 feet was torn up.

To Shut Off Exchange Passes

New York, Nov. 9.—A resolution abolishing the issue of all exchange passes after Jan. 1, 1902, was adopted yesterday by the presidents of the railroads belonging to the Trunk line association.

Moon rises—5:46 a. m.
High water—10:30 a. m.; 11 p. m.

The northern storm has passed beyond the field of observation and the only precipitation yesterday was in the form of very light local showers from the lower lake region eastward to the New England coast. It is not probable that there will be any precipitation of consequence in New England during the next two days. On the coast the winds will be light west to north, becoming variable.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Camera fiends have annoyed the Roosevelt children so much in their play ground south of the White House that the grounds will be closed to the public hereafter. Mr. Cleveland had to give a similar order for a similar reason during his second occupancy of the White House. The case shows the utter lack of good taste on the part of the intruders, but it also shows that the president should, like other men, have a home where the public could have no sort of right.—New Bedford Standard.

☞We do not mean to say that all anarchists advocate violence and murder, but all anarchists are enemies of organized society, and the logical effect of their teaching is murder and other forms of physical force to overthrow society, because no other method will accomplish the end. So-called "theoretic anarchists," and I know a few who profess to be such' always rejoice at the fall of a ruler, no matter how accomplished. The theory of anarchy has no constructive basis at all. Its only aim and ultimate goal is disintegration and destruction of associated interdependence. In theory, therefore, as well as practice, anarchy means the overthrow of organized order, and it always leads directly to criminal methods. There is no such thing as peacefully abolishing government. The teacher of anarchy is an enemy of society, no matter whether it is a Benjamin Tucker or a Herr Most.—Gunton's Magazine for November.

Into Wilds of Maine.

Alfred W. Bisson, president of the Bisson Carriage company and Thomas W. Smith auditor of the Gallagher Express Company, both active and popular members of the Sunshine, Fish, Golf, Game and Gun club, attired in their natty and striking golf suits, their Winchesters in one hand and their fish and game bags in the other hand, will on Sunday shake the dust of Quincy from their highly polished shoes and depart for the wilds of Maine. For two weeks they will rough it and try to make it unpleasant for the animals who inhabit that section of the country. Meanwhile they will be the envy of the members at home, but they will content themselves with the thoughts of the pleasure they will have this winter, listening to tales of the trip while toasting their shins around the club room stove.

Bethany Supper.

The A. B. C's of Bethany church provided a grand good supper for friends of the church last evening, including beans, cold meats, rolls, cake, fruit, coffee, etc. Much favorable comment was heard relative to the coffee which was La Tourraine, furnished complimentary by Johnson Bros. A social hour and games followed. At the regular Friday evening service, Mrs. Elmez Merhige, a Syrian, spoke interestingly of the Holy Land.

Senator Sprague.

Hon. Eugene H. Sprague of Quincy, the senator from this district, shared with the head of the ticket in the loyal support of the Republicans last Tuesday. Mr. Sprague has made an ideal senator through his natural abilities for legislative work. He well deserved the support he received and the confidence of his constituents.—Hyde Park Gazette.

In Norfolk County Senator Eugene Hale Sprague of Quincy has been again elected to represent the 1st Senatorial District. There is every reason to believe that the State's and people's interests will be carefully looked after. Senator Sprague is grateful for this remembrance.—Randolph Register.

Commissioner Wright.

Wright was all right—Stoughton Sentinel.

I am delighted at the election of Mr. Wright. The two towns, Weymouth and Cohasset, that are in Norfolk county, did their duty. Mr. Wright is an honest and agreeable man. The court house business will answer for the services of Mr. Bowker.—Cohasset Sentinel.

Mr. Wright may well feel proud of his victory, as he carried every town in the county except Wrentham.—Milton Leader.

It wasn't the wrong Mr. Wright after all—at least Quincy doesn't think so. But some think it was a Badger game.—Hyde Park Gazette.

As you're a sinner, Wright is a winner.

If you're a saint, make no complaint.

Is it the wrong man in the right place, or is it the Wright man in the wrong place, or is it the Wright man in the right place?

Time will tell.

Let us hope we have a watch dog at the door of the County Treasury.—Hyde Park Times.

That Vindicaton.

Let's see, ex-Commssioner Bowker wished to be "vindicated" he said by a re-election. Well, something certainly happened to him on election day, but would it really be called a "vindication?"—Canton Journal.

Mr. Bowker is the victim of a combination of circumstances. He did not deserve his punishment. He goes down under a public uprising. He ought never to have been nominated and he got his head severely bumped because he and his friends did not have the acumen to dodge at the "low bridge." There comes a time in politics as well as in business and other matters when "there's a time for disappearing" as such the inimitable H. C. Barnabee used to sing:

"When the sky above is clearing,
Bob up serenely from below."

—Stoughton Sentinel.

Old-timers who keep in touch with county politics could not be convinced that Mr. Bowker had a ghost of a chance to be elected, but they were hardly prepared for the landslide that came with the frost last Tuesday. During the ten days previous to the election a tremendous amount of work was put in by the opponents of Mr. Bowker, and it was of a character that convinced the public that the nomination of the ex-county commissioner for another term for the purpose of vindication should never have been made. We understand that Mr. Bowker was inclined to this view, but yielded to the importunities of indiscreet friends who considered the time ripe for a vindication.—Hyde Park Gazette.

The campaign just closed has been remarkable in this county for the attacks made on Mr. Bowker, the Republican candidate for county commissioner. One would think from reading the circular put out against him, that he was only a slight degree less credible than Anamas. In fact, the latter would have been treated more decently than Mr. Bowker, in some quarters.—Stoughton Record.

But how different in the contest for the one year Norfolk County commissionership. The regular Republican candidate was on the board when the last court house was remodelled, and the scandal that ensued from the actions of the board drove all out of office. The people knew all this, and notwithstanding one of the three-year commissioners did his best to help elect the one year man, the latter was defeated overwhelmingly, and the Democrat, Marshall P. Wright of Quincy, was elected instead, and will have the honor of assisting in making contracts for the County building that will be started at once at a cost of over $200,000.—Randolph Register.

—The small pox is becoming alarmingly prevalent in not a few of the neighboring cities. Vaccination undoubtedly has its evils, but so long as it bears the endorsement of the majority of the medical faculty as the best known means for minimizing the terrors of the small pox scourge, the public has little excuse for any negligence in the matter.—Mansfield News.

A TESTIMONIAL.

And a Very Enjoyable Evening for All Present.

A grand testimonial concert to Mr. Charles J. Stewart was held in Hancock hall last night. The event was under the joint patronage of Clan McGregor, the members of the City band and the choir of the First Presbyterian church and was given as a mark of the high esteem in which Mr. Stewart is held by those bodies of which he has been for a number of years a valuable and respected member.

The concert was highly successful in every detail, some of the best amateur talent in Quincy gave their services free.

The City band opened the program with a varied selection.

Alexander Wallace followed with a song entitled "The Deathless Army," which won rousing applause and a call for another.

Mrs. Agnes Donald sang "Angus McDonald," and the fine old favorite "Killarney" with feeling and emphasis.

A great hit was made by Wiliam Warmington, Mr. Gustin, Mr. Parson and Mr. Pierce as the Granite City quartette in a number of coon songs.

Miss Agnes Hyde of Weymouth, as a reader and impersonator of high ability, is well known in Quincy, and sustained her reputation for excellence in her rendering of "Miss Sue's wedding cards," and other pieces.

Master John Findlay in the singing of "Afton water" and the "Holy City" displayed remarkable quality and power of voice and well merited the unstinted applause which was accorded him.

Miss Bessie Todd's clear, sweet voice was highly appreciated in "The song that reached my heart," "Came ye by Athol," etc.

Prof. Robertson, late of Keith's theatre, was as clever as ever in his ball punching act, and the encouragement to continue the exhibition beyond his endurance was just as great as he ever received from a Quincy audience.

William Elrick was also one of the singers and sustained his reputation as a Scotch favorite.

Mrs. James Marr, Miss Bessie Todd, John Norrie and A. Raleigh were the accompanists at the piano.

At ten-thirty o'clock the hall was cleared for dancing and the large number that took part in the grand march and the number that filled the seats around the hall showed clearly that Mr. Stewart, for whom the affair was held, is decidedly popular.

A two o'clock Mr. Robinson's orchestra played the closing measure.

Chief Robert Finlay of Clan McGregor very ably directed the entire proceedings.

President's Proclamation.

The season is nigh when, according to the time-hallowed custom of our people, the President appoints a day as the especial occasion for praise and thanksgiving to God.

This Thanksgiving finds the people still bowed with sorrow for the death of a great and good President. We mourn President McKinley because we so loved and honored him; and the manner of his death should awaken in the breasts of our people keen anxiety for the country, and at the same time a resolute purpose not to be driven by any calamity from the path of a strong, orderly, popular liberty, which as a nation we have thus far safely trod.

Yet in spite of this great disaster, it is nevertheless true that no people on earth have such abundant cause for thanksgiving as we have. The past year in particular has been one of peace and plenty. We have prospered in things material and have been able to work for our own uplifting in things intellectual and spiritual. Let us remember that as much has been given us much will be expected from us, and that true homage comes from the heart as well as from the lips and shows itself in deeds. We can best prove our thankfulness to the Almighty by the way in which on this earth and at this time each of us does his duty to his fellow-men.

Now, therefore, I, Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, do hereby designate a day of general thanksgiving, Thursday, the 28th day of this present November, and do recommend that throughout the land the people cease from their wonted occupations, and at their several homes and places of worship reverently thank the Giver of all good for the countless blessings of our national life.

Jumped on a Ten Penny Nail.

The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake made of ten-penny nails, and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and a second one half way through. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes later the pain had disappeared and no more suffering was experienced. In three days the child was wearing her shoe as usual and with absolutely no discomfort. Mr. Powell is a well known merchant of Forkland, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and heals such injuries without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. For sale by all druggists.

TRIAL OF BLAKELEY.

Torpedo Boat Destroyer Built by Lawley Meets Mishap.

The Globe prints the following dispatch of Nov. 8. from Newport, R. I.:

When half-way through the severe test that the government requires for final acceptance, and when giving every promise of attaining the high speed and reaching the other conditions demanded by the specifications of the contracts, the torpedo boat Blakeley, which was built by Lawley & Son of Boston, broke down this afternoon.

The mishap was a slight one, but it was sufficient to cause a postponement of a further test and a return to New port.

The Blakeley will go back to Boston, and the naval board of inspection and survey will put her through her final speed trial in the open sea off that place some time next week.

The conditiions this morning when the naval board, of which Capt. J. J. Hemphill is acting president, went aboard were perfect. The sea was comparatively smooth and there was only a slight wind blowing from the north-northwest.

The Blakeley was started on a run before the wind and had been under the high steam pressure of 265 pounds for about an hour and was making about 25 1-2 knots an hour, when the copper pipe connection between the air pump and the hot well broke short off as a result of the vibration of the boat.

Steam pressure was necessarily reduced at once, and thus crippled the Blakely returned to her moorings here. Tomorrow the naval board will conduct the standardizing runs of her sister ship, the DeLong.

Rev. Merrill C. Ward is doing some special graduate work in the department of philosophy at Harvard University.

Robert Elliott Hall, son of Frank E. Hall of Quincy has again been awarded a scholarship at the Worcester Polytechnic institute.

Mr. Joseph C. Morse has purchased one of R. L. Hunt's cottages at Rose Cliff, Weymouth, and will make extensive improvements before next summer.

The house of Mr. Charles Burgess on Russell park is being painted. It always was an attractive house but in its new colors and fresh paint it looks better than ever.

The many friends of Samuel P. Hayden of Cleverly court will be pleased to learn that he is again able to be out, after being confined to the house for four weeks.

Col. A. B. Packard reached today the 80th anniversary of his life. He is hale and hearty, and continues in active business life, and is one of Quincy's most respected citizens.

The Registrars of Voters met in Ward Six last night and added nineteen new names and restored three names to the voting lists. All, with one exception, came from Ward Six.

The Boston Branch grocery in the Durgin & Merrill block has been purchased by Lester M. Pratt and will be run under the firm name of L. M. Pratt & Son. It is a pleasure to see these enterprising merchants located at this central and well-appointed store, and we look to a revival of business at this old stand.

LI'S SENSE OF HUMOR.

Stories Depicting the Famous Chinese Statesman's Peculiarities.

That the late Li Hung Chang possessed a sense of humor is shown by several stories. One is told in connection with his first introduction of the telegraph, says the Philadelphia Press. Posts were constantly torn up and burned and the wires cut and stolen. At last an offender was caught red handed and brought before Li. He begged for mercy and promised never to repeat the offense.

"I'll see to that," said Li, with a grave, imperturbable smile.

Some few hours later this particular culprit was not in a position to repeat that or any other offense, and the telegraph lines were left undisturbed.

Another anecdote is connected with a summons to the court of Peking, dictated by its hostile element. Scenting danger, he took with him his army of 50,000 men, drilled and armed according to the best European system, a force easily capable of "clearing out" the whole capital in a few hours. He grimly marched his army to the gates of the city and sent in a message to the emperor, which was, of course, filled with all possible oriental courtesy, but which practically amounted to: "Well, here I am. What do you want of me?" The court suddenly discovered that it did not want him at all except to commend him most cordially for his zeal and devotion.

One of the late viceroy's peculiarities was a violent temper. It is related that once a serious disaster occurred in the arsenal at Tientsin, for which a general of high rank was technically responsible. Li summoned him to his office.

The general came in a hurry. Dressed in full uniform, his head covered with the official hat that bore the button of his high rank, he rushed into the viceroy's presence, threw himself flat on the floor at his master's feet, face downward, his official hat flying off. The viceroy also knew what to do. Without speaking he cuffed the general's ears, using his feet for that purpose, and after kicking him until his rage had been partially satisfied he seized the hat, tore off the button, threw it one way and the hat another, and then, finding his voice, dismissed the man from his service and degraded him in rank.

CURED OF CONSUL FEVER.

Representative to Miquelon Had All He Wanted.

Gerald Carlton, who served as consul at St. Pierre, Miquelon, under appointment from President McKinley, was pointing out how undesirable such positions are, says the New York Times.

"It cost me $200 to get there," said he, "and when I arrived, being one of them 'literary fellers,' I hadn't any more money than I could conveniently carry around with me. There was no salary attached to the place, it being a fee office. I found that my predecessor had cleaned up everything in sight.

"To add to my troubles the 'queen of the island,' a wealthy widow, attempted to marry me, and the Pooh Bah, a sort of missing link, had a habit of being overcompanionable. I finally asked President McKinley to stop considering me a consul. Then I packed my grip and started for the land of the free and the home of the brave. No more consulships in mine, thank you! I've had that and been cured."

CHILDREN TO CLEAN CITY.

Unique Organization Formed by Pupils in Austin (Ill.) Schools.

One thousand children of the Austin (Ill.) public schools have been enlisted in a Clean City club. They have signed a pledge in which they promise to refrain from littering public places, to keep their yards clean, to protect birds, trees, flowers and all useful plants, to do all they can to make the city clan and attractive, says the Chicago Inter Ocean. The members will wear a button bearing the inscription, "Clean City Club."

The plan was formed by the home and educational department of the Austin Woman's club. Mrs. Charles, chairman of the department, in speaking of the work said: "Permission has been secured from the board of education to use a room in the high school for the organization and instruction of the club. The members will be instructed about city ordinances and civic government."

A Popular Bird.

Now the proclamation's issued
And the day of thanks is named,
There is much attention centered
On a bird that's widely famed—
Not the scrapping, screeching eagle,
Not the hen of patient work,
Not the fowl that swims and waddles,
But the plump and tender turk.

Other birds have won distinction,
Each in its peculiar sphere,
And to each has been accorded
Praise at some time of the year;
But when thoughts are by thanksgiving
And its feasting deeply stirred
'Tis the turkey that's regarded
As the only famous bird.

Oft the feast is seen in fancy
Long before Thanksgiving day,
With the goodies on the table
All spread out in bright array—
Pie and cake and fruit and candy,
And the cranberries in molds,
But the brown and steaming turkey
The imagination holds.

Many times the mouth will water
With the premature delight
Of assimilating portions
Of the dark meat or the white.
Oft the chap who does the carving
When Thanksgiving day arrives
Will be dreaming that he's slicing
Forty turks with forty knives.

Though the eagle's famed for screeching,
Though the hen deserves much praise,
Though some other birds are noted
For a lot of winning ways,
When Thanksgiving day is coming
And is getting near at hand,
Thoughts are centered on the turkey
All throughout this mighty land.

RACE FOR THE POLE.

Instructive Papers at the Meeting of the Unity Club.

The Unity club held its third meeting of the season at the Unitairan vestry last evening and was well represented. There was present about eighty-nine members. After a few introductory remarks by President Charles Harper the report of last meeting was read by the Secretary Mrs. H. G. Fay.

The subject for the evening was "The Race for the Pole" under the direction of Rev. Frank Pratt. Mr. Pratt introduced as his first speaker Mrs. H. G. Gurney, who presented in a very interesting manner incidents of the earlier expeditions. She dwelt more particularly on the celebrated Arctic explorer Sir John Franklin.

His early life was pictured. His desire to become a seaman was so great that he entered the royal navy in his youth. Served with great distinction at the battle of Trafalgar in 1805, was knighted in 1829. In 1845 he was appointed to the command of an expedition sent out by the British admiralty in search of the northwest passage. The expedition sailed from Greenbithe in May 1845 and was last spoken of in July 1845. Thirty-nine relief expeditions public and private were sent out from England and America between 1847 and 1857. Traces of the missing expedition were found in 1859, which confirmed rumors of its total destruction. From a paper containing an entry by Capt. Fitzjames of the missing expedition it was learned that Franklin died in June 1847.

Mr. Pratt followed with an account of the more recent expeditions. He pointed out on the map the three principal routes taken by the explorers n the last twenty-five years. The first under DeLong an American who had command of the Jeanette sailed from San Francisco July 1879 and proceeded to Kamar, Siberia, whence he steamed northward until beset by the ice in Sept. 1879, with 14 others he reached the mouth of the Lena whence the whole party perished of cold and starvation except two men. His body and those of his companions were discovered in March 1822, by Melville. Later came Peary intending to survey the northeastern coast of Greenland and if possible to push on toward the North pole. He was unsuccessful and returned in 1895.

In June 1893 Nansen a Norwegian explorer in a specially constructed vessel, the Fram, sailed from Christiana intending to drift from the Siberian coast, across the North pole to the coast of Greenland. He made a bold dash within 261 miles of North pole, but for lack of provision was obliged to return. He however proved his theory that there was a current and that a ship could be built strong enough to withstand the ice.

Of the modern explorers Baldwin ranks the highest, as his vessel, is fitted up by a New York millionaire with every convenience including some four hundred dogs and two hundred Siberian ponies.

It is well to mention the fact that DeCagni, an Italian explorer made the nearest dash to the North pole reaching it within 239 miles.

After the intermission Mr. Henry Barker of Quincy gave some pleasing selctions on the violin, accompanied by Miss Bertha Hanson on the piano, concerto, Accolay; Serenade Meszkowski, Mazur, Mlynarski.

The closing speaker of the evening was Mr. Walter E. Simmons, who took for his subject "The Present situation." The audience was prepared for something unusually humorous Mr. Simmons depicted the ludicrous side of the striving of the Unity club for the North pole. This furnished to the audience a delightful variation from the solid talks that preceded it.

"SEE WHAT I'VE BROUGHT YOU."

A short cut through the inviting field of rural life brings us to "Lovers' Lane," which Clyde Fitch, the most fertile of modern dramatists, wrote, and which that alert and resourceful manager, William A. Brady, has brought to the Park Theatre, Boston. This play proved one of the few successes in New York last season, where it played for five months.

There are many quaint and interesting characters in this play, which depicts life in a small New England town, with all its prejudices, social cliques and church jealousies. The hero is a young clergyman, who has given his whole life to the church. So deep is his devotion to his parish that his people call the road which runs from the parsonage to the little brick church "Lovers' Lane." He is liberal and kindly in his views which arouses the enmity of the more puritanical of his flock. Running through the story is a silver thread of love interest, which is charming.

No other play of its kind has been put upon the stage with such careful attention to realistic effect. Among the scenes are two very beautiful ones depicting an apple orchard in the dull depression of autumn and also in the fragrant blossom of springtime. The electrical effect employed in the lighting of these scenes are very elaborate and intricate.

Youth's Companion.

In 1902—the seventy-sixth year of its publication—The Youth's Companion promises more varied attractions for its readers than ever before, and The Companion always gives more than it promises. The government of the United States will be represented in contributions from Secretary of the Treasury Gage, Secretary of the Navy Long, Postmaster-General Smith, and Assistant Secretary of War Sanger—a list, it is believed, never equaled in a previous year.

The government of Great Britain will be represented by contributions from the Duke of Argyll, the Marquis of Dufferin and Ava and the Rt. Hon. James Bryce, T. P. O'Connor and Winston S. Churchill, members of the House of Commons.

Other noteworthy contributors will be Wu Tingfang, Chinese minister at Washington, Booker T. Washington, president of Tuskegee Institute, Justice Brewer of the United States Supreme Court, Gen. Charles King and Rear-Admiral Hichborn, while more than two hundred of the most popular of living story-writers will contribute from four to six fascinating stories to each of the fifty-two issues of The Companion for 1902.

To all new subscribers for 1902 and to those renewing their subscription The Companion will send its beautiful 1902 Calendar, lithographed in twelve colors and gold. By sending $1.75 before January 1st, the new subscriber will receive free all the remaining issues of 1901 from the time the subscription is received.

"Last winter an infant child of mine had croup in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist, of Filley, Mo. "I gave her a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and in a short time all danger was past and the child recovered." This remedy not only cures croup but when given as soon as the first symptoms appear, will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

NEW ELECTRIC DEVICE

Present Street Railway Systems May Be Revolutionized by It.

DOES AWAY WITH TROLLEYS.

Cost of Construction Is Much Less Than the Trolley or Third Rail System—The Current Is Underground—No Danger of Live Wires From It.

A new system of operating electric street railways, which promises to revolutionize the business and do away with the dangerous and unsightly trolley wires and poles, has been invented by an electrician of Milbury, Mass., says a Boston dispatch to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. It consists of a row of square iron boxes imbedded in the street between the tracks and fed by an underground current, ingeniously cut off when not in use and the power taken up by a shoe on the car. The boxes may be placed at a distance of ten feet, if desired, and it has been illustrated that there is no danger to horse or man in crossing or coming in contact with them.

For several months experiments have been going on in the vicinity of the car barns of the Milbury and Blackstone electric road in Milbury, where a long piece of track has been laid and an equipment of iron boxes placed between the rails, surrounded with half a dozen kinds of paving and street construction materials. No one was let into the details of the affair until the other day, owing to the fact that all the patents applied for had not been granted. Scores of street railway men and electricians have thoroughly investigated the system while it has been in operation. In every test made it has proved its success, and all the railway men have been convinced upon investigation that the new system of underground power is a marvel of inventive genius and certain to revolutionize street railroading.

Instead of feeding the current through overhead wires this system feeds it through an underground wire into a cast iron box, which is covered with manganese steel, insulated therefrom. One end of this cover is slightly elevated and rounded, but when set into the pavement is in no way an impediment to travel. Within this box is a sheet of copper, imbedded in a slate backing at one end of the box. In the center of the box and extending toward the opposite end bent at right angles and inserted into a pressed steel armature rests a solid block of insulation. The top of the armature lies within an inch or so below the underside of the cover of the box.

Underneath the car a long shoe is strung, to which is attached at regular intervals, in pairs, magnets wound for 500 volts. Attached to the shoe are plates of nonmagnetic steel which are movable and used as the contact shoe and susceptible to unevenness, or rise and fall necessary to always come in contact with the boxes. When the current is on, the armature in the box is drawn up in contact with the cover of the box in such a way as to make a contact and with a sufficient surface to allow the carrying of 300 or more amperes, if required, into the motor of the car.

When a car is immediately over and the shoe is in contact with the projecting part of the box, the boxes and shoe are then alive, but as soon as the car passes from over said point the armature yields and drops by gravity to its normal condition, resting upon the block of insulation.

The cost of the construction depends entirely upon the number of boxes and amount of feed wire used to the mile. The road now in operation in Milbury is constructed with a car shoe 21 feet long and with the boxes 10 feet apart. In large cities, however, it is thought that it would be more practicable to have the boxes within 5 or 6 feet and use a shoe of 8 or 10 feet. The cost of construction is much less than the trolley system or even the third rail system, and there is less danger, as the boxes through which the power is derived are alive only when a car is over them.

One of the tests made was to set the brakes on a car containing thirty passengers and then apply the power, and to the surprise of the electricians and railroad men who were present the car moved off with ease. It has been demonstrated that a car can be run up a grade of 5 per cent with 100 passengers when all the brakes are set, which is considered a remarkable test of the strength of current supplied through the boxes on the ground.

House Under the Earth.

An interesting discovery has been made on the estate of the Marquis of Zetland, in Orkney, says the London Express. Workmen came across a subterranean house about thirty-six feet long, and further explorations brought to light several signs of habitations, including the remains of ruined walls, the bones of sheep, oxen, boars, fish and whales, deer horns, stone trestles, pottery and charcoal, together with some implements fashioned from bones. The most remarkable feature in the building is that the roofing is supported by four massive pillars, each consisting of a water worn stone placed on end.

CARDBOARD FANCY WORK.

THE MATERIAL MAKES GOOD FOUNDATIONS FOR BASKETS AND BOXES.

Card Receivers, Workbaskets and Bonbon Baskets May Be Fashioned In This Way and Covered With Stuffs Ornately Decorated.

Fancy work which consists of articles cut out of cardboard, covered, decorated and devoted to household use have long been favored among makers of holiday souvenirs. They are easy to construct and cost very little. They may be so beautified as to make a very handsome appearance. The uses to which cardboard may be put are manifold. From hairpin baskets covered with silk, with which the small girl surprises her mamma on Christmas morning, to the dainty hand painted wall frames it would seem that "age cannot wither nor custom stale its infinite variety."

Baskets and boxes are especially easy to make with cardboard foundations. These are glued or sewed together and then covered with the decorating material, sometimes silk, sometimes paper.

Any one who is familiar with crape paper work can achieve wonders with cardboard. The framework should be covered with crape paper in some delicate, harmonious tint and then beautified with clusters of artificial flowers made of paper and held in place by bows of ribbon.

A Card Receiver.

Dainty baskets for holding anything light and dry may be made by childish fingers, the only difficulty being in the cutting out of the sections. Seven pieces cut from heavy cardboard, such as is used by bookbinders, are needed.

PRETTY CARD RECEIVER.

When the cardboard is cut, each piece is to be covered on both sides with silk or some other pretty stuff. The edges are turned in and overcast. When they are all covered, the sections are put together as shown in the illustration and sewed together by overhand stitches. The points are then bent outward, and where the covering material does not have a figure a small decalcomanie picture may be pasted on each point. Many other ways of ornamenting this basket will suggest themselves to the maker. Little worsted balls may be hung to the points or sequins in a fringe all around. If a layer of cotton is put between the covering and the pasteboard, the appearance is improved.

This basket will make a pretty card receiver. It can also be used as a receptacle for skeins or balls of embroidery silk. In that capacity it is called a workbasket. It may also be utilized to hold the family spools, needles and thimbles when mending is being done.

Clover Leaf Basket.

A good luck basket is a pleasant memento to receive. It should be shaped like a clover leaf. Three pieces are needed to shape the basket—one for the bottom, one for the side and the other for the handle. The clover leaf shape may be obtained by marking on cardboard three overlapping circles with a small saucer as guide. When the shape of the bottom of the basket is obtained, slash it half an inch deep. These indentations are to be turned up and glued against the side pieces of the basket. The side piece should be two inches high and as long as the outline of the clover leaf. Outside and inside the basket should be covered with some decorative material. The top and bottom are sewed together and the slit pieces glued in place. When the glue is dry, the outside is put on and a row of lace or ribbon doubled over the edge. The same is done at the bottom. The actual covering may be anything that will permit of the green clover leaf design being applied. The handle should be treated like the rest and finished by bows of ribbon to match. This basket should be filled with bonbons before it is presented to the person for whom it is intended. The bonbons may be made at home too. Confectioner's sugar beaten with the white of eggs and a little water is the basis for many delicious homemade confections. Nuts, chopped fruits, etc., are introduced to give variety or richness.

Attached to the clover leaf basket should be a card inscribed with the giver's name and the words "Good Luck."

RUSSIAN PLANS FAILED

Japan Objected to Change of Status of Manchuria

LESSAR WAS OVER-ANXIOUS

To Conclude Negotiations and Had a Stormy Interview With Li Hung Chang, Which Caused the Latter's Death—New Minister Old and Weak

Pekin, Nov. 9.—A violent dispute with Paul Lessar, Russian minister to China, over the Manchurian treaty, appears to have been the immediate cause of the death of Li Hung Chang. The diplomatic events preceding this tragic climax have enabled Japan for the moment to frustrate the designs of Russia.

A fortnight ago the Japanese legation secured a reliable outline of the terms of the treaty and, thereupon, demanded that the Chinese plenipotentiaries officially lay before them the text, basing this demand upon the allegation that Japanese interests were involved in any change of the status of Manchuria.

The Chinese plenipotentiaries refused to comply with the demand. Thereupon the Japanese government, from Tokio, communicated with the southern viceroys and induced them to use their influence with the empress dowager against the treaty. In the meantime the empress dowager instructed Li Hung Chang to communicate the treaty, after certain modifications, to the ministers of the powers, and, if they did not object, to sign the same.

Li Hung Chang visited M. Lessar and explained to him the instructions. The Russian minister strongly objected to revealing the text of the treaty to the ministers of the other powers, and a stormy interview ensued. Li Hung Chang went home in a violent passion and suffered a hemorrhage, which the doctors attribute to the over-exertion of a weakened system.

While these things were happening in Pekin, the southern viceroys sent to the empress dowager a memorial against the treaty. On receiving it she telegraphed to Li Hung Chang, countermanding the order to sign.

This instruction came after Li Hung Chang had become unconscious. When M. Lessar endeavored to have Li Hung Chang's seal affixed to the treaty, Chou Fu, provincial treasurer, had arrived from Pao Ting Fu, and had taken charge of the seals as temporary successor of Earl Li.

An imperial edict has arrived here appointing Yuan Shi Kai, governor of Shantung province, to be governor of the province of Chi Li, and appointing Wang Wen Shao, who is vice president of the foreign office and a member of the cabinet, to succeed Li Hung Chang as plenipotentiary. They are both ordered to Pekin forthwith. Another edict creates Li Hung Chang a marquis and bestows on him the new name of Li Wen Chung, by which he will be known in history.

Yuan Shi Kai is an unknown man, who has been holding an unimportant, though lucrative, position as grain commissioner in one of the inland towns of the province. He will be watched with the deepest solicitude, as the peace of China will largely depend upon his course.

Wang Wen Shoa, who is 74 years of age and deaf, was never rated as a statesman or a diplomatist. His appointment is probably temporary.

Telegraph communication with Prince Ching was obtained yesterday. He is hastening to meet the court. After consultation he will return with Wang Wen Shao, who is accompanying the court.

Emperor Kwang Su, report says, is asserting himself and leading the imperial cortege on horseback. Native papers declare that he proposes to inaugurate a revival of the military spirit, assuming the honorary position of commander-in-chief and wearing a uniform. They also assert that he will compel the nobles to follow his example, to take military positions and to study military science.

The flag of the United States legation was the only one half-masted in Pekin yesterday. The mourners and the family of Li Hung Chang will burn paper offerings today for the use of his spirit in the other world. The street is hung with mourning emblems. All the attendants at the yamen are richly attired and many of them gaudily dressed. Yesterday musicians beat drums about the house.

Russian Modesty

London, Nov. 9.—The Harkow correspondent of The Times supplies what he alleges is the correct translation of the authentic text of the Manchurian convention proposed by Russia.

The convention stipulates the gradual withdrawal of the Rusian forces within three years "provided no other rebellion occurs and the powers do not interfere."

The number and station of Chinese garrisons must be settled in concert with the Russian military authorities, and Russian assent must be obtained for any railway construction in southern Manchuria.

No mention is made in the text sent by the grand council to the southern viceroys of mining, commercial or other exclusive privileges, says the correspondent, and the viceroys believe the convention contains other clauses which the grand council is not willing to disclose.

Li Hung Chang's estate will remain intact for the use of his oldest son, who will provide for the other members of the family.

NEWSPAPERS SHUT OUT

Inquest In the Toppan Case Is Conducted in Strict Privacy

Sandwich, Mass., Nov. 9.—In connection with the accusation against Jane Toppan an inquest on the deaths of Mrs. Mary E. Gibbs and Mrs. Annie G. Gordon was begun yesterday before Judge Swift. It was conducted behind closed doors, and only one witness was admitted at a time. Each one was strictly enjoined to maintain secrecy as to the nature of the evidence disclosed. The state officers admit that practically everything is being brought out at the hearing upon which the state will place its dependence in the prosecution of Jane Toppan for murder.

The inquest was adjourned shortly before 5 o'clock in oorder to permit those connected therewith to take the late trains for their homes.

All information as to what transpired at the session and the date of the adjourned inquest was denied to the newspaper men.

Irish Envoys Warmly Welcomed

Boston, Nov. 9.—A great reception, impromptu, but enthusiastically demonstrative, met the Irish envoys, Messrs. Redmond, McHugh and O'Donnell, as they reached Boston last night. The platforms between which the train pulled in to the station were a mass of men held in check by a cordon of officers. When the three men appeared there was a rush and scramble which swept away the officers and nearly carried the visitors off their feet. In a few minutes the crowd became calmer and the envoys were taken to their hotel. They spent a quiet evening, informally receiving visitors until a late hour.

Prohibition That Doesn't Prohibit

Portland, Me., Nov. 9.—When the case of Joseph C. Moxcey, Jr., steward of the Elm club, where a big seizure of liquor was made last Saturday night, came up in court yesterday, the search and seizure charge was not pressed. On the charge of nuisance Moxcey was bound over in the sum of $500. As a result of the action of the court, it is announced that the club will continue to run as before, and that liquors will be kept for the individual use of the members. The liquors seized by the sheriff will probably be returned to the owners.

To Work Out "Raw Materia"

Boston, Nov. 9.—The cruiser Prairie was put into commision at the Charlestown navy yard this morning as a training ship for landsmen. She is not ready for sea duty, and it will probably be a month before she starts on her cruise. In this cruise she is to take 540 green landsmen and train them for able-bodied seamen. They will be graduated from this ship to war vessels.

Railway Company Not to Blame

Boston, Nov. 9.—The jury in the United States circuit court have returned a verdict for the defendant in the suit of Michael D. Murphy vs. the Boston Elevated Railway company. The plaintiff slipped on a banana peel on the stairway leading to a subway station and sued to recover $10,000 damages for his injuries, claiming that the defendant was negligent.

Discharged by Coroner

New Haven, Nov. 9.—Coroner Mix last night ordered the discharge of Lawrence McCormick, who was held to await the medical examiner's report on the body of Mrs. Ella Sturgis, who was found yesterday morning in a marsh. There was no evidence that the woman came to her death by any other cause than an accident in which she was thrown under a vehicle.

Brisk Demand For Wool

Boston, Nov. 9.—Regarding the wool trade for the present week the Bulletin on Commercial Bulletin says that the receipts of wool in Boston since Jan. 1 have been 233,277,103 pounds against 141,857,115 pounds for the same period in 1900. The Boston shipments to date are 220,310,686 pounds, against sales of 128,777,500 pounds same period in 1900.

Woburn Dreads Incendiary Gang

Woburn, Mass., Nov. 9.—In the western part of Woburn the firebug has inaugurated a veritable reign of terror. Property owners have petitioned the city council to offer $300 reward for the arrest and conviction of any one of the persons who have made arson a business. In all there have been 11 fires of supposed incendiary origin.

Will Face Serious Charge

Sevierville, Tenn., Nov. 9.—Bob Catlett has given himself up to answer the charge of being an accomplice in the murder of William Whaley and his wife in 1897. Two men were hanged in July, 1899, as the principals in the crime, and it was charged that Catlett had paid them to get Whaley and his wife out of the way. Catlett was tried and released. He is a wealthy man and is now under $10,000 bonds. He says he has been in South Carolina.

South Carolina Amenities

Columbia, S. C., Nov. 9.—L. Asbill, a lawyer and a member of the house of representatives from Lexington, was shot in his buggy yesterday by C. W. Sollee, a merchant and planter. Nearly at the same time, and not many miles distant, in Edgefield, Dr. E. S. Jones and H. C. Watson, a physician and a farmer, respectively, shot each other. Each case resulted from a white man taking the part of a negro.

California Will Be Benefited

Berkeley, Cal., Nov. 9.—In an address to the student body yesterday, President Wheeler of the State university, who has lately returned from an eastern trip, announced that President Roosevelt had informed him that he purposed making the reclamation of arid lands in California a part of the national policy.

Republican Gain of 25,000

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 9.—Based on the vote for supreme court justice, the Republican gain in Nebraska compared with two years ago is about 25,000.

"LUCKY"

Is often the name given by careless and thoughtless people to those who are careful and thoughtful. "What a lucky woman," is said of one whose health and beauty proclaim her free from womanly diseases. The luck often consists in her having thoughtfully considered the merits of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and proved its ability to cure the diseases peculiar to her sex.

"Favorite Prescription" is a reliable medicine for the cure of womanly diseases. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

"I had poor health for nine years," writes Mrs. Armintie Watkins, of Acme, Kanawha Co., W. Va. "Had female weakness, was very irregular and would suffer untold misery. Our family doctor did not do me any good and I concluded to write to you. When I wrote I had no idea that I would ever get well, but when your letter reached me I began to have hope. I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's medicines as directed and began to improve in strength. I was soon able to do the work for my family of six. I took eight bottles, three of 'Favorite Prescription' and five of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and two vials of 'Pellets.'"

The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 pages, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

The National Period of American Literature

BY LORENZO SEARS, LIT. D.,
Professor of American Literature in Brown University.

V.—Washington Irving, Humorist and Historian.

IN the year which saw the United States admitted into the commonwealth of nations a child was born in New York city who should eventually be considered worthy to sit among the makers of literature in England. This honor had not been accorded to any of his predecessors, however interesting theological, political or scientific emanations from America had been to foreigners devoted to such discussions. The Irving family, though with a proclivity for letters, were not descendants of a long line of cultivated ancestors, as was often the case with New England authors. Young Washington himself was through his school days at 16 and, though a bookish boy, was also a stroller over Manhattan Island with a keen eye for what was going on and a wistful gaze after the sails that filled away for lands remote.

"The History of New York From the Beginning of the World to the End of the Dutch Dynasty," with its accounts of the unatterable proceedings of Walter the Doubter, the disastrous projects of William the Testy and the chivalric achievements of Peter the Headstrong, came very near being what the author asserted, "the only authentic history of the times that ever hath been or ever will be written." If history is a reproduction of life, as well as a record of events, no better representation of a former age to illustrate and ridicule the ongoings of a later one will likely be made by any successor of Diedrich Knickerbocker. For example:

"Such was the happy reign of Wouter Van Twiller, celebrated in many a long forgotten song as the real golden age, the rest being nothing but counterfeit, copper washed coin. In that delightful period a sweet and holy calm reigned over the whole province. The burgomaster smoked his pipe in peace. The substantial solace of his domestic cares, after her daily toils were done, sat soberly at the door with her arms crossed over her apron of snowy white without being insulted by ribald street walkers or vagabond boys, those unlucky urchins who do so infest our streets, displaying under the roses of youth the thorns and briers of iniquity. Then it was that the lover with ten breeches and damsel with petticoats half a score indulged in all the endearments of virtuous love without fear and without reproach. Happy would it have been for New Amsterdam could it always have existed in this state of blissful ignorance and lovely simplicity; but, alas, the days of childhood are too sweet to last."

"The Sketch-Book of Geoffery Crayon, Gent," is what its title implies, a collection of short, suggestive outlines of narration and incident struck off with the fidelity to nature and certainty of touch which belong to an accomplished artist. A few masterly strokes reveal much more than themselves and intimate possibilities far beyond the limited range which the author allowed himself. For example, everybody knows how Rip Van Winkle has been expanded by the dramatization to which Joseph Jefferson has given a masterly interpretation, and yet it is a dull imagination which has not seen the vagabond Rip, his dog and gun and termagant spouse and what was left of these after a 20 years' nap as clearly portrayed in suggestive lines of Irving. "He looked round for his gun, but in place of the clean, well oiled fowling piece he found an old firelock lying by him, the barrel incrusted with rust, the lock falling off and the stock worm eaten. He shook his head, shouldered the rusty gun and turned his steps homeward. He had now entered the skirts of the village. A troop of strange children ran at his heels, hooting after him and pointing at his gray beard. The dogs, too, not one of which he recognized for an old acquaintance, barked at him as he passed. Strange names were over the doors, strange faces at the windows—everything was strange." This is a portrayal to whose realism little can be added by brush or the living picture. It may be superbly represented, but it was all there before the ordinary reader, set in simple words, but always the right ones in the right place. "It was with some difficulty that he found the way to his own house, which he approached with silent awe, expecting every moment to hear the shrill voice of Dame Van Winkle. He found the house gone to decay, the roof fallen in, the windows shattered and the doors off the hinges. A half starved dog that looked like a wolf was skulking about it. Rip called him by name, but the cur snarled, showed his teeth and passed on. 'My very dog,' sighed poor Rip, 'has forgotten me!'" This seems simple and easy to do. The reader thinks that it is the very way he himself should have described the old fellow if he had seen him. To test the matter, let the habit of Franklin be imitated. Read the story once more and rewrite it; then compare revisions. After this the greater achievement remains of inventing or, if it was an adaptation of a German legend, of adapting the character to the drowsy atmosphere of the Catskills.

The genius which produced this, the "Legend of Sleepy Hollow," and 30 other sketches was instantly recognized in England. Walter Scott's quick appreciation and generous assistance brought the new author into pleasant and profitable relations with the chief publishers of London, and after Scott, Byron and Murray led there was nothing that did not follow. An American had found his place in the fraternity of letters and without bating a jot of his patriotism or sparing the truth in speaking of English prejudices, established himself for five years in the literary metropolis, where he could best do his work and find a market for it.

Irving, however, was coming to be a cosmopolite. England did not keep him too long. By 1820 he is in Paris hobnobbing with Thomas Moore, following up the theaters, catching notes of applause from across the channel, then going back to win an English triumph on English soil in his "Bracebridge Hall."

No native could have pictured the life of a country squire more to the satisfaction of all England. There was much in it with which the author himself had sympathy, as well as with the people he describes. As if in half apology to Americans he says, "I can never forget that this is my fatherland, and yet the circumstances under which I have viewed it have been by no means such as were calculated to produce favorable impressions." He then remarks that close observation will often change opinions, hastily formed, of a national character which shows its rough side first. Special mention is made of the reception accorded to the essay in "The Sketch-Book" on literary feuds between England and America and the "generous sympathy in every English bosom toward a solitary individual lifting up his voice in a strange land to vindicate the character of his nation."

This indeed is the eminence which Irving occupies, higher than that of being our first man of letters in the order of time. He was a peacemaker in an age of misunderstanding, jealousy and hostility. The ill feeling consequent upon two wars had not wholly subsided. In letters there was independent aspiration on one side, complacent superciliousness and sharp censoriousness on the other. In this very year Sydney Smith contemptuously asked, "Who ever reads an American book?" The one man who was able to reply to the taunt could do it in his "English Writers on America." A few sentences will show the large and generous spirit in which this was done. After observing that impressions of this country had been gained from the worst kind of travelers he remarks that the prosperity founded upon political liberty and the general diffusion of knowledge cannot be overlooked; that it is of more consequence to England than to us that justice be done and resentment allayed; that, "possessing the fountain head whence the literature of the language flows, it is in her power to make it the medium of amiable and magnanimous feeling, a stream where the two nations might meet together and drink in peace and kindness." And to Americans he said: "Let it be the pride of our writers, discarding all feelings of irritation, and disdaining to retaliate the illiberality of British authors, to speak of the English nation without prejudice and with determined candor. While they rebuke the indiscriminating bigotry with which some of our countrymen admire and imitate everything English because it is English, let them frankly point out what is really worthy of approbation." The entire essay shows Irving in the character of a broad minded, fearless daysman between the two countries in a sphere more important than diplomacy. "The mere contests of the sword," he says, "are temporary, but the slanders of the pen pierce to the heart. They rankle longest in the noblest spirit; they dwell ever present in the mind. Trace hostilities to their cause and they will be found to originate in the mischievous effusions of mercenary writers who concoct and circulate the venom that is to inflame the generous and the brave."

Of Irving's later and more pretentious labors a corresponding amount might be said. They were the result of a wish, that came with advancing years, to do more monumental work. After the "Tales of a Traveller" had been thrown off as in his opinion the climax of his lighter diversions, for writing was no task when the mood seized him, he then entered upon the most prolific period of his career at the age of 46. The year 1826 found him at Madrid to begin his "Life of Columbus." This occupied two pleasant years and was succeeded by the "Companions" and this by the "Conquest of Granada" and "The Alhambra" before 1832, when he returned to America after a 17 years' residence in Europe. These larger achievements brought him academic honors from Oxford and the medal of the Loyal Society of Literature, with no end of applause abroad and at home. Then, after ten years of light writing about this and that, tours, recollections, legends and biographies, came the "crowning honor of his life" in the mission to Spain, to be signalized by his crowning work, the "Life of Washington." With the last volume of this he may be said to have ended his days at the Sunnyside retreat on the banks of the river he loved and whose borders he had peopled with legendary beings recalled from the shadowy and dreamy years of the old Dutch dynasty.

A DUEL WITH CONVICTS

Posse Chased Five Men Who Escaped From Prison

THREE OF THEM KILLED

Men Who Are Still Missing Are Hardy and Accustomed to Use of Firearms and Horses—Armed Men Watching All Avenues of Escape

Leavenworth, Kas., Nov. 9.—Eleven of the 26 convicts who escaped from the stockade of the new federal prison here Thursday afternoon have been accounted for. Three of a gang of five are dead. They are: James Hoffman, aged 20; J. J. Poffenholm, aged 25; John Green, aged 21. The fourth, Willard Drake, aged 19, is wounded and recaptured, and the fifth, Fred Moore, aged 16, is recaptured unhurt.

The five men were discovered in the barn of Fay Weishaar, near Nortonville, yesterday afternoon. Weshar went into the barn and was ordered out at the point of guns. He rushed to Nortonville and gathered a posse of men, who, with revolvers, shotguns and a few Winchesters, hastened to the scene.

The convicts saw the men coming and rushed from the barn. They had two shotguns and revolvers. The posse pursued them and a running fight resulted. The convicts were at a disadvantage and their shots had no effect, while at every volley from the posse one of the convicts fell.

After two of them had fallen, two of the others gave themselves up, one being wounded, the other unhurt. The fifth was fully 200 yards away when a man with a Winchester drew a bead on him and fired. He evidently had been hit, but tried to go on. A volley was then fired at him and he fell dead. None of the citizens was hurt.

The convicts had a rifle, a shotgun and an old revolver. Hoffman had the shotgun. He was shot first in the hand. He yelled and dropped the gun. Just then a bullet entered his back and he fell dead. Poffenholz died 40 minutes after being shot. Green was brought down by a bullet in the knee. Drake was shot twice. He says Sol Sutherland, an indian, was shot in the fight at the stockade.

Quinn Fort, who was killed Thursday, was 19 years old. One of the convicts still at large is a military prisoner and the remainder were serving terms for robbery or assault.

Nearly all came from Oklahoma and Indian Territory, and they are supposed to be making for that country. They are hardy men, used to firearms and horses. Some have obtained both, but others are on foot and defenceless. Warden McClaughey says he will capture every one of the men.

In the districts around the city every road and river crossing that the fugitives might be expected to use, is guarded by armed men, the farmers having turned out to earn the $60 reward that will be paid for the return of each convict. Those of the men who are armed are likely to be shot on sight.

May Lose Her Pension

Washington, Nov. 9.—The pension bureau is investigating utterances attributed to Dr. Mary Walker, the ex-army nurse, who wears masculine attire and who is alleged to have called the execution of Czolgosz a murder, and the late President McKinley a murderer on account of his policy in the Philippines. Commissioner Evans explains that he has no authority to revoke the woman's pension, but that congress can do so if it desires.

Bandit Offered Police Captaincy

Minneapolis, Nov. 9.—Mayor Ames of this city tendered Cole Younger, the notorious bandit now out of the Minnesota state prison on parole, after serving 25 years of a life sentence, a position as captain on the local police force yesterday. Younger took the matter up with his friends in St. Paul, where he is now engaged as clerk in a grocery store. Upon the advice of his friends he decided to refuse the offer.

English Company Loses Concession

Managua, Nov. 9.—The appellate division of the supreme court sustains the arbitrators in declaring that the British company which had obtained the concession has forfeited the right to exclusive steam navigation of the San Juan river and Lake Nicaragua.

Big Order For Machinery

New York, Nov. 9.—Nearly $1,000,000 worth of American equipment, machinery, etc., has just been ordered by the South Porto Rico Sugar company of this city for installation in its Porto Rico plantation. The company is capitalized at $3,000,000.

Letter from South America.

To the Editors of the Patriot:

As Quincy is pretty well represented in this out of the way part of the world, the following may prove of interest to some of your readers:

We are in the valley of the Porce river, in the republic of Colombia, South America, about four hundred miles from Cartagena, and about two hundred miles from Bogota, at an elevation of about four thousand feet above the level of the sea, and between six and seven degrees north of the equator. We are at work mining for gold.

On the Tapon mine may be found Mr. Asa K. Whitaker and his son Edward, from Atlantic, and Mr. Sherwood L. Embree of Quincy Point. About ten miles up the river is the Cortada mine where Mr. John H. Newcomb of South Quincy is located; while about a mile down the river from the Cortada is the Remolina mine where Mr. F. J. Fuller of West Quincy, Mr. Henry C. Langhill of Norfolk Downs, and the writer are at work. A few miles further up the river is the La Clara mine which is being operated by a company from Kansas City.

The mines in this section of the world seem to have received but little attention other than the rather crude and desultory work of the natives.

Even this work, however, has been sufficient to exhaust the small, rich bars easily worked by hand. In consequence of this the mining claims here, which are yet untouched, are almost invariably propositions requiring the employing of more or less expensive modern machinery, and it is therefore not a "Klondike," or a place for a poor man, with only a few dollars in his pocket. On the other hand, as a locality, in which remunerative mining ventures may be projected it is safe to say that the judicious investment of capital in this section in a mining way, will produce larger returns, than the same amount of capital invested in almost any other part of the world.

There are two reasons for this: First, the unusually high values in the mines, (from fifty cents to two dollars per cubic yard,) and second, the extremely low cost of working, — a day laborer receiving only fifteen cents per day and food; and other necessities being naturally on the same scale. For example, with machinery such as is used in California, New Zealand and other parts of the world, in dredging for gold, in ancient and present river beds, placed here, on ground which would average fifty cents per cubic yard, it would, conservatively, pay each year, in dividends, the entire amount of the capital invested.

This may easily be seen from the results which are being produced at the present time, from the employment of such dredging machinery in California and New Zealand; some of these paying as high as one hundred per cent. working on ground running not over twenty cents per cubic yard.

The climate here is, of course, being in the tropics, favorable to mining, allowing work to be carried on during the entire year.

The mine we are on has proved very rich in values and also equally difficult to work. We recently encountered a deposit yielding pans running from twenty cents to one dollar and sixty-eight cents to each pan; although, of course, the entire mine is not uniformly as rich as that.

Dredging machinery not being practicable on account of the numerous boulders in this particular mine, we have been compelled to dry it sufficiently to work in, by the use of centrifugal pumps, which, while they enable us to work successfully during the dry season, have on several occasions during the rainy season proved entirely inadequate to handle the water.

Some of our party have recently been at work with special prospecting machinery, on some large mines further up the river, with the view of ascertaining the exact values in the ground, and the general character and nature of the soil and of bed rock. So far the results have been satisfactory, showing above all good values; a loose gravel, and a soft bed rock, with an entire absence of boulders; all of which seem to indicate that we have secured in these mines, a splendid dredging proposition and it is our intention, when we have completed our prospecting work, to put a dredge on the ground as soon as possible.

Outside of mining here, business conditions, agriculture, and almost all other internal affairs are as nearly dead and stagnant, as they are proverbially so in other South American republics. In view of the boom in mining which we all expect here in the near future, let no one start for this country with the impression that he can successfully engage in mining without money and machinery, as the natives here have done already what the "forty-niners" did in California.

We have been here nearly a year and the general health of the party has been good, with the exception of some malaria at first. The temperature is very even, ranging between 68 and 78 degrees in the shade; but in the sun, at midday, it is very hot.

It is rather lonesome here and we have very little to read. The mail service is very poor, and although the Patriot has been sent to us every week, so far we have received but five or six copies, and they were from two months to ten weeks old when we get them; so you see we are not up to the times. Trusting to return to Quincy in the near future, I am

Yours respectfully,
AUBREY R. KEITH.

Happy Thought of a Man In a Fix.

An operator for a western railroad who had served his company long and well was called into the office one day and asked if he thought he could hold down the job of night dispatcher. He promptly replied that he could and was told to report for duty that night, and his chief instructed him in what he was to do. Just after the chief left the office it began to blow and snow, and the trains commenced to run late. The new night dispatcher soon had developed a bad case of "rattles" and almost cried. He did not want an accident, and he could not handle the trains. So a happy thought struck him. As fast as a report came in he replied, directing the conductor to take a siding and wait for orders, and it was not a great while until he had every train on the division sidetracked. Then he took a book, lighted his pipe and sat down to wait for daylight. In the morning the chief appeared with anxiety written all over his face.

"Any accidents, Johnny?" asked the chief.

"Not an accident. I've got 'em all on the sidetrack, snowed in and waiting for orders, and you will have to get 'em out. I am going to blow this job." It took the chief and his force nearly all day to get the trains straightened out and traffic resumed on the road.—Indianapolis News.

False Tails For Horses.

False tails are extensively made for horses, old favorites especially, whose caudal appendages present a wornout and moth eathen appearance, like Petruchio's "old mothy saddle," and his prodigiously mothy get up ("Taming of the Shrew," iii, 2). They are also worn by funeral horses, and by other horses of exquisite outline selected for a particular kind of work, but which are somewhat spoiled in appearance by the possession of a rat tail (bald, like a rat's). These useful appliances, however, are not constructed exclusively for harness horses. I have seen rows of bogus tails, artistically joined on to the crupper, hanging up in a cavalry barracks ready for instant service, being slipped on just like a finger stall. The "fine ends" or false tails used by nobody but "horse copers" or low swindlers are most ingeniously fastened on the animal's bare back by invisible means. A dealer in horses never looks at a horse with a bad tail, and he always goes to the best market only.—Chambers' Journal.

Robins Play at Being Dead.

One morning a well known naturalist was greatly surprised to see a robin lying on his back evidently dead, being rapidly pulled round and round by another bird of the same species.

The naturalist at once came to the conclusion that he had come in time to witness the end of a deadly encounter, and that the live robin was indulging in the cruel triumph of dragging his victim's lifeless body over the stones.

But he was mistaken, for suddenly the live bird went down upon his back, his wings and legs were stiffened, and he gave every appearance of being dead, while the other robin who had been shamming death hopped on his legs and proceeded to serve his companion in the same way as he had done him. Finally the two birds flew away together to a neighboring tree.

How the People of Sangir Keep Time.

The people of Sangir, an island of the Malay archipelago, keep time by the aid of an hourglass formed by arranging two bottles neck to neck. The sand runs out in half an hour, when the bottles are reversed. Close by them a line is stretched, on which hang twelve sticks marked with notches from one to twelve, with a hooked stick, which is placed between the hour last struck and the next one. One of these glasses keeps the time for each village, for which purpose the hours are sounded on a gong by a keeper.

Four Kinds of Pupils.

The Talmud says there are four kinds of pupils—the sponge and the funnel, the strainer and the sieve. The sponge is he who taketh up everything, and the funnel is he who taketh in at this ear and letteth out at that; the strainer is he that letteth go the wine and retaineth the dross, and the sieve is he that letteth go the bran and retaineth the fine flour. The student who begins at least to wish to belong to the last named class will not have been sent to college in vain.

His Watchdog.

Mrs. Suburb—Oh, my dear, that magnificent watchdog you brought home yesterday is gone.

Mr. Suburb—Eh? Did he break the chain?

"No; but an ugly looking tramp came around and acted so terribly that I let the dog loose, but instead of tearing the tramp to pieces he went off with him."

"Great Scot! It must have been the same tramp I bought him of."

A Little Sarcastic.

Maid (to lady at door)—Mrs. Spencer is not at home.

Caller (who knows differently)—Oh, I'm so sorry! But never mind. Tell Mrs. Spencer when she comes in that I called to say that I'm awfully glad she goes out more than she did. I've always wondered why she kept herself cooped up in the house all the time.—Boston Transcript.

Careless About Their Hair.

Peasant women in Siberia wear shawls or kerchiefs on their heads, while the rich women wear no head covering whatever. A traveler recently returned from that part of the world says that a Russian woman who is otherwise trim and modern in dress will go about with her hair disheveled to the point of the ludicrous.

Punjab Bazaar.

The annual fair of the Ladies' Benevolent society connected with the Memorial Congregational church, Atlantic, is to take the form of an Oriental Bazaar this year. Great preparations are being made under the charge of the general committee, Mrs. Charles A. Hall, Mrs. Ida Waterhouse, Mrs. Charles L. Coe, Mrs. Roger H. Wilde, Mrs. B. F. Thomas and Mrs. E. G. Hall, to make the Bazar a greater success than last year's Pink fair. Mr. W. J. Sanborn has the decorations—which are to be Oriental—under his charge. These with the bright costumes of the attendants, promise a pleasing effect. A prominent feature of the Bazaar will be the Japanese Tea garden under the management of Mrs. Ida Waterhouse. These ladies will be found in charge of tables at Music hall, Atlantic, on Wednesday and Thursday, November 13 and 14, and ready to welcome their friends. Fancy, Miss S. M. Hall; handkerchief, Mrs. Charles R. Safford; cake, Mrs. Charles L. Coe; plate, Mrs. William F. Cummings; useful, Mrs. Herbert B. Wood; candy, Mrs. Warren; flowers, Mrs. Frank Jenkin; aprons, Mrs. Alonzo Priest; preserves, Miss I. F. P. Emery; lemonade, Mrs. Herbert S. Barker; peanuts, Mrs. Roger H. Wilde; grab bag, Mrs. Theodore Parker; ice cream Mrs. Ellis Smith. A perfectly appointed lunch counter will be found at the Bazaar under the care of Mrs. Henry W. Read.

Social Evening.

At the High school, Thursday evening, Oct. 31, the Quincy Teachers' Association opened its first meeting of the season. It took the form of a social gathering and was largely attended. Instead of the usual program, the president, Mr. Charles Finch, aided by the committee, had carefully provided a number of pleasant inovation for the evening's amusement, such as guessing coetests and Hallowe'en games, in keeping with the spirit of the time. Informal music was rendered by Miss McKay, Miss Souther, Miss Desmond and Mrs. Finch arranged in a pleasing manner the decorations. The palms were kindly loaned by Mr. Patterson.

The guessing contests in charge of Miss Casendana Thayer, Miss Moir and Miss Lingham, consisted of cities, famous men, artists, birds, books and ads.

A Hallowe'en pudding, containing eight fortunes, was passed about, and the fortunate ones, whose future decrees of fate were revealed, were Miss Otis, Miss Lingham, Miss Thompson, Miss Damon, Miss Parker, Miss Underwood, Miss Moir and Miss Gammon.

The evening was made merry by an obstacle race, peanut hunt, doughnut game, and blowing out of the candles.

Each member of the Association received a little program of the Teachers' Association Course neatly gotten out.

The festivities were brought to a close by the serving of ice cream and cake. All agreed that the evening was a successful social event. The program for the entertainment course is an exceptionally superior one, and it is hope that it will be well patronized.

When you feel that life is hardly worth the candle take a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They will cleanse your stomach, tone up your liver and regulate your bowels making you feel like a new man. For sale by all druggists.

BRAINTREE.

John M. Levangie has sold his sail boat to Frank Frazier of Quincy Point.

Mr. George H. Hobbs and family of Washington street are soon to move to Bridgewater, Mass.

There was a large attendance at the games of the South Braintree whist club at Odd Fellows' hall last evening.

About fifty couples attended the dance given by the Boyd Camp Spanish War veterans in Amory hall, Thursday evening.

Harrison is putting up a fast game on the Harvard Freshman foot ball team and next year he will properly make the Varsity eleven.

The water department has had a gang of men at work at Farm river this week, putting the water pipes under the river bed instead of running them over the bridge.

The votes in Weymouth for representatives were as follows: J. E. Thomas, D. S. 127; William Litchfield, D. S. 182; C. C. Mellen, R. 653; H. R. Drinkwater, D. 778; Gordon Willis, S61.

The social club held a fair at the Union Congregational church, three evenings this week, and there was a large attendance. The different tables presided over by the ladies of the club presented a very pretty appearance.

The monthly business meeting of the Penniman school association was held last evening in the school hall followed by an excellent program under the management of an able committee, Mrs. G. H. Holbrook and Mr. W. H. Dam.

Mrs. H. W. Borden gave a very pleasing parlor social for the benefit of the Baptist church at her home on Franklin street Wednesday evening. Games of all kinds were played and a entertainment consisting of vocal and instrumental music was a pleasing feature.

The home of ex-Chief F. O. Whitmarsh was made happy on Saturday evening last, when the ex-chief was the recipient of a beautiful parlor lamp given by his friends in honor of his forty-fifth birthday. His friends are legion, and the fact was never more plainly manifested than on this occasion.

Early Thursday evening Mr. C. B. Cummings' house on Pond street presented a pretty sight to the passer by. Mr. A. L. Hobart had previously wired the house putting in 53 electric lamps, and Thursday night the test was made. The fixtures are very pretty and flush switches were generously used.

The South Congregational church is noted for its social gatherings and Thursday evening another, which will long be remembered, was held, the occasion being the annual roll call. Supper was served at 6.30, to a congenial gathering, and the ladies in charge again showed their skill. Blessing was invoked by Rev. Mr. Ordway.

The social assembly of the Braintree Fife and Drum corps was held in Red Mens' hall, last evening, and was attended by forty couple. Mrs. Brennan presided at the piano. The matrons were Mrs. G. W. Stevens, Mrs. W. H. Cuff and Mrs. W. A. Torrey. The floor was in charge of James Cuff assisted by Elihu Oliver, Frank Bates and Arthur David.

The favorite cantata, Ruth, which is to be given in December has already about seventy voices in the chorus. The singers will be in costume as well as the young ladies who are in the drill. Various forms of drills and figure marching will be a part of the attraction. When the movements and posings are in accord with a regular system of Delsarte free gymnastics they are also beneficial to the fair performers.

The second monthly social of All Souls' church was held in Cochato hall last Wednesday evening. It was a very informal affair—settees and chairs were prettily grouped about the hall in a way to invite sociability. A table for refreshments and large bouquets of chrysanthemums added to the home like appearance. The following musical program was given entirely by home talent:

Piano duets, Mrs. Wales, Miss Pray; Quartette Miss Druckwater, Miss Perry, Mr. Ellis, Mr Cain; Duett, Misses Elsie and Amy Toner Violin solos, Miss Streitord; Readings, Mr. O. W. Hollis

The committee of arrangements consisted of Mrs. G. O. Wales and Mrs. Eben Prescott.

Art at Home.

The world of modern art is under ordinary conditions an almost unknown beauty, for the difficulties of transportation and the risks attending the exhibition of famous paintings are too great to permit of its being done. The Boston Sunday Journal has, however, made possible not only the temporary but the continuous enjoyment of the work of the greatest of modern artists. The Journal is issuing with its Sunday edition a series of Oil Printings in Colors on Canvas Paper which are the most artistic and accurate reproductions of paintings ever made. The Oil Printings lack nothing of the texture and beauty of the originals from which they are made direct, and in an appropriate frame can scarcely be told from the work of the artist. They are the best attraction ever offered with a Sunday newspaper.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

Park Theatre.

"Lovers' Lane" is an enormous popular success at the Park Theatre, Boston, where it attracts audiences that reach the utmost capacity of this cosy and handsomely reappointed theatre. There is curtain call after curtain call at the end of every act, in fact the enthusiasm is greater than has been vented upon any other new entertainment of the Boston season. "Lovers' Lane" is a hearty, wholesome play of the finest fibre, aglow with honest, cleanly fun and sparkling with sentiment. It sends one away refreshed and diverted. It compels people to talk about it. It keeps an audience in a tumult of merriment, and once in a while there is a sprinkle of tears like a passing April shower that leaves the sunshine all the more grateful and general. Such a play is a sermon. It does everyone good; it charms the children and teaches the old folks. It goes home to the hearts of the people; even the smallest part is admirably acted, and the assemble is delightful.

Under this season's schedule at the Park, an excellent orchestra seat is to be had for $1.00. Thousands have seen and enjoyed "Lovers' Lane" and many other thousands will enjoy it.

Colonial Theatre.

Next Monday night at the Colonial theatre, Boston, will be a premiere occasion of double interest, for there is announced an initial presentation by Charles Frohman of a new star and a new play together, the first being Virginia Harned who has hitherto been equally starred with her husband, E. H. Sothern, and the second being the late Maurice Thompson's romantic Indiana novel entitled "Alice of Old Vincennes," which has been dramatized for Miss Harned expressly by Edward E. Rose. Seldom will there have been seen at the Colonial a combination of such strength as the forthcoming one—a trained star, a brilliant novelist, an often-successful dramatist and a resourceful manager. The wide popularity of the novel itself leaves small doubt of the acceptability of the stage version. The work is described as a romance of the early days of Indiana during the American Revolution. The outlines of the heroine are nobly drawn in the novel and are said to be invitingly repeated in Mr. Rose's stage copy. It is the picture of a type of American womanhood with which the struggles of the Colonies abounded. Miss Harned's individual fitness for the impersonation of the role of Alice, was first intimated by the author, to which the dramatist and manager, judges who should be well qualified to decide on such a point, at once assented. It is therefore a natural sequence that public anticipation for this attraction should be strong hereabout.

Castle Square Theatre.

The plans of the management at the Castle Square Theatre for the coming winter months promise a succession of singularly interesting attractions for the patrons of this play house, and it is most satisfying that the list of subscribers for seats has never been larger than at present. The exhibition of confidence in the value of the Castle Square Theatre productions is well deserved. Following the great production of "The Shaughraun" at this theatre comes a play, by Sydney Somers Toler, called "The Belle of Richmond" which has never been previously seen in Boston. The author is an experienced member of the dramatic profession and his familiarity with the demands and and possibilities of the modern stage is well shown in his work. The action of the play passes in the old Capital city of Virginia and it deals with characters representing the true aristocracy of the south. It has many interesting situations, its dialogue is concise and the climax is worked out in a way that shows the hand of a skilful playwright. The usual distribution of boxes of chocolate bon-bons will be made at the Monday matinee.

Keith's Theatre.

Jacque Inaudi, the marvelous lightning calculator, will remain at Keith's during the week beginning Nov. 11, but it is announced that he will perform some still more wonderful feats of mental gymastics than any that he has exhibited during the past two weeks. It may not be generally understood, perhaps, that M. Inaudi has a standing offer of $50, to be devoted to any charity, on account of any mistake which he may make in failing to give the correct day after hearing the date of the month and year, Among others who come to Keith's next week are: Mlle. Chester and her statue dog, in a series of poses illustrating scenes of the hunt; Edward Reynard, ventriloquial comedian, introducing his novel moving figures. The Biograph pictures will include some scenes that have local interest and a number of foreign views. Great preparations are being made for the programme to be offered the week of Nov. 18, which will be known as Harvard week, Keith's having been selected by the collegians as their headquarters on the night of the big football game.

Hollis Street Theatre.

An organization that might most aptly be termed "the champion laugh-producer of the world" will be the attraction at the Hollis Street Theatre, Boston, next week, opening Monday night, Nov. 11—The Klaw & Erlanger Comedy Company, with those geniuses of the comic, Gus and Max Rogers, in John J. McNally's latest vaudeville farce, "The Rogers Brothers in Washington." The piece presented this season is really the hottest-paced production in which the Rogers Brothers have been seen. It was thought "In Central Park," their vehicle of last year, was the acme of quick action in theatrical entertainment, but his season the two-minute gait has been struck and a perfect maelstrom of wit, humor and melody sweeps the audience from the rise to the fall of the curtain. This company has always been noted as a "beauty show." This year it displays a contingent of beautiful principals and a chorus of 40 as attractive young women as have ever been seen on the stage. The engagement in Boston is limited and the theatre is sure to be packed at every performance.

POLICY OF ROOSEVELT

Outlined In Speech by One Very Close to Him

QUESTION OF RECIPROCITY

Might Be Better Perfected by General Law Than by Treaties—Upbuilding of Merchant Marine and Stronger Navy Strongly Advocated

Boston, Nov. 11.—Senator Lodge was the principal attraction at a dinner of the Middlesex club held at Young's hotel Saturday afternoon for the purpose of celebrating the recent election.

The announcement that Mr. Lodge was to take advantage of the occasion, his first opportunity for public utterance since his return from abroad, and since the change of the administration at Washington, to deliver a somewhat extended address, which, on account of his close personal relations with President Roosevelt, it was anticipated would be especially important and timely, served as a magnet to attract an exceptionally large gathering of the club membership.

Mr. Lodge's speech had been carefully prepared, and, appreciating, no doubt, that unusual significance might be attached to his utterances at this time, it was as carefully delivered. He usually speaks, when addressing social gatherings, state conventions and political meetings, without manuscript or notes of any kind, and the newspapers, under such circumstances, rely upon their own shorthand reports of what he says. Saturday, however, he had his address written out in advance, and the typewritten manuscript was before him upon an improvised desk when he arose to speak.

The principal points in Mr. Lodge's speech pertained to the questions of reciprocity, the development of an American merchant marine, the construction of the isthmian canal, the maintenance of the Monroe doctrine and the establishment of a navy of increased strength. With reference to reciprocity, he declared that it was an integral part of the protective system, a fact which he said should not be lost sight of. He asserted that free trade England, for example, cannot make reciprocal arrangements with other nations, because she has nothing to give. He argued that, while practically everybody agreed as to the desirability of an effective reciprocity policy, the people should not forget the practical difficulties which confront congress in perfecting the details of such an arrangement, which, he intimated, might be better perfected by a general law than by treaties.

Applause greeted the senator's interesting declaration: "I do not think any duty ought ever to have been imposed upon hides."

"I do not regard it as a protective duty," he continued, "and I think it was laid in deference to a mistaken sentiment. Nevertheless, there are sections of the country which attach much importance to that duty, and other sections of the country attach equal importance on the duty on wool." Reductions in the duties on hides and wool, he thought it "needless for me to say, would be, in themselves, entirely agreeable to me and all New England representatives."

In discussing the necessity for upbuilding the merchant marine of the United States, he alluded to the encouragement given ship builders abroad, which caused Americans to go there to build ships, adding: "We must give our merchant marine the same encouragement and protection which other nations give to theirs. We should put them on an equality. We must enable them to meet foreign subsidies and the greater cheapness of foreign labor. I believe this can be done, and I do not think there is any more important duty incumbent upon congress than to pass a bill which shall aid and build up our merchant marine.

"With the enlarged commerce which I believe the coming years are to bring under wise legislation, it becomes more than ever important that we should have the isthmian canal.

"I believe from what little I know, that we shall have a treaty with England at the coming session which will remove, honorably for both nations, whatever obstacles now exist to the building of the canal in the Clayton-Bulwer treaty. If such a treaty is submitted to us by the president there is no more pressing duty than its immediate ratification, to be followed at once by the passage of the canal bill.

"We have nothing but the kindliest feelings to all nations and most earnestly wish to cultivate good relations with them all. There can be but one nation, in my opinion, which would be our enemy, and that is the nation which should attempt to take possession of any portion of the American hemisphere.

"I do not know that any nation is contemplating any such step. I trust and believe there is none, but I know of but one sure guarantee of the peace, which we desire above all things, and that is that we should have a navy so powerful that no nation on earth would think of making a wanton attack upon us, or of attempting the overthrow of the Monroe doctrine."

In Memory of McKinley

Tower, Minn., Nov. 11.—To this village belongs the honor of having erected the first monument in memory of William McKinley. The little town was filled with people yesterday at the unveiling. Governor Van Sant and other men of prominence were present.

AMERICANS MUST LEAVE

Before Lukban Will Listen to Negotiations For Surrender

Manila, Nov. 11.—According to advices from Catbalogan, Lukban, the insurgent leader, has sent a message to General Smith, declaring that he will not listen to negotiations for surrender until all the Americans have withdrawn from the Gandara valley.

GENERAL LUKBAN.

General Smith has ordered every American soldier in the islands of Samar and Leyte never to be without arms even at mealtimes. He is determined that there shall be no more surprises and commanding officers will be held responsible.

General Smith also directs that scouting must continue incessantly and that all rice and hemp captured must be destroyed. He considers the capture of Lukban only a question of a very short time.

MOVEMENTS OF TROOPS

Have Greatly Hindered Negotiations With Miss Stone's Captors

Sofia, Nov. 11.—Information has been received here from Deubnitz that the band of brigands holding captive Miss Ellen M. Stone, the American missionary, called about a fortnight ago at the village of Smetchevo and subsequently proceeded to the monastery at Rilo, but the movements of the troops compelled the brigands to flee toward the frontier, where they are now in hiding. It is also asserted that the brigands have recently been treating Miss Stone with more severity in order to exercise pressure and to compel a more ready acceptance of their conditions.

Consul General Dickinson is inflexible. He insists that the surrender of Miss Stone must precede or be simultaneous with the payment of the ransom. His attitude is justified by the known determination of some members of the band, particularly the captain, Yanne Sandusky, to kill Miss Stone and her companion so soon as the ransom is received, owing to the fact that the captives have now acquired information concerning the secret committees.

Competent persons, however, express the opinion that the cupidity of the brigands will overcome their fear of revelations, and all such aprove the declaration of Mr. Dickinson.

Yesterday Mr. Dickinson made energetic representations to the Bulgarian government against the movements of troops, reproaching the officials with the fact that, notwithstanding their solemn promises to give him all assistance in their power, their action was embarrassing the negotiations, retarding a settlement and placing in jeopardy the life of Miss Stone.

He made a definite declaration that the Bulgarian government would be held responsible for the death of Miss Stone and all the consequences of her death, should it be proved that the attitude of the Bulgarian government forced the brigands to kill their captives.

Prisoner Shot Down

Vicksburg, Miss., Nov. 11.—R. F. Brooke, a planter, shot and fatally wounded Jack Moore, a negro, who had been convicted of killing Brooke's son, and given a three year penitentiary sentence. The shooting occurred on a passenger train. Moore being shackled to three other prisoners and in charge of a deputy sheriff en route to the state farm.

A DIPLOMATIC SUCCESS

Turkey Yields to All Demands Made by France

FLEET LEAVES MITYLENE

And "Cordial" Relations Between the Two Nations Are Resumed—Anti-European Movement of Ottoman Empire is Checked

Paris, Nov. 11.—The French foreign office has announced that the sultan has signed an irade for the execution of his engagements with the French government and that the Franco-Turkish dispute is at an end.

Tewfik Pacha, ottoman minister of foreign affairs, wrote a letter to M. B. Bapst, councillor of the French embassy in Constantinople, notifying him of the signing of the irade, which, while settling the original French demands, accepts the fresh demands, together with an additional clause by which the sultan pledges himself to consider as authorized in full right the foundations, extensions, constructions and repairs of the schools and religious and hospitable establishments which France may desire to carry out if the porte is advised of her intentions and makes no objection within five months.

France has thus received full satisfaction; and M. Delcasse, on the receipt of M. Bapst's dispatch yesterday, telegraphed him to inform Tawfik Pacha that diplomatic relations had been resumed and that M. Bapst should consider himself as regularly charged with the affairs of the embassy.

Instructions were also sent to Admiral Caillard at Mitylene to re-embark the marines and to return to Greek waters, which it is understood to mean the vincinage of the island of Syra. Admiral Caillard will remain in the Levant some time longer.

M. Constans, the French embassador, will return to Constantinople very shortly.

The additional clause was conceded at the request of France in order to prevent future difficulties such as the Turkish provincial authorities have often raised either on their own initiative or in consequence of instigation by the porte.

The Temps, which describes the result as a "brilliant victory for French diplomacy," says: "The great merit of the government was in being able to restrict its action. Very serious difficulties might have arisen had France departed from her reserve. The favorable disposition shown to our representations abroad has been due to the fact that the civilized world has had opportunity during the last seven years to observe the progress of the anti-European movement in the sultan's councils. Frenchmen, Americans, Austrians, Italians and Britons have all been victimized by the sultan and his councillors. After the Armenian massacres and successful war with Greece they thought everything was permitted to them.

"We hope the sultan will now understand his duties toward the civilized powers and toward his own subjects, unto whom he has taken solemn engagements which he has always disregarded. Otherwise Europe, which, thanks to the energetic action of France, is now able to reassume at Constantinople the authority she lost seven years ago, will applaud the initiative which the signatory powers of the Berlin treaty are reported to be about to take to extort from the sultan the execution of clauses too long fallen into disuse."

Settles With Austria, Too

Constantinople, Nov. 11.—Baron De Calice, the Austro-Hungarian ambassador, has secured from the porte a satisfactory settlement of several questions that were pending between Turkey and Austria-Hungary.

Army Paymaster Robbed

Pensacola, Fla., Nov. 11.—Paymaster Stevens of the United States army arrived from Atlanta Saturday and before leaving that city placed in a hand satchel 200 silver dollars and $4800 in paper money for the purpose of paying the artillerymen at Fort Barancas and McRea their salaries. When he reached the fort here he opened his grip and found that all the paper money had been abstracted. Paymaster Stevens has an idea that the money was taken before he left Atlanta.

Delegates Don't Agree

Manila, Nov. 11.—The federal convention continues its meetings, but these are generally of a turbulent character and very little is accomplished. Personal bickerings prevent harmony. Senor Buencamino challenged Senor Velasco to a duel, but the latter refused to fight on account of the age of the challenger. Many provincial delegates have already left in disgust.

Pugwash Has a Big Fire

Halifax, Nov. 11.—The town of Pugwash was visited last night by a fire which destroyed nearly every mercantile establishment and many of the finest houses in the place. Twenty buildings were burned and the property loss will reach $50,000.

When you feel that life is hardly worth the candle take a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They will cleanse your stomach, tone up your liver and regulate your bowels, making you feel like a new man. For sale by all druggists.

WILL "ROAST" BOSTONIANS

Their Attitude Toward Negroes Not Approved by Rev. Dr. Dixon

Boston, Nov. 11.—At the Ruggles Street Baptist church last evening the Rev. A. C. Dixon, D. D., in his talk on current events, speaking of the presence of Booker T. Washington at a dinner given by President Roosevelt, said that in his opinion the president, by extending this invitation, had committed the most stupendous political blunder of the last decade, because he had reopened the race question throughout the south.

Dr. Dixon said he believed the president had taken this step purely from noble and generous motives, but thought that it would take 10 years to overcome the effects of this incident. He said the south had been thoroughly aroused and the negro question was more of a factor today than it had been for years.

Dr. Dixon said that if Booker Washington had planned for the persecution of his race he could not have succeeded better than by attending this dinner.

Dr. Dixon disclaimed any prejudice toward the negro. He stated that at some future time he should take occasion to "roast the people in this city alive," for their gross intolerance of the colored race, which was found not only in the church but in every walk of life.

Cranberry Bogs Threatened

Plymouth, Mass., Nov. 11.—Forest fires in Plymouth and Carver brought out of a gang of 100 men who worked hard from early morning till late last night in an endeavor to stop the flames from reaching the cranberry bogs in these places. High winds caused the fire to spread rapidly and over 25 acres of woodland in Plymouth and 75 acres in Carver were burned over. The fire has destroyed a large quantity of fine timber, but the damage cannot be estimated at this time.

Got Caught In Gale

Portland, Me., Nov. 11.—Steamer North Star, while on her way to this port yesterday, rescued, 20 miles northeast of Cape Cod, the three men composing the crew of the schooner Florida, coal laden, which was in sinking condition. While off Cape Cod in a northwest gale the fore hatch of the Florida was washed away and much water was taken in the hold. The schooner was loaded with coal and was soon water-logged.

Helpless Men Drift Away

Milford, Conn., Nov. 11.—Early yesterday two unknown men rented a rowboat at Woodmont and started out fishing. When a short distance from land they broke an oar. A strong east wind was blowing off shore and the men swiftly drifted out into the sound. If they escape drowning, it is probable that the men will be frozen to death, for they were insufficiently clothed for such an experience.

Two Burned to Death

Medford, Mass., Nov. 11.—There seems a single theory only for a fire in which Mr. and Mrs. Angus M. Smith, an aged couple, lost their lives Sunday morning at their home here, and that is that Mrs. Smith fell with a lighted lamp in her hand and burned to death. Her husband was suffocated in trying to rescue her. The police are convinced that a broken lamp was responsible.

Bullet Killed Deer and Man

Bangor, Me., Nov. 11.—An inquest held at Greenville to investigate the death of W. C. Tuckey, who was accidentally shot by J. C. Hostatter near Lily Bay, resulted in a verdict exonerating Hostatter. Testimony showed that the bullet that caused death was a spent one that had already killed a deer and then glanced from a tree.

Children's Quarrel Grew

Boston, Nov. 11.—Henry Evans is suffering from several knife wounds in the back and arms, said to have been inflicted by George A. Phinney. The stabbing resulted from a family quarrel begun by their wives over children's quarrels, and resumed when the men came home from their work.

Over the Prison Wall

Concord, Mass., Nov. 11.—Fred W. Bates, a first grade man, in whom great confidence was placed, has escaped from the Concord reformatory. He was night fireman and escaped over the walls. The prisoner was serving an indeterminate sentence for breaking and entering.

Many Claim Loss of Funds

Boston, Nov. 11.—Under bonds aggregating $7500, John Hogan, a real estate dealer, is held for the grand jury on several charges of larceny. Several witnesses testified that they had given Hogan money to invest and he had failed either to make purchases or return the funds.

An Unrestricted Gift

Natick, Mass., Nov. 11.—The trustees of the Morse hospital have received from Holis H. Hunnewell, a gift of $15,000 in C. B. & Q. R. R., 4 percent bonds, there being no restrictions as to how the money shall be used, that being left entirely to the discretion of the board.

Umilian's Days Numbered

Boston, Nov. 11.—Francisnek Umilian, the convicted murderer of Jack Emrusdick at Granby in December, 1899, who has been sentenced to be electrocuted during the week beginning Nov. 16, has been brought to the state prison at Charlestown.

Hose Wagon Wrecked

Boston, Nov. 11.—A hose wagon turned upside down while being driven to a fire yesterday, and of five men on it only John F. Mitchell, hoseman, was hurt. The wagon was completely wrecked. The fire was a $5 one.

Good Afternoon

Commenting on the election returns of last week the Herald says:

"The 10th district though it was carried by Congressman Henry F. Naphen a year ago by plurality of about 7,000, affords the Republicans some crumbs of comfort, and if they can manage to find a real popular vote-getting candidate they may be able to redeem it. The Democrats carried the district for Governor, Nov. 5, by 1727 votes. But the Republican timber in the 10th district forests was never very heavy and there are no signs of a new growth reaching maturity in time for use next year. It is extremely doubtful, therefore, whether the next Republican candidate for Congress, whoever he may be, will be able to make as good a showing as did Gov. Crane this year."

But some good timber has already appeared in the Quincy end of the district in Mayor Hall and Senator Sprague. Both are vote getters, and would ably represent the district. Neither is handicapped with a "barrel," but would enlist the hearty support of all Republicans and also many who in the past have voted the Democratic ticket. In Congressional year the district should be a very even one, with good chance of Republican success. It should be remembered that Josiah Quincy, the Democratic candidate for Governor this year, was a native of the district, and that the Democrats made an aggressive campaign, where the Republicans did not have a rally.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Another trial of the Molineaux case would be a fine thing for the experts, but it has outlived its usefulness as a newspaper feature.—Keene Sentinel.

☞The papers are saying so much about Mrs. Anna Edson Taylor, the schoolmarm that went over Niagara Falls in a barrel, that Mrs. Nation is likely to become jealous and start out upon an even more rabid crusade for notoriety than ever before. Perhaps she will keep her throat to inspect Nashua.—Concord Patriot.

☞From this time forth let all mention of the name of the assassin of President McKinley be avoided as far as possible. The plan to dispose of his body and burn his clothing and letters inside the prison walls is a good one. While his crime will live as long as history is read let his name and identity be lost as completely as possible.—Nashua Telegraph.

☞Among outside results none is more gratifying than the tribute which Massachusetts paid yesterday to her business governor. The campaign was unprecedented in the fact that the Republicans made no canvass whatever, Gov. Crane not once opening his lips, nor a single "rally" being held. Yet, although the Democrats nominated that able politician Josiah Quincy, the admirable record which the plain mannered, clear headed, and faithful executive of the Bay State has made resulted in majority which is tremendous for an "off year."—New York Evening Post.

ROBBED EMPLOYERS.

Took Boxes and Trunk to Take Away Things When She Left.

The servant girl recently employed at the home of Representative Eben W. Sheppard has been thinking strongly of getting married, and late events showed that she had been preparing to commence housekeeping with many of the articles belonging to the Sheppard family, which she appropriated to her own use without first obtaining the necessary permission. Last week, after the fire, the girl was dismissed and she removed several boxes of what was supposed to be her own property. She however left her trunk to be called for latter.

The family became suspicious that somehow the various articles that had been missed from time to time were in the possession of the girl, and Saturday they got Officer Barry to go down and open the trunk. Among the contents of the trunk was goods to the value of $20 or more which were identified as belonging to the Sheppard family. The boxes were then traced to a house on Granite street, and from these about $7 more of goods were found. There were also found some articles that belonged to Mrs. Howe of Goffe street. The girl formerly worked there, and although the goods were missed at the time, their disappearance was laid to the door of the famous Dudley gang who admitted having broken into the place. The parties interested refuse to prosecute the girl and she will therefore escape punishment.

What He Thought of It.

A good story comes from a book, To Girls, recently added to the Crane library as follows:

"Several years ago when electric cars began to ply between Cambridge and Boston, motormen regarded them as new toys and delighted in putting on a high rate of speed over the road. Nervous passengers often found the experience trying. One day a spectacled young woman, evidently a student at what was then the Harvard annex, stepped out on the platform at Harvard square and said to the motorman 'How many volts have you been running on the way out?' He was amazed but told her, and she replied, I want your name and number and I shall report you at headquarters. 'That is twenty volts more than allowed by law.'' As she stepped from the car the man exclaimed 'Darn this higher education for women.'"

Fined and Sentenced.

Arthur Robeege, the young man who was before the district court Saturday for exposing himself at Randolph and Holbrook, claims that he is a victim of mistaken identity. The young man was arraigned upon three complaints and a number of women and girls testified against him. The case was not reached until noon, and it was late before it was completed. The court found the man guilty and sentenced him to pay a fine of $15, and serve three months in the house of correction upon each complaint. An appeal was taken.

The man's friends visited Quincy early in the evening, and went his bond. They claim that at the time of the offence that he was at work in the shop with them.

Our Public Library.

Some fiction is drifting into our public library that if not absolutely indigestible is not nutritious. A healthy sign was observed this week in finding the grand stories of George MacDonald worn and showing use. The Hon. Charles Francis Adams always favored fiction in public libraries but this was a decade ago when our shelves were not inundated with the mass of fiction of today. Our library is adding some most attractive and valuable books on other lines and it may be time some day to have a reading room for boys elsewhere.

Free Delivery.

Arrangements have been made by the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad to provide free delivery of luggage from New London and New Haven in New York and Brooklyn. The railroad will do this through an arrangement with the New York transfer company. If the system is successful it will be extended to other stations on the line and eventually to all the stations of the system.

Marine Superintendent.

Capt. Redford W. Sargent, the marine superintendent of the Cramp Ship Co., died suddenly in Philadelphia Nov. 8, in his 58th year. He always commanded the Cramp ships on their trial trips.

"Last winter an infant child of mine had croup in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist, of Filley, Mo. "I gave her a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and in a short time all danger was past and the child recovered." This remedy not only cures croup but when given as soon as the first symptoms appear, will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

SECOND ATTEMPT.

Proved Successful in Ending Life of Everett M. Pope.

Everett M. Pope a well known resident of Atlantic, took his own life Saturday afternooon by shooting himself in the head with a revolver. When found he was near his boat house at Wollaston beach. His head was covered with blood and near him lay the revolver with which the act was committed. The unfortunate man was unconscious and was removed to the boat house. A physician was hastily summoned but said upon his arrival that the wound was a fatal one. He died early Sunday morning. Mr. Pope has been in the employ of the Tubular Rivet & Stud Co. for many years and was superintendent of machinery. He was quite a noted inventor of machinery and had visited Paris in the interest of the company by whom he was employed. He has been in poor health for some time, and a few weeks ago was found unconscious at the factory and sent to the City Hospital. His illness at that time was due to an attempt to take his own life by poison, the true facts of the case however, while known, were not given publicity. Since returning from the hospital he has not resumed business but has been taking a rest. To all appearances he was daily growing stronger and better. A watch had been kept upon him for fear that he might again attempt his life. Saturday he eluded his watchers and visited his boat house, where he took his own life. He leaves a widow and one son.

LESS DELEGATES.

Quincy Loses One But County Towns Lose More.

If the basis of Representation to the Republican conventions remains the same in 1902 as this year, Quincy will have 16 delegates instead of 17, but most of the cities and towns will make heavier loses because of the decreased vote. The loss came in Ward Five where vote fell from 451 to 401. It required 450 votes to entitle the ward to four delegates, so it will have but three, the representation being: Ward One, 4; Ward Two, 2; Ward Three, 3; Ward Four, 2; Ward Five, 3; Ward Six, 2.

No town in Norfolk county made a gain however while Brookline lost 4, Hyde Park 2, Weymouth 2, Milton 2, Franklin 2, and following towns one each: Canton, Dedham, Foxboro, Medfield, Needham, Randolph, Sharon, Stoughton, Walpole, Wellesley and Wrentham.

On the basis of 1901 the Norfolk county convention of 1902 would have but 91 delegates, 24 less than this year.

The First Norfolk senatorial district would have 9 less delegates, and Quincy but 1 less or 16 out of the 44.

Business for Council.

An adjourned meeting of the City Council will be held tonight when the committee on elections will report on the result of the election of last Tuesday.

The committee on streets will report on the petition of the Old Colony street railway for a double track location from the car barn on Hancock street to Neponset; on the petition to lay out and accept Cottage avenue and Morton street; and on petition of the New England Telephone Co. and Electric Light Company for locations.

In the calendar are orders granting locations for poles to the New England Telephone Company and Electric Light Co.

THE MAYORALTY.

Anti Bryant Men United on One Point.

Any One But Charles M. Bryant.

Hon. William N. Eaton May Be Democratic Candidate.

The indications are that Charles M. Bryant will not be the Republican candidate for Mayor this fall. Wards One Two and Three, with their 28 delegates, will control the convention which numbers 51 in all. Thus far, it is said, the 28 delegates have not united on a candidate, but every one was elected as anti-Bryant," and it is said that every one will vote against Mr. Bryant first, last and all the time. On the other hand there are signs of wavering in Ward Four and Six. The former were not pledged on the ballot, and the latter do not consider themselves bound for many ballots.

The 28 delegates in Wards One, Two and Three will endeavor to unite on Elisha Packard, Frederick L. Jones, Edward E. Jameson, or Mayor Hall, or any Republican except Mr. Bryant, and for this purpose will hold a meeting on Thursday evening.

It is said that William N. Eaton will be the Democratic candidate unless Mr. Packard is the Republican nominee, but that he will not run against Mr. Packard.

Both conventions will be held simultaneously on Friday evening, and all nominations by conventions must be filed before 5 p m on Saturday Nov. 16. The Democrats will probably endeavor to postpone their nomination until the delegates learn the result of the Republican convention.

The anti-Bryant delegates are being much sought after, especially in Ward Two. Ever since the caucuses of last week this territory has been the stamping ground of friends of Mr. Bryant, and efforts have been made to secure one or more delegates for him. Well known politicians from Ward One have made this their stamping ground for several days, but apparently to no purpose. Saturday a well-known politician from Ward Six was enlisted in the fight, and he spent the greater part of the day in endeavoring to turn one or more from the purpose for which they were elected. Ward Two was faithful, however, and all efforts to win a delegate over to Mr. Bryant failed.

Some of the same persuasion was also used upon the Packard delegates in Ward One, but the result was the same. Not a man could be secured who would say that he would vote for Bryant upon any ballot, and for once it looks as though a determined set of men had been elected to oppose the nomination of Mr. Bryant.

Resolutions.

The following resolutions of respect were adopted by the Ladies of Aux. 8, A. O. H., at their meeting on Monday, Nov. 4, 1901, on the death of Brother Burns.

WHEREAS — It has been the Divine will of Almighty God to take from you and your family your beloved husband, Michael J. Burns, it becomes the sad duty of the Sisters of Aux. 8 to express our sincere sorrow at his demise and also to extend our heartfelt sympathy to his afflicted wife and family.

Whereas — We have always found him a kind and willing brother whenever occasion required.

Resolved — That although submitting to His Divine will, we most sincerely mourn his death and deplore the loss of a willing and helpful brother.

By his death his wife has lost a good and loving husband, his children a kind and indulgent father.

Resolved — That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to his bereaved family in this, their hour of affliction.

Jumped on a Ten Penny Nail.

The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake made of ten-penny nails, and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and a second one half way through. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes later the pain had disappeared and no more suffering was experienced. In three days the child was wearing her shoe as usual and with absolutely no discomfort. Mr. Powell is a well known merchant of Forkland, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and heals such injuries without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. For sale by all druggists.

SPEED NOT PUBLIC.

But the Torpedo Destroyer DeLong is Said to Have Done Well.

After the mishap to the torpedo boat Blakeley, Friday, her crew shifted the weights which represented her guns and armament to her sister boat, the DeLong. This was accomplished about midnight, and Saturday morning the DeLong went out for her standardizing speed trial, says a Newport despatch to Herald. The sea was good, but a stiff southwest wind came up soon after the trial began, and bothered the boat some on her runs south.

Everything about the boat and machinery worked well, and the examining board was able to finish the trial, so that her speed curve could be determined later. It is expected that the two boats will leave here Tuesday for Boston, where they were built at Lawley's yard, and that the sea trial will take place off that port.

The builder's crew, which manned both boats, had rather a hard week's work of it, bringing the DeLong around and then running both boats on speed trials for three consecutive days.

The two boats made very nearly the same speed, and the inspection board complimented the representatives of the builders. Treasurer Herbert and Master Machinist Depoehul, Captain J. E. Coleman and the crew, for the excellent condition of the boats and the able manner in which they were handled. The experience of the DeLong in finishing standardizing runs in one day without a hitch, so far as boat or machinery are concerned, speaks well for the boat.

Hewitson Associates.

The first of the series of four entertainments to be given by the Edward Hewitson associates was held Saturday evening in the vestry of the Wollaston Baptist church.

Mr. A. L. Fowler, in behalf of the club, welcomed the audience. Owing to many late misunderstandings of the club, he thought it necessary to again say that the club was non-sectarian.

The club hopes this will increase membership and patronage at its entertainments.

The entertainment opened with a cornet solo by Mr. C. P. Lyon, a well known cornetist of Boston, who played with expression, "Crack o' the Whip" and an encore "I'll be your friend just the same." He was accompanied on the piano by Mr. Arthur Sprague.

Mr. Robert G. Wright followed with a recitation on General Joseph Wheeler.

The club, supervised by Mr. H. Y. Follett, now sang the "Tinker's Song."

Again Mr. Lyon favored the audience with the selection "Love's old sweet song."

The club was very fortunate in obtaining the services of Mr. Harry E. Stiles of Lynn as speaker for the evening. He was in the 26th United States Infantry in the Philippine islands, as band master of the 8th regiment. He clearly pictured the life, manners, customs and simple dress of the Filipinos. The pet animal of these people is the snake enormous but well tamed and kept in the attic of their homes to drive away the rats. Their houses are built of wood and are set up higher than those of this country owing to the dampness of the atmosphere.

The women are very industrious and their chief employment is weaving cloth made of vegetable fibres.

The people are ignorant and have a very crude religion. There are two classes of these people, the officials and poorer classes. The later act as serfs to these officials or lords and he who has the most slaves becomes the most popular. Mr. Stiles said that he considered these as reasons why the people were so rebellious.

The Glee club sang "To Thee O Country" followed by another cornet the solo, by Mr. Lyon.

Refreshments were now served by the committee for evening, Messrs. Fowler, Barbour, Williams and Sibley.

There was a large number present but still there was more seating capacity and the boys hope all who were present, will bring their friends to the next entertainment Saturday evening, November 16. Mr. Henry T. Bailey, supervisor of drawing in the Boston schools will lecture that evening on the "Acropolis of Athens."

Legislature to Meet.

When the Legislature was adjourned in June, it was to meet again Wednesday Nov. 13, to act on the revised draft of the public statutes. The Legislature will meet at 11 A. M. without ceremony, this district being represented by Senator Sprague in the upper branch and Representatives Frank E. Badger and Eben W. Sheppard in the House.

Half of the revised chapters will probably be reported in the Senate and half in the House, and the question on each chapter will be: "Shall this chapter pass and be sent to the other branch?"

The Legislature will probably meet for ten or twelve days, about two hours per day.

THE CORONATION ROBES

Rules About Display at England's Ceremonial Not Liked.

THE FAIR SEX DISAPPOINTED.

Ladies Resent Queen's Request That No Imported Costumes Be Worn. Use of Jeweled Coronets Restricted. Robes to Be Worn Over Full Court Dress—Edward's Attire.

London aristocrats are feeling gloomy over the Duke of Norfolk's supplement to the London Gazette, in which as earl marshal of England he gives detailed regulations concerning robes and coronets to be worn by peers and peeresses at the approaching coronation, writes the special correspondent of the Chicago News. The disappointment is chiefly among the fair sex. They are not to be allowed all the furbelows and tinsel which to feminine minds form the sine qua non of such important ceremonials.

To begin with, Queen Alexandra's request that all coronation gowns should be made of English goods and by English couturieres has had anything but an enthusiastic reception. Heretofore the white satin dresses and ruby velvet robes have come from France, and Dame Fashion stubbornly refuses to be satisfied with the home supply. It has just leaked out that the wives of three prominent diplomats have secretly passed in their orders to a Rue de la Paix firm, and it is more than probable that many other gowns signed by French houses will find their way into the royal cortege.

Another cause for pouting lips is the regulation that peeresses must wear their robes over the usual full court dress instead of over the white satin toilets elaborately trimmed with gold laces and embroideries which were de rigueur in former days. One thing alone remains unchanged, and that is the robe. As in George IV.'s time, it will be of ruby velvet, the cape furred with miniver pure and bordered with rows of ermine, the number of the latter varying according to rank. The duchesses may show four rows, the marchionesses three and a half, countesses three, viscountesses two and a half, while the baronesses will have to be content with two.

An innovation, this time in gentlemen's attire, which will detract not a little from the gorgeousness and pomp of the spectacle, is the fact that peers are ordered to wear their robes over full court dress, uniforms or regimentals. At all previous coronations they were worn over white satin doublets and trunks and white silk hose. But what has caused the greatest discontent is the restrictions regarding coronets. The clause stating that "no jewels or precious stones are to be set or used in the coronets, or counterfeit pearls instead of the silver balls," came like a thunderclap to many, especially to the dames who had already had their blazing diamond circlets prepared.

It is now definitely settled that only the king and queen and the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall will wear jeweled coronets. All other coronets are to be of silver gilt, caps of ruby velvet with ermine lining and having a gold tassel on top. The baron's coronet will have six silver balls on the rim, the viscount's sixteen, the earl's eight, with gold strawberry leaves between the points; the marquis' four silver balls and four gold leaves alternately and the duke's eight gold strawberry leaves.

If peeresses cannot wear jewels on their heads they evidently plan to do so on their bodies, and all London jewelers are now busy making over and resetting heirlooms. Pearls, sapphires and emeralds are to be the favorite stones. Ropes of pearls are to be worn from the shoulders as though fastening the velvet ruby robes, somewhat the same way in which Queen Alexandra wore them at the opening of parliament.

Contrary to expectation no new crown will be made for the queen. King Edward's crown is to be slightly enlarged, but it will undergo no other modification. His majesty on this eventful day will appear before his subjects in the same elaborate robes worn by his granduncle, George IV. This costume consists of three parts. The most important is the "dalmatica," or imperial robe. It is a three cornered mantle forming an inverted "Y" and fitting very closely about the shoulders. All over it are small embroidered crosses.

Beneath it is worn the "supertunica," a sort of short pelerine having sleeves of gold cloth embroidered with gold flowers. Above both dalmatica and supertunica is worn the "armilla," which is also of gold cloth, but has a deep ermine border. It is placed on the king's shoulders by the archbishop of Westminster, who exhorts his majesty to see in this mantle "a pledge of divine grace enveloping him completely."

A McKinley Memorial In Honolulu.

A movement has been started in Honolulu for the erection of a monument to the late President McKinley, in which all the varied nationalities shall assist, writes a correspondent of the Boston Evening Transcript. It was first thought best to raise a fund toward a national monument to be erected in Washington, but now the people of Hawaii have decided to show their patriotism by building a McKinley monument upon their own hook. The Japanese and Chinese societies have voted to assist in the building of the monument and will raise their share of the necessary funds among their own people.

GLEANINGS.

There are 1,674 postoffices in North Carolina in which the compensation of the postmasters is less than $50 a year.

English mail for Australia is delivered in thirty-one days when sent by way of the United States, the quickest route.

There are over 4,000 hospitals in the United States where $25,000,000 worth of gratuitous services are annually rendered.

Swiss papers record a decline in the export of wood carvings and attribute it to the lack of variety in the carvings, the few subjects being monotonously repeated.

It is reckoned that a block of lava weighing thirty tons, thrown out by Vesuvius during its last eruption, took ten times the power of the largest ocean steamer's engines to eject it.

At a rough estimate the total amount of income taxes which Americans in England are compelled to pay for John Bull's support is $5,000,000 a year. All whose incomes are below $800 a year escape free.

A queer instance of the way in which the world is progressing is the announcement in The Athenæum that the crown prince of Siam is going to publish a volume of essays on the war of the Polish succession as the result of his studies at Oxford university.

BETWEEN THE ACTS.

Mary Mannering is now announced as a future Lady Macbeth.

Adelaide Ristori will shortly celebrate her eightieth birthday.

A play by Victor Hugo is to be acted soon for the first time on any stage.

Cecil Raleigh is writing a play in four acts for Mrs. Langtry called "A Woman's Tragedy."

Edward Harrigan will play Uncle Tom in W. A. Brady's production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Clyde Fitch's play, "The Last of the Dandies," has been produced at Her Majesty's theater, in London.

Thomas Nast, Jr., son of the famous cartoonist, has made his debut in vaudeville as a lightning sketch artist.

Duse and Gustavo Salvini are to appear in D'Annunzio's tragic poem, "Francesca da Rimini," at Rome.

Sada Yacco and Otto Kawakami made a successful Japanese version of the "Merchant of Venice" in Paris.

E. S. Willard will shortly produce "The Cardinal," a play by Gilbert Parker, author of "The Seats of the Mighty."

It is stated that Ada Rehan will play an extended engagement as a stock star at Morosco's Grand Opera House, San Francisco.

THE ROYAL BOX.

NEWS IN BRIEF

A despondent carpenter, Horace Lanipricr of North Adams, Mass., killed himself by shooting. He was 60 years old and unmarried.

While Miss Bridget Collins, 56 years old, was lighting a fire with the aid of kerosene at her home at Pawtucket, R. I., there was an explosion. Her clothing caught fire and she was badly burned, causing death.

An unknown man was struck and killed by a train at Newton, Mass. The body was badly mangled, and identification was impossible. The man was about 35 years old, sandy complexion and dark brown hair.

The Boston board of health reports that 22 cases of smallpox have been recently discovered, three of which had proven fatal. This makes 115 cases reported since last July.

Former Mayor N. H. Higgins of Ellsworth, Me., is dead, aged 51 years. He served as mayor for two terms and for the past two years had been an alderman and city treasurer.

Edward J. Hodgins, aged 37, fell from a railroad bridge at Bangor, Me., and was drowned.

A letter told the Unitarian parish of Chelsea, Mass., that its pastor, Rev. Margaret B. Barnard, desired to resign. The wish was gratified at a church meeting and resolutions expressive of regret were passed. Miss Barnard had been with the parish two years.

Schooner Addison Center of Provincetown, from a fishing trip, went ashore at Race Point, off Cape Cod. She shortly after filled with water, and sunk, with slight prospect of saving her.

Helen, the 2½-year-old daughter of Harvey D. McGray, West Somerville, Mass., fell from a two story window and was killed.

Anglo Dulces, 27 years old, was crushed to death by a heavy stone falling upon him at Watch Hill, R. I., while attempting to bury it.

The general store of Noyes & Ray at Prospect Harbor, Me., was set on fire by the upsetting of a kerosene lamp in the room of Mr. Noyes, whose family occupied the tenement overhead. The Noyes family barely escaped with their lives. The total loss is 10,000.

Patrick H. Sexton, aged 45, cut his throat at Providence, inflicting a wound from which he died. Despondency led to the suicidal act.

Blunder Cost Many Lives.

Athens, Nov. 11.—A terrible gun accident occurred on board the British battleship Royal Sovereign outside of Astako harbor. An artilleryman forgot to close the breech before the gun was fired. One officer and six artillerymen were killed outright and the captain and 13 sailors were seriously injured.

Life Suspension For Jockey

Paris, Nov. 11.—G. T. Donnell, the American jockey and trainer, has been disqualified for life by the jockey club on the ground that he deliberately remained at the post at St. Cloud, when he rode Londres. Durnell protests that his remaining at the post was due to a misunderstanding.

IRISHMEN ARE UNITED

Will Fight Until Emancipation Is a Reality

EMERALD ISLE IS STRONGER

While England Has Grown Weaker In the Past Twenty Years—Policy of Parnell to Be Followed to Accomplish the Cherished Purpose

Boston, Nov. 11.—Ireland's wrongs, its hopes and aims were told to 8000 men and women in Mechanics' hall last night by the Irish envoys, Messrs. Redmond, McHugh and O'Donnell. This great gathering was directed by the United Irish league and the presiding officer was William L. Garrison.

Mr. Redmond was the principal speaker, and in his opening he referred to his first address here 18 years ago when John Boyle O'Reilly presided. Since that time, he said, he had been engaged in and out of the house of commons, in many countries and in the prison cell for the Irish cause. On his visit here 20 years ago Ireland was divided into two factions and the work of Parnell seemed to have gone to naught. But now, he said, things are changed. On the platform he saw the faces of those who in the past were estranged from the cause, but who are now determined to have a United Irish league in Ireland and everywhere else.

He gave a detailed account of the work of uniting the various factions which has resulted in the United Irish league, the principle of which he declared was not different from the movement of Parnell in 1880.

The speaker said he knew only one difference from 1880 and that was that Ireland was stronger and England was weaker. He and his colleagues had come to America to announce the unity of the United Irish league, and to ask for the moral and the material support from the Irish race in America, from their descendants and the American people themselves.

He was bound to say that if they were left alone as they had been for the last 12 months, the poor people of Ireland had still the determination, the old spirit if self sacrifice to continue the fight until emancipation was a reality.

In speaking of the work of the Irish members of parliament he said that every English member of parliament was trying to solve what they called the Irish nuisance. Some one had proposed to reduce their number from 80 to 60, but the speaker maintained that 60 determined men would be as much of a nuisance as 80. If they want to abate the Irish nuisance and are sincere in their desire, let them reduce us altogether. We are in the English parliament against our wills. Let them send us home to rule Ireland in our own country according to the Irish ways. Let them give us our own government, let them give us our freedom."

Thomas O'Donnell began with a greeting in Gaelic, after which he made an address along the same lines as that of Mr. Redmond.

P. A. McHugh, the last speaker, spoke on the bright outlook for the Irish people and said they must follow the policy of Parnell. He said that in Ireland there were only two factions, one for the Irish people and the other against them. He paid a tribute to Mr. Redmond, the leader of the Irish parliamentary delegation.

Rev. Arthur J. Teeling of Lynn introduced a series of resolutions which were unanimously adopted, endorsing the plan of the United Irish league as outlined by Mr. Redmond and promising moral and financial support to the movement.

The guests of the evening were escorted to the hall from the Bellevue hotel by seven companies of the ninth regiment, M. V. M.

Apples Scarce and Expensive

Copenhagen, Nov. 11.—The fruit crop in Denmark is nearly a failure this season. Apples are especially scarce and in consequence dear, selling at wholesale as high as 13 cents a pound. German, Russian and French apples are being imported. Some of the commission men in Copenhagen will try to import American apples. They complain, however, of the packing and terms of sale in New York.

Navy's Big Coal Bill

Washington, Nov. 11.—A striking illustration of the growth of the American navy is presented in the single statement in the annual report of Rear Admiral Bradford, chief of the equipment bureau of the navy, that he spent $2,273,111 last fiscal year for 324,108 tons of coal, at an average cost of $7.01 per ton. The report says that this was 95,713 more tons of coal than was used during the preceding fiscal year.

SHERIFF KEPT PROMISE

As a Result, Two Desperate Convicts Were Allowed to Decamp

Topeka, Nov. 11.—Yesterday afternoon some farm boys near Paulne learned that two escaped convicts were in the neighborhood. Hastily forming a posse they gave chase. Neither of the convicts was armed and they were unable to make a stand. Later Sheriff Cook and Deputy Sheriff Williams arrived. Coming upon the convicts both officers fired, wounding the men, but not disabling them. The convicts then ran into the house of Farmer Wooster.

Sheriff Cook telephoned to Topeka for assistance and then took up the chase. Thinking the convicts had run round the house, Cook darted through the open door, and the officer almost fell into their arms. Sheriff Cook was ordered to give up his gun, which he did. Deputy Williams by this time had reached the house and entered without knowing what had happened inside, and he, too, was made captive by the convicts.

In the meantime, Chief Stahl of Topeka and eight officers were on their way. When they arrived at the Wooster house Stahl began negotiations with the convicts to give up their prisoners and to surrender themselves, but the convicts only laughed. Farmer Wooster managed to get a gun and was about to make an attack on the convicts when one of them laid him low with a blow from the butt of a revolver taken from one of their captives. The convict broke Wooster's right hand and made an ugly gash in his head.

One of the convicts told Sheriff Cook that he would be killed if he made the slightest move toward their capture. In the meantime the police officers on the outside had surrounded the building, but were afraid to make a move for fear Cook and Williams would suffer.

Mrs. Wooster had fainted during the excitement. She finally revived, and at 7 o'clock the convicts placed the woman and Sheriff Cook in front of them as shields and made for the door. Then, after exacting a promise from the sheriff not to permit any of the officers outside to fire upon them, they started for the open.

As they left the house, the frightened farmer, his wife and the submissive sheriff before them, the convicts passed between a cordon of police who easily could have captured them, and started for the railroad track. The sheriff, in turn, had exacted a promise from the police that they would not molest the convicts and they did not.

The convicts had secured a good start before the officers recovered from their surprise. Then some of the policemen wanted to pursue, but Sheriff Cook would not permit it, as he had promised the convicts immunity from arrest.

The convicts are well armed and have taken all the guns in the farm house, including those of the sheriff and his deputy.

Convicts Still at Large

Kansas City, Nov. 11.—None of the 14 escaped convicts from Fort Leavenworth prison was taken yesterday, although armed guards and citizens kept up a steady hunt all day. Three of the prisoners held up and robbed a man near Manhattan Saturday night, but escaped, and all trace of them is lost.

Non-Union Car Attacked

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 11.—An electric car on the Luzerne street line was yesterday attacked by a mob with stones. The non-union conductor, John Kreider, was badly injured. He was taken to a hospital. All the windows in the car were broken.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Tuesday, Nov. 12.
Sun rises—6:31; sets—4:27.
Moon sets—5:27 p. m.
High water—11:45 a. m.; midnight.

Dry weather continues over all districts east of the Rocky mountains, temperature having fallen 8 to 18 degrees from North Carolina northeastward through New England. The rapid development of a low area off the Newfoundland coast has caused high northerly winds on the middle Atlantic and New England coasts. The northwest area gives some promise of rain in New England. On the New England coast high northerly winds will diminish slowly.

COLDS

The quickest relief, for a cold, is by Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil.

We all have colds, you can try it and see. You will find the edge taken off in a night; and, in three or four days, you'll be wondering whether that cold amounted to anything anyhow.

That's relief. If you tackle it quick, the relief is quick and complete, if you wait till the cold is in full possession of head and lung, why, of course, the relief is quick if it comes in a week.

A little emulsion won't clear and restore your whole breathing-machine in a minute; don't be looking for miracles.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

Striking a Light With a Popgun.

The inhabitants of the countries bordering on India have their own methods of making fire. A Burmese messenger recently brought a note to an English official, and the latter observed something resembling a boy's popgun hanging by the messenger's side. Curiosity prompted him to ask the native what it was, and he was surprised to find that it was a machine for making fire.

The native exhibited the apparatus and explained the working, concluding with a practical demonstration. It was a tube, closed at one end and fitted with a piston. At the end of the piston was a groove or cavity, smeared with wax, which was used for making thread or inflammable material adhere to it. The tinder, to keep the old name, is pressed on the wax when a light is required and is not kept there always.

Placing the wisp of cotton on the wax, the native inserted the tightly fitting piston in the tube, then forced it along the latter by giving it a sharp blow. On withdrawing the piston the cotton was found to be alight, having been ignited by the concussion with the compressed air.—Pearson's Weekly.

Guizot, Thiers and Bismarck.

One day I was invited to dinner with the Count of Enzenberg at the residence of Prince von Bismarck in Berlin. The count, a former charge d'affaires in Paris, was a great collector of autographs. After a repast the count exhibited a sheet of paper on which Guizot and Thiers had affixed their signatures. "It is very interesting," said Prince von Bismarck. "Allow me to show this to my wife." (She was sick in bed at that time.) In a few minutes the chancellor returned, and, returning the sheet of paper to the diplomat from Wurttemberg, he added, "I hope that I did not spoil it by writing something on it."

Here follows what was written on the paper:

My long life has taught me that it is necessary to forgive a good deal and forget nothing.
GUIZOT.

A little forgetfulness does not diminish the sincerity of forgiveness. THIERS.

My own life has taught me that I have a great deal to forget and a great deal for which to be forgiven. V. BISMARCK.

Blunt Judge Morris.

On one occasion, in trying an abduction case, Lord Morris, once chief justice of Ireland, addressed the jury as follows: "I am compelled to direct you to find a verdict of guilty in this case, but you will easily see that I think it is a trifling thing, which I regard as quite unfit to occupy my time. It is more valuable than yours. At any rate, it is much better paid for. Find, therefore, the prisoner guilty of abduction, which rests, mind ye, on four points—the father was not averse, the mother was not opposed, the girl was willing and the boy was convaynient."

The jury found the prisoner guilty, and the judge sentenced him to remain in the dock till the rising of the court. Hardly had he delivered sentence than, turning to the sheriff, Lord Morris said: "Let us go," and, looking at the prisoner, he called across the court, "Marry the girl at once, and God bless you both."

How High Birds Fly.

A Strassburg aeronaut says he has seen an eagle at the height of 3,000 yards, and again a pair of storks and a buzzard 900 yards above the sea level. On March 10, 1890, some aeronauts observed a lark flying at a height of 1,000 yards. On July 18, 1899, another balloon met a couple of crows at an altitude of 1,400 yards. These, however, are exceptions. Birds are hardly ever seen above a height of 1,000 yards; even above 400 yards they are not frequent.

A Relic of Peter the Great.

The cottage where Peter the Great dwelt when he was learning the trade of shipbuilding in Zaarndam, Holland, still exists, though somewhat dilapidated. It contains the rude furniture which the great Peter used—a bedstead, table and two chairs. It is incased in a building erected for the purpose, and over the mantel is a tablet erected by Alexander of Russia in 1814.

Pacing a Natural Gait.

The pacing habit is common among animals, says a writer in Scribner's Magazine. Many animals pace—cattle, for instance; and, among dogs, setters. I believe pacing to be a rather more natural gait than trotting. Trotting, as it exists in our fast horses, is scarcely a natural gait, but is rather the result of breeding and education.

A Night Light.

Some people make it a point never to retire without a light burning in the house. A bit of information worth knowing is that a small even light may be obtained from a small piece of candle all night if fine powdered salt is piled around the candle until the black part of the wick is reached.

Work For It.

Nothing that is of real worth can be achieved without courageous working. Man owes his growth chiefly to that active striving of the will, that encounter with difficulty, which we call effort; and it is astonishing to find how often results apparently impracticable are thus made possible.

Clean as a Whistle.

The origin of the saying "as clean as a whistle" is ascribed to the "whistle tankard" of olden times, in which the whistle came into play when the tankard was emptied or "cleared out" to announce to the waiter that more liquor was required.

Under the mogul emperors extensive systems of roads were constructed in India connecting all leading points in the peninsula.

RATHBUN IS NOT DEAD

Shipped Corpse of Another Home as His Own

PROBABILITY OF A MURDER

Revealed In His Story of a Plan to Defraud an Insurance Company Out of $4000—Sharp Recruiting Officer at Louisville Made Discovery

Louisville, Nov. 12.—Newell C. Rathbun, who was supposed to have died in a Jeffersonville, Ind., hotel last Thursday, was arrested in Louisville yesterday. According to him, the corpse which was shipped to Little Rock for burial as his body, was the body of W. L. Ten Eyke.

The police say Rathbun has confessed to desertion from the United States army and to having formed a plan to fraudulently collect $4000 insurance in his life, but that he denies having killed the man who died in the Jeffersonville hotel.

Rathbun was arrested at the United States recruiting station in Louisville. He is held as a fugitive from justice. The arrest was made on information from Sergeant Skinner of the recruiting station. Rathbun, it is alleged, enlisted under the name of "Lou Root, Detroit." Sergeant Skinner had read the story of the Jeffersonville case and circumstances connected with the new recruit aroused his suspicions. One of these was the fact that the man had on a government suit of underwear. Another circumstance was his knowledge of army affairs about Little Rock. He passed the examination and enlisted Saturday.

At the detective's office Rathbun was put through the sweating process and under pressure made the following statement, according to his inquisitors:

"My name is Newell C. Rathbun and my home is in Little Rock, Ark. Several months ago I deserted from the army post at Plattsburg, N. Y., in company with another recruit by the name of W. H. Ellis. I soon lost sight of him, and went to Little Rock. There I was married, and afterwards took out the insurance policies.

"I came to Louisville about 10 days ago and formed a plan to make the insurance company think I was dead so that I could collect the insurance. I fell in with a man, who said his name was W. L. Ten Eyke, in front of the Salvation army headquarters in Louisville and told him of my plan and he agreed to help me. Our plan was to obtain a corpse from some place, put it in a hotel in Jeffersonville, and then set fire to the hotel.

"While we were in Jeffersonville we took a number of drinks and Ten Eyke got drunk. I think his death was caused by drinking. I put the letters addressed to me in his pocket and left. I did not kill him. I then came to Louisville and went to the recruiting office and enlisted. My real home is in Detroit."

The police are trying to establish the identity of the dead man. One of their theories is that he was a tramp that Rahtbun had fallen in with. The police have telegraphed to the Little Rock authorities to hold the corpse. A gold watch, bearing the name of "W. H. Ellis," was found on Rathbun. He refuses to say where he got it. The police say the handwriting of "Lou Root," the recruit, was very similar to the signature "W. L. Ten Eyke" on the Jefferson hotel register. Coroner Coot of Jeffersonville states that he examined the stomach of the dead man and found traces of enough laudanum to kill two men.

Rathbun explained in an interview that at Plattsburg barracks, N. Y., the corporal fixed up a plan to collect the $4000 insurance. He says the plan was "to slip a stiff into some hotel, then set fire to the building after having left letters and papers of mine in the pockets of the stiff's clothes. Of course when the hotel burned we expected the stiff to be burned up too, or at least so scorched that no one could recognize him."

Carter Wasn't Very Poor

Chicago, Nov. 12.—Another step to further the proceedings brought by the government against the property of Oberlin M. Carter was taken in the United States circuit court yesterday. Attorney Stone, representing Carter and his relatives, turned over $60,000 in railroad bonds, a note for $11,000 and $700 in cash to Receiver Whitney, pending a settlement of the controversy in the federal court. This makes the total amount received up to date about $400,000.

Police Interfered

Trenton, Nov. 12.—The bout last night between Peter Jackson and Jimmy Handler was stopped by the police in the 18th round and was declared a draw. It was evident that Handler would have been beaten in a minute or so if the contest had continued.

FIREMEN HAD HARD WORK

Fire at Boston This Morning Caused Damage of $100,000

Boston, Nov. 12.—A seven-story building, corner of Broad and Franklin streets, occupied by the Murphy Varnish company, was practically swept clean by fire this morning with a probable loss to the owners of the structure and the occupants of fully $100,000. The building was almost completely filled with the most inflammable material, so that the fire spread with great rapidity. Two-thirds of the entire fire-fighting force of the city was called out and after many hours' hard work succeeded in getting the upper hand of what seemed destined to be a conflagration. The fire started at the foot of the elevator shaft.

Police Have Evidence This Time

Boston, Nov. 12.—A negro robbed a woman of a chatelaine bag on a street in the south end last night and then took a sprint. Police officers saw the negro on the run and started in pursuit. The negro turned into an alley where he surrendered, after he had been twice shot at. He was William Epps, arrested last week on suspicion of robbing women, a street happening that is very common in that section, but was released for lack of evidence.

Francis Truth Heard From

Concord, N. H., Nov. 12.—Francis Truth, who had claimed to be a "divine healer," and under such a title was prosecuted in Boston by the postal authorities, yesterday filed a petition in bankruptcy. Truth gives his liabilities as $3,991.70 and his assets $200. William A. Bemis went through bankruptcy two years ago. Truth's baptismal name was Bemis and it is believed the petitioners in bankruptcy are identical.

Judge Agree on Exceptions

Salem, Mass., Nov. 12.—Exceptions taken in the case of John C. Best, convicted last spring of murdering George E. Bailey of Saugus, were agreed upon by Judges Sherman and Fox, before whom the case was tried, and sent to the clerk of courts here yesterday. By the clerk of courts here it will be forwarded to the supreme court, where it is already entered on the list for hearing before the full bench.

Runaways Located

Boston, Nov. 12.—A local police inspector went to Mansfield yesterday and arrested two young girls, Sadie Kuhn and Marguerite Patterson, who, it is said, ran away from their homes in New York. The girls were found living with a colored family, and when taken into custody seemed quite gleeful over the notoriety which they had attained. The girls will be held until their parents reach Boston.

Death of Father O'Brien

Bangor, Me., Nov. 12.—Rev. M. C. O'Brien, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic church, vicar-general of the diocese of Maine under Bishop Healy, and later administrator of the diocese, died this morning. Father O'Brien had been failing in health for eight months and on Friday last his condition became serious, an affection of the heart developing. Since then he had been sinking rapidly.

Schooner Sunk on Shoal

Chatham, Mass., Nov. 12.—A three masted schooner lies in five fathoms of water at Little Round shoal and in all probability the members of the crew are on board another schooner which was seen going over the shoals. The disaster was due to the fierce gale that swept the coast and the presumption is that the vessel sprung aleak while at anchor, and, being coal laden, went down.

Getting Points at Cambridge

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 12.—A delegation from New Bedford, composed of members of the city council and the school board, visited Cambridge yesterday, saw the various public buildings and enjoyed a pilgrimage through the university. The main object of the visit was to inspect the Rindge manual training school, and this was done under the direction of Principal Morse.

Without Reduction of Pay

Leominster, Mass., Nov. 12.—The machine tenders employed by the George W. Wheelwright Paper mompany, numbering about 500 men, yesterday began work upon a 132-hour a week schedule instead of 144 hours a week as formerly, this being in response to a demand by the men, who will receive the same pay under the new arrangement as they did under the old.

Valuable Privileges Secured

Portsmouth, N. H., Nov. 12.—The White Mountain Paper company has purchased the plant and water privileges of the Portsmouth Manufacturing company's property at South Berwick, Me. The property is valued at somewhat over $1,000,000 and will be utilized in connection with the large paper manufactory to be established there.

Youthful Criminal Sentenced

Boston, Nov. 12.—A criminal at 15, Walter Hinson, now 6 years older, faced Judge Stevens yesterday to be sentenced for breaking into three houses and stealing $2000 worth of property. He was given six years in state prison.

"Last winter an infant child of mine had croup in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist, of Filley, Mo. "I gave her a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and in a short time all danger was past and the child recovered." This remedy not only cures croup, but when given as soon as the first symptoms appear, will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

THE TRUST PROBLEM

Has Not Created Any Complications In Cabinet

COMBINATIONS OF CAPITAL

Considered by the President to Be as Legitimate as Combinations of Labor as Long as They Deal Fairly and Above Board With the Public

Washington, Nov. 12.—There is no ground for the sensational talk about a split in the cabinet over the question how the president shall treat the trust problem in this message. There is nothing over which a split can occur. Long ago the president had very well settled in his mind what he wished to say about the trusts and it had narrowed down to the idea that if there were any sure way in which they could be reached and compelled to give publicity to their affairs, that should be accomplished. The president has no insane horror at the idea of combinations of capital, any more than of combinations of labor. All he demands in either case is that the combinations shall deal fairly and above board with the public, and that those who will not do so voluntarily should be compelled to do so if there is any channel through which the law can reach them. At that point the government's interest in the trust problem seems to cease, and the economic forces and unwritten laws of trade are expected to come into play.

In his message to the New York legislature in January, 1900, Governor Roosevelt said:

"That abuses exist and that they are of a very grave character it is worse than idle to deny. Just so long as in the business world unscrupulous cunning is allowed the free rein which, thanks to the growth of humanity during the past centuries, we now deny to unscrupulous physical force, then just so long there will be a field for the best effort of every honest social and civic reformer who is capable of feeling an impulse of generous indignation and who is farsighted enough to appreciate where the real danger to the country lies. The effects are bad enough when the unscrupulous individual works by himself. They are worse when he works in conjunction with his fellows through a giant corporation or trust.

"The first essential is knowledge of the facts—publicity. Much can be done at once by amendment of the corporation laws so as to provide for such publicity as will not work injustice as between rivals.

"The chief abuses alleged to arise from trusts are probably the following: Misrepresentation or concealment regarding material facts connected with the organization of an enterprise; the evils connected with unscrupulous promotion; overcapitalization; unfair competition, resulting in crushing out of competitors who themselves do not act improperly; raising of prices above fair competitive rates; the wielding of increased power over the wage earners.

"Of course, none of these abuses may exist in a particular trust, but in many trusts, as well as in many corporations not ordinarily called trusts, one or more of them are evident. Some of these evils could be partially remedied by a modification of our corporation laws. Here we can safely go along the lines of the more conservative New England states, and probably not a little further. Such laws will themselves provide the needed publicity and the needed circumstantiality of statement. We should know authoritatively whether stock represents the actual value of plants, or whether it represents brands or good will; or if not, what it does represent, if anything. It is desirable to know how much was actually bought, how much was issued free, and to whom, and, if possible, for what reason."

Snatch Thief Caught

Rochester, Nov. 12.—A man who called himself J. F. Toomey went into the ladies' waiting room of the Traders' National bank yesterday and told Mrs. Rose Seinberg, who was counting some money she had drawn, that she had dropped some money on the floor. While she was looking for the supposed lost bills, he grabbed the roll from her hands and fled. After an exciting chase he was overtaken and arrested. The money was recovered.

Invitation to Aid Defaulter

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 12.—Major Boyton, commander of the great camp of Maccabees of Michigan, says that in view of the past good record of C. D. Thompson, the defaulting finance keeper of the supreme tent, Maccabees generally should contribute toward a fund to help Thompson out of his difficulty. Thompson is still at liberty, and rumors are going about that a settlement is pending.

Opposed to "Americanization"

Berlin, Nov. 12.—Discussing the rumors that the American capitalists intend to acquire the German ocean lines, the Berliner Tageblatt says: "Steps must be taken at once to protect these lines from Americanization."

English Loss Is Swelled

London, Nov. 12.—Lord Kitchener reports that in the recent fight at Brakenlaagte, in addition to the 259 casualties already reported, the British lost 12 killed and 32 wounded.

DECISION AGAINST DEVERY

Must Stand Trial on Charges of Neglect of Duty

New York, Nov. 12.—The application of Deputy Police Commissioner William S. Devery to make absolute a temporary writ of prohibition restraining Justice Jerome from trying charges of neglect of duty preferred against him, was denied yesterday by Justice O'Gorman, in the supreme court, the justice holding that the magistrate has jurisdiction to entertain the complaint.

The charges against Devery were made by Patrolman O'Neill, who alleged that Devery had treated him with oppression in fining him 30 days' pay for offenses against the rules of the police department. It was alleged in support of the application for the writ that Devery's acts were performed while he was acting in a judicial capacity, and that he was therefore exempt from personal liability. It was also contended that Justice Jerome was biased and prejudiced, and inspired by partisan motives.

Justice Jerome, after he had been informed of Justice O'Gorman's decision, said that he would not try Devery, but would transfer the case to another court.

Settling Down to Business

New York, Nov. 12.—Seth Low returned to New York from Great Barrington, Mass., yesterday. To the reporters who met him at the Grand Central station he said: "I have completely recovered from the fatigue of the campaign, and I shall settle down at my new headquarters this afternoon. There I shall meet persons who want to see me about offices or anything else till Jan. 1. I have made no appointments yet and have not considered candidates for any office."

Platt vs Jerome

New York, Nov. 12.—Senator Platt was asked last night what he thought of Justice Jerome's proposal for a change in the law that would enable saloons to be open legally a large part of Sunday. "I haven't heard of it," said the senator. It was then explained to him, and he said, curtly: "I decline to discuss it. Let Jerome go ahead and present his plan to the legislature, and see what he can do."

Tammany Anger Subsiding

New York, Nov. 12.—Mr. Croker has practically decided to remain in New York, except for a short visit to England in the spring to arrange his racing affairs, and to take personal and active control of the management of Tammany. Nearly all the angry talk against him among Tammany men, high and low, has died away with the abatement of a natural irritation over the defeat of last Tuesday.

Northwest Rapidly Filling Up

Ottawa, Nov. 12.—The immigration branch of the department of the interior is doing an excellent work in filling up the Canadian northwest with people. The arrivals from the United States during the past year have exceeded that of any other previous year in the history of the country. The arrivals from Britain were also very much larger than in any other year. The total returns for the year ending June 30 last, as shown by the annual report of the immigration branch, which is now in the hands of the printers, give the arrivals in Canada for that period at nearly 50,000.

Kaiser Remains Silent

Berlin, Nov. 12.—Referring to the various meetings held throughout Germany to denounce the recent reflections cast by Mr. Chamberlain upon the conduct of the German troops in the war with France, the Cologne Volks Zeitung points out that no German government organ has repudiated Chamberlain's sentiment. "The movement shows," says the paper, "that the German people cannot understand how British insolence can be put up with and how anybody can demonstratively show anglomania." This is regarded as a thrust at Emperor William.

For Mutual Protection

Cincinnati, Nov. 12.—Representatives of more than 75 independent cracker baking concerns from all parts of the United States are in secret session here. It is tolerably evident that an attempt will be made before the conference adjourns to effect an organization which will become a protective association against the National Biscuit company.

Proposed McKinley Borough

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Nov. 12.—A petition was presented to the court yesterday for the incorporation of McKinley borough, a portion of Kingston township. The proposed McKinley borough contains a population of 1200 inhabitants. The entire population signed the petition.

Harmless Mexican Wind

Clerical organ, continues its attacks on the United States, comparing the American union to a monster with a head of solid gold, breast and arms of burnished silver, stomach and muscles of bronze and feet of the most brittle clay.

Good Afternoon.

Should ex-Councilman Jones be elected Mayor he will be the first man elected outside of Wards One and Five. This is another reason why he should be the candidate.

It is pleasing to note that the town of Revere did not forget to thank her editor, as well as Mr. Carnegie. Bro. Pierce has done a great deal for the town of Revere for which he has never received thanks, and the same is true of all wide awake local newspaper men. But for Editor Pierce, Revere would not have received the offer of $20,000 from Mr. Carnegie for a public library building.

When one studies the inequalities of salaries of city officials, the justice of the amendment to the ordinances, increasing the salary or salaries of Christopher A. Spear is apparent. With the frequent meetings of the City Council and committees which require the attendance of Mr. Spear, and the extra time necessary to write up the records, engross the orders, etc., the Clerk of the Council is one of the busiest men at City Hall. At the same time the positions which he fills requires a pretty level head. Mr. Spear attends to his business promptly and courteously, and is always obliging. We believe he has missed but one meeting of the City Council since Quincy became a city, Jan. 1, 1889, nearly thirteen years.

The action of the Republican City Committee, in postponing its reorganization for a week, was a very wise step. The president should be in full accord with the nominee for Mayor, be he Mr. Jones, Mr. Bryant, Mr. Packard, Mr. Hall or Mr. Jameson. In the past there have been cases of flagrant neglect of duty by members of Republican committees who have not only failed to support Republican nominees, but have secretly worked for the election of the rival candidates. We believe Mr. Jameson would work heartily for the election of any Republican nominee, but as he has been a candidate himself for the Mayoralty, over which considerable feeling has arisen, it would be better if his resignation was accepted provided Mr. Bryant was the candidate. Otherwise the resignation should not be accepted.

In this connection it would be well if the Republican City Committee should adopt the same rule as the Republican State Committee, with proper modifications, viz: "No officer of the State Committee shall become a candidate for nomination or for election to an office to be filled at State election, and continue to hold his official position, without the consent of a majority of the committee expressed by ballot at a meeting of the committee."

In recent years it seems to have been the practice of the officers of the City Committee to scramble for the offices. Last year President Bigelow and Secretary McKnight aspired to be Representatives and this year President Jameson wants to be Mayor, and Secretary McKnight has successfully carried off the Representative plum.

Drift of Opinion.

☞The candidate who explains is said to be in the same position as the woman who hesitates.—Springfield Republican.

☞No bob-tailed, artificial monstrosity in the shape of a horse will do for President Roosevelt. Good for him. If there is anything in this world lamentable to look at it is a big, handsome horse with a stub paintbrush sticking straight up in the air at the end of his backbone.—Portsmouth Times.

☞It is noted that certain papers deem it a circumstance worthy of first place in the "scare" headlines of their columns that Miss Jane Toppan "was agitated" during the inquest on the death of Mrs. Gibbs, one of the dozen people she is accused of having murdered. Of course one would expect a woman, innocent or guilty, charged with only a dozen murders, to be perfectly cool and self-possessed during such an inquiry.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞There are few Massachusetts cities where the financial question is not of serious import to taxpayers. Business men are coming more and more to see that they have a direct personal interest in getting good municipal government. When they will give, in getting good municipal politics, anything like the energy and perseverance with which they follow up their own business, city politics in Massachusetts will be much improved by the change.—Boston Advertiser.

☞Still, at its worst, as we have contended before and always shall contend, the no-license scheme is better than the open saloon. Its temptations are not so great. Its very darkness and secrecy make it disagreeable to some of those young people who are attracted by open saloons and the sporty air about those places. That a people who mean to drink will be prevented from drinking by no-license is a joke. That the absence of the saloon is likely to save some of the boys from getting easily started on the wrong road is, however, a matter susceptible of demonstration to any fair minded person.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞The Salem police investigation has had many a counterpart. In nearly every affair of that character it has been found difficult to conduct the proceedings satisfactorily. That persons who have been guilty of misconduct should endeavor to shield themselves is but natural, but it is often apparent that they are rendered able assistance in that direction by those who should be solely interested in ascertaining the fact in regard to alleged shortcomings. It has been obvious repeatedly that there are ties which bind to rascality as well as to morality.—Lynn Item.

☞What school committees need is not so much "educated" men, in the usual acceptance of the word, as fair-minded, broad-minded men, who appreciate what the schools are for, and who are not merely willing, but are glad to devote time and thought and energy to consideration and decision of the important problems which the schools present. The schools need such men, to supplement the strictly professional view and in some particulars to correct it by reason of that other outlook which men of other occupations must have. We do not look for them in any particular class of men, if we classify men according to their occupations, or acquirements, or so-called positions. But where men or women of such character are found they ought to be brought into the service of the schools—and no others ought to have even consideration.—New Bedford Standard.

Abington 5, Thayer 0.

Thayer Academy second team was defeated Monday on French's common, South Braintree, by Abington High school. Abington kicked to Thayer the first half, who soon lost the ball, and Abington shortly scored. During the rest of the game Thayer played a good defensive game. Once they were within ten yards of Abington's goal but lost the ball on downs. The ball was on Abington's twenty yard line when time was called.

In the previous game the team was defeated by Abington 16 to 0. This time they played a better game.

The Thayer team included: l e, Morrison and Reilley; l t, Wright; l g, Stoddard; c, Shaw; r g, Vinton; r t, Beals; r e, Sheppard; q b, Kelley; l h b, Burton; r h b, Perry; f b, Kingsbury.

Touchdown—Chessman. Umpire—R. Gallagher. Referee—Callahan. Timekeepers—Gould and Wilde. Linesmen—Brackett and Wellington. Time—15 and 10 minute halves.

Thayer Academy plays Dedham High today at Braintree, weather permitting. This is the third league game. If they win they will be tied for third place with West Roxbury, Dedham and Hyde Park highs in the Southern division.

NOT ACCEPTED.

President Jameson Requested to Remain at Head of Committee.

A special meeting of the Republican City Committee was held Monday evening to take action on the resignation of President Jameson.

R. R. Freeman acted as chairman of the meeting. After some little discussion it was voted unanimously not to accept the resignation of Mr. Jameson. Mr. Jameson thanked the committee for their confidence, and requested a week's time in which to consider the situation, which was granted.

Thompson—Witham.

The Middleboro Gazette had the following report of the wedding in which a Quincy physician was the groom:

A social event of much local interest was the marriage of Elizabeth Mae, daughter of Selectman and Mrs. Edwin F. Witham, and Dr. Alfred Percival Thompson of Wollaston, in the Central Congregational church, Wednesday, Nov. 6, the attendant ceremonies being of a beautiful and impressive character in every detail. The gathering at the church was large and representative of the best society element in town, and with handsome decorations and lovely music, the nuptial vows were pledged under the happiest circumstances. The church decorations were confined chiefly to the altar and its surroundings and were in green and white, ferns and chrysanthemums predominating. A number of the young lady friends of the bride had charge of the decorations, and the result was creditable to their good taste.

The hour set for the wedding was 1 o'clock and shortly after that hour the bridal party appeared and the movement toward the altar was begun, to the accompaniment of the Lohengrin's wedding music, rendered by Miss Annie Keith at the organ. Little Roger Pierce Jenks preceded the party as page and next came a score of handsomely gowned young ladies, headed by Mrs. E. T. P. Jenks and Miss Cora Childs, and marching in pairs. They were followed by little Marjorie Shaw, the bride's ring bearer, who bore the two rings to be used in the ceremony upon a white satin cushion. Then came the pretty flower girls, Madeline Smith, Elizabeth Smith and Priscilla Stetson, the maid of honor, Miss Florence Thompson, and last the bride, on the arm of her father.

The bride was charming in an exquisite gown of pearl white peau de cygne, with pearl garniture, and wore a tulle veil caught up with a beautiful pin, the gift of the groom. She carried a bouquet of white roses. The maid of honor wore white crepe de chine and carried pink roses.

The bridal party upon reaching the altar were met by the groom and his best man, E. T. P. Jenks, and the ceremony was impressively performed by Rev. R. G. Woodbridge, assisted by the Rev. E. A. Chase of Wollaston. During the ceremony there stole softly through the church a lovely melody, and the Mendelssohn wedding march was played as the party were leaving the church. The ushers were Morrill S. Ryder and Arthur E. Shaw of Middleboro, Dr. Hayford of Quincy a college friend of the groom, and Sumner Packard of Brockton.

A reception at the home of Selectman Witham, from 2 to 4 o'clock, followed the formal ceremonies at the church, and it was attended by relatives and close friends of the bride and groom, the 150 invitations which had been issued being generally honored. Guests were present from Wollaston, Middleboro, Cataumet, Brockton, Boston and New York. The rooms of the house were attractively dressed in green and white, and the newly wedded couple received the hearty congratulations and good wishes of their friends as they stood beneath a floral arch in the parlor. They were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Witham and Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Thompson. In the dining room, streamers of white were suspended above the refreshment table, where delicious ices and cake were served by Miss Cora Childs, Miss Carrie Parker, Miss Jennie Gammons, Mrs. Charles Dean of Brockton and Mrs. Heman Handy of Cataumet, who were gowned in white. An entire room was devoted to the display of the beautiful and valuable gifts in silver, china and cut glass, and their number and elegance were convincing proof of the sincere regard in which both bride and groom are held by their large circle of friends.

Dr. Thompson and wife will make their home in Wollaston, where he is established in the active practice of his profession, and will be "at home" on Thursdays in December at 71 Brook street.

The street railway has completed laying its new rails on Willard street, and the paving of the street has been commenced.

Dr J. W. Parker of the Wollaston golf club lost in the play off with Col. Russell for the net prize in the Oakley tournament.

Enough snow fell late Monday afternoon to be easily discernible, and some remained on the ground until rain began to fall in the evening.

The difficulty in obtaining rails will probably prevent the street railway from building its new location on Hancock street before next spring.

The Atlantic A. A. and Fort Banks played a tie game of football, Saturday, at North End Park, Boston. The Atlantic team put up a good game.

Astronomers are expecting a big meteoric display, Wednesday and Thursday evenings, the first mentioned date being especially favorable for a large number of untutored observers.

All of the concrete sidewalks ordered by the City Council this year have been put in. They are on Chestnut, Bigleow, Washington, Beach and Beale streets. Besides the above, concrete sidewalks have been built in front of five private residences under the sidewalk and curbing law; this is where petitioners pay half the cost.

The Quincy Teacher's Association opens its annual course of five popular numbers on Thursday evening, Nov. 14. They are especially fortunate in securing for their first number the Albion Quartette who will be assisted by Mr. George W. Want, tenor soloist and Miss Clara Standish Gill, reader. We trust the public will, by their liberal patronage show their appreciation of the efforts of our teachers in endeavoring to give to the people of Quincy a series of high class entertainments and lectures.

THE DUDLEY GANG

Sentences Range from Seven Years to Five Years.

The Dudley gang composed of Herbert S. Dudley, Kenneth McLean and Fred B. Gordon, who have confessed to forty breaks in Cambridge, Quincy and Milton were brought up in the Middlesex Superior court Monday for sentence.

Dudley was given two years on the first count, two years on the second, and three years on the third, or seven years in all.

McLean was given two years on each of the three counts, six years in all.

Gordon was sentenced on the fourth, fifth and sixth counts to five years and three months in the Massachusetts reformatory.

The men were sentenced on breaks made in Cambridge only. They received their sentences coolly as though they were expecting it.

Generous Public Bequests.

The will of Alfred Henry Hersey of Hingham, probated at Plymouth on Monday, makes many generous public bequests, viz:

To the New England historical genealogical society $2000, to be known as the Alfred C. Hersey fund.

$2000 to the Massachusetts horticultural society to be called the Albert C. Hersey fund and the income to be devoted to prizes.

$500 to the Hingham public library.

$5000 to Massachusetts general hospital for support of a free bed.

$3000 to Massachusetts eye and ear infirmary.

$5000 to Perkins institution for the blind.

$2000 to the Channing home.

$1000 to the Pilgrim society of Plymouth.

$200 to the public library at New Ipswich, N. H.

$2000 to the kindergarten for the Blind.

TODAY'S COURT.

Robert C. Molinioux was fined $5 for drunkenness at Milton, and Calvin Talbot $5 for drunkenness at Weymouth.

A Card.

We, the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on a 50 cent bottle of Greene's Warranted Syrup of Tar if it fails to cure your cough or cold. We also guarantee a 25-cent bottle to prove satisfactory or money refunded.

Duel at Close Range

Macon, Ga., Nov. 12.—John Goolsby and Charlie Fullerton, near here, emptied their revolvers into each other at close range yesterday. Fullerton was killed instantly and Goolsby is dying. They had quarrelled about a piece of land.

Jumped on a Ten Penny Nail.

The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake made of ten-penny nails, and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and a second one half way through. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes later the pain had disappeared and no more suffering was experienced. In three days the child was wearing her shoe as usual and with absolutely no discomfort. Mr. Powell is a well known merchant of Forkland, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and heals such injuries without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. For sale by all druggists.

NAVAL FIGUREHEADS

Warships May Be Adorned as Years Ago.

The practice of adorning warships with life-size figureheads at their bows may be revived by the United States Navy, says a Washington dispatch to the Boston Journal. If so, it will be in conformity with the wishes of sailors and a number of officers who believe a ship loses nothing in appearance or fighting efficiency by having an attractive bow instead of the simple shield ornament of the new war vessels.

The cruiser Cincinnati is the first all steel ship of the service to bear a figurehead. When she is placed in commission at the New York Navy Yard on Dec. 1, she will display a life-size heroic figure of Liberty in steel and wood standing straight out from her curved stem. This figure was designed and constructed at the New York yard under the direction of Rear Admiral Francis T. Bowles, then in charge of the construction work, and is declared to be a perfect specimen of the figurehead for a warship.

Such features of decorations disappeared with the gradual abandonment of wood for steam vessels and there are few left of those immense figure-heads which years ago were a distinguishing feature of all American naval vessels. The last of this number to display figureheads were the vessels of the line of battle class that found their way to the burial ground of the navy soon after the Civil War. The Cincinnati is said to be the only all steel vessel in the world whose stem is beautified by a figurehead.

WHEN TO MARRY.

Nearly All Our Self Made Men Wedded on Small Incomes.

"Why should lovers defer their marriage a day longer than the time when, as far as we mortals can discern the future, the prospect of a comfortable home is reasonably assured?" says Cyrus C. Adams in Ainslee's. "It is senseless to wait for the coming of affluent days. Their lives should be united, and each in his way should help to bring about the advent of easier times if they are ever to come. It is as foolish to wait for a larger income than is really required as it is for parents to slave and drudge that their children may enjoy a degree of affluence they have never known.

"This is the rock upon which the French nation has split. They are a frugal and a thrifty people. It is interesting to know that many of the tasteful, artistic and costly products of France are made almost exclusively for the foreign trade. Two-thirds of the best chinaware of Limoges, for example, comes to the United States. A well to do Frenchwoman is likely to use a preparation of rice flour as a cosmetic, leaving the delicate perfumes and other toilet articles of Paris for her American and British sisters, who are willing to spend more money for such things. But the rich father unfortunately conceives it to be his duty to leave his children richer than himself. If, on the other hand, he be a poor tiller of the soil, it is disgraceful not to educate his son to a trade or a profession so that the family name may have a higher place in the social scale.

"This deplorable ambition fixes upon the family a burden almost too great to be borne, and parents deliberately restrict the number of their children. In large districts, particularly in northern France, families of more than two children are rare. Many of the young people, seeing the hard lives their parents lead, defer their own marriage in order to better their fortunes, till at last even the desire to marry is extinguished. Parents and children of all lands may well heed the lesson in sociology that France is now teaching.

"Nearly all our self made men, leaders in the professions and in business, married young and on very moderate incomes. Many assumed without the slightest trepidation the responsibility of supporting a wife on $1,000 a year or less. These men usually have very pronounced views on the inadequate knowledge of the value of money and how to take care of it possessed by the majority of young men and women. The views of these young persons as to the amount of income upon which they may prudently marry vary, of course, according to the circumstances in which they have lived. Many an intelligent girl who works in New York kitchens has no doubt whatever that she and the steady, industrious fellow she intends to marry will have a comfortable home on $12 to $14 a week.

"A penniless German schoolteacher who came to Philadelphia when a young man and who in his old age lives in New York on the rentals of apartment houses bought with $300,000 he earned slowly in manufacturing, asserted the other day that $1,000 to $1,500 a year in New York would give to young married couples of refinement a comfortable home, books, music and amusements and everything they might need for the rational enjoyment of life. This gentleman has the German ideas of thrift. There is scarcely any doubt that any man and wife gifted with his ability to disburse dollars to the very best advantage would be able to realize his idea of comfortable married life on a small income."

Warned by His Horse.

Several years ago when residing in my native town of Scituate, Mass., our family physician, Dr. Stetson, told me an interesting story of his intelligent horse.

A short time before he was called at midnight to visit a serious case of sickness and at once took his horse from the stable, harnessed him in great haste and proceeded on his way, but when about a quarter of a mile from home he reached a hill and was just about to begin the descent when the horse suddenly stopped and refused to go farther. The doctor then felt sure something must be wrong and alighted from the carriage and, carefully feeling over the harness, found that in his hurry and the darkness he had omitted to buckle one side of the breeching, which would have let the carriage on to the horse as soon as he began to descend the hill. He at once made the necessary fastening, got into the carriage and the intelligent horse then started in double quick for the sick patient.

Was this instinct or reasoning intelligence?—Our Dumb Animals.

Fraudulent Giants.

The teeth and bones of the fossil elephants found in Europe were formerly assigned to giants, and many remarkable stories were circulated regarding what was supposed to have been an extinct race of men "with teeth weighing from four to ten pounds." The last of these finds, which was believed to be the remains of a giant of the genus homo, was discovered during the reign of Louis XIV. and was referred to as the giant of Dauphine.

These gigantic remains were discovered by a surgeon, who stated they were inclosed in an enormous sepulcher covered with a stone slab which bore the inscription, "Teutobochus Rex," and that in the vicinity there were also found coins and medals, all of which showed the remains to be those of a giant king of Cimbri, who fought against Marius and was slain. It was afterward proved that the surgeon discoverer of these gigantic remains was as great a fraud as the man who manufactured the plaster cast known as the "Cardiff Giant."

Competition Will Always Prevail

New York, Nov. 12.—Senator Hanna, who is spending a few days in this city, underwent the usual interview last night. Someone asked him his opinion of Mr. Dill's address on trusts in Chicago on Saturday. "There are no trusts," snapped the senator. "Dill is all wrong. There will never come a time and it doesn't exist now, when competition is impossible. I believe that combinations of capital are a natural product and, administered without abuse, corporations are necessary."

Run Down at Last

Chicago, Nov. 12.—John H. Joyce, ex-president of the Stoughton National bank of Stoughton, Wis., was arrested here yesterday. He is charged with defaulting $40,000. For more than two years, it is said, Joyce has been eluding the police of all the principal cities of the country, and at times has been forced to visit foreign soil in the hopes of escaping his pursuers who have followed him since May 15, 1899. Joyce at one time was thought to be worth over $1,000,000.

Stokes Left Estate to Mother

New York, Nov. 12.—A will, executed by Edward S. Stokes on March 22, 1894, was filed in the surrogate's office yesterday. The testator directs that after his lawful debts shall have been paid, his mother, Nancy Stokes, is to receive all his estate of whatsoever kind and nature he possesses at the time of his death. Last week a will of Mr. Stokes, dated in 1891, was filed. This document left the estate to his cousin, W. E. D. Stokes.

Negro Vote Eliminated

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 12.—Alabama voted yesterday on the question of the adoption or ratification of the constitution framed by the recent convention and it is evident that the instrument has carried by a majority ranging between 25,000 and 35,000. The negroes voted in much larger numbers than had been expected, but were unable to control the result. This was the last opportunity they had to vote.

NEWS IN BRIEF

King Edward has decided to have the celebrated Koh-i-noor diamond mounted in the crown of Queen Alexandra for the coronation.

Acting upon a request from the state board, the Portland, Me., board of health will inspect all steamers arriving at that port from St. John, N. B., to guard against the introduction of smallpox into the state.

A big landslide at Mechanicsville, N. Y., caused the death of three Italian laborers who were buried under about 1000 tons of clay.

Olivia Hart of Appleton, Me., 84 years old, went out in her yard to feed hens and was attacked by a vicious ram and killed.

Richmond Mayo-Smith, aged 47, a professor of political economy at Columbia university, was killed by a fall from a window of his study at his home in New York.

Three persons were killed and 25 others injured in a mining accident at Stassfurt, Prussia. Thirteen are still entombed.

The governor of Erzeroum, while travelling toward Mush, was assaulted by a band of Kurds and stripped of everything.

To the Public.

Allow me to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I had a very severe cough and cold and feared I would get pneumonia, but after taking the second dose of this medicine I felt better, three bottles of it cured my cold, and the pains in my chest disappeared entirely. I am most respectfully yours for health, Ralph S. Meyers, 64 Thirty-seventh street, Wheeling, W. Va. For sale by al druggists.

IGLESIAS IS IN JAIL

Went to Porto Rico as a Labor Organizer

PROTEST TO THE PRESIDENT

Who Has Asked For an Inquiry Into the Matter—Public Prosecutor at San Juan Calls Him a Dangerous Labor Agitator

Washington, Nov. 12.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, protested to the president yesterday against the arrest of Santiago Iglesias, who was sent to Porto Rico by the American Federation of Labor to organize the workingmen of the island. Mr. Iglesias was arrested, according to a cablegram received from him by Mr. Gompers, as he stepped ashore at San Juan.

Before Iglesias left the United States Gompers explained to the president the purpose of his visit and asked that Governor Hunt be notified that his mission was not to stir up strife, but simply to organize labor along legitimate lines. At that time he told the president that Iglesias, during the Spanish ascendancy, had opposed the Spanish regime and had been imprisoned, having been liberated when the American troops reached San Juan. By the president's direction Secretary Cortelyou wrote to Governor Hunt concerning Iglesias' mission. That letter was dated Oct. 19. Last Saturday Gompers was surprised to receive a cablegram from Iglesias announcing his arrest.

This message Gompers showed to the president and the president immediately sent an inquiry to Governor Hunt as to the cause of the arrest.

San Juan, P. R., Nov. 12.—Santiago Iglesias was arrested here last Thursday on landing from the steamer Philadelphia, which arriver here that day from New York on her way to La Guayra and Porto Cabello.

His detention was due to his non-appearance after having been thrice summoned by the local courts to appear in a case against him and seven others brought in July of last year when the currency was changed.

At that time he persuaded the local Federation of Labor to order all labor organizations to go on strike unless they were paid in gold at the same rate as silver—master workmen $3; journeymen $2 and ordinary laborers $1.50. These rates were not accepted by the employers and a general strike, which was accompanied by violence, followed.

Iglesias and the other members of the committee were charged with conspiracy and the cases against them were set down for trial Sept. 11, 1900. When the date was reached Iglesias, who was at large on his own recognizance, did not put in an appearance, and the trial was adjourned. As he did not appear on the adjourned day, further adjournment was taken to May 2, 1901, when an order for his arrest was issued, he being then in New York city.

He is now in jail, awaiting trial, in default of $2000 bail. Yesterday he sent a petition to Governor Hunt asking to be released on his own recognizance, explaining that he made a asimilar application when first sumoned, but that the case was postponed and that no notice of the hearing on May 2 was ever served upon him.

The public prosecutor asks that he be sentenced to a term of imprisonment on the ground that he is a langerous labor agitator and is continually causing unrest.

Roosevelt Is Not Forgetful

Washington, Nov. 12.—President Roosevelt gave a good illustration yesterday of his retentive memory when Senator Mason presented to him a colored man named Thompson, who is a candidate for a commission in the regular army. When introduced the president remarked: "I know you," and then proceeded to recount accurately Thompson's service in the regular and volunteer armies, recalling the fact that his regiment policed Santiago after the surrender.

For Exclusion of Chinese

Hazelton, Pa., Nov. 12.—President Duffy of the United Mine workers of this district notified all the local unions under his supervision yesterday of the wish of National President Mitchell that resolutions be adopted favoring reenactment of the Chinese exclusion law, which will expire next May. These resolutions will be forwarded to the congressmen representing the people of the anthracite coal fields.

Diplomatic Relations Resumed

Constantinople, Nov. 12.—The French flag waved yesterday above the French embassy here for the first time since Aug. 26. M. Bapst, councillor of the embassy, has called upon the Ottoman minister of foreign affairs, Tewfik Pasha, thus formally renewing the diplomatic relations between France and Turkey.

An L Road Fatality

Boston, Nov. 12.—The first fatality so far as known to a passenger on the new elevated road took place yesterday, when Manuel L. Griffin fell from a moving train on the structure to the street below. Griffin died in a few hours after being removed to a hospital.

Hope Not Abandoned

Sofia, Nov. 12.—From another letter that has been received from Miss Stone, the abducted American missionary, it appears that she is enduring the trials of her hard experience with fortitude. The tone of the latest letter received from her is hopeful.

BROKE HIS OWN PRICE

Manufacturers Cannot Fathom the Movements of Borden

Fall River, Mass., Nov. 12.—M. C. D. Borden withdrew completely from this market at noon yesterday, his brokers saying they have no goods to sell and none to buy. He did not succeed in unloading any of his cut-rate contracts, so far as is known here, and it is known that his best offer from printers was on a very much lower basis than 2 15-16 cents. Manufacturers expect him to reenter the market as a buyer later.

Mr. Borden's advent in the local cloth market as a seller below the market price was the subject of earnest talk among manufacturers, and they admit that they are unable to fathom his price cutting. It was Mr. Borden's first appearance in this market as a price breaker, and the sympathy that existed for him as a "saviour" of Fall River is waning rapidly. Hitherto, other manufacturers here have been accused of breaking the market after he had established a price, but in this instance he appeared as the breaker of his own price at a time when manufacturers were disposed to hold the figure as high as they could.

Gathering Them In

Kansas City, Nov. 12.—Frank Thompson, the leader of the mutiny at the federal prison at Leavenworth, which resulted in the escape of 26 prisoners, was captured eight miles north of Council Grove last evening by a posse under command of Deputy Marshal Pres ott. Thompson would not surrender, but was taken after a hard fight with the officers, in which he was shot in the head, but not seriously injured. No member of the posse was hurt. Lawrence Lewis, another of the escaped convicts, was mortally wounded yesterday near Quenemo, while he was making a dash through a cordon of armed deputies. Now there are but 12 prisoners at large.

Investigation About Over

Washington, Nov. 12.—Six members of the isthmian canal commission are in Washington attending sub-committee meetings and otherwise getting ready for the final session when the other three members will also be in attendance, which begins today, and is expected to last several days. The finishing touches of the final report will be decided on at this meeting, and when that is accomplished our period of isthmian canal investigation will be over. The present outlook is adverse to any presentation of the Panama canal project in this report.

Ruhlin Takes a Swing

San Francisco, Nov. 12.—Gus Ruhlin, who is to met James Jeffries for the heavyweight championship, crept up yesterday in the betting so that the local orders are holding fairly steady at 2 to 1, but a few days ago a considerable sum of money was wagered at 3 and even 3½ to 1. The impression seems to be growing that Ruhlin is under-estimated and stands an excellent chance of winning the battle.

Thousands Left to Charity

Plymouth, Mass., Nov. 12.—By the will of Alfred Henry Hersey of Hingham, probated here yesterday, over $42,000 goes to charitable and other institutions, most of which are in Boston.

Steamer Had Close Call

Seattle, Nov. 12.—The Lynn canal steamer City of Topeka steamed slowly into port yesterday with her stem bent and a gaping hole near the load line. The steamer collided with a sunken iceberg in Taku bay on the night of Nov. 2. A blinding snowstorm was raging at the time, but it was soon found that although several iron plates were broken through there was no immediate danger.

To Consider Boer Appeal

The Hague, Nov. 12.—The administrative council of the arbitration tribunal will meet Nov. 20 to decide on the appeal of the Boers against the ruling that the war in South Africa is not subject to the court's consideration.

ANTS RESEMBLE MEN

MUCH THAT IS HUMAN ABOUT THESE LITTLE INSECTS.

Their Ways of Playing, Sleeping, Eating and Working—Some That Are Above Toil—Distinctions of Class In Their Burial Places.

"There is a lot that is human about these little ants," writes Harvey Sutherland in Ainslee's. "They like to play and cut up. They make believe to fight, and when they wrestle in fun they roll all around like schoolboys. They wash and brush each other and stretch out under the process as much as to say, 'My, that feels good.' When they sleep, they often lie on their sides and sometimes squat down on their abdomen and the last pair of legs for all the world like a man taking a nap. When they wake up, they gape and stretch themselves and all but say, 'Ho, hum.' They always wash themselves and comb their hair as soon as they get up.

"They are like us in keeping pets about the house. Andre counted 584 species of insects, nearly all of them beetles, that are habitually to be found in ants' nests. They must be there with their consent, for an interloper is instantly killed. Some of them are milk cattle, like the aphides, such as caterpillars that give sirup and the little blind beetle claviger, which secretes honey from a tuft at the base of its wings. If one of these clavigers is put into the nest of strange ants they fall upon it and slaughter it at once. Some kinds of wood lice are kept as scavengers, and the silverfish or bristletail and the larva of the elater beetle are handy to have around to do the heavy digging under the supervision of the workers. Many of these domesticated animals are unable to feed themselves. Lespes saw some ants eating sugar. A lomechusa of their nest came up and nuzzled them until they fed it. Afterward it climbed up on the lump of sugar, but did not seem to know how to get the good of it for itself. But also there are pets about which are as useless as a pug dog, if another such a thing in the universe can be imagined. The little Stenamma westwoodii pranks about in the hills of Formica rufa and Formica pratensis. It runs along with them, jumps on their backs and takes a ride, and if for any reason the nest is removed it goes along.

"Then there is another little ant in these nests that is by no means a pet. It digs its galleries in the partitions so small that the big ants cannot get in to kill them. Every once in awhile a Salenopsis fugax darts out, snatches up a baby and runs with it into its den, where it eats it up. It is as if we had cannibal dwarfs lurking in the walls and now and then carrying off one of the children to be devoured at horrid banquets behind the plastering.

"But if we begin calling hard names we might as well keep it up and admit first as last that all ants are cannibals and feed not only on other kinds of ants, but even upon their own species when they are not of the same household. They capture and carry off the eggs, larvæ and pupæ of other nests, and what they do not have for dinner today they fatten for tomorrow. It is supposed that in this way they got into the habit of keeping slaves. The young captive ants came out of their cocoons and, being naturally industrious, they bustled about and gave the babies their nimmy nimmy when they cried for it, swept the floor and carried in the coal until the approving workers of the captors began to talk to each other like this: 'That fusca is a handy little thing about the house. Seems a kind of pity to kill her when we've got so much fresh meat on hand and right in the busy season, when help is hard to get. She's so good to the children too. Let's keep her awhile. What do you say?' And then when it was decided to put off butchering day they went to the fusca and said: 'Fusca, we've concluded not to kill you for a spell yet. You can stay around and do up the work, but mind, if there are any complaints about you or the children are neglected or you give any of your back talk—well, there'll be fresh meat for supper. Do you understand?'

"And the fusca dropped a courtesy and made answer: 'Yaiss, missy. T'ank yo', missy. Ah'll do de bes' ah kin.' It is almost needless to say that F. fusca is a black ant.

"F. sanguineas can do their own work and often do not keep slaves at all, but they are little thought of in ant circles. The real nobility and gentry are Polyergus rufescens and Polyergus lucidus. Work? They work? No, indeed! You don't see them demeaning themselves building and minding children, collecting food or even feeding themselves, if you please. When the nest is changed, they do not set foot to the ground. They are carried by slaves. They have always been accustomed to having help about the house. But they can fight. Their mandibles are fit only to crush other ants' heads.

"Ants have cemeteries, and it is characteristic of them that the slaves are not buried with their masters, but in another place, over by the back fence among the ragweeds and burdocks."

Mexican Drawn Work.

In Mexico there are many things which attract the attention of the average tourist. Of these one of the most distinctive is Mexican drawn work. Some of this is very artistic, and the patience of Mexican women in the production of this beautiful article of Mexican commerce has kept for this modern active world of machinery and machine made articles the only survival of the beautiful needlework of a century ago, for which the women of Europe had been noted for several centuries.

Down on Canal street one day he encountered a "Mrs. Mulligan" over her washtub, with her dress pinned up about her waist, barefooted and rubbing away upon her washboard, with some dirty children playing about. He accosted her with a "Good morning" and inquired if she would like to do his washing and what was her price.

She straightened up, put her fists upon her hips and, with a withering stare, said: "I'm not one of those that does washing out of my own family. You're a fine gossoon. I don't even know you by eyesight."

Turning to the two boys, she said, "Here, Joseph Ander, take Thomas Ander by the hand and lade him off til skule."

Said Joseph Ander, "I've not had me breakfast."

"Yes, and ye have. Ye had the blue duck's eggs and pancakes sopped in gravy. Now be off wid yees."

And Artemus said he thought it was time for him to go, lest she might take a fancy to wash his shirt without his taking it off.

The menu pleased him so much that he repeated it again and again, laughing heartily at each repetition, "The blue duck's eggs and pancakes sopped in gravy."

Trees That Burst Aflame.

Trees are subject to spontaneous combustion. The banks of the Cam river, in Cambridgeshire, England, have recently exhibited an unusual number of such cases, and young growing willows have been the victims in nearly every case. Cambridge used to pride itself upon its beautiful willows, and it was therefore with sorrow that the people discovered one morning the charred remains of what had once been a really beautiful specimen of the willow tree.

The fate of the tree naturally attracted attention to the phenomenon, and thereafter but too much opportunity was afforded for the study of it. At one point in the river in particular the process was seen. Green trees, covered with rich masses of foliage, suddenly burst forth into conflagration and burned to their very cores. Fine willows in full vigor poured forth clouds of smoke from their half burned stems.

An examination of the charred remains of the trees revealed nothing in the way of explanation, but as the trees which met their fates were for the most part young there could hardly have been any putrescence or fermentation. Just why the willows should meet such sudden ends is not apparent.

The Man Next Door.

"Would you kindly permit me to write a postal card at your desk?" he asked of the man at the store door.

"Most certainly," was the reply.

"It's to a fellow living next door to me, and his mongrel pup howls all night, and his cross eyed wife strums the piano all day. I want to give him a shot, you know."

"Exactly."

"Just lift him one for being an old nuisance. I feel like giving him the boot."

"You must. Where does he live?"

"No. 72 Blank street."

"And his pup is a mongrel and his wife cross eyed?"

"They are, and I'll bet dollars to cents that he himself would drum on a coal scuttle if his neighbors lay dying."

"Yes, I see. As the card is for me you needn't mail it. Just leave it there on the desk, and it will receive due attention. Pleasant weather for this time of year, and I think the crops are all right. Good day, sir—good day, and call again."

A Pointer For the Hobo.

"You see, it was this way," said the hobo as he put his inch of pipe into his pocket and coughed the frog out of his throat. "I left Pittsburg on the bumpers of a freight train. I'd gone twenty miles when a brakeman spies me out and says:

"'Hobo, are you a prayin' man?'

"'Nothin' to brag of,' says I.

"'But you can remember the Lord's Prayer?'

"'I might on a pinch, but what's the use?'

"'Oh, nothin', except that we shall have a head on collision in about five seconds, and you'd better scour up your conscience ag'in the crash.'

"And with that we crashed into her and I went sailin'. How high I went or how hard I came down I don't know, but I had both legs broken and all my ribs cracked. The brakeman was killed, I'm sorry to say. You don't often meet a man like that who'll give you all the chances of goin' to heaven and take none himself."

One Bite; Caught Two.

A reliable fisherman from Michigan says he was fishing one day on Selkirk lake, Kalkaska county, for pickerel. There was a bite, and in due time the fisherman struck and hooked what he supposed to be a big pike. His surprise was great when he saw, instead of one fish, two. One, a two pound pike, had taken the hook in the regular way. The other weighed five pounds and had the line wrapped twice about its gills, so that it was hopelessly entangled.—New York Times.

Apples on the Half Shell.

A variation of baked apples has the somewhat fanciful name of "apples on the half shell." Slices of bread are cut into rounds (the cover of a half pound baking powder can makes a good size), buttered and put in a baking pan. Pare and core some large, good apples, cut them crosswise into inch thick slices, put one on each slice of bread, dust with granulated sugar and put in a hot oven. Bake twenty minutes and serve with plain or whipped cream.

DISASTERS TO VESSELS

Because of Severe Gale and Heavy Seas

DOUGLASS HAYNES IS SUNK

Crew Suffered Terrible Hardships Before Being Rescued, Having Been In the Rigging For Hours—The Mark Pendleton Careens and Fills

Vineyard Haven, Mass., Nov. 13.—Schooner Douglass Haynes of Bath, Me., Captain Blaisdell, from Port Johnson for Hallowell, Me., with a cargo of coal, is sunk between Shovelful and Pollock Rip shoals with her three masts projecting out of water. Captain Blaisdell and his crew of four men were rescued by Schooner Luther T. Garretson and landed here, after having suffered terribly from exposure.

The disaster was seen Monday morning from the shore at Chatham, but owing to the thick weather and heavy seas no help could be given, and until yesterday nothing was known regarding the fate of the crew.

Captain Blaisdell states that when on Nantucket shoals on the morning of the 10th he encountered a violent gale from the northwest, and anchored between Shovelful and Pollock Rip shoals about 8 a. m.

The vessel rode out the gale all right until late in the afternoon, when the heavy sea caused her to leak badly. All hands were kept constantly at the pump in an effort to keep the vessel free, but the water gradually gained and at 3 o'clock Monday morning it became evident that the vessel must sink, as the decks were then nearly awash. Captain Blaisdell and the crew climbed into the rigging, this being the only chance of saving themselves, as the sea was running too high to allow them to use their yawl boats. Thirty minutes after all hands had secured themselves in the rigging the vessel went to the bottom. As she struck she careened over on her side, dipping her mast in the water, and the five men were obliged to hang on for their lives to keep from being washed from the rigging by the force of the waves.

Fortunately the vessel soon righted herself and lay on the bottom with her masts out of water, and the men were able to stay in the rigging until 8 o'clock Monday morning, when they were sighted by the schooner Luther T. Garretson. The gale had at this time moderated somewhat and the Garretson's yawlboats were launched and rescued the half-frozen seamen. They were landed here at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. They saved nothing from the vessel.

The Douglass Haynes was a three-masted schooner built at Bath, Me., in 1872, and was owned by J. Haynes of Augusta.

The two-masted schooner reported from Chatham as having been seen to go to the bottom yesterday forenoon was the schooner Mark Pendleton. The vessel did not go to the bottom as first believed, but careened and filled and has since been drifting about off Pollock Rip. Her crew were landed at the lightship and later taken to Boston by the United States revenue cutter Seminole.

The Pendleton was in collision Monday night five miles southwest of Highland light with schooner Lizzie D. Small. Both vessels, which were considerably damaged, were taken in tow by the steamer Herman Winter, but early yesterday morning, when off Pollock Rip, the Pendleton's hawser parted and she went adrift. The Herman Winter proceeded to this port with the Lizzie D. Small.

To Undergo Practical Test

Greenport, L. I., Nov. 13.—A test of the ability of submarine torpedo boats of the Holland type to continue for long periods safely under water is being arranged. At the plant of the Holland company at New Suffolk, L. I., the Fulton is to be sealed up in the early evening some time this week and to remain sealed from 12 to 15 hours. Her regular crew and two naval officers will be aboard her.

Lost In Adirondacks

Utica, N. Y., Nov. 13.—Miss Margaret McConnell, aged 26, a trained nurse, who went to McKeever in the Adirondacks for her health, is lost in the great woods and there are no hopes of finding her alive. Monday morning she went into the woods for a walk. Not returning a party was formed and 100 men have been searching for her day and night.

Postmaster and Assistant Indicted

Lexington, Va., Nov. 13.—John P. Ackerly, postmaster of Lexington, and John G. Pole, assistant postmaster of Lexington, have been indicted by the grand jury on two counts each for unlawfully procuring spiritous, intoxicating or malt liquors for students of Washington and Lee university, it is alleged.

GIVEN JAIL SENTENCES

Two Chicago Editors Found Guilty of Contempt of Court

Chicago, Nov. 13.—Judge Haney gave his decision yesterday in the contempt case of the editors of Hearst's Chicago American. He ordered that Andrew M. Lawrence, the managing editor, receive 40 days in the county jail, and H. D. Canfield, the writer of the objectionable article, remain there 30 days. S. S. Carvalho and J. P. Hammond were discharged. The case against W. R. Hearst, Clare Briggs and Homer Davenport the judge said would be allowed to stand until such a time as they could be brought into court by the sheriff.

Former Governor Altgeld, one of the counsel for the respondents, entered a formal exception to the decision. "This case, I may say," the court remarked, "is not appealable. You may file a bill of exceptions for a writ of error, however. I am willing to delay the serving of papers on Mr. Lawrence and Mr. Canfield till you have drawn your bill." "We do not feel that we have any favors coming from this court," Mr. Altgeld answered. "We are much obliged."

The article in The American upon which the proceedings in contempt were based was a criticism of the court's decision on an application for the forfeiture of the charter of the People's Gas Light and Coke company. Judge Haney said if the matter published were allowed to go unnoticed by the court it paved the way for other attacks, and that the judiciary, if not held in respect, would fall, with all democratic government. The article, the court declared, was not merely an attack on the court, but a bold threat to every other court. It should, therefore, not go unpunished.

Prince and Princess to Separate

Berlin, Nov. 13.—A divorce of the Grand Duke and Grand Duchess of Hesse is impending. Incompatibility of temper appears to have reached the point where a separation is inevitable. They are both grandchildren of the late Queen Victoria, and were married on April 19, 1894. The grand duchess is regarded as one of the most beautiful princesses of Europe. The grand duke is reported to be a man of sullen, querulous temper, while the grand duchess is high spirited.

To Fight War Department

Indianapolis, Nov. 13.—Russell B. Harrison, son of ex-President Benjamin Harrison, was admitted to practice law yesterday in the county, state, supreme and federal courts. In reply to an inquiry he said: "This consummation of a long-cherished intention has been hastened by my own desire and my father's dying wish that I should carry out his intention to fight to the end the unjust and unmilitary treatment meted out to me by the war department.

Town Almost Wiped Out

Parsons, W. Va., Nov. 13.—Fire at Thomas yesterday destroyed 62 buildings and left over 100 families homeless. The postoffice and many stores are in ruins and the loss is estimated at from $150,000 to $200,000. One life is reported to have been lost. The high wind made the fighting of the fire impossible, and all the destruction was wrought in three hours' time. The fire was started by the explosion of a lamp in a hotel.

Have No Use For Mormons

Charleston, Nov. 13.—A committee of citizens of Higgins' Ferry visited two Mormon elders who have been preaching thereabouts and warned them to leave within a limited time. Citizens of adjoining townships make common cause with the anti-Mormon agitators and promise in the county papers to assist in any measure necessary to expel the elders or worse.

Got a Light Sentence

Boston, Nov. 13.—Two years in the house of correction was the sentence imposed yesterday by Judge Brown upon William Epps, the negro snatch thief, who pleaded guilty when arraigned. The police consider Epps one of the most vicious and bold thieves ever in Boston and are greatly disappointed that he did not receive a longer sentence.

Kick on Ragtime

Chicago, Nov. 13.—A call was sent out last night from the Chicago federation of musicians asking for the united effort of all musicians in the United States to make a fight on music of ragtime variety. The local union declares ragtime compositions to be "immoral, obscene, degrading and unworthy of production."

Heavy Verdict Against Railroad

Boston, Nov. 13.—A verdict of $10,000 was rendered by a jury yesterday in the case of Jeffrey O'Connell vs. the Boston and Albany Railroad company, for personal injuries sustained by being run into and knocked down by a train at a crossing in this city.

RATHBUN TALKS FREELY

Evidently Getting Himself Deeper In the Mire

DID NOT KILL GOODMAN

But Intended to Do So When the Opportunity Presented Itself—Now Looks as If He Will Have to Answer to a Charge of Murder

Louisville, Nov. 13.—Newell C. Rathbun, who, according to the police, has confessed that he planned to defraud an insurance company out of $4000 by pretending that a corpse shipped to Little Rock was his own dead body, yesterday admitted, according to the authorities, that the man who accompanied him to the hotel in Jeffersonville, Ind., and was found dead the next day, was Charles Goodman, who is said to have come from Evansville, Ind.

Detective Sullivan and Chief of Police Appiegate and Coroner Coots of Jeffersonville interviewed Rathbun yesterday. Rathbun listened as one by one the circumstances which the police regard as proofs of his guilt were laid before him by Sullivan. According to the officers Rathbun suddenly sprang up, and walking hastily to a window, looked out for a few minutes. Then, turning like an animal at bay, he faced the crowd of men in the room and asked in a shaking voice: "What is the punishment for offenses of this kind in Indiana? Does the death penalty exist there?"

"Never mind about the penalty, Rathbun, said Sullivan. "What we are interested in is the name of the dead man."

For a moment Rathbun looked at the group of faces before him and then said: "You are on the right track. Goodman is the name of the dead man. I met him in front of the Salvation Army hotel and determined to keep him drunk for several days and then fix him."

When questioned further, Rathbun denied having given Goodman laudanum, and said he would have made use of chloroform. He then refused to go back to Indiana without requisition papers.

Colonel Rodman, United States recruiting officer in Louisville, notified Chief of Detectives Sullivan that no requisitions will be necessary for the return of Rathbun to Jeffersonville. He says that Rathbun is now a government prisoner, charged with desertion, and as soon as he can communicate with Washington he will have the prisoner taken over.

The Jeffersonville authorities will make claim for the custody of Rathbun on a charge of murder.

Just before he was taken back to jail Rathbun made the following statement to Chief of Detectives Sullivan: "I admit everything except that I killed Goodman. I meant to kill him, and kept him drunk for that purpose, but he died of alcoholism and I was not forced to make way with him. My story about the accomplice named Blanchard is fictitious. I acted alone and without a confederate."

The Jeffersonville coroner yesterday identified a pair of trousers found in Rathbun's grip as being a suit the coat and vest of which were found on the corpse found at the Falls City hotel.

The Louisville police are not sure that the prisoner's name is Rathbun. It is believed his home is in Detroit. The next step in the case will be to attempt to settle Rathbun's identity, to discover the cause of Goodman's death and whether any arrests yet remain to be made in the case.

Return After Long Idleness

San Francisco, Nov. 13.—Nearly 500 machinists employed by the Fulton Iron works have returned to work after having been on strike for several months in an effort to obtain 10-hours' pay for nine-hours' work. It is understood that they return to their benches on a schedule of nine-hours' pay for nine-hours' work. It is said all of the other big establishments will soon be running with full union crews.

Army Life Is Ended

Washington, Nov. 13.—Brigadier General Henry C. Merriam was placed on the retired list today on account of age. General Merriam served throughout the war of the rebellion in the volunteers. His most conspicuous service in later years was in command of the troops during the Coeur d'Alene labor riots.

Reached Harbor None Too Soon

San Juan, P. R., Nov. 13.—Steamer Longfellow arrived at Arecibo in distress. She encountered a storm and sprang aleak. For four hours the passengers and crew worked at the pumps, which became choked. When the steamer anchored in the harbor the water was three feet deep in the hold.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Thursday, Nov. 14.
Sun rises—6:33; sets—4:24.
Moon sets—7:03 p. m.
High water—1 a. m.; 1 p. m.

Since Monday night the storm has continued its eastward movement with a still further increase in intensity and is now central near the New England coast. The weather will clear in New England and it will be colder. On the coast there will be west to northwest gales, diminishing tonight.

SIR THOMAS' IMPRESSIONS

Of Business Affairs as He Witnessed Them In America

London, Nov. 13.—Sir Thomas Lipton, bronzed after his trip to America, has resumed his business cares at his establishment in City road. In an interview, he said:

"The people of the United States have never been so prosperous as they are at the present moment. They are getting orders from all over the world, and on every hand I saw evidences of expansion of trade and increasing prosperity. Commerce everywhere is in a sound, healthy and prosperous condition."

"And do you think that the Americans are going to become still more formidable competitors with us in the future?"

"I am sure of it," was the reply. "They get work ready while we are thinking about it, and they execute orders before we have finished drawing the plans. They have the best machinery it is possible to invent, and they pay wages high enough to attract the best workmen. Then, in their methods of doing trade they beat us in neutral markets. We try to make people buy what we want to sell them. The Americans, on the other hand, are ready to sell what other people want to buy. They are taking away a lot of our trade, and they will take away more in the future."

Five-Story Jumps Without Injury

Cleveland, Nov. 13.—Fire which started in the shoe store of N. O. Stone & Co., caused a loss of $75,000 to that firm. The jewelry firm of Arnstein Brothers & Mier, on the second floor of the Stone block, lost $40,000. The upper stories were occupied by physicians, photographers and other tenants. A corset factory, employing about 20 girls, was on the fifth floor. The fire spread so rapidly that they could not use the fire escapes and a number of the girls were rescued by firemen on ladders, while three of them jumped from the fifth story into a net held by the firemen below. They escaped without injury.

Donations of Two Millions

Pittsburg, Nov. 13.—Just before the close of an all-afternoon meeting of the board of trustees of the Carnegie Institute yesterday, Andrew Carnegie announced that he had decided to increase his original offer to endow a polytechnic school from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000. Because of the rapid growth of the Institute, which comprises the art, music and literary departments, Mr. Carnegie said he would also increase its endowment from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000.

Over Half a Million Knocked Off

Havana, Nov. 13.—Michael J. Dady, in a letter to the municipal council, says he figured upon the question of accepting bonds in pay for the sewer contract and estimated that there would be a discount of 5 percent in negotiating them. This sum he added to his bid, recently submitted; and he now offers to deduct $572,038 from his original bid, $11,485,896.06.

Want Reciprocity With Canada

Washington, Nov. 13.—Elwin G. Preston of the Boston chamber of commerce and M. S. Greenough of the Cleveland chamber of commerce called at the White House yesterday to perfect plans for the conference at which representatives of commercial bodies of nearly all northern cities will urge the negotiation of a reciprocity treaty with Canada.

Got a Long Sentence

Chicago, Nov. 13.—Rather than plead guilty to a charge of which he claimed he was innocent, Frank Malson, son of a Milwaukee clergyman, suffered a sentence yesterday to the penitentiary on a charge of burglary under the habitual criminal act. The sentence will keep him in the penitentiary 20 years, or until he is 63 years old.

Fire Loss of $200,000

Boston, Nov. 13.—Latest estimates place the loss by yesterday's Broad street fire at about $200,000, the Murphy Varnish company being the heaviest losers. Six firemen were injured during the progress of the fire, but none of their injuries is of a serious nature.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The body of Rev. Christian Haddeus, aged 70, for many years pastor of a Lutheran church in Columbus, O., was found floating in the water off South Brooklyn.

Dr. George Woodward of Philadelphia has sent a check for $20,000 to the trustees of the University of Pennsylvania to be used for the establishing of the "Woodward fellowship in physiological chemistry."

Zelpha E. Bradford Shaw, widow of Henry W. Shaw, "Josh Billings," died at Saratoga. The burial will take place at Lanesboro, Mass. Mrs. Shaw was 81 years old.

Kimball's hardwood mill and several storehouses and dry-houses were totally destroyed by fire at Stratford, N. H., causing a loss of $20,000.

The endowment fund of the Boston floating hospital has received a contribution of $10,000, of which $5000 can be used towards the purchase or construction of a new boat. The gift is from the executors of the estate of the late Francis Mackay.

"Last winter an infant child of mine had croup in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist, of Filley, Mo. "I gave her a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and in a short time all danger was past and the child recovered." This remedy not only cures croup, but when given as soon as the first symptoms appear, will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Attention is called to fact that nobody catechised the candidates for the legislature as to their views about the brown-tail moth—an object of some interest, as there are signs of a raid on the state treasury in his behalf at the session of next year.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ It is high time that the American people should make it known to the world that they will not socially ostracise or in any way attempt to suppress a genuine man merely because he has more or less African blood in his veins. We are about the only white people on the footstool who have not already made that fact known, and it would not be at all to our credit to stand alone in upholding the doctrine that a man is not to be treated according to his personal merits, but according to his race.—Chicago Chronicle (Dem.)

☞ Some esteemed contemporaries have taken up the question of the transportation of freight through the streets by trolley. We don't believe that anybody need worry much over this problem yet awhile. There is nothing in sight which leads to the belief that the trolley companies particularly care for this form of business. Most of them are doing all they can handle now in the way of passenger business, and they are not likely to care to put on special freight cars and crowd their schedule any more fully than it is at present. Combination, too, has welded so closely many of the trolley and steam roads that the trolley people are not likely to care to enter into competition with the steam roads to the loss of business, perhaps, for both. —Brockton Enterprise.

☞ Where are the boys? What has become of the public school boy who used to play peg-top, marbles, baseball and hockey on the Common, and "fire" his crackers on the hill on the Fourth of July? Who coasted on the long path from Beacon to West street in winter. Can you find a boy now who knows the difference between an alley, a two-ser, an agate or a Chinee? How long since you have seen a boy driving a hoop? Where are boys who graduated from public school and entered 'a store?' Who took down two sections of heavy shutters, swept and dusted the store and then went to breakfast when next in rank came down? Oh, yes, there are so-called boys, whose hair is combed or curled monkey fashion over their eyes, or wear a penwiper for a cap on the back of their heads, smoke cigarettes, are interested in variety shows, and whose first question when seeking a place is 'What yer goin' ter pay?' But the old, hardy, bright, lovable New England boy is no more, and so Admiral Bob Evans exclaims against the overeducation of New England and regrets the lack of practical education of boys.—Commercial Bulletin.

—The Charitable Mechanics' Association have reversed their dicision and will hold a fair in Mechanics' Building, Boston, next year.

—But 105 votes were cast in the city caucuses of Boston Tuesday night, by the Democratic Social Party, less than 5 in a ward on an average.

DIED.

PORTER—At Quincy City Hospital, Nov. 11, Mr. Joseph Porter of Holbrook, aged 70 years.

WARD THREE MAN.

Ex-Councilman Jones Likely to be the Nominee.

It is said that Frederick L. Jones is the promising candidate for the Republican nomination for Mayor. The excellent timber of which the first City Council of Quincy was composed has received many favorable comments. Frederick L. Jones was a member of that body, representing Ward Three with James Thompson and Thomas Curtis as his colleagues. He served on the Committees on Streets, Contracts, Fire Department and Police. He was reelected to the Council of 1889, serving on the same committees, but being advanced to chairman of the Committees on Fire Department and Police. In 1891 he was relected at large and became chairman of the Committee on Streets, Contracts, Lights, etc. It was near the close of his three years' service that Councilman Charles R. Sherman reviewed his work under the non-de-plume of "P. R. O'Gress," in the Daily Ledger as follows:

"Who will undertake to faithfully describe Councilman Jones? Certainly no man ever did or ever will enter the Council with a greater conscientious regard for duty than he. To say that he is never asleep poorly expresses his watchfulness. He is an all round man. Takes a hand in all legislation. He is not a Ward Three man, but tries to faithfully represent the entire city. He is a councilman-at-large. Although a stubborn fighter, he is certainly deficient in parliamentary skill and whether the cuticle of his opponent is as thick as a rhinocerous' hide or as tender as a spring chicken makes no difference to Mr. Jones. His blows come right from the shoulder, and woe be to the man who steps on his official toes. Perfectly honest and straightforward he expects every measure to be decided on its merits, forgetting that all legislation must be the result of some compromise. It is a well known fact that in the Street committee of 1890 Councilman Jones could have traded Water street for Hancock, West and Common; and can any one question the justice of such a 'understanding.' Every legislative vote of Councilman Jones during his three years of office has been the result of a clear conscience, and although he would undoubtedly have been more successful in his legislative career had he used more sugar and less vinegar, still the word 'job' will not stick to the back of Fred L. Jones. He refused an urgent appeal for renomination."

P. R. O'Gress.

Mr. Jones has since been one of the board of Sewerage Commissioners of the city. He obtained considerable prominence by his refusal to vote to transfer the sum of $5,000 to the Street Department during the term of Commissioner Cavanagh.

Mr. Jones was born in England in 1846. He came to Quincy when about fifteen years of age and attended our public schools. He was considerably under age when the War of the Rebellion broke out, but he enlisted promptly and served three years, not without wound. He was a corporal when mustered out. Returning from the war he became a stone cutter. Later he and James McGilvray established a granite firm, with works on Liberty street and they are today, among our successful manufacturers. Mr. Jones was married in 1868, and Dr. F. E. Jones, the Medical Examiner of this district, is his son.

Not a Candidate.

Edward H. Angier, nominated by the Democrats of Ward One for the City Council is anxious to withdraw from the contest. He requested the Ward Committee not to present his name to the caucus but that did not count. Now he has written a letter to the Ward Committee requesting that his name be withdrawn, but that will not count either, because withdrawals must be filed with the City Clerk in regular form. Section 148 of Chapter 548 of the Acts of 1898 reads:

"A person nominated as a candidate for any State or City office may withdraw his name from nomination by a request in writing signed by him, and acknowledged before a justice of the peace and filed with the officer with whom the nomination was filed and within the 72 hours succeeding five o'clock of the last day fixed for the filing of nomination papers for such office."

The last date for filing nominations by caucuses will be Monday, Nov. 18, at 5 P. M.

TODAY'S COURT.

Michael O'Neil was fined $5 for drunkenness at Milton.

Walter Kelly was fined $10 for indecent exposure at Quincy.

John B. Moshnichka was arraigned for keeping and exposing liquor at Weymouth. Case continued until Nov. 15.

Thomas F. Heney was arraigned for drunkenness at Randolph. Case continued until Saturday to pay a fine of $15.

The Glenwood range tends to business; it has no off days like other kinds.

Granite Business.

The Quincy letter to Monumental New for November notes a very satisfactory condition of the granite business of the city. It reads in part: "Business continues brisk throughout the city and the approaching winter season bids fair to witness a trade the like of which Quincy has not experienced for some time past. The quarries under efficient management are yielding an excellent quality of granite and in such quantity as not to warrant such a stringency of the necessary as has been apparent in previous seasons. True, stock shortage is not entirely eliminated from their perplexities of the trade, but there is consolation in the fact that accumulation of orders with quarry owners is fast reaching the normal and that by the summer season of 1902, there will be sufficient stock quarried to supply on demand the home and foreign market."

Jumped on a Ten Penny Nail.

The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake made of ten-penny nails, and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and a second one half way through. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes later the pain had disappeared and no more suffering was experienced. In three days the child was wearing her shoe as usual and with absolutely no discomfort. Mr. Powell is a well known merchant of Forkland, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and heals such injuries without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. For sale by all druggists.

ART EDUCATION.

It Is Necessary in the Monumental Industry.

The leading editorial in the monumental News for November emphasizes the need of art education in the monumental industry. The article is given in full:

The importance of art education as a factor of improvement in most lines of work associated with our present day requirements and obligations need no argument. In every condition of life indications are always more or less in evidence of its influence, and every article of utility or service in some way or the other acknowledges it.

We are reminded of its growing force in our national life by the constantly increasing attendance of students at our great art schools, which have recently reopened for the winter term. It savors of the problematical to wonder whether all these students are to become artists, and yet we know positively that in the general order of things as we understand them, such a conclusion is impossible. But they are going to take out into whatever line of work they ultimately follow, such a knowledge of beauty, proportion and appropriateness that all they undertake will be dominated by these laws, and the result will be improvement.

Even in the trade schools the study and practice is carried along under influences which include artistic leanings so that harmony and finish of product shall attract attention. In the effort to combine the useful and beautiful we secure more pleasing results, and in the tools and implements of every day use it is certain that added zest, is given to work produced under pleasing conditions.

In no line of work in the country is art education more necessary than in the monumental industry. If the large business of the manufacture of cemetery memorials is to be maintained in a flourishing condition, men of higher artistic acquirements must be employed in their production, and far greater attention must be given to the appropriateness of design for a given location in the modern cemetery. The rapid improvement of the country cemetery along lines of artistic landscape effects is a matter of maturing public sentiment and this will compel a study of the cemetery memorial not hitherto seriously attempted.

In an editorial some weeks since in the Detroit Free Press on, "Monuments in America," among other pointed criticisms it said: "The truth is that our American people, plain and practical, are not in love with the class of monuments that have been given them. They represent some of the worst atrocities in art extant."

This is quite true in a very general sense, apart from the fact that prompted its utterance—the slow response to an invitation to subscribe to the fund for a monument to a well known public man then recently deceased. The great exhibitions held in this country in the last quarter of a century have developed a progressive public taste in sculptural art vastly in advance of the art displayed in the great majority of the monumental efforts erected to subserve it.

And to the average intelligence seeking a cause, it readily offers one. Generally speaking, neither the public or its qualified representatives, have been permitted to exercise their judgment in the matter, and monuments have been erected and located throughout the country desired primarily and generally only to satisfy the views of the parties specially interested in them or their subjects, and without a single consideration as to their art qualities, or the appropriateness of the site secured for their location.

And a pity it is that even today, such is the blindness of human nature, proposed donors of public memorials frequently defer their beneficiaries, because of the fancied restraints that art through its qualified representatives imposes for their better presentation. Henceforth every public monument should be a work of art with all its accessories regardless of all interests except those of art in its proper sense.

Increased Appropriation Wanted

Washington, Nov. 13.—In his annual report, which will be completed soon, Postmaster General Smith will ask for an increase of the appropriation for the rural delivery service from the present sum of $35,500,000 to $36,000,000, and will advocate the extension of the service as far as practicable.

Office Commissions For Sale

Chicago, Nov. 13.—Samuel H. Kanter and B. H. Loveless were fined yesterday $1000 each by Judge Loveless for interference with the civil service examinations of policemen seeking promotion. It was charged that the prisoners had promised commissions to candidates on payment of $150.

Royal Baking Powder has not its counterpart at home or abroad. Its qualities, which make the bread more healthful and the cake of finer appearance and flavor, are peculiar to itself and are not constituent in any other leavening agent.

Braintree Club Leads.

In the Norfolk county league—billiard, whist, bowling and pool—the Braintree club is doing the best work. They lead in bowling, billiards and whist, while the Merrymounts lead in pool.

When you feel that life is hardly worth the candle take a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They will cleanse your stomach, tone up your liver and regulate your bowels, making you feel like a new man. For sale by all druggists.

Enteric Fever.

Men over forty are practically proof against enteric fever.

Worth of Rubbish.

It is estimated that about $10,000 worth of what is considered to be "rubbish" is thrown into the streets by the Parisians every day. This means nearly $3,750,000 per annum for the chiffonniers, and; counting their wives and families, nearly 100,000 persons live very comfortably upon their share of it.

Norway Butter.

Norway makes excellent butter, but most of it is sent to London, and tourists in Norway have to put up with margarine.

Big Queensland.

To give some idea of the size of Australia, Queensland alone is half as big again as Germany, Austria and Hungary put together. Its area is 668,497 square miles.

South Carolinans.

South Carolinans are "Weasels," "Sand Hillers" and "Rice Birds," the first an allusion to the thinness of the early natives, the second to their place of residence, the third to a common crop and bird which feeds on it.

Gutta Percha Pens.

Pens of hardened gutta percha have been repeatedly tried in this country and England, but have not met with success.

Friday Marriages.

Friday is the unlucky day of the week, but it seems to have no terrors for those matrimonially inclined. Friday holds a fair average with other days of the week for marriages solemnized.

Italian Bees.

Italian bees are generally admitted to be far superior to the black bees. They are better workers and are more easily controlled.

London Street Accidents.

The street accidents of London amount to about 3,500 a year—nearly ten a day.

Rich Foods.

Figs, dates, raisins and prunes are rich food substances of a most nutritious character. When deprived of skins and seeds, they are very digestible. Nuts are rich in fat and form a very wholesome food, with which, however, there should be taken fruit or other bulky food to prevent concentration.

Mount McKinley.

The highest mountain peak in North America is called Mount McKinley. It is in Alaska, and it is 20,464 feet high.

First Chemical Factory.

The first chemical factory opened in this country was in Salem, Mass., in 1811. At first great objection was made to the establishment of the factory, the people living near claiming that the fumes of the chemicals poisoned the air and made life intolerable.

Mineral Waters.

An enormous capital is invested in the mineral water industry in Great Britain. It is probably not overestimating the figure to put it at £15,000,000, while the workers employed will number not far short of 100,000.

German Drug Stores.

In Germany there is one physician to every 2,058 persons, but only one drug store to every 10,363 persons.

Gold Pens.

Gold pens are now usually tipped with iridium. The bits of this metal are laid in notches at the point of the pen, then fastened on with flux, being afterward ground and polished for use.

Pineapples.

Pineapples, either raw or cooked, are recommended to persons with weak throat.

Rifle Muzzle Velocity.

It appears that the greatest velocity of a rifle ball is not at the muzzle, but some distance in front. An average of ten shots with the German infantry rifle has shown a muzzle velocity of 2,068 feet per second, with a maximum velocity of 2,132 feet per second at ten feet from the muzzle.

Siam Likes Odd Numbers.

The number of rooms in a house, of windows or doors in a room, even of rungs of a ladder, in Siam must always be odd.

Honeycomb.

The bees were the first canners, and their goods will keep for all time if stored in the right kind of an apartment free from frost and dampness.

Army Foods.

All European armies have certain extras weekly in the way of food. Sugar is given in England and France, two gallons of beer in Russia, half a gallon of wine in Italy, three pounds of fish in Spain and five ounces of butter in Belgium.

JEROME JUNIOR PROPHESIES

"Chinky" Says Papa Is Going to Surprise Folks Pretty Soon.

"No, I'd never like to see papa president of the United States. I don't know that I'd like to see him even governor, because then he would not have any time to spend with mamma and me, and he'd be always working and never get any rest."

Thus did William Travers Jerome, Jr., set a limitation on his father's political career, according to a Lakeville (Conn.) dispatch to the New York Evening Journal.

"Chinky," as the son of the district attorney elect of New York is dubbed, is eleven years old, but he is politically wise beyond his years. Constant association with the men who always surround his father has brightened the little chap wondrously, and his likes and dislikes for the candidates in the late campaign are pronounced.

"I like papa most because he is my papa," he declared, "and next because he is an honest man. He didn't need to be in this election, but I'm glad he ran, now that he has been elected, because he will show the people what he is made of.

"Oh, he's going to surprise everybody before he gets through!

"Yes, I like Low and Shepard both. I like Low principally because he is educated and believes in education. Not enough attention is paid to education in our country, and that is the cause of most crime.

"You can just bet Mr. Low will build plenty of schools and run them in good shape."

"Chinky" is an athletic lad, and while his father is in the country he drags him off to play golf every day. He can handle a horse, ride a wheel or pull an oar. Withal he is very studious.

MAY LOSE HER PENSION.

Dr. Mary Walker Accused of Vilifying President McKinley.

Dr. Mary E. Walker, the woman suffragist who wears men's apparel, is liable to lose her pension for alleged "treasonable utterances" regarding the late President McKinley if H. Clay Evans, commissioner of pensions, has his way.

When the president's assassin was sentenced to be killed, the doctor called at the ticket office of the New York Central Railway company in Oswego and delivered a harangue to a crowd in the waiting room in which she is alleged to have used this language, says the New York World:

"The state of New York in killing the assassin by electricity is just as great a murderer as is the assassin who killed McKinley. The latter in sending armed troops to shoot down the Filipinos in their own homes and country was a murderer."

United States Marshal McLoughlin of Binghamton went to Oswego the other day to look up the facts and obtain affidavits. In an interview Dr. Walker said:

"What I did say I am ready to say anywhere."

In the civil war Dr. Mary Walker served as an army nurse and was discharged as a "surgeon of volunteers." A few years ago she was granted a pension of $15 a month.

NOVEL TRANSLAKE TRIP.

Captain Mayo to Make the Voyage Alone In a Lifeboat.

Captain R. D. Mayo of Muskegon, Mich., will make a perilous voyage in his strange life saving device from Chicago to Muskegon the latter part of November in order to demonstrate practically the merits of the boat, says the New York Times. The craft with which he will make the trip will be 30 feet in length and 6 feet in diameter and is the one which has been shown in the exhibition of boats at Havre, France, this summer.

The captain expects to make the translake journey in two days providing he has favorable weather. He will take with him an oil stove to keep warm and will be amply provided with provisions in case he is delayed by storms. He will make the trip alone. The Mayo life device is cone shaped and is a boat within a boat. The inside boat is on pivots, which enable it and its occupants to remain right side up no matter how much the life craft is tossed about by the elements. The boat acts on the principle of a log in the sea, rolling lengthwise with the waves, while inside the occupants are sheltered from the storm.

There are devices for preventing any water from entering the outside shell while air circulates freely. The boat can be propelled either by sails or oars.

Pensions For Bank Employees.

Plans providing for a pension fund for aged employees of the Fourth Street National bank in Philadelphia were favorably passed upon at a meeting of the board of directors of that institution the other day, says the New York Times. Hereafter when one of the employees is considered too old for work he will be put on the pension list, no matter what his age. The fund will be entirely gratuitous, a certain sum being laid aside by the bank each year to provide all expenditures in pensions. Resolutions calling for a death benefit for the families of employees were also favorably passed upon.

Higher Hotel Rates For Coronation.

While a raid upon west end flats and houses is being made in view of the coronation and already fancy prices are the rule, the hotels have so far not taken next summer's great celebration into their consideration, says the London Mail. Except in a few isolated cases there have been no applications for rooms for next June, and consequently the special tariffs, which will, of course, be advanced on the normal, have not yet been drawn up.

A German Estimate of Roosevelt

Berlin, Nov. 13.—The National Zeitung publishes an article dealing with President Roosevelt as a man and a statesman. "Mr. Roosevelt will be an American president," says the writer, "in the fullest sense of the word. A conflict with Germany at present is out of the question, but it might spring up if economical difficulties should widen." The article is attracting widespread attention.

Nature of Report Kept Secret

Washington, Nov. 13.—Governor Hunt of Porto Rico has cabled to the president his report on the arrest of Santiago Iglesias. The report is withheld for a time and no information regarding it was obtainable at the White House. It is believed that further details have been requested by the president.

Close of McKinley Account

Washington, Nov. 13.—Assistant Secretary Taylor closed the account of William McKinley with the United States government yesterday by signing a treasury warrant in favor of Mrs. McKinley as legatee for $1805.56, the balance of the salary due the late president for his last 13 days in office.

Anarchists Shut Off

London, Nov. 13.—An anarchist meeting to "commemorate the legal murder of the Chicago anarchists," which had been called for last night, was prohibited by the police, who were stationed at the various entrances to the hall and sent away hundreds that came to attend the proceedings.

Deacon's Generous Offer

Melrose, Mass., Nov. 13.—Deacon Elisha S. Converse of Malden has offered $5000 to the Melrose Young Men's Christian Association, upon condition that a large sum be raised toward the payment of the association's debt. The gift has aroused so much enthusiasm that an effort is being made to raise the whole sum, which is almost $40,000.

Refused to Shave a Negro

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 13.—An interesting case was disposed of in the third district court, yesterday, when Henry Prospere Leflamme, a barber, having his place of business on Boylston street, was convicted and fined, as guilty of discrimination in refusing to shave Thomas S. Bruce, a negro Harvard student.

Hotel Property at Auction

Lowell, Mass., Nov. 13.—The Merrimack house property, including the theatre known as Music hall and several stores, together with all the mortgaged Emery land in one of the suburban wards, Pawtucketville, was sold at auction yesterday for $138,208.84. The purchaser was Albert J. Ryan, agent for the Emery estate.

Money Thrown Away

Boston, Nov. 13.—The municipal caucuses of the Democratic Social party last night cost about $6 for each vote cast. Only 105 votes were thrown in 16 of the 25 wards. The entire expense was $625, and the formality was almost as great as at the caucuses of the larger parties.

ANOTHER BUNCH TAKEN

Three Less Fugitive Convicts Roaming Around Kansas

MEN WHO FOUGHT SHERIFF

Are Among Those Who Were Taken Yesterday—Gave Battle, but Had No Ammunition to Return Fire of Their Pursuers

Kansas City, Nov. 13.—Three more of the 26 fugitive convicts from Fort Leavenworth prison were captured at Basar late yesterday by penitentiary guards, after a fight in which one of the convicts was shot. The captured men are Gilbert Mullens, white; Fred Robinson, mulatto, and Sol Southerland, Indian.

Southerland was wounded yesterday, but not seriously. He was also shot while making his escape from the prison last week. None of the guards was injured. Only nine of the escaped convicts are yet to be taken and the whole country is on the lookout.

Mullins and Southerland are those who captured Sheriff Cook and others last Sunday. The other, Fred Robinson, had joined them, it is thought, after the capture of Thompson in Council Grove.

The battle in which the convicts were taken yesterday was brief but exciting. Captain Trelford and a company of prison guards were searching for the three convicts. Finally, when nearing a strip of timber, the officers saw the runaways, and moving around under the shelter of a small hill, the guards managed to get in front of the convicts before they had reached the timber.

Captain Trelford called upon them to surrender. They did not answer, but broke into a run. The guards then opened fire, but without effect. The convicts could not return the fire, having no ammunition.

After a brief chase, in which a number of shots were fired, Southerland was wounded and then the others surrendered. Mullins is still suffering from a wound in the leg as a result of the fight with Sheriff Cook and could not do much running.

Two men supposed to be convicts stole a horse and buggy from a man near Atchison and robbed him of what money he had, but finally abandoned the vehicle after being pursued some distance.

Lawrence Lewis was returned to the penitentiary in irons yesterday and is in the hospital in a critical condition from his wounds. Frank Thompson, when brought in, was found to be only slightly wounded. When the latter recovers a 25-pound ball will be chained to his ankle as punishment.

Fast Traveling in Germany

New York, Nov. 13.—The Berlin correspondent of The Daily News reports that a speed of 105 miles an hour has been attained on an electric railway between Marienfelde and Zossen. These high-speed electric railway experiments have been made on the military electric line from Berlin to Zossen. The speed of the trains has been gradually increased from 40, 50, 75, 85, to the 105 miles an hour now reported. The cars run smoothly and the engineers express confidence that will attain a speed of 125 miles an hour.

Fat et Evidence a Factor

New York, Nov. 13.—David B. Hill, on behalf of the district attorney, will appear tomorrow before Judge Newburger when the argument over the motion to quash the indictment against Roland B. Molineux will take place. Ex-Governor Black will appear for Molineux. The recent decision of the court of appeals, ruling out the "Barnett" evidence in the case, will be the basis of the motion to be argued.

Time to Quit Pa chwork

Washington, Nov. 13.—The most important feature of the report of the board of visitors to the West Point military academy is a recommendation that the academy be rebuilt. The report says that it has been nearly 100 years since West Point was founded and from the birth of the institution nearly all the improvements have been on the patchwork plan.

Firemen Caught by Explosion

Philadelphia, Nov. 13.—Five firemen were injured yesterday by an explosion of gas in a junction conduit of the Edison Heat, Light and Power company in the business section of the city. None was fatally hurt. The gas and sewer gas which had escaped into the conduit backed into the junction box, and probably came in contact with crossed wires.

Fighting American Shoe Shops

Vienna, Nov. 13.—At a mass meeting of Austrian shoemakers here last night Burgomaster Lueger spoke against the establishment of American shoe shops in Vienna. Several delegates declared themselves vigorously against American competition. A resolution in accordance with the views of the speakers was adopted.

Sailors Unexpectedly Rich

Mobile, Ala., Nov. 13.—The British schooner Union has brought here 22 pounds of Spanish gold in coin and bars, found in Central American waters by Captain Barton and associates. The coins bear the date of 1753. The coins found are valued at between $6000 and $7000.

American Manufacturers' Chance

Washington, Nov. 13.—The Argentine Republic desires to place a contract for an annual supply of 60,000 pairs of shoes in the United States.

THERIAULT CONVICTED

Verdict of Guilty In First Degree In the Pare Murder Case

Skowhegan, Me., Nov. 13.—A verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree was reached yesterday afternoon by the jury in the case of Alexander Theriault, who, for one day more than a week, has been on trial, charged with the murder of Mathias Pare, a young Canadian woodsman, near Asquith station last March. Counsel for Theriault announced that the case would be taken to the law court on exceptions, but later in the day, after consultation with Theriault, counsel stated that no appeal would be taken. Sentence will be imposed later.

Judge Emery's charge to the jury occupied 1½ hours and at 12:50 the jury retired. No sound was heard from the jury until 4:30, when word was sent to Judge Emery that a verdict had been reached, and at 4:35 the foreman announced that the prisoner had been found guilty of murder in the first degree.

Theriault heard the verdict without any show of emotion and after a hurried conversation with his attorneys announced himself ready to accompany the officers to the jail.

Skull Crushed and Houses Damaged

Boston, Nov. 13.—Fragments of a sixton ingot of iron rained like hail on Bremen street, East Boston, yesterday afternoon, as the result of the explosion of 12 sticks of nitroglycerine used to break up the immense block. Daniel McGuire, 10 years old, was struck by one of the fragments, and he is in a dangerous condition with a broken skull. Six buildings in the neighborhood were badly damaged, in one instance a piece of metal weighing 75 pounds crashing through the side of a house in which a family sat at dinner.

Meet to Make One Law

Boston, Nov. 13.—The great and general court of the commonwealth resumed business on Beacon hill today at 11 a. m. For the first time in 20 years it meets in extra session, having been prorogued to Nov. 13, when it finished its regular session last June. The legislators will assemble for one specific purpose—to enact into law the compilation of the public statutes on which a special committee of 50 has been at work during the summer and autumn.

Theatre Burned Out

Winsted, Conn., Nov. 13.—Damage by fire, smoke and water, estimated at about $50,000, was caused yesterday by a fire which broke out shortly before 9 o'clock on the stage of the Winsted opera house. The theatre was burned out, stores and offices in the structure were more or less damaged by the flames, while in the Wetmore block adjacent, in which was located the main postoffice, the occupants suffered loss entirely due to smoke and water.

Getting New Rolling Stock

New Haven, Nov. 13.—President Hall of the New Haven Railroad company says that the recent order of his company for 30 locomotives and 1100 freight cars represents largely replacements, the company during the last year having destroyed some 700 old cars. The new rolling stock will be paid for out of surplus earnings, from which also, some 50 new passenger cars have been bought during the past year.

Saloon Row Ends With Shooting

Boston, Nov. 13.—At the Massachusetts general hospital John Edwards is suffering from a bullet wound in the breast and groin, while Henry J. Wheeler is under arrest pending the result of the injuries. James P. McGinnis is held as a witness. The row started by Edwards charging that the others were trying to rob him while the three were drinking together in a saloon.

From Boston to Marlboro

Marlboro, Mass., Nov. 13.—The announcement is made that the S. H. Howe Shoe company will transfer at once all its shipping business from Boston to this city. The firm also has decided to increase the working capital of the company from $200,000 to $500,000.

He Had Two Wives

Boston, Nov. 13.—Dr. Carlisle O. Smith, charged with bigamy, was yesterday sentenced to 2½ years in the house of correction. Smith married two young women of this city.

THE SIGNS CHANGE

Pale face, disordered digestion, these are the signs of thin blood. School girls are the most frequent sufferers from thin blood.

Scott's Emulsion is just what they need. It is blood food.

You can easily tell whether Scott's Emulsion is doing the girl good. The signs begin to change. Pale face gets some good color; appetite improves; mind brightens; temper becomes happy; digestion strong; habits regular.

Scott's Emulsion can do all these things for your pale-faced girl if you will give it a fair chance. The disease sometimes takes weeks to cure. But regular doses of Scott's Emulsion give steady improvement.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

A FILIPINO HUMORIST.

Tricks Played by Quintan Salas on American Officers.

Quintan Salas, the Filipino leader in Iloilo, who recently surrendered, seems to be a humorist as well as a fighter and has played many tricks on American officers, says the Chicago News. At one time when Captain C. M. Raysor, a volunteer officer, was ordered to pursue Salas in the Dumangas region he ran across a native who offered his services as a guide. Captain Raysor was quick to avail himself of the offer. The guide seemed to know the country very well and showed the captain more bypaths, lines, short cuts and hard trails than he possibly could have found alone. Up and down the bad lands they hiked after that will-o'-the-wisp, Quintan Salas. Toward the last of the march the guide told the captain that he would do a little scouting around himself and see if he could locate any signs of Salas or his men. He evidently found something, for he did not return. While in Iloilo recently Captain Raysor was introduced to Colonel Quintan Salas and could hardly believe his eyes as he recognized, standing before him with easy grace, his erstwhile guide of the swamps.

Captain Raysor is not the first American officer that Quintan Salas has had fun with. He dropped into Pototan one hazy evening disguised as a padre and made a pretty fair collection of outstanding accounts. The commanding officer was apprised of his visit, but when a search was instituted Quintan had just gone up the road. Another officer, a Lieutenant Conger, once ran across an insurgent hospital. The place was in charge of a very courteous medical officer, who greeted Lieutenant Conger quite cordially. He had a red cross on his arm. Not to be outdone in the amenities, Lieutenant Conger extended all the privileges granted by the Geneva convention and rode away. After he reached his bivouac for the night the lieutenant learned that the medical officer he had met was none other than Colonel Quintan Salas. The red cross had been assumed after the Americans came in sight, and most of the wounded and sick were "faked" also, for a visit to the place immediately afterward found it completely deserted.

EX-SENATOR HILL'S SILENCE

Says When He Has Anything to Say Knows How to Say It.

David B. Hill's arrival in New York the other day, immediately after the announcement by the leaders of the Greater New York Democracy that they intend to continue the war on Tammany until the organization is wiped out of existence, was regarded as significant, says the New York Herald.

"I have nothing to say about the election," said Mr. Hill when he stepped from the Albany train.

"What do you think of the plan of the Greater New York Democracy to start a new organization?" was asked.

"Not a word," repeated Mr. Hill.

"How about Mr. Croker's defeat?"

"Now," said Mr. Hill, smiling, "when I have anything to say I know how to say it, but I have nothing at present, and it is useless to urge me."

Mr. Hill went to William F. Sheehan's law office, where he conferred with Mr. Sheehan in regard to the franchise tax suits and later took luncheon with him at the Downtown club, where he persisted in his refusal to talk. He went back to Albany without having seen John C. Sheehan or any of the other leaders of the Greater New York Democracy.

HE GOT THE SOAP.

A Missourian's Peculiar Request of George Gould.

While the special train of George Gould was on a side track in Missouri, says the New York Times, Mr. Gould stepped to earth to stretch his legs while waiting for a regular train to pass. It was in the more rugged part of the state, well away from civilization. A typical habitant of the district stopped a pair of emaciated mules near the train. He hailed Mr. Gould and said:

"Say, mister, we have a new baby at my dugout, an' we ain't got no soap. My old woman is so stuck up over it that she's making me drive fourteen miles to town to get some 'nice smellin' soap, an' I thought maybe you'd help me out by gettin' me a piece of soap outen one of them fancy cars."

Mrs. Gould, who overheard the request, had the porter give the man several pieces of soap wrapped in some towels and several articles of tinned delicacies. The man seemed much surprised at such generosity, and as he turned to drive homeward he shouted back to Mr. Gould:

"Say, mister, you all must be some relation to Santa Claus."

Earl Li's Bright Sayings.

Let us use foreigners, but do not let foreigners use us.

Your Lord Salisbury is a man who says little and means much; your Gladstone is a man who says much and means little.

I really cannot tell how German women compare with those of China (he was talking to the emperor and looking at a woman's corsage). We never see half as much of our women as you do of yours.

General Grant and I have suppressed the two greatest rebellions known in history.

They call me another Bismarck, but surely I am now a greater man than Bismarck, for Bismarck is out of office and I am not.

With money you can move even the gods; without money you cannot move even a man.—New York Evening World.

DEATH-DEALING STORM

Gales and Disastrous Floods on English Coast

MANY WRECKS REPORTED

Number of Persons Who Perished Has Already Reached Nearly a Hundred —Thousands Witnessed Drowning of Sailors at West Hartlepool

London, Nov. 14.—The gale which has been sweeping over Great Britain and Ireland for the past two days continues unabated at many coast points. Over the Welsh lowlands the torrential rains are increasing, causing disastrous floods.

Reports of wrecks and casualties continue to flow in. The death list, made up of threes and fours, has an aggregate approaching 100.

The Swedish bark Trio was driven ashore late yesterday afternoon at West Hartlepool, and was broken up. Three of her crew were washed ashore alive, while the remaining seven were drowned in sight of thousands of spectators powerless to help them, all attemps at rescue with rockets carrying life saving lines having failed.

The mail boat Nord, which started from Dover for Calais and ran down the lightship of the works of the new Dover pier, has succeeded in returning to Dover. The mails and passengers are safe. The crew of the lightship was also landed after passing a terrible night at sea in a small boat.

Early yesterday a French barque struck off Hendon. Nineteen of the crew were drowned.

Numerous other wrecks have been reported, but the weather, in most cases, prevents the identification of the craft. Two vessels in distress were sighted off Dingeness. The weather was so severe that the lifeboat was unable to put out to their assistance. One of them sank later. The other, a steamer, reached West bay, where a tug is now standing by her.

The revenue cutter Active has been wrecked in the Firth of Forth. Twenty-three of her crew were drowned and three were saved.

Wrecks on Danish Coast

Copenhagen, Nov. 14.—A terrible gale and snowstorm have done great damage throughout Denmark. There are five feet of snow here. Eight vessels are reported driven ashore, two have been wrecked and many lives lost.

Negroes Get Offices

Washington, Nov. 14.—In the list of justices of peace appointed for the District of Columbia under the new code are the names of two negroes, both of whom are well known in New England. Robert H. Terrell and Emanuel Hewlett. Mr. Hewlett is a graduate of the Cambridge schools and has lived in Washington about 20 years. Mr. Terrell was a graduate of Harvard in 1884. He was born in Virginia in 1857, attended the public schools in Washington, and in 1875 went to Massachusetts.

Postmasters to Meet

Boston, Nov. 14.—For the first time in its history the Postmasters' Association of New England will hold a regular convention in Boston next Wednesday, lasting from early morning till night, for a discussion of the various branches in the postal service. Some of the most prominent officials in the department in Washington will be here to address the convention on the branches directly under their supervision.

Campaign Finances

New York, Nov. 14.—Seth Low filed the certificates as to his expenses as fusionist candidate in the county clerk's office yesterday. He paid a total of $2396.80. Jacob A. Cantor, who was elected borough president for Manhattan as the fusionist candidate, says he spent $5883. Mayor VanWyck, defeated candidate for the supreme court bench on the Democratic ticket, expended $401.

Roosevelt as a Preacher

New York, Nov. 14.—President Roosevelt has just been elected first vice president of the Long Island Bible society. An address by Mr. Roosevelt at the meeting of the society last June has been translated into several languages and has been widely circulated. It was because of his services to the society in making the address that Mr. Roosevelt was elected to the office.

To Save Making Tunnel

New Haven, Nov. 14.—The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company is considering the matter of electrifying the Valley road between Hartford and Middletown, Conn., so as to avoid the scheme of a tunnel through Newington mountain at a cost of $1,000,000 or more.

When you feel that life is hardly worth the candle take a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They will cleanse your stomach, tone up your liver and regulate your bowels, making you feel like a new man. For sale by all druggists.

USED DUE PRECAUTION

Miss Stone Had No Reason to Apprehend Any Special Danger

Boston, Nov. 14.—The executive officers of the American Board of Foreign missions, concerning the case of Miss Ellen M. Stone, issued a statement yesterday intended to be corrective of erroneous reports that have been widely published relative to the conditions that resulted in her capture by the brigands.

This statement affirms that Miss Stone was in pursuit of her customary duties as a missionary when she was captured. The route over which she was travelling is one that is continually used by the missionaries and without reason for apprehending any special danger. No warning whatever was given to Miss Stone as to this particular journey either by the Turkish or Bulgarian authorities. She had the usual escort of 18 or 20 people and was accustomed to carry with her a Turkish teskre, or permit to travel.

One of the missionaries acquainted with the region states that the route Miss Stone took was considered the safest of any in that region. The statement further affirms that there is no ground whatever for criticizing Miss Stone for want of precaution in making this journey.

Steam Pipe Burst

Lowell, Mass., Nov. 14.—By the bursting of a steam pipe in the boiler room of the Hamilton Manufacturing company shortly before midnight last night four men were scalded, three of them quite severely. Charles Dolan received the most severe injuries, being frightfully cooked around the neck and arms. Barton Curtis is in nearly as bad condition as Dolan, both legs and his right arm and right side being seriously scalded. Patrick Reynolds is badly scalded in the chest, arms and face. William Gorman was blistered in the back only, but the blisters were much deeper than some of the other burns.

Dickinson Loses His Petition

Boston, Nov. 14.—John W. Dickinson, a note broker of Newton, must stand trial jointly with George M. Foster, former cashier of the defunct South Danvers National bank, on the indictment accusing them of complicity in wrecking the bank. Judge Lowell has denied the motion made some time ago by counsel for Dickinson, for a separate trial on the ground that evidence would be submitted as against Foster, which would be incompetent as against Dickinson, but still would operate adversely to his interests if both men were tried together before a jury.

Rantoul Will Try It Again

Salem, Mass., Nov. 14.—Ex-Mayor Robert S. Rantoul has written a letter accepting the citizens' nomination for mayor to run against Mayor John H. Hurley. In the course of his letter ex-Mayor Rantoul says: "Clearly, the people of Salem are dissatisfied with the condition of their city affairs, and are determined to better them in the election in December. To do this it is by no means needful to change everything at the city hall, but a change in the chief magistracy seems to be essential.

State May Aid Defense

Barnstable, Mass., Nov. 14.—It is suggested in the Toppan case that the prisoner's counsel may ask the governor for the services of state police officers in preparing the defense. This is unusual, but Governor Benjamin F. Butler in 1883 created a precedent for it in the famous Amero-Carlton murder case at Watertown. In that case, as in this, the accused was without funds to meet the expense of preparing for trial.

Thirty States Represented

Lewiston, Me., Nov. 14.—About 30 states are represented by 50 delegates here at the session of the National grange, which was called to order by the national master, Aaron Jones. Jabel Robinson, worthy master of the Dominion of Canada grange, delivered a message of fraternal nature. At the public session yesterday in city hall National Master Jones delivered his annual address.

Borden Not Heaviest Buyer

Fall River, Mass., Nov. 14.—Since the first of June of this year about 7,000,000 pieces of all kinds of printing cloths have been sold in this city, and of that quantity M. C. D. Borden has purchased about one-fifth. The figures obtainable show that other printers have purchased as largely as he has, and one printer in particular has purchased more.

Shooting May Result Fatally

Boston, Nov. 14.—His alleged victim being in a dangerous condition and likely to die, Harry J. Wheeler, charged with assault with a loaded revolver upon John Edwards, was held yesterday in $2000 for further hearing Nov. 20. It is alleged that Wheeler shot Edwards in a barroom fight.

Murder Indictment Returned

Newport, N. H., Nov. 14.—The grand jury of Sullivan county yesterday returned an indictment for murder against George H. Briggs, who, it is alleged, shot and killed Mrs. Florence Jones at Langdon on Nov. 2.

Poisoned by Limburger

Bridgeport, Conn., Nov. 14.—There were six cases of poisoning from limburger cheese last night in the family of S. Feldman, one of which, a 2-year-old girl, may prove fatal.

Sleighing in New Hampshire

Littleton, N. H., Nov. 14.—After a steady snowfall for 15 hours, eight inches of snow, the first of the season, is on the ground here, and many sleighs are out.

LAUDANUM IN STOMACH

Rathbun Is Charged With Killing Goodman

TRANSFERRED TO INDIANA

War Department Turns Him Over to Officials of That State—Body of Supposed Goodman to Be Returned to Jeffersonville For Autopsy

Louisville, Nov. 14.—Newell C. Rathbun, who was arrested here on suspicion of having caused the death at Jeffersonville, Ind., of Charles Goodman, who was found dead in a hotel in that city, last Thursday, death having resulted, it is supposed, from laudanum poisoning, is in the Clark county, Ind., jail on a charge of murder.

Under instructions from the war department at Washington Rathbun, who is a deserter from the United States army, was turned over to the Indiana authorities last evening and taken across the river.

Other features of the case yesterday were the decision of the authorities to have the body of the supposed Goodman returned to Jeffersonville from Little Rock for an autopsy and identification, and the refusal of the local authorities to send Rathbun to Little Rock to testify at the coroner's inquest over the corpse which was shipped there.

A telegram has been received from the chief of police of Evansville, Ind., stating that Goodman was a resident of Cripple Creek, Col., where he was a brass worker. When asked for his opinion as to the claim made by Mrs. Rathbun that the corpse shipped to Little Rock was that of her husband, Rathbun laughed and remarked: "Maybe it is his corpse." This is all he would say on the subject.

Dr. Benson Doolittle, proprietor of a drug store in Jeffersonville close to the undertaking establisment of E. M. Coots & Sons, was in the morgue when the alleged discovery was made that Goodman's stomach contained laudanum. The fumes were unmistakeable, he insisted. Coroner Coots walken into the room and instantly said: "Laudanum. Open the windows and doors." Dr. Doolittle says he will swear laudanum was in Goodman's stomach in large quantity.

The Louisville police have begun sending all over the United States photographs and a description of Rathbun in an effort to positively identify him.

In the jail at Jeffersonville Rathbun was asked whether his wife at Little Rock was implicated in the plot to collect the insurance. After several moments' silence he replied: "No, there was nobody in it at Little Rock."

Little Rock, Nov. 14.—In order to establish the identity of the man under arrest at Louisville, said to be Newell C. Rathbun, Deputy Sheriff Chidester left yesterday afternoon for Louisville, acompanied by Emil T. Gloeckler, who knows Rathbun well. Coroner Young took testimony yesterday touching the indentity of the dead man whose body was sent here as that of Rathbun. Charles McKown, whose wife is a sister of Rathbun's wife, testified that he was well acquainted with Rathbun. He had looked at the body and he thought that it was undoubtedly that of Rathbun. Witness received the remains at the depot on Sunday morning and had them conveyed to his house. When the coffin was opened Rathbun's wife looked at the body and said: "That's my darling." The first intimation that witness had that anything was wrong was when Mrs. J. C. Watkins came to his house on Sunday, and after looking at the body, said it was not that of Rathbun.

Rathbun's wife did not appear before the coroner's jury yesterday in response to the summons served upon her.

Police Are Baffled

Evansville, Ind., Nov. 14.—All efforts of the entire police and detective forces of this city to find a clew to the murderer or murderers of the two women, whose corpses were found lying in ditches by the roadside in opposite directions from this city have proved unavailing. While it is evident that both victims were killed about the same hour Tuesday night, it is still believed the women were slain by the same person.

Plenty of Snow In Maine

Portland, Me., Nov. 14.—The first real snowstorm of the season struck Maine yesterday and the state is covered with a blanket of snow varying in thickness from two or three inches on the coast to nearly two feet in the back country. During a portion of the day the snow became moist and sticky, clinging and freezing as it fell, and as a result the telephone and telegraph wires suffered severely.

Jumped on a Ten Penny Nail.

The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake made of ten-penny nails, and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and a second one half way through. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes later the pain had disappeared and no more suffering was experienced. In three days the child was wearing her shoe as usual and with absolutely no discomfort. Mr. Powell is a well known merchant of Forkland, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and heals such injuries without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. For sale by all druggists.

England Intends to Pursue Wearing Down Process With Boers

London, Nov. 14.—War Secretary Brodrick, speaking last night at a banquet given here in his honor, declared that the Boers were hiding their tracks by murdering Kaffirs behind them.

"Lord Kitchener wired today," he continued, "that the cold-blooded murder of natives had become frequent of late and that two dead natives, their hands tied behind their backs, were found Nov. 10 at the bottom of a mine shaft."

Later in his speech Mr. Brodrick said Great Britain now had 42,000 Boers in custody in the concentration camps and on various islands and that 11,000 more had been killed or wounded or had left the country on parole. He added that he believed the number of Boers now in the field was about 10,000.

"The country has set its teeth and intends to go through the process of wearing down," he exclaimed. "We intend to provide Lord Kitchener with fresh troops to replace the tired ones. Only today a certain colony made an offer of help."

Mr. Brodrick said he was sorry anything had happened to affect the career of Sir Redvers Buller, and he assured the company that the deafness of Sir Evelyn Wood was not a bar to the work that officer had to do as commander of an army corps.

Silver Cups For Chaffeurs

New York, Nov. 14.—Preparations have been completed for the automobile speed contests and parade on Saturday. Eight events, under the rules and sanction of the Automobile Club of America, are on the schedule, and to the winner of each a silver cup will be presented. According to the entry list the following named automobilists will contest: W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Foxhall Keene, Fournier, Bostwick, C. J. Field, Tangeman, Champion, Henshaw, Hedstrom, Skinner, DeWitt, Marsh, Blair, Warren, Riker and Davis. No opportunity has thus far been offered for high speed, under official sanction, over a straightaway course; and for that reason the speed contests are of unusual interest.

United In One Company

Providence, Nov. 14.—A combination of all the ice concerns in and about this city was completed yesterday when articles of incorporation were filed with Secretary of State Bennett and the Providence Ice company, capitalized at $1,400,000, assumed control. The names of the incorporators are F. W. Smith of Boston, H. King of New York and William Tesdale of Bayonne, N. J. There are 10,000 shares of common stock at $100 a value, and 4000 shares of preferred, par value $100. Beginning Dec. 1, 1901, a yearly dividend of 7 percent is guaranteed on the preferred stock.

Train Robber Indicted

St. Louis, Nov. 14.—The November federal grand jury returned indictments yesterday against Harry Longbaugh, suspected of being the Montana train robber, and his companion, Laura Bullion. Each was indicted on 17 separate counts. The suspect was identified as the man who held up the train and blew open the express company's safe, from which nearly $100,000 in unsigned bills of the National bank of Helena were stolen.

Rescued From Great Peril

Orleans, Mass., Nov. 14.—The position of eight wreckers who were at work on the wreck of schooner John S. Parker became so perilous yesterday, owing to the high wind and sea, that the Orleans lifesaving crew was obliged to take them off the vessel. The men were forced into the rigging. Their predicament was seen from shore and after much difficulty they were landed by the lifesavers.

Indications of a Disaster

Philadelphia, Nov. 14.—Captain Ferlan of the Austrian tank steamer Etalka, which has arrived here from London, reports that between midnight and 1 a. m., Nov. 8, he saw a large fire about 50 miles distant. From its sudden appearance it looked as if an explosion had occurred. He steamed toward it, but it had disappeared before the steamer reached where it had been sighted.

Hasn't Answered Gompers

San Juan, P. R., Nov. 14.—Santiago Iglesias, who was sent to Porto Rico by the American Federation of Labor to organize the workingmen of the island and who was arrested on arriving here last week on a charge of conspiracy, has not yet answered the message from Mr. Gompers as to the cause of his detention.

No Ruhlin Money In Sight

San Francisco, Nov. 14.—While interest grows in the Jeffries-Ruhlin fight set for Friday, the odds are still 10 to 4 and no Ruhlin money is to be seen. Both the champion and the "Akron Giant" have practically ended their preparations for the contest.

American Working For Aguinaldo

Victoria, Nov. 14.—According to mail advices received from Manila by the Empress of China, Judge O'Neil, an American lawyer, is engaged in endeavoring to secure the release of Aguinaldo by habeas corpus proceedings.

Further Burden For Britishers

London, Nov. 14.—The chancellor of the exchequer, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, according to The Daily Express, contemplates the imposition of a further tax of ½ penny a pound upon sugar.

Good Afternoon.

The progress of American manufactures is due to their having received protection from foreign competition in the critical period of their establishment.

It is hoped that Justice Jerome will have reserved a sufficient portion of his energy to make New York too hot a place for the Tammany rascals, even for residence purposes.

Senator Hanna makes the eminently sensible suggestion that the McKinley Arch Association and the McKinley Memorial Association join forces and erect a suitable monument at Canton and later one in Washington.

It is predicted that the President's message will be so short that it will not be a penance to read it; that he will refer to the reports of the Cabinet ministers instead of summarizing them. If this be true he will save himself and the public much time, labor and obscuration. By all means let us have the change. It is better to live a policy than to declare one.

The editor desires to say, relative to the communication today of "Fair Play" and the reference to the Ledger, that it is not the purpose of the Ledger to misrepresent the political situation, or to antagonize any candidate for the Republican nomination. We frankly admit that Mr. Bryant is not our first choice for mayor, but if he is honestly nominated by the Republicans he will receive our hearty support.

It is now too late for those not upon the voting lists to become registered for the City election, as registration has closed. Those gentlemen who have scanned the columns of the Daily Ledger watching for dates on which they might register may be surprised, but it is up to the City Clerk to explain whether his aim is to disfranchise voters or run his office as a political machine for personal pique. It has always been customary to advertise the dates for registration in the Daily Ledger.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The expenditure of a quarter of a million dollars annually should call into the administration men of the best obtainable business sagacity, of experience in affairs, of prudent disposition, of fine and reliable character, of moral stamina, independence and integrity. An ideal administration, or government, is not possible, at least not on earth with an earthly citizenship and constituency, but the trend and tendency should be upward, toward the ideal, the practical ideal, for the ideal of which there is sometimes dream or vision as unattainable. Great interests are involved — our schools, our streets and highways, all those elements, enterprises and institutions of our home life and living which make for convenience, comfort, progress, safety and good repute. There is both opportunity and duty present, the opportunity to do better than we have, the duty to do our best. The interests of the state at large are safe. At least, they are settled, so to speak, but the legislation in which every interest of our home, the town and the conduct of its affairs are involved, and where there is demand for that igh patriotism which considers the good of all rather than the profit of the selfish few, is yet to be devised, considered, enacted. To what class and character of men shall the great and growing interests of our beautiful and beloved city of Pittsfield be intrusted? Shall greed, gain root, the private 'snap,' the personal advantage, waste, extravagance and 'grab' prevail, that cliques and rings may have places for their pets, or will the citizens, in caucus and conference and convention give their voice and their influence and their votes, not for spoils but for service.—Pittsfield Sun.

EVE OF CONVENTION.

Rumors of How the Victory Will be Won.

The air is full of rumors as to the outcome of the Republican Municipal convention tomorrow night, and there is much speculation as to who will carry the convention. During the past few days the current report has been that after the first ballot Mr. Packard will draw out and throw his strength to Mr. Jones.

Another rumor is that friends of Mr. Bryant, failing to secure for him the three coveted delegates, will endeavor to throw the nomination to Mayor Hall. It is currently reported about City Square this morning that after the convention has perfected its organization, that ex-Mayor Fairbanks or Councilman Freeman will move that Mayor Hall be nominated by acclamation.

Whether the effort would be successful is a question. Should it prevail, however, it would solve the present muddled condition of affairs, and heal the breach in the party that is now apparent.

OVER 4,500 VOTERS.

Registration Has Closed for the City Election.

Wednesday was the last day of registration for the municipal election and the Registrars of Voters were in session from 12 o'clock noon until 10 o'clock. They had little to do, however, as but 25 new names were added and 7 restored to the voting lists. The total number to be added and restored during the present registration was 134. The following table shows the number of voters on the lists by wards at the November election, the number added and the number now on the lists:

	State Election.	Added	Now
Ward One, Precinct 1,	402	9	411
Ward One, Precinct 2,	485	6	491

Massacre at Samar in the Philippines.

Lieutenant Bumpus Terribly Disfigured.

Capt. Connell Meets Even a Worse Fate.

Boston papers print the following dispatch from Victoria, B. C., which gives an authentic report of the massacre in the Philippines, and the killing of Lieut. Edward A. Bumpus of Quincy and others:

Among the arrivals by the steamer Empress of China from the Orient Nov. 12, was Lieut. F. P. Allison of the United States Navy who is on his way home from Manila. Speaking of the massacre of the members of the Ninth Infantry at Samar, he said that the natives had grown to like the colored troops who had been stationed there, and when the Ninth arrived it was thought by the American troops that the same friendly feeling would be shown to them and the guard was not as strictly kept as it otherwise would have been.

The night before the massacre the village Presidente came to Capt. Connell and before the Padre declared that it would take 100 more native laborers to do certain pioneer work. He did not have the men and begged the indulgence of the army Captain. Lieut. Allison continued:

"Honest and true in the legitimate discharge of his duty Capt. Connell said: "Do the best you can. Get any native who will work, but clear away the underbrush."

"Just after daybreak the natives with bolos to cut underbrush began coming into camp. Then the massacre began. The last underbrush man killed the sentry; the church bell rang; the soldiers went to breakfast below the floor that held their arms. The insurgents split; half went upstairs and shot down and the other half went into the mess room and murdered the unarmed soldiers by force of numbers.

"Not one of the survivors turned his back upon the scene of carnage until all was lost, their officers fallen, their comrades slaughtered and a terrible vengeance executed upon the enemy. Then they saved themselves and their wounded mates.

"Capt. Connell apparently was waked up in his quarters by the attackers pouring in. He was alone, so he jumped from the window down in among his guards, but they had all been slaughtered. He was struck down by many bolos almost as soon as he struck the ground.

"Not satisfied with killing him, the assassins hacked his body into inch bits, severing the head, upon which they piled paper and sticks of wood, setting them on fire to render the face unrecognizable. The body, however was identified by Lieut. Drouillard's detachment which came down from Basey.

"The bodies of Lieut. Bumpus and the doctor were found upon a bridge leading up to the quarters. The Lieutenant had a bolo cut horizontally across the forehead, almost severing the top of the head, and a deep gash down each side of the face so that when his body was picked up the face was practically severed from the rest of the head. The doctors body was not so badly mutilated.

"Separated from their weapons most of the rank and file fought like heroes with table knives, stones, clubs and such rude weapons as chance threw in their way. It was a bitter fate that befell those who closed with the Americans before they had received their death wounds. Some of the native dead were buried by their own crew before they fled, but Col. De Russey ordered 100 more to be thrown into a trench.

"A rifle in the hands of the First Sergeant of the company rendered a terrible account. The Sergeant, who is now in the Tocablan hospital, killed the faithless Presidente who led the attack. With six men he fought his way to the headquarters building to see if they could rescue or pick up a stricken comrade. Despite the mad rushes of the savages that surrounded them they were able to secure the post colors. Then they cut their way back to the beach, where another little knot of comrades were defending the Barotos and their wounded companions."

Lieut. Allison says there are 7,000 troops in Samar. He says there have been a number of filibustering expeditions fitted out at Sinapore and Hong Kong, mostly by Germans, which in some cases have succeeded in landing their contraband arms and ammunition, but many captures have been made by the gunboats.

CALLED BY DARKNESS

But at a Critical Point When Thayer Was Aggressive.

Thayer Academy was defeated by Dedham High school Wednesday afternoon on French's Common, South Braintree, in an unfinished game. Owing to the non-appearance of Thayer's league referee, Mr. Gallagher filled this position. When the game was called, Thayer had the ball on Dedham's ten-yard line with two and half minutes to play. As there were but two more minutes to play darkness would have interferred but little with the playing. To all appearances Dedham was afraid Thayer would either score and tie or beat. The Thayer boys however will make a protest which Dedham claims is useless, as Thayer did not have their league umpire. Captain Carr says, as Dedham did not protest against the umpire at first, their protest on the game is perfectly proper. The result of this dispute remains to be seen. Should Thayer have won this game they would have been tied for first place with Dedham and Hyde Park Highs. When the games between these teams is played off, the winner plays the champion of the northern division of the Junior league.

Delaney of Dedham kicked off to Thayer the first half. Arnold advanced the ball to Thayer's twenty-five yard line. Long gains by Remick and Carr soon enabled the latter team to reach their goal. After many gains through tackles and ends, the goal was reached, Carr scoring a touchdown. Remick failed to kick.

Again Delaney kicked off to Thayer. In about three minutes' play, the ball twice went over Thayer's outside line Dedham being penalized by forfeiting ball to Thayer.

Remick kicked off three times, the first was not counted as Thayer was off side, the second going out side. Now it was, that Dedham began ripping up the home team's line Thayer could not stop or break up their interference. On the end plays the ends were often pulled in back of the play when it was too late to prevent the gains. Dedham made two or three long gains and at last secured a touchdown, but failed to kick tieing the score.

In the first part of the second half Thayer lost all their spirit and could not hold Dedham who made many gains on punts. During this half Reilley stopped most plays around his end and Winslow's poor judgment at times also caused loss of yards. Repeated fumbling was laid up against him. He broke up many plays but did not put up his usual game. Platts, also, on the end distinguished himself at tackling. Dedham walked over Thayer this half until Thayer got the ball on the punt. They now showed that they were equal to the occassion at a critical moment, and when about seventy yards from the ball started their series of long runs which would have undoubtedly ended in a touchdown and goal and victory for Thayer had not time been called for darkness.

Punjab Bazaar.

The first night of the Punjab Bazaar, being held in the Atlantic Music Hall, under the auspices of the Ladies' Benevolent Society of the Memorial Congregational church, was a great success. The decorations were unique and extremely effective; the lavish display of beautiful oriental hangings was in itself well worth the admission price. An excellent entertainment was furby Mr. Koch, impersonator, and Mr. Williams, baritone soloist. The latter gentleman has just made a successful entrance upon vaudeville work at the Boston Music hall.

TODAY'S COURT.

Edward Sullivan was arrainged for drunkenness at Braintree. Case continued until Dec. 14.

"Last winter an infant child of mine had croup in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist, of Filley, Mo. "I gave her a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and in a short time all danger was past and the child recovered." This remedy not only cures croup but when given as soon as the first symptoms appear, will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

—Stenography will be introduced into the Dedham High school.

BLOW TO HINGHAM

Fire at Col. H. G. Jordan's Dairy Farm.

135 Cattle and 7 Horses Burned.

Loss Estimated at $75,000: Cause, Incendiary.

The biggest fire on the South Shore for several years was at Hingham last night when the large farm buildings on the fine farm of Col. Harry G. Jordan at Hingham Centre, were destroyed, causing a loss of $75,000.

The fire started in the cattle barn about 9.30 o'clock. Mr. Jordan and his superintendent, Louis P. Young, were in the farmhouse looking over their accounts at that time. When they came out of the farmhouse they saw the cattle barn in flames and saw a man running away from the building.

Mr Jordon immediately telephoned to the chief of the Hingham fire department, notifing him of the fire, and a general alarm was sounded, calling out the entire fire department.

The building in which the fire started was 100 by 85 feet and two stories in height, and in it were 135 head of cattle. The fire spread so rapidly that it was impossible to save any stock in this building. The fire then spread to the horse barn, a building 40 by 50 feet and two stories in height. In this barn were 27 horses, 20 of which were saved.

The buildings were a total loss, also two silos which were filled with 325 tons of ensilage.

In addition to the loss of the buildings there were burned three carloads of grain and 100 tons of hay, with farm carts, tools and other farming implements. About 20 minutes after the fire was discovered in the cattle barn a false alarm was turned in from box 32, which is located about 1 3-4 miles from the fire. As the man who was seen running from the Jordan premises was going in the direction of this box, it is supposed that this alarm was pulled in to interfere with the firemen and prevent them from responding quickly to the Jordan fire.

The total loss on the building, stock and contents is estimated to be about $75,000, upon which there is very little insurance. As the farm was off the line of hydrants, no hose could be used, and the flames were fought with buckets. Hand engine 4 the old Constitution, did excellent service. Mr. Jordan stated that he knew of no one who could have any motive for burning his property. The farm has been owned by Mr. Jordan for eight years, and the live stock was of the best, every animal being valuable.

Fines Increased.

Judge Avery of the district court has struck a good blow against drunkenness which is having its effect in Quincy. During Judge Humphrey's reign it was seldom a man convicted of drunkenness received more than a $5 fine for the first offence within a year, and $7 for the second offence, and in some cases if the guilty party did not have $5 he was let off with $3. Then, when a man pleaded guilty, that settled it, and the fine was imposed without any hearing.

Judge Avery however wants to know, and rightly, the facts in every case, and even when a man pleads guilty to drunkenness the arresting officer is asked for the facts of the case. Then His Honor fixes the fine and the amount is according to the circumstances. On several occasions the prisoner who is arrested for the first time within a year for drunkenness has almost had his breath taken away by a fine of $15. It causes him to do great deal of hard thinking, and he figures out in his mind and wonders if the fine in the first offence is $15 what the amount in case of a second conviction will be. The result is that the man who goes through the mill once is very careful not to be caught again.

WANTS FAIR PLAY.

A Correspondent Claims Misrepresentation Against Mr. Bryant.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

A good fighter is admired the world over. Fair play, no misrepresentation or intimidation. In this free country of ours you seldom have to ask more than once for fair play. Now the writer of this does not always agree with Mr. Charles M. Bryant, but he wants to say right here that he believes there is a tendency in certain quarters not to give Mr. Bryant elbow room for his fight. The talk in the Daily Ledger about anti-Bryant delegations and popular majorities anti-Bryant in the Republican caucuses is, to say the least, a little misleading. You might just as well say that all the votes not pledged to Mr. Jones are anti-Jones, those not pledged to Mr. Jameson, anti-Jameson, and those not pledged to Mr. Packard anti-Packard, as to claim those not pledged to Mr. Bryant are anti Bryant.

Everybody knows that Ward 6 with its 575 voters, and strongly Republican, had only 40 persons attend the caucus because there was no opposition, the ward being for Bryant. If popular majorities counted, what would have become of the Ledger's majority of 141 for Messrs. Jameson, Jones, Packard and Hall with Ward 6 voting its full strength for Bryant?

The writer never heard that it was necessary for a candidate to get a majority of votes cast in all the caucuses, particularly with four candidates in the field. But if it was a question of plurality, with Messrs. Jameson, Jones and Packard each being voted for separately in every ward of the city, it would not take you long to figure out the result in favor of Mr. Bryant.

In Ward 6, other than Bryant, all the candidates together did not have strength enough between them to file a delegation.

In Ward 5 a local man, who is out to satisfy a grudge, was put up against Mr. Bryant and was defeated by over 60 votes.

In Ward 4, where Mr. Packard singly opposed Mr. Bryant, and which was the only ward in the city, save Ward 6, where either a favorite son or a combination was not put up against Mr. Bryant's delegates, Mr. Bryant won out by a handsome majority.

In Ward 3 the issue was simply Mr. Jones or Mr. Bryant and Mr. Jones in a fair fight beat Mr. Bryant.

In Ward 2 Messrs. Jones, Jameson and Packard combined, and found it necessary to do this in order to elect any one of their delegates. None of the gentlemen were willing to file a delegation pledged to themselves individually. Had that been done, there is no question but what Mr. Bryant's delegation would have received more votes than either of the others.

In Ward 1, which is Mr. Packard's home ward, he made a good fight and beat Mr. Bryant fairly. The delegates, however, were pledged to the ward's favorite son, Elisha Packard, and it was found that a majority of the party in that ward preferred Mr. Packard to Mr. Bryant. Considering that it was the home ward of Mr. Packard, this is not surprising. It is well known that many persons voted for Mr. Packard because they preferred him to Mr. Bryant, but simply because they did so, it does not follow that they prefer either Mr. Jameson, Mr. Hall or Mr. Jones to Mr. Bryant, or that they are all anti-Bryant.

Because the voters of Ward 1, who had local pride, preferred Mr. Packard to Mr. Bryant, and because the voters of Ward 3 for the same reason preferred Mr. Jones to Mr. Bryant does not make it clear that the voters of Ward 3 would prefer Mr. Packard to Mr. Bryant, or the voters of Ward 1 would prefer Mr. Jones to Mr. Bryant, or that they would prefer anybody to Mr. Bryant. The only way to determine that would have been to have had delegations in every ward of the city filed by gentlemen whose names were put before the convention and given the voters of those wards an opportunity to have made their selection.

Sometime ago the Ledger very properly said that where a person was a candidate for a nomination and his name was to be placed before a convention, the voters of every ward in the city should have an opportunity to pass upon his candidacy; in other words, that every candidate seeking a nomination by delegates in a convention should have the courage to file delegations in every ward of the city, and give the voters a chance to choose from among them all, and not depend upon trades in the convention to secure a nomination.

It has been shown that there are in the city 1,053 Republicans who were willing to go to the caucuses on caucus night and ask for the nomination of Charles M. Bryant. It has not been shown how many Republicans there were in the city who were willing to do the same for Mr. Packard, Mr. Jones, Mr. Jameson, Mr. Hall, or any other Republican, because they were not given an opportunity to do so throughout the city. Mr. Bryant won two wards outside his own, having one half the wards in the city. Two of the three wards which he lost, he lost to local favorites, which was something to be expected.

In view of all these facts, the writer believes that Mr. Bryant has shown himself by far the most popular man seeking the nomination in the Republican party. A man who can roll up a popular vote in the Republican caucuses of the city over a thousand in three hours is the man the people want. Don't let the personal spite of a few, or the gratification of revenge on the part of some, prevent the nomination of a man who has given eight years of his time to the city in the City Council and who has all the qualifications for a first class Mayor. Fair Play.

Johnson for Councilman.

It would not be Ward Three unless a contest of some kind was on. At the Jones meeting held some weeks ago it was decided that if the nomination failed to go to Mr. Jones that Councilman McLennan should be nominated as Councilman-at Large. Last week Councilman McLennan decided that he had enough and would not take the nomination. Then Councilman W. T Spargo who was defeated for the Ward nomination thought he would try to get the nomination at large, and for a few days it looked as though he would have no opposition. Now, however, it is announced that he will have a rival and that if Mr. Jones does not take the nomination into his camp that the name of Julius Johnson will be presented as Councilman at large. Mr. Johnson is one of Quincy's well-known business men. He is a builder by occupation and during the past few years has erected many houses in Quincy, more particularly on Cranch hill and at Quincy Point. It is said that Mr. Johnson will have the backing of the anti-Bryant delegates at the convention.

Woman's Teck.

Before another eight months has passed Boston's new educational institution backed by $2,500,000, will be well under way, says the Boston Advertiser.

The "Simmons Female College" in which title, by the way, the word "Female" will be dropped except in official phraseology) has a site and a beginning. It almost has a president.

The incorporators placed in the hands of one man the selection of that site, and the organization of the college, stipulating only that the site should be "in or near Boston."

The college will be dedicated, it is expected, in the autumn of 1902, and its scope, which has been agreed upon in a rough way, will be such that to describe it as a "Woman's Teck" will be popular. The trustees have been in session at various times for six months.

The founding of this college "for the purpose of teaching medicine, music, drawing, designing, telegraphy and other branches of art, science and industry best calculated to enable the scholars to acquire an independent livelihood," was provided for by the will of John Simmons, who died in 1875.

To the Public.

Allow me to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I had a very severe cough and cold and feared I would get pneumonia, but after taking the second dose of this medicine I felt better, three bottles of it cured my cold, and the pains in my chest disappeared entirely. I am most respectfully yours for health, Ralph S. Meyers, 64 Thirty-seventh street, Wheeling, W. Va. For sale by al druggists.

THE ISSUE CLEAR.

It Was Anti-Bryant Against Bryant in Five Wards.

Editors of the Quincy Ledger:

The last place where Mr. Bryant should look for votes, now that the delegates have been elected, is in Ward Two. In no other ward was the issue as clearly drawn as in the Quincy Point ward; it was a Bryant list against an anti-Bryant list. The voters could take their choice, and by an overwhelming vote of 201 to 140 they selected the anti-Bryant delegates. The duty of all those delegates seems clear. Regardless of their preferences—first choice, second choice or third choice—they should faithfully represent their constituents and vote against Mr. Bryant on every ballot.

The issue in Wards One, Three, Four and Five was almost as clear as in Ward Two—for or against Charles M. Bryant; any man to beat Mr. Bryant and the city decided by a vote of 1194 to 1053 that they did not want the gentleman in the Mayoralty chair.

This vote in itself was convincing enough, but had only Republicans voted, and they allowed to vote as they wished, the totals would have been over 1300 against Mr. Bryant to 600 or 700 in his favor. In other words, about two-thirds of the Republicans seem to be against nominating Mr. Bryant as their candidate.

I have prepared a summary of the Republican vote in each ward for Governor Crane, and the total vote at the Republican caucuses the next day. After some allowance for an increased Republican vote, I find upon estimate that perhaps 400 Democrats voted at the Republican caucuses. Here are the figures:

	Nov. 5 for Gov. Crane.	Nov. 6 at Republican Caucus.	Democrats to Vote.
Ward One,	452	570	100
Ward Two,	252	353	75
Ward Three,	367	502	160
Ward Four,	238	375	100
Ward Five,	401	503	25
Ward Six,	233	45	00
	1,943	2,348	460

Surprise Party.

A party of friends to the number of about seventy-five, called at the residence of Mrs. Rebecca McLellan on Payne street last Saturday evening and agreeably surprised her. The evening was spent with songs and readings. Dancing was also indulged in.

Mr. Dan McCarthy gave some splendid readings, among which was a burlesque sermon on "Old Mother Hubbard," which practically took the house by storm. Mr. William Lillie also sang some Scottish ballads in a sweet tenor voice, and was well received. Among the rest of the artists were Messrs. William A. Kelley, David Smith, A and F. Spargo, A. Pirie and William Kelley. Also Mrs. C. McKenzie, Mrs. C. Dunbar and Mrs. A. Pirie, Mrs. and Mrs. William Norrie also sung some duets in an able manner. Mr. Albert Spargo accompanying on the piano, and of course we will mention last, though not by any means least, our illustrious friend and hostess, Mrs. R. McLellan. During the evening, on behalf of her friends, Mrs. William B. Norrie presented her with a handsome dinner set of one hundred and sixty pieces. Mrs. McLellan suitably replied.

Refreshments were served, followed by ice cream, fruit and confections. All who were there, enjoyed themselves immensely, in fact the press representative was so dazzled by the splendor of the occasion, that he is only "getting around" at this hour to give in his report.

Hospital Collections.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

The following is a revised list to date of the contributions of the several Wards to the Hospital:

	Collections.	Churches.
Ward One,	$1,133.33	$315.00
Ward Two,	194.64	50.47
Ward Three,	628.35	22.31
Ward Four,	571.45
Ward Five,	401.45	128.28
Ward Six,	217.75	25.03
Total collections,	$3,146.99	$541.02
From non-residents,		$40.00
Total amount received,		$3,728.01

H. M. Faxon, Treasurer.

Secretary Reed writes: In the name of the Trustees I wish to heartily thank all persons who contributed for the benefit of the hospital. I also wish to thank each and every one of the collectors for their willing support and prompt work.

LABOR MEN AT ODDS

Printers Withdraw From Kentucky Federation of Labor

THEY ENDORSED SENTIMENT

Expressed by Colonel Breckinridge and Which Was Not Quite Acceptable to Radicals, Though Couched In Courteous Language

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 14.—After a turbulent meeting yesterday the Kentucky Federation of Labor adopted resolutions which denounce ex-Congressman Breckenridge for sentiments expressed, expel F. C. Leaming, vice president of the federation and president of the local typographical union, who arranged the meeting and presided, from the federation and convention, and call another meeting, at which the views of the dissatisfied delegates may be expressed publicly.

Colonel Breckinridge's speech was considered courteous and in the vein of a supplemental welcome to that of the mayor. He said that he was the friend of labor organizations and that he heartily favored the organization of labor, but he thought its battles should be fought with reason and not with force and the day of strikes was over, citing and criticizing the big steel strike at the same time. He said further that he did not believe it conducive to the best interests of labor, but unjust for unions, to demand that only such men as they chose be employed by employers, and only union men be allowed to work. This expression of opinion was not pleasing to a number of the delegates and several wanted to make speeches when Colonel Breckinridge had concluded.

Chairman Leaming announced that the program was concluded and declared the meeting adjourned.

Agitation of the grievance yesterday led the dissatisfied delegates to declare that organized labor had been insulted and deprived of an opportunity to defend itself. At the meeting of the Blue Grass Typographical union last night, resolutions were adopted withdrawing from the Kentucky Federation of Labor. All arrangements made by President Leaming were approved and his acts as well. The resolutions accord to Colonel Breckenridge the right to hold and to express his opinions, though they declare it is not necessary for labor to endorse his position, if it does not coincide with labor opinions; they declare to the people "that the brand of unionism exhibited by the Federation of Labor in its action today is not that to which Lexington unions are accustomed, nor the kind they attempt to propagate;" and finally, since the federation has seen fit to criticize the entertainment and the welcome accorded, the delegates are bidden a courteous farewell.

President McGill of the Kentucky federation was present and in a speech disapproved of and lamented the action of the convention and said he had done all in his power to stay such action.

Labor leaders predict that the day's events will result in the disruption of the Federation of Labor in Kentucky.

In an interview last night relative to the resolutions, Colonel Breckenridge disclaimed any intention of offending the federation, presuming it believed in free speech and would courteously hear the opinions expressed, even if different from those of the delegates. He said he had no change to make in his statement.

Turkey Settles Another Bill

Vienna, Nov. 14.—The numerous grievances of Austria-Hungary against Turkey have been settled by the agreement of the porte to pay 90,000 francs to the Armenian victims and by adjustment of the wrongs arising from eight other matters of dispute. It was the purpose of Austria-Hungary to adopt effective measures had the porte not yielded.

Milk Not Up to Standard

Dorchester, Mass., Nov. 14.—Three milk dealers were found guilty in the Dorchester court yesterday of having for sale milk not up to the standard required by law. Harley L. Hutchins, a dealer, living on Green Lodge street, Dedham, was fined $50, this being his second offense. William H. Whittaker, a grocer, at 1845 Dorchester avenue, Ashmont, was fined $25, and George Wicks, the proprietor of a waiting room at 1200 Adams street, Milton Lower Mills, was obliged to pay $15.

Light From Over-Ripe Meat

Providence Nov. 14.—Professor Gorham of Brown university has succeeded in extracting from a decayed porterhouse steak sufficient light to enable him to take photographs of laboratory apparatus. Professor Graham is seeking to find an artificial light in which the element of heat is not contained and believes he is on the road to definite results.

Railroads In Transfer Business

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Railroads are hereafter to control the transfer of passengers and baggage to and from all the stations in Chicago. A syndicate of railroad men has acquired all the property and goodwill of the Frank Parmelee company, which has for years conducted this business.

Guaranty Company Asked to Settle

Baltimore, Nov. 14.—Martin C. Fosnes, director general of posts of Cuba, brought suit here yesterday against the United States Fidelity and Guarantee company of Maryland, which, he says, bonded C. F. W. Neely in the sum of $5000. Mr. Fosnes claims that amount of damages.

PORTO RICO NEEDS MONEY

To Help Along Its Educational and Agricultural Endeavors

Washington, Nov. 14.—A delegation of Porto Ricans in close sympathy with Governor Hunt and the American administration saw the president yesterday regarding the especial needs of that island. They represent various commercial interests there and included a member of the executive council and the house of delegates. They say first that American education is making great headway, but that heavily as the Porto Ricans are taxed to sustain it, only one-sixth of the children now enjoy its advantages. The only way to grapple with the educational problem they say is for congress to appropriate $250,000 a year for a term of 10 years to cover the transition period. These delegates also ask for a high-class naval station at San Juan. Agriculturally, they say that the island has been neglected, and they want a well equipped experiment station established and $50,000 a year for a term of years appropriated for its maintenance from the national treasury on account of the benefits to general American agriculture to be derived from its investigations.

Discussed Water Question

Boston, Nov. 14.—A well attended monthly meeting of the New England Water Works association took place yesterday in this city. In the morning there was a session of the executive committee at headquarters of the association in the Tremont Temple building. At 1 p. m. luncheon was served at Young's hotel. During the afternoon the following papers were presented: "Pollution of streams by manufactural wastes—methods of prevention," by H. W. Clark of Boston, chemist of the Massachusetts State Board of Health; and "Water supplies of the state of Vermont," by Charles P. Moat of Burlington, Vt., chemist of the Vermont state laboratory of hygiene.

Klondike to Have a Railway

Victoria, B. C., Nov. 14.—The proposed railway from Dawson to the Klondike mines will be built next summer. This line will probably extend up Bonanza creek with branches up the several gold producing creeks. The object of the promoters will be to extend the line at a very early day as far as Stewart river and ultimately to the mouth of the Pelly.

Advance of Twenty Percent

New York, Nov. 14.—An advance of 20 percent in the prices of leather belting was agreed upon yesterday by the Leather Belting Manufacturers' association at its 15th annual meeting, which was held at the Astor house. The advance is due, it is stated, to higher prices for the raw material.

Umilian's Life Prolonged

Boston, Nov. 14.—A respite until Dec. 29 was granted to Francieszek Umilian of Northampton by Governor Crane yesterday. Umilian is under sentence of death for killing a fellow countryman and the execution was fixed for the week ending Nov. 16.

Surprised Insurgent Camp

Manila, Nov. 14.—Captain Hartman's troop of the first cavalry early yesterday morning surprised 400 insurgents at Buan, killing 16 of them, wounding 5 and capturing 9 rifles. The insurgents broke and ran, the cavalry pursuing them.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Friday, Nov. 15.
Sun rises—6:35; sets—4:23.
Moon sets—7:58 p. m.
High water—10:30 a. m.; 11 p. m.

The storm has remained in the vicinity of the New England coast with steadily increasing intensity and at Eastport, Me., the barometer fell to the abnormally low reading of 28.92 inches. There has been rain and snow, mostly snow, from the lower yakes eastward to the Atlantic coast. There will be snow in New England, followed by clearing weather. On the coast there will be northwesterly gales, diminishing tonight.

CRASH!!

Goes the crockery and the waitress will probably be called clumsy and careless. Her plea of sudden dizziness is not allowed. "What right has she to be dizzy?" they ask. Women who are suffering from diseases peculiarly feminine are liable to sudden dizziness and faintness, and it is only by curing the womanly diseases to which they are subject that dizziness and other ills can be entirely relieved.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well. It cures irregularity, dries disagreeable, weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness. When these conditions are cured, backache, headache, dizziness, etc., are also cured.

"I suffered for twelve years with female trouble," writes Mrs. Milton Grimes, of Adair, Adair Co., Iowa, "which brought on other diseases—heart trouble, Bright's disease, and at times would be nearly paralyzed. Had neuralgia of stomach. I can freely say your medicines (nine bottles in all, five of 'Favorite Prescription,' four of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and two vials of Dr. Pierce's Pellets), have cured me. I can work with comfort now, but before I would be tired all the time and have a dizzy headache, and my nerves would be all unstrung so I could not sleep. Now I can sleep and do a big day's work, something I had not done for over eleven years before."

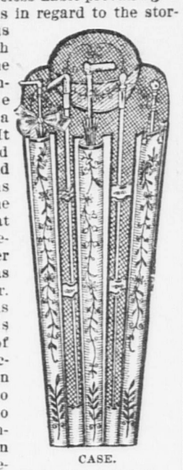

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the most desirable laxative for delicate women.

AN UMBRELLA CASE.

A Convenience In Every Household and Therefore a Welcome Present.

Any busy person who has suffered through the careless habit prevailing in most households in regard to the storing of umbrellas will receive with appreciation the beautiful umbrella case sketched as a holiday gift. It is made to hold umbrellas and canes and is as useful when one is traveling as at home. The material of the cover is stout canvas in string color. The inside has three pockets and two sets of straps to accommodate an umbrella, two parasols and two canes. The canvas is worked in loose scroll design with red silk. Each case is cut longer than an umbrella handle, and the corners are scalloped. There are rings by which the holder may be hung up, and there are two ribbons long enough to tie around the case when it is desired to fold it up for convenience in traveling or packing. Khaki may be substituted for canvas and many pretty effects be evolved in this trifle.

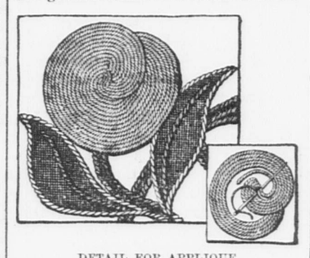

FANCY UMBRELLA CASE.

APPLIQUED PILLOW.

Apricots and Plums Represented on Neutral Tinted Silk.

A novel appliqued pillow is illustrated here. It is a cushion any housewife will be proud to receive as a Yuletide gift. The actual labor of making it is not nearly so great as would appear. The groundwork is a soft silk of a neutral tint, so that the handwork will show to the best advantage. All sofa pillows are now made just eighteen inches square, but some look larger, as the ruffle adds to the apparent size. The upper part of the surface only is decorated. The appliqued leaves used in decorating are cut from dull canvas, such as is used for cross stitch embroidery. But before the leaves are cut out the pattern is marked with red chalk and the cord tacked on to them. The spray is cut out carefully to extend a trifle beyond the edge of the cord, so that when it is sewed down to the silk the edge can be turned under and no raveled edges will show. The leaves are first cut and sewed to the silk, and then the fruit is added. Leaves and stems are simply outlined with the cord, but the fruit is worked solidly with apricot and plum colored silk. The design itself is intended to represent apricots and plums. The leaves after the fruit is decorated are touched up with green paint, not much more than a stain, but still enough to show that they are to be regarded as real leaves. When the paint is dry, the pillow can be filled and fastened. It is a very rich and handsome article when done.

Christmas Gifts For Women.

A pair of silver or glass candlesticks with rose colored shades will please the woman who takes pride in her pretty apartment. Equally suitable will be a square of silk or embroidered goods for a sofa cushion.

Hatpins are always acceptable to a woman. The dull gold beads set with small colored stones are pretty, and the large pearl beads are novel.

Buckles of gun metal set with emeralds or amethysts are very beautiful and will bring delight to the heart of any woman who loves pretty things.

A pair of steel, gold or silver slipper buckles make a pretty present. A band of satin in black or the recipient's favorite color should be attached.

An opera bag is a good present for the theater going girl. The newest and handsomest are made of wide gold ribbon spangled with gold or embroidered with beads. Others are of silk in gayly flowered Dresden or rich Persian design.

How to Make a Veil Case.

A pretty and useful Christmas gift is a veil case, the cover of which is fine white or colored linen, embroidered with dainty sprays of violets and bearing the following verse:

Within this dainty little case
Are filmy veils for thy dear face.

The lining is of lavender china silk, and the edge is finished with a cascade frill of chiffon.

Comrades.

A touching story of two friends is told by Rime Beatty-Kingston in his "Journalist's Jottings." They were two officers in the English army who quarreled about some trifle and, although they had been the closest of comrades, became in consequence entirely estranged. The fact of their separation was extremely bitter to both of them, and one Christmas day one of them received from the other a card bearing a dove with an olive branch.

The recipient kept the message by him for a twelvemonth and on the following Christmas sent it back to his fellow officer, who in turn laid it aside for a year and then dispatched it on the next anniversary.

Through three successive decades, at each Christmastide, the mute messenger was regularly sent in token of continued friendship until a year came when it was forgotten because the present possessor was too harassed by financial losses to remember it. In the course of the Christmas week, however, his wife came upon the card and sent it off to her husband's friend with a newspaper cutting referring to her husband's bankruptcy. The returning post brought her a letter, inclosing £1,000, and explaining that the sender had just come into a fortune and that in return for this trifling sum, intended for his old friend's rescue, he should keep the Christmas card as his most precious possession.

The Stalker Stalked.

The hunter in pursuit of big game must be prepared for the unexpected. Mr. Horace A. Vachell in "Life and Sport on the Pacific Slope" relates the experience of a friend of his, a man for whose veracity he vouches:

My friend was after bear and was accompanied by an Indian guide whom he always took with him on such trips. One morning they sighted a large wapiti, which they wounded.

The Indian took the trail, but the hunter, knowing the habits of wounded deer, took a short cut across some hills, hoping to get another shot at the wapiti as it crossed a certain divide. He reached the divide and climbed a tree for a wider outlook.

Presently the wapiti came slowly up the steep slope; the Indian followed, knife in hand, and then behind the Indian, not forty yards intervening, waddled a huge bear. So intent was the Indian upon his quarry that he was unaware that he, in his turn, was being tracked till a bullet whistled past his head from the hunter's rifle and laid the bear low.

That was a surprised Indian!

Shoemaker's Unique Bill.

Many are the stories told of people who have charged high prices for "knowing how" to do various kinds of work, but it remained for an old cobbler in a Massachusetts town to add a hitherto unconsidered item to his bill.

He was clever at his trade, but as the years went by he showed a growing distaste for steady work and was irritated beyond measure if any one tried to hurry him over it.

An insistent customer who, unmindful of past favors, had drawn the cobbler away from his peaceful contemplation of sky and field from his doorway to patch a boot for her found her footwear on the porch when she returned from a walk that evening.

It was wrapped in a newspaper, and in the boot she discovered a piece of paper on which was scrawled this remarkable bill:

Miss Ann to J. Briggs, Dr.:

One patch	$0 15
Pester	10
Total	$0 25

—Youth's Companion.

The Streets of Adelaide.

The streets of Adelaide, Australia, are laid out as regularly as those of Washington or Philadelphia. They run due north and south and due east and west. The danger of rectilineal stiffness is avoided by the skillful interposition of squares and gardens. King William street is 132 feet wide and has some magnificent buildings of white freestone taken out of quarries fifteen miles from the city.

But most beautiful of all is North terrace, with its museum, its art gallery—the best in Australia—its library, its School of Mines and its botanical gardens. The gardens cover more than a hundred acres and are an inexhaustible delight and instruction. Under wide spreading trees, many of them introduced from the old country, are dazzling flower beds and leafy walks. There are rosaries, too, and palmhouses and museums of economic botany that would do credit to Kew itself.

War Humor.

One of the first fruits of the victory at Waterloo was to cover the lords of England with honors and decorations and the people with taxes. Great distress followed, and riots were frequent. In the year of the reform bill a mob broke into Downing street, says a writer in Temple Bar, and approached the sentry stationed at the door of the foreign office, crying:

"Liberty or death!"

The sentry lowered his musket. "My lads," said he, "I know nothing about liberty, but if you come a step farther I'll show you what death is!"

There were "iron" soldiers as well as an "iron duke" in those troubled days, and humor was a trifle grim and harsh.

Wily Talleyrand.

Louis XVIII., complimenting Talleyrand one day upon his abilities, asked him how he had contrived first to overturn the directory and finally Bonaparte.

The wily diplomat replied, with charming simplicity: "Really, sire, I have had nothing to do with this. There is something inexplicable about me which brings ill luck on the governments that neglect me."

DISCUSSION OF TARIFF

Will Prevail Throughout Coming Session of Congress

PRESENT SYSTEM IS UNJUST

In the Opinion of Senator Morgan, Who Declares That Reciprocity Is but a Subterfuge to Keep Attention Away From Important Question

Washington, Nov. 15.—The first real note of warning from the south as to the tariff program of the Republicans in the 57th congress is sounded by Senator Morgan of Alabama.

"From the beginning until the end of the coming session of congress," Senator Morgan declared, "the principal thing that the people will hear will be the tariff.

"The Republicans are in a very uncomfortable position in regard to the tariff," continued the senator, "and are beginning to realize it. A great reaction against the present tariff system is being experienced, and the work of the promoters of the present law is beginning to recoil upon them. The people are beginning to appreciate how little advantage they derive from the high protective tariff enacted, not for their benefit, but for the benefit of the big manufacturers.

"Reciprocity is nothing but a subterfuge, and the talk of reducing the internal revenue tax is only for the purpose of drawing attention away from the tariff, while the policy of here and there knocking a hole in the protective tariff can accomplish but little good and affords but small relief. Only certain classes can be benefited by reciprocity treaties; the people at large will derive no value from them. Like the tariff schedules, they are negotiated to benefit certain interests. If I were to favor any reciprocity treaty I would favor that with France, because it is asserted that it would benefit certain interests in the south, and there you see it is legislation in the interest of certain classes. The whole people would not benefit by it. There never was and there never will be a just tariff law.

"The Democratic party seeks to have as just and equitable taxation laws as it is possible under the circumstances to frame. The best method of taxation is that in which every man pays in proportion to his ability to pay. Such a tax is the income tax. It is not our own country, but other countries which find it impossible to enact just tariff laws.

"The talk of reducing the internal revenue tax is but another subterfuge for the purpose of drawing fire away from the high protective tariff. Yes, there will be tariff talk from now until next election time. The Republicans do not dare to go before the country and defend the present conditions, so they are going to try and slide over the whole matter as easily as they can. The Democrats cannot be expected to help them out of their dilemma. They will more likely obstruct them in their efforts to cover up these conditions in order that they may expose them and the injustice of the present tariff law before the people."

Representative Long of Kansas, who is a member of the ways and means committee of the house, was one of President Roosevelt's callers yesterday. He joins with his eastern colleagues on the committee in opposing a revision of the tariff. He believes that any attempt to lower the duties on particular schedules would lead to a general revision of the tariff and this, he says, his constituents do not favor. He says, however, there is a strong sentiment in his section in favor of reciprocity.

Glazed Coffee Not Adulterated

Toledo, Nov. 15.—Judge Pugsley yesterday handed down a decision in the now famous case in which a local grocer was arrested at the instance of the state pure food commissioner on the ground that he was selling a certain brand of glazed coffee, the commissioner claiming that the glazing was a violation of the pure food laws. In a lower court the commissioner won, but Judge Pugsley reversed the decision and administered a rebuke to the lower court.

Nearly Two Hundred Drowned

London, Nov. 15.—It is still impossible to estimate with any exactness the total loss of life and property resulting from the protracted gale. Tons of wreckage of unidentified vessels are still being thrown up. Altogether it is known that some 50 vessels have been wrecked along the British coasts, involving, it is believed, a loss of more than 180 drowned. The Yarmouth life boat disaster alone leaves 44 fatherless children.

Burglar Laid Out

Carlisle, Pa., Nov. 15.—At Hunters' Run Wednesday night, Charles Tate colored, a burglar, was shot and instantly killed while breaking into the house of James A. Miller by the latter's son. The coroner's jury yesterday rendered a verdict of justifiable homicide.

ARGUMENT ENDED

Ex-Governors Hill and Black Held Forth In the Molineux Case

New York, Nov. 15.—Two former governors of New York, David B. Hill and Frank S. Black, met in argument yesterday before Judge Newburger, in the court of general sessions, on the motion to quash the indictments charging Roland B. Molineux with the murder by poison of Mrs. Katherine J. Adams. Molineux was once convicted and sentenced to death, but the court of appeals gave him a new trial for error on the part of the trial court. Former Governor Black opened the argument. He first discussed the power of the court to entertain the motion and quoted a number of authorities to show that it had the power to do so. Mr. Black explained that the motion of the defendant was either to dismiss the indictment, or give the defendant permission to examine the minutes of the grand jury and allow the proposition to dismiss to stand pending the result of the examination of the minutes. He asserted that no legal evidence had been presented to the grand jury and said that Molineux had been sentenced to death on expert testimony.

Mr. Hill asserted that the motion was a dilatory one and that a new trial having been ordered it should be proceeded with.

During his argument it was contended by Mr. Hill that the court of appeals, after the decision granting Molineux a new trial, had revised its original opinion, making several excisions in the text.

"In the first opinion of the court of appeals, which Justice Werner wrote," said Mr. Hill, "it was held that forgery could not be proved as a motive for murder. When the court saw the blunder this was stricken out. Justice Werner confused the Barnet letters (those signed by H. C. Barnet) with the Barnet evidence. In the first opinion the ruling was: 'The Barnet letters should not have been received for any purpose.' In the revised opinion this was stricken out."

Argument of the case was concluded late in the afternoon. Mr. Hill submitted his brief and Mr. Black was given one week within which to submit his brief. It is not known when the motion will be decided.

As to Sunday Opening of Saloons

New York, Nov. 15.—As a result of Mr. Low's call on Governor Odell in Albany, the governor came here from Albany and had a conference yesterday at the Fifth Avenue hotel with Senator Platt and George W. Dunn, chairman of the Republican State committee, concerning the proposed Sunday opening of saloons. The governor refuses to talk about the conference for publication, but his position is substantially this: He is not disposed to throw open the saloons on Sunday; but he is a firm believer in home rule, and he may accept a referendum measure if it appears later that the people of New York city want to vote on local option. Still he is not prepared to allow the opening of saloons on Sunday until the people of the city have shown clearly that they want to have the excise law amended in that direction. His mind is now simply receptive and he will listen to arguments on both sides until the legislature meets.

Prosperous Little Republic

Washington, Nov. 15.—According to the latest reports from Salvador that country is enjoying a period of peace and prosperity almost unparalleled in history. The fact that she exports about one-third more than she imports is evidence of the productiveness of the country. The financial condition of the republic is most satisfactory. For the last two years Salvador has had no foreign debt. Salvador's relations with her neighboring countries in Central America are stated to be most friendly.

Suspected of Burning Wife

Oshkosh, Wis., Nov. 15.—Mrs. Ernest Meyer is dying from burns which have made her unrecognizable, and her husband is locked up, the charge to be brought against him to be developed by circumstances. He was rescued by the fire department from angry neighbors who were talking of lynching him. The report has spread that her husband, in a fit of drunken rage, had tied her in bed and then set the bed afire.

Chipped Off Over Half a Million

Havana, Nov. 15.—The commission of the municipal council appointed to investigate the proposition of Michael J. Dady to reduce his bid for the sewer and paving contract of Havana by $572,038 has agreed to accept Dady's proposition and will recommend that he be given the contract. The amount of Dady's original bid was $11,485,896.06.

Disaster Didn't Come Off

Omaha, Nov. 15.—Tenty-four sticks of dynamite, a piece of fuse and an explosion cap were found by a farmer's boy near the bridge of the Burlington railroad at Havelock. A force of detectives are at work on the case. An attempt at train wrecking and robbery is supposed to be the reason why the explosives were placed at the bridge.

Probable Victim of Highwaymen

Rome, Ga., Nov. 15.—James Goings was found dead in his buggy yesterday near Cave spring, his neck being broken. His death is a mystery, and it is thought he was murdered and robbed by highwaymen.

RATHBUN IS IDENTIFIED

By Men Acquainted With Him In Little Rock

IS HELD WITHOUT BOND

After Pleading Not Guilty to Charge of Murdering Goodman—Body of Latter Held by Coroner Pending Sworn Testimony as to Rathbun

Jeffersonville, Ind., Nov. 15.—Newell C. Rathbun, suspected of killing Charles Goodman in a hotel here by poison, was positively identified yesterday by an officer and an acquaintance of the prisoner, both from Little Rock, Ark., where he lived for a time.

Later Rathbun was arraigned before Mayor Rader on a charge of murder. Rathbun pleaded not guilty and Mayor Rader held him for the circuit court without bond. The prisoner had no lawyer. The circuit court will convene in special term Monday and a grand jury will be empaanelled to consider Rathbun's case.

The prisoner is becoming less talkative and evidently realizes that he has already talked too much, but he is reported to have said to a fellow prisoner at the jail: "The officers haven't a thing on which to convict. A man's intention does not mean he may be convicted."

Coroner Still Holds Body

Little Rock, Nov. 15.—The corpse sent here as that of Newell C. Rathbun still lies in the vault at Oakland cemetery, subject to the orders of Coroner Young. Young says that he will surrender the body only upon sworn testimony that the prisoner at Jeffersonville, Ind., is Newell C. Rathbun. He makes this statement:

"At 5:30 o'clock p. m., Wednesday I received a telegram from Coroner Coots of Jeffersonville, Ind., requesting that I return the body held here for further investigation. I conferred with my attorneys and the mayor and decided not to release the body. This body was shipped to Mrs. Rathbun as that of her husband. Shortly after it came into her possession a question arose as to its identity. The authorities here were notified and at the request of the mayor I took charge of the body. There has been much controversy in regard to its identity and I felt that I owed it to Mrs. Rathbun and to this commonwealth to have the identity of this man thoroughly established before I released the body."

Coroner Young said after the news came that Deputy Sheriff Chichester and Emil Gloeckler had identified the prisoner at Jeffersonville, Ind., as N. C. Rathbun, "If Chichester and Gloecker come before the jury here and make affidavits that the man in prison at Jeffersonville is Newell C. Rathbun, I will surrender the body."

Still True to Croker

New York, Nov. 15.—Richard Croker was the guest of honor last night at a dinner tendered to him at the Democratic club by the board of governors and the officials of the club. Speeches were made by nearly everyone present to the effect that Mr. Croker would undoubtedly act as the leading spirit in the movement to unite the Democratic party in the state and again lead it in the municipal elections. Mr. Croker asserted that the party had met defeat at the recent election through the work of the party's opponents in the Republican ranks and declared that much of this was due to mandatory legislation forced upon the people of this city by the Republican party at Albany.

Troops For Mining District

Earlington, Ky., Nov. 15.—Adjutant General Murray, who has been in Madisonville for two days looking into the mining situation, has recommended that troops be again sent to Hopkins county. There is agitation among the union miners over news of the restraining order against officers and members of the united mine workers, granted by Judge Evans, to restrain the union men from camping on or "within gunshot" of the property of the mine owners. The coal operators, non-union employes and the business men generally are pleased with the news of the injunction.

Conscience Troubled Him

Binghamton, N. Y., Nov. 15.—Allie Mosher, aged 20, startled the attendants at a revival at the Free Methodist church at East Windsor by confessing that he set fire to the Methodist church at Doraville on June 27 last. He said he had no motive for the act and that the deed so preyed upon his mind that he could remain silent no longer.

Twenty-Four Specific Charges

Bath, N. Y., Nov. 15.—The board of trustees of the New York State soldiers' and sailors' home in this place, after an all-day session, at which charges were preferred against Dr. Burdick, surgeon-in-chief of the home hospital, suspended him from further duty pending the hearing on 24 specific charges to be held before the board.

Scientific Results Tally

Berlin, Nov. 15.—The cancer investigations made by Professor Park of the University of Buffalo have given results in every way identical with those secured by Professor Schueller of the Berlin university, although both investigations were made independently of each other.

WOUNDED IN LEG AND HEAD

Serious Result of Quarrel During a Drinking Bout

Middleboro, Mass., Nov. 15.—Held responsible for causing the bullet wounds from which Albert F. Pettee is in a dangerous condition at Carver, Samuel Williams is in custody. Williams says that the shooting was done accidentally.

The police did not learn of the matter until yesterday, although Pettee was shot before daylight Wednesday morning. The story told by Williams is that he and Pettee had been drinking in company with Miner Thompson. The men quarreled about their respective ability to shoot with a revolver, and Williams says that Pettee threatened to kill him. To frighten the man Williams says that he picked up an old shotgun and fired it, but with no intention of hitting Pettee.

The later, however, was hit in the leg, and it is said that he is in a serious condition from loss of blood. He also has a wound on the head which he believes was inflicted by Thompson. The affair took place at Williams' home. Pettee lives only a short distance away.

Thompson has not been located by the authorities. Williams is 63 years of age. Pettee is 50.

Grangers Are Prospering

Lewiston, Me., Nov. 15.—About 2000 members of the state and national grange are now at Lewiston. The secretary reports that during the year 192 new granges were instituted in the United States, Michigan leading with 58 new ones and Maine and Ohio following with 19 each. The report of the treasurer of the national grange, Mrs. E. S. McDowell, shows total receipts of $21,936, and expenditures of $17,572. New York paid $2045 and Maine $1363. these figures indicating the relative membership of the leading states.

To Gather Spruce Statistics

Augusta, Me., Nov. 15.—State Land Agent and Forest Commissioner E. E. Ring is making arrangements to ascertain, as soon as possible after the spring opens, the amount of standing spruce in the state. He will send experienced woodsmen into the forests to explore and report their condition to his department. The state appropriates each year the sum of $400 to be used in preparing and publishing a report of the forest commissioner. The last report issued was in 1896. In the meantime this fund has been accumulating.

Students Started a Row

Brunswick, Me., Nov. 15.—While the Brunswick firemen, under Chief Bursaw, were fighting a fire in one of the rooms in South Appleton hall yesterday, a large body of students gathered around and pelted the firemen with snowballs. One of the missiles struck Chief Bursaw as he was descending a ladder. He retaliated by striking a student. This precipitated a free fight, which for a time threatened to assume serious proportions. Some of the older students finally succeeded in quieting the disturbers.

Weavers to Act Independently

Fall River, Mass., Nov. 15.—At its meeting last night of the Weavers' Protective association voted to withdraw from the Textile Council. This means that the delegates to the Textile Council will be withdrawn and that hereafter the weavers will take action on labor matters independently and will not be bound by any action of the Textile Council. There has been much criticism of the action of the Textile Council since the failure of the recent strike movement in Fall River.

Prosperity Didn't Hold Out

Boston, Nov. 15.—A hearing was held in East Cambridge yesterday in the case of the estate of Clarence K. Bush, who filed a petition in bankruptcy in September. Some publicity was given to Bush when he was at Harvard three years ago from the fact that it was said that he earned his way through college by selling butter for various butter concerns, and that he lived at the same time at college under conditions of prosperity.

Bryan to Visit New England

New Haven, Nov. 15.—William J. Bryan will be the principal speaker at the Jackson day banquet in this city on Jan. 8. In a letter received from Mr. Bryan he positively assures the managers that he will come. It is announced that Mr. Bryan's plans include a series of speeches in Connecticut, Rhode Island and eastern Massachusetts.

Another Decision Against Storti

Boston, Nov. 15.—The full bench of the supreme court yesterday sent down a decision denying the petition for a writ of habeas corpus filed by counsel for Luigi Storti, now under sentence of death for killing Michele Colucci, on Nov. 7, 1899. There is still pending the case before the United States supreme court.

Leonid Shower Delayed

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 15.—Harvard observatory reports that some Leonids began to fall about 11:30 last night. Not all the shooting stars are Leonids. The number seen is about as usual, but the expected shower did not come. Some photographic exposures have been made.

Sleighbells Are Jingling

Belfast, Me., Nov. 15.—This city got news from the world at large last night, after being an entire day without a wire, for Wednesday's blow and snow proved a good sample of a winter's blizzard. Sleighing has begun, for 14 inches of snow is on the ground.

Good Afternoon.

The Boston Advertiser is right in its deductions relative to the present caucus law. In its leading editorial today it says:

"All signs are to be called misleading if the next legislature adjourns without taking some action on the caucus law of this state. The recent decision in the Millbury case, showing that under the present law a town committee can throw out 90 per cent., of the ballots at a caucus, under rules of its own making shows how weak the present law is. The feeling throughout the state is that the present method of making nominations is very faulty and is chiefly to blame for the large numbers of instances of Republican revolt in this state as shown by the results in many local fights at the polls last week.

"This sentiment is confined to no single part of the state. It is stronger in the eastern than in the western section; but even in the west there have been a number of factional fights. From New Bedford, Fall River, Gloucester, Newburyport, Lawrence, Worcester, and other Massachusetts cities that might be named there comes convincing testimony of the popular sentiment that the present caucus law, is thoroughly unsatisfactory. It did not need such instances as the Millbury case to prove that a few men for selfish reasons are able to set at naught the plain demand of a great majority of the voters in the matter of party nominations. True there is still a remedy left—at the polls; but the whole system of caucus law is based on the supposition that the people have a right to settle nominations as well as elections.

What system, or what policy shall be substituted for the existing caucus law, it will remain for the legislature to settle. It would be remarkable indeed, however, if the legislature should not do something in the matter, in view of the plain and unquestionable showing of public sentiment in favor of some sweeping and satisfactory change. Just now public sentiment leans strongly in favor of some system of direct voting at caucuses. It may be that the legislature next year will decide at least to give to other cities and towns what Boston has already gained in that direction."

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Select for candidates those who place the best interests of the city foremost and who display the most aptitude in conducting municipal affairs. —Lynn Item.

☞ Teachers in the Philippines are having an uncomfortable time as a whole. They should have expected this. It was never presented as other than an opportunity for great sacrifice of comfort at a fair salary.—Journal of Education.

☞ "Horseless carriages, wireless telegraphy, smokeless powder, hornless cattle, seedless raisins and brainless dudes have long been the vogue, but this year the fad seems to have taken hold of the farmers all over the country, and they have raised earless corn," says a western paper. This is all more or less "less."—Marlboro Enterprise.

☞ Peabody is laying the poor condition of its municipal lighting plant to the selectmen. In their zeal to create the idea that it costs less to run it than a private plant, and in order to make a good showing it is charged they neglected the procuring of new machinery, and now the town that danced has got to pay the fiddler with a big appropriation.—Beverly Times.

☞ All the theories, speculations, opinions, suspicions and insinuations about the Brooklyn's loop have been swept into the waste paper basket of the court of inquiry by Capt. Cook's plain statement of the fact. The loop was begun to close a gap toward which the enemy was heading, and it was completed to avoid the danger of a collision with the Texas. Instead of taking the Brooklyn out of the fight the loop placed her in the lead of the attack and abreast of the fleeing enemy at close range.—Philadelphia North American.

☞ This eminently satisactory approval of a business governor whose administration has been universally indorsed by the press without regard to party has one flaw; the vote of the city of Boston. This one great city, in the year when New York has defeated Tammany, is the only spot in the Union to vote "Yes" by a large majority on the bare question "Shall a man universally commended by all shades of political faith for his business wisdom and spotless integrity, be driven from office to benefit a partisan political machine?"—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

ALBION QUARTET.

Grand Concert at High School in Teachers' Course.

The Quincy Teachers' course of entertainments was auspiciously opened at the High school hall on Thursday evening. The attendance far exceeded expectations, and it was necessary to supply additional chairs.

The well known Albion quartet was the attraction, assisted by Mr. George W. Want, tenor soloist, and Miss Clara Standish Gill, reader. The quartet sang Buker's March, "Evening Song," "May Song" and "Sunset," and responded to encores; augmented by Mr. Want they sang "Ave Marie, "Image of the Rose," and responded to encores. The reputation of the quartet was well sustained, and the deep bass of Mr. Babcock was especially enjoyed.

Mr. Want also has a lovely voice.

Messrs. Babcock and Want also gave solos and duets of a high order.

Miss Gill was down for three numbers, five readings in all, but responded to encores. She was fine and pleasing, and prepossessing in appearance, and made many friends.

To the Public.

Allow me to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I had a very severe cough and cold and feared I would get pneumonia, but after taking the second dose of this medicine I felt better, three bottles of it cured my cold, and the pains in my chest disappeared entirely. METROPOLITAN.

Park Commission to Recommend New Works North of Boston.

Quincy is still waiting for a beginning on its Metropolitan parkway, for which all the land has been taken, but large expenditures are being made elsewhere.

The fine new bridge at Mattapan, which is a part of the work in connection with the Blue Hills reservation, has been making good progress, and it is hoped to have the easterly half of the structure open for travel this winter.

The great Revere Beach parkway is rapidly approaching completion, so far as that portion of it between Main street in Everett and Revere beach—the only part now under contract — is concerned.

The work of constructing the Charles River road in Watertown between the United States Arsenal and Watertown Square is under contract and will continue during the winter. The contract calls for completion July 1.

The police station at Nantasket beach is completed. All the buildings are off the Nahant shore, and the commission will report its recommendation as to legislation concerning a bath house for Nahant beach to the incoming legislature. The preliminary plans for the new $200,000 Wellington bridge have been completed by the engineers of the board. The playground in Winchester to be known as Manchester Field in honor of the late Forrest E. Manchester, a member of the board, is substantially completed. It forms a part of the Mystic Valley parkway system.

Reardon—Walthew.

Early on Sunday morning last, Miss Caroline E. Walthew and Mr. William B. Reardon were married in Christ's church by Rev. Alex. Strong. The immediate friends only were present. As the ceremony began the sun shone out, streaming through the tinted windows as a happy augury. The bride was dressed in a grey suit. Miss Walthew came from Seacombe, Cheshire, England, and is the niece of the late Mrs. Aubrey Keith, and Mrs. W. S. Randall, having lived at Mr. Keith's since his wife's death.

A wedding breakfast was given at Mr. Randall's and later the bridal pair went to their own home in Mr. Brown's house on Chestnut street, followed by the good wishes of friends. Miss Clarice Keith will now be housekeeper for her father.

Pastor Resigns.

Rev. Preston Gurney, pastor of the First Baptist church at Wollaston has tendered his resignation. He is the oldest pastor at Wollaston, and among the oldest in the city, having been pastor of the society since 1899. His future plans are unknown. Mr. Gurney is not only an able minister, but has been prominent in Wollaston and city affairs, particularly in the government of the Woodward Institute and the No-License campaigns. Mr. Gurney has held pastorates at Chelsea and at Central Falls, R. I., the latter continuing fourteen years.

TURNER FOR MAYOR.

Social Democrats Nominate a Full Ticket.

The Social Democrats were the first political party to hold a mayoralty convention. The convention met Thursday evening at the party's headquarters on Hancock street. A large number were present and considerable enthusiasm prevailed, and the party is preparing to make a most vigorous campaign.

These nominations were made:

For Mayor, Levi H. Turner.

For Councilmen at large, A. G. McDonnell, Edwin McIntosh, William Corcoran, James F. Foy and Gustave B. Bates.

School Commitee at large, Albert G. Coffin.

HISTORIC QUINCY.

Pilgrimages Almost Daily to the City of Presidents.

Quincy will soon be as famous for pilgrimages as Plymouth and Concord, as parties come now almost daily. Surely there are many historic spots of National interest, and enterprises which are novel to many. A brief list is given below.

BIRTHPLACE JOHN ADAMS.

Franklin street, Quincy Adams, house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Patriotic societies admitted free, although contributions are welcome to defray expenses of keeping house open and in repair. Small fee asked the general public.

BIRTHPLACE JOHN QUINCY ADAMS.

Junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

BURIAL PLACE OF PRESIDENTS ADAMS.

First Congregational Church (Unitarian), Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural monumerts, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. In cellar is old town hearse, also box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams. At extreme end, under front steps are the vaults of the presidents, a massive stone door closing the entrance. Janitor can be found at Savings Bank building or at his home Maple place. No fee charged, but janitor may be paid for his trouble.

HANCOCK CEMETERY.

Hancock street, across from First Church. Many old stones, among the oldest that of Rev. John Hancock, father of the Patriot who died May 7, 1744. Was fifth minister of First Church.

PRESIDENTS ADAMS MANSION.

Adams street, corner Newport avenue, Quincy. Residence of President John Adams and contains many family relics. Occupied by descendants. Not open to public.

PRESIDENTS LANE.

Now Goffe street, leading from Adams street, near Mansion. Opened by John Adams to drive his cows to pasture.

JOHN HANCOCK BIRTHPLACE.

Adams street, junction of Dimmock and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

MYLES STANDISH CAIRN.

Squantum heights, erected in 1895 by the Daughters of the Revolution, of Massachusetts, in memory of Captain Myles Standish and his men of Plymouth Colony, who landed here Sept. 30, 1621, guided by the indian Tisquantum.

SQUAW ROCK.

Pile of rock, on which is a perfect head of a squaw, frequently mentioned in early Squantum history. Near by is also Sachem's Knoll.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN.

Penns hill, erected June 17, 1896, by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son John Quincy, from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponset river.

DOROTHY Q. HOUSE.

Hancock street, corner Butler road, Quincy. Old Quincy homestead in which Dorothy Q was born. Has quaint old paper on parlor put on for wedding of John Hancock and Dorothy Quincy; also secret chamber and other interesting features. Private house, not open to public.

MYLES STANDISH SPRING.

On the beach to the left and back of Squantum Inn. Spring of fresh cold water, when Standish and his party breakfasted and thence started to explore the country around Boston Bay.

Many other points of interest might be mentioned: Thomas Crane Memorial Hall which is the public library building; Merrymount, the home of Mrs. John Quincy Adams, where Morton erected his famous May pole in 1626; the soldiers' monument at Mount Wollaston cemetery with its tablets; the famous Quincy granite quarries, many of great depth; the granite yards where monuments and statuary are being cut, and the polishing mills where granite is polished; also the big ship yard now established at Quincy Point.

TODAY'S COURT.

Charles F. Sullivan was fined $5 for drunkenness at Weymouth.

David Muhanen was arraigned for assault on James Kelley at Quincy, and was discharged.

CITY BREVITIES.

A Local Budget With the News in a Nut Shell.

Municipal conventions tonight.

No fifty-degree temperature since last Saturday.

J. W. Johnson has received a large supply of Cape turnips.

A. J. Packard of Maine has taken up his residence on Faxon road.

Herbert F. Doble has returned from a three weeks' trip to Colorado.

John Heuss is building a new stone shed at his plant on Willard street.

Perhaps you will get one of those ten dollars notes at the Grand Army fair.

A fine orchestra will be in attendance every evening during the G. A. R. fair.

Tax Collector Baker reports collections of $143,541 during the last fifteen days. This is way ahead of past years.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Golden of Squantum street are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a daughter

Warren Munore, the scenic artist, is improving the interior of Hartwell's periodical store with several beautiful tints.

Which will attract the greatest interest tonight the Republican Mayoralty convention or the Jefferies—Ruhlin prize fight?

Miss Eva Hobart of Independence avenue celebrated her tenth birthday last Saturday, by giving a party to nineteen of her playmates. She received a great many presents. Refreshments were served.

The hearing to have been given this evening by the City Council Committee on Streets, to those interested in the Howard street improvement, will not be held because of the interest in the municipal conventions.

Owing to a break down in the machinery at the Electric Light plant, Thursday night, the street lights were shut off for a time. The arc lights, however, were turned on again shortly before midnight.

John A Boyd camp, Legion of Spanish War Veterans, entertained Major Frye camp of Brockton at its meeting Thursday evening. Speeches were made by the visiting officer interspersed with songs by Quincy members. Refreshments were served.

Miss Randall, superintendent of First Church Sunday school read her paper on Sunday school work in the Channing Memorial church, Newport, on Wednesday evening. She was, while there, the guest of the pastor, Rev. C. H. Porter, formerly of this city.

At the weekly whist party at the residence of Mrs. A. T. Jones at Wollaston on Saturday evening, prizes were awarded as follows: Ladies—Mrs. L. Nutting, Mrs. I. Davidson and Mrs. L. Hardy. Gentlemen—John F. McLeod, Mr. Starkey and Fred Grignon.

About forty encampment Odd Fellows of this city visited Mt. Washington encampment of South Boston Thursday evening, and presented two polished granite blocks appropriately lettered, to adorn the pedestals of the chief patriarch and senior warden. After the work of the evening a banquet was served and speeches followed.

Mabel Lovejoy of Butler road entertained about thirty of her playmates Thursday evening at a "bonfire party." After games outdoors the children adjourned to the house where music, games and refreshments were enjoyed. The duets by Margaret Brown, violin, and Byron Brown, piano, were much appreciated. Popcorn, cake and chocolate were served.

Is Dame Rumor Authentic?

Editors of Ledger:

It is rumored on our street corners that a total number of twenty-eight gentlemen who consented to go as delegates for Messrs. Jones, Packard and unpledged, have now sworn allegiance by a solemn oath never to cast their ballot for Mr. Bryant. Surely we cannot believe this. These gentlemen comprise a list whom everyone looks up to, and surely will not set an example of being led by the nose. The eyes of all are anxiously awaiting the outcome of convention.

A friend and acquaintance of the Twenty-eight.

The total votes of the Republican and Democratic candidates for Mayor of the city, during the last seven years, have been as follows:

IT IS SAID

Concerning the Mayoralty Contest and Candidates.

That Charles M. Bryant will be the Republican candidate for Mayor.

That there has been a break in the Ward One delegates.

That some of said delegates were attempting to drive bargains for their personal benefit.

That a break is denied.

That the 28 anti-Bryant delegates are solid, first last and all the time.

That a delegate who breaks over will never hear the end of it.

That a man's reputation is worth more than $200 or $300.

That the delegate system is very unsatisfactory.

That nominations by direct vote are near at hand.

That parties will be enrolled by law, so that Democrats cannot participate in Republican caucuses, and visa versa.

That Democrats are interested in the nomination of Mr. Bryant by Republicans.

That they may endorse him.

That prominent Democrats have attended the Bryant love feasts.

That ex-Mayor Keith will be City Clerk.

That James F. Harlow will be City Clerk.

That Cleaves will not be City Clerk whoever is elected.

That Mr. Keith was an excellent City Clerk

That he would be the choice of a non-partisan government.

That many Democrats expect office under Mr. Bryant.

That James F. Burke may be City Treasurer.

That William T. Shea will have something.

That Elisha Packard may run for Mayor as a citizens' candidate.

That he probably will not.

Whist Party.

Mrs. B. Porterfield of 65 Granite street, entertained a whist party on Thursday evening. There were nine tables, and prizes were won as follows: Mrs. Mary Thomas, a handsome sofa pillow, score of 43; Mrs. J. M. McTeer, an umbrella stand, score 43; Mrs. George F. Spooner, a white apron, score 42. Gentlemen's prizes: W. B. Donald, a handsome plaque, score 46; Miss Lois Davidson, a rose jar, score 41; Mrs. John Kelley a handsome vase, score 41. Mr. and Mrs. William Pratt carried off the honors of the evening by taking the two consolation prizes, all had a very enjoyable time.

NOT A PLEASANT PLACE.

Young Woman Who Was Terrible Ameer's Court Physician.

The woman who of all others had the greatest influence with the late Abdur Rahman Khan, the terrible ameer of Afghanistan, was a modest, forceful English woman, who practiced medicine. She is Miss Lilias Hamilton, M. D., and was practicing in Calcutta, and news of her success as a physician reached the ameer. Like all Asiatics, he had a poor estimate of women in general, but, acting on the advice of a

MISS LILIAS HAMILTON.

European traveler, he offered the clever English woman a handsome salary to become his court physician. It seemed a hazardous experiment, but Miss Hamilton decided to risk it. She soon reached a friendly footing with the wily Afghan ruler, who was amused at her independent manner and dictatorial way of deciding what he and her other patients should eat and drink. The sultana regarded her with jealous eyes, and therefore it was that Dr. Hamilton always refused to visit female patients in their homes. It was decidedly unsafe to do so, and they had to come to her when seeking advice. Neither did she eat food prepared by other than the servants she brought with her from India. The conditions which rendered these precautions necessary gave a warm spice to the doctor's life in the Afghan capital; but, on the whole, she enjoyed the experience.

Not infrequently the plucky woman ventured to argue with the semisavage autocrat on behalf of some wrongdoer, and he never failed to listen, though he was rarely swerved from his proposed course. Dr. Hamilton remained at court for several years.

The Best of Reasons.

As soon as there comes a suggestion of frostiness in the air there is an excuse for the smartly gowned woman to swathe her throat in some one of the many pretty and becoming boas she is so fond of wearing. For some occult and feminine reason she does not consider her costume complete without this finishing conceit—a conceit which goes through slight changes with the coming of each season, but which in the end is a mass of soft and fluffy chiffon or lace of a color that sets off to the best advantage a woman's features.

It is not so much on account of the warmth possessed by these airy accessories that they are so well liked, nor for the comfort of having something high at the back of the neck, though it is a fact that after once wearing a ruche or a boa a woman doesn't feel quite chic if she appears on the street without one. The real reason they are so popular—if you could get a woman to explain her very evident fondness for boas and other neck creations—is because they add to the attractiveness of any face, be it young or old.

Value of Fresh Air.

Sleeping in the open air has passed the life limit of a "fad" and assumed the proportions of a habit. It is, moreover, a growing habit, the motto of which is "with nothing between you and the sky." Only in summer is it possible to push this habit to the extreme, of course, and even then so meager are the sky sleeping accommodations of the average home that few can enjoy the luxury indicated in the motto. The number of persons who take to tents and repose in hammocks swung in the open air in the summer, however, increases each year. This is particularly true of young children, hundreds of whom during the past summer were emancipated from stuffy nurseries and given their naps on piazzas and balconies or upon the hand breadth of grass plot dignified by the name of "dooryard" in city homes. Such children, in their plump beauty and infantile good nature, are the best possible witnesses to the efficacy of the "open air sleeping cure," if cure it may be called, since, more properly speaking, it is a preventive instead.—Portland Oregonian.

Linen Showers.

"Linen shower" is the newest greeting to an engaged girl. It is very nice for the engaged girl, but rather hard on the friends, for every one is expected to present the fiancee with a piece of linen, and linen is scarcely an inexpensive thing.

The shower takes place in the form of a surprise party, to which the girl is asked, believing that she will see only her hostess. When she arrives in the afternoon, she finds her friends drawn up in present array, and on her is bestowed a parcel from each one. These she is expected to open as soon as she has recovered from the state of "rattles" that usually intervenes, and of course she is supposed to make pretty and graceful speeches. The latter are mostly in the supposition. Tea and gossip wind up the festivity.—New York Telegram.

WOMEN OF THE DRAMA.

Criticism of the Female Characters of Mr. Pinero's Plays.

Upon women to a very large extent the drama relies for its support. They form the large bulk of playgoers. It is mainly to the plays which they patronize that men go, and if they were unanimously to set their faces against this or that production it would at once be seen how very great is their influence upon theatrical enterprises. That women will be in such agreement as to make this test possible is hardly to be hoped, but at least those who speak for their sex may feel assured that they are voicing general opinion when they resent the presentation on our stage of such types of women as are persistently chosen by the premier playwright for the central figures of his work.

It has been said that no dramatist has ever understood women like Mr. Pinero, and if this be so he must surely know that all are not creatures of such base passions, with such sordid minds and such detestable and morbid dispositions as his Paula Tanqueray, his Agnes Ebbsmith and his latest creation, Iris Bellamy. It is not the place here to discuss the play of which Iris is the heroine; that has been done elsewhere. It is to the character that exception is taken. Mr. Pinero is regarded, and justly so, as the ablest of English dramatists, and it is impossible to help feeling that he neither does justice to the sex to whom he is avowedly so much indebted, since it is always a woman's story that he selects for the theme of a play, nor to himself. For surely he would not have us believe that he cannot paint for us a woman of good impulses and of noble character, or that he can deal with no theme on the stage that is not based on a woman's worst characteristics? Year in and year out this leading playwright presents these studies of fractious, selfish, sensuous, unprincipled women in settings so attractive that the public is dazzled into accepting them without protest. But we think that the time has come for women to murmur against his invariable custom of unchivalrously selecting the most unpleasant types of womanhood for dramatic treatment. Even that they are true to nature is not to be admitted. heTre are good women, whose unselfishness and sweetness and strength might be made the themes of plays infinitely greater than any Mr. Pinero has written. Why cannot he give us one such a heroine? She would, indeed, be welcome.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Girls' New Walk.

"Every once in awhile," remarked a Chestnut street stroller, "you see the girls come out with a new walk. For a time a certain stride will prevail, and then, all of a sudden, there will be a change, and another style will take its place. Just at present the walk affected by a lot of women seems to be a sort of limp, as though it might be the result of wearing tight shoes." A young doctor, to whom these remarks were addressed, smiled broadly. "There is a secret back of the new walk, as you term it," he said. "There comes a young girl in short dresses. You will notice that she has the limp. You will also notice that there is a slight protrusion on her leg. Well, that is caused by a shield worn under the stocking and indicates that the girl has been vaccinated. That's why she limps. That's why all these other girls limp when they walk. You know girls nowadays object to being vaccinated on the arm, as it leaves a scar that doesn't look well when an evening gown is worn. Now you know the secret on what you call the new walk."—Philadelphia Record.

Curious Pets For Women.

Lady Constance Mackenzie and Lady Ellen Wickham have sent some curious pets to be cared for in their absence from home in Robert Green's Terrace Garden, Covent Garden Market, London. Lady Mackenzie's pets are two baby boa constrictors, already good sized snakes, but not half grown. They are beautifully mottled in brown and buff, and, being tame, their shining eyes do not have the malicious gleam of the serpent in his native jungle. Lady Wickham's taste in pets runs to toads, and her favorite is an Italian toad which she has owned for twelve years. Among several others is one blue tongued toad from Australia that is very sociable with visitors. He is intelligent and has been taught a number of entertaining tricks. The New York women are following the lead in this queer fad, and several of them have pet snakes or toads, one having a pet that coils about her sewing table and shows evident delight in her company.—Chicago Post.

Mrs. Roosevelt Won't Shake Hands.

Of Mrs. Roosevelt's tact many stories could be told. She has very decided opinions as to what she should and should not do, and she manages to carry her point without giving offense to any one. Our American habit of indiscriminate handshaking is very distasteful to her, and she made up her mind when she went to Albany that she would not have her hand shaken by the hundreds who pass her at the official receptions. Accordingly at her first reception she charmed the crowd with her sweet smile and pleasant words, but both her hands were observed to be tightly holding a huge bouquet.—Rheta Childe Dorr in Woman's Home Companion.

To Keep Veils Nicely.

Heavy Blanket of Snow

Syracuse, Nov. 15.—The snowstorm throughout central New York continues with unabated severity. Country roads are in many cases blocked and huge drifts are piling along the fences. Streams are rising and several places report threatened floods. In Syracuse sleighs are running, even in downtown streets. Trolley service is demoralized.

Hall Leaves the Army

Washington, Nov. 15.—Brigadier General R. H. Hall was placed on the retired list of the army today by operation of law on account of age. He was born in Michigan, and served with distinction through the Civil war. Because of meritorious service in the Philippines he was made a brigadier general in the regular army last February.

Wanted to Kill Himself

Utica, N. Y., Nov. 15.—George A. Bingel, a returned member of the 9th United States infantry, attempted suicide here by turning on the gas in his room at a hotel. Bingel was wanted for the alleged working of bogus checks and is now in prison. There was a young woman here whom he wanted to marry.

Government "Prohibited Mention"

London, Nov. 15.—In an article on the war in South Africa The Times says today: The Boers, as far back as last May, were guilty of murdering whole kraals of Kaffirs in order to destroy the traces of the movements of their own commandoes. The British authorities at the time, for some reason not specified, prohibited any mention of these outrages.

Acquitted of Murder Charge

Baltimore, N. Y., Nov. 15.—In the trial of Joseph C. Banks on the charge of murder, the jury returned a verdict last evening of not guilty. The defense was justifiable homicide in shooting in self-defense. Banks was manager of a circus. He shot and killed Herbert Tackaberry, who had been discharged from the circus company.

DECEIVED AND OPPOSED

Why Amalgamated Association Lost Steel Strike

A PROMISE OF ASSISTANCE

From Federation of Labor Failed to Materialize—Charged With Using Workingmen For a Blind—Trusts Scored by Knights of Labor Leader

Indianapolis, Nov. 15.—At the national convention of the Knights of Labor yesterday, General Master Workman Burns submitted his annual report. The general executive committee and Secretary-Treasurer Hayes also reported. Hayes recommended that the order secure the introduction in congress of laws to control the "trusts." He said: "Organized labor must prepare for the gigantic struggle that is fast approaching, when the very existence of their organizations will be at stake."

General Master Workman Burns said in part: "The first great struggle between organized labor and a great trust was between the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers and the United States Steel corporation. It matters not what errors and mistakes are charged to the officers and members of the Amalgamated association; the facts are that the steel companies were victorious, because of the treachery and failure of organized labor to do their duty. The Amalgamated association expected at least the friendship of the officers and members of the American Federation of Labor. They received nothing but deception and opposition. It is a question if the amalgamated organization would have entered the contest under the circumstances if it was not for the promises made and relied upon from the members of the American Federation of Labor to assist them in what they believed to be right.

"The leaders of the American Federation of Labor did not want President Shaffer or his organization to win, because it might have given that organization and President Shaffer some prestige and prominence. The largest political organization today is the Federation of Labor, using the name of labor for the purpose of advancing a few men politically to the great injury of the many. Any labor organization that advances or benefits the wage earner should be encouraged, but such political organizations, using the workingman for a blind, should be known by their true name and reputation.

"The great combinations of capital known as trusts should receive the careful consideration of all wage workers, the merchant, business man and particularly the voter. The argument made that they are a help financially to the wage workers is denied by many, and I agree with the number that says says they are injurious and will grow more so as they grow older.

"The government that grants them franchises should restrict and control them and the people should control both the government and the trusts, which they do not do at the present time. Before the election the voters are the people and the government; after the election the politicians are the government, people, judiciary and all.

"Some argue that trusts and combinations cheapen the product to the consumer and in some cases pay good wages to their employes. This may be true, but that does not benefit the majority of the people. It is not cheap products and cheap living the majority of the people require, but high wages and steady employment. When the mechanic and wage worker are steadily employed at good wages each can afford to pay high prices to the farmer, storekeeper and merchant.

"Labor is not antagonistic to capital except when it becomes oppressive. Anything that prevents strikes and lockouts and gives the toiler a fair share of what he produces will be a blessing to all. If the government does not interfere, restricting and controlling trusts, those large combinations of capital will control the government and the people.

"There is no doubt in the minds of many of the people that money and its influence change the opinions and decisions of officials who should be for right and justice. The trusts should be controlled by the government, and all facts in connection with the same be given publicity, in the same manner as the proceedings of congress."

Suspected of Being a Fraud

New York, Nov. 15.—A man, who is believed to be Louis Schupisser, a fugitive from justice in England, was remanded to the custody of the police yesterday, pending extradition. The prisoner was said to be one of a firm of piano manufacturers of London which recently failed for 120,000 and against whom charges of fraud were subsequently made.

Damage by Earthquake

Salt Lake City, Nov. 15.—Advices from the remote sections of south and southwestern Utah show that Wednesday night's earthquake shock was very heavy in some localities and considerable damage was done. The shock was apparently the heaviest at Beaver City, where a meeting house, the court house and the Beaver academy were badly damaged.

Maso Cutting Into Palma

Havana, Nov. 15.—Bartolome Maso, the candidate of the Democratic party for the presidency of Cuba, is apparently gaining strength throughout the island. The national party in Havana, which had proclaimed Tomas E. Palma its candidate for president, has split and a large faction has come out for Maso.

FIVE MEN KILLED

Many Others Are Missing as a Result of Fire In a Mine

Bluefield, W. Va., Nov. 15.—Five dead bodies have been taken from the Baby mine of Pocahontas colliery company at Pocahontas, Va. Several other persons are unaccounted for and 25 persons have been rescued more or less severely burned.

Early yesterday morning it was discovered that the mine was on fire. An alarm was sent in and the fire company responded promptly. Just after the fire fighters had reached the mouth of the mines and were attempting to extinguish the flames, some of the firemen and others having rushed inside of the mine to ascertain the extent of the trouble and to assist miners entombed therein, a terrific explosion occurred and many miners and their friends were more or less injured.

It is supposed that the mines caught fire from a defective electric light wire. Five bodies had been recovered up to 6 p. m. It is uncertain if any more are dead, but it known that there are several men, perhaps 8 or 10, still in the mines, unless they succeeded in making their escape through the Tug river entrance.

Twenty-five persons have been rescued, all burnt, some seriously and perhaps fatally. All the physicians in Pocahontas have been busy in attending the injured. One or two other explosions have followed that of the morning, and others are hourly expected. The mine is still burning and clouds of smoke are pouring from its mouth. The fan has now been stopped and as soon as possible the mine will be re-entered with the hope of extinguishing the fire.

HAWAIIAN OPPOSITION

To Reciprocity With Cuba and the Restriction of Immigration

Washington, Nov. 15.—A delegation of American Hawaiians representing sugar growing interests, called on the president yesterday preparatory to their efforts before congress this winter. They are vigorously opposed to reciprocity with Cuba or any tariff concession whatever toward that island. In this they will make common cause with the beet sugar people. The owners of the Hawaiian sugar land are cultivating cane with the same natural advantages which the Cubans possess, but without the duty approximating 100 percent on the raw product, which intercepts the approach of the Cuban to our markets. While such a rate of duty is doubtless necessary to keep our beet sugar industry afloat it constitutes a tremendous bonus to the Hawaiian cane growers and their prosperity is now phenomenal. Their next interest is in the immigration laws. The present provision against the importation of contract labor is burdensome to them, and they will use what influence they can acquire in congress this winter against further immigration restrictions or the rigid enforcement of present regulations. They have tried Porto Rican laborers with full success, but prefer Portuguese and Asiatics. The president listened with interest to the presentation of their needs.

Train's Miraculous Escape

Red Wing, Minn., Nov. 15.—As a Great Western passenger train on the Red Wing and Zumbroto line was passing over a bridge near Goodhue yesterday, the structure fell to pieces behind the cars, while in front it swayed but stood until the train was safely over, and then collapsed.

Keeping It Up

Berlin, Nov. 15.—Enthusiastic anti-Chamberlain meetings occurred yesterday from German cities. Similar meetings have been called at other places.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Colonel J. H. Mapleson, father of Colonel Henry Mapleson, the operatic impressario, died at London of blood poisoning.

Companies engaged in the business of mining gypsum in the United States are completing their combination at a conference now being held at Chicago.

The grandstand and betting shed at the Columbus, O., driving park were burned. The fire is believed to have been incendiary.

FOOD NOT ALL

Food is not all the thin man needs. Maybe he's sick. You can't make him eat by bringing him food. But Scott's Emulsion can make him eat. That Emulsion gives a man appetite and feeds him both. It brings back lost flesh.

No trouble about digestion. The weakest stomach can digest Scott's Emulsion. It tastes good, too. Scott's Emulsion paves the way for other food. When wasted and weakened by long illness it gives strength and appetite that ordinary food cannot give. Not only food—medicine, too—Scott's Emulsion of pure cod-liver oil.

We'll send you a little to try if you like.

THREE DOG STORIES

CANINE DEVOTION TO THE MEMORY OF A KIND MASTER.

The Affection Displayed by a Newfoundland and a Little Fox Terrier—A Big Bulldog's Exhibition of Quickness and Sagacity.

"The most pathetic thing about the thoroughbred dog," said the man whose time has been spent about the kennels, "is his devotion to the memory of a kind master who is dead. There was a friend of mine who owned a Newfoundland, and Dash, as they called him, was never contented when away from his master. Not long ago the master was taken ill. He had to be moved to a hospital and Dash was left at home. The dog refused to eat.

"About 11 o'clock one night he began to howl. His cries alarmed the members of the family, who were greatly concerned about the condition of the patient in the hospital. While his cries continued the telephone bell rang and the message of death came over the wires.

"Dash was sent away until after the funeral. After his return a portrait of his dead master disappeared from the house. Search showed that the dog had carried it into a recess under the house. It was rescued from him with difficulty and screwed to an easel in the library. A rug was put down in front of it for Dash. He lay there with an expression of unutterable woe on his face. He wouldn't eat. For a week he kept vigil. Once or twice he licked up a little water and tasted dainty food, but he grew weaker day by day. One morning ten days later the library door was opened, and there was the faithful Dash dead on his rug.

"Instances are common in which dogs have remained by the body of a master, refusing to leave. It seems cruel to think of killing an animal of this kind to get him out of the way, and yet it has been found necessary in many cases. A very remarkable case of this kind happened a few years ago within my knowledge. There was a little fox terrier, a trim little animal, with a wag of his stumpy tail for every one, and he was the pet of a young boy who had reared him from puppyhood. When the little fellow was taken ill, the dog would creep into the room without the least noise and would lift himself on the bed to lick his master's hand. It was really touching. After a time the boy became dangerously ill. The dog had to be excluded from the room, but he sat by the door, never leaving it, with an expression of abject sorrow on his little face.

"The boy died. The dog knew it just as well as if he had been human, and they took him away until after the funeral. In some way, however, he escaped and returned home just as the body was being placed in the hearse. He followed it to the cemetery. At the grave he sat on his haunches, his head cast down, and now and then his cries, always low and painful, caused big tears to fall from the eyes of those who were watching the last rites. He moved up closer when the grave was being filled, and when the mound was being smoothed off and the flowers put down the dog advanced and laid himself down at the head. A member of the family tried to pick him up, but he snarled threateningly, and they left the little country cemetery, and the terrier stayed there to guard the last resting place of his master.

"The family believed the dog would return home that night, but he was not in his box the next morning. By noon he had not returned, and a servant was sent to the cemetery. Just as he got to the path leading down to the grave the servant heard a wild scream of pain and terror from the terrier, and before he could hasten to see the cause Mack had been killed. The blow which ended his faithful life was struck by a workman whom Mack had attacked when he tried to arrange the earth on the grave.

"Dogs seem to realize when there is trouble in the air. There is a true story of a big bulldog that seized the hand of a drunken man who was trying to kill his master. Blink, the dog, had followed his owner into a barroom one night and was lying under the table when a difficulty arose between Johnson, his master, and an Italian. The Italian fired at Johnson once and was about to fire again when Blink jumped and caught the man's wrist in a viselike grip. The Italian dropped the gun. Like a flash Blink released his hold on the man's wrist and seized him by the throat. The Italian was thrown to the floor, and it was not until Johnson had kicked Blink in the side that he let go. It was rather hard punishment for his good services, but if the kicks had not been given the man would have been killed by the terrible laceration of the throat."—New York Sun.

Heavy Rainfall.

It is the greatest rainfall in the world which pours down in torrents upon the southern sides of the Khasia hills, in Assam. No wonder that their southern slopes are fertile. The rains begin in June and last through August and September. Isabel Savory writes of these rains in "A Sportswoman In India:"

At Cherra Junji 523 inches of rain fall annually. The yearly rainfall in London is about two feet. At Cherra Junji it is forty feet, or enough to float the largest man-of-war, while in one year sixty-seven feet of water once fell from the sky.

When the rains set in, we had thunderstorms on a large scale. We, in the innocence of the uninitiated, began by trying to time a peal of thunder, but when it had lasted over half an hour we gave it up. Storms were on all sides, one long rolling peal crashing and vibrating among the distant mountains for hours.

THE BIRD WON THE FIGHT.

An Attempt to Rob an Eagle's Nest That Did Not Succeed.

Those who seek to rob birds' nests sometimes repent of their deed, especially if the bird happens to be an eagle as fierce as those on the California coast. These birds are seldom shot, and consequently they have increased in numbers, but the eggs are in demand by collectors, and a few adventurous spirits make a business of trying to secure them. Mr. C. F. Holder tells in the New York Commercial Advertiser of an adventure wherein two egg hunters had a trying experience and the eagles came off victorious.

The nest was on a rocky pinnacle, perhaps 100 feet in height, completely separated from the shore. In storms the waves rose, a splendid mass of foam, to the very summit. The base was covered with kelp, and the waves would rise eight or ten feet, then as suddenly drop away, leaving jagged points upon which a boat would be hung until overwhelmed by the next wave.

One quiet day the men approached. They rowed about the rock for ten minutes, then, the sea being level, rushed at it. With all their care, however, the boat was dashed on a ledge, and they found themselves prisoners on the rock with nothing to eat—the provisions having been lost overboard—and the bottom of the boat crushed in.

They rescued a rope and a can of water, and, being still determined to try for the eggs, they turned their attention to the nest, allaying their uneasiness by the thought that some passing yacht would take them off.

The rock, however, proved slippery from long accumulation of guano, and the men found it impossible to climb nearer than forty feet from the nest.

One of the adventurers decided to attempt that last forty feet after the fashion adopted by south Pacific natives in climbing trees. A long rope doubled, with a stone attached to the doubled end, was hurled over the rock so that it fell on the other side, thus encircling it. Then the egg hunter began climbing barefooted, not going up, but gradually circling the pillar and hitching the rope upward.

In one circuit of the rock he had gained ten or twelve feet, and the footing was growing better. The second brought him twenty-five feet up. He was reaching down to raise the rope when he heard a cry from his companion, and then came a sharp, whistling sound, a rush, and something filled the air in front of him, striking fierce blows and throwing him from his feet, so that he hung for a second by the rope, faint and bewildered.

It was the mother eagle that had plunged down upon him from a great height. She was driven off for a time by the man below, who hit her squarely on the breast with a stone.

The hunter, still undaunted, proceeded to climb, this time with his knife between his teeth. When he was within five feet of the top, the former experience was repeated.

A short, sharp fight ensued. The bird fell away, but immediately returned. The man struck at it with his knife, missed it and then, while one of its claws was fastened in his clothing, lost his balance and fell against the rope. The rope broke, and bird and man went plunging into the sea.

The fact that the bird's talon had caught in his clothing saved the hunter's life, for the eagle, as soon as it struck the water, began to try to fly and actually helped the man out of the kelp bed into which he had fallen. Then by its struggles it freed itself, and the hunter swam to the rock.

All thought of securing the eggs was now abandoned, and the men spent a miserable night in a crevice of the rock, the sea rising all around them. Late on the following day they were rescued by a passing boat.

Why He Didn't Swear.

The man who had gained a world-wide celebrity by refraining from swearing when the end gate of his wagon gave way and allowed a load of apples to roll to the bottom of a steep hill was talking about it a few years afterward.

"There's always been a wrong impression about that matter," he said, with some chagrin. "I didn't say swearin' wouldn't do the subject justice. All I said was, 'What the Sam Hill's the use?' The apples weren't mine, and the wagon wasn't mine. I was workin' by the day. I didn't care a durn where the apples rolled to. Great Scot, if I'd felt like swearin' I could have swore a hole in the ground six feet deep right then and there, and if I'd known there would be so much fuss made about it I would have done it, too, b'gosh!"—Chicago Tribune.

Michigan Iron.

The first discovery by white men of the iron ore of the Lake Superior region was made Sept. 16, 1844, near the eastern end of Teal lake, in northern Michigan, by William A. Burt, a deputy surveyor of the general government. In June, 1845, the Jackson Mining company was organized at Jackson, Mich., and in the same year it secured possession of the celebrated Jackson iron mountain. The ore from this mountain was first used in a bloomery at Jackson, Mich., and afterward in 1847 and subsequently in bloomeries in northern Michigan.

Pitch Stains.

Stains made by pitch and substances of a resinous character may be removed with pure alcohol, which dissolves the resin. First, the stain should be moistened with alcohol and allowed to remain in that condition for several minutes. Then fresh alcohol should be applied with a sponge and with a slight rubbing motion. When satisfied that this has been continued long enough, wipe as dry as possible and hang the fabric in the open air.

If we neglect her, for on golden wing
She quickly leaves us desolate and then
Our faults and failings only sorrow bring.

Several Quincy ladies are to have a busy week next week as they are interested in the "Old Ironsides" fair at Tremont Temple, Boston, and assist at the Quincy booth. The fair opens Monday night and continues all the week with childrens day next Saturday. Naval and military circles are interested and the fair will undoubtedly be a big success.

* * *

The Womans Alliance of First church give a chafing dish party in the chapel next Tuesday evening also an entertainment consisting of tableaux, monologue by Miss Marie Moore and music. All those who enjoyed last year's entertainment and the appetizing concoctions prepared by several well known young nations are anticipating an evening of much enjoyment.

* * *

George D. Willis of Braintree left this morning for a ten days' pleasure trip through the south and west.

* * *

The Tuesday Night club had a jolly meeting this week with Miss Clara Baxter of Greenleaf street. After whist, refreshments and games were enjoyed until after eleven. Some of the men of the club after a few more meetings expect to be able to outshine Keith's best performers.

* * *

The third entertainment on the list prepared by the house committee of the Cochato club was given in the club hall to a large audience last evening. Four solo voices, Miss Annie Louise Tirrell, soprano; Miss Adelaide Griggs, contralto; Robert Hall, tenor; and W. Archibald Willis, bass; accompanied at the piano by Miss Claude Fisher, gave the entire program.

* * *

Mrs. Theodore Hardwick entertained the Friday club yesterday afternoon.

* * *

Ruel Crompton Tuttle is having an exhibition of water color drawings of Venice and Verona at Doll & Richards art studio, Park street, Boston.

* * *

A great many Quincy flower lovers enjoyed the chrysanthemum show last week at Horticulturul hall, Boston.

* * *

Mr. H. S. Folseth of Walker street has gone abroad on a business trip. He will be absent a couple of months.

* * *

Miss Mary Moody of Boston, formerly of Atlantic, rendered some fine solos at the fair at Music hall, Atlantic, Thursday evening.

* * *

* * *

The N. E. Woman's Press association celebrates its sixteenth birthday next Wednesday at the Parker house, Boston, by a reception from five to six, and a supper at six, followed by an after supper program of reminiscences, speeches, music, etc. The Quincy members of the club are Mrs. Frederic H. Bishop of Wollaston and Miss Annie L. Prescott of Quincy.

* * *

Rev. W. D. Thomas of Wisconsin is the guest of Rev. James Todd, D. D., and will occupy the pulpit at the Water street Presbyterian church on Sunday.

* * *

Another one of those popular whist parties was held under the auspices of the South Braintree Whist club at Odd Fellows' hall last evening.

* * *

The Junior Friday club have changed their meeting days to the first and third Mondays instead of second and fourth in the month as planned earlier in the season. The next meeting will be on Monday next with Mrs. Arthur Hall of Hancock street.

* * *

The Tawasentha club meets on Tuesday evening the nineteenth, when English history, A. D. 1200 to 1485, will be considered, also Robert Burns and John Bunyon. The meeting will be in charge of Mrs. Frank W. Crane, Miss Leila Miller and Dr. Abele.

A very pretty wedding took place at the house of Mr. J. P. Thomas of 279 Belmont street, Wollaston, last Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. His daughter Miss Stella Thomas was united in marriage to Mr. I. Evans Hindman of Cecil county, Maryland. Rev. Preston Gurney performed the marriage ceremony. Miss Maggie Doyle was the bridesmaid and Mr. Raleigh Daniels of Wakefield was best man. The bridal march was played by the bride's sister Miss Mary Thomas. A reception followed the marriage until ten o'clock. A handsomo pin set with diamonds was presented the bride by Mr. Kenney. Among the guests present were Mr. W. Charlton and Miss Charlton of Brockton, Misses Alice and Celia Thomas, Mrs. Charles Miner, Mr. and Mrs. J. Charlton and Mr. and Mrs. Turner. Mr. and Mrs. Hindman have gone on a bridal trip to New York. Their home will be at Anzonia, Connecticut.

* * *

The Uneek Whist club meets Monday evening with the Misses Waldron of Granite steet.

* * *

The engagement is announced of Miss Mary E. Daley of Weymouth and Mr. J. Walter Pyne of Hingham.

* * *

The hour spent last Tuesday afternoon at Mrs. A. E. Sproul's pleasant home with Miss Thompson and her photographs was most delightful. The literary associations of Cambridge, combined with the beautiful architecture of the college buildings seen from the Bridges over the Cam; the comments of the young girl over the boat race, and of the Dowager over the engagement ring in the gold cross, were altogether a most interesting combination. The last talk of the course is with Mrs. George W. Morton on Tuesday next, when "Beatrice and Bemdicke" will be the theme.

* * *

Miss Edna Lundam of Mechanicsville, N. Y., is a guest of her aunt, Mrs. Peter Moore of Braintree.

* * *

* * *

Mr. Lewis F. Small of Braintree has been entertaining his mother and nieces.

To the Public.

Allow me to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I had a very severe cough and cold and feared I would get pneumonia, but after taking the second dose of this medicine I felt better, three bottles of it cured my cold, and the pains in my chest disappeared entirely. I am most respectfully yours for health, Ralph S. Meyers, 64 Thirty-seventh street, Wheeling, W. Va. For sale by al druggists.

ON THE FIRST FORMAL BALLOT.

Frederick L. Jones Nominated for Mayor by the Republicans.

Vote Made Unanimous--Speech of Acceptance Will Win Many Votes for Candidate.

Charles M. Bryant Unable to Get a Vote in Wards 1, 2 or 3---Complimentary Votes to Messrs. Packard and Jameson.

The Republican Municipal convention was devoid of the expected excitement and much more expeditious than anticipated, but there was hearty enthusiasm over the nominee, and a confident air of success on election day.

The only skirmish came over the motion that all ballots should be by roll call. The Bryant men were opposed to it, and several of them protested against it, but they were in the minority and it only required a vote of 13 of the 51 delegates to carry it, so the motion prevailed and worked very satisfactorily. The anti-Bryant delegates organized convention, and were in the majority on all committees. The speech of acceptance by Candidate Jones was very clever, and favorably received.

The convention was held at Republican headquarters, and there was a policeman in uniform at the door to keep out objectionable persons, and another in the hall in case his services were needed.

Promptly on the stroke of 8 o'clock by the old town clock, President Jameson of the City Committee called the convention to order and read the call. Upon motion of Dexter E. Wadsworth, Councilman Eugene C. Hultman was elected temporary chairman, and Sewer Commissioner W. T. Isaac as temporary secretary, both without opposition.

A motion of ex-Councilman John P. Bigelow, that a committee of three be appointed on credentials prevailed, and the chair appointed E. W. Newcomb, C. F. Pettengill and Enoch S. Thomas.

The committee reported all the delegates present, viz:

Ward One,	12 Delegates
Ward Two,	7 Delegates
Ward Three,	9 Delegates
Ward Four,	7 Delegates
Ward Five,	10 Delegates
Ward Six,	6 Delegates
Total,	51 Delegates

The report was accepted and the temporary organization was made permanent.

ROLL CALL.

John P. Bigelow then moved that all ballots for candidates be by roll call.

H. T. Whitman opposed. He was not thin-skinned but others might be, and such a method would be a sort of intimidation. A ballot would be much pleasanter.

Councilman R. R. Freeman also opposed. It would be nothing but intimidation. He protested strongly.

Ex-Mayor Fairbanks said it was the first time in his remembrance of city affairs that a candidate had been nominated by roll call. It seemed to say delegates could not be trusted. He contended that recent laws were in the direction of a secret ballot and this was why the Australian ballot became a law. Such a ballot should be used in this convention.

Melville C. Holmes said he was perfectly willing the convention should know how he voted, and urged a roll call, because others like himself had been offered jobs at City Hall if they would vote for Bryant.

There were cries from the rear of the hall: "It's a lie," etc.

Mr. Bigelow vigorously supported his motion. There was no bull dozing about it he said. It was the only proper way and according to law. He was ready to stand up and show his hand and he believed every delegate should be.

A Ward Four delegate was opposed to going contrary to precedent.

The motion was put to vote and declared carried. It was doubted, and on a rising vote the chair was sustained.

BALLOT.

Upon motion of John P. Bigelow the convention voted to proceed to an informal ballot for a candidate for Mayor.

The report showed 51 votes to have been cast of which C. M. Bryant had 23, Elisha Packard 14, Frederick L. Jones 11, and Edward E. Jameson 3.

The delegates from Wards Four, Five and Six had voted solid for Mr. Bryant, while Ward One was solid for Mr. Packard, Ward Three solid for Mr. Jones, and Ward Two divided, giving 3 to Mr. Jameson, 2 to Mr. Packard and 2 to Mr. Jones.

Upon motion of R. R. Freeman it was voted that three tellers be appointed to supervise the voting, and the chair appointed Frank E. Burrell, H. T. Whitman and Lewis Bass, Jr.

It was voted to proceed to a formal ballot, when the delegates voted as follows:

For Jones.	For Bryant.
WARD ONE.	WARD FOUR.
Charles F. Pettingill,	Andrew Anderson,
Arch'd F. Macleod,	Arthur Craig,
D. E. Wadsworth,	Fred S. Crowell,
N. B. Furnald,	William H. Fuge,
E. L. Goodridge,	Willard B. Jones,
Otto Gelotte,	Fer. Person,
Lewis Bass, Jr.,	John Williams.

The totals were 28 for Frederick L. Jones, and 23 for Charles M. Bryant, and Mr. Jones was declared the nominee of the convention amid applause. Henry H. Faxon was jubilant and waved his hat, but others were equally enthusiastic.

Mr. Freeman then moved that the vote be rescinded whereby all votes were to be on roll call. Voted.

The following nominations were then made from the floor being the selections of the various ward delegations for candidates for Councilmen at large:

Nathan G. Nickerson of Ward Five.
Andrew Stewart of Ward One.
Arthur W. Newcomb of Ward Two.
Charles A. Alden of Ward Six.
Arthur Craig of Ward Four.

For School Commitee at large, Dr. Nathaniel S. Hunting was renominated for three years and James H. Churchill for 1 year.

Voted that the Ward and City Committee be athorizied to fill all vacancies should any occur.

Upon motion of L. M. Pratt, a committee of three was appointed to introduce Candidate Jones to the convention.

The chair appointed Thomas Smith, Frank E. Burrell and H. T. Whitman.

Councilman Freeman moved that the nomination of Frederick L. Jones as a candidate for Mayor be made unanimous.

The motion pervailed on a rising vote.

Up to this point all the business had been transacted in less than half an hour.

The committee soon returned with the candidate, and Mr. Jones received three cheers amid enthusiasm.

A QUESTION

The Story of a Man of Principle.

By EUPHEMIA JOHNSON

Lawrence Percival was "keeping study" in the big school. Boys were at their desks with their books or were working together in little groups at the long table. They were free to move about and even to speak, if necessary, for Percival never insisted on military restraint. All he required was quiet and work. Percival himself sat a little to one side with his own books and papers, ready to help any boy who might come to him with a knotty point. His letters had just been brought to him, two of them. He had only opened the first, but that had seemed to give him plenty to think about.

Lawrence Percival was the son of a bishop distinguished for learning and eloquence. It had been expected that he would enter the church, and his brilliant gifts and great personal charm caused his friends to prophesy for him a career of even more distinction than the bishop's. But shortly after he had taken his degree his father died, and that autumn, instead of entering the divinity school Lawrence began to study law. He explained frankly to a few intimate friends that, great as was his love for the church in which he had been brought up, he did not feel he could subscribe to all the pledges she required of her ministers. His friends pointed out that the words were not expected to be taken literally and that he could take the vows in far better faith than many men who still gave excellent service to society and the Christian religion. But Lawrence's decision remained unchanged, and his friends soon gave up remonstrating. "After all," they observed to each other, "law offers greater chances to a fellow as able as Percival."

But Percival did not remain long in the law school. "It's not the place for me," he said at the end of the first year. "I can't stand the point of view, and I don't like grubbing down under the darker side of human nature."

He turned next to journalism. As he had made himself rather well known in his college days by editing what was said to be the best undergraduate publication in the country, he had several openings. He accepted a place on the staff of an important daily and at last seemed to have found his proper corner. But in the excitement of a political contest the paper stood for a policy which Percival's judgment and conscience condemned, and he decided to sever his connection with it. This time his friends remonstrated hotly. They pointed out that his department had no connection with politics, that he was perfectly free as far as his own work was concerned and that he would be throwing up an unusual chance of personal distinction and public usefulness. Percival smiled, sent in his letter of resignation—it gave a full statement of the reasons for his action—and engaged himself as tutor to the son of a new blown millionaire. He went abroad with his charge and was gone some time, alternating travel with residence in English and German university towns and having opportunity for study and for writing. Finally, after several years in Europe and the orient, he came home, passed his pupil into Yale, declined two offers from newspapers and a college instructorship and took a position as master in a large school for boys to which one of his best friends had just gone as head.

Here he had now been for nearly three years. At first the life had suited him—he was in sympathy with the head and the other masters, several of them men from his own university. The boys were a fine, manly set of fellows, and Percival, who was a champion tennis player and a capital story teller, was soon as popular with them as he had always been with his contemporaries. Yet now for a year past he had been moving heaven and earth to get away, and that was all because of Lilian Campbell. He met her one summer vacation when he was camping with a set of boys in the mountains. Lilian was visiting in a country house near by, and Percival found her different from any woman he had ever known. The daughter of a marine artist of some reputation, she had been brought up in great retirement on the beautiful coast that was the inspiration of her father's paintings. Books, pictures, a few interesting and unusual friends, a summer or two in Brittany and Norway, were all she knew of the world. Her quickness of imagination, her playful, delicate wit and sensitive responsiveness charmed Percival at their first meeting, and by the end of the summer they were engaged.

Then, for the first time in his life, Percival became aware of the value of money. Hitherto he had thought very little about it. He had always had enough to buy his clothes in the right place and to secure himself freedom of action. Now he found that if he were to think of marriage he must at the least double his income. This had seemed when he had engaged himself a feasible thing, but at the end of the first year he found himself as far as ever from his aim. There were but remote prospects of advancement where he was, and yet no better place offered. Moreover, his articles began to come back from editors in a way that had never happened before. Evidently if he should continue routine work in a country school he must not expect to increase his income by his pen.

By the second year of his engagement things were even worse. Lilian's father died suddenly, leaving her entirely unprovided for. A rich but penurious and shrewish aunt reluctantly said she would give her a home. Another connection offered her the post of nursery governess. Lilian, except for the promise of possible ability in painting, had no money making gifts and no training. She tried the aunt for six weeks and then wrote to Lawrence that she had accepted the governess place. This news roused Percival as he had never been roused in his life. Lilian, with her delicate beauty, sensitive nature and extreme youth, alone and unprotected! The thought was not to be borne. He bestirred himself as he had never done before. He asked favors of friends, of acquaintances, of strangers even. He begged for testimonials and credentials; he knocked at every possible door, and now at last the tide had turned. His old luck had come back.

The letter he was reading there in "study" contained the offer of a professorship in a small but distinguished college. The place, the work, suited him exactly, and he would be able to marry that summer. "The chair will be vacant at the end of this year," wrote the president, "and the appointment is practically in my hands, but I wished, before mentioning your name, to find out your feelings on the matter. I know your writings, of course, and what you stand for, but it is what I have heard of your work with boys and young men that makes me feel you are the man for us. We want some one who will attract and win our students--some one who, both in the lecture room and outside it, will be a power in their lives."

The gong clanged for supper, and the quiet schoolroom changed on the instant into noisy life. Percival put the letter in his pocket; he would write to the president of X. college that evening, and then—then he would write to Lilian! His other letter was from her; but he always kept her letters till the last, and now he would not read this one until he should be alone.

As he came up from supper the head called out: "Can you stop in my study for a moment, Percival?" and the two went in together to a room unlighted except for a fire lazily smoldering on the hearth—the May evening was chill—and for the sunset glow outside. The head turned on the light, but did not draw the curtains, and Lawrence dropped into a chair.

"I've just had a letter from Stanley Irish," the head began. "You know the man I mean?"

"I have read his book," the other answered.

"Well, he's a fine fellow and a sound scholar, but shy, reserved and hard to know. That book got him a professorship at X. college, and now he writes that he is being forced to resign."

"What's the matter?" asked Lawrence.

"Oh, he doesn't get on very well with the students—his electives are not popular. I confess I don't think Irish exactly the man for undergraduate work, but it will be very shortsighted in X. not to keep him. They are going to enlarge their graduate department, and he's just the man for that; but, as it is, he isn't popular, and he suspects, too, that they are disappointed that he hasn't published anything more. The idea! Why, that first book of his was the result of ten years' work—that was why it was good for something! I know how it is: He has put his best work into his lectures—they have been over the students' heads, and he has not had time for writing. I call it monstrously unfair!"

"But see here!" said Lawrence. "The good of the whole must be considered before that of the individual. You would not keep a master here who was bad for the school?"

"That does not sound like you, Lawrence," answered the head. "No good can come to the whole which, in my eyes, makes lawful an injustice to the individual. And you know how I feel in matters like this—make all the inquiries you can beforehand; then give a man a fair chance. After that, if he's unmistakably lazy or worthless or hopelessly incompetent, get rid of him. But you know how it is often done. A man has a bit of a reputation; he is seized on for the glory of the college; there is no adequate investigation into his fitness for the place, and when for some reason his star wanes he's thrown overboard. You remember Lewis? I think this is just such another case. I do not think Irish has been fairly treated. They took him from a place which, if not very good, was at least sure, and he has only been a short time at X. He writes to me now asking if I think there's any use in making a fight. He does not wish to do so, but his wife is slowly dying of an incurable disease, and he would do anything to stave off resigning just now. Poor fellow! He's had that over him all the time, and he says it has been the anxiety, joined to getting accustomed to new work, that has kept him from publishing. Possibly by summer he might have had something ready. His friends tell him the matter has been brought to a head by the board having an eye on a man they think will be a strong card for X. Had the right man not been found just now the affair might have dragged along and Irish would have had a decent chance."

Percival had risen and gone to the window. The dark stems of the elms, with their lacelike fringe of leaves, stood out against the pale rose of the fast fading sunset. Groups of boys were scattered over the lawn, and from the tennis courts floated up shouts and laughter. As the head finished Percival turned back to the room.

"It's a pitiful story," he said.

"A pitiful story," he repeated to himself as a little later he went up to his own study. The dying wife made it even worse than Lewis' case. Lawrence remembered that story, to which the head had referred, and his own position in regard to it. Yet, after all, was there only one point of view? Was not all life a struggle, a relentless struggle? A fair chance, and let the best man win--no one could ask more. Had Irish had a fair chance? Who could say? Besides, it was no business of his. He was offered the work which Irish had failed to do. It would probably make no difference to Irish if he declined the position. Still, suppose he declined on the ground of what he had heard. X. was the last kind of a place to enjoy a row; things were always done decently and in order there. The college would not like to have it said that it had treated Irish so unfairly that Lawrence Percival would not come to it. He had made rows before, and his pen was feared. He might at least obtain that extension of time which Irish thought would be so important. But would it? How could he tell? What did he know about the right of the matter anyway? And, granting even that things were as the head supposed them to be, was it not the law of the universe that a man should first of all do his own work—look after his own? Was not his first duty to the woman who had trusted her life to him?

He took up Lilian's miniature, which stood on his writing table. The fair, sensitive face, untouched by care, looked up at him with smiling eyes, full of a woman's trust. He seemed to hear her voice:

"How did I come to care? I think, Lawrence, because you were the best man I had ever known."

And there came back to him the pledge he had made his father when first he went to college—the promise to follow his principles at any cost, wherever they might lead. Now, of all these principles the strongest, the most clearly defined, the one that so far had ruled his life, was the resolve never to ally himself in the smallest way with anything on which rested even the shadow of injustice—never to rise by trampling on another. If that was the price of success, he would do without "success."

"No," he said as he put back the miniature; "not even for you."

Then he remembered her letter, which he had not yet read. As he opened it he saw it was very different from any he had ever before received from her. Instead of a dainty, perfumed sheet, with writing as steadfast and serene as her own nature, this was blotted and hastily written. It was dated from her aunt's—she had been obliged to leave her position. In her agitation she gave him a glimpse into facts hitherto concealed. The monotony and dreariness of the life, the petty sights and annoyances—all these she had borne with silent courage. But now the son of the house had fallen in love with her. Her engagement had been no protection nor the fact that he himself was also engaged. His persecution had brought a crisis and a family scene. He had threatened to break his engagement, and she had left the house.

She told the story as if she could scarcely bear to put it into words, but Lawrence could read between the lines the insult and shame to which she had been exposed. He had never known her so shaken, not even under the shock of her father's death or of the difficult days which followed it. She had always seemed to him, like Spenser's Elizabeth, "settled so in heart" that she was ever ready "in the stay of her own steadfast might" for endurance or for action. Now, for the first time in their engagement, she sent for him, begging that if he possibly could he would come to her.

He could be with her by Sunday, and he could tell her that soon he would come for her to care for her and shield her always. If he did not do this, what was before her? And yet—and yet—should he tell her and let her decide? Coward thought, that. No; he had always lived his own life; he could not now begin to shirk. Besides, she trusted him absolutely. The question must be answered before he went to her.

Could it be that he was—as his friends have often called him—overnice and scrupulous, with an absurdly fantastic sense of honor? Was it not sometimes possible to neglect plain duty while following fastidious tastes that were dignified by the name of principles?

Where, now, for him lay the right?

An hour later he walked to the village, where he sent a telegram to Lilian and mailed a letter to the president of X. college.—New York Evening Post.

The Care of Goldfish.

Goldfish can be kept almost any length of time, accidents apart, if kept scrupulously clean. The air in the water is soon exhausted, and they should have fresh water every day; if possible, oftener in summer, though once will do if the globe is fairly large. One can usually tell when the fish require fresh water. They stand up on their tails, with their mouths to the surface of the water, and move slowly in that position, generally making a bubbling sound.

When you put the fresh water into the globe, let it dash in from a height, so that plenty of air gets in, too, and let your fish have a handful of shells or small stones.

People frequently make the mistake of thinking the fish get enough food out of the water. That is not so; they need feeding when in captivity. Packets of fish food, chiefly consisting of dried ants' eggs, can be procured from any seed or naturalist's shop.

It is said that goldfish should never be handled. This is no doubt true if they are kept for breeding purposes; otherwise it does them no harm—if due care is exercised—and you may pick them up one by one in your hand and pop them into their globe of fresh water.—London Standard.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Nov 17—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Missions: Preaching and hearing.—Rom. x, 13-17.

In this familiar passage we have Paul's argument for a worldwide extension of the gospel. He makes it in order to convince the Jews that the gospel should be sent to the gentiles. As is always the case with the apostle his argument is wonderfully logical and conclusive. No one should be able to read these verses and not be convinced of the absolute necessity of sending the gospel to all men. His argument is, God desires that all men shall be saved, and "whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved," but an invocation implies faith—"How shall they call on Him in whom they have not believed?" and faith implies knowledge and knowledge instruction, for "how shall they believe in Him of whom they have not heard?" and instruction implies teachers, for "how shall they hear without a preacher?" and teachers imply a mission, for "how shall they preach except they be sent?" Every link in this chain is complete, and the argument leads us to the overwhelming conclusion that missions and missionaries are absolutely necessary for the salvation of the world.

The necessity of preaching to hearing is evident to all. "How shall they hear without a preacher?" They cannot. Preaching is absolutely necessary to hearing. Therefore if we would have all men saved we must send preachers, missionaries, to them. How can we as Christians neglect or refuse to perform the great duty of sending missionaries to all men as far as we are able? Men cannot hear without preachers, and preachers cannot preach unless they are sent. Necessity is therefore laid upon the church to send them, and we should cheerfully do our part.

Preaching is not only a necessity to hearing, but is also delightful and joyous. Paul suggests this fact by quoting the ancient prophet's words, which declare the joy which should mark the approach of the messengers of peace and good tidings, "How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the gospel of peace and bring glad tidings of good things!" How joyous the day when the sound of the gospel shall be universally proclaimed! We should consider it a privilege and a pleasure to have a part in the ushering in of such a glad day.

Preaching as a necessity to hearing is not to be abandoned because all who hear do not believe. This has always been the case. It was so in Isaiah's day, for the prophet asked, "Who hath believed our report?" It was so in Christ's day, for Christ "came to His own, but His own received Him not." We are not to be disappointed, therefore, if all who hear do not believe, or argue missionary contraction from want of success. Failure on the part of some to believe is rather an argument in favor of missionary expansion. The more who hear the more will believe and be saved.

Preaching as a necessity to hearing is God's plan of extending the gospel. "Faith cometh by hearing and hearing by the word (command) of God." God commands us to preach that men may hear. "Go and preach" was Christ's commission to His disciples. It is still God's commission to the church. Hearing by preaching and preaching by sending is God's plan for making it possible for all men to believe in Him, and call upon Him that they may be saved. To shirk the responsibility of sending the preachers is, therefore, to go directly contrary to the will of God, which no one can afford to do.

THE PRAYER MEETING.

Have a special address by the pastor on the topic.

BIBLE READINGS.

Isa. lii, 7; Nah. i, 15; Matt. v, 11, 12; xxviii, 18-20; Acts i, 6-14; viii, 26-40; xiii, 1-3; xv, 25, 26; Rom. i, 14-16; ix, 1-3; Rev. xxii, 17.

Compared With No One.

We sometimes compare one man with another, but Christ can be compared with no one. He cannot even be described. Our ideal of Him is deficient. He seems like some new flower that an angel has brought from the skies. Planted in the earth, it is more lovely and fragrant than all others, and, besides, it never withers and dies—blooms and smiles with as much beauty amid the snows of winter as amid the finest surroundings of summer. Yea, Christ is like some new star that has appeared in the heavens, and so clear is its light and so radiant its glory that it stands forth among the stellar hosts as the central object, and because of its exceeding beauty men have come to call it the morning star of God.—John Reid.

Essentials of Salvation.

The essentials of salvation are, first, the renunciation of every known sin; second, the consecration of the neutral things and the good things to God—one must be willing to put at the disposal of God his time, money, influence, ambitions, pleasures, friends, etc.; third, one must depend entirely upon Christ for the cleansing of his heart and his preservation in the path of life; fourth, one must be willing openly to confess Christ as his Master.—B. Fay Mills.

World's Weapons.

God can work by any means. He can never be short of instruments. For His battles He can find weapons on the hearth, weapons in the kneading trough, weapons in the poor man's basket.—Episcopal Recorder.

Procrastination.

How mankind defers from day to day the best it can do and the most beautiful things it can enjoy without thinking that every day may be the last one and that lost time is lost eternity!—Max Muller.

GOT ONE STIFF PUNCH

It Was Enough For Ruhlin, and He Quit Fighting

BOUT LASTED FIVE ROUNDS

Akron Giant Intimates That He Was Unfairly Used by Jeffries, but Makes No Charges—Champion Himself Surprised at Outcome

San Francisco, Nov. 16.—In one of the most unsatisfactory prize fights ever witnessed in this country, James J. Jeffries proved the victor last night over Gus Ruhlin, the Akron giant. In the fifth round of what was to have been a 20-round contest, Ruhlin wilted and then surrendered to his peer, to the utter amazement and disgust of the assembled thousands.

JAMES J. JEFFRIES.

No one was more surprised at the outcome than Jeffries himself, who asserted that while he had delivered one telling blow in the second round he did not expect to win the victory so easily.

Almost from the beginning of the fight Ruhlin appeared frightened. The fight was practically finished in the second round when Jeffries landed a left hook on the jaw that took all the fight out of Ruhlin. Ruhlin claimed that a chance blow in the pit of the stomach rendered him unfit for fighting.

Ruhlin's seconds complained bitterly, but Ruhlin insisted that he was the victim of an accident. Jeffries walked to Ruhlin's corner, asked what was the matter, then turned in disgust and proceeded to his dressing room while the spectators rose as one man and cheered the champion while they denounced Ruhlin as a quitter and a fakir.

The police then tumbled into the ring and stopped two fights in which Corbett, the referee, and officers of the club were involved. The utmost excitement prevailed, during which Ruhlin made his way out of the ring.

Ruhlin's sole explanation of the outcome of the fight is that he received a chance blow which utterly disabled him and that Jeffries persisted in fighting him low. While Ruhlin will make no absolute charge of Jeffries having committed a foul, he intimated that he was unfairly handled and injured as a result. Ruhlin receives the support of his seconds, who say that his was a hopeless case after the second round.

When seen in his dressing room after the fight, Champion Jeffries said: "I was centainly surprised at my easy victory and Ruhlin's amazing defeat. While it is true that he did not punch me hard enough during the five rounds to cause me any alarm, I believed him strong and cautious up to the moment of his collapse and was surprised when he quit. I certainly had no difficulty in whipping him and had the fight gone on, the result must have been the same. Ruhlin was inaccurate and in poor wind, and I cannot say that he even had the courage and force I expected to encounter in him. Ruhlin took a stiff punch in the stomach in the fourth round which I presume gave him trouble; nevertheless I expected him to lose harder than he did."

When Ruhlin went to his dressing room he was followed by a very depressed retinue. The defeated man complained of no pain and moved about without assistance. He stated:

"I believed from the tap of the gong that I would win, but as the fight progressed I was beaten down until I received a blow on the stomach which I must say was very low, but which may not have been a foul, and which no living man could have survived. Jeffries departed from the written rules and from the common regulations of boxing when he threw himself upon me and wrestled rather than sparred. I do believe that had I not received the stomach punch which ended me in the fifth, I would have worn down Jeffries a few rounds later and beaten him as a matter of endurance. I am ready to fight him again and believe that in time I will have the opportunity of showing that I can defeat him. That is all I can say."

Natives Had to Pay Tribute

Pekin, Nov. 16.—The Chinese court has arrived at Kai-Fong-Fu, having left the people along its line of march half ruined by the contributions levied for entertainment, repairing of roads and decorations.

SHOT AT TRAIN HANDS

Unaccountable Action of an Italian With Plenty of Ammunition

Clinton, Mass., Nov. 16.—Frank Chibo, an Italian employe of Newling & Snowling, metropolitan water works contractors, three times held up a construction train on the firm's private railway yesterday afternoon, and each time he fired five revolver shots at the engine. Twice the bullets did no damage, but the third time the bullets peppered the cab and gave the train crew a fright. One bullet just missed the engineer, and broke window glass.

The train crew refused to have Chibo try pot shots at them for the fourth time, so a detail of police was asked for. Three Clinton officers then turned train crew and started down the track. Chibo saw them coming and did not wait to empty his revolver.

The temporary engineer opened up a link on the engine and as Chibo started along the track it promised to be a short chase. Chibo, however, went into a house near the track and the officers went in after him. A fight followed, but Chibo had to give in. He was locked up. His reason for his act is not known as he was not discharged and he had no grudge against the train crew.

Probable Fatal Shooting

Brockton, Mass., Nov. 16.—While two shoe operatives, Leroy Thorpe, 23 years old and Perley Ashley, 16, were returning from a hunting trip yesterday in Avon, Ashley stumbled and fell, and his gun was discharged, the contents entering Thorpe's head. Thorpe was brought to this city. Physicians say that it is almost imposible for him to recover. Ashley gave himself up, but was later allowed his liberty, the police being convinced that the shooting was without question purely accidental.

Troops Always In Readiness

Burlington, Vt., Nov. 16.—A glimpse of Filipino campaigning is given in a letter from Captain Alexander, who is now at Carigari, to a friend here. He says that his command of 150 men are trying to hold a territory 40 miles long and 20 miles wide, and the difficulty of the work, with the natives at all warlike, can well be imagined. The troops are constantly prepared, even while eating and sleeping, for a fight.

Sent to Insane Asylum

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 16.—John G. Smith, the negro indicted for manslaughter, in causing the death of Patrolman Gannett J. Cody of Arlington, was yesterday adjudged insane, in the Middlesex county court, and was ordered to be removed to some institution for the insane. Experts on insanity testified that Smith was undobutedly insane and recommended that he be sent to an insane hospital.

Bangor, Me., Nov. 16.—The funeral services of Very Rev. Michael Charles O'Brien, permanent rector of St. Mary's Catholic church in this city, vicar general of the diocese of Portland during the bishopric of Rt. Rev. James Augustine Healy, and afterward administrator, were held in his church yesterday, and were attended by one of the largest gatherings ever seen here.

Fifteen Cents More a Day

Springfield, Mass., Nov. 16.—Wages of the calender men in the George R. Dickinson, Nonetuck, George C. Gill, Waurregan and Linden divisions of the American Writing Paper company have been advanced. The advance is 15 cents a day, and the new scale now corresponds with the schedule of wages for calender men obtaining in other mills.

Will Be a Rare Sight

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 16.—A famous phenomenon—the conjunction of Saturn, Jupiter and Venus—will be observed at the Harvard observatory tomorrow evening. This planets will be situated in the southwestern part of the sky and will be visible shortly after sunset.

Schooner Is Missing

Portland, Me. Nov. 16.—Anxiety is felt here regarding the safety of the schooner Lizzie J. Clark, which sailed from here last Sunday, before the storm broke, for Portsmouth, N. H. Since that time she has not been heard from.

Lasters Want an Increase

Lynn, Nov. 16.—The lasters employed in the shoe factory of Miller & Riker, Oxford street, struck work yesterday for an increase in wages of ½ cent a pair that was refused.

To Assume Duties Today

Wahsington, Nov. 16.—The president signed yesterday the commission of Herbert Pierce of Massachusetts to be third assistant secretary of state. Mr. Pierce is expected to arrive at Washington today and assume his office. Mr. Cridler has terminated his connection with the state department as third assistant secretary, and has gone to St. Louis to confer with the exposition officials respecting his European mission.

Daring Robbery at Chicago

Chicago, Nov. 16.—Four masked highwaymen, who came up mounted on horses, held up the cashier's office at the Chicago American barns on Indiana street last night, defied six men who sought to frustrate them, and then secured $800 in money. After the theft the robbers fled toward the river district. Police officers were on the trail of the robbers within half an hour, but no arrests have been made.

Steel Corporation's New Plans

Pittsburg, Nov. 16.—There are unmistakable signs that the United States Steel corporation is going into the coal business here as elsewhere. A general bureau of mines and mining has been opened in Pittsburg with an experienced coal man in charge. Good information is to the effect that coal mines and options owned by constituent companies are to be developed in their respective localities.

TEUTONS AND BRITONS

German Army Officer Talks of Conflict With England.

VIEWS OF BARON VON EDELSHEIM

Claims One Hundred Thousand Men Could Be Larded on the English Coast In About Thirty Hours—Quick Naval Action Might Gain Temporary Success—As to War With Americans.

Considerable attention is attracted in Berlin by a pamphlet just published by Baron von Edelsheim, an officer in the chief general staff of the German army, in which he declares that Germany could throw 100,000 men on the English coast within a very short time. The baron put forward his statement as a matter of absolute certainty, and it is considered somewhat curious that he is permitted by his government to publish it, says the New York Sun. He also discusses the possibility of landing troops in Russia and France and proceeds to contemplate the hypothesis of a war between Germany and the United States.

He starts from the assumption that Germany must one day be involved in a conflict because the growth of her traffic and commerce is a source of danger to England. He holds the opinion that Germany might hope to secure some success at sea shortly after hostilities began, as the German navy would start mobilization first, but before long England would be able to set such powerful naval forces in action that Germany would be reduced to defensive tactics, in which success could not be reckoned upon. His paper proceeds:

"England's weakness is our strength. The land forces of the English army correspond neither in strength nor in quality with her position as a great power. England is convinced that every hostile invasion can be prevented by her fleet, but this conviction is not by any means well founded. Even if England after a time could set in motion great naval forces, those which would be ready at the beginning are not so overwhelming that an opponent essentially weaker at sea who has everything ready may not have a chance of scoring a temporary success. Germany must throw part of her land forces on the English coast and thus bring the conflict to an issue on land, where German troops are much superior to English."

After summing up the shortcomings of England's land forces the baron declares that only her present standing army and regular reserve can be counted on in case of sudden invasion, as the others would take a considerable time to mobilize. He observes:

"We must also take account of their slight fighting value compared with well trained German troops. The only troops ready in England for action are three divisions of the First army corps, about two divisions of the Second and a combined division of the Third, together with three cavalry brigades. The strength of an English division on a war footing is only 10,000 men, while a similar German division numbers about 16,000 men. Germany can transport six infantry divisions or one cavalry brigade and five infantry divisions to England in a very short time. How the operation could be carried out must not, of course, be explained here, but this can be said, that it can be done within little more than thirty hours in favorable weather from German harbors in the North sea. Large tracts of the English coast furnish good landing places for troops, and the country itself has so many resources that an invading army could live on them for a long time. On the other hand, the island is not large enough to allow English troops to destroy a once victorious hostile army. It is unlikely that such a war would last very long, and considerable re-enforcements would, therefore, not be needed."

Novel Moose Call.

A new kind of moose call, says the Kennebec Journal, is in use down in Washington county. It is the whistling buoy near the entrance of Moosabec reach, and it is said to be the cause of the big bull moose which for several weeks has been known to frequent the shore in that section lingering in that vicinity. With the wind blowing from the east the blast of the buoy is heard several miles inland, and the sound at this distance is said by old hunters to closely resemble the trumpetings of a moose. It is alleged even that the wandering moose has been heard to respond with answering call when the sound of the buoy is heard.

Grewsome Find In Mexico.

Workmen employed in the Veladora mine, situated near Monterey, Mexico, recently opened up a large cavern by means of a tunnel. In it were found the skeletons of fifteen men, surrounded by ancient mining tools, says the New York Times. Piled up in the cavern were more than two carloads of horn silver and galena, with wire silver, all of great richness. The old Spanish records show that this mine was worked more than 200 years ago, and the skeletons are of miners who are supposed to have been suffocated by a cavein.

In Memory of Sir Walter Raleigh.

A project is on foot to erect a memorial to Sir Walter Raleigh in recognition of his services to mankind in introducing tobacco and the potato into Europe. The funds will be raised by public subscription. It is proposed to erect the memorial at Raleigh, N. C.

Perfectly Plain.

Uncle Rastus, who was seeking information concerning mushrooms, had been referred by a preternaturally solemn student to the professor of botany, and, with hat in hand, he was addressing that dignitary.

"Would yo' mind tellin' me, Mistah Mandrake," he said, "how to 'stinguish a mushaaroon f'm a toadstool?"

"Willingly," replied the professor. "In the first place, you must remember that the Amanita phalloides, or deadly agaric, closely resembles the Agaricus campestris, or edible fungus, which is our common variety and absolutely innocuous. Next, it will be necessary to fix firmly in your mind the distinguishing marks or characteristics of the Agaricus campestris, which are these: A pileus not covered with excrescence-like scales; gills of a brownish purple when mature; stalk solid and approximately cylindrical; ring near the middle of stalk; base not bulbous and not sheathed by membrane. The distinguishing characteristics of the Amanita phalloides, or deadly agaric, are these: Pileus destitute of distinct excrescences; white gills, hollow stalk; large ring and prominent bulb at base, with membranous upper margin. Bearing these points of differentiation fully in mind you will never be at a loss to determine which variety you encounter in any given case."

"Yes, suh," said Uncle Rastus, turning his hat round and round in his fingers. "I un'stan' dat all right, but how's I gwine to tell 'em apaht?"—Chicago Tribune.

His Foot Was In the Way.

A gentlemanly chap riding in an elevated car permitted the sight of a man's foot in the middle of the aisle to exasperate him to a most unreasonable degree. Women tripped over it. Men stepped over it. A few folk purposely dragged their feet against it as a hint. But its owner calmly read his paper and moved not. Finally, "I beg your pardon, my friend," said the gentlemanly chap, leaning down, his face set and teeth clinched, "but don't you think you are taking up more room than you are entitled to? Your foot has been in every one's way for half an hour. I protest, sir!"

The man folded his paper, remarking without the least show of anger: "Ah, thank you. I had not noticed it." With that he reached down, picked up his foot, gave it a violent twist and pushed it partly under the seat. To accomplish this he had to move his body to the edge of the seat.

On discovering that the leg and foot were wooden our gentlemanlike chap blushed in confusion, muttered a sort of apology and hurried off at the next station, while the car tittered.—New York Press.

Very Trying.

"Johnny," said a provincial grocer to the new boy, "what kind of butter did you send over to the Hendersons?"

"Some of the rolls here," said the new boy respectfully.

"Oh, great Cæsar!" groaned the grocer. "Sent 'em some of that good butter just after I have got 'em down to this here in the barrel! Sent 'em the best butter in the shop just as I finish a two years' course of getting 'em down to the barrel butter! Gave 'em a taste of good butter after I have got 'em to think this barrel butter was the best in the world! And still you say you hope to own a grocer's shop some day! The taste of that butter you sent 'em will awaken all their old slumbering desires for good butter, and I'll have to work another two years getting 'em down a little poorer each time before I get 'em where there's any profit on 'em again! You might just as well put on your coat and go. Groceries ain't your line!"—London Tit-Bits.

The Oldest Tree on Earth.

The oldest tree on earth, at least as far as any one knows, is the boo tree in the sacred city of Amarapoora, Burma. It was planted, the record says, in the year 288 B. C. Its great age is proved according to historic documents, says Sir James Emerson, who adds: "To it kings have dedicated their dominions in testimony of a belief that it is a branch of the identical fig tree under which Buddah reclined at Urumelva when he underwent his apotheosis." Its leaves are carried away by pilgrims as relics; but, as it is too sacred to touch with a knife, these leaves can only be gathered after they have fallen.

A Boston Rake.

Bertha—Tell me, Harry, do you think George is dissipated? I smelled cloves on his breath last evening, and I am afraid he drinks.

Harry—No, Bertha; he isn't dissipated. He's only just an ass; nothing more. He eats cloves to make people think he drinks liquor. He wants to be regarded as a deuce of a fellow, you know.—Boston Transcript.

He Didn't Die.

Laura—While Jack was here the other evening he made the statement that he would kiss me or die in the attempt.

Belle—Yes? (After a pause.) Well, did he kiss you?

Laura—You haven't read any account of Jack's death in the papers, have you?

Ancestors of the Ostrich.

The ostrich is a descendant of a genus of bird which in prehistoric times attained an enormous size. In the alluvial deposits of Madagascar evidence has been found to show that ostriches fourteen and fifteen feet in height once lived on the island.

Good Afternoon.

Congratulations, Fred. on your nomination for Mayor.

It is pleasing to many to have as candidates for Mayor gentlemen who are in business in Quincy.

The people are now thoroughly aroused and realize that the city of Quincy has reached a critical period. They will vote for and elect Frederick I. Jones as Mayor whether there are three, four or a dozen candidates in the field. A business administration is wanted, and Mr. Jones is the man to give it to Quincy. No encouragement should be given to any independent movement.

No one can truthfully charge that a nomination by roll call at a convention is an attempt at bulldozing. Instead of being an exception, the caucus law should make it compulsory if the present delegate system is to be continued. There is no comparison between it and the Australian ballot upon election day. The Australian ballot is to prevent the intimidation of an individual at the polls, who represents no one but himself and should be allowed to vote as his conscience dictates. A pledged delegate cannot consider himself wholly independent at a convention, and the examples are too frequent where candidates have been sold out by delegates elected in their favor. Mr. Bowker would never have been nominated at the recent Republican county convention if a roll call had been the method. The roll call is not new to Quincy. It was used at the Republican Representative convention last year, and it would have been better had it been used this year. Let all conventions in the future, not only municipal and representative, but county and senatorial as well; yes Congressional too, make their nominations by roll call.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Schools for fifteen million, and yet two and a third million voters can't read or write. Why vote then? All states are not Massachusetts. Furthermore, some states are weary of the name Massachusetts. If a new law is desired the chances are that some one will quote Massachusetts, as if she were the centre of all good things. It would be well, however, if other states should imitate the old Commonwealth as far as a requirement of reading and writing as a condition of voting, and then we should not see two and a third million of illiterate votes cast.—Sciolus in Milford Gazette.

☞ Last year the census enumerators returned a list of 6,005 public high schools in this country. Ten years previous the number of such schools had reached but 2,526. In 1890, 8,053 in each million of population in the United States attended public high schools, or private schools and academies of similar rank. In ten years the number of such students has increased more than a third, being last year 12,588 for each million of population. The increase is bound to continue with the advancing years, for the realization is spreading that a high school education is a necessary step in the development of the young men and young women of the twentieth century.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ There seems to be a wonderful amount of interest taken in the fact that Bridgeport, Conn., has elected a stoker for mayor. We are a democratic people, we try to make ourselves think, but as a matter of fact we are in some things very much like the people of the "rotten monarchies." We are astonished when a man wins a high office unless he is one of the "real people," and we cannot avoid showing our surprise. It was only the other day that a well-known Brocktonian intimated that in his opinion there ought never to be elected as mayor of any city any man who depended on the salary of the office for a living. This theory of course would bar all men from the office but men of comparative wealth. This idea is held, though not so frankly announced, by a good many other citizens; and they are not all men of means either. We are compelled to believe that there is a large percentage of the people in the country who are at heart aristocrats of the most aristocratic type. They are democratic simply because their surroundings compel them to affect American democracy. That's all.—Brockton Enterprise.

A YOUNG BUSINESS MAN

The Candidate of the Democrats for Mayor of the City.

Frederick W. Tirrell, the Carriage Manufacturer, Nominated.

No Other Names Presented to the Convention of Party Held Last Evening.

It was 8.15 when Chairman Wilson called the Democratic Mayoralty convention to order in Wilson's hall. At that time the small hall was well filled and the cigar and pipe smoke was so thick as to be almost suffocating.

Upon motion of ex-Mayor William A. Hodges, James F. Burke was elected chairman of the convention and George D. Cahill as secretary.

Upon motion of John A. Duggan, a committee of one from each ward was appointed on credentials as follows: Walter B. Wilson, Timothy J. Carey, William A. Kelley, William T. Shea, David J. Roche and Stephen H. Edwards.

The report was that the convention was entitled to 68 delegates, of which 56 were present, Ward Five not being represented.

The temporary organization was made permanent. John A. Duggan moved, and it was voted, to proceed to nominate Councilmen at large and School Committee at large, and that the nomination of Mayor be deferred until later.

Upon motion of William H. Sampson, Jr., the following were appointed to retire and report a list of Councilmen at large and School Committee at large: Luke J. Coyle, William H. Sampson, Jr., Patrick W. Driscoll, William P. Hughes, William J. Colligan and Elijah G. Hall.

They reported as follows:

Councilman at Large—
Ward One, A. F. Schenkelberger.
Ward Two, Harrison A. Keith.
Ward Three, Patrick W. Driscoll.
Ward Four, William H. Callahan.
Ward Five, William J. Colligan.
Ward Six, John A. Duggan.

School Committee at Large, Nathaniel S. Hunting.

This list was accepted and adopted. Then the vote was reconsidered and the report laid on the table until after the nomination of Mayor.

John J. Dugan of West Quincy then addressed the convention briefly. He said in part: "We are assembled here for a purpose. That purpose is to nominate a candidate for Mayor. It was his pleasure to suggest the name of a gentleman born in Quincy; who has spent his entire life here. One whose business integrity is beyond question. The name of that gentleman is Frederick W. Tirrell, and I move his nomination by acclamation."

Joseph Kennedy seconded the motion, which was carried.

The report of the committee on Councilmen and School Committee at large was then taken from the table. The name of A. F. Schenkelberger was stricken off, and the list then adopted.

The City Committee was empowered to fill vacancies.

Messrs, John J. Dugan, Joseph Kennedy and Elijah G. Hall were appointed a committee to escort the candidate to the hall.

When introduced, Mr. Tirrell said: "Gentlemen and friends, and brother Democrats.

It is with great interest that I accept the nomination as candidate for Mayor, and I will try to do the best I can to have a good and honest Democratic government if elected."

The candidates remarks was received with applause.

James H. Churchill was then nominated as School Committee at large to fill vacancy for one year term.

The convention was about to adjourn when Dr. John H. Ash addressed the convention. He looked for their candidates election. His word places himself in a good position. It was no more than right to talk the affair over; to see in what way we can help him; to mark out a basis of attack, etc.

Peter T. Fallon followed with one of his characteristic speeches. He felt that last year Ward Four got a set back. It showed poor leadership and that some one was negligent or there was treachery in the party. He claimed they should go out and fight for their party. He then made an attack on the Commissioner of Public Works, and claimed that the press shielded him, when poor Cavanagh did not build a gutter right, when he was Commissioner it was made public in the papers.

Thomas McDonnell thought it about time people should rise up. He knew no reason why taxes should be so high. We have nominated our mayor. I have voted the Democratic ticket 34 years, ever since I was naturalized. Now if we do not stand up for the Democratic principles, we had best go and join the Social Democrats or somewhere else. He knew many were lukewarm, but with the amount of taxes we pay, and the way money is oppropriated and the way the streets and public buildings are repaired, the money is not spent right.

Chairman Burke said: "We have nominated a man who is honest and whose integrity is beyond question. When you leave this hall, work for the candidate as it is your duty and you are bound to do. If elected, he will fulfil the duty of the office to the satisfaction of the people. Of late it has not been a question of mayor but who holds office. I am one who has held office in the past, but now wish to say that I am not looking for any office under the city government of Quincy. I say this so that if there is any feeling we may unite and elect our candidate." The convention at 9.30 adjourned.

Frederick W. Tirrell is thirty-eight years of age and was born, and has always resided in Quincy. He received his early education in our public schools, and afterward took a course in a Boston business college. Then he entered the employ of Tirrell & Sons, carriage builders, a firm established by his grandfather, Charles P. Tirrell, in 1822. Mr. Tirrell began at the lower round of the ladder and worked successively in each department of the factory and shops until he reached the office, thoroughly equipping himself with the details of the business so that upon the death of his father, the late C. Philip Tirrell in 1892, he was able to assume without the slightest embarrassment and with full confidence of those with whom the firm had business relations the entire management of the business. Since that time he has been sole proprietor until last year, when the business and labor of management of same having increased to such an extent during his ownership it was decided to become incorporated. This was done and Mr. Tirrell was chosen treasurer and manager and of course still has a controlling interest in the business. Mr. Tirrell has never held public office but is well posted on city affairs and his friends have strong hopes of his securing the election.

℞ Peptiron

℥ XII

(One Bottle)

Office of C. I. Hood Co.,
Lowell, Mass.

Peptiron is a neutral organic solution of iron in combination with nutrients and tonics—an entirely new and thoroughly scientific preparation, led up to by discoveries of eminent chemists in recent researches and experiments, and destined to make the name of Hood still more famous in the world of medicine.

Mr. Hood, during a period of over thirty years, has been in correspondence with the sick and ailing, and has acquired extensive knowledge of a wide range of diseases, their causes, symptoms, indications and proper treatment; and he has the satisfaction of knowing that his preparations, notably Hood's Sarsaparilla, have wrought thousands and thousands of radical and permanent cures.

Peptiron is recommended for conditions that are radically nervous rather than radically scrofulous or dependent on an impure state of the blood. There is perfect harmony between Peptiron and Hood's Sarsaparilla; and there are conditions in which both medicines should be taken.

Peptiron is especially indicated in anemia, neurasthenia, hysteria, unstrung nerves, neuralgia, mental and physical exhaustion and general debility; and is invaluable to all sufferers from nervous weakness indicated by paleness, poor circulation, cold hands and feet, indigestion, dyspepsia, and sleeplessness.

It establishes that healthy condition of the nervous system on which energy and endurance have been found to depend; and in this anemic and neurasthenic age, in which physical and mental breakdowns are common, and in which there are so many overworked and tired men and women, worn-out mothers, and congenitally nervous children, it is of wonderful value in every family.

Peptiron is non-astringent, does not cause constipation, nor injure the teeth. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD Co., Lowell, Mass. $1.

Note.—Peptiron is guaranteed to do what we say; if it does not, money will be refunded.

ON FIRST BALLOT.

Councilman Smith introduced Mr. Jones as "our next Mayor."

CANDIDATE ACCEPTS.

Upon being presented by Chairman Hultman, Mr. Jones spoke substantially as follows:

Mr. Chairman, Gentlemen and Fellow Republicans:

It seems you gentlemen have selected me to be your standard bearer at the City election. I will not say that your action is unexpected, because I certainly did expect it, and I am deeply grateful to you for the confidence and honor bestowed. If elected Mayor it will be my endeavor to do my best, so that none of you will regret the action you have taken tonight. It has been said that a man cannot be elected Mayor without making promises, but gentleman I have not made a promise, and have not caused anyone else to make a promise in my behalf. Without promises, I believe a man elected Mayor of our city will have a better chance to pick out good and capable men for the heads of departments.

I have heard it said, that because I was not born in this country, I could not be elected Mayor of the city; but I cannot believe that Quincy people will go back on an old stand-by like me. I came to this country when an child; I was educated in our public school; I played with the boys and was kicked about as other boys. I was no better than other boys. I assure you gentleman I was not born with a silver spoon in my mouth. When the call came in 1861 for defenders of our country, my brother and I enlisted. I say "our country" because it is as much my country as yours. My brother gave his life for our country, and I shed blood for my country.

For many years I have been a vice president of the Old 23d Massachusetts Regiment Association, as a representative of Co. H, a regiment of as determined fighters as ever went to the front. Nobody can question my loyalty to country.

It is 43 years since I came to this country, and I first lived in the family of my uncle, who was one of the original Republicans I imbibed the Republican principles and have never seen any good reasons to be otherwise than a Republican. I believe in Republicanism because it is a party of progress; because it saved the country from division. It must be admitted that I am a dyed-in-the-wool Republican.

For 23 years I have been in the granite business. Upon my return from the war I believe I "loafed" but six days. I have been fairly successful in my business; more so than I ever expected to be. Gentlemen, I am not a college educated man, but I think I have a good business education. Not in theory but in practice. If you want an orator for Mayor you have made a mistake in selecting me.

It has been said that no granite manufacturer could be elected Mayor of Quincy. I don't believe it. The firm of McGilvary & Jones have been long established and I think I can honestly say they have used their cutters well. Ward Three, my home ward, the laboring men are in a large majority, but I have no fault to find with the action of the recent Republican caucus.

Gentlemen, I want to shake hands with every delegate before he leaves the hall. I thank you again for the honor you have conferred on me.

But I had almost forgotten to say a word for President Jameson. You should keep him at the head of the Republican City Committee. He is perfectly agreeable to me and his resignation should not be accepted.

The speech struck a popular chord throughout, and at the close there was hearty applause, and cries of "What's the matter with Jones?" "He's all right."

At 8.48 the convention dissolved.

The republication of the following sketch from the Daily Ledger of Wednesday may have a new interest:

It is said that Frederick L. Jones is the promising candidate for the Republican nomination for Mayor. The excellent timber of which the first City Council of Quincy was composed has received many favorable comments. Frederick L. Jones was a member of that body, representing Ward Three with James Thompson and Thomas Curtis as his colleagues. He served on the Committees on Streets, Contracts, Fire Department and Police. He was reelected to the Council of 1889, serving on the same committees, but being advanced to chairman of the Committees on Fire Department and Police. In 1891 he was relected at large and became chairman of the Committee on Streets, Contracts, Lights, etc. It was near the close of his three years' service that Councilman Charles R. Sherman reviewed his work under the non-de-plume of "P. R. O'Gress," in the Daily Ledger as follows:

"Who will undertake to faithfully describe Councilman Jones? Certainly no man ever did or ever will enter the Council with a greater conscientious regard for duty than he. To say that he is never asleep poorly expresses his watchfulness. He is an all round man. Takes a hand in all legislation. He is not a Ward Three man, but tries to faithfully represent the entire city. He is a councilman-at-large. Although a stubborn fighter, he is certainly deficient in parliamentary skill and whether the cuticle of his opponent is as thick as a rhinocerous' hide or as tender as a spring chicken makes no difference to Mr. Jones. His blows come right from the shoulder, and woe be to the man who steps on his official toes. Perfectly honest and straightforward he expects every measure to be decided on its merits, forgetting that all legislation must be the result of some compromise. It is a well known fact that in the Street committee of 1890 Councilman Jones could have traded Water street for Hancock, West and Common; and can any one question the justice of such a 'understanding.' Every legislative vote of Councilman Jones during his three years of office has been the result of a clear conscience, and although he would undoubtedly have been more successful in his legislative career had he used more sugar and less vinegar, still the word 'job' will not stick to the back of Fred L. Jones. He refused an urgent appeal for renomination."

P. R. O'Gress.

Mr. Jones has since been one of the board of Sewerage Commissioners of the city. He obtained considerable prominence by his refusal to vote to transfer the sum of $5,000 to the Street Department during the term of Commissioner Cavanagh.

Mr. Jones was born in England in 1846. He came to Quincy when about fifteen years of age and attended our public schools. He was considerably under age when the War of the Rebellion broke out, but he enlisted promptly and served three years, not without wound. He was a corporal when mustered out. Returning from the war he became a stone cutter. Later he and James McGilvray established a granite firm, with works on Liberty street and they are today, among our successful manufacturers. Mr. Jones was married in 1868, and Dr. F. E. Jones, the Medical Examiner of this district, is his son.

An Appeal.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

Wanted—A wide awake representative, of the Society, for the Prevention of Cruelty to Dumb Ansmals. Apply immediately at corner Howard and Des Moines street, Quincy Point.

Residents of Howard street, and passers by are highly indignant, at the inhuman treatment of the horses, attached to the wagons hauling granite from Quincy to Fore River Ship and Engine Co. When the teams reach the rise on Howard street, between residences of Messers. Melbourne Chute, and C. Webster Newcomb, the loads often prove too great for the horses. The drivers resort to the free use of a club upon the poor animals which are willing to pull all and more than they are able. These poor horses need a friend, with authority for their protection. M. E. W.

The Christmas Delineator.

A fitting climax to a year of remarkable advancement is The Delineator for December, between the covers of which is contained a rare collection of special features of varied interest. The winter fashions are pictured and described in detail; there is a delightful article on the Floral Fetes of Japan, illustrated in colors; the home surroundings of several stage favorite are entertainngly presented and described; there are three splendid stories by well-known authors.

An article made by one's own hand is invested with a charm and sentiment that a purchased gift never brings. Five full pages are devoted to the illustration and description of holiday gifts that may be made at home. Every member of the household, and every part of the house, has been considered in these remembrances, which will appeal as much on account of their ease of construction as their beauty and their utility.

The illustrated cookery pages picture a variety of original dishes for the holiday. In the same number are given valuable hints and recipes with reference to the preparation and serving of the Christmas turkey. In addition will be found directions for an assortment of first-class confections that may be made over the kitchen fire in many home. The two games, A Soubriquet Social and a No L party for Noel-Tide will prove very useful during the Christmas season to the hostess whom friends surprise without a plan for their entertainment.

No Reduction.

The Gas and Electric Light Commissioners have rendered a decision against the petition of Mayor Hall for a reduction in the price of gas as charged by the Citizens' Gas Co. of Quincy. One member of the commission dissents and thinks a reduction of twenty cents should be made from the $2 now charged.

☞There will be an entertainment at the Park & Downs church next Monday evening, Nov. 18, at 8 o'clock. The talent will be Mr. and Mrs. Follett of Wollaston, vocalists, and Mr. John R. Anderson of Wollaston, Scotch reader. Admission twenty-five cents.

An English Author Wrote:

"No shade, no shine, no fruit, no flowers, no leaves.—November!" Many Americans would add no freedom from catarrh, which is so aggravated during this month that it becomes constantly troublesome. There is abundant proof that catarrh is a constitutional disease. It is related to scrofula and consumption, being one of the wasting diseases. Hood's Sarsaparilla has shown that what is capable of eradicating scrofula, completely cures catarrh and taken in time prevents consumption. We cannot see how any sufferer can put of taking this medicine, in view of the widely published record of its radical and permanent cures. It is undoubtedly America's Greatest Medicine for America's Greatest Disease—Catarrh.

"Last winter an infant child of mine had croup in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist, of Filley, Mo. "I gave her a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and in a short time all danger was past and the child recovered." This remedy not only cures croup but when given as soon as the first symptoms appear, will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

HOW IT WAS DONE.

Anti-Bryant Delegates Were True to Thier Constituents.

One of the most prominent anti-Bryant men in the recent contest was Councilman Eugene C. Hultman. As a member of the present City Council, striving honestly to do his duty, he has been rankled by the high-handed manner in which city business has been conducted. It was because of this disgust, that he early decided not to be a candidate for reelection. At the same time he decided to take off his coat and fight the aspirations of Mr. Bryant to become the Republican candidate for Mayor, and he has been prominent in the preliminary skirmish.

When interviewed this morning, as to how the delegates of Wards One, Two and Three came to vote for Mr. Jones so promptly and strongly, he reviewed the work both before and since the caucuses. He said:

A caucus of the delegates from Wards One, Two and Three, and Candidates Packard, Jameson and Jones, was held a The Greenleaf last Saturday night. At the outset all the delegates agreed not to vote for Mr. Bryant on any ballot at the convention but at the same time promised to support the nominee of the convention.

Candidates Packard, Jameson and Jones also agreed to abide by the action of the caucus of the evening.

The delegates then proceeded to ballot, and ballot after ballot was taken some fourteen in all and numerous suggestions and plans were considered. It was finally agreed by all present delegates and candidates that Frederick L. Jones should be supported unanimously as the candidate for Mayor.

Secrecy was enjoined on all present but it was not 24 hours after before some one well known gave away the whole proceedings. But the delegates continued solid, resisting all kinds of temptations and entreaties to vote false to the voters at the ward caucuses and to their compact. All weak spots were quickly strengthened, however and no one probably now regrets that he stood firm to his convictions. It is no secret now, that the method of procedure was all mapped out in advance of the convention. As this leaked out, the delegates of Wards Four, Five and Six were not taken unawares. Even on the motion for a roll call, it is apparent they were prepared to make a stubborn opposition but it was unavailing. The majority were against secrecy in the convention and wanted everything open, fair and square. A roll call is the only honest method of nomination in a convention.

OTHER INTERVIEWS.

Edward E. Jameson, one of the candidates for the Republican nomination for Mayor, appeared to be one of the happiest men in the city over the result of the convention. He tells the Ledger that he will take pleasure in making an active canvass to secure the triumph election of Frederick L. Jones.

It has been reported since the convention that Elisha Packard would take out independent nomination papers. When interviewed by the Ledger, Mr. Packard said: "The convention is over, and that settles it."

To Run Independent.

Charles M. Bryant, who was defeated in his attempt to secure the Republican nomination for Mayor is not satisfied at the result of the convention Friday night, and he will not give up his attempt to land in the Mayor's chair at City hall. His name will probably appear on the official ballot as a candidate for Mayor.

Hardly had the smoke of the convention died away when he took steps to get out nomination papers. Before 10 o'clock Mr. Bryant had taken out eight papers to circulate in the several wards as a "Citizen Independent" candidate. These papers were put in circulation early this morning. They must be filed with the City Clerk before 5 o'clock Wednesday night.

William T. Spargo has also taken out papers as a Republican Independent for Councilman from Ward Three.

The National Period of American Literature

BY LORENZO SEARS, LIT. D.,

Professor of American Literature in Brown University.

VI.—The Knickerbocker Group.

No writer of Irving's genius could spring up in a barren age without inspiring such mediocre talent as might be inclined to lethargy. The mere stirring of fallow ground will send up unsuspected growths, and the awakening which the keen humorist gave the drowsy men of Manhattan started a crop of letters among other effects of the shock. If the name of the Knickerbocker school be too large for the little group of authors who followed Diedrich, the historian, afar, it may be said that the term was applied to less dignified objects in the day of its immense popularity and to more worthy ones since.

The New York Evening Post had been established in the first year of the century with a hospitable policy toward letters, as well as a critical spirit which enhanced the honor of appearing in its columns. To gain admittance to them was next to having a book published. On the street and in coffee houses were knots of young men with corresponding ambitions notwithstanding the commercial bias of the city and the material bent of the age. Foremost among them was a banker's clerk who was not so far lost in arithmetical figures that he could not appreciate poetical and even wished that he might "lounge upon a rainbow and read Tom Campbell," a sentiment with which a bystander agreed. In this way Fitz-Greene Halleck and Joseph Rodman Drake became acquainted in the spring of 1819, the beginning of a literary companionship as intimate as it was brief, for Drake died the next year.

Judged by what he had begun to do, this young poet was cut down at the opening of a promising career. His early essays found their subjects for satire in the topics of the town, but descriptive and patriotic pieces soon followed, the address to the American flag deserving a higher place than all that have succeeded it. A more remarkable feat was the production in two or three days of "The Culprit Fay" in refutation of an assertion that it would be difficult to write a fairy poem purely imaginative without the aid of human characters. He accomplished this work with no nearer approach to humanity than in these two lines:

For an Ouphe has broken his vestal vow;
He has loved an earthly maid.

The rest is the fanciful account of the consequences of such a high misdemeanor, full of delicate art and the traceries of an imagination at home with the hidden things of nature, itself idealized and peopled with intelligences of the poet's own creating. It is the midsummer night's dream of an airy fancy.

The entire poem should be the delight of children who dwell on the border land of the seen and the unseen.

Halleck survived to write an elegy upon his friend, which shows how far the art had progressed since the days of Mather; also to continue the strain of American verse which the two friends had joined in contributing to the columns of The Evening Post. Afterward he was stirred by the wrongs of suffering Greece to lift up the voice of freedom in "Marco Bozzaris." Whoever has lost a friend of his youth will associate with the recollection of his sorrow the lament of Halleck for his companion, beginning:

Green be the turf above thee,
Friend of my better days!
None knew thee but to love thee
Nor named thee but to praise.

Clement C. Moore has a place among the writers who were inspired by Dutch traditions to produce a Knickerbocker literature. No doubt the theological professor expected to rest his fame upon the first Hebrew and English lexicon compiled in this country or upon his version of Lavardin's "History of George Castriot." Instead, when he is placed among the immortals it will be in recognition of his "Visit From St. Nicholas," which all children know begins:

'Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the house
Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse.

Gulian C. Verplanck was a New Yorker whose services to literature entitle him to mention. First a lawyer, then a politician and afterward a lecturer in divinity, his pen was seldom idle. "Essays on Revealed Religion" and the "Doctrine of Contrasts" were the more substantial results, while "The State Triumvirate" and "The Ceremony of Installation" are in a lighter vein. As a member of congress he was prominent in obtaining the extension of the term of copyright from 28 to 42 years. Later he was associated with Sands and Bryant in The Talisman, a publication containing some of the best writing of the time. In his addresses on art, history and literature and "The Influence and Use of Liberal Studies," and especially on "The American Scholar," he anticipated some of the more recent essayists and orators who have made kindred themes the subjects of high discussion.

William Cullen Bryant may be considered as an adopted member of the Knickerbocker group since he was not born in New York, but on the Hampshire hills of western Massachusetts. However, he was not long in finding his way to the metropolis and to the little circle which made it the literary center of the country at the time. A copy of Irving's "Knickerbocker" had traveled into the lonely village where young Bryant was reading law and gave him a taste of what was possible in lower latitudes. Hitherto his reading had been among the professional books of his father's medical library, varied by the Latin poets, the Greek Testament, Watts' hymns, Pope's "Iliad" and an unusual number of English classics for that period. But meter and rhyme were a part of his nature and blossomed out in juvenile verses, religious and political, to the delight of his father and to his own subsequent chagrin.

To these there were two notable exceptions, left at home when he went away to practice law in Great Barrington. His father found them one day six years afterward when rummaging in a drawer, read them himself and to a neighbor and without asking his son's permission started posthaste for Boston and the editor of The North American Review, then a two-year-old magazine.

If this overland journey of 100 miles was a remarkable instance of paternal pride, there was something to warrant it, for one of the poems was, "Thanatopsis" and the other "An Inscription Upon the Entrance to a Wood." The first of these was enough to establish the youth as a poet of no common order. It came to a reflective people in an age when the shadow of gloom had not entirely passed, having a sad note that appeals to every reader in sober days and raising visions of the sublimity, majesty and vastness of the universe which bring a pleasing awe to the soul of man in the presence of infinity and futurity. It is a poem of the intellect rather than the heart, grand, austere, solemn, a funeral anthem of the human race.

The golden sun,
The planets, all the infinite host of heaven,
Are shining on the sad abodes of death
Through the still lapse of ages.

But he wrote other poems that readers like better than this requiem of the universe, and in them all is the note of nature, struck by a sympathetic observer not of her gracious moods alone, but of the severe and fateful as well. Out of them all, however, he drew lessons of truth or beauty or morals. He finds the law of guidance in the flight of the lone waterfowl across the December sky and of hope in the fringed gentian blossoming on the border of winter. "The Forest Hymn," "The Death of the Flowers," "The Song of the Lover" and others longer or shorter are charged with the bloom of summer and frosts of winter and tinted with the hues of spring and autumn. He inclines to the last season with the sober inheritance from a Puritan ancestry and writes:

The melancholy days are come, the saddest of the year,
Of wailing winds and naked woods and meadows brown and sere.

Yet into "The Little People of the Snow" he has put a sympathetic strain, such as is not always found with eulogists of winter and never with shivering grumblers about it. But then he survived the rigors of 20 Cummington winters before he went to New York and the sultriness of as many summers and thereupon could also write:

The quiet August noon has come.
A slumbrous silence fills the sky;
The fields are still; the woods are dumb;
In glassy sleep the waters lie.

Open the volume of 116 poems anywhere and some phase of nature is presented, usually in her quiet majesty. Sometimes patriotic and national strains appear, as in "The Song of Marion's Men," "The Green Mountain Boys," "Our Country's Call" and "O Mother of a Mighty Race," but the return is speedy to "The White-Footed Deer," "The Hunter of the Prairies" and "The Death of the Flowers." He is pre-eminently the poet of the woods and waters, of earth and sky, of summer and winter, of the times and seasons, the days and the years.

Bryant's verse will always have its own charm for New Englanders and for their descendants, wherever they may live. They love the moods of nature with which the fathers played and fought by turns. The viking blood in their veins still makes them sing:

The winds from off the Norseman's hills
Do shriek a fearsome song;
There's music in the shrieking winds
That blow my bark along.

Besides, there is in his poems the flower of that imagination which, in spite of his pretended indifference, was in the Puritan's soul. It finally blossomed out early in this century like a crocus on the sunny edge of a snowdrift in northwestern Massachusetts. It reveled in the solemn, the sublime, the severe, as the forefathers had for 200 years. Moreover, the first great poet had all their conscientiousness in his performance of his task, even if he did break with their Calvinism. His measure is exact, his rhyme is perfect, and, more than all, his moral tone is without a flaw. There are in it both strength and health.

OBSTACLES IN THE WAY

Of New Reciprocity Negotiations With Canada

MICHIGAN HAS OBJECTIONS

To Treaty Which Allows Imports of Such Things as Our People Produce In Abundance—Strong Opposition to Making Concessions

Washington, Nov. 16.—As an example of the sort of opposition which the Canadian reciprocity proposal encounters an interview of Senator Burrows of Michigan of the finance committee in a newspaper here may be of interest.

"Any legislation in regard to reciprocity with Canada," he is quoted as saying, "would have to be very carefully framed to suit the people of Michigan. Their experience under the last treaty was very unsatisfactory. The statstics which were republished by the treasury department in the monthly summary for September are significant in connection with Canadian reciprocity.

"The last year the old treaty was in effect Canada exported to the United States $48,137,599. We exported to Canada in the same year $23,439,115. Our exports to Canada were actually less for that year than they were in the fiscal year of 1854, before the treaty with Canada took effect, while the imports from Canada for the fiscal year 1866 were nearly six times as great as those of the fiscal year 1854, before the treaty took effect. But what is worse, the imports from Canada under the treaty were all natural products, farm products and such other things as our people produce in abundance. The people of Michigan do not want another such reciprocity treaty as that, with Canada or any other country.

"As to reciprocity in general," the senator continued, "what the Republican party believes in is reciprocity on the lines of the national platform, which declared in favor of opening our markets on favorable terms for what we do not ourselves produce in return for free foreign markets. Reciprocity on those lines would be welcomed, but when we undertake to exchange knit goods, manufactured in the United States, for the same class of goods made in France, we get into deep water."

Another illustration of senatorial opinion is afforded by the views of Mr. Gallinger, senior senator from New Hampshire, who called at the White House yesterday. He is opposed to any change whatever in the tariff through reciprocity or otherwise. He particularly opposes the Canadian reciprocity project. "We sell three times as much to Canada as the Dominion sells to us," said he at the White House. "Why should we make concessions? In my opinion there will be no reciprocity treaty with Canada. I was in Toronto recently and heard Sir Wilfred Laurier say in a speech that Canada was through with sending delegates to Washington looking for trade concessions. He said that if negotiations were to be resumed we would have to take the initiative."

Senator Gallinger is not disturbed by the growing surplus in the treasury and would oppose any legislation looking to its reduction. With a shipping subsidy bill which he warmly favors, and a Nicaraguan canal, liberal pensions and similar disbursements, he believes that the surplus question will take care of itself.

The announcement that Charles A. Moore, president of the American Protective Tariff league, had reconsidered his purpose to attend the reciprocity convention next Tuesday, is regarded as significant. Mr. Moore, it will be recalled, made the California trip with President McKinley, and it is believed was influential in modifying the late president's tariff views in the direction of a wider share in the world's trade. Mr. Moore was looked on as one of the leaders in the new movement within Republican ranks for tariff liberalization, but the reason assigned for his not coming to the convention, fear that it will be controlled by free traders, indictes the cautiousness with which all reciprocity movements will need to proceed.

Expect to Be Soon Released

Berlin, Nov. 16.—The Lokal Anzelger publishes a despatch from Sofia to the effect that the husband of Mme. Tsilka has received a letter from his wife in which she says Miss Stone and she are still alive, but suffering great hardships. Mme. Tsilka expresses a belief that they both will be released shortly at or in the vicinity of Salonika.

IMPORTANT QUESTIONS

Being Considered In the Revision of the Bankruptcy Law

Binghamton, Nov. 16.—Congressman George W. Ray, who is chairman of the house judiciary committee, which has charge of the revision of the bankruptcy law, and Royal A. Gunnison of this city, secretary of the National Association of Referees in Bankruptcy, are hard at work drafting a revision of the law to present to congress this winter. A circular letter, with the bill revising the bankruptcy law which was introduced by Congressman Ray at the last session, has been sent to the principal business men throughout the union, with a request that they offer suggestions or modifications. As a result 15,000 answers have been received, and many of the letters include important practical suggestions which will be incorporated in the new bill. One of the important questions being considered is: Should partial payments on account within four months of a bankruptcy, but without intention on the part of the debtor to prefer the creditor, or without acknowledgement on the part of the creditor that the debtor is insolvent or making a preference, be preferences which must be surrendered before the creditor can prove the unpaid portion of his claim, as is now held by the courts; or should the law be so amended that such payments may be retained, unless received with reasonable cause on the part of the creditor to believe that the preference was intended? The answers to these questions will be tabulated and submitted to the judiciary committee.

Democrat For Corporation Counsel

New York, Nov. 16.—Mayor-elect Seth Low has announced his first appointment, that of George L. Rives to be corporation counsel. Mr. Rives has accepted, and this place in the new city government is therefore settled. Without having taken any active part in politics, he was appointed assistant secretary of state under Secretary Bayard in President Cleveland's time. When Seth Low left the rapid transit commission, Mr. Rives was appointed in his place, which he now holds; and once when Mr. Low was reported to be about resigning the presidency of Columbia, Mr. Rives was spoken of for that position. He is now a trustee of Columbia, a director of the Metropolitan opera house, a member of the executive committee of the Bar association and one of the trustees of the public library.

Fighting the Tobacco Trust

New York, Nov. 16.—The fight of the Universal Tobacco company against the tobacco combine, as the American Tobacco is popularly called, is being pushed forward vigorously. One trouble that all the independents have encountered has been the difficulty in inducing retail dealers to handle their wares on account of contracts entered into by the retailers with the American company by which the former were compelled to make exclusive purchases from the combine. In order to overcome this disadvantage the independent concern has adopted the policy of buying or establishing retail stores in which to sell its products directly to the public.

Taxation Question Going to Congress

Washington, Nov. 16.—At the cabinet meeting yesterday the president and cabinet talked over a number of appointments under the various departments of the government. Except where there is some urgent reason for immediate action no appointment is to be made until congress meets. The message to congress is practically completed. It is understood that the president will make no direct recommendation on the subject of taxation. He will lay the situation before congress and call attention to the recommendations of Secretary Gage, but he will not make any direct suggestion.

Won't Trust Newspapers

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 16.—Mr. Bryan issued a call in yesterday's Commoner to his followers to organize debating societies. He says that it is plain that there must be a large amount of educational work done to promote the principles for which they are contending. The large daily newspapers cannot be relied upon for this, because they are too intimately connected with the men and the corporations enriched by Republican policies.

May Be a General Hanging

Leavenworth, Kas., Nov. 16.—The condition of F. B. Waldrupe, the federal prison guard who was shot during the mutiny last week, has taken a turn for the worse and his death is probable. Should his death occur all the convicts will be tried for murder and if convicted may be hanged. Otherwise, they can only be tried for mutiny.

Many Killed by Earthquake

Tiflis, Nov. 16.—Erzoroum has again been visited by an earthquake. Altogether there were 50 shocks, 10 of them being very violent. Twenty-two persons were killed and many buildings destroyed. The panic-stricken populace is camping in the fields. The public offices are closed.

ROBBED SAVINGS BANK

Two Trusted Officials Missappropriated About $60,000

THEY GAMBLED IN STOCKS

Receiving Teller, the Oldest Employe of the Institution, Confesses, Implicating the Paying Teller, Who Died Two Weeks Ago

New York, Nov. 16.—Defalcations amounting, it is said, to $60,000, have been discovered in the accounts of the Williamsburg Savings bank, an institution conducted at Williamsburg, in the surburbs of Brooklyn.

General J. V. Meserole, the president of the bank, is authority for the statement that the parties implicated in the affair are Harry E. Corbett, a former paying teller of the bank who died Nov. 2, and George Zollinhofer, a receiving teller, who, it is alleged, gave the first information leading to the discovery.

The bank is fully protected, it is said, by the bonds of both Corbett and Zollinhofer. Harry E. Corbett had been in the employ of the bank for 18 years, and was deemed a man of exemplary habits and not the slightest suspicion attached to him up to the time of his death.

According to General Meserole, on Friday of last week, Zollinghofer went to Cashier Burns and confessed to him that he (Zollinghofer) and Corbett had taken funds from the institution for the past two or three years, for stock gambling, and that so far as he could estimate the amount which had been lost was between $50,000 and $60,000. Burns had Zollinghofer repeat his confession to President Meserole and a meeting of the trustees of the bank followed.

The examination was not concluded that day, nor is it yet concluded, but irregularities enough have been found to show that Zollinghofer did not exaggerate the extent of the defalcations. Until the examination is finished and presented to the trustees no statement can be officially made.

After making his confession Zollinghofer placed himself in the hands of the trust companies and he is aiding them in their investigation of the books. He was, with one exception, the oldest was, with one exception, the oldest employe of the bank, having been with years old.

Corbett died in his apartments in a Brooklyn hotel on Nov. 2. He and his wife were highly respected. He ventured out too soon after an attack of typhoid malaria and contracted pneumonia.

The depositors are in no danger, as the bank has a surplus of over $8,000,000 above the deposits of $40,000,000.

So far as could be learned Zollinhofer has not been arrested and it is understood that he will merely be kept under surveillance while he is aiding the bank to untangle its accounts.

Medals For Heroes

Washington, Nov. 16.—The only gold medal authorized by congress for heroic conduct during the war with Spain was forwarded yesterday to Lieutenant Frank H. Newcomb, now located at Patchogue, N. Y. During the Spanish war Lieutenant Newcomb commanded the revenue cutter Hudson and rescued the officers and crew of the torpedo boat Winslow from a very perilous position off Cardenas, Cuba, while the action of May, 11, 1898, was in progress. Each of the officers under Lieutenant Newcomb was awarded a silver medal and each member of his crew a bronze medal.

Series of Further Disasters

London, Nov. 16.—The tale of wrecks due to the recent gale is not yet complete. It has been ascertained that as many as four more vessels foundered at the mouth of the Tyne during the storm Wednesday night with all hands, according to the evidence of the coast guards and the wreckage washed up. It is feared also that a small steamer from Ayr to Dundalk, Ireland, has been lost with eight hands. The body of the captain has been washed ashore.

Why Boers Are Dying Off

London, Nov. 16.—The war office has issued a 400 page bulebook of the official reports on the conditions of the concentration camps in South Africa. The general drift of the report attributes the high mortality in these cases to the dirty habits of the Boers, their ignorance and prejudices, their recourse to quackery and their suspicious avoidance of the British hospitals and doctors.

Ear hquake Caused a Scare

Buena Vista, Colo., Nov. 16.—This town and surrounding country experienced an earthquake shock yesterday which lasted several seconds. Many people rushed from their residences, fearing their homes would be demolished. Many huge boulders on Mount Princeton and Mount Harvard were dislodged and rolled down the sides of the mountains.

Feminine County In Texas

Dallas, Nov. 16.—Governor Sayres received a letter yesteray from F. W. Seabury, a member of the legislature, saying that the people in Seapota county are starving. There is no chance to raise any kind of crops there earlier than next April or May. Relief supplies will be sent at once.

Troublesome Germans

Shanghai, Nov. 16.—The disorderly conduct of the German troops is causing much trouble. Recently there have been numerous cases of assault upon the Chinese police and people, which the German officers seem powerless to prevent.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Scarcity of Railroad Cars the Only Drawback to Business

New York, Nov. 16.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: A few months ago injury to the corn crop aroused fears that the railroads would be seriously handicapped by the loss of tonnage, yet the season of grain traffic has not only failed to produce decreased earnings, but there is such a scarcity of rolling stock and motive power that numerous industries are badly demoralized. In so far as these interests are concerned the reduction in corn freight proves a blessing. Railway earnings in October were 11.3 percent greater than last year and 21.2 percent over 1899.

A healthy demand is reported throughout the country in all leading lines of merchandise, while sales of winter goods have attained normal proportions and holiday business promises to surpass all records. In manufacturing there was never before such well sustained activity, with contracts running past the middle of next year. This is especially true in the case of steel rails and many other products of iron, while in building felt, footwear and most textile branches there is little prospect of idleness. Money circulates freely, making collections satisfactory in most sections.

Train Robber a Texas Man

St. Louis, Nov. 16.—In the minds of the St. Louis police there is no longer any doubt that the Montana train robbery suspect is Ben Kilpatrick of Paint Rock, Tex. A letter containing an authentic picture of Kilpatrick was received yesterday from Sheriff House. The likeness between the face in the picture and the face of the prisoner is unmistakeable. Within 10 minutes after the photograph was shown him a telegram was received from the sheriff of Ballinger county, Tex., saying that the picture of the supposed Longbaugh had positively been identified there as that of Ben Kilpatrick.

Rathbun will Keep Silent

Jeffersonville, Ind., Nov. 16.—It is probable that the public will hear nothing more soon directly from Newell C. Rathbun for two reasons. A lawyer whose serices he has secured since his arraignment has enjoined him not to talk, and Judge Marsh has directed that no one shall see the prisoner, except upon an order of the court. Newspaper men are barred. Sheriff Rave says Rathbun was questioned by his lawyer yesterday and held to his last story, admitting everything save that he gave poison to Goodman.

Shooting Stars Galore

Northfield, Minn., Nov. 16.—Professors and students of Carlton college recorded and charted more than 1600 meteors Thursday night. The shower began about 11:30 o'clock and continued until sunrise. The climax was reached at 5:18:02, when a brilliant meteor was seen to enter the constellation of Hydra. By accurate determination the trail persisted for 22 minutes. Several thousand large leonides were seen at Goodsell.

To Abolish Tinned Food

Paris, Nov. 16.—La Liberte asserts that 2,000,000 francs' worth of deteriorated American tinned foods have been discovered among the military stores at Verdun. Minister of War Andre has consequently ordered all tinned food among army stores to be sold, on the ground it would be better to have no stores at all than to depend upon canned provisions which would be found to be bad at the outbreak of a war.

Stole While In Prison

Ossinging, N. Y., Nov. 16.—Henry Norton, who escaped from Sing Sing last Wednesday, was captured yesterday at Bedford. Norton, who was serving a term for burglary, was treated as a trusty. Taking advantage of this he stole jewelry from the rooms of the prison officials and finally a suit of clothes, belonging to the warden. Dressed in these clothes he passed the guards and escaped.

More Serious Than First Reported

Bluefield, W. Va., Nov. 16.—The latest reports from the Baby mine disaster at Pocahontas, Va., show that up to noon yesterday nine bodies had been recovered and it is believed that 15 more yet are in the burning mines. Fire companies from the surrounding towns have been called upon to assist in extinguishing the flames.

Old Story Revived

Washington, Nov. 16.—The rumor that Postmaster General Smith is soon to retire from the cabinet, and that his portfolio will be given to ex-Senator Wolcott of Colorado, has been revived and a date shortly after congress convenes is mentioned as the time of Mr. Smith's retirement. He refuses to answer any inquiries.

One Killed, Seven Injured

Chicago, Nov. 16.—The walls of a new power house being erected for the University of Chicago suddenly collapsed yesterday, killing one man and injuring seven others, all workmen. Most of the injuries consisted of broken limbs and serious bruises.

Contract Goes to Dady

Havana, Nov. 16.—The municipal council unanimously voted last night to award Michael J. Dady the contract to pave and sewer Havana at his reduced bid of $10,913,858.06.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Sunday, Nov. 17.
Sun rises—6:57; sets—4:21.
Moon sets—9:57 p. m.
High water—3 a. m.; 3:15 p. m.

The storm which has persisted in the northeastern part of the country is slowly filling up. Snow will continue in the mountain districts of New England; elsewhere fair weather will prevail. The temperature will continue low for the season. On the coast fresh westerly winds will diminish, becoming light.

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

President Roosevelt's Way of Doing Business.

MORE DIRECT THAN M'KINLEY'S.

Chief Magistrate Works Vigorously, Has an Effective Method of Terminating an Interview—Decoration of Maximilian Found In a Washington Pawnshop.

President Roosevelt's way of doing business is very different from that of any of his predecessors, writes the Washington correspondent of the New York Post. Considerable formality always attended White House conferences in the past. President McKinley sat at his desk in his executive office, and visitors were shown into the anteroom, where they waited until their turn came for an interview. Then they went before the president and set forth their business. He would listen, occasionally asking a question to bring out some new aspect, and when the visitor had completed his story Mr. McKinley would announce that he would take the matter under consideration. He seldom promised definite results or said what he would be likely to do. Later the caller would learn by mail or otherwise that the president had or had not done what he asked.

President Roosevelt's way is more direct. He has almost abandoned the inner room except for cabinet meetings, and most of the interviews are now held in the large room adjoining. During receiving hours this fills up until there may be forty or fifty persons in waiting. Mr. Roosevelt goes at his task with vigor. He will seize a caller by the hand, almost wring it off and frequently begin talking before the other has had time to state the occasion for his presence. "Glad to see you! Glad to see you!" he will exclaim. Possibly it will be an old acquaintance, and Roosevelt will direct a few lightning questions at him. "What regiment? Oh, yes. Knew your brother. How's Sam? When did you get back?" It may chance to be a congressman in search of an appointment for a constituent. "Can't do it! Can't do it! All full! Mighty sorry! Come again! Goodby! And the hopes of the congressman and constituent are blasted in a twinkling. With others he will argue more at length, but just as vigorously. The visitor will be making a nice little prepared speech, when Roosevelt will cut in: "Now, right there! That's where you are all wrong. It's like this"—And in a moment he is pounding one fist into the other palm and sweeping the air like a walking beam on the double quick.

His method of terminating an interview is effective. Out goes his hand. It grasps that of the visitor in an eager farewell which almost takes him off his feet. "Goodby!" And it is all done. Before this victim can recover the president is wringing the hand of a new one.

In a pawnshop in Washington a collector has just discovered a sash and decoration worn by Maximilian, archduke of Austria, who was placed on the throne of Mexico and ruled till his overthrow and death on June 19, 1867. The Austrian embassy is much interested in the discovery and has taken steps to communicate with Maximilian's relatives in Europe, who will doubtless wish to recover it. The sash is of blue and purple moire silk, and attached to it is the badge of the Order of Isabella in beautiful enamel. On the reverse side is the motto, "Al Merito y Virtudes." With the sash is the star of the order, eight pointed and surrounded by a laurel wreath. The whole is in the original shagreen case bearing the mark of the maker, who was jeweler to the imperial court at Vienna. The star and mountings are of silver, plated with gold and heavily enameled.

The wife of Maximilian, Carlotta, is still living, though hopelessly insane and confined in an asylum under the guardianship of the Austrian government. She is the daughter of King Leopold I. of Belgium. She was crowned queen of Mexico when her husband became king. The family relics fell into the hands of an unworthy scion of the illustrious family, who married a South Carolina woman. The man who pawned this sash used to be well known in Washington diplomatic circles. His habits were such that finally there was nothing he would not pledge in order to raise money.

Dr. Mary Walker of Washington, the eccentric woman suffragist, whose advanced ideas on the subject of woman's rights caused her to adopt man's attire many years ago, will not lose her pension because of her utterances regarding the assassination of the late president, says the New York Sun. This statement is made on the authority of Commissioner of Pensions Evans, who says that even if it could be proved that Dr. Walker had uttered the alleged treasonable sentiments there is no law under which she could be deprived of her pension. Dr. Mary Walker's husband was a soldier in the Union army and served with Sherman in the famous march to the sea.

The syndicate of western electric railroad men headed by Henry Everett of Cleveland, O., is making progress, it is reported, in the development of the enterprise it has in hand in Washington. As will be recalled, the syndicate acquired last spring the charter obtained from the legislature of Maryland authorizing the building of an electric road between Washington and Annapolis and from the latter place to Baltimore, says the Washington Star. Since then the work of surveying several tentative lines has been going on.

DIAMOND SHOAL LIGHTSHIP

Being Provided With a Light That May Be Seen Forty Miles Away.

An experiment of great interest to the lighthouse system of the world is to be made on the Diamond Shoal lightship when she is placed on her station next December, through which the officers of the lighthouse board expect to project a great thirteen inch beam of light from the sea to the sky, which will be visible to mariners from thirty to forty miles, says a Washington dispatch to the New York Sun. The cluster of white electric lights now shown from the masts of the lightship have a visibility of only thirteen miles, and it is proposed that shipping passing Hatteras may be able to pick up the lightship three times the distance by the powerful beams of light playing on the heavens. The secretary of the lighthouse board believes, if the test is successful, that it will play a most important part in the lighthouse system and will be applied to all lightships of the future.

The apparatus now being fitted to the Diamond Shoal lightship at Baltimore will project a beam straight toward the sky, and the rolling ship in the rough waters off Hatteras will play it about in wigwag fashion and naturally attract attention. Warships have been known to maintain communication for thirty miles wigwagging their searchlights. Officers of the lighthouse service believe it will be possible to employ a searchlight system on lightships by which the locality of the vessel may be discovered fifty miles away under favorable weather conditions. It is contended that as a guide to mariners the new system, throwing a thirteen inch beam light into the dome of night, will be as far in advance of the electric beacons of the first order as the beacons were ahead of oil lamps.

NEW GIANT AMONG STATES

America Is Bent on Transforming World, Russian Paper Says.

The Russian editors write about President Roosevelt and the United States almost every day. Nearly all the papers are sympathetic and many display accurate insight into American affairs.

The Bourse Gazette says:

"The statesman who has unexpectedly assumed the reins at Washington is the perfect type of the American of today, and before him lies a wider horizon than any of his predecessors enjoyed.

"Between the United States of our day and the republic of which the history of the last century told us there is little in common. The classic land of freedom, the country which has developed its prosperity to wonderful dimensions and which has realized the boldest Utoplas and the most daring theories of political and social liberty, the great transatlantic republic terrifies the imagination of Europeans. It is a new giant, a state which the latest events have made a world power, a state which has transformed itself to the point of unrecognizability and is bent upon transforming the whole world, proclaiming through its new chief magistrate that the word of the United States shall have due weight everywhere where economic and political questions are decided."

NEW FOOD FOR STOCK.

Satisfactory Experiments In the Growth of the Cassava Plant.

Mr. C. Menalas, a well known cotton buyer of Jackson, Miss., who owns a valuable farm in Lincoln county and on which he has conducted many valuable experiments during past years, has recently turned his attention to the cassava plant and now has samples on exhibition at the state treasurer's office in Jackson. Mr. Menalas secured the seed from Florida and planted it during the month of May, which was a month or two too late. But the result, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, has been highly satisfactory.

On a single plant there is at least a peck of large, fine roots which look and taste very much like the sweet potato. From this first year's growth Mr. Menalas is confident he has sufficient seed or joints to plant two acres next year, and he does not doubt it will produce something like 600 tons to the acre, perhaps considerably more. If it does, the problem of how to produce cheap meat in the south is settled for all time to come, as a pound of the cassava is known to be equal to two pounds of corn for fattening purposes.

Going Abroad For Potatoes.

The potato crop of the United States is almost a complete failure this year, and our produce dealers will have to look abroad for their stocks, says the New York Commercial. The importation of potatoes has already begun, large cargoes having reached here from Holland and Germany. Experts believe that large importations will have to come from Europe before winter closes. Precisely how bad the American crop will be cannot be absolutely known for several weeks, but the last government crop report estimated it at 58 per cent of the ordinary crop. It is not only poor in quantity, but it is poor in quality.

The Winter Jingle.

Winter time, with snow and sleet—
What's a little snowin'?
Ain't the apples ripe an' sweet?
Ain't the fiddle goin'?
Come in thar, you fellers all;
Don't be standin' 'g'in the wall.
Don't you hear the fiddler call?
Ain't the fiddle goin'?

What's a little weather now?
Cold is never killin'.
Here's yer sweetheart! Make yer bow;
Kiss her ef she's willin'.
Come in thar, you fellers all;
Cold times standin' 'g'in the wall;
Swing yer sweetheart roun' the hall;
Kiss her ef she's willin'.

Jumped on a Ten Penny Nail.

The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake made of ten-penny nails, and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and a second one half way through. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes later the pain had disappeared and no more suffering was experienced. In three days the child was wearing her shoe as usual and with absolutely no discomfort. Mr. Powell is a well known merchant of Forkland, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and heals such injuries without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. For sale by all druggists.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

Hollis Street Theatre.

The Hollis Street Theatre in Boston has been packed to the doors at every performance the past week of John McNally's latest and greatest laughing success "The Rogers Brothers in Washington," introducing those most popular comedians in another of Klaw and Erlanger's magnificent productions. The phrase "packed to the doors" has been much abused, but in this case it means exactly what it indicates—standing room only—and very little of that after the rise of the curtain. The success of this large aggregation of comedians, specialty people and pretty girls has been phenomenal everywhere—the sensation of the theatrical world. Its stay at the Hollis Street Theatre is strictly limited to a few weeks, for the whole season is booked in the large cities only, so that all who want to enjoy it must make early calls for seats, This course is necessary also because of the large advance sale. Matinees are on Wednesday and Saturdays.

Columbia Theatre.

A remarkably elaborate presentation of Gilbert and Sullivan's opera, "The Mikado," is promised at the Columbia Theatre, Boston, next next Monday night, and the cast will be one seldom equalled. There will be a chorus of about sixty or eighty voices. It is some time since "The Mikado" was given in Boston, and music lovers are looking forward to the event with pleasure. In the cast are several of the artists who appeared in the great Grau-Savage production of the opera, given at the New York Opera House last season. Mr. Celi Simmonson, a gentleman whose record as a conductor is of the best, is of the best, is the musical director. The company is under the management of Mr. Robert Grau. During the engagement of the organization at the Columbia the prices will be 25c, 50c, 75c, and $1.

Castle Square Theatre.

A most interesting dramatic novelty makes the attraction at the Castle Square Theatre next week. The play, by Sydney Sommers Toler, "The Belle of Richmond" is announced to have its first Boston production and there is reason to anticipate much pleasure in the performance. The author, an experienced member of the dramatic profession, introduces characters of today in the old Capital City of Richmond in a story dealing with social life among the best families of the south, and presents a series of scenes arranged with strongly contrasted situations and good dramatic opportunities. The cast of "The Belle of Richmond" is as follows: Gerald Gordon, John Craig; William Osmond, Edmund Breese; Judge Mason, Lindsay Morison; Colonel Lee, J. L. Seeley; Charley Lee, Charles Mackay; Silas Smart, James A. Keane; Nellie Mason, Eva Taylor; Rosiland Mason, Marian A. Chapman: Winnifred Mason. Mary Sanders; Aunt Betty, Leonora Bradley. Following this production on Monday, the 25th inst., there will be a revival of the farce comedy "What Happened to Jones." The distribution of chocolate bonbons at the Monday matinee will be continued until further notice.

Boston Museum.

"Sky Farm" in the opinion of thousands who have enjoyed witnessing it the past six weeks at the Boston Museum stands at the head of all the bucolic plays of the past 20 years. If one will only stop to consider for a moment the long list of them and the many great successes among them, the wide-sweeping character of the above sentence will be at once apparent. The author of "Sky Farm," Mr. Edward E. Kidder, is also the author of several of the successes above indicated, notably "A Poor Relation" and "Peaceful Valley" and when it is known that his latest work "Sky Farm" surpasses these some idea of its great entertaining qualities may be known. It is clean and merry from beginning to ending with none of the gloom thought at times necessary in plays of this sort; "Sky Farm" always has its head up in the bright sunlight and lightens the heart and makes one better for having seen it. So great has been the demand to see "Sky Farm" at the Boston Museum that the management has finally concluded arrangements by which the engagement has been extended into and including Thanksgiving week. Regular matinees are given on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Park Theatre.

"Lovers' Lane," the New England play by Clyde Fitch is now booming along into success at the Park Theatre, Boston, with all the dash and swing of a victorious cup defender under full head of sail. It is jamming and crowding the theatre from top to bottom at every performance, and inspiring an enthusiasm that would seem almost extravagant were it not that this is an uncommon play with a very remarkable cast. It is now quite easy to comprehend why "Lovers' Lane" was such a popular hit for five months in New York and all last summer in Chicago, and why it has taken rank as a theatrical wonder from a box office standpoint of the new century. It is because it is extravagantly funny without being unwholesome; because its love story is as sweet and winsome as a bride embowered in June roses, and because it makes vital many amusing village types with which we are all familiar. Every part in "Lovers' Lane" from the minister hero and his dainty sweetheart down to the manager, is a distinct character part. And even the smallest of these parts is played with care and finished art.

Boston Music Hall.

Every bicycle enthusiast within a radius of fifty miles will visit Boston Music Hall next week, just to see Harry D. Elkes and Tom Butler race on home trainers. The home training machine comes as near the real racing machine as anything yet devised, and the spectacle of two speedy, enduring men, mounted on these wonderful wheels, pedalling away for dear life, with every inch counting as so much gain or loss is one calculated to set on edge every one with the insincts of a sportsman. Every body in Boston knows of Montgomery and Stone, without exaggeration the two cleverest and most original eccentric dancers, in black face the country has produced. Montgomery and Stone are old favorites at Boston Music Hall and every time they appear the reserve force of vaudeville patrons comes out. The most imposing troupe of Japanese jugglers, necromancers and acrobats ever assembled "under one tent" as the circus man would put it, is the Kitiamuro Imperial troupe. Other features will be Leon Morris' performing ponies, Derenda and Breen, Indian club jugglers, Morrissey and Proctor in a neat dancing act, and the vitagraph.

Keith's Theatre.

The program at Keith's for the week of Nov. 18 will be one of the most notable of the entire season, as it not only contains an unusual number of feature acts in various lines of entertainment, but also includes a number of artists who have never appeared in Boston before. The bill has been purposely strengthened because the Harvard-Yale football teams are going to be at the theatre on Saturday, Nov. 23, and, in fact, it is understood that the collegians have taken the entire house for the evening, when features of special interest to them will be added to the regular program. Among those scheduled to appear are: The Four Lukens, presenting the most marvelous aerial acrobatic act ever seen in America; Nat. M. Wills, the noted parody singer, who will sing several songs apropos to the occasion; Clayton White and Marie Stuart in the screamingly funny farce, "Dickie." introducing Miss Stuart's French songs and dances: Waterbury Brothers and Tenny, noted musical comedians.

A Total Eclipse.

Any man can produce a total eclipse of the sun, so far as he himself is concerned, by holding a dollar close to his eye. The total eclipse of health is often produced in much the same way, by letting the dollar shut out from view all other things and interests.

A great many people pay for wealth with health and admit at last that they have made a poor bargain. In the chase of the dollar people are too eager to take time to eat regularly or choose proper food, the stomach becomes disordered or diseased, the food eaten ceases to nourish, and physical breakdown comes.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition and so enables the strengthening of the body, in the only way by which strength can be obtained, by food properly digested and perfectly assimilated.

"I suffered for four years with pain in my stomach so that at times I couldn't work nor eat," writes Mr. Frank Smith, of Granite, Chaffee Co., Colo. "I wrote to you about my sickness and was told to use your medicine, which I did with good results. I only used four bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and must say that I am entirely cured, and feel like a new man, and I can highly recommend your medicine to any sufferer."

The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 pages, free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the paper-covered edition, or 31 stamps for the cloth-bound volume, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

When you feel that life is hardly worth the candle take a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They will cleanse your stomach, tone up your liver and regulate your bowels, making you feel like a new man. For sale by all druggists.

NOW BUILDING AT QUINCY SHIPYARD.

Through the courtesy of The Boston Herald, the Daily Ledger presents above a good illustration of the seven-masted steel schooner now building at the Fore River Ship and Engine Company plant. It will be the first seven-masted steel schooner ever built, and is regarded as most economical for transportation of freight. The tonnage will be 10,000, and the cost about $275,000. The schooner will be completed in March, and a wider draw will be necessary in the Quincy Point Bridge to allow her to go out to sea.

WHITE HOUSE CHANGES

Roosevelts Introduce New Code of Etiquette

ARE LAVISH ENTERTAINERS

Joys of the Table Increased a Hundred Fold by Presence of Congenial Guests—Cut and Dried Formula of Social Life Undergoing Change

Washington, Nov. 18.—President Roosevelt is likely to eclipse all records as a White House host, so far as table hospitality is concerned, if he continues his present custom of breaking bread twice or thrice a day with the friends of the administration.

Since coming to the mansion, the president has failed to sit down to a single family dinner or luncheon, and even the first meal of the day has been enlivened prequently by the presence of guests.

President Roosevelt takes wine at luncheon and dinner. For him the joys of the table are increased a hundredfold by the presence of congenial guests. Just at present he is as busy dining those whom he wishes to cultivate as political advisers as his old and large circle of Washington friends. The red parlor, a room famous during the McKinley administration as the scene of the Sunday night symposiums, has been selected by Mr. Roosevelt for his private after-dinner conferences. It is here, in the genial glow of the red hangings and crimson shaded lights, that the president comes after dinner with half a dozen or more "political authorities" to discuss affairs of state.

Mrs. Roosevelt has her husband's confidence to an unusual extent, and is so well up on all questions of public interest as to be an adviser to him. Though she personally supervises the education of her children and has a general interest in all affairs of the nursery, Mrs. Roosevelt finds time to drive or ride with her husband every afternoon. Riding is most popular with both, and Mrs. Roosevelt is an expert horsewoman, the possessor of a thoroughbred mount and keen for a swift race with the president when beyond the city limits.

Mrs. Roosevelt has swept everything before her at the White House. Matters formerly left to the decision of the secretary of the president or the superintendent of public buildings and grounds, which office has become rather of a social stewardship, have been taken in hand by the president's wife, who, with the assistance of her secretary, will form a new code of White House etiquette.

Social life at the White House this winter will be far different from the cut and dried formula hitherto observed. Rumor has it that Mrs. Roosevelt is responsible for the very smart appearance of the presidential equipage, but is safe to divide honors, apportioning the selection of the horses to the president and the trappings and liveries to Mrs. Roosevelt.

At last we have a White House outfit that can compete with any embassy in Washington. Mr. Roosevelt drives in a victoria or a brougham, and the men on the box wear liveries of very dark blue, with wide collars of pronounced, almost continental line. Their hats are ornamented with small cockades of red, white and blue. It sounds rather bizarre, but it is in reality, in the very best possible taste, and smart to the extreme of smartness.

Parisian Women In Politics

Paris, Nov. 18.—The women of the French capital have initiated a movement which is expected to considerably influence future elections. Their watchword is "defense of property, the fatherland and liberty," and they propose to support, by influence and money, candidates who will uphold their platform. An influential committee has been formed.

Strikers and Guards In Battle

Madisonville, Ky., Nov. 18.—Mining troubles in this district brought more bloodshed yesterday. A negro striker is dead, another striker is fatally wounded, while three guards are wounded, but none of them dangerously. The trouble occurred at the mines of the Providence Coal company, where an attack was begun by strikers.

Brigands Holding Off

Sofia, Nov. 18.—The brigands who abducted Miss Ellen M. Stone and Mme. Tsilka have not yet replied to the latest proposals of Mr. Dickinson, diplomatic agent of the United States in Sofia. This is believed to be due to the fact that the band has many leaders and that the latter are unable to agree among themselves.

Disbarred by Hitchcock

Washington, Nov. 18.—Secretary Hitchcock has disbarred William C. Buderus, an attorney of Sturgis, S. D., from practicing before the interior department because of criticisms alleged to have been made by the latter relative to the late President McKinley.

Schooner Went to the Bottom

Halifax, Nov. 18.—The schooner Christie Campbell, with a cargo of produce, struck the Grand Narrows bridge and went to the bottom in five minutes. The crew of five men scrambled on the bridge and escaped. They lost all their effects.

On Trip From Porto Rico

New York, Nov. 18.—Governor Hunt of Porto Rico and M. B. Brumbaugh, commissioner of education, arrived last night from Porto Rico on steamer Ponce. They will consult with President Roosevelt before returning to Porto Rico.

Workmen's Terrible Error

Homestead, Pa., Nov. 18.—One man dead and two badly burned is the result of a party of workmen being buried under a mass of molten slag at the Howard axle works yesterday. The victims were engaged in collecting scrap when a party of workmen at the top of the dump dumped their car over the edge, not noticing that the men were directly beneath them. The car contained about eight tons of slag.

McKinley Statue For Cleveland

Cleveland, Nov. 18.—If the proposition made by a committee of 100 citizens to the finance committee of the recent national Grand Army encampment is carried out a surplus of $8000 collected for that occasion will be used to erect a bronze statue of heroic size to the late President McKinley in the public square, the center of the business portion of the city.

LOST FAITH IN BANKS

Patrick Mulhern Kept Savings of Years In a Shed

THIEVES FOUND TREASURE

And the Old Man Now Mourns the Loss of $8000—No Clew to Men Who Found the Robbery an Easy One to Perform and Quickly Made Off

Ellsworth, Me., Nov. 18.—Patrick Mulhern, an aged man, who lives at East Sullivan, reported to the police here that he was robbed of about $8000 between Friday evening and daylight Saturday. He could give the officers only a little information beyond the fact that the money was missing.

Several years ago Mulhern withdrew his money from the savings banks, where he had it on deposit. He believed savings banks were unsafe, he said. Since that time the money has been kept in a small safe in the shed of the old man's house.

The combination lock on the safe never was used, the door being secured by a padlock and chain, as Mr. Mulhern feared he might not remember the combination letters.

He reported to Sheriff Whitcomb that the money was in the safe all right Friday night, but when he awoke next morning the padlock had been removed and the money was gone.

Deputy Sheriff Field returned from East Sullivan Saturday evening, where he went to investigate the robbery. He says there is no clew.

At least one of the robbers, it is believed, was familiar with the house, and the fact that Mulhern kept a large sum of money in the house was known to everyone in the neighborhood.

Mulhern lived with two aged people. He is 90 years old, and the money was the accumulation of years of small savings, and largely in gold. Mulhern does not know how much there was, but thinks about $8000.

The money was kept in a small safe, which was inclosed in a dry goods box in the shed. The thieves got into the shed by a window, fastening the door opening from the house into the shed as a precaution.

The thieves removed the padlock on the safe and took the money drawer out. They then left the shed and sat on a wheelbarrow in the yard and divided the money.

They then went across the pasture to the main road, for their tracks are plainly seen in the snow. A young man returning from a dance saw three men at 3 Saturday morning, but he cannot describe them.

Honors Came After Death

Pekin, Nov. 18.—The Empress Dowager has issued another edict, eulogizing the late Li Hung Chang and ordering the erection of a memorial arch near his birthplace. The edict also directs that the rank of marquis, conferred upon the eldest son of the late Chinese statesman in his own right, shall descend through 23 generations. It confers high rank upon the other sons of Earl Li, upon whom the posthumous rank of a marquis had been bestowed, and confers dignities upon his grandsons, together with lucrative offices.

HICKS SUCCEEDS BURNS

Latter Ignored Established Methods of Knights of Labor

Indianapolis, Nov. 18.—After re-electing Simon Burns of Pittsburg general master workman of the Knights of Labor Saturday, the general assembly of the order at the Saturday evening session reconsidered the action, and in Mr. Burns' place elected Henry A. Hicks of New York as executive head of the order.

The discussion in the afternoon was heated when, after re-electing General Secretary-Treasurer Hayes, the vote for the executive board showed the election of I. D. Chamberlain of Colorado, I. H. Sanderson of Toronto and T. J. O'Reilly of Brooklyn, all old members, and all opposed to Mr. Burns, owing to his alleged inclination to ignore old men and established methods. Mr. Burns objected to the board who had been elected, and asserted that an established precedent gave him the right to name six delegates to the general assembly from which number the assembly alone could make its board. This created an uproar. When order was finally restored, the further consideration of the matter was deferred until evening, when the general assembly went into secret session, reconsidered the action of the afternoon and placed Henry A. Hicks at the head of the order. Mr. Hicks was installed immediately.

Cullom at Head of Foreign Relations

Washington, Nov. 18.—Senator Cullom of Illinois will be chairman of the foreign relations committee of the senate, to succeed the late Senator Davis.

SENATOR CULLOM.

"Ever since Senator Frye announced that he would not take the chairmanship of that committee," said Senaor Cullom yesterday, "I have expected to take it, being the senior member of the committee afer Mr. Frye. That is still my intention."

Combining Business and Pleasure

San Francisco, Nov. 18.—Former Queen Liliouakalani of Hawaii, who arrived here Saturday, besides seeking the recovery of health has come to consult with the federal authorities relative to the crown islands in Hawaii. These were sequestered by the revolutionary government at the time the monarchy was overthrown and no attempt has since been made to reimburse her for the loss of the crown revenues, amounting to about $100,000 a year. The crown lands are more than 1,000,000 acres in extent, and are worth about $15,000,000.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Tuesday, Nov. 19.
Sun rises—6:39; sets—4:19.
Moon sets—11:34 p. m.
High water—4:45 a. m.; 5 p. m.

The weather has been fair except in the lake region, where snow flurries continued, and on the north Pacific coast, where there were showers. It will be fair in New England. On the coast winds will be fresh northwest to north.

Good Afternoon.

In these days, when so many undesirable nominations are made for public offices, the Republicans of Quincy are fortunate in having as a candidate Frederick L. Jones — an honest, straightforward and economical man, who has met with success in business. Although a dyed-in-the-wool Republican, he will not place politics before good government. Republicanism means good government, of which he has long been an exponent.

It is remarkable, too, that Mr. Jones has been nominated for the office of Mayor without making a promise of any kind, or authorizing anyone else to make a promise. It shows confidence in the man. As has been said, the candidate has proved that he is not simply a Ward Three man, but a representative of the city at large, and that he will work for the whole city. Granite street, where he resides, is the dividing line between Wards Three and Four, his granite works are at South Quincy, and his business frequently brings him to Quincy centre.

Not since Col. Porter occupied the executive chair, has Quincy had a veteran of the Civil war for Mayor and it is surprising that of all the granite manufacturers in this old granite city, the industry has never furnished a Mayor. Their turn appears to have come now, and it would be of benefit to manufacturers and granite cutters alike to elect Mr. Jones of the reliable firm of McGillvray & Jones. His knowledge of granite and of what is required of our streets; his experience as a Councilman and as a Sewer Commissioner; his long residence in Quincy and his success in business, all contribute to make him a desirable candidate, and his friends believe he would give the same strict attention to the business of the city as he has to his own private business.

Drift of Opinion.

☞King Edward shows his usual good sense in refusing to draw any social distinctions between the titles of president, king and emperor in the bestowal of decorations of favors at the coming coronation. His own constitutional position is such that both he and his family could at any time be driven from the throne by a simple act of parliament. Since King William, the Dutchman, came over from Holland at the invitation of the Whigs in 1689, no monarch has reigned in the British isles by divine right. The fact is that our American president's title to his place rests upon a foundation as solid as the king's. And as representative of a state he stands as high as any monarch in the world. — Springfield Republican.

☞Mayor Dennis Mulvihill of Bridgeport, Connecticut, has announced these as the principles which will guide his administration:

"I'll serve all the people.
"No politicians about me.
"Public expenses must be reduced.
"No junkets.
"No secret sessions. No committee meetings behind closed doors.
"I know the value of money. I have had to work for it. The tax payers' money shall be used as if it were mine own."

The hyper-critical might find faultiness in it. But it is not the wording, but the evident good spirit of the man that excites admiration. Now, if he will only add the determination to act for the good of the city, with no eye to a re-election, and a resolution not to be angry when somebody disagrees with him, he will make a pretty good mayor.—New Bedford Standard.

GRAND ARMY FAIR.

The Opening Exercises Tonight--- Will Continue Six Days.

The annual six days' fair of Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., opens tonight at Music hall with music by the Wollaston band and addresses by Mayor Hall and others. The citizens should see to it that it is made a success in every way. Few organizations expend more money in the care of the needy than does the Grand Army in looking out for their comrades in arms who so nobly defended the old flags in those trying days in '61-'65. Every purchaser of a season ticket will be given a present, and some of those presents consist of greenbacks which are always welcome. Good entertainments will be given every evening during the week and on Wednesday afternoon there will be that always attractive baby show. A long cold winter is approaching and the demands upon the treasury will be great. Let everybody unite and see that the fair this year surpasses anything of the past.

POLICE STATION.

Great Transformation at New Location on School Street.

The new police station on School street is fast approaching completion and but a very short time will be required to make it ready for occupancy after the steel cages arrive. One can hardly recognize the interior of the station the change has been so great. The cell room, which is in the rear of the building is light and airy, and can not be otherwise than dry. The walls are of cement and the floor is of concrete, ten inches in thickness. The cells which are of steel with concrete partitions, will be located in the centre of the room, which gives a corridor on all four sides.

In the front, on the west side, is the Chief's office, the women's cell and bath rooms. On the east is a large guard room, and here will be located the police signal apparatus. The walls of all of these rooms are sheathed up six feet from the bottom and then plastered. In basement is the heating apparatus.

This room has been made dry by digging down and filling up with cement. The building has been connected with the sewer and there can be no question but what the dampness that always characterized the building has been overcome.

The time for occupying the building will depend upon the arrival of the steel cages.

The Charities of Quincy.

Charity is well represented in our city by public and social organizations that have helpful sides, and by the steady flow of private charity that goes out individually. With so many sources, a head where record of what is given and to whom it is given should be established. Each society may have its own work separate, but with so large a population as ours, and extending over so large a territory, it is needful that we know all that is done to make our giving do the best work. Indiscriminate giving does harm; but there are unfortunate people who must be helped. Our Quincy Charitable Society is more than half a century old, as is also the Fragment Society of First church. We have Sons of Veterans, Grand Army, Overseers of the Poor, a Home, a way where people living out of Quincy and in need of help, can make a just claim from us. There is the Needle Work Gulid, youthful, but strong, and many others doing good work.

Not very many years ago, Rev. Samuel Kelly, Rev. D. M. Wilson and others did good work in centralizing this giving, and making an associated Board of Charities.

This is charity weather and the old fashion of storing discarded clothing in the attics, too often to rot away, has given place to a better one of finding some one who needs the garments as soon as they have outgrown their first usefulness, Let all have a rummage and then through some officer of some society, if need be, find where the things to be given will do most good.

One channel for charity has been through our public school teachers, and we wish this were more general.

The Globe says: It is now time that challengers were heard from for the Quincy cup. It was meant to be raced for and the Manchester yacht club is not desirous of holding on to it unless its members prove its right to the trophy by actual competition. There will probably be no America cup race next season and a contest for the Quincy cup would make a hit in Massachusetts bay.

ADAMS WINS.

But Powder Point Team Was Heavier; one Weighing 200.

Adams Academy defeated the much heavier Powder Point school team of Duxbury Saturday afternoon in a snappy game at Merrymount Park 12 to 0. The former played a steady game throughout and when they once started on their gaining streak they didn't hold up a minute. At first Adams found it hard to break up the line but when they used their formations of guards back they had no mercy on their opposing team.

For Adams, Fenno and Thomas made many good tackles while all the backs played a strong offensive game. Reardon showed up best for Adams making two touchdowns and remaining in the game after once being knocked out.

Very few brilliant plays were made by Powder Point. The latter's half back weighing about two hundred pounds did all the gaining and their quarter back made many fumbles at critical points.

Powder Point kicked off to Adams the first half who rushed the ball to centre of the field. However they failed to gain on two downs the required distance and were forced to punt. Flaherty punted safely for twenty-five yards one of Adams men falling on the ball. Now Adams began to plough through the visiting teams line and soon had a touchdown. This was a surprise as it was thought Adams would not once be near the goal of these giants.

Again in the same half Adams proved themselves superior in making another touchdown. Reardon and Doble both made long runs. During this half the Duxbury team had the ball only twice and then they didn't keep it long for they made continual fumbles and couldn't gain a yard through Adams.

In the second half Powder Point held Adams better. They received the ball on the kick off, the big fellow carrying the ball for fifteen yards where he was downed. They gained a little but soon forfeited to Adams who came near making another touchdown and were within a few yards of the goal when Duxbury held them for downs.

For the first time now did Powder Point rush to good advantage. They gained for about fifteen yards but were soon pushed back and the ball was on the half yard mark when time keeper declared the game over.

In times of need Powder Point held well.

Adams has shown great improvement of late and unless High desires to lose again some good practice must be gotten in before Friday.

HENRY T. BAILEY

Speaks at Wollaston at Entertainment of Hewitson Associates.

The second of the regular course of entertainments given by the Edward Hewitson associates was held Saturday evening in the Wollaston Baptist church vestry. It was by far a more successful evening than the last entertainment. The evening was in charge of Messrs. George Bailey, William Jones, Robert Pinkham and Frederick Thayer.

The first number on the program was a vocal solo entitled "Mother" by Master Carl Fowler accompanied on the piano by his sister, Miss Grace Fowler. His exceptionally clear and sweet voice called forth from the audience such hearty applause that he responded with the encore "Dream of Paradise." This was the first appearance in public of Master Fowler and he certainly did himself great credit and gives bright promise of future achievements.

This was followed by a violin solo by Miss Williams of South Boston accompanied by her sister Miss Ora Williams. She played with much feeling and she also responded to an encore.

"Snowflakes' and "A red red rose" were sung by Miss Estes of Boston who was accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Chase of Wollaston.

As a preliminary to the address Mrs. Cornish gave Emerson's "Problem" in a very gratifying manner. This poem was selected by the speaker of the evening as appropriate to his subject.

A burst of applause greeted the introduction of Mr. Henry T. Bailey, State Supervisor of Drawing, who took for his subject the "Acropolis of Athens" He pictured the magnificent approach to the ancient citadel of Athens, of its excellent situation overlooking the Piræus and the white mountain Pentelicus soaring above in the distance as a backgound. By way of introduction he described the scenery and surroundings on entering the vicinity of Athens. He spoke of the beautiful little churches which so closely resembled cathedrals in their proportions and ornamentations. It would be impossible to relate in the words of the speaker the beautiful architecture and sculpture of the Parthenon.

It columns with their graceful curves and the beautiful figures which formed the friezes are a most perfect representation of Athenian art.

His address was replete with blackboard illustrations and ended with a description of the sunset when everyone lays down his labor and stands in awe as he views the beautiful panorama before him.

The entertainment closed with another solo by Miss Estes' entitled "Little Boy Blue"

Light refreshments were served by the committee in charge and later college songs were sung by the club. Mr. Jack Simmons accompanied on the piano.

Miss West Coming.

The date of the launching of the Des Moines is near at hand. The Globe of Saturday evening said: When Miss Francis E. West comes east next week to name the cruiser Des Moines, at Quincy, she will have a distinguished escort, headed by Gov. Shaw and his staff of Iowa, and including the mayor of Des Moines and a number of state and city officials. Miss West is strikingly beautiful, and has been a a belle in the west ever since she made her debut. She is a graduate of Vassar, and traces her ancestry back to the revolution, among her kinfolk being Chief Justice Chase and Prescott, the historian.

Slight Fires.

The alarm from Box 42 at 6.43 p. m. Saturday was for a slight fire in a Jewish barber shop at Brewer's corner, caused by the overturning of a lamp. The damage will not exceed $5.

The alarm from Box 39 at 6.46 P. M. Sunday was for a slight fire on the roof of Cook & Watkins stone sheds on Liberty street. The loss will not be over $5.

The hall lamp at the residence of Mrs. Sarah Kincaide on Franklin street burst Sunday evening, setting fire to the house. No alarm was given, but Mrs. Elizabeth Perry, her daughter, had both hands severely burned in extinguishing the blaze.

GUN MAKING.

Revival in New England by Fore River Company.

Has Contracts for Government Work.

Delivery Must Begin in January---Six Months' Job.

A Washington dispatch of Saturday to the Boston Advertiser says:

The ordnance bureau of the navy department has awarded a contract for 60 sets of nickel-steel forgings for three-inch rapid-five field guns and 15 sets of steel forgings for four-inch 40-caliber rapid-fire guns to the Fore River Ship and Engine Co. of Quincy.

The work will be begun at once, as the company must commence delivery in 50 days and complete it in 150 days.

This order marks the revival of gun making in Massachusetts after a lapse of about 15 years, the last big gun being cast at the South Boston Iron Works in 1885.

The steel for the new rifles has hitherto been worked into shape at the great forges of Bethlehem and Midvale, but now that the Fore River forge has been equipped with one of the three largest steam hammers in the country it brings New England into competition with Pennslyvania in the manufacture of moderate armament for warships and forts.

Adm. O'Neil of the bureau of ordnance says that the new guns will be unsurpassed by those of any foreign nation, greater efficiency being secured with reduced calibres by means of smokeless powder, now made by the government or made under its directions.

SCENE FROM ACT II, "SKY FARM," NOW PLAYING AT THE BOSTON MUSEUM

HONOR TO VETERAN.

"Officer-of-the-Day" Dunbar Reminded of His War Service.

A very enjoyable social was held Saturday evening, at the home of Mr. Frank McNeil on Pleasant street, in honor of Mr. Warren Dunbar whose seventieth birthday was the occasion of the gathering. Twenty-five invited guests were present and passed a pleasant evening with music, whist and dancing. Mr. Dunbar, himself, who would easily pass for a man 20 years younger, took a leading part in the festivities, being one of the liviest and gayest of the party. The particular feature of the evening was the presentation to Mr. Dunbar of his war diploma, suitably framed in oak, engraved with the names of the nineteen engagements of the Civil war in which he participated with honor. Such battles as Gettysburg, Antetiam, Cold Harbor, The Wilderness, Chancellorsville, Petersburg, and others of equal severity, were the scenes of his service. The presentation speech was made by Mr. Kingstree, in a very pleasing manner.

Though taken by surprise, Mr. Dunbar responded in a sincere and heartfelt way. He was also the recipient of a smoker's kit and numerous other presents. After refreshments, the gathering broke up at a late hour with many thanks to the hostess, and wishes of many pleasant returns for the guest of honor. The party included friends from Weymouth and surrounding places.

Burns Day.

An entertainment of more than usual interest was given to the pupils, teachers and invited friends of Quincy Mansion school, Wollaston, on Thursday, afternoon, Nov. 14. Mrs. Josiah Quincy of Roxbury gave a most charming address on "Burns," a paper of rare literary merit, sympathetic, discriminating and just. It presented Burns in a series of word pictures most vivid and life-like, and aroused great interest in Burns, the man, and in his poems. The paper was illustrated by several of the best-known songs of the poet, sung by Dr. Willard, Mr. Marceau, Misses Sabre, King, Shearn, Drury, and Kelly. The presence upon the platform of Mr. John Anderson, who recited some poems of Burns in the Ayrshire Scotch, added greatly to the interest of the occasion. Visitors from Quincy and Boston spoke enthusiastically over the the whole entertainment. The new Livermore hall is proving a most valuable addition to the school.

—The Twentieth Century club of Boston, a club for both sexes, which for the past four years has been affording unique opportunities to teachers and others in its valuable lecture courses, offers a course this season presenting the views on education of six eminent college presidents, to be followed by ten lectures on "Moral Leaders," by Professor Edward H. ☞President Roosevelt's civil service reform ideas are causing the professional politicians no end of anxiety. He has already made it perfectly clear to them by the character of his appointments that purely political consideration count for little with him as against the efficiency and honesty of the public service. His practice of selecting federal officials on his own responsibility because they are good and competent men, interferes sadly with the so-called vested rights of senators and national committeemen and state bosses, who hold that it is the Presidents part to ratify whatever recommendations they make.—Philadelphia North American.

Premature Blast.

A fatal blast occurred Saturday at Columbus, Ohio, in the Caparis stone quarry. Two men were killed and four injured as the result of premature explosion of a blast.

The two men killed were working under a ledge, and were buried under tons of rock. Thorne, the foreman, was hurled 35 feet in the air, but his injuries are not serious. Wilson will probably die.

The Magazines.

The American Boy for November fits its contents to the tastes of boys, with stories of adventure, instructions as to how to do and make things, information on many subjects, etc. Detroit, Mich.

The November National Magazine has five special features. There is a close range character study of Theodore Roosevelt as president, by Editor Joe Mitchell Chapple; a story by Maxim Gorky, the new Russian literary star; an articlo on Boston's financial condition, by Mayor Thomas N. Hart; a statement by Editor Leveque of the New Orleans Harlequin, of the extraordinary prosperity and good cheer that has been brought to the south by the record breaking cotton crop of 1901; and a survey by Charles W. Hearn, president-elect of the New England Photographers' association, of the rise of art photography in America. This article is illustrated with large engravings of twelve of the prize photographs of the year, the best known photographers of all the large American cities being represented. Boston.

An Extraordinary Demonstration

Brussels, Nov. 18.—A Dutch fishing boat, while in the North sea, pretended to be in distress and approached a British smack. Thirteen fishermen from the Dutch boat boarded the British craft and attacked the crew of the latter, shouting: "Long live the Boers." Several of the Britishers were wounded. The British smack succeeded in escaping and arrived at Ostend, where the captain lodged a complaint with the British consul.

Charged With Accepting Bribe

Phoenix, Ariz., Nov. 18.—Webster Street, chief justice of the territorial court, has gone to Washington to appear before the department of justice to answer charges of bribery brought against him last summer in connection with a decision affecting the King of Arizona Mining company. It is alleged in the complaint that Street accepted a bribe of from $5000 to $7000.

Crew Had Terrible Experience

St. Johns, Nov. 18.—The barkentine Titania was totally wrecked in a dense fog near Cape Race. One man lost his life in trying to reach the shore. The captain and the rest of the crew, all of whom were badly injured, had a terrible experience. They were on the wreck for 36 hours, lashed to the rigging.

New World's Record For Auto

New York, Nov. 18.—Henri Fournier, the French automobilist, established a new world's record for one mile Saturday, covering the distance in 51 4-5 seconds. The record was made on the straightaway course over the Coney Island boulevard between Prospect park, Brooklyn, and the ocean.

Stabbing In Election Row

Dublin, Nov. 18.—The election disturbances in Galway, growing out of the campaign in which Horace Plunkett, Unionist, is opposing Colonel Lynch, who served on the Boer side in the South African war, were renewed yesterday. A man was stabbed and, it is feared, fatally injured.

May Be More Bodies In Mine

Pocahontas, Va., Nov. 18.—Excursion trains carried more than 2000 people to the scene of the Baby mine disaster yesterday. No bodies have been recovered since Saturday. Many of the miners still assert that at least eight bodies are yet within the mine.

Latest Comment on Lodge's Speech

London, Nov. 16.—The Spectator, commenting on Senator Lodge's "very important speech" last Saturday night in Boston, says today: "Europe is in fact forbidden to acquire even a coaling station in either of the Americas. As Great Britain and France already have possessions in America, this can only refer to Germany alone. The warning is to her, and it will stimulate Emperor William's plans for creating a great fleet."

The Blow Landed.

She doesn't go to her clubs and euchres half as much as she did. People used to say this charming woman spent most of her time at these gatherings. One day she called on a dear friend to reprove her for her slackening interest in the club. I believe it was a club for reforming the gas meter or something—anyhow it was a reform affair.

"Look here, Lizzie," said the enthusiast, "why on earth don't you come to the meetings? Here you are paying your dues and never showing up. You owe it to the club to take an interest in the work."

"But I can't come," explained her friend. "There's the baby, and Henry doesn't come home sometimes till late, and supper must wait, and if he wants to go out I can't go away and leave the children. I would worry myself to death."

"Well, I must say Henry is inconsiderate," said the caller. "Why, there's my husband and children too. They give me no trouble. Every time I want to go to the club Charlie says he will be glad to stay at home with Bridget and keep an eye on things till I come back. He never objects."

"Maybe," retorted the amiable hostess, "if I had a housegirl as handsome and young as Bridget Henry would be glad to stay at home, too, but mine is black and goes home at nights."

The blow landed, and Charlie hasn't been asked to look after Bridget and the house since.—Louisville Times.

Length of Dreams.

Three physicians were discussing the matter of the length of dreams a day or two ago, when one of them related a strange experience.

"Yesterday afternoon," he said, "I called to see a patient, and, much to my satisfaction, I found him sleeping soundly. I sat by his bed, felt of his pulse without disturbing him and waited for him to awaken. After a few minutes a junk dealer's cart with discordant ringing bells turned into the street, and as their first tones reached us my patient opened his eyes.

"'Doctor,' he said, 'I'm glad to see you and awfully glad that you woke me, for I have been tortured by a most distressing dream that must have lasted for several hours. I dreamed that I was sick, as I am, and that my boy came into the room with a string of most horribly sounding sleighbells and rang them in my ears, while I hadn't power to move or speak to him. I suffered tortures for what appeared to be an interminable time. I'm so glad you woke me.'

"The ringing of those bells for one second had caused all of that dream and just at the waking moment."—New York Herald.

Hairbrushes.

No amount of washing of the hair will keep it clean if dirty brushes are used, yet persons otherwise fairly neat are careless in this respect. A specialist says that hairbrushes should be washed once a week and, if used on hair in which there is much dandruff, twice a week is not too often. The brushes should be washed in cold, not hot, water, to which cloudy ammonia has been added in the proportion of a scant tablespoonful to a quart of water. Care should be taken not to wet the backs of the brushes, and when washed and rinsed—a good way to rinse them properly is to use a shower spray on them—they should be put on edge in the air to dry. Dress combs, too, should be frequently cleaned, a comb cleaner being used for the purpose.

"A Nine Days' Wonder."

The memorable reign of Lady Jane Grey is said to have given rise to the phrase, "A nine days' wonder." Lady Jane was proclaimed queen of England July 10, 1553, four days after the death of Edward VI. After the lapse of a period of nine days, on July 19, she relinquished her title to the crown, thus terminating her reign in the short space of a week and a half. A noted English historian says, "Thus we come to the end of the diary of that short and troubled reign that from its length is said to have given rise to the now (1620) popular phrase, 'A nine days' wonder.'"

Recklessness.

"Inherited wealth," exclaimed the blase young man, with a dreary yawn, "is a curse!"

"Then why don't you try to get rid of it" asked the youth who hadn't inherited any wealth.

"I am doing the best I can," rejoined the other. "I keep a yacht, run an automobile, belong to a swell golf club and lend you money."—Chicago Tribune.

A Novelty.

"Suppose I give you your supper," said the tired looking woman. "What will you do to earn it?"

"Madam," said Meandering Mike, "I'll give you de opportunity of seein' a man go t'roo a whole meal wit'out findin' fault wit' a single thing."

The woman thought a minute and then told him to come in and she'd set the table.—Washington Star.

Humility.

Humility is the means of progress. When we realize how little we know, we shall yearn and strive to know more; when we feel how imperfect is our character, and not till then, we shall make earnest efforts after our improvement.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Dr. Albert Gihon, senior medical director of the United States navy, retired, and one of the most distinguished men in that branch of the government service, died at New York as a result of a stroke of apoplexy.

The winter has now fairly set in throughout northern Russia and the Neva is frozen over.

While working on the third floor of a new building being constructed at Boston, Arthur Flemming was struck on the head by an elevator and instantly killed.

Charles Fowler of Providence was found dead between the rails of the Berkshire division tracks at Bridgeport, Conn. Both legs were crushed at the ankle.

Schooner Lizzie J. Clark from Addison, Me., concerning whose safety there has been some anxiety felt, has arrived at Boston. The vessel put into Portsmouth, where she was harbored during the recent heavy weather. She sustained no damage.

Thieves entered the liberal arts building at the Pan-American exposition grounds at Buffalo and looted some of the booths.

Moses F. Harriman, an aged photographer, was found dead in his studio at Penacook, N. H. He had been dead fully a week. Investigation revealed no evidence of foul play.

Bishop Codman of the Episcopal diocese of Maine christened the new church of St. George at Long Cove, Me. The church is the personal gift of the bishop to the people of that section, he paying the entire cost of its erection.

Steamer Lost Off Newfoundland

Halifax, Nov. 18.—A private dispatch which reached Louisburg, C. B., last night states that the Norwegian steamer Ella has been lost on the Newfoundland coast in the vicinity of Belle Isle, with all hands. The steamer left Montreal on Friday with a general cargo for St. Johns. The Ella was 901 tons register. She carried a crew of about 20 men.

Women Preachers Held Forth

Fort Worth, Tex., Nov. 18.—Yesterday the religious feature of the Womens' Christian Temperance union was presented. Thirty-four members of the union occupied as many pulpits in different churches in this city, preaching in most instances morning and evening. The topics covered were the whole common ground of religious thought of the world.

Mussulmans and Christians Fighting

Constantinople, Nov. 18.—Conflicts resulting in much bloodshed are reported to have occurred between Mussulmans and Christians at Beyrout. Similar reports have been received from Scutari and Albania. The military commander in Albania has resigned on finding pacification impossible.

Jumped on a Ten Penny Nail.

The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake made of ten-penny nails, and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and a second one half way through. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes later the pain had disappeared and no more suffering was experienced. In three days the child was wearing her shoe as usual and with absolutely no discomfort. Mr. Powell is a well known merchant of Forkland, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and heals such injuries without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. For sale by all druggists.

MINERS IN CONSPIRACY

To Overthrow Canadian Rule In Northwest Territory

TO ESTABLISH A REPUBLIC

Plan to Overpower Police, Arrest Civil Authorities and Take Government Into Their Own Hands—Officials In an Anxious Mood

San Francisco, Nov. 18.—The Call prints an unconfirmed story from Skagway, Alaska, under date of Nov. 6, telling of the discovery of what is alleged to be a huge conspiracy existing in Dawson and ramifying to Skagway, Victoria, Vancouver and Seattle, for the overthrow of the local government of the Northwest territory and the establishing of a republic with Dawson as its capital.

According to the details of the story, arms, ammunition and provisions have been taken in over the railroad and cached at strategic points. Prominent American residents of Skagway are said to be the leaders in the conspiracy. Miners to the number of 5000 are said to await the summon to arms, ready to fight for the independence from dominion rule of the gold fields, camps and towns.

The plan is to overpower the mounted police, arrest the civil authorities and take the government into their own hands. The rigors of the Arctic winters would give the insurgents six months immunity from attack by Canadian or British troops, and the adventurous arch-conspirators hope for intervention or outside assistance by the time the melting of ice and snow will permit the invasion of their isolated republic.

It is further related that a hurried conference, lasting until midnight, was held at Skagway Nov. 5, at which were present Captain Corrigan of the Northwest mounted police, who had arrived from across the Canadian border late that evening; Judge Brown of the United States district court, United States Marshal Shoup, United States Attorney Frederich and Major Hovey, commanding the United States troops at Skagway, also attended the meeting.

This was the last of several hasty consultations between the civil and military representatives of the two powers in relation to the mysterious transportation of supplies into the interior and rumors of a conspiracy to lead the miners in a revolt against the Canadian government in the Northwest territory. Those present maintained subsequently the strictest silence concerning the new evidence laid before them and their evident anxiety helped to confirm the rumors of conspiracy.

Captain Corrigan took a train back across the border the next morning, while United States Marshal Shoup embarked on the first steamer for Seattle, which port he reached several days ago. The object of his visit was presumably to confer by telegraph with the authorities at Washington. He sailed yesterday afternoon on the Dolphin on his way back to Skagway.

Labor Ticket In Chicago

Chicago, Nov. 18.—Inspired by the success of the Union Labor candidates in San Francisco and Bridgeport, Conn., the labor men of Chicago are to be organized into a wage earners' party and will have their own candidates for municipal and state offices. This movement was started yesterday by the Chicago Federation of Labor. A meeting of all the labor men of Chicago has been called for the first Sunday in December, when a regular party organization will be perfected.

Sensible Progress Made

Washington, Nov. 18.—The negotiations between the governments of the United States and Denmark relative to the cession to the United States of the Danish West Indies have been transferred to Washington. It is learned that within the last few days there has been increased activity in the negotiations and that sensible progress has been made toward the completion of a treaty of cession.

Explosion Greater Than Expected

Buffalo, Nov. 18.—A safe in the office of the Hamburg Railway company at West Seneca was blown open by burglars early yesterday morning. The explosion was so great that the burglars decamped without attempting to secure any of the $1100 in the safe. The interior of the station was wrecked and the windows of houses nearby were smashed.

Mayor Set Bad Example

Ottawa, Nov. 18.—Mayor W. D. Morris pleaded guilty in the police court here to a charge of buying liquor during the prohibited hours. He was fined $5 and $2 costs, and told the court he accepted disqualification which the conviction involved. He is no longer mayor of the city and is disqualified for two years.

Has a Bad Record

St. Louis, Nov. 18.—Chief of Detectives Desmond has finally secured a statement from the Montana train robber suspect, who now acknowledges that he is Ben Kilpatrick, a brother of Dan Kilpatrick. Both are said to have been members of the gang of train robbers led by Bill Carver, who was killed at Sonora, Tex.

To Go Against Insurgents

Colon, Nov. 18.—The Colombian gunboat General Pinzon arrived here yesterday with 300 troops. This evidence of the government's policy to reinforce its forces here gives credit to the presumption that General Alban has finally resolved to lead a strong attacking force against the insurgents.

TWO AMERICANS KILLED

In a Battle With Insurgents In the Island of Samar

Manila, Nov. 18.—Company E of the ninth infantry was attacked by 50 bolomen and several insurgents armed with rifles at a point six miles from Tarangnan, in the island of Samar. The insurgents tried to rush the Americans, but failing to accomplish their purpose they broke and scattered. The men of the ninth had a corporal and a scout killed and one private wounded. Sixteen of the bolomen were killed, while the riflemen escaped.

Ten Hotchkiss rapid fire guns will be sent to the southern islands for operations in the mountains.

Captain Hall of the 21st infantry has been scouting for several days in Batangas province. He had four separate engagements with the insurgents there. Judging from the firing on these occasions, Captain Hall estimates the force of each band of the rebels at from 30 to 50. They made no attempt to charge Captain Hall's party, whose scouting resulted in the capture of one insurgent officer and 50,000 pounds of rice.

General Sumner, commander of the district of southern Luzon, highly praises Captain Hartman and his troop of the first cavalry, who last Wednesday attacked 400 insurgents entrenched in rifle pits at Buan and routed them.

The Filipino priest, Deposor, has been sentenced by court-martial to the penalty of death for the murder of certain of his countrymen who favored the Americans. Out of respect, however, to the condemned man's calling, General Chaffee has commuted his sentence to 20 years' imprisonment. General Chaffee desires it to be understood that the leniency exercised in this case cannot be taken as a precedent and that no person in the islands can be permitted to plead his office, however sacred and exalted this may be, as protection against crimes committed.

The municipal authorities have decided to enlarge the city of Manila and to incorporate within its limits the surburb of Santa Ana.

Under Light Bail

San Juan, P. R., Nov. 18.—The bail of Santiago Iglesias, has been reduced to $500 cash. His trial has been set for Dec. 2.

Washington, Nov. 18.—The release of Santiago Iglesias, the agent of the American Federation of Labor who, on arriving about a week ago at San Juan, Porto Rico, to organize the workingmen of the island into trades unions, was arrested on a charge of conspiracy, probably will be affected today. A cablegram was sent yesterday afternoon by Samuel Gompers giving the authority to furnish bail in behalf of the Federation of Labor.

Raiders Fled Without Plunder

Wellington, Kas., Nov. 18.—Safe blowers raided Milan, a small town 16 miles west of here, at an early hour yesterday and, after entering every prominent store, wrecked the safe and fixtures of the Milan state bank with dynamite. Two doors were blown off the safe, but the third, on which was the time lock, resisted the forces of the explosives and citizens rushed into the streets with shotguns and drove the robbers away before they had secured any plunder.

Wholesale Forgery Alleged

New York, Nov. 18.—Captain Titus of the detective bureau has arrested a man who is suspected of having tried to negotiate with Wall street banks and brokers alleged worthless notes amounting in the aggregate to $103,000, to which the names of Potter Palmer and other prominent Chicago men are alleged to have been forged. The prisoner is said to be O. B. Wheeler, Jr., 50 years old.

Immigrants Pouring In

Washington, Nov. 18.—The annual report of Commissioner General Powderly of the immigration bureau shows the total steerage arrivals in the United States during the year to have been 487,918, an increase over the preceding year of 39,346, or approximately 9 percent.

Silver Coinage Shut Off

Madrid, Nov. 18.—The Spanish senate has passed a bill prohibiting silver coinage.

ALWAYS IN SIGHT

Crowded street. People passing by. Old and young. All eager about their own affairs and always somebody in plain sight who needs Scott's Emulsion.

Now it's that white-haired old man; weak digestion and cold body. He needs Scott's Emulsion to warm him, feed him, and strengthen his stomach.

See that pale girl? She has thin blood. Scott's Emulsion will bring new roses to her face.

There goes a young man with narrow chest. Consumption is his trouble. Scott's Emulsion soothes ragged lungs and increases flesh and strength.

And here's a poor, sickly little child. Scott's Emulsion makes children grow—makes children happy.

SCALP RAISED WITH AXE

Man Who Disturbed an Italian May Die From His Wounds

Boston, Nov. 18.—The north end was the scene of a murderous affray yesterday afternoon and Jeremiah Saunders, a teamster, is in a dangerous condition, suffering from a fractured skull, while Antonio Capucci, a young Italian, is in custody, charged with assaulting him. Saunders and a party of friends had been drinking together on the top floor of 339 North street and in coming down stairs were so noisy that they disturbed Capucci, who, with his family, lives on the second floor.

He remonstrated with them and then went back into his room, supposing they would leave. Saunders, however, remained on the lower stairs and continued his loud talk until Capucci became enraged and again rushed out into the entry to put a stop to it. What happened then is not entirely clear, some saying that the two men clinched and that Saunders struck Capucci, while others say that the latter threw an axe at Saunders from the top of the stairs. At any rate Saunders was hit a blow with an axe over the right eye that tore off the greater part of his scalp.

He ran into the street, where he fell unconscious. A crowd collected, and soon 3000 or 4000 people were about the house. A rush was made for the Italian's room, but he had locked himself in and the angry crowd was unable to reach him. The police arrived and Saunders was sent to the hospital, after the street had been cleared of the surging mob. Capucci was found under a bed in his room, and refused to go with the officers without a warrant, but they did not stand upon ceremony and took him by force.

Capucci is 29 years old and Saunders is about 40, having a family.

Paupers In Fresh Quarters

Concord, N. H., Nov. 18.—The New Hampshire state hospital in this city shelters 53 insane inmates of the Merrimack county almshouse at North Boscawen. Their quarters have been turned over to the 100 county paupers who were rendered homeless by the fire which destroyed the main building of the county almshouse. The 20 criminals from the house of correction connected with the almshouse are in the Merrimack county jail in this city.

Ells Defeat Tigers

New Haven, Nov. 18.—Yale's prestige on the gridiron received another glowing tribute on Yale field, when the sons of old Eli defeated Princeton by a score of 12 to 0. It was a typical Yale victory, both in regard to the style of football exhibited by Captain Gould's team and the sterling quality of the Yale players. Yale fought her way to Princeton's goal line for two well-earned touchdowns in a clean, manly contest.

Children Burned to Death

Watertown, Mass., Nov. 18.—Alfred F. and Jennie C. Kendall aged 2 and 5 years respectively, were burned to death in a fire at their home, 79 Watertown street, yesterday. The children had been left alone for a few minutes by the mother, who had gone to a neighbor's house. It is supposed that in some way they pulled a lighted lamp from a table to the floor, where it exploded.

Dangerous Doings

Taunton, Mass., Nov. 18.—The police of this city have been requested by the officials of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company to investigate several attempts to wreck the trains of that company at East Taunton recently. The signal lights have repeatedly been broken and obstructions placed upon the tracks.

Carriage Collided With Car

New Bedford, Mass., Nov. 18.—William P. Wilson, a hardware dealer, was thrown from a carriage and instantly killed yesterday by collision with a car of the Union street railway. Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Lillian F. Thomas and Miss Florence Thomas were thrown from the carriage and hurt. Miss Thomas probably fatally.

Used Razor on Throat

Clinton, Mass., Nov. 18.—Henry D. Chaffin, station agent of the Boston and Maine railroad at Lancaster Center, attempted suicide yesterday by cutting his throat with a razor. There is very little chance of his recovery. Chaffin held his position of station agent for 17 years and is prominently socially and politically in his town.

Accepts the Appointment

Boston, Nov. 18.—Rev. Charles H. Brent, bishop-elect of the Episcopal church in the Philippines, definitely announced his acceptance of the [illegible] conferred upon him from he pulpit of St. Stephen's church yesterday. It is understood that Father Brent's consecration will take place about Christmas.

Don't Like Their Foreman

New Bedford, Mass., Nov. 18.—Eighty granite cutters employed on the construction of the new Rogers Memorial church at Fairhaven have gone out on strike. They refuse to work under Foreman Delaney.

Little One Killed by Car

Boston, Nov. 18.—While attempting to cross Huntington avenue, Gertrude Muehlberger, 9 years old, was struck by a trolley car, and fatally injured. She died upon reaching the city hospital.

No Change For the Better

Boston, Nov. 18.—Four additional cases of smallpox have been found by the health authorities. During the present epidemic there have been 159 cases in this city.

Britishers Captured and Released

London, Nov. 18.—The South African casuality list shows that in the affair at Braksprui, Nov. 13, which Lord Kitchener reported last Friday, 58 yeomandry were captured by the Boers and afterward released.

The Satisfaction In Traveling Alone.

"Oh, the pleasure of eating alone!" wrote Charles Lamb in one of his most expansive letters. We are not quite sure how serious he was in the exclamation. But change "eating" into "traveling," and there may be found thousands who will echo the cry. Thackeray thought there was nothing to equal it. Louis Stevenson, in the Cevennes, made the same discovery, for his donkey cannot be said to count.

Jean Paul Richter, though he did not live in touring times, was too accomplished an individualist (of the sentimental kind) not to harp on this musical string. "I hold the constant regard that we pay in all our actions to the judgment of others as the poison of our peace, our reason and our virtue." Translated into plainer speech, Richter's words may read thus, "Unless you can have your own way life is but a poisoned puddle."

Curzon, Stanley, De Windt, Miss Kingsley, Landor and a host of smaller men and women have acted on the same assumption. And as in larger travel, better known as exploration, so also in the less stately yet more pleasurable "trips" of common life. After a full purse there is nothing so good for the vagrant as a free hand.—C. Edwardes in Speaker.

When Children Smoked.

Jorevin de Rochefort, who published in Paris in 1671 an account of his travels in England, tells the following: "While we were walking about the town (Worcester) he asked me if it was the custom in France as in England that when the children went to school they carried in their satchel with their books a pipe of tobacco, which their mothers took care to fill early in the morning, it serving them instead of breakfast, and that at the accustomed hour every one laid aside his book to light his pipe, the master smoking with them and teaching them how to hold their pipes and draw in the tobacco."

In England at the time of the great plague it was reported that no one living in a tobacconist's house fell sick of the disease. This caused a great demand for tobacco. Hearne says in his diary, "I remember that I heard formerly Tom Rogers, who was yeoman beadle, say that when he was a schoolboy at Eton that year when the plague raged all the boys of that school were obliged to smoke every morning and that he was never whipped so much in his life as he was one morning for not smoking."

A Garden of Milk.

The Milk garden of Frankfort, reserved for the children of that aristocratic city, is in itself one of the most democratic of places. Here rich people who wish to be relieved for a time of the presence of their children send them, accompanied by their nurses. Here also poor people who can neither afford to devote their own time to their children nor hire separate nurses for them may bring their little ones, certain that from the garden nurses they will receive all the care and attention necessary to safety, health and amusement.

Private nurses of the rich people and public nurses of the working people are subject to a supervision sufficient to protect the children of all classes from cruelty and neglect. The only food furnished in the garden is milk, whose freshness and purity are assured, inasmuch as it is drunk warm from the mild eyed cows which occupy stalls on one edge of the field.

Queer Musical Notes.

Which note of the scale is the softest? Dough (do).

Which is the lightest? Ray (re).

Which the fullest and deepest? Sea (si).

Which demands the use of the pedal? Sole (sol).

Which is in the objective most frequently? Me (mi).

Combine two notes and produce moist earth. Mire (mire).

Combine two notes and find a parent. Sire (sire).

What two notes will defray your traveling expenses? Fare (fare).—Youth's Companion.

Sleepy Grass.

Sleepy grass is found in New Mexico, Texas and Siberia. It has a most injurious effect on horses and sheep, being a strong narcotic or sedative and causing profound sleep or stupor lasting twenty-four to forty-eight hours. A horse after eating it is a pitiable object, its head and tail drooping, its body quivering and sweat pouring down its sides.

Reasons For His Belief.

"Do you think, young man," he said, "that you will be able to take care of my daughter Flora in the style to which she has been accustomed?"

"I think so, sir," answered the young man confidently. "She refused to go to the concert with me last week because she said she had 'nothing to wear.'"—London Fun.

The Value of Advice.

"The fee my lawyer charged was pretty big, I thought."

"Oh, I don't know. I think advice is usually worth about what you pay for it."

"Do you really?"

"Yes, especially the advice you get for nothing."—Philadelphia Press.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts,
NORFOLK, ss. PROBATE COURT.

To the Heirs-at-Law, Next-of-Kin, and all other persons interested in the estate of FREDERICK P. GLOVER, late of Needham, in said County, deceased.

Whereas, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased has been presented to said Court for Probate by William G. Moseley of Needham who prays that letters testamentary may be issued to him, the executor therein named.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Dedham, in said County of Norfolk, on the twentieth day of November, A. D. 1901, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing the citation once in each week, for three successive weeks in the Quincy Daily Ledger, a newspaper published in Quincy, the last publication to be one day, at least, before said Court, and by mailing, postpaid, or delivering a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate, seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, James H. Flint, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this fifth day of November, in the year one thousand nine hundred and one.

Man Tried to Jam Cartridge Into a Rock

A PREMATURE EXPLOSION

Lifted Him High In Air and Caused Injuries Which May Result In His Death—Three Other Men Become Victims of Venturesome Foreman

Fall River, Mass., Nov. 19.—Late yesterday afternoon four men in the employ of the water works department of this city were more or less seriously injured by a premature explosion of dynamite, and the foreman, Eugene Levigne, aged 30, will probably die.

A section of Peckham street was being graded and a gang from the water department was engaged in relaying pipes. It was necessary to do considerable blasting, and for his purpose big dynamite cartridges were used. A hole had been drilled in a huge rock for the cartridge, and Foreman Levigne was placing the cartridge in position.

Finding it too large, he attempted to drive it in with a hammer. Still failing to force it in, he began to pound it with his feet. He had dealt several blows when there was a crash, and Levigne was thrown into the air some distance, as were also several other men nearby.

When the smoke cleared away four men were lying on the ground. Help was summoned at once and Levigne was taken to the city hospital, where it was found that his left foot had been blown off and the right one badly mangled. He also sustained other injuries and it is believed he cannot survive.

John Shea, 60 years old, was badly cut about the body and one eye was badly injured, so that he will probably lose the sight of it. The other men were less seriously hurt.

A huge section of the rock was blown into the air and carried 500 feet, breaking through the roof of the house of John Durand. There was almost a panic in the southern part of the city after the explosion and the police had hard work to keep the crowds away from the scene of the accident.

Wants Place on Naval Committee

Washington, Nov. 19.—Representative Ernest W. Roberts of Chelsea, Mass., hopes to be made chairman of the elections committee, on which he has been serving, and also given a place on naval affairs, since the Charlestown navy yard is in his district. Maine has a representation in naval matters through Senator Hale, and New Hampshire soon will have, through Senator Gallinger. Rhode Island is represented on the house committee by Mr. Bull. Congressman Roberts called at the White House yesterday to renew his acquaintance with Mr. Roosevelt.

Canada Won't Bear Expense

Ottawa, Nov. 19.—Many cable dispatches are passing between the imperial and dominion governments in regard to the recruiting of another contingent of troops in Canada for service in South Africa. The only thing that Canada is likely to do in this matter is to afford any facilities that Great Britain may desire for recruiting in Canada. The cost probably will have to be met by Great Britain.

On an Important Mission

Havana, Nov. 19.—The commission of seven appointed by industrial and commercial organizations of Cuba to present to President Roosevelt and congress the appeal of the Cuban people for concessions and reciprocity in tariff on Cuban products have sailed for new York by steamer Morro Castle. The departure was one of the most notable events in Cuba's recent history.

Love and Desperation

Middlebury, Vt., Nov. 19.—Miss Vina Dejaden drank a solution of potash yesterday, while despondent, and is expected to die. A love affair is said to have prompted her act.

Reported Deporting of Steyn Family

Brussels, Nov. 19.—The Petit Bleu asserts that the wife and family of ex-President Steyn of the Orange Free State have been deported from South Africa.

Will Talk to Merchants

Washington, Nov. 19.—Secretary Hay is to attend the annual dinner of the New York chamber of commerce tonight.

The weather conditions are unsettled in the east. In New England the weather will be unsettled and threatening, with possibly local rains and snows over some portions. On the coast winds will be light to fresh and mostly northerly.

MRS BONINE IN COURT

Woman Accused of Murder Is Represented by Five Attorneys

Washington, Nov. 19.—This morning, before Judge Anderson, began the trial of Mrs. Bonine, under indictment for the murder of James S. Ayres, Jr., in the Kenmore hotel in this city on the night of May 15 last. The case attracted widespread interest at the time the tragedy occurred, largely on account of the mystery which shrouded the death of the young man. This interest was augmented while the coroner's inquest was in progress by the dramatic confession of Mrs. Bonine of her part in the tragedy. She said that she was the only person in the room when Ayres was shot and that he was killed in a struggle with her over the possession of a revolver with which he was trying to frighten her into compliance with improper demands on his part. She has been in jail since then.

Mrs. Bonine was accompanied to the court room by her husband and two sons and by her sister, Mrs. Meecham, who has come from her home in Missouri for the purpose of being present. It is also expected that later in the trial a brother, Grant Hemry, and a sister, Miss Pearl Hemry, will be present. Seats have been reserved also for five attorneys to represent Mrs. Bonine, although it is not expected that all of them will be present at any time.

Attorney Gould will be assisted in the prosecution by Hugh T. Taggart. Seventy-three witnesses have been summoned on behalf of the government. Thus far no subpoenas have been issued for any witnesses in Mrs. Bonine's behalf.

Many Deaths From Lockjaw

Camden, N. J., Nov. 19.—The alarm which has been caused by the nine cases of tetanus following vaccination here has aroused the city officials. The board of health and the board of education each held meetings yesterday. The former decided to request physicians to cease vaccinating persons until an investigation of the cause of the lockjaw cases has been made and the later rescinded the order of compulsory vaccination of all school children. Of the nine cases of tetanus so far reported seven have died and the other two are still in a dangerous condition.

Dowie's Brother-In-Law Sues

Chicago, Nov. 19.—Samuel Stevenson, brother-in-law of John Alexander Dowie, the "faith healer," entered suit yesterday to have a receiver appointed for the Zion lace industries, one of Dowie's enterprises for which he imported 50 lacemakers from England. Stevenson alleged that Dowie has withheld from him remuneration which had been promised. His bill avers that Dowie influenced him into signing an innocent-looking document which in reality gave Dowie entire ownership of the lace company.

Labor Fever Strikes Cleveland

Cleveland, Nov. 19.—A movement has been started which may result in the labor men of Cleveland entering the political field themselves after breaking away from the ranks of both the Republican and Democratic parties. The cause of the sentiment behind this movement is the recent success of labor candidates in both San Francisco and Bridgeport, Conn. Since these two elections scarcely anything else of a political nature has been discussed in the labor circles of this city.

Professionalism Alleged

New Haven, Nov. 19.—The Register has the following: According to reports three Harvard football players are involved in charges of professionalism. The three men whose names are mentioned are Cutts, tackle; Campbell, left end and captain, and Kernan, left halfback. So far Yale has made no protest.

Ten Killed In Railroad Accident

Great Falls, Mont., Nov. 19.—A wreck occurred on the Great Northern near Blair, in which 10 men lost their lives and 28 others were seriously injured. An extra freight ran into a work train and it was among the persons on the latter train that the terrible havoc was wrought.

Too Much of a Good Thing

Baku, Nov. 19.—An oil well on ground rented from the Russian crown for five kopecks per pood by the Baku Naphtha company has started gushing at the rate of 1,000,000 poods daily. Work has been stopped, owing to a fear of a conflagration.

Tarheel State Guaranteed Bonds

Washington, Nov. 19.—The United States supreme court granted leave yesterday to South Dakota to file its bill in the proceeding against the state of North Carolina to recover on bonds of the western railroad company guaranteed by North Carolina.

Innocent Man Imprisoned

Vienna, Nov. 19.—An Austrian officer named Stiller, after suffering four years' imprisonment on a charge of treason, in supplying to Russia the plans of an Austrian fortress, obtained a revision of his trial and succeeded in establishing his innocence.

Still Confident of Release

Sofia, Nov. 19.—Another letter has been received from Miss Ellen M. Stone. Her health has been somewhat affected by her continual confinement and hard fare, but she expresses herself as still confident of ultimate release.

GERMANY IS OUR FRIEND

No Thought of Jealousy of American Progress

CONFIDENCE IN ROOSEVELT

And Admiration For Our Country In General—Emphatic Denial of Plans For Securing Coaling Stations In South America or West Indies

Washington, Nov. 19.—Herr Von Holleben, German ambassador to the United States, has just returned to Washington from his vacation in Europe and has resumed the duties of his post here. When interviewed here yesterday he seemed to be in excellent spirits. When asked about the existing relations between Germany and the United States, he said:

"They have never been better or more cordial. The great sorrow which came to your country through the tragedy in Buffalo has greatly aroused sympathy of the German people who are so closely united to the people of the United States by the many ties of blood and friendship. Just as in private life we think more of a friend whom fate has made to suffer severely, so the German people have been brought nearer to those of the United States through the latter country's great misfortune. Mr. McKinley's great qualities in private life, as well as his great statesmanship, shown in dealings with public affairs, have always been thoroughly understood and appreciated.

"My countrymen," continued the ambassador, "look up to your new president with admiration and full confidence, admiring the country at the same time which can produce a man of such high abilities as your chief executive.

"My sovereign," the ambassador said, "has the most frank admiration for America's progress and the most cordial and friendly feelings for the United States. He has just shown once more how he appreciates American skill and workmanship in having a yacht built in the United States. All talk that he desires to bring the European nations together in a challenge of America's progress in the commercial world is without foundation."

Before closing the interview the ambassador said: "I have one more thing to say. You are without doubt aware that at regular intervals reports appear in the newspapers to the effect that Germany is trying to acquire coaling stations or a foothold of some kind in South America, or in the West Indian waters. These reports are started again and again by our enemies who don't like to see us on too friendly terms with the United States. I can tell you now that I am officially authorized to state that Germany has no such purpose. I want to deny now, once for all, these ever recurring reports in an emphatic and unqualified way. I have told this to the president, who was especially gratified by it."

Cassini Resumes Duties

Washington, Nov. 19.—Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, who has just returned to Washington from a long absence in Russia, paid his respects to Secretary Hay yesterday. The count was charged with many warm utterances by the Emperor of Russia complimentary to the American people.

Sailors' Awful Suffering

St. Johns, Nov. 19.—Further details of the suffering of the crew of the barkentine Titinia, which was wrecked in a dense fog near Cape Race, have been received here. During the 36 hours in which they were lashed to the ship's rigging, they were absolutely without clothing except their shirts and drawers. Their rescue was effected with great difficulty. Three men from the shore aided the shipwrecked men to land.

The Weed Won

Great Bend, Pa., Nov. 19.—The girls of this village organized an anti-tobacco league some time ago, one of the principles of which was that no member should associate with a man who used tobacco. The young men of the village then unanimously resolved to go with none but out-of-town girls. After standing this taboo for some time the club has disbanded.

Army Officer Gets Two Years

Berlin, Nov. 19.—The court-martial appointed to inquire into the duel between Lieutenant Blaskowitz and Lieutenant Hildebrand, both army officers, in which the former was killed, sentenced Hildebrand to two years' imprisonment. Lieutenant Groddeck, second to Hildebrand, was sentenced to five days' imprisonment.

Oklahoma's Future Insured

Washington, Nov. 19.—The annual report of Governor William H. Jenkins of the Territory of Oklahoma was made public yesterday by the secretary of the interior. Governor Jenkins makes a strong plea for statehood, saying that the past rapid development of the material interests of the territory insure its future.

Chasing Up Chamberlain

Dresden, Nov. 19.—The municipal council will hold an extra meeting today to protest against the speech of Joseph Chamberlain at Edinburgh. This protest will be noteworthy as the first official action in this direction.

CAUSED A BIG SCARE

Electric Explosions Accompanied by Terrific Reports at Boston

Boston, Nov. 19.—If the thousands of busy shoppers on lower Tremont street yesterday afternoon were startled by a sudden jar and muffled roar beneath their hurrying feet the few hundred patrons in the trains in the subway were absolutely terrified by an electric explosion, which fortunately, caused no damage.

The explosion occurred near the Scollay square station, where there happened to be no train at the time, and was occasioned by the sudden fusing of a connecting wire under a strong current. The report was terrific and was distinctly heard far up Tremont street, while the pyrotechnic display that instantly followed served to hasten the steps of those seeking safety above ground.

Repairs to the wires occupied about half an hour, during which time the rapid transit system of the elevated road was practically paralyzed.

Scarcely had the stalled trains started again when a second explosion, as deafening and dazzling as the first, occurred in about the same place. This last served to tie up traffic during the worst time in the day, and it was after 7 before the trains were moving again.

Alleged Violation of Civil Sevice Law

Boston, Nov. 19.—An alleged violation of the civil service regulations by Superintendent Wheeler of the street department was called formally to the attention of Mayor Hart in a communication which he received yesterday from the attorneys for two men who claim that they should have been appointed inspectors of the paving division by virtue of their positions on the civil service list. An opinion on Superintendent Wheeler's action was recently obtained from Attorney General Knowlton, in which the state official stated that the law had been violated.

Another Borden Bomb

Fall River, Mass., Nov. 19.—M. C. D. Borden yesterday dropped prices of all kinds of prints ½ cent a yard, except shirting, which he dropped 1-4 cent. The action caused consternation in the trade. Many cancellations of orders have been reported already. The price of print cloths in this market has not been reduced, Borden simply reducing the prices of his own finished goods in order to be able to sell more goods.

Smallpox Had Chance to Spread

Boston, Nov. 19.—One death from smallpox was reported yesterday, that of the wife of Councilman George A. Flynn. According to the physicians, Mrs. Flynn contracted the disease from her husband, whose case was unrecognized, and who visited the city hall while indisposed. The disease did not affect him seriously enough to prevent him from taking an active part in the political campaign in ward 17.

Victim of Highwaymen

New Haven, Nov. 19.—Henry N. Johnson last night reported to the police that on Saturday night he was robbed of $164 in cash and a valuable gold watch and badly beaten by two men on a street here. The men went through the victim's clothes and took the money and watch. Johnson was so badly injured that he was unable to leave his bed until last night.

Mills' Showing For Last Quarter

Fall River, Nov. 19.—The quarterly dividend list, prepared by G. M. Haffards & Co., shows a distribution of $230,800 on a capitalization of $21,301,000, or 1.08 percent. Nine out of 36 corporations listed paid no dividends as compared with 10 in the preceding quarter. In the corresponding quarter of last year the mills paid an average of 1.79 percent.

New Industry For Nantucket

Nantucket, Mass., Nov. 19.—The experiment of raising oysters in what is known as Polpis Harbor has apparently proved successful, for while the bivalves planted last spring have not attained any great size, they are very firm and of fine flavor. Already many shipments have been made, and next year the beds will be enlarged.

Postmaster For Half a Century

Leominster, Mass., Nov. 19.—William F. Howe yesterday resigned as postmaster of North Leominster, to take effect on Nov. 30. He was appointed in 1851 and has been continuously in service in the same office since that time. Mr. Howe is 76 years of age and is still active in business, being the proprietor of a large general store.

Embezzler to Make Restitution

Taunton, Mass., Nov. 19.—With the understanding that restitution in full would be made for money embezzled from the Order of Druids, Judge Sherman yesterday continued the case of Dr. Emanuel Harris of Fall River until a later date. Dr. Harris pleaded guilty to the indictment charging the stealing of $3400.

Still Gathering In Boers

London, Nov. 19.—Lord Kitchener, cabling to the war office from Pretoria, reports that since Nov. 7 the British columns have killed 43 and wounded 16 Boers, and 297 have been taken prisoners.

"Last winter an infant child of mine had croup in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist, of Filley, Mo. "I gave her a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and in a short time all danger was past and the child recovered." This remedy not only cures croup but when given as soon as the first symptoms appear, will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

Good Afternoon.

Too much stock should not be placed in the rumors which have been circulated as to what Mayor Jones will do when he assumes the office. The rumors are simply rumors which are started with malicious intent to prevent his election. Voters should keep in mind the speech of acceptance of Mr. Jones, in which he said: "I have not made a promise, and have not caused anyone else to make a promise in my behalf. Without promises, I believe a man elected Mayor of our city will have a better chance to pick out good and capable men for the heads of departments."

It is unlikely that Candidate Jones has made any promises since his nomination, or that he will previous to his election. They are entirely unnecessary, for Mr. Jones is sure of an election in a three-cornered fight if the Republicans conduct an active educational campaign. Some have already set his plurality at nearly 1,000, but that is probably an extravagant figure.

Should Mr. Bryant throw his strength in favor of the Democratic candidate, Mr. Tirrell, the contest would be closer.

Ex-Chief Webber of the Boston Fire Department is not as complimentary of the Quincy Fire Department as the Boston Globe. The latter says: "The Quincy department is considered one of the most efficient for its size in the State," but Mr. Webber refers to it as "a plaything" according to the Globe. We venture the assertion, that if Mr. Webber attempted to fill the place of chief engineer of the Quincy department as efficiently as it is now filled, that he would find it no plaything, but much harder work for head and body, fire for fire, than he has experienced in Boston while chief. We would not be surprised if ex-Chief Webber was incorrectly reported.

Some are inclined to regard the Democrate nominee for mayor as a straw candidate, but Mr. Tirrell is a popular young man, and successful in business, and already has many at work in his interests. Quincy has had younger men in the Mayoralty chair, but Mr. Tirrell may be regarded as the young men's candidate. It is not essential that a professional man, or a Boston business man, shall be at the head of our city government. Good successful local business men should make good mayors.

It is to be hoped that the trans-continental wireless telegraph company may prove a check on the lynching habit by doing away with telegraph poles.

THE CITY COUNCIL.

Order Introduced for High School Plans.

The Collection of Ashes Postponed.

Several Fire Department and Salary Orders Considered.

Councilman Craig was the only absent member at Monday night's meeting of the City Council.

SALARY INCREASE.

The Mayor sent a communication from the Sealer of Weights and Measures setting forth that under the change in the laws the duties of the office were greatly increased, and that the salary should be increased from $15 a year, to $100. To Ordinance Committee.

GAS DECISION.

The Mayor forwarded the decision of the Board of Gas and Electric Light Commission relative to the reduction in the price of gas in Quincy. Laid on the table until later when it was referred to a special committee consisting of Councilmen DeNormandie, Hultman and Bass.

PETITIONS.

Several petitions for minor licenses were received and referred.

SCHOOL REPORTS.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported an order for $2,800 for installing a system of water closets at the Lincoln school, and connecting the building with the sewer. To Committee on Finance.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported reference to the next City Council on the matter of new school building in Ward Six, Atlantic.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported reference to next City Council on the matter of connecting the High school with the sewer.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported an order for $2,600 for procuring plans and specification for enlarging the High school. To Committee on Finance.

THOSE CANNON.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported no legislation necessary on the communication from Congressman Naphen relative to cannon and shells.

STREET RAILWAYS.

The special committee on street railway locations and service reported that the railway company was ready to improve the service and now had plans for so doing. That their locations not already built upon were as follows:

Granite street from Copeland to Hancock streets.

Beale street from Newport avenue to Hancock street.

Standish avenue from Beale street to Hancock.

Robertson street from Willard to Adams street.

Adams street for Robertson to Beale street.

Beale street from Adams street to Farrington street.

The committee recommended these locations be revoked and a reference of the whole matter to the next City Council. Accepted.

CRUSHED STONE.

The Committee on Finance reported ought not to pass on order for $1,000 for the purchase of crushed stone. Accepted.

NO DAMAGE.

The Committee on Finance reported leave to withdraw on the petitions of Jane McIntosh and John Smith for damages by change of grade on Arthur street. Accepted.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The joint Committee on Finance and Fire Department reported an amendment to the order for $700 for steam heating plant and bath at the Hose house in Ward Two, making the amount $250 for a bath room. Took second reading.

The joint Committee on Finance and Fire Department reported favorable on the order for $160 for a bath tub at Hose 4 house. Took second reading.

The Finance Committee reported an amendment to the order for $80, for a water boiler in Hose House, Ward Six, making the amount $90. Took second reading.

The Committee on Finance reported a loan order for $500 to meet the above orders. Ordered to second reading.

TRANSFERS.

The Committee on Finance reported an order transferring $60 from "Assessors miscellaneous" and $56 from "miscellaneous, city" to "clerk hire for the assessors." Adopted.

FAVORABLE REPORT.

The joint Committee on Finance and Ordinance reported an order increasing the salary of the Clerk of Council from $200 to 250, and the salary of the Clerk of Committees from $300 to $350. Took second reading.

COLLECTION OF ASHES.

The Finance Committee reported reference to the next City Council, the order for $500 for collecting ashes. Laid on the table until later when it was taken up.

Councilman DeNormandie asked for a division of the report.

The chair ruled the report could not be divided.

Councilman DeNormandie—Does the acceptance of a report carry the recommendations with it.

President Bryant—Yes.

Councilman DeNormandie—I move the report be received.

President Bryant—The Council receives a report when it is read. The question was on the acceptance of the report.

Councilman DeNormandie hoped report would not be accepted. If we wait until the next City Council it will be February or March before action is taken. Now is the time to collect ashes. The Board of Health will have two months' experience and will then know how much it will cost for eight or nine months.

The report was accepted.

THAT SIDEWALK

The Committee on Finance reported reference to the next City Council on the order for $2,000 for a sidewalk on Hancock street from Adams to Gilmore streets.

ELECTION ORDERS.

Councilman Langelier offered an order dividing Ward Six into two precincts. To Committee on Legislative Matters.

Councilman Nichols offered an order for the municipal election, Dec. 3.

MORE FOR FIREMEN.

Councilman Hultman offered an order increasing the salary of the permanent men of the Fire Department from $18 to $21 per week. To Committee on Fire Department.

SPECIAL PERMIT.

Councilman Langelier reported an order giving the Sewer Commissioners authority to permit the boiler room of the Quincy depot to be connected with the sewer. To Committee on Sewers and Drains.

OVERRULED.

Councilman DeNomandie moved that the order for $55,000 for new school house at Quincy Point be recommitted to the Council and then referred to the joint Committee on Finance and Public Buildings.

The Chairman ruled the motion out of order.

On an appeal, the chair was sustained by a vote of 13 to 6.

Councilman DeNormandie moved the Committee on Public Buildings be joined with the Finance committee on the order.

The chair ruled the motion not in proper form.

In an appeal the chair was sustained by a vote of 16 to 4.

Councilman DeNormadie then moved that the Committee on Finance be instructed to report on the order at the next meeting of the Council. Voted.

LOCATIONS GRANTED.

The orders granting the New England Telephone Co. location for two poles on Belmont street, and permission to attach wires to city poles on Smith street, were passed under suspension of the rules.

The order granting the Old Colony street railway a location for an additional track on Hancock street from Gilmore street to Squantum street was passed under suspension of the rules.

Adjourned at 8.12, to met on Dec. 2, the eve of the City election.

Whist at Atlantic.

The Smart Set whist club held its third meeting with Miss Gertrude Hall of Newbury avenue. Favors were given out to make a choice of partners, little bells on different colored ribbons, and whist began promptly at eight o'clock and continued until ten. Miss Laura Hall won first prize; Miss Emma Curtain won second. Cards bearing the name of each member of the club were placed around a table in the dining room, and everyone found her place and straightway opened the peanut she found tied to one corner of the card. There was a slip of paper in each nut, giving characteristic description of the initials of the several states in the Union, and during the distribution of dainty and tempting viands, each young woman read her paper aloud and everyone ventured a guess. The Smart Set proved very excellent guessers. The evening was a most enjoyable one for all.

—James B. McGeary, who has announced himself as a candidate to succeed W. J. Deboe, of Kentucky, in the United States Senate was formerly Governor of Kentucky and is known among the mountaineers of that state as "Oily Jeems".

AS A PLAYTHING.

Dame Rumor Connects ex-Boston Chief with Quincy Department.

The Boston Globe, to further complicate Quincy politics, prints the following:

Will ex-chief of the Boston fire department Lewis P. Webber, now a resident of the city of Quincy, again become connected with a fire department, is being discussed by many of the citizens of Quincy, especially those interested in politics. In some quarters it is believed that the ex-chief will take a position with the Quincy department.

There is a rumor that in the event of the election of a certain mayoralty candidate of that city, Ex-Chief Webber will be offered the position of chief of the department. The department is considered one of the most efficient for its size in the state. It consists of one steamer, two chemicals and combination hose wagons, three ladder trucks, seven hose wagons, all of which have permanent men and horses.

The story is told that when Ex-Chief Webber was asked if he would take the position he remarked: "Take it! Why, I'd like it for a plaything."

Value of Torpedo Boats.

The relative merits and demerits of the torpedo boat are again brought under cosideration by a statement from Admiral ONeil, chief of the bureau of ordinance of the navy, who has a very low opinion both of torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers.

The admiral declares that the utility of the submarine torpedo boats, over which France has been making so much ado, is far from proved by the experiments. He thinks that torpedoes and torpedo boats may prove useful as scarecrows for a time, but he cannot see that they have any other value. The alarm which was created in some quarters by the news that some torpedo boats had accompanied Admiral Cerveras squadron has not been forgotten yet. There were many who saw in them dangerous enemies of the American warships. Perhaps they might have been of some service to the enemy had they been better handled than they were, but the fate they met with was an ignominious one. It will be recalled that the Gloucester, a wooden ship in command of Captain Wainwright, made mincemeat of the torpedo boats she encountered at Santiago.

On the other hand, it may be said with some degree of truth that there has not been yet a really fair test of the merits of these boats. It is not likely that there soon will be one. There are controversies between naval officers on this and the other side of the Atlantic as to the advantages of certain alleged improvements in the art of naval warfare. These controversies never will be settled until two great naval power fall out and settle them.

However, that part of the public whose profession is not war will prefer that the controversy would remain unsettled rather than contemplate the terrible destruction which would result from the conflict between two great naval powers, particularly if one of them were the United States.—Brockton Enterprise.

Direct Nominations.

There is good reason for believing, says the Herald, editorially, that when the next General Court reassembles what should be a successful effort will be made to so change the election laws of this state as to do away with party conventions in nominating senators and representatives, for the purpose of giving to the people of Massachusetts the right to select as candidates those whom they wish to thus favor.

The experience of the past few weeks has been exceedingly enlightening. The new law of direct senatorial nominations in Suffolk county has been tried with the result that it has been found to work in an exceedingly satisfactory manner. The caucuses where the nomination had any real political significance were largely attended by the voters of the two parties, and the results were accepted in good part by the defeated candidates. Outside of Suffolk county not a few nominations were made which were unsatisfactory in a striking degree.

An illustration can be drawn from the commissioner contest in Norfolk county. If there had been a direct nomination by a convention of delegates, Mr. Watts H. Bowker would never have been brought forward as an official party candidate for this position; that is, he never could have obtained in the Republican caucuses of the county the votes needed to have given him this place on the ticket.

This is only one illustration out of quite a number that could be given, as indicating the desirability of so changing our statutes that the people shall have a larger share than is now accorded to them of determining who shall and who shall not represent them in the government of the state.

Commissioner Knowlton advertises today for proposals for installing the police signal system authorized by the City Council.

The first degree staff of Neponset lodge will exemplify the work at I. O. O. F. hall, Quincy this evening for Mt. Wollaston lodge.

Warren E. Munroe Hartwell's News agency, has gone to Hillsboro, N. H. to attend the funeral of his uncle, who died suddenly Saturday.

The degree staff of Mt. Wollaston lodge will perform the second degree for John Hancock lodge, I. O. O. F., at Wollaston, tomorrow evening.

The Brotherhood of Andrew and Philip of Bethany church will entertain the men of the church at the chapel this evening. Mr. Hiram W. Phillips will tell of his experience as a diver.

Mrs. Nettie F. Abbott has returned to make a short visit with her sister, Mrs. J. E. Odom, before returning to her home in Berkeley, California. During her stay in Bucksport, Maine, she took a sleigh ride, not having been in a sleigh for thirty-three years previously.

Col. Oakes, accompanied by members of the Fifth regiment staff, will officially visit company B of Cambridge Monday evening, Nov. 25. Following a drill Maj. Charles W. Galloupe, surgeon of the regiment, will give the company "A Medical Talk on Camp Sanitation," and Lieut. Charles R. Gow, inspector of rifle practice, will speak on "Small Arms Practice."

Tableaux representing scenes from Eben Holden, Janice Meredith, Caleb West and other modern novels, introduced in Mr. Emery Crane's inimitable style, will be given at the Chafing Dish party tonight at the Unitarian chapel. Miss Marie Moore will give an Irish monologue in costume. The chafing dishes are in the management of experienced servers and a most enjoyable time is anticipated.

GRAND ARMY FAIR.

The Opening Address by Mayor Hall.

The Tables and Those in Charge.

Wollaston Band and Other Entertainment Provided.

The six days' fair of Paul Revere Post, 88, G. A. R., to replenish its charity fund, opened at Music hall, Monday evening with a large attendance.

The opening exercises included a welcome by Commander Warner, and brief address by Mayor Hall, and selections by the Wollaston band.

Commander Warner reminded those assembled that the war began 30 years ago, and that but few of those who volunteered now existed, and that soon all would be gone. He regretted that it was necessary to make an annual appeal, but the demands were large, and he appealed to all to help the fair all they could.

Mayor Hall was glad to be able to say a few words at the inauguration of the fair. The charity fund of Paul Revere Post not only helps the veterans, but the widows and children of veterans. The lessons for which the Grand Army fought should always be remembered, and for this reason a fair like this is needed. The glory of the Grand Army; its bloodshed, privation and sacrifices; its achievements, and the prosperity which followed, should all be instilled into the youth of today. Today we see grandeur of country, and the stars and stripes flying over the isles of the east which will soon enjoy the benefits of christianity.

The tables, which were arranged on the sides and end of the hall, looked very pretty in their decorations of red and white bunting. The tables were well supplied with things pleasing to the eye, as well as things pleasing to the taste, and good sales were made.

The various tables and those in charge were as follows:

Apron table—Mrs. Ann Wright, Mrs. M. H. Peverly, Mrs. Alice Litchfield.

Fancy table—Mrs. Isabel Souther, Mrs. Alberta Hewson.

Confectionery table—Mrs. Elizabeth Farwell, Mrs. Laura Holt, Mrs. Lydia Falvey.

Post table—Mrs. Ella Holmes.

Pop corn table — Mrs. A. W. Gardner, Miss Mary Gardner.

Handkerchief table—Mrs. Emily Kelley, Mrs. Hattie Guthrie.

Aunt Jemima's Grabs — Mrs. Prudence Stokes.

Orange tree—Miss Mildred Willett.

Flower table—Mrs. Mary A. Fox, Miss Mary L. Furnald.

Grab bag—Mrs. Mary Crane.

Refreshment table—Mrs. Celia Baxter, Mrs. Isabel Holmes, Mrs. Mary Powers, Mrs. Susan Hewson.

Shirt waist table—Mrs. Emma Baxter.

Ice cream table—Charles Stoddard.

Coffee table—A. F. Hayward.

Tonic table—Messrs. Ring and Chubbuck.

Wheel of fortune in charge of Grand Army veterans.

Ladies' Aid table—Miss Abbie Feltis, Mrs. Arthur C. Merritt, Mrs. Emma Ela, Miss Mildred Willett, Miss Marcella Souther, Miss Annie Holbrook, Mrs. Frank Stoddard.

For tonight a very pleasing entertainment has been arranged. There will be solos by John Findlay, the boy soprano, the Dunns in comedy of acrobat; Connors, the Indian club swinger, and Miss Cotter in solos; also music by an orchestra.

Misplaced Confidence.

Mrs. John Morgan of Standish avenue lost $22, Monday, by misplaced confidence. In the afternoon she started to walk to Quincy. When near Butler road she had a fainting spell and sat down for a few minutes on the steps leading to McGregor block. While there she was approached by a well dressed young man who asked if he could be of any assistance. After some conversation he volunteered to take her handkerchief and wet it in the brook. Mrs. Morgan handed him her bag containing her handkerchief and pocket-book, containing $22 in money.

The fellow disappeared in the direction of Butler's brook and has not been seen since. After waiting some time for the fellow to return Mrs. Morgan continued her journey to City Square and reported the matter to the police.

The United States Hotel, Boston.

Before the death of Mr. Tilly Haynes, long time proprietor of the old "States," he arranged for a new lease of the property, which has been transferred to his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James G. Hickey, whose long association with Mr. Haynes and their thorough knowledge of the business, make them especially fitted to continue the work, so that the same careful attention to guests, excellence of table with moderate charges, and comfortable homelike air—which have made the house famous in the past—will be kept up in the future. The old patrons will be as welcome as ever, and new ones can rest assured of courteous treatment and good care.

THE FIRST ESTIMATE

A Correspondent Predicts 400 Plurality for Mr. Jones.

Editors of the Ledger:

I have carefully studied the Mayoralty situation as it now takes form, with Messrs. Frederick L. Jones as the Republican candidate; Frederick W. Tirrell as the Democratic candidate, Levi Turner as the candidate of the Social Democracy, and Charles M. Bryant, independent. I will ask you to please publish the following estimate of probable strength of the four candidates, and also to add thereto the vote for the Mayoralty candidates last year, that comparisons may be made.

I estimate that Mr. Bryant will not receive 200 votes in any ward of the city, and that Wards Five and Six will be the only wards where he will lead the Democratic candidate.

Mr. Jones will lead Mr. Bryant in every ward and will be elected by 400 plurality over Mr. Tirrell.

The estimate:

THE LAUNCHING.

Des Moines Will Not Take Her Dip Until 1902.

It has been reported that the cruiser Des Moines, now building at the Fore River shipyard, would be launched in November, and that the Governor of Iowa and party would leave for the East this week.

Mr. Jones of the Fore River Company informs the Ledger that the date for the launching has not been set, but is positive it will not take place this month or next, but probably early in the spring.

Relative to the report that Gov. Shaw of Iowa, the Mayor of Des Moines, Miss West and others, were about to leave for the East, Mr. Jones thought it an error. He said we should all be pleased to have them come and spend three or four months with us and would endeavor to give them a good time, but it was improbable that they could afford to give us so much of their time.

Surprise Party.

Mrs. William A. Kelley was pleasantly surprised at her home on Penn street, Saturday evening, by thirty-five or more of her neighbors and friends who walked in unannounced at an early hour. After recovering from her surprise, Mrs. Kelley bade them make themselves at home. Then there were games, music and dancing, which, with the refreshments served made the hours pass all too quickly. While the festivities were at their height, William Lawry rapped for order, and during the temporary lull presented Mrs. Kelley with a dinner set of 130 pieces, and a toilet set. It was some minutes before Mrs. Kelley recovered from her second surprise, and was able to find words to thank her friends for their generous and handsome gift.

SAFETY ON THE OCEAN

Value of Wireless Telegraphy on Transatlantic Liners.

FAR BETTER THAN FLAG SIGNALS

How Ships Will Be Kept In Touch With Each Other and With the Shore—Details of the Agreement Between Lloyds and the Marconi Company.

The details of the agreement between the Marconi International Marine Communication company and Lloyds are given in the current number of the London Electrician. By the terms of this agreement the Marconi system of wireless telegraphy is placed upon a secure and enduring footing for mercantile marine signaling and intercommunication between ships and coast signal stations. As is well known, up to the advent of the Marconi system communications between passing ships at sea and between vessels and the Lloyds signal stations have been by flag signals. Against this system, which has been in use for centuries, many objections have been made. Distance was always a drawback, as the range of vision even on a clear day is limited, and in foggy or stormy weather or in the night no signaling except the "pilot flare" and the signal of distress is in vogue. Further than this, it has often been necessary for a vessel to go out of her course to signal coast stations, thus losing valuable time and often running into danger in the effort to get near enough to the station to give and answer messages. Besides this, the system of flags is cumbersome, and only a few phrases can be sent back and forth.

Now that the Marconi system has been proved a success it seems strange that there has not been more haste in taking it up on all merchant vessels. Of course the question of monopoly will arise, for, according to the agreement, Lloyds will employ no other system of wireless telegraphy than that of the Marconi company for the next fourteen years, but as the Morse system and the telephone were monopolies it should be no drawback. They will receive commercial messages at their signal stations from any vessel supplied with the Marconi apparatus and will also send messages to any such vessel, but they will receive or transmit no wireless telegraph communication whatever where a vessel is equipped with apparatus not supplied by the Marconi company. By this agreement the monopoly is established, for it will be necessary for vessels desiring to communicate with shore in that way to get that particular apparatus. It would be interesting to know what would be done in the case of signals of distress, but it is more than likely that this great possibility of the system will not stand in the way of humanity and that the stations will promptly report any vessel which may be in difficulties whether or not she has the Marconi apparatus on board.

The agreement further provides that whenever a center for commercial wireless telegraphy with ships would be advisable the existing Lloyds stations at these points shall be worked on the Marconi system, or if no station exists within about twenty miles a new Lloyds station will be built and of course be placed in ordinary telegraphic communication with the British postoffice lines. Arrangements have been made by which Atlantic liners fitted with Marconi apparatus will be supplied with all the latest important news as soon as they come within about a hundred miles of the coast of America or the British islands.

The rental system which has been in force with the Marconi company will not be used under the agreement, but a tariff system will take its place. Signal stations will be allowed free use of the apparatus for the ordinary receipt of Lloyds signals, and vessels signaling to one another are permitted a certain number of service messages, but for all commercial messages a charge of sixpence per word in addition to all land charges will be made. There can be little doubt that business men on steamers, finding that they can communicate with land a hundred miles out at sea, will be prone to use the system and that the dissemination of important news on the vessel is likely to promote private messages.

With this system in vogue, it seems as if there should be a decided improvement in the security of ocean voyages. Vessels equipped with the wireless instruments may almost always be in touch with other ships on transatlantic voyages, and any trouble can at once be flashed through the air, communication being possible for at least a hundred miles. Under these circumstances any steamship that floats around disabled and lost to the world would do so simply because the owners of the vessel have neglected to equip her with the wireless system and thus failed to take one of the most ordinary precautions against trouble and worry. Overdue vessels will be able to tell where they are and what has delayed them, so that anxiety may be allayed, and a call for help at sea from a hundred miles away should rarely or never fail to be answered. Those who go down to sea in ships in the future are more than likely to ask questions in regard to the Marconi equipment, and it is by no means impossible that the system will be as important and necessary a part of an Atlantic liner as the propeller.

Bone and Sinew.

The sinews of war come high. Great Britain is negotiating, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, for a loan of $200,000,000 with which to buy more mules.

SHE KILLED A BEAR.

A Wyoming Woman Hunting Alone Bagged a Big Fellow.

Women slayers of bears are not in evidence very often, and even where a member of the gentler sex has performed that service it was when in company with members of the sterner sex, aided by the presence of ready assistance, rendering the action to a great extent free from personal danger, but Cody boasts of a woman that has killed bear unaided and alone.

The distinguished feminine hunter of bruin is Mrs. O. D. Marx, for a number of years a resident in the wilds of Big Horn county. She had frequently hunted bear in the company of her husband and had killed a number, but one day last week she visited the mountains in the vicinity of Beaut creek, a tributary of the Shoshone river, not far from this place.

Mrs. Marx was mounted on a spirited horse and armed with a 30-30 Winchester smokeless gun. While urging her horse up a shallow canyon Mrs. Marx espied a huge black bear coming toward her from a clump of bushes. Quickly dismounting, she knelt on one knee and fired. The bullet broke one front leg, but bruin only quickened his pace, at the same time uttering a growl. Working the lever of the gun, the woman hunter threw another shell into the gun and fired again. The bear stopped for an instant and licked a hole in his left breast and then continued to approach with rapid strides. Never losing her nerve for a moment, Mrs. Marx "pumped" another cartridge into the barrel and, this time taking careful aim at a vital spot under and in front of the right shoulder, pulled the trigger. The bullet went true, and the huge, hairy hulk rolled over at the very feet of the nervy woman.

Returning home, the men folks were notified and sent out to bring in the carcass. Mrs. Marx is now distributing pieces of toothsome bear meat among her friends and receiving congratulations.

As to Jackets.

Small women—and the majority of Frenchwomen are inclined to be small—will stick to the bolero or the very short jacket. There is no doubt about this, for the real Parisienne will wear only what suits her, which accounts probably for the fact that she is always well dressed, whereas the women of other countries who follow her ideas slavishly are well dressed or not, as the case may be. But all Frenchwomen are not short. Many, indeed, are tall. In any case, there are sufficient tall ones to warrant the introduction of the jacket with long basques. Yes, it has become the fashion, and there is no denying the fact, nor indeed do Frenchwomen wish to deny it, for the simple reason that if the long basque does not suit them they will wear what does. The small ladies are for the moment ordering either simple boleros—one wonders when the bolero will go out of fashion in France—or garments cut short about the waist like an Eton or a bolero and having tails behind. One of the prettiest models has tails that come below the waist and basques as well, small basques. The tight fitting coat with long basque—it reaches in some instances to the knee—is fashionable, but only the tall woman wears it.

Cheap Furniture Expensive.

It is one of the saddest sights in our modern life to see a young couple, when starting to furnish a home, go out with good money and buy bad furniture. It is positively nothing short of criminal for cheap department and furniture stores to be allowed to sell the furniture which is being offered today in our great cities. Young people are attracted to this rubbish because of cheap prices. Every stick of the furniture offered at these stores is cheaply put together and by glue and thick coats of veneer is made only to sell. It barely gets into the new house before it falls apart, and what was thought to be a cheap purchase turns out to be a very expensive investment. It is strange that folks cannot get it through their heads that a bed, a table and two chairs, honestly made, are cheaper at $60 than one of those fearful concoctions known as "bedroom suits" which are sold at $40.83.—Edward Bok in Ladies' Home Journal.

Painting With Paillettes.

Spangle embroidery is truly becoming an art and is no longer limited to a dew powdering, delicate traillings and traceries or thick raised clusters of overlapping paillettes. It has reached such perfection as to be carried out in close imitation of nature in the reproduction of flowers with the new spangles, exquisitely tinted and made in a variety of sizes, shapes and materials, transparent or opaque, dull or sparkling. A clever worker now executes with spangles in white silk gauze marvelous floral designs for dress trimmings scarcely to be surpassed in shading by silk embroidery, which would certainly not emit at night the same phosphorescent glints as the wee paillettes in the innumerable art nouveau hues.

Artistic, but Yet Not Untidy.

A Kate Greenway type of gown is fascinating those who appreciate the picturesque in afternoon and negligee toilets. The gauged yoke, the loose girdle and the soft big sleeves gathered into wristlet cuffs, embroidered with flower sprays brightened with gold and silver, combine to produce of all wraps the most comfortable. Velvet or heavy satin sheeting is the fabric that should be used, but nun's veiling may be employed with very satisfactory results, and a serge of suitably artistic coloring is potent in recalling the triumphs this vogue had many a year ago. A very different cult of the picturesque calls for copies of a still further bygone day, quite mediæval in their designs and rich fabrics.

More Dynamite at Scranton

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 19.—Another attempt to blow up a trolley car was made last night in the city limits. The car was badly damaged by dynamite. There was no one aboard at the time excepting the motorman and conductor, non-union men. They were thrown from their feet and cut by flying glass, but escaped serious injury.

To Have Three Weeks' Rest

Maracaibo, Nov. 19.—In view of the heavy rains in the Cordilleras, an armistice of three weeks between the Venezuelan and Colombian troops on the frontier has been arranged. The floods have caused great destruction and a number of lives have been lost.

Treaty's Terms Not Known

Pekin, Nov. 19.—Prince Ching telegraphs to the foreign office that he has left Kaifong-Fu with the empress' instructions to conclude the Manchurian treaty. Whether this means that Russia's terms are accepted fully or are modified the telegram does not say.

Socialists Addressed Unemployed

Berlin, Nov. 19.—Eight well attended meetings were held in Berlin yesterday to discuss the present business depression, the lack of employment and possible remedies for these conditions. The meetings were addressed by socialist members of the reichstag.

Discredited at Washington

Washington, Nov. 19.—Army officers wholly discredit the published story of the reported conspiracy to secure the independence of Alaska. The suggestion is made at the war department that the story is devised to secure the return of soldiers to Washington.

Train Robber Wanted For Murder

St. Louis, Nov. 19.—Chief of Detectives Desmond received a capias yesterday for Ben Kilpatrick from Sheriff Howsee of Paint Rock, Tex., where Kilpatrick is wanted for the murder of William Thornton.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The Harvard college museum of comparative zoology now has a sacred bull from India, a Sambur deer from China, a baboon from Africa and an Asiatic ostrich. They died on the way from Buffalo to Boston, and were given to the museum by their owner, Frank C. Bostock.

It is authentically announced that the North German Lloyd Steamship company does not intend to raise a loan in the United States.

The Indian government has abolished the sword for the cavalry, both British and Indian, and a short rifle will be issued to all mounted troops.

Steamer Accomac, from Galveston to Liverpool with 5000 bales of cotton is at Key West with a serious fire in her hold. The fire was discovered 36 hours before the vessel could make that port.

Dr. William F. Norris, a widely known oculist, died at Philadelphia, aged 63. He was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1861.

Jumped on a Ten Penny Nail.

The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake made of ten-penny nails, and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and a second one half way through. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes later the pain had disappeared and no more suffering was experienced. In three days the child was wearing her shoe as usual and with absolutely no discomfort. Mr. Powell is a well known merchant of Forkland, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and heals such injuries without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. For sale by all druggists.

POINTS OF DIFFERENCE

In Failed Canal Treaty Overcome In New Document

GUARANTEE OF NEUTRALITY

Is Left Solely to the United States—British Opposition Journals Attack the Government and Lord Lansdowne For "Climbing Down"

Washington, Nov. 19.—The new Hay-Pauncefote treaty was signed yesterday by Secretary Hay for the United States and Lord Pauncefote, the British ambassador, for Great Britain.

This treaty is intended to replace the first Hay-Pauncefote treaty. That convention was amended so extensively by the United States at its last session that the British government declined to ratify it. Within a few weeks negotiations began afresh between Secretary Hay and Lord Pauncefote, which have just resulted in the signature of the new treaty, drawn with special reference to the objections found by the senate with the first treaty. From a due sense of the courtesy which must be observed toward the United States senate wherever a treaty is concerned, the state department is estopped from making public the text of the new convention, and that will remain secret until the senate itself shall break the seal of confidence. It is said at the state department that the various publications which have been made of the alleged text of the treaty are all erroneous and conjectural, though in view of the rather free admissions that have been made for the purposes of the negotiators, it has been possible by the use of the text of the first treaty, to construct one similar in general terms to the new convention. The principal point of the difference between the new and the failed treaty is the withdrawal of Great Britain from the joint guarantee of the neutrality of the canal, this leaving the United States to be sole guarantor. The section of the old provision respecting the right to fortify the canal leaves that right by inference optional with the United States. All commerce of whatever nationality passing through the canal will fare alike; there will be no discrimination in rates in favor of United States shipping.

How England Feels About It

London, Nov. 19.—Except as affording a chance for the opposition journals to attack the government and the foreign secretary, Lord Lansdowne, the signing of the new isthmian canal convention does not excite strong interest in Great Britain. It is generally admitted that the British have nothing to gain by a retention of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, while they have much to gain by the construction of the canal.

The Morning Post congratulates both countries on the completion of the treaty and says it is glad that the convention of 1900 has been revised in accordance with American wishes.

The Daily Mail fears that the signing may not terminate forever a troublesome dispute and thinks Canada ought to receive some equivalent for the concessions which probably have been made.

The Daily Chronicle says Lord Lansdowne has surrendered everything without compensation. The government have climbed down from the position they had deliberately chosen, and, although disappearance of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty will not cause much regret many people will sigh for the "business cabinet," which Lord Rosebery recently suggested. In conclusion The Daily Chronicle characterizes the new treaty as "a full acceptance by Great Britain of the Monroe doctrine," and says, "it would be strange indeed if the senate should object to such a one-sided bargain."

The Times says it is premature to assume that all difficulties have been overcome and that the senate will ratify the treaty; but England has no reason to regard the construction of the canal with alarm or suspicion. We hope the treaty will be dealt with by our American kinsmen in the same spirit of international good will with which it will certainly be received in England.

Seven Charges Against Him

Columbus, O., Nov. 19.—John M. Mulford, under arrest for alleged embezzlement of funds of the American Insurance Union, was given a hearing yesterday on three charges of embezzlement, three of forgery and one of perjury. The defendant was bound over to the grand jury. He was released on $8000 bond.

Echo of an Embezzlement

Arlington, Mass., Nov. 19.—At a special town meeting last evening it was voted to bring suit against the bondsmen of former Treasurer and Collector Locke, in order to collect the amount to which the town is entitled in consequence of stealings of R. A. Swan, employed by Mr. Locke in his office.

Successful Codfishing Season

Slasconset, Mass., Nov. 19.—The fall codfishing on the shoals this year has been unusually good, and the bathing beach is covered with drying fish. A large number of townspeople from Nantucket have arrived and this little hamlet is almost as lively as in the height of the summer season.

Snatched Roll of Bills

Fall River, Mass., Nov. 19.—John O'Brien of Boston was arrested here after an exciting chase by a police officer, and locked up, charged with larceny. In a saloon he snatched a roll of bills, amounting to $125, from the hand of Robert Nicholson. The money was recovered.

WHITE HUNTERS WARNED

Indians Think Them Responsible For Absence of a Tribesman

Marinette, Wis., Nov. 19.—There is great excitement among the Indians at the headwaters of the Eagle river over the disappearance of one of the tribe, who they think was killed by some white hunter who shot him by mistake, taking him for a deer. They are searching everywhere for the body and if it shall be found it may go hard with some of the white hunters in that locality.

The Indians firmly believe that he was murdered by a white man and are determined on vengeance. The name of the missing Indian is not known. The Indians are of the Menominee tribe and have a small settlement on the Eagle river.

All the white hunters in that locality are being warned as rapidly as possible. It is probable that there will be a general exodus as soon as the excitement among the Indians shall become known. The Eagle river region is in the wilds of Marinette county and is one of the best deer hunting districts in Wisconsin.

The Lumber Market

Bangor, Me., Nov. 19.—Two more weeks will wind up the lumber shipping season at this port, and in that time considerable spruce will be sent away. A few of the mills will saw right up to the last minute, having both logs and orders. Freights have at last advanced, $2.75 to $3 per thousand now being paid to New York. This is because of a scarcity of vessels. Many of the older craft have hauled up for the season, and several have been lost in the recent gales. The spruce market continues firm at $20 per thousand for 10 and 12-inch dimensions in Boston, $21 for the same kind of lumber in New York, and $14.50 to $15 for the general run of randoms at Bangor.

Must Obey Court's Orders

Springfield, Ills., Nov. 19.—Judge Thompson last night ordered the state board of equalization to report to him on Friday the manner in which they have obeyed the writ of mandamus issued by him, ordering them to assess the franchises and capital stock of Chicago corporations for 1900. The board asked Judge Thompson to give it more time in which to comply with his mandamus. Judge Thompson denounced the board for its dilatoriness and said they must comply with his orders or stand the consequence.

Remarkable Gold Shipments

New York, Nov. 19.—A new high record for gold engagements to Europe from this port was established yesterday, when gold to the amount of $7,082,581 was taken from the assay office for shipment in the steamship Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, which left today. The gold was ordered in the regular course of business and according to report all but $1,000,000, which will go to Berlin, will be sent to Paris, the steamer leaving the greater part at Cherbourg.

Entombed Many Days, Yet Lives

Pocahontas, Va., Nov. 19.—The work of removing fallen slate and debris from the Baby mine still continues. The body of Fritz Moulter was yesterday found entombed in a room on the west side. He was living, but physicians worked with him for six hours before he was restored to consciousness. He is yet feeble, but is likely to recover.

Policeman Charged With Murder

Evansville, Ind., Nov. 19.—Wilbur Sherwell, a policemann, was placed under arrest last night, charged with the murder of Lena Renner last Monday night. The testimony thus far given against him is circumstantial. It is believed that the two women, Lena Renner and Georgia Bailey, were murdered after a visit to a road house.

Coffee Cooler a Quitter

London, Nov. 19.—At the National Sporting club last night Jack O'Brien of Philadelphia defeated Frank Craig, "the Harlem coffee cooler," after seven rounds of a 10-round bout. Craig was disqualified for falling without a blow. He made wild rushes and repeatedly fell without a blow being struck.

A Thing of the Past.

The town crier is a thing of the past, but medical methods as old and as obsolete as the town crier are still practiced in many a country town. Women suffering from womanly diseases shrink from the offensive examinations, indelicate questionings, and obnoxious local treatments, still in vogue with some local practitioners. Any sick woman is invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free, and so avoid methods which are offensive to her modesty. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is peculiarly and particularly a medicine for the cure of womanly diseases. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

"You have my heart-felt thanks for the kind advice you sent me," writes Mrs. Florence Archer, of Eason, Macon Co., Tenn. "Words fail to express what I endured for about eight years with female trouble. The awful pain that I had to endure each month, no tongue can express. These bearing-down pains, backache, headache, distress in my stomach and sores in my breast, cramp in limbs—they have all left me and health has taken the place of these distressing troubles. What caused them to leave? It was the best medicine on earth—Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. In one week's time I began to feel better. After taking six bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' and using the local treatment you advised I felt like a new woman."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should always be used with "Favorite Prescription" whenever a laxative is required.

HELLO GIRLS TO ELOCUTE.

Will Have Their Voices Cultivated So That They May Speak Clearly.

A new telephone company of Indianapolis has determined to open a school of elocution for the benefit of the "hello" girls on one hand and the benefit of the public on the other. The theory is that many of the mistakes which occur in the exchange and much of the inconvenience caused to patrons are the direct result of the want of clear enunciation on the part of the operators. To the end that these impediments may be overcome one of the best elocutionists in the city has been employed, and there will be regular lessons in voice culture, free of charge, under his direction.

The school will be open in the company's building, and every employee who is in any way connected with the telephone service as an operator will be required to devote a certain number of off hours each day to improvement of his or her voice. It is also said that the company will hereafter make it a condition to employment that the applicant shall undergo certain training before being placed in charge of a switchboard at the exchange.

Officers of the company state that while all its employees will be required to take lessons it is those who are employed in its long distance service that most need this training and for whom they are more solicitous. They realize that the telegraph companies once did and that this business can be increased greatly if all obstacles to quick and easy communication are removed. Many of the more advanced farmers of the state are receiving their market quotations over the lines every day, and this is bringing the long distance wires into a use where absolute accuracy is required, and accuracy in this case means clear enunciation.

TO DREDGE THE PACIFIC.

Expedition Under Auspices of Leland Stanford, University.

A United States ship—a steamer, not a gunboat—is to be sent into the Pacific off the coast of Hawaii. This information was received at Iowa City, Ia., the other day by President George E. MacLean of the University of Iowa from President David Starr Jordan of the Leland Stanford university, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. The latter scientist will be among those in charge of the expedition, which will sail from San Francisco Dec. 1 on board the Albatross bound on a deep water dredging tour of five months' duration.

President Jordan invited Professor C. C. Nutting of the chair of zoology, University of Iowa, to assume charge of the department devoted to hydroids and animal life. The Iowa regents granted their savant a leave of absence in order that he may join the expedition. President Jordan in his letter to Dr. MacLean says, "The Albatross party will have unequaled opportunities for making a collection of creatures in a region absolutely untouched, as but one series of dredgings has been made in that part of the Pacific we purpose studying."

THE CINCINNATI REBUILT.

The First All Steel Warship to Have a Figurehead.

The cruiser Cincinnati is the first all steel ship of the service to have a figurehead, and when she is placed in commission at the New York navy yard on Dec. 1 she will display a life size heroic figure of Liberty in steel and wood standing straight out from her well curved stem, says a Washington dispatch to the New York Sun. This figure was designed and constructed at the New York yard under direction of Rear Admiral Francis T. Bowles, then in charge of the construction workshops, and is declared to be a perfect specimen of the figurehead for a warship.

Such decorations disappeared with the gradual abandonment of wood for steel vessels, and even with many of the old wooden craft there were few of those immense figureheads which years ago were the distinguishing feature of all American naval vessels. The last of this number to display figureheads were the vessels of the line of battleship class that found their way to the burial ground of the navy soon after the civil war. The Cincinnati is said to be the only all steel vessel in the world of any naval power whose stem is adorned with a figurehead.

A Negro's Ode to King Edward.

John N. Samuels-Belboder, colored, has received a letter from the private secretary of his majesty King Edward VII., in which it was stated that it would be impossible to allow him to read an ode at the coronation. Immediately after the death of the queen the colored poet dashed off many verses, in which he called upon the people of England to awake and hail the new king, says the Charleston News and Courier. A copy of the ode was mailed to the royal palace, and the poet waited anxiously for a reply. His poem was returned a few days ago. With it there was a letter of thanks from the king's secretary, and, while the king expressed his gratification at the noble sentiments expressed in the lines, he said it would be impossible to have the poem read. Samuels-Belboder said, however, that the ode would be printed in a London newspaper in June.

Artillery No Impediment to Boers.

British military critics are now seriously insisting that artillery is an impediment to the march of the troops in South Africa. To the British, may be, says the Cincinnati Commercial Tribune, but manifestly not to the Boers.

All Hands Smoking.

Tobacco is in Tehuantepec a great industry. One evening some of our party of sixteen were kindly given a night's shelter, Mexican fashion, at a hacienda or farmhouse. Hotels, except in the large towns, are unknown. It was about 9 p. m. when we arrived. Sitting on the wide veranda to receive us we beheld the entire family. On the right of the door was the lady of the house in a white cotton gown, smoking a cigar. Below her were the daughters and handmaidens, also smoking. On the other side of the door was the ranchero or master himself, with his sons and manservants. Every one was employed in rolling the tobacco leaf into cigars, and every one was smoking, including a little boy not quite three years old, who had a full sized cigar in his baby mouth, while in his left hand he held a banana from which he took bites between the puffs, occasionally stopping to play with a small puppy dog.

"Does he often smoke?" I asked in amazement.

"Si, senora. He smokes three or four cigars a day. All our children have done so at that age." Adaptability of temperament to climate!—Fortnightly Review.

Passing a Bargain.

"Perhaps you've had a man offer you a big bargain in a diamond ring?" queried the Boston drummer as he heaved a sigh and his face went cloudy.

"Yes, several times," laughed the Pullman conductor.

"I was in Pittsburg," continued the drummer, "and while standing on a street corner a chap came along and offered me a shiner as big as a bean for $50. He was a stranger, hard up and all that. It looked to be a ring worth $350."

"And you gave him $50?"

"No. He hung on for half an hour, but I turned him down. I'm no man to be roped in that way."

"Then what—what"—

"Oh, another fellow bought the ring."

"And he was out his fifty?"

"He was in $300. That ring, sir, was O. K. and all serene, and a jeweler priced it at the figure named. The man was honest, and I was a fool, and you will please excuse me while I retire and kick myself for not knowing a piece of glass from a pure water sparkler."

A Savage Bluejay.

A sportsman camping on one of the lakes of Sullivan county, N. Y., offered to bet $10 to $1 that nobody in his party could guess how he had received an injury to a finger which he held bleeding before the spectators. No one guessed, and the man went on to explain that while standing by the lake he had seen a bluejay flying over so close above his head that he instinctively threw up his hand to stop it. The bird neither stopped nor swerved, but instead dashed straight for the hand, striking it with such force that the bill penetrated to the bone and sent the blood spurting as though the man had been struck by a knife.

This sort of action is in line with the general conduct of the jay. It is one of the most aggressive birds on the continent, robbing the nests of other birds and sometimes even killing young squirrels. The chief good thing that can be said of it is that it often robs the nest of the English sparrow.

The Maori and the Witness.

Captain Hayes in his book, "Among Horses In South Africa," tells several amusing stories. A friend of his in New Zealand had been a government interpreter among the Maoris and had many stories to tell about these people. On one occasion a native chief, who was under cross examination in court, on being asked why he had not brought a certain man with him replied:

"I have brought him."

"But," said the barrister, looking in vain round the court, "I don't see him. Where is he?"

"He is here," chuckled the Maori proudly, stroking his massive chest.

Peculiar Taxation In Holland.

Some of the most peculiar of taxations recorded are to be found in the archives of Holland. In 1791, for instance, there was in existence a tax imposed on all passengers traveling in Holland. In 1874 a duty of 2 shillings was levied on each person who entered a tavern before noon, on those who entered a place of entertainment, on marriages and deaths and on many other things. If a person was buried out of the district to which he belonged, the tax was payable twice over.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Horses and Saddle.

A man bought three horses and a saddle for $220. If he puts the saddle on the first horse, they cost as much as the other two horses; if he puts the saddle on the second horse, they cost two times as much as the first and third, and if he puts the saddle on the third horse they cost three times as much as the first and second. Find the cost of each.—Mathematical Puzzles.

Mr. Thomasson's Lesson.

"Yes," said Mr. Thomasson, "I went home intoxicated one night about ten years ago, and the lesson my wife taught me made a lasting impression on my brain."

"What did she say?"

"She didn't say anything. The lasting impression I refer to was made by a flatiron. See that bump?"—Indianapolis Sun.

A man's labors must pass like the sunrises and sunsets of the world. The next thing, not the last, must be his care.

Why is it that gloves worn by pallbearers are always too long in the fingers?—Atchison Globe.

FIELD OF DIPLOMACY

Interestingly Discussed by Secretary of State Hay

AMERICAN RULE OF CONDUCT

Governed by Monroe Doctrine and Golden Rule—Not Craving South American Territory—Want Friendship of World and Its Trade

New York, Nov. 20.—The 123d annual banquet of the Chamber of Commerce was held at Delmonico's last evening. Covers for 450 were laid in the main banquet room. Professional and business circles were well represented in the list of the guests.

In introducing Secretary Hay, the chief guest of the evening, President Jesup proposed a toast to "Our Diplomacy." The secretary was warmly welcomed by the guests and his speech at various points met with great enthusiasm. After he concluded Secretary Hay was obliged several times to acknowledge the applause accorded him by the diners.

After an eloquent tribute to the memory of Mr. McKinley Mr. Hay said: "I am asked to say something about our diplomacy. There was a time when diplomacy was a science of intrigue and falsehood, of traps and mines and counter mines. It may be another instance of that naive credulity with which I have often been charged by European critics when I say that I really believe the world has moved onward in diplomacy as in many other matters.

"In my experience of diplomatic life I can say without hesitation that we have generally told squarely what we wanted, announced early in negotiations what we were willing to give, and allowed the other side to accept or reject our terms. During the time in which I have been prominently concerned in our foreign relations, I can also say that we have been met by the representatives of other powers in the same spirit of frankness and sincerity.

"The briefest expression of our rule of conduct is, perhaps, the Monroe doctrine and the golden rule. With this simple chart we can hardly go far wrong.

"I think I may say that our sister republics to the south of us are perfectly convinced of the sincerity of our attitude. They know we desire the prosperity of each of them, and peace and harmony among them. We no more want their territory than we covet the mountains of the moon. We are grieved and distressed when there are differences among them, but not even our earnest desire for peace among them will lead us to any action which might offend their national dignity or their just sense of independence.

"As to what we have tried to do—what we are still trying to do—in the general field of diplomacy, there is no reason for doubt on the one hand or reticence on the other. We have striven, on the lines laid down by Washington, to cultivate friendly relations with all powers, but not to take part in the formation of groups or combinations among them. A position of complete independence is not incompatible with relations involving not friendship alone, but concurrent action as well in important emergencies. We have kept always in view the fact that we are pre-eminently a peace-loving people; that our normal activities are in the direction of trade and commerce; that the vast development of our industries imperatively demands that we shall not only retain and confirm our hold on our present markets, but seek constantly, by all honorable means, to extend our commercial interests in every practicable direction.

"It is for this reason we have negotiated the treaties of reciprocity which now await the action of the senate; all of them conceived in the traditional American spirit of protection to our own industries, and yet mutually advantageous to ourselves and our neighbors. In the same spirit we have sought successfully to induce all the great powers to unite in a recognition of the general principle of equality of commercial access and opportunity in the markets of the Orient. We believe that 'a fair field and no favor' is all we require; and with less than that we cannot be satisfied. If we accept the assurances we have received as honest and genuine, as I certainly do, that equality will not be denied us; and the result may safely be left to American genius and energy.

"We consider our interest in the Pacific as great now as those of any other power and destined to indefinite development. We have opened our doors to the people of Hawaii; we have accepted the responsibility of the Philippines which providence imposed upon us; we have put an end to the embarrassing position in which we were involved in Samoa, and while abandoning none of our commercial rights in the entire group, we have established our flag and our authority in Tutuila, which gives us the finest harbor in the south seas. Next in order will come a Pacific cable, and an isthmian canal for the use of all well-disposed people, but under exclusive American ownership and American control—of both of which enterprises President McKinley and President Roosevelt have been the energetic and consistent champions.

"Sure as we are of our rights in these matters, convinced as we are of the authenticity of the vision which has led us thus far and still beckons us forward, I can yet assure you that so long as the administration of your affairs remains in hands as strong and skillful as those to which they have been and are now confided, there will be no more surrender of our rights than there will be violation of the rights of others. The president is as incapable of bullying a strong power as he is of wrongdoing a weak one.

"We frankly confess we seek the friendship of all the powers; we want to trade with all peoples; we are conscious of resources that will make our commerce a source of advantage to them and of profit to ourselves. But no wantonness of strength will ever induce us to drive a hard bargain with another nation because it is weak, nor will any fear of ignoble criticism tempt us to insult or defy a great power because it is strong, or even because it is friendly."

America's Great Future

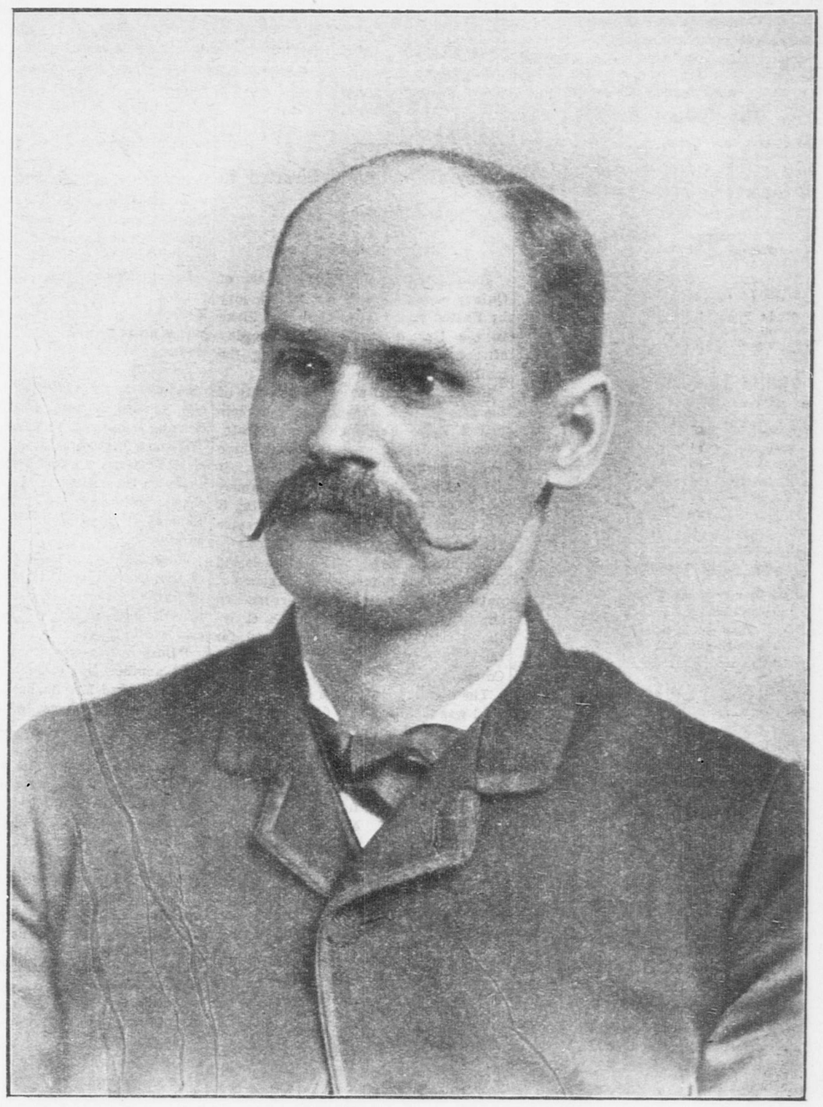

Paris, Nov. 20.—Jules Siegfreid lectured last night at the Musee Social on his recent tour in America. He predicted that the present century would see the United States the greatest and most powerful commercial and industrial nation in the world. "If France is wise," he said, "she will not delay to take advantage of America's traditional friendship in order to secure the means, by a give and take policy, to get a fair share of this vast, unlimited and ever-increasing field of commercial enterprise beyond the Atlantic."

Back to Civil Service

Washington, Nov. 20.—On the recommendation of Secretary Root and Assistant Secretary Sanger, President Roosevelt has signed and promulgated an order restoring the operation of the civil service rules to all those places in the quartermaster, medical, ordnance and engineer departments at large of the United States army, which were taken out by President McKinley's sweeping amendments of May 29, 1899, while Messrs. Alger and Meikeljohn were running the war department.

FREDERICK L. JONES.

Probably Intended to Aid Boers

London, Nov. 20.—The government has caused the detention of a British steamer which was fitting out at Victoria docks, on the ground that the vessel was laden with contraband of war destined for the Boers. It is said a search disclosed four field guns, quantities of raw material for the manufacture of powder and that the vessel was fitted up inside to accomodate from 500 to 600 men.

Summary Action by Buffalo's Mayor

Buffalo, Nov. 20.—Mayor Deihl yesterday suspended City Treasurer Philip Gerst from office. In the notice of suspension the mayor charges Gerst with misconduct in office and with having kept inaccurate and false accounts. The examination of the treasurer's accounts, which has been in progress for several days, will be continued.

Family Murdered and Mutilated

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 20.—The dead bodies of A. P. Wilcox, his wife and their 2-year old son, were found in their home at Downey yesterday. The premises indicated that the assailants had met with a fierce resistance. Wilcox and his family had been shot and then cut to pieces with a knife. No clue to the murderers has been found.

Treasury Officials Not Worried

Washington, Nov. 20.—Treasury officials feel no apprehension on account of the exportations of gold. It is known that Secretary Gage regards the shipments as a very natural movement in view of the quite general demand for money in Europe, and that he believes there is nothing in the situation to cause the least uneasiness.

Opinion Plainly Expressed

London, Nov. 20.—Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman is the subject of much severe comment today for having declared in a speech last night at Plymouth that he despaired of overcoming the peril now facing the country in South Africa so long as Mr. Chamberlain and Lord Kitchener held their present offices.

Attack on Non-Union Miners

Vincennes, Ind., Nov. 20.—Four hundred union coal miners from neighboring mining towns arrived here yesterday and made an attack upon the non-union miners employed at the Prospect Hill mines near this city. As a result two men are fatally hurt and half a dozen more are seriously injured.

Meade Court Martial Begun

New York, Nov. 20.—Colonel Robert L. Meade, the commanding officer of the marine barracks at the Brooklyn navy yard, is before court-martial on charges preferred against him by Major Lauchheimer and Colonel Denny. The officer is accused of drunkenness while on duty and scandalous conduct.

LABOR TROUBLES AT LYNN

Strikes In Four Factories May Tie Up Entire Morocco Industry

Lynn, Mass., Nov. 20.—Labor troubles that have been brewing for several days, but which have not assumed serious proportions until now, threaten to tie up all the morocco factories in the city unless some satisfactory settlement is reached.

The trouble is between the manufacturers and the Glazers' Union of the Socialist Trade and Labor Alliance. At present four shops are affected and it seems certain that the entire morocco industry will be affected, in view of the present temper of the workmen. The main question at issue is the recognition of the union, although the question of price and week work is involved.

At the factory of Pevear & Co., it is said that Mr. Pevear asked if his glazers were members of the union and when he learned that they were, he notified them that they would be needed no longer. They thereupon struck and succeeded in taking 14 non-union men out with them. A line of pickets was placed about the factory.

At the factory of Thomas Kelly & Co., there was a small strike over the question of prices and Mr. Kelly has shut down his factory, throwing 250 hands out of work.

Trouble over the price of piece work has caused a strike of the glazers at the A. B. Hoffman factory. Mr. Hoffman recently put some of the men on piece work, and the men claim that he has violated his agreement with the union.

At the Weber Moroco company's factory the glazers had asked an increase of $1 a week and the company agreed to give the advance to some, but not to all. This displeased the glazers and they quit work. Yesterday the strikers came out in sympathy.

The Socialist Trade and Labor Alliance held a big mass meeting last night and made plans for uniting all the members of the union and to call out all the stakers and beamsters in the factories affected. If this is done it will completely tie up all the factories.

Jumped on a Ten Penny Nail.

The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake made of ten-penny nails, and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and a second one half way through. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes later the pain had disappeared and no more suffering was experienced. In three days the child was wearing her shoe as usual and with absolutely no discomfort. Mr. Powell is a well known merchant of Forkland, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and heals such injuries without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. For sale by all druggists.

Good Afternoon.

The letters of Frederick W. Tirrell and Elisha Packard in today's issue speak for themselves; also the fine photo of Candidate Jones and his war record.

If the signatures to Mr. Bryant's papers are largely Democratic, as intimated, they will not count for much, as many of them will vote for the regular Democratic candidate, Mr. Tirrell.

Ex-Councilman Hiram W. Phillips combines with his thirty years experience as a diver a good education, and is a handy all-round man, so that his talks are remarkably entertaining. We predict that he will soon be in demand on the platform.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Gen. Curtis Guild, the other night, made a sharp arraignment of the Bostonians of the Back Bay for their lack of interest in political affairs, pointing to the fact that, of 1998 adult male citizens, only 1485 were registered and only 1085 voted, and arguing that a great measure of responsibility for good government rested upon them. That argument, backed by similar facts, holds good in every city. Men who complain of weak nominations and of the election of unfit men to office have only themselves to blame for it as a rule.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞We hear a good deal first and last about the dangerous classes in American politics. Most men who use the phrase mean by it the inhabitants of the tenements and slum districts in the large cities, and some of them talk wisely in their own esteem, about restricting the suffrage, so that these element may not endanger the institution of our country. There is another dangerous class, and a far more blameworthy one, which restricts its own suffrage itself and through its apathy, and indifference, perils the interests of the state. Of the 1,998, adult males found in the Back Bay district, Boston, 913, or nearly half, had not a word to say in regard to the goverment of this commonwealth at the recent State election. Considering what it has cost in the past in a thousand ways that these men in common with their fellow citizens of the tenements might have the right to vote such a showing can fairly be described by no other word than the adjective "astounding." It is disgraceful also, unpatriotic, unbusines-like, unmanly. Yet it is duplicated to a greater or less extent in about every city in the United States. Group after group of so-called representative citizens cast not more than half the votes they should, to say nothing of their abstinence from all preliminary political effort. The case in Boston is conspicuous because here one of the candidates was a governor whose record gives unbounded satisfaction to every loyal son of the commonwealth, and who for that reason alone should have secured the cordial endorsement of the sort of men who live in the Back Bay district of Boston. What a man omits to do is often as harmful as what he does; and this indifference of citizens to their public duties contains as many elements of danger as the thoughtlessness which is displayed in other quarters.—New Bedford Standard.

FISHER AND BETTS

They Put in No Defense at Their Trial.

Reported Investments Are Doubted.

Money of Customers Diverted to Themselves.

John M. Fisher and Fred E. Betts of Quincy were held for the grand jury by United States Commissioner Fiske in the United States court Tuesday afternoon on the charge of using the mails in a scheme to defraud.

Betts and Fisher are the members of the firm of J. M. Fisher & Co. brokers in the Fiske building 89 State street, Boston. They were arrested three weeks ago by United States officers, it being alleged that they collected money for the alleged purpose of investing it and that in reality they put the greater portion of it into their own pockets.

The Herald says: The session lasted for about four hours the defence not putting on any witnesses or making any reply to the charges. Attys. C. W. Bartlett and H. L. Baker appeared for the defendants while Asst.-Dist.-Atty. Casey represented the government.

The equity court room in which the trial was held was well filled with witnesses and other persons interested in the Fisher concern. Both Fisher and Betts were dressed very modestly and showed a very quiet demeanor.

The first witness for the government was Arthur W. Aldrich of Melrose who had charge of the mailing department of Fisher & Co. He said that about 22 were employed in his department prior to the arrest of Betts and Fisher.

Melvin Fall of Salmon Falls N. H., told how he was induced to invest money with Fisher & Co. In fact, Mr. Fall was the one through whom the complaint was made against Fisher & Co. He said that in consequence of a letter he received from the firm of Fisher & Co., he wrote on Aug. 5 and inclosed a check to them for investment.

The check was here introduced in evidence, and was for $100. The letter was also introduced which he received at the Salmon Falls postoffice to the effect that any money deposited by him was always subject to call from him. The letter further claimed positive chances of success in getting ample returns.

Another letter was shown which showed Fisher & Co., had written Fall stating this money had been invested in buying several shares of stock in Missiouri Pacific.

"How much did you receive in turn from your investment with J. M. Fisher & Co?" asked Mr. Casey.

"I did not receive any," was the reply.

"Have you got anything else other than these letters from Fisher & Co., in reference to your negotiations with that firm?" asked Mr. Bartlett in cross-examination.

"I have received several letters, and I have sent all of them to Postoffice Inspector McMellan except a few unimportant ones that I destroyed," was the reply.

Raymond D. Thrall testified to the fact that he has been bookkeeper for Fisher & Co. for a year.

"It was my duty to telegraph, telephone or write for more margins," he said.

"Julia" here came into considerable prominence. During his testimony Thrall stated to Mr. Casey that Julia had taken part in getting up the correspondence, but he couldn't say much about her except that she was short and fat. He didn't know Julia's last name. Julia left the employ of Fisher & Co. after the arrests were made, and Thrall hadn't any idea where she had gone.

Edward C. Aiken of Manchester, N. H., testified that he is a machinist by trade and that last June he received a circular through the mail from Fisher & Co. In consequence of this letter he first addressed a letter to the firm and then later called on the firm. He saw Mr. Fisher.

"I asked him if he was in the custom of calling for margins to cover the pool. Fisher said that had not been the custom. So I told him that I would like to invest $100, which I did.

"I received the daily market letters of the firm for a while, except for a period when none were received. July 23 I received a telegram calling for $50 to cover my margins. July 27 I received a letter from Fisher & Co., saying my favor had been received, and it was promised that everything possible would be done in my interests."

Mr. Aiken testified that he had given $150 to Fisher, and had received nothing in return. "The first $100 was a deposit." he testified, "and the $50 was the margin."

"What did you deposit the $100 for?" asked Mr. Bartlett.

"An investment," was the reply. He then replied to Mr. Bartlett that he had obtained a receipt from Fisher Co. for the amount, and that the receipt was in his lawyer's hand.

Bookkeeper Thrall was recalled and identified a slip showing that Aiken still owed $7.80 on his account.

O. N. Towne, Jr., deputy collector of internal revenue, testified that he has known Fisher and Betts for about six weeks.

"Had a talk with Betts in reference to some transactions on the consolidated stock exchange of New York," testified Mr. Towne. He further stated that Betts claimed the transactions were made through Thomas Guynne. Betts showed papers which represented certain transactions in certain stocks each day.

Deputy Towne showed a paper purporting to have been furnished by Betts, in which he showed his purchases on the stock exchange through Guynne.

James E. Courtney of the Consolidated Stock Exchange of New York city testified that he has charge of the clearing house records there.

Witness here presented as evidence clearing house sheets of the stock exchange. He stated that he had all the sheets showing all transactions of Thomas Guynne during the summer months.

James E. Lynch, assistant secretary of the Consolidated Stock Excahnge, testified that he had examined the records and no such transactions as credited to Guynne appeared on them.

"Does it ever occur that one broker uses another broker's name in transactions, asked Mr. Bartlett.

"Such cases have occurred, but when it occurs, the broker is disciplined," was the reply.

Mr. Bartlett asked if it was not true that many stocks were dealt in on the curb, that is, stocks were bought and sold on the street and not on the stock exchange.

Mr. Lynch replied that such was the case, but he never knew of stocks being bought on the street that were listed on the exchange. All stocks bought on the street were such as Standard Oil or others not listed.

Atty. A. P. Brown testified that his father, H. W. Brown, put $250 into the hands of Fisher & Co. June 28, for the purchase of 60 shares of Tennessee Coal & Iron, and that on Sept. 25 he deposited a certified check with a trust company for $3,357 for the balance of the stock. The stock, he claims, has never been delivered to him.

Just prior to the close of the noon session, while Messrs. Bartlett and Baker were in consultation as to whether or not any evidence should be introduced by the defence, Commissoner Fiske understood Mr. Bartlett to say that he had finished.

Thereupon Mr. Fiske remarked: "The government has shown probable—"

"Wait a moment, wait a moment," interposed Mr. Bartlett, "I haven't decided yet as to whether I wish to be heard; but, in view of the statement which you have let slip, showing your conclusions on the matter, I feel that I must have time to consider whether or not I wish to be heard."

Recess was accordingly declared until 2 o'clock, when the hearing was again resumed, and Atty. Bartlett addressed the court somewhat as follows:

"I had an elaborate oration prepared to present before you, but under the circumstances I will spare you the infliction of that oration. But in a hearing of this sort, I understand that there is only slight evidence necessary in finding probable cause. So I feel that argument on the evidence in this case would be a waste of time. I might say a few pleasant things in connection with this case, but I forbear. This is not the place to proceed in the discussion of this matter to show that it is not a scheme to defraud. I think before the case is finished that we will show there was no scheme to defraud."

And as he concluded, Mr. Casey said: "I think probable cause has been shown for holding these men for the grand jury."

Betts and Fisher were accordingly held for the grand jury.

Old Ironsides Fair.

The fair by the Daughters of 1812 opened Monday night at Tremont Temple, Boston, with a large gathering. The fair is to be held all the week to raise funds to restore the historic frigate Constitution and put her in commission in Boston harbor as a training ship. There was a brilliant gathering of state officials, military and naval officers who opened the fair with appropriate speeches, and there was also patriotic music. The hall was artistically decorated with bunting as were also the booths. Adams Chapter, D. R., and Junior Sons and Daughters of this city have one of the prettiest booths as well as one of the best patronized.

HIS WAR RECORD.

Candidate Jones One of the Early Volunteers for Country.

It is quite well understood that Frederick L. Jones, the Republican candidate for Mayor at the coming municipal election, is a veteran of the Civil war, but there are few who know what an active part he took in those stirring days to preserve the Union. He saw in all, three years of service, and during that time participated in twenty-six battles. He was wounded three times and today can show the scar of a Rebel bullet that plowed its way through his jaw.

When the call for volunteers came in '61. Mr. Jones and his brother with James Ryan of West Quincy enlisted from Quincy in the 23d Massachusetts regiment, and were assigned to Co. H. This was on Dec. 6, 1861. The first battle the three Quincy men participated in was at Roanoke Island, and the second at Newburn, N. C., March 14, 1862. At this battle Ryan was killed and Mr. Jones and his brother were both slightly wounded. His brother then contracted a fever and died.

At the battle of Drury's Bluff, in April 1864, Mr. Jones received another slight wound and again while before Petersburg, July 28, 1864. It was at this battle that the Rebel bullet passed through his jaw and came near ending his existence. At Drury's Bluff he and a few companions fell into the hands of the rebels and were prisoners for about fifteen minutes.

During his service, events followed each other rapidly until October, 1864, when the 23d regiment was mustered out of service. At that time it was Corporal Jones and as he had two months more to serve he was sent to Galloups Island as orderly sergeant of Co. B of the permanent garrison. Dec. 5, 1864, having completed his three years of enlistment he was honorably discharged.

Among the battles in which he participated other than those mentioned above were: Batchelers creek; Kingston, N. C.; Whitehall; Goldsborough; Tarbora; Swifts Creek; Little Washington, N. C.; Gettys Station Va.; Bermuda Hundred where it was fight every day for a week; Pocahontas Creek; and Cold Harbor.

The spirit of patriotism that prompted Mr. Jones to respond to the call in 1861 was imbued in his son Lieut. Walter C. Jones who is at present quartermaster sergeant of the 11th Infantry stationed at the Island of Leyte in the Philippines.

When war with Spain was declared Walter was attending the college of pharmacy. He wrote his father asking permission to enlist. At that time his father discouraged him saying that there would be plenty of time later. The next heard was a letter from the college inquiring where Walter was. Investigation showed that he had run away and enlisted in the 1st Regular Cavalry at Ft. Sheridan. Later he was sent to Santiago and on the anniversary of his 21st birthday he participated in his first battle before Santiago. The next day he was made corporal and three months later sergeant and later second lieutenant attached to the 11th Infantry at Porto Rico. For a time he was stationed at Ft. McPherson but last spring was sent with his regiment to the Philippines. He was appointed battalion quartermaster at Ft. McPherson, and as stated above is now located on the Island of Leyte in the Philippines.

In his last letter home he wrote of meeting Lieut. Bumpus and of the pleasant day they spent together talking over boyhood days in Quincy and at that time he wrote that Lieut. Bumpus expected to return home soon. His letter arrived about the time the news of Lieut. Bumpus' death was received.

Grand Army Fair.

There was a fairly good attendance Tuesday night at the Grand Army fair. The entertainment was one of the best ever given at these fairs, and was greatly enjoyed. Another good entertainment will be presented tonight by Prof. Kaplan and his pupils, who will give exhibitions of fancy dancing, etc. This afternoon fond mothers and their babies have possession of the hall, and the pleasant day should result in a large attendance.

"Last winter an infant child of mine had croup in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist, of Filley, Mo. "I gave her a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and in a short time all danger was past and the child recovered." This remedy not only cures croup but when given as soon as the first symptoms appear, will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

MEN'S SOCIABLE.

Brotherhood Entertained by Diver Phillips and Others.

The Brotherhood of Andrew and Philip invited the men of Bethany church to a sociable in the chapel on Tuesday evening, and over one hundred assembled. After a social half hour, the meeting was opened by the singing of one verse of "Blest be the tie that binds," and prayer by Mr. Theophilus King.

Mr. Hiram W. Phillips of Quincy, whose reputation as a diver is known the whole length of the Atlantic coast, was introduced by Chairman Branch, and in a talk of over an hour's duration, held the closest attention of all. He told of the history of diving, which he thought dated back before the Christian era.

The diving bell and its improvements were noted and the present diving costume and apparatus described. An inflated costume was suspended by a tripod making everything clear. He told of the weight of the different parts, the valves and air, the life line and signals, etc.

Mr. Phillips' first experience was 30 years ago at the age of 17, and for the last 28 years he has followed the business regularly. His account of his first experience was graphically told, and he related many interesting experiences since. He said he had made more visits under water than any other man in New England; perhaps in the United States.

His statement that he never used stimulants, was received with applause. He said he found it no advantage to drink, but believed it a great disadvantage. In fact, since 1872, he had not drank tea or coffee for the same reason. He enjoyed good health, and could work half a day at a time in armor. All that day he had been working under 30 feet of water. He spoke of his work of blasting under water, also removing obstructions, preparing foundations, laying sewer and water pipe, repairing the bottom of disabled ships, examining super-structures of walls, etc. Of the dangers, and twice when he narrowly escaped alive. Of the intelligence of fishes, etc., etc.

It is the purpose of the Brotherhood to become a power in the church and the city. Mr. Blood and Mr. Delano told of what the men's fraternity of Pilgrim church of Dorchester were doing. Rev. Mr. Phillips of Worcester encouraged the organization, and Mr. Boyd of Randolph and others were present.

Refreshments were served.

The Brotherhood hold monthly meetings and is considering the adoption of sick and death benefits and other suggestions which work well elsewhere.

Mrs. R. Davis and daughter of Squantum have taken a suite of rooms on Myrtle street.

IS IN TO WIN.

Regular Democratic Nominee Stamps Rumors as False.

To the Editor of the Ledger;

I have been informed that rumors are being circulated by some irresponsible parties, whose names are unknown to me, that I was placed in nomination for Mayor merely as a figurehead, or in the interest of the gentleman whom I understand proposes to run as an independent candidate, and that I probably would withdraw or at least, make no effort to secure the election.

Now, at the outset, I wish to stamp these statements as false in every particular. I am the REGULAR DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR, and I wish it distinctly understood that I AM IN THIS CONTEST TO WIN, from the evening when the Democrats of Quincy, in convention assembled, honored me with their confidence, to the closing of the polls on election day.

Furthermore, if the Democratic voters will stick to their party in this coming election, as they have in years past, I am convinced that there is no question but what we shall be successful.

Thanking you for your valuable space devoted to the publication of this communication, I am

Respectfully

Frederick W. Tirrell.

Park and Downs Concert.

A pleasing concert was given in the Park and Downs church on Monday evening, including vocal numbers by Mr. H. Y. Follett, and Mrs. Follett, duetts by Mr. and Mrs. Follett, readings by Mr. John R. Anderson. A full house showed its appreciation in listening to brilliant rendering of the music. Never did these artists appear to better advantage. Mr. Anderson fascinated all with his pure Scotch dialect. "She liked him reel well" in response to an encore was most feelingly given.

Bryant Papers Filed.

Tonight at 5 o'clock is the last time for filing nomination papers for candidates to be voted for at the municipal election. The only papers taken out were by Charles M. Bryant as Citizens candidate for Mayor and William T. Spargo as Republican Independent candidate for Councilman from Ward Three. These papers have already been filed. Seven or eight papers were in circulation for Mr. Bryant and those filed are said to contain the signatures of 537 voters.

NEWS IN BRIEF

A large clock with chimes, valued at $5000, has been donated to the Ridgefield, Conn., Congregational church by the Misses King of Albany, in memory of their father, J. Howard King.

After some weeks' delay, the regimental officers have received what was thought to be the famous flag of the 42d Massachusetts regiment captured in Texas 36 years ago, but which is really only the marker. It is now thought that the battleflag is not in existence.

The Y. M. C. A. home for its railroad department, as applied to the Boston and Maine railroad, was formally opened at Boston and the expectations of those interested in its establishment were more than realized.

To the Public.

Allow me to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I had a very severe cough and cold and feared I would get pneumonia, but after taking the second dose of this medicine I felt better, three bottles of it cured my cold, and the pains in my chest disappeared entirely. MR. PACKARD IS SATISFIED.

He Writes in Appreciation of Work of Ward One Republican Delegates and Others.

Editors of Daily Ledger:

It has been stated by certain individuals that the delegates elected in my behalf in Ward One caucus did not support my candidacy as earnestly as they should. I wish to state publicly that I appreciate and am satisfied with their efforts, and also wish to extend my thanks to all those who worked and voted for me throughout the city. As Mr. Jones' nomination at the convention was made unanimous, he is entitled to the support of the Republicans at the polls.

Reception and Dinner.

Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter H. Cornell on Hamilton street, Norfolk Downs, a reception and dinner was given in honor of the approaching marriage of their son William J., of the firm of Thompson & Cornell, to Miss Francis, the daughter of Mr. William H. H. Whall of Arlington street, Wollaston. The menu was of a high order and the incidental entertainment very much enjoyed by the happy gathering of friends and fun makers. Early in the evening a committee of two were appointed to look up Officer Goodhue who was unable to be present, and remember him with fruit and cigars.

Among the guests were noticed Miss Bennie, Miss Reed, Miss Martina, Miss Susie Kitts and Miss Winnie Remington, Mrs. James Lovering and Miss Virginia Thornton of the Bowdoin Square Theatre. Mr. Bert Lytell, Mr. Lawrence Merton, Mr. Gilmore Hammond, Mr. Frank Kirke and Mr. James Lovering all of the Bowdoin Square Theatre. Mr. Bert Thompson, Mr. Robert Ormsby and Mr. Harry Osgood were also in the company, and Mr. Charles C. Ewell and daughter who are well known in connection with the Relief Corps and Rebekahs, added a lustre to the assembly. There was a flow of reason and a fund of wit and all wish every success to the young couple.

—While a windmill roof was being overhauled near Besancon the mummified body of a pigeon was found. Attached to a wing was a quill containing a missive dated 1870, which reads "Darling, all well, but starving. P. P. G." Chafing Dish Party.

The weather did not prevent a large gathering on Tuesday evening at First Church chapel, at the entertainment and chafing dish "party" given by the Woman's Alliance. From eight to nine an entertainment was given consisting of music by Mrs. Anna Reed Rideout, monologue the "Irish Cook" by Miss Marie Moore and tableaux.

Miss Moore looked the cook and acted the cook in such a manner as to win hearty applause from her audience. The tableaux represented scenes from eight popular books and introductory remarks and descriptions of each were given by Prof. Emery L. Crane in costume. His appearance on the stage was enough to cause a ripple of merriment which increased as he went on with his remarks.

He said at the outset that if there was anything lacking in the tableaux it was because like the City of Quincy the participants had reached their borrowing capacity.

Mr. Crane's descriptions were racy and the tableaux good. The entertainment was all too short to suit the appreciative audience.

Supper was served below in the dining room, the long table being presided over by twelve men of the parish, and the things they concocted in the chafing dishes proved appetizing and attested to their skill as cooks. They served rarebit, creamed chicken, oysters and other viands, flanked with olives, raw oysters and coffee.

The chefs were Messrs. Harry E. Russell, George E. Pfaffmann, Jesse I. Litchfield, Clarence Burgin, Thomas Fenno, Moreton Swallow, Arthur H. Doble, Henry M. Faxon, Dr. E. E. Davis and Charles A. Price. Mr. L. D. Williams served oysters and Mr. George B. Dewson poured coffee.

Some of the wives were inclined to linger near their husbands and offer suggestions but results proved that their hints were not needed. The supper was very jolly and participated in by over a hundred.

A Card.

The Girl Who Grew Prettier.

Mr. Charles Whymper, the well known engraver and animal painter, told the following anecdote some years ago: "I dined at Mr. So-and-so's at Highgate last night, and as a mark of honor his eldest daughter was assigned to me to take down to dinner. She's a bright girl, and I got along very nicely with her and Lady Bletherington on the other side until the ladies were on the eve of retiring to the drawing room. I was talking about the beautiful scenery near the house, the views from the windows, the fine air, when Miss —— suddenly said, 'I think I get prettier every day, don't you?'

"What could she mean? I did not dare to answer her, so I said: 'I beg your pardon. What did you say?'

"'I said I think I get prettier every day.'

There was no mistaking her words, so I answered, 'Yes, indeed, you get prettier, and no wonder in such fresh air and'— Just then she caught her mother's eye, and, with the other ladies, she left the room. As she went out she looked over her shoulder with such a withering scorn in her eyes that I knew I had put my foot in it somehow. Then it flashed upon me that I had misunderstood her. She had dropped an 'h.' What she had said was not a silly compliment to herself. The sentence really was, 'I think Highgate prettier every day.'"—Chambers' Journal.

Knew His Man.

A story about the late James G. Batterson, president of the Travelers' Insurance company of Hartford. Ex-Governor Waller of Connecticut wanted to obtain a charter for a new corporation which he represented, and the opposition called Mr. Batterson as their star witness. He was asked by his own side only two questions.

"You have lived in Hartford a great many years, Mr. Batterson?"

"Yes, sir."

"Are you in favor of granting this charter?"

"No, sir."

Here his lawyers rested, leaving the rest to chance, knowing that Mr. Batterson could keep his end up in any verbal battle with ex-Governor Waller. The latter began by asking:

"Mr. Batterson, you have lived here many years?"

"I have."

"Well, sir," added Governor Waller, "it is my wish that you may live in Hartford many more years. That is all, sir."

Thus was Mr. Batterson's opportunity to talk shelved. Governor Waller knew his man.—New York Times.

The Pulpit Versus the Bar.

An eminent American lawyer, now deceased, was sadly given to intoxication. On one occasion he entered a church while a minister was holding forth on the future punishment of the wicked.

Fixing his eye upon the lawyer, who was reeling near the door, the preacher exclaimed, "There stands a sinner against whom I shall bear witness in the day of judgment."

At this the lawyer folded his arms, planted himself as firmly as he could and, addressing the man in the pulpit, electrified the whole congregation after this fashion:

"Sir, I have been practicing in the criminal courts for twenty years, and I have always found that the greatest rascal is the first to give state's evidence."—Scotsman.

The Spanish Language.

The Spanish alphabet is perfect save for a single silent letter, h. Each letter has only one sound and pronounced as spelled. The written language therefore is, with a single exception, free from redundant letters. The chief difficulty in the language to English speaking people is the inflection of its verbs. These move from one mood and tense to another by terminal changes, while English verbs move by auxillaries. In inflection Spanish follows Latin, of which it is a beautiful and richly endowed daughter, so much so that it adopts no word or phrase from other languages.

The Arctic Summer.

The arctic summer is brief, but for weeks together there is nothing to distinguish day and night. Once at Dvornik two naturalists had left their ship at different hours. When later they met, one said, "Good morning;" the other, "Good evening." Both agreed that the hour was 7, but while one traveler held that it was 7 tomorrow morning the other maintained that it was 7 o'clock last night. On returning to the ship they settled that it was last night, so they dined and went to bed again.

Easy.

Theodore—It's all right, darling. I have met your father, and we took to one another at once. He even went so far as to borrow $10 from me. Surely he can't refuse me your hand after that.

Edith—Dory, I'm afraid you've made a mess of it. Pa told me about the $10 and said I'd better let you slide; that you were too easy.—Boston Transcript.

Prejudiced.

"So you won't take my medicine?" said the doctor, who had been called in against the patient's wishes.

"I will not," replied the patient.

"I suppose you're one of these poor, deluded beings who believe in throwing physic to the dogs."

"Not indiscriminately. Some dogs are valuable."—Philadelphia Press.

Boston Officer Wins

Toledo, Nov. 20.—Anna Evans, a pickpocket, was again turned over to a Boston detective yesterday and he is taking her to Boston. The woman is wanted in a number of states. She was arrested in Detroit last week and held for the Boston authorities. A Boston detective, armed with requisition papers, took charge of her and started to Boston with her last Saturday. While changing trains in this city a deputy sheriff served habeas corpus papers on the detective and after a fight the latter was compelled to turn her over to the local authorities. The allegations set forth in the proceedings were not sustained.

Met Death In Peculiar Manner

Alexandria, Ind., Nov. 20.—Charles Ott, 13 years old, found a nitro-glycerine can in the rear of his home and tieing it about his waist, proceeded to beat on his improvised drum. A terrible explosion, which shook the city, followed. The boy was blown to pieces. The can had been left on the spot by well shooters two weeks ago, and it was supposed that not enough of the explosive remained to be dangerous.

A $10,000,000 Mortgage Cancelled

Jersey City, Nov. 20.—A mortgage for $10,000,000, given Jan. 10, 1891, by the American Sugar Refining company to the Central Trust company of New York, and filed on that date with the register of Hudson county, has been cancelled. The mortgage was to secure an issue of 6 percent first mortgage bonds which were to mature in 1911. It was given when the sugar company was organized.

Amalgamation of Textile Workers

Washington, Nov. 20.—Preliminary steps were taken here yesterday in the organization of the United Textile Workers' of America, an organization which is to amalgamate all the different associations of textile operatives of the country. A committee of 15 was appointed to prepare plans for a permanent organization and a committee of five will prepare a series of resolutions.

In One Position Fifty-Seven Years

Utica, N. Y., Nov. 20.—At a meeting of the board of trustees of Hamilton college yesterday Professor Edward North resigned the professorship of Greek, having completed 57 years in the service of the college, under five successive presidents. The resignation was accepted and Professor North was elected emeritus professor of the Greek language and literature.

OBJECT OF RECIPROCITY

Declared to Be to Forestall Tariff Revision

A CONFLICT OF INTERESTS

Adjustment Needed Where Duties Are Too High on a Neighbor's Product, While on Our Own a Change Would Be Ruinous

Washington, Nov. 20.—The prevailing note of yesterday's proceedings of the National Reciprocity convention was one of challenge of the reiterated charge that this movement is inspired by opposition to the existing protective system.

The delegates had obviously been somewhat disturbed by the circular of warning issued by the Protective Tariff league and mailed to them, as well as by the withdrawal of certain large business interests which a few days ago had intended to be here. Those who remained with the movement, and they certainly make it large and representative, resented vigorously the allegation that they are any less devoted to the protective theory than those who have been frightened away. D. A. Tompkins of Charlotte, N. C., the temporary chairman, brought out the genuine applause when he declared for "no abandonment of the policies by which the magnificent industrial results in our nation had been obtained" and also when he declared for the fundamental necessity of preserving the home market.

Theodore C. Search, the permanent chairman, was even more emphatic in the same line. He announced himself a lifelong protectionist whose faith in the wisdom, justice and efficiency of that system remained unshaken. He remarked that those who had refused to come here to confer were stopped from criticism of what was done, and added: "They charge that we have organized to stimulate tariff revision, when our object is directly the opposite. Our aim is to forestall tariff revision."

Mr. Search combatted the idea that any real reciprocity was possible by means of concessions merely in the articles which we do not produce. Tea and coffee were about all that amounted to anything in this class; one of these is now free, while the other is being raised on a small scale in South Carolina. He showed by quotations from Mr. Roosevelt at Minneapolis and Mr. McKinley at Buffalo that neither had hinted at any such notion of reciprocity as this.

Mr. Search announced three principles at the basis of the real reciprocity movement: First, that some duties in our present tariff are no longer necessary for the industries which they were intended to protect; second, that the home market can no longer absorb the entire product of many industries, and third, that the establishment of more cordial commercial relations with other nations is necessary to the successive enlargement of our outlet.

He alluded to the prevalent belief that duties were too high, on a neighbor's product, while on our own they were so moderate that any change would be ruinous. To adjust this conflict of interest is the great reciprocity problem of the day.

The organization was completed by the election of the following: Vice chairmen, W. F. Draper, Massachusetts; T. L. Hickman, Georgia; Charles H. Harding, Pennsylvania; James Peering, Illinois; Titus Sheard, New York city, and Robert J. Morgan, Ohio; secretaries, Edward H. Sanborn, Pennsylvania, and E. P. Wilson, Cincinnati.

The convention adopted resolutions of greeting to President Roosevelt, pledging its support and expressing its confidence in his administration.

Want Memorial at Washington

Washington, Nov. 20.—The William McKinley National Monumental association having received from the association for the erection of a McKinley monument at Canton a request that it suspend its appeal to the public for contributions until the fund deemed necessary for the erection and maintenance of the Canton monument has been secured, has determined that it would be impracticable to do so, because the long and definite delay involved would mean the defeat of its purpose.

Windy City Fog Bound

Chicago, Nov. 20.—A dense fog was responsible for numerous accidents and collisions here yesterday. In a collision between two Metropolitan elevated trains one person was killed and 12 injured. Other collisions were reported. The fog was one of the most dense Chicago has experienced in years.

Youngsters Caused Great Anxiety

Halifax, Nov. 20.—Three small boys who were supposed to have been lost in the woods near Amherst were found last evening 18 miles from their homes. Over 300 men were engaged in the search for them. The boys were hiding in an old mill, fearing to return to their homes after so long an absence.

Depositors Unnecessarily Alarmed

Tacoma, Wash., Nov. 20.—The Metropolitan bank failed yesterday as a result of a run which started over a misunderstanding with regard to a suit filed against a defunct bank of a similar name. The deposits amount to $500,000. Dwight Phelps was subsequently appointed receiver.

Germans to Settle In Oklahoma

Guthrie, O. T., Nov. 20.—Forty thousand acres of land near Navajo have been sold to a representative of a colony of Germans, and 1000 families are coming from Germany to locate there. Each family will get 40 acres.

NEW EPISCOPAL DIOCESE

Western Massachusetts Churches Will Be Supervised by Dr Greer

Springfield, Mass., Nov. 20.—The new diocese of the Protestant Episcopal church, composed of Hamden, Hampshire, Franklin, and Berkshire counties and all of Worcester county, except Southbridge, was formally organized in primary convention of parochial delegates here yesterday, and after selecting as its name "the diocese of western Massachusetts" gave a unanimous election to Dr. David H. Greer of St Bartholomew's church, New York city, for bishop.

The convention was notable for harmony in its every proceeding and the only matter calling out any difference of opinion was the question of a name, some of the delegates desiring that the diocese be called the diocese of Worcester. The suggestion was not urged on local grounds, however, and its advocates readily gave way when the sentiment for the name "western Massachusetts" became apparent.

On the question of a bishop there was but one opinion from the start. The name of Dr. Greer was presented in an eloquent speech by Rev. John C. Brooks. The vote was by ballot and was unanimous.

Pipes Suffer From Electricity

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 20.—Although the decomposition of the water pipes of Cambridge because of the action of electricity upon them has been going on for some time, especially heavy damage is being caused just now. The water department learned of a break in a new pipe on Boylston street, and found that a part of the pipe was eaten away at the place where the electricity had left it to pass to some other good conductor.

Lambert's Trial Begun

Dover, Me., Nov. 20.—The trial of Henry Lambert of Shirley, charged with the murder of J. W. Allen, his wife, Mary S. and daughter Carrie L. Allen of Shirley, began here yesterday before Justice Sewall C. Strout. The murders were committed at the Allen homestead on a lonely road in the town of Shirley and the murderer attempted to destroy all traces of the crime by burning the buildings in which his victims lay.

Lucky to Escape Death

Portland, Me., Nov. 20.—During a heavy snowstorm yesterday the engineer on a mountain division freight train saw something dragging near the pilot. The train was brought to a stop and Carl Warren was found lying half on and half off the cowcatcher. The man was alive, but unconscious. He was brought to a hospital here, where he is in a serious condition.

Ice Combine a Reality

Providence, Nov. 20.—The Providence Ice company, after an outlay of nearly $1,000,000, yesterday assumed formal control of the affairs of the combination of ice companies of this city and surrounding towns. Contracts will be given at once for the erection of an artificial ice plant which will have a capacity of 100 tons a day.

Six Ribs Sawed Through

Vernon, Vt., Nov. 20.—Harry Thayer was frightfully cut by a circular saw yesterday. The accident happened by his clothing being drawn into a running belt. He was thrown backward on the saw bench, so that the saw severed six ribs and penetrated his lung. To close the gap in his back 50 stitches were needed. He may recover.

Consolidation of Banks

Boston, Nov. 20.—The National Shawmut bank stockholders have bought two-thirds of the capital stock of the National Bank of the Commonwealth at $225 a share cash and will pay that price for the balance of the stock. The directors of both banks have voted in favor of a consolidation, which will take place at once.

Wrecked on Pollock Rip

Hyannis, Mass., Nov. 20.—The crew of the schooner Guardian, from New York for Louisburg, N. S., with a cargo of coal and sand, were landed here yesterday by the lighthouse steamer Azalea. The schooner struck on Pollock Rip Monday night and will be a total loss. The captain and crew lost all their effects.

CHILD'S MEDICINE—WHY?

Because Scott's Emulsion relieves such an extraordinary variety of children's diseases all the way from slight colds to the serious hip disease.

Because Scott's Emulsion is as harmless as milk. Well borne even by the delicate stomachs of babies.

Because children respond so quickly to its action. A medicine peculiarly suited to their sensitive nature. It is wonderful how rapidly delicate children improve in every way while taking Scott's Emulsion.

Because children like the taste. Most of them like Scott's Emulsion at once. The rest soon learn to like it. Little daily doses bring the results.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

CHALLENGE OF CROKER

Wants Reformers to Substantiate Statements or Retract

SLANDERED BY CLERGY

Defies Them to Prove Assertions That He Is a Thief or Ever Got a Dollar Dishonestly—No Corruption Found In Tammany Organization

New York, Nov. 20.—Richard Croker broke his silence toward interviewers yesterday and made a statement defying his political opponents. He said:

"Now that our enemies have the full machinery of government at their command and all the power and authority that is necessary, I defy them to prove a single assertion that they have made against me or to show that I have made a dollar dishonestly.

"If Tammany Hall had advocated Sunday openings the newspapers would have pounded the life out of us. The very people who are now supporting the Republicans would have condemned us. That includes the clergy. Yes, the clergy would have assailed us even more than they did, if possible."

"It appears that the clergy is strongly opposed to you," said a reporter.

"Yes," said Mr. Croker, "but now they are in power and I defy them to prove what they have said against me. They have slandered me without reason. These clergymen have announced from their pulpits that I am a common thief. I challenge them to prove it. They have said all along that I never got a dollar honestly—that I have no legitimate business. They know its a lie.

"All along the Republicans, following the line of attack on me by the ministers in the pulpits, have charged me with all manner of crimes, every one of which is absolutely false. They have charged me with corrupting the police force and with making money out of the department. They have charged me with making money out of the gamblers, saloons and dives. The charges have been broad enough for the ministers to make them good if they can. Now they are in power, let them try to make the charges good.

"They cried all through the campaign that the Tammany administration was rotten and corrupt. They evidently forgot that they had their own investigating committee down from Albany and what did they find? Nothing. The city government was all right. Then they had the Merchants' Association make an investigation. Why didn't the association make a report? Because they found things all right. They did make one false report on the water department. That's all they did. Now I see the successful candidates, from the mayor down, are finding the city government all right. They won't find anything wrong. Time will show. Only, I wish the ministers would try and prove the charges they have made against me."

Tim Sullivan supplemented Croker's remarks, saying: "Croker will stay at the head of Tammany Hall as long as he lives. Tammany will set to work at once to win the next municipal election."

Railroad Men Quit Work

New York, Nov. 20.—Nearly 800 men, comprising the entire force of brakemen, freight handlers and switchmen of the New York division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad went on strike yesterday. The reputed cause for the refusal of the men to work is the discharge of Assistant Superintendent Thurbush of the Mott Haven yards. Officials of the company have nothing to say about the strike.

World's Largest Office Building

London, Nov. 20.—An Anglo-American syndicate applied to the London county council yesterday for a lease for 999 years of a site on the north side of the Strand for the erection of an office building on American lines. The structure, which will cost £2,000,000, will be the largest and handsomest of its kind in the world.

Wanted to Be Electrocuted

New York, Nov. 20.—A man giving the name of Harsfield F. Krode of Hartford, walked into one of the medical colleges here last night, and, seating himself in a chair, asked that the electric current be turned on. He said that he had killed the president. He was sent to the insane pavilion of Bellevue hospital.

Grand Jury Will Investigate

New York, Nov. 20.—The condition of the Brooklyn bridge, which has manifested signs of weakness under the great burden added by the increased traffic of recent years, is to be the subject of grand jury investigation. Expert testimony is being prepared for submission to the jury.

Failed For Quarter of a Million

Kansas City, Nov. 20.—Involuntary bankruptcy proceedings were instituted here yesterday against Tamblyn & Tamblyn, live stock commission merchants. The petition states that the firm's liabilities are $250,000.

Duke and Duchess to Separate

London, Nov. 20.—Truth says that Emperor William has been acquainted with the fact that the Grand Duke and Grand Duchess of Hesse will be divorced on the ground of "insuperable personal aversion," all efforts to arrange a compromise having failed.

Burglars Looted Bank

Mondovi, Wis., Nov. 20.—Robbers early yesterday blew open the safe in the vault of the First National bank and secured between $5000 and $6000. It was the work of professionals.

FARMERS WILL BENEFIT

By Having Nearly as Great Mail Facilities as Cities Enjoy—Gallinger Tells What New England Senators Will Do In Congress

Boston, Nov. 21.—The first annual convention of the postmasters of New England was opened yesterday at the American house here. Postmaster Hibbard, president of the association, presided, and about 150 members were present.

At the business meeting preceding the opening of the formal work of the convention, the following officers were elected: President, Almon K. Goodwin, Pawtucket, R. I.; first vice president, Henry Robinson, Concord, N. H.; second vice president, H. K. Sanderson, Lynn; secretary and treasurer, Ezra O. Winsor, Chelsea.

After the banquet in the evening the retiring president, George A. Hibbard, spoke briefly. He was followed by the Hon. J. J. Myers, speaker of the house of representatives, who referred to the postoffice system as the right hand of commerce.

J. H. Gallinger, United States senator from New Hampshire, said: "I take pride in the great expansion of the postal service. No man can prophecy what five years of further expansion will present to our view. Rural free delivery started with an appropriation of $500,000. Last year it was $5,000,000.

"If the people ask for $10,000,000 there will be few dissenting voices in the national senate and the house of representatives. The day is coming when every farmer will enjoy nearly as great facilities as you now do in cities."

Senator Gallinger eulogized the late President McKinley and said that President Roosevelt would make a good chief magistrate. "In the matter of national legislation," he said, "we are going to have a busy and important session of congress. We shall ask freely from the treasury's overflowing coffers.

"The senators from New England are going to vote for an appropriation for a Pacific cable to connect us with our possessions in the far east. They intend to ask for money to rehabilitate the merchant marine of the United States.

"We are going to pass a river and harbor bill and Boston harbor will share liberally in the appropriation. Boston harbor is a great waterway and every state in New England is to be benefited by its improvement.

"Some legislation against anarchy and anarchism will be effected, and a bill to this end is in preparation by the senior senator from Massachusetts."

Seven Killed In Train Wreck

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 21.—A fatal wreck occurred on the Santa Fe railroad near Fraconia, Ariz., yesterday. Seven trainmen were killed and three passengers and 14 trainmen injured. Limited trains, east and west bound, crashed together while running at full speed. The engines were crushed and blown to pieces by an explosion which followed the collision. Several of the cars took fire and burned up. The collision is said to have been due to the disregarding of orders by the crew of the west-bound train.

Means Quadruple Hanging

Leavenworth, Kas., Nov. 21.—The coroner's jury investigating the killing of Guard Waldrupe, who was shot by one of the escaping prisoners in the Fort Leavenworth military prison, returned a verdict yesterday holding Robinson, Mullins, Thompson and Wilson, ringleaders, guilty of murder, and the other 22 mutineers guilty of conspiracy to commit murder. Nine of the convicts are still at large.

Strikers' Ranks Not Augumented

New York, Nov. 21.—There was quiet last night at the Mott Haven yards of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, where the switchmens' strike is in progress. The strikers made no additions to their force, neither did they receive any word from the company or get a reply to their request for a sympathetic strike.

Fishermen Facing Hard Times

St. Johns, Nov. 21.—The Labrador codfishing season has closed, and the thousands of fisherfolk who engage in it are returning to their Newfoundland homes, many of them poorly provided to face the rigors of a northern winter. The season has been a very unfavorable one, and the catch of cod is considerably below the average.

Disfranchisement Bill Killed

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 21.—The Hardwick bill, providing for the disfranchisement of the negro, was killed in the house of representatives yesterday by a vote of 113 to 17. The same measure was introduced and refuted two years ago.

REASONABLE PROPOSITION

Sunday Opening of New York Saloons Has Many Advocates

New York, Nov. 21.—Governor Od P, Senator Platt and the other Republican state leaders have so far refused to commit themselves on the question of the Sunday opening of saloons, and there is not a bright prospect just now that the plan advocated by Mayor-elect Low will go through the legislature next winter, but old New Yorkers are astonished at the favor with which the proposition is received by persons who, a few years ago, held up their hands with horror at the suggestion of Sunday beer. Formerly, Sunday opening was advocated only by the liquor dealers' conventions, by demagogues in the legislature and by one or two clergymen who were regarded as eccentric, to put it mildly. Now the plan is favored by nearly all the leaders of the reform movement, and even those who do not advocate it discuss it as a reasonable proposition. Moreover, the voters of the city practically passed upon the plan at the last election by putting into the office of the district attorney William Travers Jerome, who, in all his speeches, declared that he favored the opening of saloons during certain hours on Sunday.

Opposed to Sunday Drinking

Fort Worth, Tex., Nov. 21.—The 28th convention of the National W. C. T. U. ended its session last evening with the adoption of a sensational deliverance on the attitude of the reform forces in New York city in respect to the partial open saloon on Sunday.

Disquieting Rumors From Servia

Vienna, Nov. 21.—Vienna papers publish various rumors, one declaring that Queen Draga of Servia was assassinated, another that she was shot in a street at Belgrade and a third that she committed suicide. Reports from other sources deny the statement that Queen Draga was killed, and assert that the rumor of her death was caused by a hysterical scene with King Alexander.

Protest Against Liquor Ads

Malden, Mass., Nov. 21.—The Malden W. C. T. U. is up in arms against the Boston Elevated Railway company for allowing the display of liquor advertisements in its cars, especially those which run through this no-license city. At a meeting resolutions were adopted requesting the aid of the many temperance organizations in Boston and vicinity in causing the removal of the advertisements. The union intends to bring the matter before the ministers of the city also.

Lived 119 Years

Utica, N. Y., Nov. 21.—Abraham E. Elmer, who died at his home here yesterday, according to his family, was 119 years, 9 months and 25 days old. He was born in Warren, Herkimer county. He served as water boy at the battle of Oriskany where he saw General Herkimer shot from his horse by an Indian. He was also in the war of 1812. He had been blind many years.

Nearly a Million Railway Men

Washington, Nov. 21.—The industrial commission has issued a report on railway labor in the United States. It shows that railway employes in this country constitute an army of nearly 1,000,000 people, with probably nearly 5,000,000 people dependent upon the wages paid by railroads.

Color Line In Oklahoma

Guthrie, O. T., Nov. 21.—Complaints of ejection of colored men are filed daily with the United States marshal and protection is asked for negroes who drew claims in the recent government land lottery. More than 100 colored homesteaders have been driven out of that country.

Reciprocity Convention Adjourns

Washington, Nov. 21.—The session of the reciprocity convention last night was devoted mainly to the question of reciprocal trade relations with Canada. Several papers were read, after which some routine business was disposed of and the convention finally adjourned.

Hub's Choice For Mayor

Boston, Nov. 21.—All was peace and harmony in the Democratic municipal convention last night and Patrick A. Collins was named as the next Democratic candidate for mayor by the unanimous vote of the delegates present.

LIBERALS TAKE COLON

After a Skirmish Lasting Less Than Three Hours

WHOLE TOWN SURPRISED

By the Unexpected Descent of Attacking Force, Which Took Advantage of Absence of Military Commander of the Isthmus

Colon, Nov. 21.—The Liberals made an unexpected attack on Colon at 8 o'clock Tuesday night. The government was not prepared and there was little resistance. Over 12 men were killed and about 30 men were wounded. The United States gunboat Machias, now here, took no part in the proceedings.

On receipt of the news that General Alban, the military commander of the isthmus, had started to attack the Liberals at Chorrera, near Panama, the latter detached 160 men under General Patino to attack Colon. This force embarked on board a train bound from Panama to Colon Tuesday evening at Lascascades station, previously cutting off telegraphic communication across the isthmus. On arriving at the outskirts of Colon, where the government usually maintained a small guard, the Liberals left the train and in the initial skirmish which began soon afterwards, Patino was killed.

The command of the Liberals then devolved on Colonel Barrera, and they continued their march on Colon, arriving a few minutes after the train, thus surprising the whole town. The government troops at Colon were outnumbered by the Liberals. Fighting immediately began at the barracks, which was soon taken. There Senor Jaen, a judge of the criminal court, was killed, and Senor Muskus, the district representative of the department of the interior, was mortally wounded.

Fighting subsequently occurred at the town hall, which was also taken by the Liberals. Among the prisoners captured by the Liberals there were the prefect, Guardia, and the commandante of police.

Senor Paredes, the mayor, managed to reach the gunboat General Pinzon, which sailed Tuesday night for a destination unknown, probably Carthagena.

Communication with Panama was restored yesterday. This reveals that no fighting has occurred there, that everything is quiet and that the city is still in the hands of the government. The issue depends on the result of the fighting which is doubtless now occurring at Chorrera, news of which is anxiously awaited here.

At a conference between Commander McCrea of the Machias, United States Consul Malmore, Colonel Shaler, superintendent of the Panama railroad, and Colonel Barrera, commander of the Liberals, the last named was informed why the marines had been landed from the Machias. Barrera promised to guard the city with his troops.

Today trains will be crossing the isthmus as usual and there has been no obstruction of free transit so far.

The news of the capture of Colon, which reached Panama when communication with that city was restored, was a great surprise to the inhabitants of the city on the other side of the isthmus.

Colon—which went by the name of Aspinwall until the Colombian authorities enforced a change in its name by rejecting all mail matter so addressed—is built in an unhealthy site on the well-wooded coral island of Manzanilla, off the northern coast of the Isthmus of Panama. It is the Atlantic terminus of the Panama railway, the Pacific terminus being the city of Panama, 48 miles distant.

Colon was originallily intended to serve as a port of transit. It developed within a few years to be the centre of supply for many neighboring towns. The entire island was ceded to the railway company in 1852, and the growth of Colon has been mainly due to the growth of the business of the Panama railway and the Pacific Mail Steamship company, and to the work on the Panama canal. In 1860 the population of the place was about 2500; in 1872 it was 6500, and recent estimates of the number of residents have been as high as 10,000.

A large proportion of the population has always been Jamaican and Spanish negroes. On March 31, 1885, the place was almost completely destroyed by fire. A revolutionary movement under the lead of Preston was in progress and had possession of the place. The government forces under General Aizpura marched against the town, and when the rebel leader found that defeat was inevitable he set fire to the city in various places, and then made his escape, with a few of his followers. The town was soon in ruins.

The city was then rebuilt, a fresh impetus having been given to it for a time by the work on the Panama canal. On Sept. 22, 1890, the town was visited by another destructive fire, three-fourths of the place, including the most important business houses, being laid in ruins. The loss by this conflagration was nearly $2,000,000. Again, on March 23, 1896, Colon was visited by a big fire, the loss reaching $300,000.

Drift of Opinion.

☞"Too much of a good thing" is what you read about but seldom experience. The real article appears now in certain sections of the country where prosperity is working to the disadvantage of industry. For instance, owing to the demand for freight cars the Fort Wayne division of the Pennsylvania road west of Pittsburg has cut off the shipment of hay, grain and potatoes, causing almost a famine in those lines in that section, and in the Pittsburg regions six furnaces which ought to be in full operation to meet orders have been necessarily shut down because of lack of freight facilities for hauling the coke necessary to their operation.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞An authority advises in the interests of health that every citizen ought to eat from two to eight pounds of grapes a day, or from three to six oranges. This is a simple thing to say, and doubtless there are many people who wish they could carry out this prescription. The slight but nevertheless essential element of cost enters into the game, however.

With the rising prices of everything in the food line, it may be that the day is coming when it will be just as easy to buy grapes and oranges as anything else. If a man ate that amount of fruit he would certainly not have much space left to be filled with meats and vegetables. Perhaps this new advice is a blow at the beef trust.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞The government of any city is as good as that city deserves. It may be much worse than the average public opinion of the men and women of the city, but it always fairly represents the amount of energy which is expended in the interest of good government in that community. That is to say, if the baser elements in the city represent one-fourth of its total population, and that one-fourth puts forth its full power to control the government, and the other three-fourths scarcely make any effort to maintain good government, then the community gets the kind of government which represents its total output of power. The intelligence, the conscience, the respectability of a city, may profess to be shocked by the evil things that the city nourishes and protects; but for those things they are directly responsible.—Christian Register.

☞The motormen on the local division are wondering when a rule will be made by the authorities forbidding passengers to ride on the front platform. On the new vestibuled cars, there is hardly room for the motorman to work when alone, and when three passengers are sharing the space with him, a motorman in a tight place would be in a tight place indeed. So much for the safety of drivers and foot passengers. Now for the comfort of the motorman. Does the average smoking passenger realize what it would be to have to work nine hours a day in a confined space with the atmosphere laden with a mixture of pipe, cigar, and cigarettte smoke. Again, every time the door opens to admit a passenger, the motorman gets the full benefit of a pneumonia producing draft which all the clothing on the market could not neutralize. This rule has gone into effect in New Bedford, and the motormen are asking, "Why not Fall River?"—Fall River News.

The City Council Committee on Streets will meet Friday evening.

NO DISSENSION.

And Nothing Underhanded or Shady.

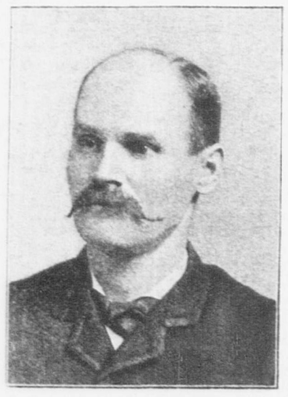

Hearty Support for Fred L. Jones.

The Popular Republican Verdict Against C. M. Bryant.

The attempt is being made in some quarters to give the impression that the Republican nomination was obtained by fraud, or underhanded methods, and that the nominee is not the popular choice of the Republican party. The majority know to the contrary, but for the benefit of the doubtful an analysis of the contest may be convincing.

In Ward One, at the Republican caucus, the voters had a choice between a list of delegates favorable to Charles M. Bryant, and a list favorable to some one else. The majority decided that they did not want Mr. Bryant, as the vote was 324 to 222 against him.

In Ward Two, also, there were two lists: one favorable to Mr. Bryant and the other not. The ward turned down the Bryant list of delegates to the tune of 201 to 140.

In Ward Three the decision was even more decisive, the Bryant list being defeated by the Jones list 321 to 161.

Wards One, Two and Three contain more than half of the Republican voters in the city, casting 1253 votes for Governor Crane in 1900, against 996 cast in the other three wards. Because of these votes, Wards One, Two and Three were entitled to 28 votes in the recent convention, and the other three wards had but 23. The popular majority in Wards One, Two and Three against Bryant was 323, the totals being 846 to 523.

There is nothing illegal in a caucus of delegates whose sympathies are alike. The Republicans of the National Senate and National House hold caucuses before organization, and so do the Democrats. The Republicans of the Massachusetts House and Massachusetts Senate also hold caucuses before organization, and so do the Democrats. The Republicans of the Quincy City Council have held caucuses, but have usually been unsuccessful in uniting at critical times.

When the anti-Bryant delegates chosen at the recent Republican caucuses found they were in the majority, it was but natural that they should attempt to unite; in fact that was the well understood plan before the caucuses both by the Bryant men and the anti-Bryant men, and the contest was fought on that line. The Bryant men thought it would be impossible for the opposition to unite, but they were mistaken, and now they cry fraud and try to deceive, but it is of no use.

The analysis might be continued. It can be truthfully stated that Charles M. Bryant was not the choice of the Ward Four Republicans, because nearly 400 votes were cast at the caucus and there are not that many Republicans in the ward. The day before Gov. Crane received but 276 votes in the ward. Nearly every one of the 100 or more Democrats who voted, cast their ballot for Mr. Bryant, and then he led by only 69.

The situation in Ward Five was about the same. It is probable that the Democrats gave Mr. Bryant his plurality of 68. What the result would have been in Ward Six with a contest is unknown.

Again, in the whole city, the popular vote was 1,053 for Bryant, and 1,194 in opposition, showing Mr. Bryant was not the popular choice.

Easy to Take
Easy to Operate

Because purely vegetable—yet thorough, prompt, healthful, satisfactory—

Hood's Pills

There can be no question but the decision at the caucus of anti-Bryant delegates was reached in a fair and open way, and that none of those concerned are ashamed or should be ashamed of the methods used. Messrs. Packard, Jameson and Jones, the candidates, were all agreed, and all the delegates were unanimous against Mr. Bryant from first to last. No debate was necessary on this point, and no "whipping" was necessary to get them into line, for they were already arrayed against him.

It does not matter how an agreement was reached, or when it was reached, so long as all were agreed and unanimous, and all concerned are satisfied. Mr. Packard has told us in an open letter that he was satisfied, and that he appreciated the earnest support of delegates elected in his favor. Mr. Jameson, another candidate, says he is happier over the result than he would have been had he been the candidate. And Frederick L. Jones is the candidate; and he would not have accepted the nomination unless it had come to him honestly and fairly.

The Bryant men are simply trying to cause dissension by wilfully misrepresenting the situation, hoping thereby to gain a few votes. But the intelligence of the voters, who have already turned down Mr. Bryant and his methods, can understand to what depths they will go to secure an election, and wish to be excused from such an administration of city affairs in 1902.

Vote for Frederick L. Jones, the people's choice; honest, square and modest; an old soldier, a successful business man, a conscientious and faithful public servant.

Cruelty to Dumb Animals.

The correspondent who wrote about the "need of a live officer to protect animals from harm" made a slight mistake. Since reading this, we find that our very efficient and willing officer for the M. S. P. C. T. A., Mr. Furnald, was at the place designated at half past ten o'clock A. M. not long after receiving the notice, and that the matter was not as serious as seemed to the writer, who was actuated by kind intentions, however.

Mr. Furnald is very much alive for his age in the work, having served an apprenticeship in it very many years ago and working for no money for it. The work has increased hundreds in fold and now includes looking after children who are unkindly treated, something we have long needed.

At the Fair.

There was a large attendance at the Grand Army fair Wednesday night. The entertainment consisted of an exhibition of fancy dancing by the young pupils of Prof. Kaplan. The entertainment was greatly enjoyed, and the children were applauded. Tonight's entertainment will be in charge of the Woman's Relief Corp, and something fine is promised.

Howard Street.

The Committee on Streets of the City Council will give a hearing in the Committee room at City Hall, on Friday evening on the petition for widening of Howard street at Quincy Neck.

Mr. M. P. Nye.

Marshall P. Nye, a highly respected citizen who resided for a number of years on Coddington street, this city, passed away on Wednesday, Nov. 20, at his son's residence in Methuen, at the age of 79 years and 14 days. Funeral on Friday at 2.30 P. M. Burial in Hardwich, Mass.

The Magazines.

The Christmas number of The Delineator is about the first of the special Christmas issues. It is a beauty. The cover is a most artistic production, showing a beautifully gowned woman standing gracefully in a brilliantly lighted salon. Two charming love stories, one by Cyrus Townsead Brady, plenty of advice regarding Christmas Gifts, timely pointers on Cookery, Wintertime care of Plants, all the fashions of the day interpreted into simple language, can be found in the Christmas number of The Delineator. It is a splendid magazine, satisfactory inside and out. There is no magazine for women at present published that is more practical in all its pages. As a Xmas gift itself, it bears its own recommendation.

☞Mr. Walter P. Pinel is adding to his store accommodations another room, which will contain five and ten-cent good. He is meeting with great success at South Quincy and many of our readers are finding good bargains at his store. He has almost everything for sale except eatables.

"Last winter an infant child of mine had croup in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist, of Filley, Mo. "I gave her a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and in a short time all danger was past and the child recovered." This remedy not only cures croup, but when given as soon as the first symptoms appear, will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

It is the exception rather than the rule for the electric lights to be lighted in Atlantic. When they are most needed as on Tuesday night every street was in darkness.

The new vestibule cars of the Old Colony street railway, which are to be put on the Brockton line, are expected every day. They will be appreciated by the motormen on this line as well as by the passengers.

The Meadow Brook Ice Co. have expended considerable money during the past few months in cleaning the meadow of their ice pond of all dead matter, so that their crop of ice this winter will be better and clearer than ever.

At the Granite City club whist tournament Wednesday night the prizes were captured by W. W. Jenness and Arthur W. Loud. The monthly prizes were captured by J. W. Nightingale, J. Q. Cudworth, John Curtis and R. R. Smith.

It is a pleasure to trade with a wide-awake progressive firm, where goods are always fresh and reliable. The Thanksgiving price list of L. M. Pratt & Son, the new proprietors of the Boston Branch Grocery, will be read with interest.

There will be a foot ball game between the South Quincys and the West Quincys, on the Hall Place grounds West Quincy Thanksgiving morning at 9.30. The fact that these teams played a tie match last year should insure a good contest this year.

The three years allowed for payment of schedules 1, 2 and 3, numbered from 1 to 1241 unapportioned sewer taxes, will expire next year. Also unapportioned sidewalk taxes to No. 225. People will then begin to feel the burden imposed by the City Council as many tax sales will follow.

Several pedestrians were going along Atlantic street toward Hancock Wednesday afternoon when all the snow had not been cleared from the street and the other end of the sidewalk a bicycle appeared. Whatever the laws are in Atlantic regarding riding on the sidewalk the man either overlooked them or ignored them for when he came abreast of the pedestrians with out so muh as a touch of his bell he coasted his wheel in the middle of the sidewalk and the humbie walkers hied themselves to the snowy street. So much for enforcement of the bicycle law. No doubt the merry wheelman went on his way rejoicing.

Jumped on a Ten Penny Nail.

The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake made of ten-penny nails, and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and a second one half way through. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes later the pain had disappeared and no more suffering was experienced. In three days the child was wearing her shoe as usual and with absolutely no discomfort. Mr. Powell is a well known merchant of Forkland, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and heals such injuries without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. For sale by all druggists.

GRAND BABY SHOW

Thirty-Four Entered for the Prizes.

Successful Features of G. A. R. Fair.

Six Twins Included in the List of Entries.

A baby show is one of those things that fond mammas look forward to, as it is at such affairs that the younsters are attired in their prettiest and shown at a public hall where those not fortunate enough to be blessed in a like manner may gaze upon them and think of what they have missed. It is also one of those occasions at which mother can tell of the funny and wonderful things that baby does, feeling sure of having ready listeners, and at the same time have some other mother tell something about her offspring that will put everybody else in the shade.

For several years the Grand Army have devoted one afternoon of their annual fair to a baby show. Wednesday was the day upon which it was held this year, and as the day was all that could be desired there was a large number of babies present. It would be unfair to say that they were not all pretty, for they were, and it was no easy matter or the judges to make the awards. For such a large crowd they were pretty orderly, although doubtless the copious bottles of milk with which they were fed had something to do with keeping them quiet.

There were thirty-four who entered the contest, and Mrs. Emma Newcomb and Mrs. Kate A. Hayden who were the committee in charge saw that each was provided with a tag which gave the holder's name.

Mrs. Walter M. Packard, Miss Smith and Miss Baker were appointed as judges, and shortly after 3 o'clock the 34 were lined up upon the platform and the judges went to work to select

☞If the old maids of Minneapolis, Kan., carry out their intention to hold a convention and make public the names of the men, now married, whom they jilted in days gone by, there may be many a woman discover that she has patronized the bargain counter once more than she thought she had. —Lynn Item.

WARD THREE ENTHUSIASTIC.

They are Determined to Give Frederick L. Jones a Large Plurality on December 3.

A meeting of the supporters of Frederick L. Jones in Ward Three was held at Doble's hall, Wednesday, when steps were taken to form a Jones club. A room was hired in Doble's block and it was decided to issue a general invitation to all who favor the election of Mr. Jones as Mayor to meet Saturday night and enroll themselves as members of the Jones club. The membership will not be confined to Ward Three, but Jones men from all parts of the city will be invited to join. Ward Three was never so thoroughly aroused over an election as now and the only name heard is that of Jones: even the boys are shouting for him.

Wollaston Unity Club.

The Friday evening meeting of the Unity club in the Wollaston Unitarian vestry will be devoted to insects under the direction of Mrs. George W. Bennett. The first paper on Ants will be given by Mr. Walter E. Simmons, on Bees by Mr. Comins, and Moths and Butterflies by Mr. Frederick Plummer of the Woodward school. As usual music will be a featnre of the program. A male quartet of Quincy will favor the club.

The subject of the evening will be of special interest as it has been made a special study of the writers of the papers.

Li Hung Chang's Frank Reply.

Li Hung Chang visited Philadelphia on Sept. 3, 1896, when Charles F. Warwick was mayor, says the Philadelphia Times. The procession started down Broad street. It was soon after this that Mayor Warwick, pointing to the crowds which lined the streets, said:

"Your excellency, Philadelphia is famous for its beautiful women."

Li was quiet a few minutes and then made the famous reply:

"I have not seen any yet."

RESTORING THE MIND.

Idiotic Boy Cured by Daring Surgical Operation.

A remarkable surgical operation, which consisted in removing a portion of an abnormally thick or misshaped skull, was recently performed by Dr. Gottlieb Sternberg of New York. His patient was thirteen-year-old Isador Levine, also of New York, who had been an idiot from birth. The boy is now able to learn, and his education has been begun.

"Before I performed the operation," said Dr. Sternberg the other day to a reporter of the New York Journal, "there had been two successful cases out of ten attempts in Paris. I first saw the boy in the early part of last May and gave him frequent examinations. He was quite insane. There was a lack of co-ordination in his muscular movements, no concentration of mind, and his eyes were not responsive to any light of intelligence. I found a considerable depression on the left side of the top of the skull, which showed a great contrast to that of the right side.

"I came to the conclusion that the boy's mental condition resulted from the undue pressure of the skull upon the left side of the brain. Partial paralysis of some of the right muscles and limbs helped me to this conclusion. As is well known, an affliction of the left part of the brain affects the limbs on the opposite side of the body, and vice versa.

"The operation lasted just twenty-five minutes. I first of all trephined the boy's skull just over the left eye, removing a circular piece of bone the size of a five cent piece, which enabled me to examine the brain and insert a pair of rongeur forceps, with which the skull would be clipped away. Before this the skin of the scalp had been laid back in flaps.

"With the forceps I chiseled out a strip of the patient's skull about six inches in length by one and a half inches wide at the front to two inches wide at the back.

"That my diagnosis was correct was immediately demonstrated, as the brain sprung up through the orifice like a sponge. After antiseptic treatment the scalp was replaced. One of the instantaneous results of the operation when the patient regained consciousness was that the pupils of the eyes became sensitive to light and contracted in response to increased illumination. Since then the lad's mental capacity has gradually increased. He is a well boy and has commenced to go to a school of elementary instruction, and, in my opinion, he will go on improving."

English Good Sense on the Canal.

When once the isthmian canal is made by the United States, opened to the whole world on equal terms and held so strongly that no power at war with Great Britain will be able to violate its neutrality, the nation will realize that instead of the abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty proving an injury it is a great benefit, says the London Spectator. The notion that America, though she will make, work and hold the canal, should bind herself to preserve its neutrality as regards a power with which she is at war, is absurd. Such a stipulation would not and could not be observed for ten minutes after war had been declared. An American isthmian canal, like everything else American, will be used against America's enemies in case of war. Whatever the jurists may say, we should do the same in the case of the Suez canal.

Egotism of Genius.

A writer in the London Standard declares the idea that genius is usually modest to be a popular delusion. On the contrary, he alleges egotism to be the very essence of true genius and quotes many amusing examples.

When Wordsworth, Southey and Coleridge were walking together and Coleridge remarked that the day was so fine "it might have been ordered for three poets," the gentle Wordsworth promptly exclaimed: "Three poets! Who are the other two?"

Disraeli, then a mere youth, wrote to his sister that he had heard Macaulay, Sheil and Grant speak, "but between ourselves I could floor them all." And again he said, "When I want to read a good book, I write one."

Our own Joaquin Miller wrote to Walt Whitman: "You and I are over the head of the rabble. We know we are great, and if other people don't know it it is their own fault."

It was President Grant who, being told that a certain senator, an admitted genius who was very hostile to him, did not believe the Bible, expressed his estimate of the senator's egotism by rejoining: "Why should he? He didn't write it, you know."—New York World.

Buying a Razor.

"I need a new razor," said the man who shaves himself.

"Better let me get it for you," suggested the reformed barber, who, now that he is a trolley car conductor, regards himself as a distinguished member of society. "All cutlery stores are filled with razors of the class known as 'dead ones.' When a barber buys a razor, he takes it with the understanding that he is to try it out, and if it doesn't work well he takes it back and gets another one, keeping this up until he gets one that suits him. Buying a razor, you know, is a lottery in which the prizes are few and far between. When the ordinary citizen goes to a cutlery store, he picks out what he thinks is a good razor, pays for it and takes his chances. He picks one out, too, from the bunch of 'dead ones' that barbers have tried and found wanting. That's why I advise you to let me get it for you. Then if you don't like it I can keep exchanging it until you get a good one. They needn't know I've quit the business."—Philadelphia Record.

The Woolsack.

Back during the time of Queen Elizabeth an act of parliament was passed prohibiting the exportation of wool. This product was one of the great sources of the natural wealth of England at that time, and in accordance with the economic notions of the age the authorities attempted to keep it in the country, imagining that if it went abroad, even though something more valuable or desirable were exchanged for it, the country would be the poorer.

In order to hold the importance of this commodity before the minds of the national legislators woolsacks were placed in the house of lords, where the judges sat. Hence the lord chancellor, who presides over the house of lords, "sits on the woolsack." The woolsack, according to a printed description, is a "large square bag of wool without back or arms and covered with red cloth."

"Faints."

Fusel oil, or "faints," as it is commonly called about the distilleries in England, according to the London Lancet, is a primary amyl alcohol mixed with primary and secondary propyl alcohols. In England it can be obtained gratis at some distilleries. It is used locally as an external application for rheumatism. It is obtained from fermented grain or potatoes by continuing the process of distillation after the ordinary spirit has all "come over." It is an olly liquid, with a burning, acrid taste and an odor said to resemble Jargonelle pear. It has intoxicating and poisonous properties considerably more powerful than ordinary spirits.

Must Give a Horseshoe.

An old manorial rite exists at Oakham, in Rutlandshire, England, where every peer of the realm is bound the first time he enters the town to present a horseshoe to be nailed on the old portal, which is well nigh covered with these tributes. It is said that in case any contumacious peer should refuse to pay this tax the authorities have a right to stop his carriage and levy blackmail by unshoeing one of the horses. To avert so serious an annoyance the tribute shoe is generally ready, some being of enormous size and inscribed with the name of the donor.

Harsh Neighbors.

"How do you like your neighbors?"

"Not a bit," said the woman who was tying a little boy's hat on. "You see, they don't like children."

"How do you know?"

"They hurt Reginald's feelings dreadfully. When he throws stones at their dog or plays the hose on their window, they look real cross at him!"—Washington Star.

The Unpleasant Boarder.

"You do not often get better steak than that," said the landlady, hoping for a compliment.

"Yes, I seldom eat elsewhere," replied De Grouch, to whom it was always easier to keep up his reputation than his board bill.—Indianapolis News.

BRAVERY OF MARINES

Demonstrated In Storming of Insurgent Stronghold

CAPTURED GUNS AND STORES

Thirty of the Enemy Killed, While Americans Sustained but Few Trifling Wounds—Victory Came After a Remarkable Display of Gallantry

Manila, Nov. 21.—Major Waller of the marine corps has cabled to Rear Admiral Rodgers a detailed account of the attack made on Nov. 7 by the men of his command upon the rebel stronghold at Sojoton, island of Samar. Three insurgent camps were destroyed, 40 bamboo cannon were captured and much rice and other stores were destroyed.

The insurgent stronghold was almost impregnable. The trails leading to it were lined with poisoned spears sticking up from the ground and were filled with hidden pitfalls. Major Waller's command attacked the enemy unexpectedly. To do this they had to scale a cliff 200 feet high. This they climbed barefooted over bamboo ladders. At the top they found boulders piled up ready to be precipitated upon an attacking party.

Major Waller was not personally present at the action. He praises Captain Porter and Captain Bearss for their splendid work and says too much praise cannot be given the marines themselves, whose behavior he characterizes as brilliant in every respect. The major considers the scaling of cliffs 200 feet high as a new feature of warfare and says such men would be able to do anything anywhere. Thirty of the enemy were killed. The marines sustained a few trifling wounds.

Lopez Asks a Favor

Manila, Nov. 21.—Sixto Lopez, who has been in the United States and Europe in the interest of the Filipino insurgents, and who is now at Hong Kong, has written to Governor Taft asking to be exempted from taking the oath of allegiance to the United States upon his arrival at Manila, asserting that this action might injure his labors in behalf of peace.

Efforts to Save Torres' Life

Manila, Nov. 21.—A fund is being raised by the federal party in Manila for the purpose of attempting to prevent the execution of the Filipino general, Isidore Torres, who surrendered to the American authorities and who was tried on charges of having violated the rules of warfare and sentenced to death.

Wants to Talk to Congress

Manila, Nov. 21.—Aguinaldo has written General Chaffee asking the latter's permission to go before congress and express the desires of the Filipino people. Aguinaldo further requests to be accompanied by eight friends.

Leicester May Have Skunk Farm

Leicester, Mass., Nov. 21.—Charles Bruce of New York was in Leicester yesterday looking over the town with a view of starting a skunk farm. During the past few months there have been several items in the local papers about th large number of skunks in Leicested and how the animals had become so tame that they ran about the main streets. This is what attracted Mr. Bruce to Leicester. Mr. Bruce is a stockholder in a company that carries on a skunk farming business in New York.

Brisk Blaze Scared Villagers

East Andover, N. H., Nov. 21.—A brisk fire, which for a time caused much uneasiness among the villagers, destroyed several buildings yesterday, entailing a loss of about $15,000. The fire started in the engine room of Horace Caldwell's box factory, and rapidly spread to nearby property. The box factory was burned, together with the store owned and occupied by George Hewett and a barn owned by Mrs. Miller.

Won't Permit Strikers' Camps

Madisonville, Ky., Nov. 21.—Judge Hall announces that he will issue an order directing the camp of striking miners at Nortonville to disperse. He says he will not permit the establishment of any more such camps within his jurisdiction. If his order shall not be obeyed promptly he will call upon the troops to enforce obedience.

Pennsy Beaten by West Pointers

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 21.—The University of Pennsylvania football team was beaten by the West Point military academy yesterday and incidentally suffered one of the worst defeats in Pennsylvania's football history. The score, 24 to 0, shows how West Point outplayed the Quakers.

Dickinson Tired of Waiting

Sofia, Nov. 21.—Mr. Dickinson, according to The Vezerna Posta, has sent an ultimatum to the brigands giving them six days to accept a specified sum as a ransom for Miss Stone. If this amount is not accepted within the time mentioned Mr. Dickinson's offer will be withdrawn.

Columbia Won Close Game

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 21.—Columbia's football team beat that of the naval academy yesterday. The game, which was closely fought, resulted in a score of 6 to 5 for the New Yorkers, but was in doubt until the last minute.

Signs of Another Uprising

Santiago, Nov. 21.—It is said here that forces of the Argentine republic have crossed the line of demarcation between Chili and Argentina into Chilian territory.

THIRTY MINERS PERISHED

Overcome by Smoke From Fire at Mouth of Tunnel

Telluride, Col., Nov. 21.—By a large fire in the bullion tunnel, belonging to the Smuggler Union Mining company, probably 30 lives were lost yesterday. Seventeen bodies have been recovered. The fire, which was accidental, started in the buildings at the mouth of the tunnel.

The day shift of 200 men had entered the mine and reached their stations when the fire broke out. The tunnel acted as a flue and a great volume of smoke poured in and filled the slopes.

Many of the men succeeded in reaching safety by another exit. The fire rapidly burned itself out, but the mine was so filled with smoke that it was six hours before rescuing parties could penetrate the slopes where the less fortunate were.

Lessee Henderson Ousted

Boston, Nov. 21.—For the third time since the playhouse was opened Pierce J. Grace, representing the Pierce estate, took possession of the Columbia theatre yesterday. David H. Henderson, lessee and manager, was summoned into the poor debtor court yesterday, and in the course of the examination he said that he expected to retain possession of the theatre for some time to come. Subsequently Grace was summoned into court and testified that he had just taken possession of the theatre. The statement was a bombshell to Mr. Henderson and caused great surprise.

Won't Say When Buying Will Cease

Washington, Nov. 21.—Secretary Gage was asked yesterday how long he should continue bond purchase and also whether any large tentative offers were before him for consideration. The last question he answered decidedly in the negative, but accepted a $100,000 offer of long fours which came in while the conversation was in progress. As to when he should cease buying, he said that he should make no announcement in advance, but should reserve the right to stop instantly when he considered that the conditions called for such a course.

Students Shot at Police

Athens, Nov. 21.—The agitation of the university students against the proposal to translate the gospels into modern Greek has resulted in riotous demonstration against two newspapers which have been advocating such translations. Yesterday the students fired on the police. Troops were then summoned and a serious fight occurred, in which a score of cavalrymen and several students were wounded. A political motive, connected with the Slav propaganda in Greece, underlies this religious movement.

Plot Prematurely Exposed

Seattle, Nov. 21.—The Yukon insurrection story is not altogether without foundation. Some Americans drew up plans for forcibly deposing the government and police in the Yukon, somewhat similar to the historical Jameson raid in the transvaal. Major Woods, northwest mounted police, discovered the scheme and took prompt steps to suppress it, American officials at Skagway co-operating. The discovery of the scheme is supposed to have nipped it in the bud.

Ready to Proceed With Trial

Washington, Nov. 21.—The jury which is to try Mrs. Ida Bonine on the charge of murdering James S. Ayres, Jr., was empleted yesterday afternoon and the court adjourned until today, when a presentation of the case on behalf of the government will be made by the district attorney.

McCrea's Report

Washington, Nov. 21.—Commander McCrea of the gunboat Machias, now at Colon, has cabled the navy department as follows:

The insurgents have possession of the city. At the request of the proper authorities I have landed a force for the protection of the property of the railroad.

If the teacher could wipe away the blotches from her skin as easily as she does the caricature with its pimply face, she would be a happy woman.

Pimples and eruptions are more than a disfigurement to a woman,—they make her sensitive and unhappy. The way to cleanse the skin is to purify the blood. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery purifies the blood, and removes the clogging accumulations and poisons which corrupt it. When these are removed, pimples, boils, eruptions, sores, and other consequences of impure blood are entirely cured.

"For about one year and a half my face was very badly broken out," writes Miss Carrie Adams, of 116 West Main St., Battlecreek, Mich. "I spent a great deal of money with doctors and for different kinds of medicine, but received no benefit. At last I obtained a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Before I had taken one bottle of this medicine I noticed a change, and after taking three bottles I was entirely cured. I can well recommend Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to any one similarly afflicted."

Accept no substitute for the "Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for impure blood and skin diseases.

The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 pages, is given away. Send 21 one-cent stamps expense of mailing only, for the book in paper covers, or 31 stamps for the volume bound in cloth. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

BRUTALLY STRICKEN DOWN

Connecticut Farmer Murdered by Tramp Whom He Befriended

Norwich, Conn., Nov. 21.—A brutal murder, following robbery, took place at Butternut hill in the town of Montville, about two miles from this city, last evening. Jermiah Shumway, aged 82, an eccentric farmer, lies dead, the victim of a tramp whom he had befriended and given shelter.

Shumway took the tramp into his home several days ago and it was noticed by the neighbors that he bore a striking resemblance to Blondin, the alleged Massachusetts wife murderer. Yesterday afternoon both men came to this city and the tramp returned intoxicated.

Shortly afterward cries were heard coming from the Shumway house and the neighbors, armed with rifles and shotguns, went to the house and asked for admittance. The tramp immediately ran into a patch of woods in the rear. Several shots were fired and the fugitive fell once, but made good his escape, however.

On entering the house the neighbors found the old man dead on the floor with two terrible wounds in the head and the skull was fractured. An empty wallet nearby told the story of the robbery.

The tramp is supposed to be a French Canadian.

Portland Woman Shot by Negro

Portland, Me., Nov. 21.—Early last evening Isaac E. Ayers, a negro, shot and dangerously wounded Mrs. Jennie McNulty, a white woman. Mrs. McNulty is at the hospital with a bullet in her left breast, with the result of the wound in doubt. Ayers has previously been arrested on the charge of assault with intent to kill and has been regarded by the police as a dangerous man. He is said to have made improper proposals to Mrs. McNulty, which were repulsed, and the attempt to kill her followed. Ayers was later captured by the police.

Lynn's Labor Contest

Lynn, Mass., Nov. 21.—There will be a conference between the state board of arbitration and committee of the morocco manufacturers and the Glazers' union of the Socialist Trade and Labor Alliance today to see if some common ground for a settlement of existing difficulties can be reached. The members of the union held a mass meeting last night and voted to remain out and to try and induce those now at work to come out.

Wheeler Had to Yield

Boston, Nov. 21.—The controversy between the Massachusetts civil service commissioners and the city of Boston is ended, now that Superintendent of Streets Wheeler has notified the commission that he has suspended all of the provisional appointees who are affected by the recent decision of Attorney Knowlton. As a result no criminal action is to be taken by District Attorney Stevens.

Dynamite Blew Man to Atoms

Winsted, Conn., Nov. 21.—A premature blast of dynamite on the new Hartford road yesterday caused the death of George Ball, aged 38, and injured 10 laborers. Ball was kneeling over a hole preparing the blast. His pockets were filled with sticks of dynamite which he intended to use for other blasts. In some manner the blast was prematurely exploded and Ball was blown to atoms.

Anxious to Catch Incendiaries

Boston, Nov. 21.—The American Humane Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to animals has voted to pay $100 for evidence which will convict the man who set fire to the barn of H. G. Jordan at Hingham, burning alive 140 cattle and horses. The legal penalty for each animal destroyed is $250 fine and a year's imprisonment, which would make the total fine possible $36,500.

Suspected of Incendiarism

Lynn, Mass., Nov. 21.—After very thoroughly investigating two suspicious fires that occurred here on the night of Oct. 13, State Fire Marshal Witcomb caused the arrest last night of Samuel Greene, a Hebrew junk dealer, in whose home the fires occurred, on the charge of arson. It was learned by the officials that Greene's property was quite heavily insured.

Murder In First Degree

New Haven, Nov. 21.—In the superior court yesterday a jury found Andrew Laudano guilty of murder in the first degree. Laudano has been on trial for about two weeks charged with shooting to death Policeman Hugh McKeon on July 31. The defense made a motion for a new trial. The arguments will be made later. Sentence was deferred.

Somerville Was Jarred

Somerville, Mass., Nov. 21—A loss of about $30,000 was caused by fire last night in the building occupied by the Anchor Electrical Supply company. The fire started from a naphtha explosion, the shock of which was felt all over the city. No one was near enough to be injured.

A Dividend of $90,000

Lebanon, N. H., Nov. 21.—The Lebanon Savings bank, which closed its doors in 1896, has paid a dividend of 10 percent to the depositors. This payment brings the total distributed to depositors to 90 percent. The present dividend amounts to $90,000.

Third Rail Will Have a Rest

Boston, Nov. 21.—It is announced that the third rail system of the consolidated road, between Cohasset and Braintree, as well as the line between Nantasket Junction and Hull, will not be operated this winter.

Nine New Cases of Smallpox

Boston, Nov. 21.—A large number of smallpox patients have been located, scattered in different parts of the city, though Roxbury furnishes most of them. Nine new cases have been reported.

CHORREA ENGAGEMENT

Will Decide Which Element Will Control Isthmus

NAVAL OFFICERS ARE FREE

To Use Their Own Judgment In Protecting American Interests—Glance at the Progress of the Revolution—Foreigners Respected at Colon

Washington, Nov. 22.—Save for the two reassuring dispatches from Consul General Gudger at Panama and Captain of the battleship Iowa, lying off that port, neither the state or the navy departments received any despatches yesterday concerning the situation on the isthmus.

Great interest is felt in official circles here as to the outcome of the Chorrea expedition, for it is realized that the result of the engagement at that point will be decisive in giving either the Conservative or the Liberal element control of the isthmus.

Secretary Long has not sent any additional instructions to the commanders of the Iowa and the Machias, believing that too full directions often hamper, instead of facilitate, in such a situation as now exists on the isthmus. He prefers to trust to the officers' own judgment in suiting their actions to the prime purpose of keeping traffic free and American interests fully protected.

In a few days the gunboat Concord will have reached Panama to relieve the Iowa, and the Marietta on the Atlantic side will be at Colon to take the place of the Machias. However, if the present situation continues, all four of these vessels will be held on the isthmus pending further developments.

The importance of the capture of Colon by the Colombian insurgents depends entirely on the ability of the Liberals to hold possession of the town, and especially upon their success in the attack now believed to be under way upon the city of Panama, at the Pacific end of the railroad line, 48 miles distant. The Liberal "revolution" in Colombia began on Oct. 20, 1899, in the department of Santander, and has, therefore, been in full swing for more than two years. It has been conducted in the usual style of Spanish-American uprisings, but there have been two or three encounters between the Liberal insurgents and the forces of the Conservative government which have assumed the proportions of battles.

One of these was a naval engagement which took place on the night of Oct. 24, only a few days after the insurrection started at Los Osbispos, some 300 miles up the Magdalena river. The revolutionists, under the command of General Julio Vengoechea, had seized several river steamers in Barranquilla, and had started up the Magdalena, but were pursued and overtaken by a government force on two vessels under command of General Diego de Castro. A desperate conflict at midnight ensued, during which one of the Liberal boats was sunk with 200 people on board. Three of the remaining boats surrendered, and the other three made for the banks of the river, where most of the troops escaped, including the insurgent general. About the middle of December, 1899, an important land battle took place at La Laja, on the banks of the El Peralonso river, in the department of Santander, in which 24,000 men were engaged, the government troops outnumbering the insurgents by 4000. A short and desperate engagement on this occasion resulted in the complete rout of the government forces.

The insurrection since then has taken the course of similar affairs, numerous engagements between the rival forces being reported, with the advantage now one way and now the other, but apparently with no decided advantage to either side. Battles, attended by terrible slaughter, have been reported, but in all cases the forces engaged and the losses sustained have been grossly exaggerated.

France Is Interested

Paris, Nov. 22.—Considerable attention is being paid here to the landing of the force of American marines at Colon, particularly in view of Secretary Hay's recent speech. The Patrie points out that the United States is perfectly within her treaty rights. France has no ground for complaints and does not intend to interfere, except in the event of her own interests being imperilled by the revolution.

The Journal Des Debates says: The events on the isthmus of Panama furnish the United States government with an opportunity of proving practically to what extent its action is disinterested.

The Francais says: France will give President Roosevelt's government the legitimate confidence it asks for and deserves.

The Liberte, on the other hand, accuses Washington of seeking a pretext to seize the isthmus, and declares that the Americans will now strive their utmost not to release their prey.

MRS BONINE UNMOVED

By Statements of District Attorney In Opening of Trial

Washington Nov. 22.—The trial of Mrs. Lola Ida Bonine, on the charge of killing James S. Ayres, Jr., was fairly launched yesterday. The preliminary presentation of the case on behalf of the government was made by Assistant District Attorney Taggart, and after he had concluded a number of witnesses were heard. Mr. Taggart's statement consisted for the most part of a review of the circumstances connected with the tragedy. Mr. Taggart stated the theory of the prosecution to be that Ayres was murdered by Mrs. Bonine and that she gained admission to his room in the Kenmore hotel through the window, reaching that by means of the fire escape. He attempted to show that she was piqued by his non-attention to her.

Mrs. Bonine was apparently unmoved by his representations. Once or twice during the address she leaned over and spoke to her attorneys. The witnesses of the day did not throw any new light upon the tragedy.

Platt Will Help Low

New York, Nov. 22.—After breakfasting with Senator Platt yesterday Mr. Low was asked many questions about the conference, but his only reply was the following dictated statement: "Senator Platt and I have had a very satisfactory conference. The senator confirmed what he has already said publicly, that neither he nor the organization would embarrass me in any way; that such suggesstions as might be made were to be passed upon by me upon their merits in the light of the problem as a whole with which I have to deal. He added that his single desire was that the administration should be highly successful, and that he proposes to do everything in his power to contribute to that end."

A Long-Winded Document

Washington, Nov. 22.—President Roosevelt has astonished his friends as well as his critics by letting it be known to the members of the cabinet that his first message is going to be the longest on record. A message of 28,000 or 30,000 words coming after several years of effort to make them shorter rather than longer, will be an innovation that is not likely to be popular. Those to whom the president has shown the message declare that he will be very chary of making specific recommendations for legislation of any kind.

Game Warden's Big Haul

St. Joseph, Mich., Nov. 22.—Deputy Game Warden Brewster returned from his hunt on the lake last night, having made the biggest seizure of nets and fish ever reported on the great lakes. He captured 18 miles of new trout nets belonging to the A. Booth company of Chicago, valued at $10,000. Big legal fights it is expected will follow. The nets, it is alleged, were found in Michiganwaters, having been set there contrary to Michigan law and in direct defiance of the game warden and his cruiser.

Printing Offices Crippled

Baltimore, Nov. 22.—Two hundred press feeders and helpers, employed in about 50 of the job printing offices of this city, quit work yesterday. Their number will probably be increased by the pressmen, who will quit work in sympathy with the others. The strikers demanded a work day of 9 hours and an increase of pay averaging $2 a week for each of the workmen.

Smallpox at Buffalo

Buffalo, Nov. 22.—Twenty-two cases of smallpox have developed in this city during the last 10 days. The health department officials are making strenuous efforts to stamp out the disease. All the cases are confined to a section of the east side occupied by Poles. The district is crowded, thereby exposing a large number of persons to infection.

Much-Wanted Murderer Caught

Sioux City, Ia., Nov. 22.—Jack Sully, a noted South Dakota squaw man, who has been accused of seven murders in the last 20 years, is under arrest here. He is charged specifically with having tried to kill Peter Waugh for recovering cattle. Waugh, with Sheriff Taylor, ambushed Sully.

Violated Anti-Trust Law

Dallas, Nov. 22.—The Fort Worth brewery at Austin pleaded guilty yesterday to the charge of having violated the anti-trust law and was fined $5500. The other accused breweries will do the same, but will be fined in proportion to their accrued penalties.

Women Barred From Bar

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 22.—Chief Judge McSherry decided yesterday in the case of Miss Etta Maddox that a woman could not take the examination to be admitted to the bar in Maryland. The court says that there is at present no law authorizing such examination.

ARBITRATORS TAKE A HAND

Each Side to Make Answer Tonight to an Agreement Affecting One Factory, but Having a Direct Bearing on Nearly All the Lynn Shops

Lynn, Mass., Nov. 22.—The big morocco strike in this city, which has been in progress for a week in a number of the factories and affects over 1000 men, appears at least within a measurable distance of settlement.

Only four morocco factories so far are directly affected, but a settlement of the trouble now under consideration will have a direct bearing on all the morocco shops in the city. A plan of settlement was drawn up last night and submitted to the manufacturers and members of the Morocco Workers' union for consideration, the matter of its adoption to be taken up at a meeting this evening.

So far the strike only extends to the staking, beaming and glazing departments of the factories of Thomas A. Kelley & Co., Pevear & Co., the Weber Leather company and A. B. Hoffman, but it is of sufficient intensity to cripple temporarily most of the other departments, so that work has in part been suspended and the factory of Kelley & Co., where nearly 300 hands are employed, has shut down entirely, with the exception of the shipping department.

The trouble began in the Kelley factory, when the management laid off temporarily a number of workmen, which action was resented by the Morocco Workers' union, who ordered out the men in the other departments. The strike spread to the other factories mentioned. The Eastern Kid company was also slightly affected.

The state board of arbitration and conciliation took the matter up and succeeded in bringing the manufacturers and a committee of the Morocco Workers' union together yesterday for a hearing with a view to settlement, the hearing lasting 6½ hours. The matters in dispute were rehearsed in detail, but owing to the large interests involved it was decided to discuss the trouble at the Kelley factory only, with the understanding that a settlement of the trouble there was expected to apply to all the others. Thomas A. Kelley was heard in his own behalf and claimed that the fault was not entirely on his side for the reason that the beamsters had broken their agreement with his firm. The committee of the union was also heard. Waldo L. Pevear, of the firm of Pevear & Co., spoke on the trouble at the Kelley factory, and in favor of the proprietors.

Finally it was decided to enter into an agreement between the Morocco Workers' union and Thomas A. Kelley & Co., to the effect that the men would return to work and that the concern should have the right to discharge and hire its own men, but should not discriminate against members of the union or its committee; also that any matter in dispute should be referred to a temporary committee and in the event of no settlement, that the matter should be referred to the state board of arbitration for final adjustment, with the understanding that no strike was to be ordered in the meantime.

Copies of the agreement were given to the manufacturers present, and also to the union committee, to be considered for 24 hours.

It is by no means certain that a settlement will be reached tonight, but the members of the state board are hoping for the best. Should they be unsuccessful, there is a bare possibility of the strike extending to the other morocco factories in the city.

Student Killed Bosom Friend

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Nov. 22.—Joseph O'Shea, 21 years old, a student at Niagara university, was accidentally shot and killed yesterday by John Carraher, another student. A party of students were shooting at birds when O'Shea stepped in front of the rifle just as it was discharged.. The two men were bosom friends and came here from Ireland to complete their studies for the ministry.

Chamberlain Rekindles Fire

Berlin, Nov. 22.—Fresh offense against Joseph Chamberlain has been taken in Germany over an open letter, reproduced here, in which he alludes to the "so-called agitation in Germany, so evidently artificial and entirely based on misapprehension of my speech," and says that he does not propose to notice it.

Treasury Not Overburdened

Colon, Nov. 22.—Provisional appointments were made by the Liberals yesterday. The treasury safe was opened yesterday afternoon in the presence of witnesses. It was found to contain 1080 Colombian dollars, equivalent to $450 gold. The former postmaster also handed over to the Liberals the cash and the postage stamps in his possession. The municipal offices, in charge of Liberals, will probably be opened today. The city is perfectly quiet.

Frank F. Crane—Four Notices.

Good Afternoon.

The reason assigned by Mr. Bryant, for becoming a candidate for Mayor, is amusing in the extreme, and will not receive serious consideration. He says:

"In the early fall it became evident that the enemies of the Chief Engineer of the department and of the Commissioner of Public Works were hard at work in behalf of certain candidates for Mayor, who it was said, would, if elected, oust Mr. Knowlton and Mr. Williams from their positions. I was appealed to by friends of these two men to allow my name to be used in connection with the nomination for Mayor and in opposition to this scheme. It was my desire to see these two men continue in the service of the city that first brought me into the field as a candidate."

Messrs. Knowlton and Williams have been appointees of Republican Mayors and they might have been of Mayor Jones when elected. Both men have been very efficient department officials, and would have merited reappointment had they not become active and offensive politicians. Should they discover the errors of their way, and give promise of a business administration of city affairs in the future, it is possible their official heads may yet be saved.

It is undoubtedly a fact that the active political work of Commissioner Knowlton, Chief Engineer Williams, City Clerk Cleaves, Assessor Johnson, and city employes in general, did much to injure the cause of Mr. Bryant for the Republican nomination. Their work disgusted the rank and file of the Republican party, and this is the reason they came out so strong for any one but Mr. Bryant.

No good reasons seem to exist why Mr. Bryant should bolt the regular Republican ticket, except for personal gratification, and his principal support is among those who desire city office and city jobs.

It should not be expected, either, that the 300 Democrats and 753 Republicans, who supported Mr. Bryant at the Republican caucuses, will support him at the polls. He was undoubtedly the first choice of about 600 Republicans for the nomination, but now that the Republican convention has unanimously selected Frederick L. Jones as its candidate, he will receive the support of a majority of the Republicans, who voted for Mr. Bryant in the caucuses.

Among these are Ward Five Bryant delegates who voted for Mr. Bryant at the convention.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The ministers are doing their duty when they call attention to the things which injure our city. It is then that the pulpit aids the press, for the press, as a general thing, is always to the fore. It is awake morning, noon and night; there is no intermission. It must make note of all that comes within the name of news, bad news and good news, there must be no discrimination and it must be told truthfully and without embellishment. It is this watchfulness which makes the press alert for the discovery of anything which conflicts with the rule of good order.—Lowell Mail.

☞ We hope that President Roosevelt will deal strictly not only with politicians who are seeking to use influence for army and navy officers, but army and navy officers who use influence with politicians. He will find his task of keeping both elements in their proper places one requiring all his strenuousness, for they are strongly intrenched in the social political life of Washington. Each is inclined to be defiant in its strength. The army and navy lobbies are as plain to be seen as they are persistent, orders and regulations to the contrary notwithstanding. If President Roosevelt "thunders white silence" or any other kind at the aspiring young officers who base their claims for promotion ahead of time or "soft" assignments that should go to veterans in need of rest, on political social pull, on being "dancing men" instead of fighting men, he will confer a favor on the country in general and a long suffering army and navy in particular.—Boston Transcript.

☞ The insensate characteristics of some of the Socialists was most thoroughly revealed at Whitman, recently, and shows one reason, if no others existed, why the party fails to more generally secure the allegiance of the element which it would fain convert. A change was desired in the running of the electric cars, which would effect an improvement in the prevailing system, and it was petitioned for and heartily approved by the Socialists, who are considerable of a factor in that town. The railroad fell in with the idea, and through its attorney presented a plan for the consideration of the Selectmen, but when the Socialists got to talking the matter over, and some of them found the railroad company wanted this, they thought it would be better to oppose it, and they did apparently successfully, the measure getting a decided setback. The opposition came from men who have heretofore championed the plan, but, coming from the officials of the railroad, the Socialists, and their followers felt in duty bound to oppose it on principle. Such perversity as that is not only nonsensical in the extreme, but subversive of public interests. And yet they never tire of decrying "labor fakirs."—Lynn Item.

☞ A woman preacher in Massachusetts recently discoursed on the theme "Popular Sins." In the course of her sermon she said "one of the most popular sins of the day is theatre going." There is nothing very remarkable about this statement, as it is well known that certain people consider theatre going "a sin" and so long as they think so, they are perfectly right in keeping away from theatres themselves and in exhorting others to do so. People have a right to their own opinions on these matters, but hers on theatre going, expressed by the preacher, instead of convincing us of guilt and leading us to forswear the stage forever, simply causes us to reflect upon how swift are the changes in public opinion concerning amusements and indulgences which are allowable, and those which are looked upon as "sins." For example: One does not need to be very aged to easily recall the time when the game of bowling or tenpins was in the sinful list. As a good example of the completeness of the change in public opinion with regard to this game it is necessary simply to state that a bowling alley is now considered one of the first requisites to a well equipped Y. M. C. A. gynasium, and the young man who in these days enters a saloon is regarded in much the same light as that in which he entered a bowling alley was regarded comparatively few years ago.

The game is the same as it was then and rum and molasses have the same effect now as they did then; it is the attitude of the public toward these two means of relaxation which has changed. That the change has been a good one cannot be denied, and the rarity of such outbursts as that of the Massachusetts preacher points to the fact that the theatre, which used to be regarded as about as bad a place as the bowling alley, is now regarded by the majority of sensible people, including preachers, as perfectly legitimate means of amusement.—Manchester (N. H.) Farmer.

A Challenge.

Levi H. Turner, the Democratic Social nominee for Mayor, has sent to Charles M. Bryant, Esq., a challenge to meet him on Tuesday evening next in Music hall, Atlantic, and debate the following proposition:

Resolved,—That the election of the Socialistic candidates will best promote the progress and prosperity of the city of Quincy.

Charles A. French.

Mr. Charles A. French, one of Quincy's well known long residents, passed away at his home on Adams street Thursday night, aged about 74 years. Mr. French has not been in good health for some years. Recently he contracted a cold which turned into bronchitis, which was the cause of his death. He leaves a widow.

To the Public.

Allow me to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I had a very severe cough and cold and feared I would get pneumonia, but after taking the second dose of this medicine I felt better, three bottles of it cured my cold, and the pains in my chest disappeared entirely. I am most respectfully yours for health, Ralph S. Meyers, 64 Thirty-seventh street, Wheeling, W. Va. For sale by all druggists.

TWO MORE FRAUDS.

Blistered Arms Are Not Always Genuine.--Arrests Made.

Quincy continues to be the goal toward which professional beggars make their way, notwithstanding that several of that craft have met their Waterloo here. Thursday two more of the fraternity struck the city and spent the night in the police station. The men gave their names as Charles E. Higgins, 62, and David Walsh, 64. They claimed their home was Maine.

They struck town Thursday morning and proceeded to work the quarry district. The story that they told was that while on the way home from Cuba their vessel was blown up, that they were badly burned about the hands and arms by steam but managed to get away from the wreck on a raft, and after drifting about several days were picked up and landed in Georgia. From there they got passage on a vessel to New York, where they arrived the night before. They said they were trying to raise money enough to take them to Maine.

As a proof of their story they exhibited their burns and to all appearances they had horrible looking arms, apparently they were badly blistered and the skin looked as though it had just commenced to peel off. It was a sight that would appeal to most any one.

However, someone became suspicious and telephoned the police. Officer Barry responded and took the men to the police station. Dr. Welch, the City physician, was called in, and his experienced eye quickly detected the fraud.

Around the arm a piece of cloth had been tightly drawn and covered with a preparation that gave it the appearance of burnt flesh. When this cloth was removed the sound skin was found beneath, and when the bandage was removed from the hands they were also found to be intact.

The two men had $6 in their possession, which they had probably collected in Quincy. They were arraigned in court this morning for begging.

The complaint upon which the two men were arraigned charged them with being tramps. They said they were guilty of begging but were not tramps.

The court found the two men guilty and sent them to the State farm at Bridgewater.

Thayer Protest Allowed.

The protest made by Thayer Academy of the game played with Dedham high Wednesday, Nov. 13, called on account of darkness, was accepted by the committee of the Junior League. The arrangement is that Thayer is to play Dedham on neutral grounds at Charles River Park, Saturday morning, Nov. 23. Should the former win, they again play Dedham and Hyde Park or one of these teams for the championship of this division. Then the winning team will have to play Brighton High, winner of the other division.

Vaccination Advised.

The spread of small pox in Boston has caused some alarm to be felt in Quincy, least the disease should make its appearance here. While the local Board of Health have as yet taken no steps toward compulsory vaccination, they advise all persons who have not been vaccinated within five years to do so at once.

"Last winter an infant child of mine had croup in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist, of Filley, Mo. "I gave her a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and in a short time all danger was past and the child recovered." This remedy not only cures croup but when given as soon as the first symptoms appear, will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

Lutheran Fair.

The three days annual fair under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society of the Swedish Lutheran church opened Thursday evening at Faxon hall with a good attendance. Tables for the sale of various useful and fancy articles are arranged about the hall, and were presided over by the ladies of the society. One of the things that is exciting the greatest interest is a voting contest for second and third class tickets to Europe.

The entertainment on the opening night consisted of music by the Lutheran orchestra, singing by the choir, and an address by Rev. J. A. Bernhard.

Forty Years Married.

Mr. and Mrs. Washington I. Tuckerman, a well known Quincy couple, who have recently moved from Wollaston to East Milton, celebrated their fortieth wedding anniversary Thursday evening, by entertaining a number of their many friends. The evening was passed in a pleasant manner, and Mr. and Mrs. Tuckerman were showered with congratulations and wishes that they might all meet again ten years hence to celebrate their golden wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Tuckerman also received a number of pleasing remembrances.

Battleship Designs.

A Washington dispatch to the Boston Herald of Nov. 21 says: After devoting months of discussion to the question, the construction board has at last arrived at an agreement on the design of the new battleships that Congress is expected to authorize this session, and will submit its report to the secretary of the navy next week.

An entirely unexpected conclusion has been reached and a subject disposed of which will probably not come before the board again for years. The board will decide that the new vessels shall have the plain turrets, and it is understood that both Admiral Bradford and Capt. Sigsbee, who have stood out for the double turrets, will sign the report favorale to the other style.

The speed of the battleships is definitely fixed at 19 knots, which will make them the speediest vessels of their size in any navy. Their horsepower will be 16,500, or more than that of any British battleship, and their displacement will be a little over 16,000 tons or 500 tons larger than any battleship in the world. The vessels, in all respects, as now agreed to, are expected to be by far the largest, swiftest and most formidable battleships yet designed by any nation, and completed will cost something over $5,000,000 each.

Admiral Dewey does not agree that the vessels should be either so heavy or have so much speed. These features, he holds, are not so essential as heavy protection and formidable batteries. The main battery of the new vessels will comprise 12-inch guns as the heaviest, with 7-inch and 6-inch guns on the sides.

Jumped on a Ten Penny Nail.

The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake made of ten-penny nails, and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and a second one half way through. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes later the pain had disappeared and no more suffering was experienced. In three days the child was wearing her shoe as usual and with absolutely no discomfort. Mr. Powell is a well known merchant of Forkland, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and heals such injuries without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. For sale by all druggists.

INVASION OF AMERICA

German Idea of How Our Country Could Be Conquered.

NO ATTEMPT ON THE INTERIOR.

Lieutenant von Edelsheim, an Army Officer, Claims That After American Fleet Had Been Destroyed One Army Corps Would Land at an Unexpected Point and Reduce Us to Terms.

A scheme for the invasion of the United States by a German army has been prepared by Lieutenant von Edelsheim of the general staff of the German army. The author presupposes a victory by the imperial army, and, indeed, would dispatch his army of invasion confidently toward America in the wake of the warships, says the New York Journal. He thinks our regular troops available for defense would amount to not more than 20,000 men, and feels little fear of volunteers or militia because the national guard did not, as a whole, offer its services for the war with Spain, and because they are "badly armed and drilled." The strategist outlines his plan in an essay which he has caused to be published in Berlin.

War against the United States of North America would be carried on under conditions necessarily different from those of a campaign against England.

In recent years we have had several occasions of political difficulties with that nation, for the most part arising out of commercial questions. Until the present time these difficulties have been smoothed over by concessions on our part. But since there is a limit to concessions we may ask what powerful means we can make use of, if need arise, to check the action of the United States against our interests; in other words, to impose our will on them by force.

Now, our first element of power is our navy. It has every prospect of combating with success the naval forces of the United States, dispersed as they are over two oceans. But it is evident, in view of the vast extent of territory and the immense resources of the United States, that a naval defeat would not be decisive.

For the very reason of the great extent of the United States an invasion of the interior is not to be considered seriously, but there would be chances of success in striking blows upon the seacoast and cutting the great arteries of exportation and importation so as to paralyze the industrial and commercial life of the United States, which would oblige that power to accept peace.

If the mobilization of the transport squadron and the corps of invasion began at the moment of departure of our fighting fleet for American waters, it will be admitted that the invading troops might come into action on American soil at the end of about four weeks. The United States are not in a condition to bring into opposition within an equal time an army equal in numbers to our corps of invasion.

Actually the regular army of the United States is on a footing of 65,000 men, but of this number there are not more than 30,000 available for the defense of the mother country. Besides that, there must be deducted from that number at least 10,000 men who cannot be spared from surveillance of the Indian territories and from the maritime defenses.

There remain, then, only 20,000 regular troops for the actual campaign. True, there are besides about 100,000 militia, but in the late war the greater part did not answer the call.

Because of the length of the voyage the transportation of the German troops could not be done by surprise, but still the landing could be accomplished suddenly at an unexpected point of the coast. When we consider that the Americans have no plan of mobilization well worked out in time of peace and take into account also the inexperience and weakness of the regular army of the United States, we may confidently hope that a corps of invasion, operating with suddenness, would have chances of success.

We could not dream, of course, of permanent occupation of any great extent of American territory, which would require an army of too high effectiveness, but it would be feasible to occupy the principal maritime cities.

A series of coast landings, using comparatively small forces, could be applied to this purpose. It would be difficult for the Americans to oppose them with success. Although their excellent system of railways would enable the Americans to concentrate in short time troops at the threatened points on the coast, the invader, by feints of landing now at one point, now at another, could at last attain his end with the co-operation of the naval force.

The corps of invasion could even take the offensive against the enemy's forces while the latter were yet imperfectly concentrated, or he could avoid an attack on their part by reembarking and moving away to land at still another point.

It is well to remark here that Germany is the only great power in position single handed to attack the United States. England in case of war with that nation could only gain success on the sea. She would be powerless to defend Canada, where the Americans could make good their maritime reverses. Finally no other great power than Germany has of her own sufficient transport vessels to undertake such an operation as here described.

NEW SONS OF REVOLUTION

Descendants of Soldiers Who Helped Colonies Organize French Branch.

Colonel Charles Chaille Long, the African explorer, recently secretary and for a time in charge of the United States commission to the Paris exposition, reached New York the other day on the French liner Bretagne with news of what he called a "new exploration." At the instance of several prominent Americans he has obtained from the French archives of 125 years ago the names of 10,000 French officers and soldiers who fought in the American Revolution. Among their descendants he has started a French branch of the Society of Sons of the Revolution.

Colonel Long said to a reporter of the New York Herald of the project: "We hope that this organization will help to bind closer the two sister republics. There has been some reserve in France because it is believed that the America of the present has forgotten the past and is ungrateful.

"General Horace Porter, representing the Sons of the Revolution," he continued, "appointed a commission of four to do the work, and we received every help from the French government. General Andre, the minister of war, and M. Delcasse, minister of foreign affairs, have promised to have the rolls printed in book form in the official publications. We were materially assisted by them and by the minister of marine.

"Those engaged in the work were Henri Merou, French consul at Chicago; Deputy United States Consul MacLean, Major Huntington of our army and myself. We went through thousands of musty files in the Archives Nationales. We were helped by several quartermaster sergeants and ships' writers detailed by the departments of war and marine. It is our hope that the society in France will be enabled to establish reciprocity in matters of family with American genealogists. In the list of those whose descendants have already joined us are the names of Lafayette, Rochambeau, Du Chaffault and De Bersay de Vouste."

Colonel Long, after serving through the civil war in the same Maryland infantry regiment his grandfather, Colonel Pierre Chaille, had commanded in the Revolution, went to Africa as an explorer. He acted as American representative in Alexandria at the time of the siege and was afterward appointed consul to Korea and subsequently secretary of legation there.

MUST EAT HIS STRAW HAT.

Kentuckian Agreed to Do It if Republican Ticket Lost.

Thomas P. Watts, a sanitary plumber of Louisville, is in for a rare treat and must eat his last season's straw hat, says the New York Times. He is game and says he will do it. A hot political debate resulted in the following agreement:

Sept. 25, 1901.

I, Thomas Watts, am at present wearing a straw hat which I propose to eat if the Republican ticket is not elected this fall.

THOMAS P. WATTS.

Witnesses—George W. Hinsler, Herman V. Cohen.

Mr. Hinsler is proprietor of the English kitchen and Mr. Cohen is advertising manager of the Anzeiger. The Republican ticket was unsuccessful, and Mr. Watts is being held to his wager. A banquet is being arranged at the English kitchen for which Mr. Watts must pay, and the menu will be as follows:

SOUP.
Old Straw.
ENTREES.
Fricassee of Straw.
Ragout of Straw.
Straw Hash.
SALAD.
Straw with Pitchfork Dressing.
DESSERT.
Straw Pudding with Old Braid Sauce.
Sulphureted Water.

Mr. Watts is game and says he will eat the hat.

His Brain Ticks Like a Watch.

One of the most peculiar cases ever encountered by the medical profession came up in the police court at Syracuse recently, when a lad was discovered who had a brain which ticked like a watch, says the New York Sun. He is Alex Jenni and is fifteen years old. He has been working on a farm at North Syracuse, his parents being dead. He has been at St. Joseph's hospital, where he was examined by the physicians. By placing the ear close to the head a ticking can be heard. His intellect is not impaired.

The Scotch Born Santa Claus.

There's a Scotch born Santa Claus,
And his fame is great, because
He at any time may come
And hand out a wondrous sum.
Often thousands in a lump
He will on a city dump,
And with millions now and then
He astonishes all men.

By the hundred organs peal
Where the worshipers oft kneel,
And the music's there because
This same Scotch born Santa Claus,
Moved by kindly interest,
Put "O. K." on each request
And would not leave in the lurch
Any organ needing church.

He has strewn with lavish hand
Libraries throughout this land,
And in lands beyond the sea
Proofs of generosity
Can be seen in many a town
Where this Santa has planked down
Cash so all who wish may read
And for books need no more plead.

But the place where more than all
This famed Santa loves to call
Is the town where years were passed
And where fortune was amassed.
Here he reared an institute
That has won worldwide repute,
And a polytechnic school
Soon will show his love can't cool.

He has come again and gone,
Going after he had drawn
From his cash two millions more,
Just as freely as before.
Far and wide spreads his renown,
Great his love for his old town,
And no wonder there's applause
For this Scotch born Santa Claus.
—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Death List of Twenty-Five

Denver, Nov. 22.—Twenty-three bodies have been recovered from the Telluride mine. It is stated by one of the officers of the company that only three or four men are missing and that the total number of the dead will not exceed 25.

Gotham's Votes Are Expensive

New York, Nov. 22.—The pay rolls of the board of elections of greater New York, approved yesterday, showed that the recent city election cost the municipality $60,000, or $1.08 for each voter that was registered.

Thirty Thousand Letters Destroyed

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 22.—In the wreck that occurred on the Sante Fe near The Needles the entire mail carried by both trains was burned. At least 30,000 letters mailed in this city for the east were destroyed.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The request of the Philadelphia chamber of commerce that the Ontario mineral exhibit shown at the Pan-American be handed over to them for exhibition purposes has been refused.

The new president of the Republican Club of Massachusetts will be Curtis Guild, Jr., if the report of the nominating committee is accepted.

Asa Huling, 55 years old, was struck by the boom of a falling derrick at the new school building at Crompton, R. I., receiving injuries that later resulted in his death.

Two explosions of nitro-glycerine at the forcite powder works near Landing, N. J., shook the country for miles around, but no lives were lost nor was anyone injured.

A SUCCESSFUL MAGAZINE.

The December number brings to a close a year that has been remarkable in the history of THE DELINEATOR. It has been preeminent since its foundation as an authority on Fashions, but now it has, in addition, literary and art features of such excellence that it takes rank with the best of the monthly periodicals and is second to none of the magazines devoted to the welfare of the home. Its contents is well worth knowing.

A TURN-DOWN FOR QUAY

Governor Removes Pittsburg's "Mayor" From Office

A GAIN FOR SENATOR FLINN

Who Led the Anti-Quay Forces In the Political Battle In the Keystone State—Governor Denies That He Has Senatorial Aspirations

Harrisburg, Nov. 22.—Governor Stone removed Recorder A. M. Brown of Pittsburg last night and appointed in his place J. O. Brown, ex-director of public safety.

The second class city charter bill passed by the last legislature and known as the "Pittsburg ripper bill" abolished the office of mayor and gave the governor power to appoint a recorder who would be the chief executive officer of the city. The governor at that time appointed A. M. Brown to the office.

In a lengthy statement issued last night addressed to "the people of Pittsburg" the governor gives his reasons for making the present change. He says that he appointed Recorder A. M. Brown, who was under no political obligations to any party or faction; that Brown has removed a large number of office holders against the governor's protest, and that in order to prevent further removals there is nothing for him to do but to remove the present recorder and appoint a man "who will not remove capable and efficient men for political reasons."

The governor denies that he has secured promises that he shall succeed Senator Quay or that he has received the pledges of any persons to support him for United States senator.

The new recorder is a political lieutenant of State Senator Flinn, formerly leader of the anti-Quay Republican organization in Pennsylvania, and is chairman of the Pittsburg Republican city committee. He was dismissed recently by his predecessor from the office of director of public safety. Senator Flinn has since been working to secure the removal of A. M. Brown and the appointment of J. O. Brown as his successor.

Thomas S. Bigelow of Pittsburg, a friend of Senator Quay, was in Harrisburg yesterday to prevail upon the governor not to remove Recorder Brown, but the governor did not see him. Attorney General Elkin said last night that he was not in sympathy with it and does not approve of Recorder Brown's removal, and that the governor has assumed the responsibility and acted in the matter on his own judgment. Mr. Elkin declined to discuss a rumor that he would resign from Governor Stone's cabinet.

Senator Flinn and his friends supported the regular Republican state ticket in the recent campaign and have long co-operated with certain political adherents of Governor Stone in Alleghany county.

New Point by Molineux' Counsel

New York, Nov. 22.—The brief on behalf of Roland B. Molineux, upon the motion to quash the indictment against him and for an inspection of the minutes of the grand jury, was served upon Judge Newburger yesterday by his attorneys. A decision is expected the first week in December. Molineux's counsel raise the new point that the introduction of the Barnet evidence before the grand jury was illegal in that it charged Molineux with having committed forgery as well as murder.

Tansey Is President

Washington, Nov. 22.—At the session of the Textile Workers of America yesterday, the convention completed the new constitution by which the different organizations of textile workers which have been united are to be governed hereafter. The following officers were elected: James Tarsey, Fall River, Mass., president; S. P. Thompson, Columbia, S. C., first vice president; M. J. Connor, Thompsonville, Conn., second vice president, and Albert Hibbert, Dover, N. H., secretary.

Archbishops In Conference

Washington, Nov. 22.—The annual meeting of the archbishops of the Catholic churches in the United States began at the Catholic university yesterday. The only feature of the proceedings formally made public after the day's work had been concluded was that the meeting had adopted resolutions of lament on the assassination of President McKinley and containing an invocation of the benedictions of heaven on his successor's administration.

Bill In Czolgosz Case

Buffalo, Nov. 22.—The expense incurred in the trial and conviction of Czolgosz, the assassin of President McKinley, was $1799.50. Of this sum $500 was paid the attorneys who defended him, $1000 was paid the alienists who examined him, $144 was paid the deputies who guarded him, $36 was paid for pictures taken, and there is a bill of $119.50 for transportation.

Gompers Furnished Bail

San Juan, P. R., Nov. 22.—Santiago Iglesias, the agent of the American Federation of Labor, who was arrested here about a fortnight ago on a charge of conspiracy, has been released in $500 bail. The bail was furnished by Samuel Gompers. Iglesias will be tried Dec. 2.

"Gray & Co." Gathered In

New York, Nov. 22.—Robert W. Wright and H. B. Mugereitchyan, brokers, and B. Mugereitchyan, their office boy, were arrested by detectives yesterday for conducting an alleged "bucket shop" under the name of A. Gray & Co. at 20 Park Place.

MARINES AND TROOPS

Required to Prevent Disorder Arising From Religious Demonstrations

Athens, Nov. 22.—The agitation against the proposal to translate the gospels in modern Greek was continued yesterday. Twenty thousand persons took part in a demonstration organized by the students. A resolution was adopted upon the Holy Synod to excommunicate any person who translated the gospels into Greek as now spoken. Eight hundred marines were landed and co-operated with the troops in patrolling the locality. Several collisions occurred and occasional shots were fired. The students still hold the university buildings.

During the demonstration following the assemblage several shots were fired at M. Thectokis, the Greek premier, but without effect.

During the encounters between the military and the turbulent demonstrators, seven persons were killed, 30 were severely and many others were slightly wounded.

Great excitement prevails. Strong military detachments guard the palace and the residence of the premier. Everywhere anxious groups are discussing the situation. Heart-rending scenes occurred when the bodies of the dead were handed over to their relatives.

It is rumored that armed men have arrived at the university, but the building is still guarded by the students, who are adopting military discipline.

Opposition deputies paraded the streets, exciting the rioters by violent language.

The commander of the gendarmerie and the prefect of police have resigned. General Vassos has been placed in command of the armed forces.

What Tim Will Tell Teddy

Brooklyn, Nov. 22.—The Republican leaders in Brooklyn are all deeply interested over the choice of Postmaster Wilson's successor, and they will be greatly disappointed if George H. Roberts, Jr., is not the man. The interest in the controversy was increased upon the announcement that President Roosevelt had been in conference with Lieutenant Governor Woodruff and former Mayor Schieren in reference to the postmastership. Mr. Woodruff says: "The Republican organization of Kings county is unanimously behind Mr. Roberts and will have no other candidate for the office of postmaster. I shall tell the president this in language that cannot be misunderstood. If the president declines to take the organization candidate, he will, I think, regret it."

To Keep Out Chinese

San Francisco, Nov. 22.—About 1500 delegates from all parts of the state have assembled in this city to inaugurate a movement in favor of the reenactment by congress of the present Chinese exclusion law, which will expire next May. Ex-Congressman Geary, the author of the present restriction act, is chairman of the convention. Yesterday was consumed in perfecting the organization.

Has Done Good Work

Washington, Nov. 22.—General Bufington, chief of the bureau of ordnance, retired today, having reached the age limit. General Bufflington became chief of the bureau in 1899 and during his incumbency many improvements have been made in this branch of the service.

Cost Saloon Keeper $1800

Sioux Falls, S. D., Nov. 22.—A jury awarded Mary Garrigan a verdict for $1800 damages yesterday against Samuel Kennedy, saloon keeper, for selling her husband liquor. Garrigan became intoxicated on liquor bought of Kennedy and committed suicide afterward.

Hitch Over Unionism

Knoxville, Nov. 22.—A special from Coal Creek says 100 miners employed by the Knoxville Iron company struck yesterday. It is said the men declare that some of their number were discharged because they joined a mine workers' union recently organized.

Jockey Narrowly Escaped Death

Washington, Nov. 22.—At Bennings yesterday, in the jumping race, Jockey Brazil, on Salesman, had an almost miraculous escape from being killed. While the horse was taking one of the jumps he fell, breaking his neck and rolling over on his rider.

SEVEN TO ONE

From reports received we figure that one bottle of Scott's Emulsion sometimes builds seven times its weight of solid, healthy flesh! Why is this so?

Because Scott's Emulsion is itself the richest and most digestible of foods.

Because Scott's Emulsion gives strong appetite.

Because Scott's Emulsion makes all good food do good—strong stomach—strong digestion.

Because Scott's Emulsion wakes up the dormant system—new life to the tissues—so that the body uses it's food for bone making and flesh building.

We'll send you a little to try if you like.

RECEIVER'S GOOD WORK

Depositors In Failed Globe Bank Will Be Paid In Full

Boston, Nov. 22.—An important step toward the settlement of the Globe bank affairs was accomplished yesterday, when six directors of the bank paid over to Receiver Wing $240,000 in cash in full settlement of the claims that the bank held against them.

This payment is the result of long negotiations and patient work on the part of Mr. Wing and others associated with him in the settlement of the bank's affairs, and it is counted very satisfactory. It will place Mr. Wing in a position to pay another dividend of 10 percent at an early date. Such a dividend will call for $250,000, but the cash assets already on hand, together with the $240,000 just paid in, will give him ample funds for the purpose.

This 10 percent will make a total of 90 percent already paid in and there is in sight sufficient assets which, as soon as they can be realized on, as they are likely to be at an early date, will yield sufficient to pay the depositors in full and give the stockholders a substantial dividend as well.

Handicapped by Bad Weather

Boston, Nov. 22.—After a long and tempestuous passage the Boston brig Sullivan, Captain Allen, from Cienfeugos, Cuba, arrived at this port. She was 46 days making the passage. The vessel was north of Cape Hatteras 24 days, being unable to make headway on account of adverse weather. She lost her maintopmast staysail and flying jib. The cargo of molasses was injured. Last Sunday the vessel was in the vicinity of Halifax, having been blown thither by the gale of the previous day. The brig then headed for this port.

Reservoir at Low Ebb

Lexington, Mass., Nov. 22.—The water in the Lexington reservoir is at a very low ebb and unless the strictest economy is displayed the town will be without water for fire or domestic purposes. Soundings were taken Sunday and the average depth of water in the reservoir was found to be less than two feet, and since that time there has been a steady decrease.

Thousands of Cars Stalled

New Haven, Nov. 22.—Thousands of freight cars are stalled in the yards here as a result of the strike of the switchmen and brakemen. About every available foot of track is occupied, but there are no switch crews to move the trains. Passenger trains are moving, but it is feared that much perishable freight will be destroyed.

Happiness at Williams College

Williamstown, Mass., Nov. 22.—With song and speech and college yell, amid light of transparencies and fireworks, the winning of the football championship of the Tri-Collegiate League was celebrated by the students of Williams college here last night. This is the first football championship the college has won for 10 years.

Hab's Big Voting List

Boston, Nov. 22.—When registration for the city election closed in this city the top notch had been reached, there being on the voting lists the names of 110,431 men and 15,562 women who are entitled to vote on Dec. 10. This year's registration is the largest by several thousands in the history of the city.

Gift of Nearly $100,000

Boston, Nov. 22.—Through the generosity of a Boston man and Harvard graduate whose name is withheld from the public for the present, Harvard college is soon to have another building added to its collection. The new structure as now planned will require an outlay of nearly $100,000.

Clergyman Struck by Train

Haverhill, Mass., Nov. 22.—Rev. Joseph Ograbourg, a French priest living in Salem, was struck by an express train here last night, as he was crossing the tracks. The train hurled him against an iron post, injuring him severely. He was taken to a hospital.

Railroad Responsible For Death

Hollis, Me., Nov. 22.—The coroner's jury which was formed to investigate the death of Clarence E. Vittum, who was killed by a train on the Boston and Maine railroad here on Nov. 12, yesterday returned a verdict holding the railroad responsible for his death.

Smallpox Keeps on Spreading

Boston, Nov. 22.—With the coming of the cold weather the cases of smallpox reported to the board of health are getting more numerous and the unusually large number of 17 were given out by the commissioners yesterday.

Alleged Green Goods Dealers

New York, Nov. 22.—John R. Bertholf, manager of the eastern division of the Western Union in Jersey City, was arrested yesterday on the charge that he has been carrying on a "green goods" business. Isaac Kershaw, a telegraph operator, was also arrested on a charge similar to that preferred against the manager. Bail was fixed at $1000 in each case.

Labor Conflict Imminent

Paris, Nov. 22.—The situation in the mining centres of France is again approaching a climax. The next day or two will see a definitive decision upon the question of a general strike. Thus far compplete order prevails, but an imposing force of gendarmes, infantry and cavalry has been billeted in every coal field to cope with any disorder.

Brigands May Come to Terms

Sofia, Nov. 22.—Mr. Dickinson, the diplomatic agent here of the United States, will leave tomorrow for Constantinople. The departure of Mr. Dickinson will probably have a good effect upon the brigands who have Miss Stone in their possession, because they may fear to lose everything by not accepting Dickinson's proposals.

SOME FOOLISH PEOPLE

Allow a cough to run until it gets beyond the reach of medicine. They often say, "Oh, it will wear away," but in most cases it will wear them away. Could they be induced to try the successful medicine called Kemp's Balsam, which is sold on a positive guarantee to cure, they would immediately see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Price 25c. and 50c. Trial size free. At all druggists.

McManus

"KNOWN QUALITY"

OVERCOATS

BUILT TO WEAR.

When you buy an overcoat—no matter at what price—you must decide whether it was made to wear, or to sell. Every exclusive style and high-grade overcoat shown by us is copied in cheap workmanship and shoddy goods by other stores. They look alike—the only difference is one is made TO WEAR, the other TO SELL. There are so many secrets in the manufacture of cloth and tailoring that do not appear on the surface, that one must depend on the honesty and truthfulness of the merchant for protection. The name "McManus" has the reputation of a quarter of a century of reliable goods and fair prices behind it. True economy is found in purchasing Known Quality clothing of a reputable dealer at a price that you know enables the dealer to make a legitimate profit—you receive a legitimate value for your money—when you can't see the profit, you can't find the value. You won't need any spectacles to see these values.

That Overcoat at $15.

A long loose-back overcoat in a dressy dark Oxford Vicuna, also in a fine new gray mixed Worsted and invisible plaids, made with slash or Crescent pockets, with or without yoke with broad shapely shoulders—an excellent assortment at the popular price. $15

Men's Finest Overcoats of the finest foreign and American fabrics, the linings and findings of the most dependable qualities. The patterns are exclusive. Every garment is hand finished, $30, $28 and $25

Stylish Overcoats, made of all-wood Oxford and Cambridge gray Frieze and Vicunas; also all-wool black, blue and Oxford mixed Kerseys, in regular and box style, at $10, $12.50

Some very handsome styles of fine Oxford Vicunas and the new olive and brown mixtures—new designs that have never been shown until this season—custom tailors will charge you $35 to $45 for the same kind of a garment; our price $18 and $20

Other Overcoats for men in the different lengths—short, medium and long coats as low as $7.50, and from that up to $25

It's not much trouble to pick out an Overcoat from our stock, as we show over 75 varieties from half a dozen of the leading wholesale tailors of America, whose goods you see so extensively advertised in the leading magazines. If you need one buy now while you have a large and complete variety to select from.

QUINCY'S MAYORALTY IN ANOTHER LIGHT.

President Jameson of Republican City Committee in Answer to Mr. Bryant.

Candidate Jones a Gentleman of Ability---Competent and Clean, and Not a Politician.

Edward E. Jameson, president of the Republican City Committee of Quincy, in an interview yesterday, said:

"In reference to the mayoralty contest in Quincy, regarding which The Herald publishes a statement purporting to have come from Mr. Bryant, in which he states his reasons for accepting the citizens' nomination, I would say that it would seem evident from his statement that there was a general uprising among the citizens of Quincy, a concerted effort made, to oust Mr. Knowlton, Commissioner of Public works, and Mr. Williams, chief of the fire department. I am very sure that such is not the case. There may be some objection to the two gentlemen above mentioned among a number of people; any man holding a public position may expect to be criticised, and they should expect criticism.

"It would seem from Mr. Bryant's statement that the only reason he wishes to be mayor of the city of Quincy is to continue in service the heads of the two departments above mentioned. I am quite certain, judging from statements made directly by Mr. Packard and Mr. Jones previously to the caucuses, that neither of these gentlemen has stated to any one that he would or would not reappoint Mr. Knowlton and Mr. Williams.

"It would seem very strange, indeed, if the decision of the people of the city of Quincy in reference to its chief executive should rest upon the question whether or not he would reappoint Mr. Knowlton or Mr. Williams as chief of his departments. It has been the aim of most of the people interested in the welfare of the city of Quincy to keep the various departments out of politics, and also to keep politics out of the various departments, and the course pursued this year before the caucuses, by both Mr. Williams and Mr. Knowlton, has been such as to make the situation even to their friends. I do not question for a moment the ability of either Mr. Knowlton or Mr. Williams, but if they wish to place their departments on the proper basis and get the best results possible, one of the first things to be done should be to keep out of active politics themselves.

"In the past few years these two departments have been bones of contention in the campaigns, and I think the Republicans of the city of Quincy should have confidence enough in any man who has received the nomination of the Republican convention to believe that he will appoint such men as in his judgment are best for the positions. I do not believe that any man who would receive the Republican nomination would refuse to reappoint the two gentlemen above mentioned if they were superior to others available for the positions.

"I repeat that the stories circulated in reference to Mr. Jones, Mr. Packard and myself, intending to oust Mr. Williams and Mr. Knowlton, are false.

"The fight in the caucuses was distinctively a Bryant and anti-Bryant fight, and the returns show that Mr. Bryant was not the popular choice of the Republican party. In reference to the so-called secret convention of the Packard, Jones and Jameson delegates, I would say that it was perfectly fair for them to meet in conference before the convention and settle the matter as to which of the three should receive the unanimous support of the 28 delegates, which 28 delegates were elected by the anti-Bryant vote, and there was no misunderstanding as to this point. Mr. Bryant took his chances in the caucuses, and carried three wards, which gave him 23 delegates. It is generally reported and without denial, that the 23 Bryant delegates had several meetings before the convention, one of which was held at the Essex House in Boston; therefore, the very thing the Bryant people are howling against so loudly they have been doing themselves. I see no reason why they did not have a perfect right to hold as many meetings as they chose and certainly the anti-Bryant delegates had

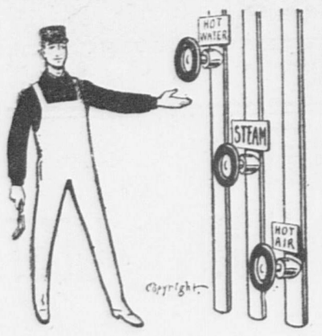

THE SAME RIGHT.

"As to the final method of deciding which one of the three, Mr. Jones, Mr. Packard, or Mr. Jameson, should receive the votes of the 28 delegates, this has absolutly nothing whatever to do with the matter, as far as others are concerned. The 28 delegates were unanimous as to the method by which it was to be decided, and Mr. Jones Mr. Packard and Mr. Jameson were satisfied and so expressed themselves at the time. The result was that Mr. Jones received 28 votes in the convention, which was more than sufficient to nominate him; the convention made his nomination unanimous, and Mr. Jones stands before the people as the unanimous choice of the Republican convention.

"Mr. Bryant stands in the position of a defeated candidate, and by his actions since the convention he has shown that he is not willing to abide by the verdict of the convention, and stand up and take his medicine."

"Mr. Jones is a gentleman of ability, fully competent to fill the position for which he has been nominated. He is a clean, honest, straightforward man, not a politican; is engaged in business in the city of Quincy; is familiar with city affairs, having had experience in them; is highly respected by all, conscientious, energetic, of an excellent reputation morally, and, all in all, a man who would administer the affairs of the city in a thoroughly satisfactory manner, as much so as it is possible for any man to do. Mr. Jones would certainly, judging from his past reputation, conduct the affairs of the city, as to finances in an able and economical manner, consistent with good results and progress. On the license question he would see that the laws relating to the sale of liquor were rigidly enforced, so far as it might lie in the power of any man to do so."

Panama Canal People Protest Against Commission's Report

WHOLE THING IS "LOADED"

Declaration That $180,000,000 Is Far Too Low a Figure For Construction of Nicaraguan Canal—Points In the Minority Report

Washington, Nov. 23.—Upon the publication in a New York newspaper of what was obviously a condensation of the forthcoming report of the isthmian canal commission, Maurice Hutin, president of the Panama Canal company, called on Admiral Walker to protest against the interpretation of his offer which the commission there makes.

The figures named—$109,141,000—Mr. Hutin says that he not only never submitted but never thought of. A gentleman representing the French company and in close touch with the proceedings, said yesterday afternoon:

"When Mr. Hutin was here in May he proposed an arbitration over our canal and was given to understand that this would be a satisfactory proposal for the commission to submit in its final report; when he gets here now he finds an altogether different opinion. The whole thing has been loaded against us. We remonstrated against Admiral Walker's being appointed at the head of the commission when it was organized, as we understand that he was committed to the Nicaragua route which he himself had investigated so shortly before. We have been played football with from the start, and we should expect nothing different were we now to go before the president or congress with a new and more definite proposal.

"The commission talks about public opinion in this country, as if that had anything to do with the number of cubic metres of excavation by the two routes, and to that public opinion the commission has evidently found a way to yield. Representative Sherman of New York was quoted the other day as saying that he would not give a cent for the Panama route and our property there, and when you have public men so ill-informed as that, what can you expect of this American public opinion that we hear so much about as determining the relative feasibility of the two routes?

"While we have not given up hope of merging our interests with those of the United States by selling our canal, in any event we confidently rest in the assurance of two things: That the United States will not be foolish enough to build on the Nicaragua route, with the colossal expense which it would involve, and secondly that, with God's help we shall find a way of completing the Panama canal ourselves. All this is understood in Paris. We know there that the estimate of $189,000,000 for building the Nicaraguan canal is pure bluff. It would cost $400,000,000 to build a canal through which ships could go without getting stuck in the mud. The United States will come around to a commonsense view of this thing eventually, but perhaps at some cost."

Nothing is known here to lead one to suppose that the failure to get a definite and reasonable proposition from the French company was due to any prejudice against it by our commission. Neither is there any reason to discredit the estimates of our engineers as to the cost of the two routes.

A New York newspaper yesterday printed parts of the report of George S. Morison of the canal commission, dissenting from his colleagues and favoring the Panama route. He says:

The Panama route has advantages over the Nicaragua route in cost of construction, in cost of operation and in convenience, when done, while its use is less likely to lead to local international complications.

The preliminary engineering has been done at Panama, and the general contingencies have been reduced to a minimum. If 20 percent is added to the estimates to cover "engineering, police, sanitation and general contingencies" at Panama, at least 25 percent, and probably 30 should be added at Nicaragua, the former figure raising the estimate for the Nicaragua route to $201,000,000.

The excavation of the Panama canal has been opened for nearly its entire length, and the character of the material to be removed can be examined in position. At Panama there are fair harbors at both ends fully adaquate for all demands during construction and connected by a railroad in high condition, the country is settled and many of the necessary accommodations for a large working force are there.

Mr. Morison then suggests some changes in the existing plans for the Panama canal and with these effected, estimates the cost of completion at $134,000,000, $67,000,000 less than that of the Nicaraguan canal. He finally notes that a Panama canal would be like a boundary strait between North and South America, easily policed and guarded, with no call to acquire territory beyond the limits of the immediate concession.

To Meet Campaign Expenses

Tokio, Nov. 23.—The Japanese finance minister has arranged to sell Chinese indemnity bonds of the face value of $25,000,000 to the Postal Savings bank at 80, to meet the expenses of the Boxer campaign and toward the reduction of the national debt.

Vacation on the Water

Washington, Nov. 23.—President and Mrs. Roosevelt, accompanied by the children, left here yesterday afternoon on the yacht Sylph for a brief cruise down the Potomac. The president and his family will be gone a day or two.

WIDOW HOLDS BRIDGE

Railway Passengers Cannot Use It Unless Company Comes to Terms

Lynn, Mass., Nov. 23.—Mrs. Ellen Moore, widow, took up the role for which Horatius of old became famous, yesterday, by holding a bridge against all comers because she had trouble with a railway company. She was in a defiant mood and caused much inconvenience to people who were returning home from work, and tied up traffic on the Boston and Northern street railway.

The Boston and Maine railroad has been repairing a road bridge in Swampscott, just over the Lynn line, over which are the tracks of the Boston and Northern road. The bridge being impassable for cars, passengers had to walk, and to make their passage from one side of the bridge to the other perfectly secure the steam railway had constructed a temporary footbridge. This bridge went over land belonging to Mrs. Moore, and her compensation had been left by the Boston and Maine road to the street railway company, for the reason that the latter's passengers were being accommodated. Mrs. Moore and the street railway have had friction over the money to be paid for the use of the land. The road, it is understood, settled for $10. Mrs. Moore says she hasn't received $10, and, besides, she thinks the accommodation is worth more than a $10 bill.

Yesterday noon, Mrs. Moore and her daughter swooped down on the footbridge and with sundry lengths of joist blocked the entrances. Then, like Horatius, she guarded the bridge against all comers. Last night, when the electric cars stopped at the entrance to the footbridge, the passengers found Mrs. Moore, her daughter and a young man on guard. They could not get by and were forced to scramble down the steep bank of the Boston and Maine railroad, cross the tracks and then climb up the opposite bank. The result was the electrics were so delayed in returning that for half an hour traffic was practically at a standstill. Mrs. Moore is still on guard.

Union to Consider Agreement

Lynn, Mass., Nov. 23.—The strike among the morocco workers of four factories looked near a settlement last night after the state board of arbitration and conciliation had been in conference with representatives of the Glazers' union and of the manufacturers. The settlement actually hinges on the agreement the strikers have made with Thomas H. Kelly & Co. This agreement will be referred to the union tonight. Mr. Kelly can hire or discharge men, but he cannot discriminate against union men. The men, on the other hand, will not attempt to strike the shop. It is thought the union will adopt its committee's suggestions.

Drop In Harvard Stock

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 23.—Confidence in the prospects of the Harvard team in its game with Yale today was shaken last night by the announcement that the athletic committee would meet today to definitely pass upon the status of Cutts. This came as a surprise, as Harvard men had no knowledge of any evidence submitted by Yale or anyone else upon which to base the question of Cutts' ineligibility. Cutts' substitute is Dick Lawrence, whose form is far below that of Cutts.

Looks Bad For Lambert

Dover, Me., Nov. 23.—Testimony in the case of Henry Lambrt, charged with the murder of the Allen family, was given yesterday by Timothy F. Hartnett, who related conversations had with Lambert in the Dover jail in which the latter practically admitted that he was in the Allen house when the murders occurred. When Hartnett finished his story he was subjected to a most rigid cross-examination which was not completed when the court adfourned.

Generous Railway Company

Lexington, Mass., Nov. 23.—The impending drought in Lexington's water supply has been averted through the action of the Lexington and Boston street railway company, in offering to have its own water supply from driven wells turned into the town mains. The offer was immediately accepted. The service and water are given free. The water gauge on the town's supply yesterday registered only four pounds pressure.

No Agreement Reached

New Haven, Nov. 23.—A committee from the striking switchmen at Harlem river arrived in this city last night for a conference with Vice President Merrill of the N. Y., N. H. and H. company. The men were closeted with Mr. Merrill for an hour and a half, during which time the situation was carefully gone over, but no agreement was reached.

Proposed Consolidation Approved

Boston, Nov. 23.—At a meeting of the directors of the National Shawmut bank yesterday, it was voted to recommend to stockholders acceptance of proposition to consolidate with the Third National bank and to increase the capital stock by $50,000 to $3,500,000.

Autos Supplant Stage Coaches

Hartford, Nov. 23.—The Woodbury Mobile Transit company has been organized for the purpose of operating a line of automobile stages in several country towns in western Connecticut. The automobiles will supplant the old-fashioned stage coaches.

Iglesias Will Get Fair Show

Washington, Nov. 23.—Governor Hunt of Porto Rico and Samuel Gompers had a talk with the president yesterday about the case of Santiago Iglesias, the representative of the Federation of Labor recently arrested on his arrival at San Juan on the charge of having conspired to raise wages. Gompers was assured that Iglesias would have a fair trial and that all his rights would be protected.

THE TURKEY'S DOWNFALL.

THERE'S a melancholy gobble from the coop
Where the turkey is now forced to humbly stoop,
And the feathers oft uplifted
By the bird that seemed so gifted
On the floor of his small prison sadly droop.

An appealing look is noticed in his eye
As he meekly gazes at each passerby.
Little time he spends in pecking,
For he's often rubbernecking,
Vainly hoping that some rescuer is nigh.

Now and then he stands with eyelids tightly closed,
But the turkey isn't sleeping, as supposed,
For instead of calmly snoozing
He most mournfully is musing
O'er his downfall since upon the roost he dozed.

And he thinks of how he used to strut about,
With his tail and other feathers all spread out,
But he now is sorely humbled,
For from heights of pride he tumbled,
And no more he'll see the drakes and roosters pout.

'Tis a change that he must sadly contemplate
From a barnyard to a coop so low and straight;
In his prison he is quaking,
And with dread he's often shaking
As he thinks of his approaching cruel fate.

This once haughty bird is in a woeful plight,
And it's useless now to think of stealthy flight,
For the weapon of destruction
Has been whetted for the ruction,
And the humbled turkey's finish is in sight.

A THANKSGIVING MENU.

That the Good Housewife May Modify or Elaborate.

Raw Oysters.
Cream of Cauliflower Soup.
Creamed Lobster. Hot Crackers.
Roast Turkey, Cranberry Sauce.
Potatoes a la Duchesse. Spinach.
Broiled Quail. Celery.
Sweet Potato Croquettes.
Lettuce Salad with Mayonnaise.
Cheese. Crackers. Olives.
Pumpkin Pie.
Fruit.
Coffee.

A plain but very substantial and satisfactory dinner may be arranged according to this menu:

Chicken Soup.
Roast Turkey without Stuffing, Jelly Sauce.
Boiled Sweet Potatoes. Slaw.
Chicken Salad. Celery and Grated Cheese.
Hot Crisped Crackers.
Pumpkin Pie. Fresh Fruit.
Coffee.

Turkey without stuffing is an innovation slow to win the approval of conservative housewives, but it is claimed by the best authorities on cookery that turkey, like game, should never be stuffed if its finest flavor is to be preserved. Dress as usual and place a large spoonful of butter upon the breast. Put in a very hot oven for thirty minutes that the outside may sear over at once and retain the juice. Diminish the heat and baste often with the butter and fat that cooks from the fowl, allowing twenty minutes' cooking to each pound of turkey, not counting the first half hour. Should it be necessary to turn the turkey while cooking use a towel. Never stick it with a fork or allow the juice to escape. Sprinkle with salt when nearly done.

For the gravy put the gizzard, heart and liver on the fire in a quart of water and cook until tender; then remove and chop finely. When the turkey is done, remove it to the serving dish, pour all but a tablespoonful of fat from the pan, add a tablespoonful of flour and cook for three minutes; then add the water in which the giblets were cooked, of which there should be a pint. If less, add water, stir until smooth and add the chopped giblets. Serve in a gravy boat.

What the Wishbone Said.

I cannot, cannot thankful be;
Don't ask me to, I beg.
Thanksgiving never comes but, see,
Some fellow pulls my leg!

THANKSGIVING DINNER.

How the Good Housewife Prepared It In Olden Times.

Thanksgiving dinner in the olden times made unusual demands even upon the most efficient housewife, and the serving of a dinner to a family party of from twenty-five to fifty persons in a large kitchen of the old fashioned farmhouse was no light task for the mistress. But the result was worth all the trouble entailed in the getting up of such a dinner, and the recollection of the roast turkey, chicken pie, baked Indian and rice puddings, pumpkin and mince pies baked in the old fashioned brick oven, with the other accessories of the Thanksgiving dinner, has proved powerful enough to bring back year after year to such a homestead the sons and daughters, the grandchildren, the aunts, uncles and cousins who had gone forth from it to enter into the larger life of the great cities. The brick oven has practically disappeared, but the culinary skill of the New England housewife has not, and Thanksgiving dinner is much the same as of old. Even city folks who prefer a course dinner 364 days in the year really welcome a return on Thanksgiving to the older style of serving dinner, and it is this way which generally prevails on this day.

When He's Wanted.

The man who sharpens knives comes by,
Week in, week out, with doleful cry,
But when Thanksgiving day is near
No one e'er knew him to appear.

A Day of Reunions.

Thanksgiving is a great day for family reunions and great dinners, where roast turkey, pumpkin pie and the like are always to be expected. Boys and girls anticipate the coming and welcome it with delight, for who in all the wide world has more to be thankful for than have the young folks of America?

President Lincoln and Thanksgiving.

It was President Lincoln who restored Thanksgiving day. In 1863 the regular Thanksgiving custom began, and the last Thursday in November has since been one of our national holidays.

BY RUSHING POSTS

Conspirators Thought They Could Take Possession of Yukon Country.

Montreal, Nov. 23.—That there was a plot to stir up trouble in the Yukon is officially confirmed by the Canadian government. The story of the plot, based upon official reports to the minister of the interior, is as follows:

About three weeks ago the police at Dawson, under the able direction of Superintendent Woods, shadowed a man whom they deemed a suspicious character. He finally disclosed a plot which he said had been formed by people at Skagway and Seattle. The idea was to rush the posts in the lower part of the Yukon and then take possession of the country. The conspirators reckoned upon the American citizens in the Yukon not assisting the Canadian authorities.

News of the plot was quickly sent from Dawson to White Horse and the police there placed under surveillance all suspicious persons. The headquarters of the conspiracy was located at Skagway and it was ascertained who the characters associated with it were and where the papers bearing upon the plot were kept. There was nothing, however, to show any overt act of treason to the United States or Canada, consequently the authorities could not take any proceedings. Canadian officers went down to Skagway and consulted with the United States officers and concerted action was agreed upon in case of necessity. The parties connected with the plot are closely watched meantime. The government officials say 10 respectable Americans were in the plot. Every precaution has been taken and the government has confidence in the police officers.

Eight Lives Probably Sacrificed

Bluefield, W. Va., Nov. 23.—At 11 o'clock yesterday morning a party of eight officials entered the west main of the southwest Virginia Improvement company's collieries for the purpose of examining the true situation in regard to the recent explosion and fire in the Baby mine and they have not since been heard from. At 6 p. m. a party consisting of experienced miners entered the mine to rescue the lost party, but at 6:45 they returned, having encountered such quantities of black damp to make it impossible to enter any distance into the mine. All efforts are being used to rescue the inspecting party, but no hopes are entertained that any of them will be recovered alive.

Governor Accused of Falsehood

Pittsburg, Nov. 23.—Speaking of his removal from office by Governor Stone, Recorder Brown said: "The charges against me contained in the statement of Governor Stone's are unqualifiedly false. Letters in my possession show this. The specific charge is made that I have repeatedly violated the new charter by the removal of men from office for political reasons. That charge of the governor's is without the slightest foundation in truth."

Castro Has His Eyes Open

Caracas, Nov. 23.—President Castro, believeing that a conspiracy to overthrow him existed, caused the arrest yesterday at Puerto Cabello of Ramon Guerra, the minister of war. The president also brought about the arrest at Caracas of a number of partisans of Ramon Guerra, among them being Montauban, who claims to be a French citizen. The arrests have caused a great sensation.

Grover Cleveland Is Sick

Trenton, Nov. 23.—Reports come from Princeton to the effect that ex-President Grover Cleveland is ill at his home at that place. Mr. Cleveland recently returned from a gunning trip and was taken ill with a chill and threatened with pneumonia. Inquiry at his home last night elicited the information that he is very much improved. Mr. Cleveland's condition is not understood to be dangerous.

Chamberlain's Friends Worried

London, Nov. 23.—The friends of Joseph Chamberlain are concerned as to his health. Yesterday Mr. Chamberlain wrote the Handsworth school, declining to distribute prizes at that institution because, as he said: "It is absolutely necessary for me to confine my strength to public work."

Friendly Pats From Spectator

London, Nov. 23.—The Spectator today aproves the canal treaty, and in another article on Secretary Hay's foreign policy the paper says: No country in the world can show two greater or worthier statesmen than President Roosevelt and Secretary Hay.

Responsibility Not Yet Placed

Telluride, Col., Nov. 23.—The work of recovering the bodies of the victims of the disaster in the Smuggler-Union mine progresses slowly. The death list numbers 25. The responsibility for the disaster has not yet been fixed.

Chinamen to Be Deported

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Nov. 23.—Judge Coxe has affirmed 13 of the orders for the deportation of Chinese arrested for unlawfully entering the country. Eighty-three Chinamen are now awaiting a hearing.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Joe Gans knocked out Billy Moore in the third round of what was to have been a 20-round bout at Baltimore. Moore seemed to be scared when he went into the ring and the fight was all Gans' way.

The dual gun shoot between Princeton and the University of Pennsylvania was won by Princeton by a score of 238 to 217.

Benjamin J. Lord, known over a wide territory as a coon and deer hunter, shot himself at Berwick, Me. He had been acting strangely for some time.

A spark from a machine in the shoddy factory of Henry Davis & Sons, Providence, resulted in a fire which did about $10,000 damage.

Well Preserved

Women often astonish new acquaintances, who are introduced to a large family of strong boys and healthy girls, who call this young looking woman mother. It is popularly supposed that maternity is the foe of beauty, and the worn and faded face of many a mother seems to warrant the belief. But it is hard to believe that nature should compel a woman to sacrifice the rightful dower of her beauty in order to carry out a natural function of her being. And nature does not. The pains and sufferings incident to motherhood are, to a large extent, unnatural. This is proved by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which prevents and cures nausea, tranquilizes the nerves, encourages the appetite, induces refreshing sleep, and makes the baby's advent practically painless.

Mrs. Orrin Stiles, of Downing, Dunn Co., Wis., writes: "I have been intending to write to you ever since my baby was born in regard to what your 'Favorite Prescription' has done for me. I cannot praise it enough, for I have not been as well for five years as I am now. In July last I had a baby boy, weight 11 lbs., and I was only sick a short time, and since I got up have not had one sick day. I have not had any uterine trouble since I got up. I was not only surprised myself but all my friends here are surprised to see me so well."

"Favorite Prescription" has the testimony of thousands of women to its complete cure of womanly diseases. Do not accept an unknown and unproved substitute in its place.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets clear the complexion and sweeten the breath.

THE HARVEST HOME.

THANKSGIVING IN OLD ENGLAND IN THE LONG AGO.

Bringing Home the Last Load of Grain—Songs and Pranks of the Harvesters—Old Scottish Customs. The Harvest Queen.

In the old simple days of England, before the natural feelings of the people had been checked and chilled off by Puritanism in the first place and what may be called gross commercialism in the second, the harvest home was such a scene as Horace's friends might have expected to see at his Sabine farm or Theocritus described in his "Idyls," says the Montreal Star. Perhaps it really was the very same scene which was presented in ancient times. The grain last cut was brought home in its wagon, called the hock cart, surmounted by a figure formed of a sheaf with gay dressing, a presumable representation of the goddess Ceres, while a pipe and tabor went merrily sounding in front and the reapers tripped around in a hand in hand ring, singing appropriate songs or simply by shouts and cries giving vent to the excitement of the day.

Harvest home, harvest home,
We have plowed, we have sowed,
We have reaped, we have mowed,
We have brought home every load.
Hip, hip, hip, harvest home!

So they sang or shouted. In Lincolnshire and other districts hand bells were carried by those riding on the last load, and the following rhymes were sung:

The boughs do shake, and the bells do ring,
So merrily comes our harvest in,
Our harvest in, our harvest in,
So merrily comes our harvest in.
Hurrah!

Troops of village children, who had contributed in various ways to the great labor, joined the throng, solaced with plum cake in requital of their little services. Sometimes the image on the cart instead of being a mere dressed up bundle of grain was a pretty girl of the reaping band, crowned with flowers and hailed as the "maiden." Of this we have a description in a ballad of Bloomfield's:

Home came the jovial hockey load,
Last of the whole year's crop,
And Grace among the green boughs rode,
Right plump upon the top.

This way and that the wagon reeled,
And never queen rode higher;
Her cheeks were colored in the field
And ours before the fire.

In some provinces—we may instance Buckinghamshire—it was a favorite practical joke to lay an ambuscade at some place where a high bank or a tree gave opportunity and drench the hock cart party with water. Great was the merriment when this was cleverly and effectively done, the riders laughing while they shook themselves as merrily as the rest. Under all the rustic jocosities of the occasion there seemed a basis of pagan custom, but it was such as not to exclude a Christian sympathy. Indeed the harvest home of old England was obviously and beyond question a piece of natural religion, an ebullition of jocund gratitude to the divine source of all earthly blessings.

In the north there seemed to have been some differences in the observance. It was common there for the reapers on the last day of their business to have a contention for superiority in quickness of dispatch, groups of three or four taking each a ridge and striving which should soonest get to its termination.

In Scotland this was called a kemping, which simply means a striving. In the north of England it was a mell, which, I suspect, means the same thing (from French melee). As the reapers went on during the last day they took care to leave a good handful of the grain uncut, but laid down flat and covered over, and when the field was done the "bonniest lass" was allowed to cut this handful, which was presently dressed up with various sewings, tyings and trimmings, like a doll, and hailed as a corn baby. It was brought home in triumph, with music of fiddles and bagpipes, was set up conspicuously that night at supper and was usually preserved in the farmer's parlor for the remainder of the year.

The bonny lass who cut this handful of grain was deemed the harvest queen. In Hertfordshire and probably other districts of England there was the same custom of reserving a final handful, but it was tied up and erected under the mane of a mare, and the reapers then one after another threw their sickles at it to cut it down. The successful individual called out, "I have her!" "What have you?" cried the rest. "A mare, a mare, a mare!" he replied. "What will you do with her?" was then asked. "We'll send her to John Snooks," or whatever other name, referring to some neighboring farmer who had not yet got all his grain cut down.

This piece of rustic pleasantry was called "crying the mare." It is very curious to learn that there used to be a similar practice in so remote a district as the Isle of Skye. A farmer having there got his harvest completed, the last cut handful was sent, under the name of goabbir bhacagh (the cripple goat), to the next farmer who was still at work upon his crops, it being, of course, necessary for the bearer to take some care that on delivery he should be able instantly to take to his heels and escape the punishment otherwise sure to befall him.

Well Roasted.

All summer long the barnyard heard
The turkey's brag and boast,
And now they're glad that bumptious bird
On all sides gets a roast!

BILL'S THANKSGIVING.

He Thought He Had a Great Deal to Be Thankful For.

"Waal, Bill, what hev ye got to be thankful fur today?" asked Grizzly George as he ran across Wild Bill in the Prairie Dog saloon on Thanksgiving day.

"What hev I got to be thankful fur?" echoed Bill, looking at the others in astonishment. "Why, fur lots of things in course, an' I should think ye orter know it too. Hain't the sheriff at this minit got a warrant fur me in his pocket, but's afeard to arrest me?"

"Yaas, I reckon that's so, Bill."

"Waal, then, hadn't I orter be thankful to hev sich a reputashun as a bad man? Then look at my record, will yer? I've held up forty-two stages, bin sent to jail fifty-six times, escaped twenty-one times, shot four sheriffs, licked scores of galoots an' robbed more stores in the state than ye kin count. Hain't it sunthin' to be thankful fur to be alive today to enjoy sich a grand reputashun an' own sich a bewtiful record?"

"Yaas, that's so, Bill—that's so."

"Then take a look at my fam'ly, will ye? Thar's my son Joe, who's sarvin' five y'ars fur hoss stealin'. Hain't it sunthin' to be thankful fur to be the father of sich a promisin' boy?"

"It sartinly ar', Bill," agreed Grizzly George.

"Ye bet it ar'!" went on Wild Bill enthusiastically. "Then thar's my two other boys, Lem an' Hank. Lem takes arter me an' ar' a nacheral born robber, while Hank takes arter his ma an' ar' a nacheral born liar. Why, he kin steal a hawg right in front of yer nose an' then lie about it till ye believe some one else did it. Wouldn't ye feel ye had sunthin' to be thankful fur if yer fam'ly wuz as good as mine?"

"Yaas, Bill, I would an' no mistake."

"Why, in course ye would—in course! One of my nearest relatives ar' goin' to be hanged tomorrer, an' my darter Mary got engaged to Texas Jim, the hoss thief, last night. Hev I got anythin' to be thankful fur? Hev I?" And Wild Bill swaggered out of the saloon, with a proud look and a whistle on his lips.—New York World.

HOW TO COOK THE TURKEY

Some Practical Advice Given by a New York Chef.

There is a chef in one of the large hotels of New York who is famous for his roast turkey. Turkey under his hands comes out not only a beautiful brown, but of a delicious flavor quite different from any other turkey that ever was seen. The turkey meat is positively rich, and even the white meat that is generally dry has a moist, spicy taste. This is his recipe for roast turkey:

Clean the turkey with as little handling as possible and rinse with water in which a little baking soda has been dissolved. Now break up about half a pint of bread crumbs, and into the crumbs chop two links of pork sausage. Stuff the turkey with this mixture and just before putting into the oven bind salt pork on the breast of the turkey. Remove the pork just before the turkey is taken from the oven. When the meat is carved, its flavor will be found very superior. This is particularly to be recommended for the Thanksgiving turkey, which, with so many other dainties rivaling it, must be very appetizing to be enjoyed.

Too Much Turkey.

Weary—Wot? More turkey? Why, I've e't so much dis week dat I gobbles in me sleep! Dat's right.

Thanksgiving Bounty.

Oh, favors every year made new!
Oh, gifts with rain and sunshine sent!
The bounty overruns our due;
The fullness shames our discontent.
—Whittier.

The Thanksgiving Dinner.

A contrast between the Thanksgiving dinner of half a century ago and that of the present time will be found more in the details of the table decoration than in the menu itself. Although some favorite dishes of the present time have been added to the list and perhaps one or more of those familiar to previous generations omitted, the dinner in the main is the same, with roast turkey, cranberry sauce, pumpkin and mince pie as essential dishes.

GATHMANN GUN TESTS

Views of the Inventor of the Giant Weapon.

SATISFIED WITH ITS PERFORMANCE

Contends That the Recent Experiments at Sandy Hook Bear Out His Theory of the Gun's Value—Claims He Has Proved That He Can Sink Any Battleship.

The mixed board of army and navy officers detailed to witness and report on the performances of the Gathmann gun at Sandy Hook did not make a further trial of the gun the other day. The board intended to try a projectile to be weighted with 500 pounds of sand as a substitute for the wet guncotton used in the Gathmann shell. The object was to ascertain what the shell was capable of doing without the explosive. The board, however, decided to abandon any further test after witnessing the effect of a regular service shell charged with twenty pounds of maximite, says the New York Tribune. The latter was discharged from the regular twelve inch rifle with a reduced charge of smokeless powder at a distance representing four miles. The service shell, with a muzzle velocity of 1,800 feet a second, struck the target and shattered it to fragments. Mr. Gathmann made the following statement:

"In view of the numerous reports as to results at Sandy Hook I desire to make a few statements that will, I trust, make the situation clearer to the average reader than it must now appear. My system was properly described by the testing board in a report to the secretary of war made about a year ago as follows:

"'What it is proposed to accomplish by the Gathmann system is, in effect, as presented by the inventor, to crush or break in the side of an armored vessel by the impact above the water line of a Gathmann projectile; upon striking the guncotton charge will detonate, and the forces generated will act in the direction of the line of fire, destroying the structure of the vessel over a considerable area in the vicinity of the impact; in addition the stress will be transmitted through the water to the underwater body of the vessel and open up a portion of the vessel below the water line.'

"Three shots have been fired from the Gathmann gun. The first was not effective, as will sometimes happen, there being no complete detonation because of a defect in the adjustment of the fuse, rectified in the others. The second and third did have detonation. By the second the plate was driven back thirty-three inches at one end and about a foot at the other. The plates project four feet below the water line, so that this blow—equivalent to a ramming action—would open up some forty square feet as an inlet for water and sink any ship afloat. This is independent of the expected destruction of the lighter plates below the armor, which I could not prove because the target is on land. I only claim what is shown by the target itself. The third shot broke the plate in two pieces from top to bottom and drove it back still farther than the second. It now stands to the left of its original position over seven feet and at the left some eight feet farther back than its original position, with the whole cofferdam structure crushed and timber braces smashed. Either of these blows would have sunk any battleship, since no human agency could stop the incoming water, especially facing the terrific and death dealing onset of the gases from the detonation of 400 pounds of guncotton, which would have instantly killed every man on the ship who was not under cover. This result is a fulfillment of my intention as stated by the board. The targets were prepared by the chief of naval construction and were to represent the side of the latest type of battleship.

"The results of the firing today (Nov. 18) with the service rifle were also very remarkable, and from this date it is inevitable that high explosives will be the shell fillers of the future, and the solid shots will pass to the oblivion of smooth bore guns. Either result at Sandy Hook would have put any ship out of action. It remains to compare the probabilities of achievement by the two methods, their safety and availability. Both do enough when they do it as on the proving grounds. By mine safety to the user is assured. My fuse is safe beyond peradventure, and I defy any one to create a mishap to the main charge of a normally arranged shell. This is not true of any other system, including the one used by the twelve inch rifle. My effective range is as far as the object can be hit and at any appreciable angle. By the other system penetration must be had, and that is not possible at great range, such as will prevail in all future conflicts.

"In a battle with high explosives as the destructive agent the Gathmann torpedo could destroy at long range before the enemy could reach effective distance from which armor could be penetrated. I therefore have the inestimable advantage of perfect safety, coupled with more than double the range of any known rival. My theory often expressed has long been that future wars will be fought with weapons which cannot be replied to by an enemy who has once been hit. It is the first object of war to destroy the enemy with as little damage as possible to yourself. The long series of tests, now covering more than five years, have established by overwhelming proof my contentions of unlimited efficiency at any possible range, safety to the user and destruction to the enemy."

Not a word derogatory to Frederick L. Jones, the regular Republican candidate for Mayor, has yet been uttered in the municipal campaign, and not a charge can truthfully be made why he is not personally a desirable candidate for Mayor. Mr. Jones not only has high character, but a knowledge of the city from experience in the City Council and on the Board of Sewerage Commissioners; from long residence, and from connection with our granite industry as a stone cutter and a manufacturer. As he has made no promises relative to appointment to office, either in favor or against, and being no politician, he can be depended upon to select only those who as officials will give the city a clean, business-like and dollar-for-dollar administration.

Candidate Jones is an economical man both personally, and in business, and knows that economy is as necessary in city affairs as in personal affairs, and as far as lays in his power, would as Mayor reduce the tax rate of Quincy, and also the municipal debt and interest.

Reference has repeatedly been made to the excellent timber of which the first City Council of Quincy was composed, which included Herbert M. Federhen, Herbert T. Whitman, John C. Kapples, Thaddeus H. Newcomb, William B. Glover, Levi Stearns, George A. Barker, Frank B. Foster, Joseph C. Morse, John R. Graham, John Shaw, Frederick L. Jones, Thomas Curtis, William T. Shea, James F. Burke, Patrick F. Lacy, Joseph W. Lovett, Henry O. Fairbanks, George F. Pinkham, Roger H. Wilde, Elijah G. Hall and James Burr.

A perusal of the list will show that many, both Republicans and Democats, have since held public office with satisfaction to the people. One of these is Frederick L. Jones, and his interest in city affairs, together with ability and character, make him a most desirable candidate for Mayor of the city.

Jumped on a Ten Penny Nail.

The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake made of ten-penny nails, and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and a second one half way through. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes later the pain had disappeared and no more suffering was experienced. In three days the child was wearing her shoe as usual and with absolutely no discomfort. Mr. Powell is a well known merchant of Forkland, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and heals such injuries without maturation and in one-third he time required by the usual treatment. For sale by all druggists.

There will be an exhibition of water-colors and oils by Miss Mary B. Titcomb at the Brackett Homestead School through November. Miss Titcomb will devote all her time to study this year. Miss Bruce will have the art classes at the school.

Pictures of Frederick L. Jones, the regular Republican candidate for Mayor are conspicuous in all the show windows of Wollaston and Atlantic. The distributors say, ouly one merchant refused to put a card in his window, while everyone else seemed pleased to have them.

The annual inspection of Reynolds Post No. 58, G. A. R., of Weymouth, took place in G. A. R. hall Tuesday night. Warren Dunbar of Quincy was the inspecting officer, and there were many visitors from other posts. A banquet served by the Boston Catering Company followed the inspection.

There was another large attendance last night at the Grand Army fair. The entertainment consisted of buck and wing dancing by W. J. Grant; solos by John Greene and Miss Belleview, and duets by the Reed sisters. The fair closes tonight. Several season ticket holders received gifts last night.

There was a good attendance at the second night of the Swedish Lutheran fair at Faxon hall last night. The entertainment consisted of selections by the Lutheran orchestra, recitation by Miss Mary Nelson, music by a male quartette and selections by J. F. Johnson, Charles Chilstedt and Mrs. Andrew Nelson.

The Wollaston Glee club has started on its second season with every indication of a prosperous winter. The club which was organized last spring is enthusiastic over its leader Mr. W. L. VOTE FOR TIRRELL AND GOOD GOVERNMENT.

Address by the Democratic Committee to the Voters of the City.

All Democrats are Requested to Fall in Line and Support the Regular Ticket.

To the Voters of Quincy:

We wish to call your attention to the fact that the day of the municipal election is rapidly drawing near. This election promises to be a peculiarly interesting one, from the fact that there are four candidates for Mayor, and three sets of names placed in nomination for seats in the Council, and it is time for all to decide whom are the most desirable candidates to receive your support at the polls.

Regarding the gentlemen placed in nomination by the other side we have nothing to say. Their records will undoubtedly be carefully studied by the voters of Quincy before they cast their ballots, and all we ask is that our candidates may be given a fair and impartial consideration.

Mr. Frederick W. Tirrell, the gentleman whom we present to your notice as our candidate for Mayor is a man who needs no introduction to the business men of the city. They know him to be a man of honesty and integrity whose character has always been above reproach, genial and obliging, socially yet careful and painstaking in all business ventures.

Being, as he has been for the last ten years, at the head of a large and growing manufacturing business, we believe that his qualification for this office will compare favorably with that of the other candidates.

Born in Quincy, engaged in business in Quincy, and being a large taxpayer in Quincy, we submit that his interests are purely local, and we are confident that, as Mayor, he would enter into the administration of city affairs with the same spirit which has so far characterized his private matters.

We are satisfied that his first care would be to surround himself with able and trusty advisers in municipal matters, that every item of expenditure would be thoroughly scrutinized before it would meet with his approval, that his administration would be conservative and judicious, comparing favorably with that of his predecessors in office and that, at the end of his term, our citizens would congratulate themselves that they had received dollar for dollar for all taxes paid and expended under his recommendations.

And now, in closing, a word to the Democratic voters. There is no question but what the Republican party in Quincy is irreconcilably split up this year, and if every Democrat will come forward and put his shoulder to the wheel we can not only elect our Mayoralty candidate, but also make a considerable gain in the Council chamber.

Therefore we feel that this is a year when we should demand that all differences, if any, in our own party should be forgotten, and all together, hand in hand, make one mighty effort to elect our entire ticket.

Democratic City Committee.

Howard Street Hearing.

The City Council Committee on Streets gave a hearing at City Hall Friday night to call parties interested in the proposed widening of Howard street.

It is proposed to widen the street from Smith street to a point near Newcomb's store. The street is now 33 feet wide, and if the present order is carried through it will be 45 feet.

It is estimated that the cost will be $10,000 exclusive of land damages. The larger part of the land to be taken is on the east side of the street, that is, along property owned by the Fore River Ship and Engine Co. There are twenty-two abutters and of these the Fore River Co. will lose 10,000 feet and the others 20,000 feet.

C. W. Newcomb thought the street would be all right as laid out by the new plan. He thought the street would be improved, and that something ought to be done, as it was almost impossible for a loaded team to get over the slight rise near his store and it was something fearful the way horses were abused. He, however, did not feel like giving his land, We get nothing but dirt, noise and black smoke from the Fore River Co., and they should show the proper spirit and do something toward the improvement, as it was for their benefit. They should give their land if the others did not. The street now was nothing but a ledge, and although quantities of sand and gravel had been put on the first rain washed it off.

Mr. Cannon, engineer of the Fore River Co., said that he thought it would be better to pave that portion of the street between Des Moines road and Howard avenue. There was an average of 700 or 800 tons a day of material going to the Company's work. The company was willing to give their land if the other abutters did, but would expect the city to move the buildings. The company would expect compensation if the other abuttres received it. They would probably be willing to take the assessed value.

Chairman Newcomb in reply to a question, said the land in this vicinity was assessed from four to nine cents a foot.

Maurice R. Newcomb opposed widening. He would derive no benefit from it. He had no land to give. The street was satisfactory to him as it was. The widening as proposed would take some of his trees which he valued very much.

The hearing was of an informal nature and no other facts were brought out, other than those noted above.

HIGH 16; ADAMS, 0.

A Decisive Victory for the Former School.

The second of the series of games played between Adams and High resulted in a decided victory for High school. They played in great style and at no stage was High's goal in danger.

An exceptionally patriotic throng of cheerers helped to encourage High school.

Adams was fairly outplayed but had the misfortune of losing two of their men in the last half. Flaherty was well used up while Reardon after a sensational play fractured his leg, and was carried off the field in a sickly condition.

No fault could be found with High's team work, whiel the individual playing was exceptionally brilliant.

With the exception of Reardon's end play Adams made no long gains. Several times they tried to buck the line but were pushed back repeatedly.

The spirit which Captain Wright instilled into his team together with what Adams lacked, made the game a snappy one.

High wholly redeemed themselves, which was their great aim.

As both the officials were out of town men, no partiality was shown and the game was without disputes of any kind.

Jones and Desmoud were both badly used up before the game was through but they took their scars bravely and no complaint uttered.

O'Brien kicked off the first half to High school, Miller receiving and advancing it to their thirty yard line. The first down High began ripping up holes, especially on the left side of the line, and won, and then rushed the ball around the ends. This was discouraging to Adams who were exerting all their efforts to repel this driving of the line, but High did not look at it in the same light and soon had the ball within a few yards of the goal. When within two yards of the goal, Adams held hard and soon obtained the ball, but after one good gain they fumbled, Miller falling on the ball.

It was at this stage of the game that High felt the use of such a reliable man as Jones, and he entered the game in his old position, Saunders retiring. After good gains by Barbour and Miller, Jones scored admidst thrilling yelling and cheering. Miller kicked the goal in grand style.

Again O'Brien kicked off to High Millis carrying the ball for thirty yards During the remainder of the half High continued by strong line playing, Miller, Barbour and Jones continually distinguishing themselves on long gains. The half ended with the ball near the Adams goal.

A short rest was now given the dlayers who fully appreciated it.

Miller kicked to Adams the last half. Flaherty received the ball and made about thirty yards on the kick off Adams made gradual progress and before Reardon's misfortune it looked hopeful for the losing team. Had the accident not occurred the game might have been more interesting, but Flaherty also was knocked out, and Adams now was doomed, to all appearances. They lost the ball immediately and did not get it again until a minute before time was called.

After a few short gains a double pass forwarded the ball to Adams' fifteen yard line, after a short sensational run by Jones. With the aid of the team Miller soon scored another touchdown, but failed to kick.

Again Adams kicked to High. McGregor carried the ball for twenty yards and after many more long runs by the backs, Miller made another touch-down. This ended High's scoring, and the half ended with the ball in Adams' hands in the center of the field.

THE SOCIAL REALM.

Mr. J. Henry Emery of Hancock street has bought the large tract of land on Adams street at the corner of Goffe street and will erect a fine residence. Land on Adams street is scarce but there are plenty of sightly lots on Presidents hill which seems to be popular and new and beautiful houses are being constantly erected.

The Compass whist club of Atlantic met Wednesday evening for the first time of the present season with Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Small. As usual a very pleasant game was enjoyed from 8 to 10, after which light refreshments were served. A strange coincidence occurred in the prize winning contest. Mr. Charles L. Coe and Mr. Harry W. Read secured first and second for the gentlemen, while Mrs. Read and Mrs. Coe were the fortunate ladies. The following officers have been elected for the present season: President,—Roger H. Wilde; Vice President,—Charles L. Coe; Treasurer,—James H. Churchill; Secretary,—Mrs. J. H. Churchill.

The general society of the Daughters of the Revolution have sent out cards for at homes at their rooms 156 Fifth avenue, New York from three to five on the afternoons of Tuesdays Nov. 26, Dec. 17, Jan. 21, Feb. 18 and March 18.

The attendance at the Wollaston Unity club was unusually large last evening. About one hundred and fifteen were present. A most instuctive and enjoyable program had been arranged. Mrs. George W. Bennett was the director of the evening.

All lovers of nature had an opportunity of having the insect treated in a most interesting manner by the following gentlemen: Mr. Walter E. Simmons on the "Ant," Mr. Charles Comins on the "Bee" and Mr. Frederick Plummer of the Woodward Institute on the "Moth and Butterfly." Charts illustrating the different parts of the insects were shown as well as if alive with all of its appartments for honey making.

A fine collection of moths and butterflies (mounted) was placed about the vestry.

The intermission lasted longer than usual, so as to give all present an opportunity of a close inspection of the insects. Several children in the audience showed their appreciation of this rare chance.

Music was furnished by the Wollaston Male quartette composed of Messrs. Bullock, Sargent, Howard and Hahn, who sang "In Absence" and "The Bee." They were so enthusiastically encored that they responded with "Don't you cry my Honey," and "Always More."

The next meeting of the Unity club will be December eleventh. The subject for the evening "Modern Social Problems" will be in charge of Mr. Herbert Y. Follett.

NOVEMBER'S COME.

HEY, you swelled up gobbler feller,
Struttin' round so big and proud,
Pretty quick I guess your beller
Won't be goin' quite so loud.
Say, I'd run and hide, I bet you,
And I'd leave off eatin' some,
Else the choppin' block'll get you,
Don't you know November's come?

Don't you know that grandma's makin'
Loads of mince and punkin pies?
Don't you smell the goodies bakin'?
Can't you see 'em? Where's your eyes?
Tell that rooster there that's crowin'
Cute folks now are keepin' mum;
They don't know how fat they're growin'
When they know November's come.

'Member when you tried to lick me;
Yes, you did, and hurt me too.
Thought 'twas big to chase and pick me;
Well, I'll soon be pickin' you.
Oh, I know you're big and hearty,
So you needn't strut and drum;
Better make your will out, smarty,
'Cause, you know, November's come.

"Gobble, gobble!" Oh, no matter!
By and by you'll change your tune;
You'll be dead and in a platter,
And I'll gobble pretty soon.
If I was you, I'd stop my puffin',
And I'd look most awful glum.
Hope they'll give you lots of stuffin'.
Ain't you glad November's come?

—Joe Lincoln.

Mrs. Blake's Thanksgiving

"Oh, dear me, suz! If that hain't too bad!" Mrs. Betsey Blake cried in almost tearful vexation as she stepped backward from the stove and with a rueful face regarded a thin stream of water trickling from a crack low down on the side of the wash boiler and sputtering into a cloud of steam on the hot stove. "John," she called in a voice full of trouble, "the b'iler's leakin' like mad, an' it looks as if just nothin' short of a tinker could stop it."

Her husband came into the kitchen from the woodshed at a leisurely pace and with an air of confidence in his ability to cope with any number of leaky boilers. But as he examined the irregular fissure his face took on a puzzled and then a more serious expression.

"Maybe you might stick a rag into it," he suggested.

"No, not in such a shaped hole as that," she said decisively and began dipping the water out into a pail. "You've got to take it to the village an' have it soddered, an' that's all there is about it. It'll just spoil the day, so I can't wash afore tomorrow, an' that'll put back my Thanksgivin' work. Hain't it too bad? Dear me, I most wish we hadn't asked father an' mother an' Abigail to come."

"Well, I'm sorry it's happened so, but never mind. You'll fetch things round all right. You gen'ally do," said he, so confidently that her spirits rose above the present disappointment.

"I can do some of tomorrow's work today an' be so much ahead," she said, and before he was on his way she had half a pumpkin pared and stewing in the place of the boiler.

Next morning the mended boiler was reinstated. By noon the delayed washing was completed, and Betsy Blake looked out complacently from her belated dinner upon the long array of spotless clothes fluttering from the swaying line like triumphant banners.

In the afternoon a part of the ironing was done, and the next morning she arose refreshed and with a sense of relief from one great labor of the week.

"TWO WHOLE DAYS AFORE THANKSGIVIN' TO GIT GOOD AN' READY IN."

"There!" she exclaimed, sitting down for a moment's rest after clearing the breakfast table, washing the dishes and sweeping the kitchen. "Thank goodness, washin' day is over an' some of the ironin' done, an' now it's only Tuesday, with two whole days afore Thanksgivin' to git good an' ready in."

"Hey? What?" John asked abstractedly, with his eyes on the columns of the last paper, absorbed in an editorial on the Philippines.

"Two more days afore Thanksgivin'," Betsey repeated.

"Why, yes; so there is," said he, looking up at the clock as if for confirmation. "I was kind of thinkin' this was Wednesday, but couldn't make it seem just right."

"Of course it's Tuesday, for I washed yesterday," said she, with convincing assurance. "An' now I'm goin' to make my cramb'ry sass an' my mince an' apple pies. I shall leave my pumpkin pies for tomorrow, for I want 'em fresh. This arternoon you'd better kill the turkey an' dress him, so't he'll have a good long spell to hang. They're heaps better so than they be to fly into the oven. An' then tomorrow you can git Silas an' go arter your load of wood. Mebby you can git two."

As John Blake drove his lumber wagon along the road the next morning on his way to the wood lot he noticed that an indolent atmosphere seemed to pervade the few farmhouses which he passed, but it only impressed him as a rather early sign of the coming holiday.

He found Silas Day cutting firewood at his door, looking somewhat surprised at his appearance and more so at the request to go to the woods.

"Why, yes, I s'pose I can go an' help you a spell," he answered, "arter I cut Phebe a speck more wood. She'll want consid'able today."

"Yes, gettin' ready so for Thanksgivin.' Betsy is, too; busy as a bee in a tar barrel."

Presently they were jolting over the rough byroad, too much shaken for comfortable conversation until they came to a halt in the quiet of the bare November woods.

"I don't hardly see how you come to put off gittin' your wood till today," said Silas, looking up through the netted branches at the climbing sun.

"Well, I had a lot of things to tend to an' couldn't get roun' to it. I s'pose I might ha' waited till arter Thanksgivin', but thought I might as well git it afore."

Silas stared at him and muttered, "Runnin' pretty clus to the wind, I should think."

After they had plied their axes awhile John stuck his into a log and, going to his coat, drew a package from a pocket.

"I always did relish victuals in the woods, an' so I fetched along some bread an' meat. Let's set down an' take a bite."

"Well, I can most always eat," Silas assented as he took his allotted share and sat down beside his companion, munching the bread and meat and letting his eyes rove about as people are apt to do when eating out of doors.

A company of chickadees were busy gathering their slender fare on a low branch before him, and on a higher one a red squirrel began rasping a butternut.

"Eatin' their Thanksgivin' dinner," Silas said, nodding at the little banqueters.

"Make 'em a tolerable long meal if they keep it up till tomorrow arternoon. Hush! What be they ringin' the meetin' house bell for?" John asked excitedly as the mellow tones of a church bell were wafted to their ears.

"Why, don't they always?" Silas asked, glaring curiously at his companion.

"Why, Silas, you know they don't never, only Sundays an' fast days an' Thanksgivin', except funerals, an' there ain't nobody dead, not as I know of."

"Look a-here, John Blake," said Silas, "be you crazy or be you foolin'? You act all the time as if you was makin' b'lieve this wa'n't Thanksgivin' day, sot by the gov'nor an' bein' kep' by everybody but you an' I. Now, quit your nonsense an' let's hurry up, for I want to git home. We hain't got no turkey, but Phebe had three as neat chickens as ever you see all ready to go into the oven when I come away, an' the children's all goin' to be there, an' I want to be on hand to rights."

John's face grew blank. His eyes stared, unseeing, into space.

"Good gracious, Peter! If Betsy an' me hain't done it!" Then, springing to his feet: "Hurry up! I should say! Most noon Thanksgivin' day, Betsy's father an' mother an' sister a-comin' an' the turkey a-hangin' up in the cellar, if she's kep' a-dreamin' as long as I have. It all came of that plaguey ole wash b'iler springin' a leak Monday, so she couldn't wash till Tuesday, an' we counted from that. Never mind the tarnal wood. Onhitch the ho'ses an' let's scoot."

Five minutes later the team was tearing down the road, the bounding wagon sending far and wide its thundering echoes that brought forth alarmed inmates from many a farmstead, while Silas hung on for dear life, as disjointed pleas and protests were jolted from him, all unheeded by the reckless driver.

Deacon Adams in his Sunday suit, less the coat, was standing in the midst of his Sunday dressed household with an open letter in his hand and disappointment on his face that was repeated in various degrees in the faces of his family. Hearing the unwonted din, the deacon rushed forth to ascertain the cause.

"Stop, stop! Hold on!" he cried, running out into the road, and John, impatient of delay, drew rein.

"What on this livin' airth, John, is the matter? Is somebody sick or have you bin takin' more'n you'd ought to?"

"No; there hain't nobody sick, an' I hain't bin a-drinkin'," said John, and he rapidly set forth the awkward situation.

"You wait a minute, and I'll fix you up right as a rivet," said the deacon, still restraining his impatient neighbor. "I'll lend you a turkey all roasted and ready to go ont' the table. I'd liveser'n not, and so would Mis' Adams. You see, we invited my brother Iry and all his folks, and we'd got two rousin' big turkeys int' the oven and half roasted, when there come a letter from 'em sayin' how Iry'd up and broke his leg, and they wouldn't none of 'em come. I don't want to be eatin' cold turkey for a week after Thanksgivin', and it's providential 'at yourn missed fire."

Suitable provision was made for the safe transportation of the hot turkey the short distance, and John Blake went his way with it relieved in spirit.

Meanwhile Betsey had spent half the forenoon leisurely preparing for the morrow's festivity, glad to be unembarrassed by the presence of men folks and uninterrupted by any visitors until a timid rap called her to the door, and she opened it to Silas Day's little daughter.

"Why, Mandy, is this you? Is there anything the matter to your house?" Betsey asked in evident surprise.

"No, ma'am; yes, ma'am, I mean, some matter," Mandy stammered. "The cat got int' the buttry an' eat up a whole punkin pie, all but the crust, an' ma wants to know if you can't lend her one, 'cause there ain't enough left to go round."

"A punkin pie? Come in an' set down. Why, I hain't got none baked.

"WHY, MANDY, IS THIS YOU?"

Wa'n't goin' to till this arternoon. Your ma can have one tomorrow, an' I s'pose that's what she wants it for."

Mandy stared at her, round eyed and open mouthed. "No, ma'am, she wants it today."

"Well, she can't have it of me afore night. How comes it you hain't to school?"

"The' hain't no school today."

"Hain't no school? Is the schoolma'am sick?"

"No, ma'am; she went home to Thanksgivin'."

"What! Lose two whole days for Thanksgivin'? That's ridic'lous," Mrs. Blake declared with emphasis.

"Why, no; she's comin' back tonight or in the mornin'."

"An' not keep Thanksgivin' in her own home? That's ridic'louser."

"Why, Mis' Blake, she's keepin' it today at her own home," said Mandy, staring with still wider eyes at her hostess. "This is Thanksgivin' day!"

"It hain't!" Mrs. Blake made this assertion stoutly, but she was beginning to feel sickening qualms of doubt.

"It sartin is, Mis' Blake, 'cause ma's roastin' three chickens an' we're all to home, an' oh, my, you'd ought to smell it to Deacon Adamses as I come by."

"My land o' goodness!" the poor woman gasped, sinking into a chair in complete collapse as the mistake became undeniably evident. "I've skipped a day, I do b'lieve. It all come o' that mis'able b'iler leakin' so't I couldn't wash Monday."

The rumble of wheels caught her ear. She cast an appalled glance out of the window. "And there, if there hain't mother an' father an' Abigail a-drivin' up this minute, an' the turkey not singed nor the stuffin' made nor a punkin pie made! Thank goodness, 'tain't his folks! There's mince an' apple pies enough. Mandy, you git one of each kind an' take 'em home. But what shall I do?"

She put on a brave face to mask her mortification as she went out to meet her guests, whom she wished to see away in spite of her longing to see them. But when she invited them into the unready house and tried to make a joke of her mistake and saw the look of disappointment steal over the faces of her sharp set travelers her feigned laughter broke into genuine sobs.

Just then John Blake suddenly appeared in the midst of the depressed group bearing the borrowed turkey which in the nick of time made a joke of the mistake and turned fasting to feasting.—Forest and Stream.

Thanksgiving.

Who murmurs at his lot today?
Who scorns his native fruit and bloom
Or sighs for dainties far away
Besides the bounteous board of home?
—Whittier.

Mr. Turkey's First Appearance.

The real origin of Thanksgiving as a day specially set apart for prayer and rejoicing must be attributed to Governor Bradford, the first governor of Massachusetts colony. In gratitude for the plenteous harvest in 1621, following upon a period of great depression, he proclaimed a day of thanksgiving to be observed on Dec. 13 (old style) of that year. Four men were sent out in search of game. They returned loaded down with wild turkeys. Thus did the great American bird make his first appearance.

Chestnut Stuffing.

Chestnut stuffing is made of a quart of large French chestnuts. Put them in hot water and boil until the skins are softened, then drain off the water and remove the skins. Replace the blanched nuts in water and boil until soft. Take out a few at a time and press them through a colander or a potato press. They mash more easily when hot. Season the mashed chestnuts with a tablespoonful of butter, a teaspoonful of salt and a quarter of a teaspoonful of pepper.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Nov. 24—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Thanksgiving.—Isa. xxv, 1-8.

Thanksgiving should have a very prominent place in our Christian lives. We are enjoined by the word of God to engage in many religious duties, such as prayer, study, meditation, but to none of these duties is that of thanksgiving placed second. God's word throughout calls upon us to praise the Lord, to exalt His name at all times and "in everything to give thanks." The religious history of the world illustrates to us very clearly the naturalness and appropriateness of thanksgiving to God. Nature as well as Scripture enforces the duty of thanksgiving. The first forms of worship among all nations were altars and sacrifices, the purpose of which was to express thanksgiving to God for some recognized blessing. "It is as the giver of benefits that man seems first to have recognized God. One of the earliest forms of religion was sun worship, and the reason for selecting the sun as the object of religious regard was the manifest fact that from the sun man derives so many and such great blessings. The very name 'God' is probably a modification of the root 'gut,' or 'good,' and was given to the Supreme Being by our Anglo-Saxon forefathers in recognition of His goodness in bestowing upon us so many blessings. The first religious utterances seem to have the shape of hymns rather than prayers, and hymns or psalms form the most antique portions of our rituals." This natural tendency to thank God pervades us, as it did those who have gone before us, and we should follow in the footsteps of the ancients and foster and cultivate.

Thanksgiving should be rendered unto God for what He is. He is God and as God is worthy of our highest adoration and praise. "O Lord, thou art my God! I will exalt thee. I will praise Thy name." Our God is the only living and true God, the infinite and sovereign God, sublime in majesty, perfect in holiness and in all His attributes. "Who is like unto Thee, O Lord, among the gods? Who is like Thee, glorious in holiness, fearful in praises, doing wonders?" For what He is the angels around God's throne are constantly praising Him.

Cherubim and seraphim falling down before Thee,
Which wert and art and ever more shalt be.

Well may we join in the anthem and praise God for what He is!

Thanksgiving should be rendered unto God for what He does. "I will praise Thy name, for Thou hast done wonderful things." Among the wonderful things Isaiah goes on to mention the execution of God's judgments, their effect upon the heathen and the salvation which God has vouchsafed unto His people. To enumerate all that God has done and is doing, for which we should thank Him, would be impossible. "Every good and perfect gift cometh from above." For temporal, spiritual, individual, family and national blessings we should cease not to thank Almighty God. "Great and marvelous are Thy works, Lord God Almighty. Just and true are Thy ways, Thou King of Saints, Who shall not fear Thee, O God, and glorify Thy name? For Thou only are holy; for all nations shall come and worship Thee; for Thy judgments are manifest." Such is the song of Moses and the Lamb, and we need not wait until we reach the heavenly shore to join in it. "Praise ye the Lord."

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. xxxiv, 1-8; xlviii, 1; lxvi, 1, 2; lxxxi, 1-3; xcii, 1-5; cxlvii, 1-20; II Cor. ix, 10-12; Phil. iv, 4-6; Col. ii, 6, 7; Rev. vii, 11, 12.

In the Way of Salvation.

The hard part in the way of salvation, if there be a hard part at all, is constancy. It is endurance in little things and endurance to the end; it is remaining faithful unto death rather than doing some great thing or conquering in some fierce and agonizing battle. The Christian builds up his character, or the tower of its strength, little by little, stone by stone, in the rising wall or he fights his battle with one evil at a time, the rest being restrained by that beneficent power which fights with him and freely lends its almighty aid. "Ye shall not be tempted greater than ye can bear." To him who fights in earnest the issue of the battle is not doubtful.—Helper.

Forget.

Put a seal upon your lips and forget what you have done. After you have been kind, after love has stolen forth into the world and done its beautiful work, go back into the shade again and say nothing about it. Love hides even from itself.—Professor Drummond.

Unlocks the Treasures

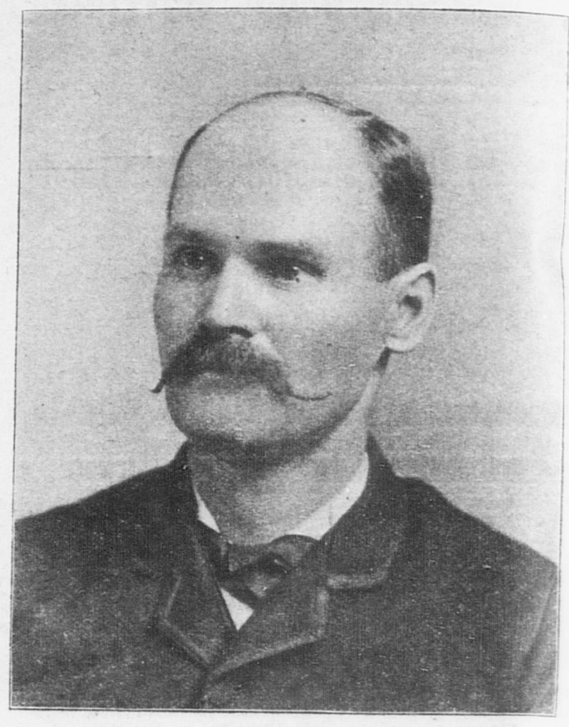

Faith is the hand that lays hold on Christ, the eye that looks to Christ, the ear that hears the voice of Christ, the mouth that feeds on Christ, the finger that touches Christ and the key that unlocks the treasures of Christ.—Rev. F. Harper.

A Disciple's Prayer.

At sunrise pray: "Now, Lord, Thy day begins;
Receive my thanks; grant strength; wash out my sins.
My feet must stumble if I walk alone;
Lonely my heart till beating by Thine own.
My will is weakness till it rest in Thine;
Cut off, I wither, thirsting for the Vine.
My deeds are dry leaves on a sapless tree;
My life is lifeless till it live in Thee!"

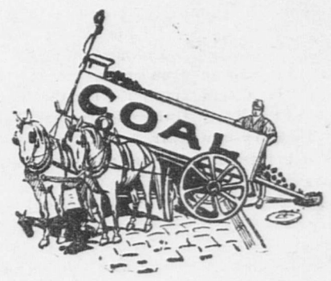

At sunset this: "Now, Lord, Thy daylight fades;
Guide Thou my craft amidst the gathering shades.
I thank Thee that Thou steerest my frail bark,
O faithful Pilot, o'er these waters dark!
The waves have bared their threatening fangs of white;
But 'Peace, be still!' Thou speakest. Now comes night.
I drop mine anchor in the silent sea;
Through the long watches I am safe with Thee!"

AN ATTACK ON PANAMA

Likely to Be Made Within a a Short Time

LIBERALS GAIN STRENGTH

Control Railway Line Within Two Miles of Its Western Terminus—Iowa Will Land Forces When Necessary—Attitude of United States

Colon, Nov. 23.—The latest news obtainable here is to the effect that the Liberal general, Lugo, has arrived at Empire station, distant about 12 miles from Panama, with a force said to number 1000 men.

The Liberals are gaining and arming many recruits along the entire length of the railroad and now control the line up to within a point two miles from Panama. An attack on that city is expected momentarily and much uneasiness is felt.

The Liberal leader, Domingo Diaz, it is expected, will shortly arrive at Colon.

It is rumored that Buena Ventura (a Colombian port on the Pacific coast about 400 miles south of Panama) has been taken by the Liberals. Confirmation of this report is lacking.

Marines from the gunboat Machias still guard the station and property of the railroad here. The battleship Iowa will land forces at Panama when the necessity arises.

The Liberals here have already given notice that the advalorem duty on goods disembarked at Colon will henceforth be 10 percent, not 20 percent, as formerly. All the stores in Colon are open and business has been resumed.

The Colombian gunboat General Pinzon is believed to be along the coast somewhere near Colon, for when she left here she was short of coal.

Transit across the isthmus is still free and uninterrupted.

No Interference Unless Necessary

Washington, Nov. 23.—The answer of the Colombian government to the representations of Consul General Gudger, to the effect that the government was unable to guarantee the integrity of the railway communication across the isthmus, was purposely developed in order to make perfectly plain the fact that the United States was thoroughly justified in landing its forces at Colon. With this formal acknowledgement from the Colombian government of its inability to maintain communication, it becomes, it is said, not the privilege, but the duty of the United States, under the treaty of Granada, to guarantee that communication, even though the use of force is necessary. It is not intended to interfere between any factions, Conservative or Liberal, unless a faction places itself in the position of obstructing the purpose of the United States to keep the Panama railroad open to free traffic.

Equipped For Colombia

London, Nov. 23.—The steamer Banrigh, which was detained here this week by the British authorities on the suspicion of her being a Boer filibuster, has been released and will proceed to Hamburg. A member of the vessel's crew is authority for the statement that the Banrigh will proceed thence to Colon, where she will be used by the Colombian government as a gunboat.

Prussians' Barbarous Doings

Cracow, Nov. 23.—Shocking accounts have been received here of wholesale flogging of Polish children by Prussian schoolmasters for refusing to learn the catechism and prayers in German at Wrzesnia. The parents and relatives assembled in front of the schools and violently denounced the authorities. Many persons were arrested on charge of insulting government officials and sentenced to imprisonment and to be put in chains.

Won't Come Before Congress

Washington, Nov. 23.—Instructions have been given General Chaffee to oppose any attempt made to secure Aguinaldo's release on a writ of habeas corpus. Secretary Root is determined to nip in the bud any aspirations Aguinaldo may have to appear before congress as a hero, and directed General Chaffee to continue to hold him a prisoner and to deny his request to be permitted to come to the United States.

Murder and Suicide Aboard Ship

Mobile, Ala., Nov. 23.—Bark Birnam Wood, from Rio Janerio, in charge of Mate Poe, arrived yesterday and reports that on Nov. 18 Captain Morris killed the vessel's steward. The captain kept his cabin, pacing up and down. When nearing this port yesterday he gave the mate the course, picked up a sea lead, jumped overboard and was drowned.

Voluntary Raise In Wages

Louisville, Nov. 23.—The Louisville and Nashville railroad, without notice, has advanced 10 percent the wages of the shopmen in Louisville who formerly drew $1.75 a day or over. About 1000 men will be benefited. The increase was unsolicited.

Poor Seamstress Rewarded

Paris, Nov. 23.—The French academy has awarded the prize for virtue, of $200, to Cecil Morand, a seamstress, who is a dwarf and lame, and who, from the age of 13 years, has supported a paralytic father, a sick mother, and 10 brothers and sisters.

Watching Short Lobsters

Brunswick, Me., Nov. 23.—The fish wardens are keeping their eyes open for "short" lobsters, and one seizure yesterday was from former Warden Snow of Great Island. He paid a fine of $84 and appealed.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW.

Commerce and Finance Have Made Remarkable Strides

New York, Nov. 23.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Never before in the history of the United States was there such great reason for a day of national thanksgiving. This country has made unprecedented strides toward a position of international supremacy not only in commerce but also in finance.

To a marked degree business enterprises have proved successful. An idle wheel in mills or factories is the exception, while labor is so well employed at high wages that consumptive demands sustain market values of all staple commodities. Transporting facilities have been unable to keep pace with the nation's requiremenets, many complaining of tardy deliveries, which alone act as a brake on commercial progress. By closing lake navigation, lower temperature will relieve the railway situation, thousands of cars being restored to inland traffic. This same factor of seasonable weather stimulates retail dealings, and prompt collections swell bank exchanges, which for the week were 30 percent larger than last year at this city and 35.6 percent over 1899, while at other leading cities there were gains of 17.9 and 17 percent respectively. Heavier payments through clearing houses are not due to speculation, as sales of stocks for the week were smaller than a year ago.

Pilloried For Whispering

Chicago, Nov. 23.—An old-fashioned pillory system of punishment which, it is said, has the sanction of the board of directors, has been brought to light at the Pontiac state reformatory. The pillory is a door with two holes in the upper panel. Through these holes the prisoner puts his hands and a chain is attached to the wrists to keep them in place. The arms are thus extended on a level with the shoulders, and can be moved in no direction, as holes in the door are not large enough to permit it. Charles Miller, a 10-year-old boy, asserts he was forced to stand in this position for 20 hours at a stretch. He was released for 10 minutes at noon, when bread and water were given to him. Superintendent Mallory of the reformatory is quoted as corroborating the statement. Young Miller's offense was whispering in school.

The Bonine Trial

Washington, Nov. 23.—Five witnesses were heard yesterday in the trial of Mrs. Bonine for the murder of James S. Ayres, Jr. Four of these witnesses were police officers who had gone to Ayres' room after the discovery of the body. The policeman testified to details of the wounds, the position of the body and the arrangement of the furniture in the room. Only once during the day did Mrs. Bonine display emotion and that was when the bloody undershirt which had been worn by Ayres on the night of the killing was identified by Officer Brady.

Caballas Looking For a Fight

Manila, Nov. 23.—It has been officially reported to General Chaffee that the insurgent leader Caballos has a large force of fully armed men under his command in Laguna province, Luzon. An insurgent officer has just been captured, carrying papers signed by Caballos. The prisoner admits that Caballos has 1000 men with him and contemplated attacking Mauban. This probably accounts for the fact that yesterday the telegraph lines were cut near Mauban.

Bloodhounds Used Without Avail

Wilmington, N. C., Nov. 23.—The eastern section of North Carolina is greatly excited over the mysterious disappearance of Miss Nellie Cropsey of Elizabeth City under circumstances indicating that she has been murdered and her body cast into the river. Bloodhounds traced her to the river, but no clue has been found.

New Use For Glass

Paris, Nov. 23.—The Rue Trouchet, which has been paved with a new glass process invented by M. Garchey, has just been opened to the public. It forms an excellent foothold and promises to be without dust and not to absorb waste. By the process the inventor has been enabled to utilize all kinds of glass debris.

Indicted Cashier Will Fight

Washington, Ind., Nov. 23.—Ex-Cashier Davis has returned from Indianapolis where he was indicted on 14 counts charging him with having embezzled $75,000 of the funds of the People's National bank, making false entries on the books and other wrong doing. His attorney says that Davis will fight every case.

Champion Wrestler Retires

New York, Nov. 23.—Ernest Roeber defeated Nchad, the Turk, last night in a Greco-Roman wrestling contest for the championship. After the result was declared Roeber announced that he would retire from the wrestling ring.

Alleged Transvaal Conspiracy

Johannesburg, Nov. 23.—Another anti-British conspiracy has been nipped in the bud. Twenty arrests were made at midnight in houses in various parts of Johannesburg. A great sensation followed.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Sunday, Nov. 24.
Sun rises—6:46; sets—4:16.
Moon sets—4:50 a. m.
High water—9:15 a. m.; 9:45 p. m.

The depression has moved eastward with somewhat increased intensity. It has been attended by rain or snow. The presence of the marked high area over northern Lake Superior, accompanied by abnormally low temperature in conjunction with the depression to the southward, indicates stormy weather in the New England states, with rain or snow. On the coast winds will shift to northerly, becoming fresh to brisk.

ADVERSE LEGISLATION

Has Greatly Handicapped Our Maritime Interests

PATHWAYS OF THE OCEAN

Seized by Other Nations and Held to Our Exclusion—Senator Frye Says It May Be Exceedingly Dangerous to Our Prosperity

Boston, Nov. 23.—At the clubhouse of the new Algonquin club last evening, the 303d meeting of the Commercial club was addressed by Senator William P. Frye of Maine, whose subject was: "National legislation concerning steamship subsidies, and New England's interest in the country's increasing foreign commerce."

Senator Frye said: "Our country is great, prosperous and powerful. For a few years it has moved forward with the strides of a young giant, and today ranks with the foremost nations of the world, in very many respects outranking many of them. This result has been attained under the policy of protection.

"Nearly every industry has been protected and has prospered. One alone has been handicapped by adverse legislation at home and protection of its competitors abroad. I refer to our ships engaged in foreign trade. We have permitted the other maritime nations, our inferiors in most of these regards, to seize upon the pathways of the oceans of the world and hold them to our exclusion.

"Who carried last year our $2,000,000,000 and a little over of our foreign commerce? We did 8.2 percent. Of our enormous exports we carried 6 percent. We paid the past year $500,000 a day in gold to foreign ships for the carriage of our goods.

"How can this be otherwise than humiliating and mortifying? It is not only humiliating but may be exceedingly dangerous to our prosperity. Suppose Europe should be embroiled in war; that England and Germany, our carriers, should enter upon a conflict at arms. Who would carry our exports of of farm, factory and mine products? If carried who would pay the enormous war premiums?

"Discussion of the causes leading to this lamentable result is necessary only so far as it may be suggestive of remedies. The theoretical free trader ascribes to our policy of protection.

"It is not protection which has harmed, but the entire lack of it; the compelling of our ships to compete with those of other maritime nations protected by subsidies, by much lower wages in shipyards and on ships and by a less expensive manner of living.

"The aid given by foreign countries to their shipping must be reckoned with. Eighty percent of all steamships 14 knots and upward are heavily subsidized. England adopted this method of encouragement a half century ago, and has persisted in it to now."

Here Senator Frye quoted at length statistics showing the sums paid by other countries, and continuing, said: "Are we, rich and prosperous, to submit to such humiliating and dangerous conditions? There are some Americans utterly devoid of sentiment or of patriotic impulse, who can travel the world over and without regret never see the stars and stripes in any foreign port. They say, 'why not employ foreign ships to carry and foreign agencies to find markets for our surplus products if they will do it cheap?' Do they suppose that such agencies will have the slightest interest in extending our trade?

"If our enormous surplus of products can find no market abroad, then stagnation at home, capital without profit, workingmen without wages. This surplus will increase from year to year and the necessity for foreign markets increases."

Senator Frye quoted from addresses of President Harrison and President McKinley, in which reference was made to the importance of the merchant marine.

The speaker then told of the introduction into the last congress of his bill for ship subsidies, which he said, in his opinion, was a good measure. He told of the opposition to it and the arguments for and against the bill. In conclusion he said:

"During the congress about to meet I shall persist in my efforts to procure favorable legislation for our merchant navy, and bespeak for such attempt the sympathy of the business men of Boston."

Devery vs Jerome

New York, Nov. 23.—Deputy Commissioner of Police Devery filed in the supreme court yesterday a notice of appeal to the appellate division from the decision of Justice O'Gorman denying the writ of prohibition to prevent Justice Jerome from holding the hearing on the charges of oppression preferred against Devery by Policeman O'Neill.

Garcelon Bequest Allowed

San Francisco, Nov. 23.—In the probate court yesterday an order was issued authorizing the payment of $8000 to Bowdoin college from the estate of the late Catherine H. Garcelon, who died in this city several years ago, leaving the sum in trust for the college. The matter has been in litigation for several years.

Suspected of Poisoning Child

New York, Nov. 23.—The internal organs of Emmeline Dale, the child who died in Hoboken on Tuesday and whose mother is charged with her murder, are now in possession of Dr. Schultz, who will examine them for traces of poison. The authorities are working to establish a motive for the alleged crime.

Choral Union.

About forty people met at the Unitarian church vestry, Wollaston, Tuesday evening, to organize a musical club. Some misunderstanding as to the time of the meeting and the damp night prevented many from attending who had already signified their intenten of joining. The object of this club is to get thd people together in the community as well as to promote a cultivation of superior mnsic. Rev. Edward Chase opened the meeting with a few introductory remarks as to the object of the club. The following officers were appointed: President, Mr Cornish; Vice President, Mr. Ichabod Faunce; Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. Rowe; Executive committee, Mr. Chase, Mrs. Rideout, Mrs. Jewell and the officers. It was voted to give the name "Choral Union" to the club, for Wollaston, Atlantic, Milton and Quincy are to unite. A musical director of prominence has been secured. The next meeting will be announced later.

History of Marshfield.

We have received from the author, Lysander S. Richards, Esq., the History of Marshfield; a very interesting book of 238 pages. It gives an excellent history of the place from 1632, eight years before its settlement became a town. In 1640 it was incorporated as Marshfield, being the eighth town in Plymouth Colony. Mr. Richards has a very easy and pleasant way of stating facts and incidents of early times, which makes the History of Marshfield, not only profitable but very interesting reading to any one whether they have ever visited or heard of Daniel Webster's famous town. Marshfield, like Quincy, is a noted place, and its history will command a ready sale, not only for the public libraries of Massachusetts, but all over New England.

MOTIONS.

216—Blaisdell vs. Quinn.

Literary Note.

People frequently comment on the overcrowding of the ten cent magazine field. No wonder! Pick at random the half dozen leaders in the ten cent race, and you will find their total output approximates two million copies a month, or in a year, one to every fourth inhabitant of the United States,—at least a quarter of a pound of ten cent literature to every man, woman and child. In this vast mass, the magazine without individuality is lost. This saving strain is particularly apparent in Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly, which has a marked style of its own, beside the elaborate color plates which mark it from all its ten cent contemporaries. Its illustrations and make-up have a distinctive and pleasing style, while its articles either strike a personal note or aim to interpret some interesting phase of American life.

"Last winter an infant child of mine had croup in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist, of Filley, Mo. "I gave her a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and in a short time all danger was past and the child recovered." This remedy not only cures croup but when given as soon as the first symptoms appear, will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Coming to Keith's for the week commencing Nov. 25 are the following noted entertainers: Paul Cinquevalli, the famous Russian juggler, who has just concluded the longest engagement ever fulfilled by a single performer in New York; Papinta, the inimitable "myriad" dancer, who will have something new to offer in color and light effects; Bruet et Rivieres, the popular French vocal mimics; May Edouin and Fred Edwards, in a character comedy sketch, "All in the Family;" Robinson and Grant, midget comedians; Sam J. Adams, known as "the long boy," a versatile monologue funmaker; Frank Lincoln, an entertainer of the Marshall Wilder type, who has just returned from an extensive European tour, and John Healy, a well known blackface comedian. The Four Lukens, the marvelous mid-air acrobats, are the only hold-overs, but everybody will want to see them a second time, as nothing at all comparable with their act has ever before been seen in Boston, As usual, the biograph pictures will be all changed and Director Baer's orchestra will have an overture of popular airs.

CHILDREN'S THEATRE.

The universal friendliness that has been manifested towards the Children's Theatre in Huntington Chambers, 30 Huntington Avenue, Boston, since it was started, has been exceedingly gratifying to many who have, since the idea was first talked of, been heartily in favor of it. The theatre is now presenting its first play, "Alice in Looking-Glass Land," and the large audiences that have attended every performance have all gone away satisfied. Three performances a week are given—on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons at 4 o'clock, so as not to conflict with school hours, and Saturday afternoons at 2.30 o'clock. It was started, and is being conducted by Miss Margaret MacLaren Eager, who has a reputation in several states for her successful juvenile theatrical productions. It is her idea to give plays at this theatre of a high order and in such an attractive way that the children will be satisfied with nothing else. The dramatization of Lewis Carroll's book, "As in a Looking-Glass" was adapted by Miss Eager. It follows the story very closely. Attention is called to the fact that the matinee on Thanksgiving day will begin at 3 o'clock instead of 4 o'clock. On Saturday, December 7, the first performance of "Little Miss Muffett's Christmas Party" will be given and then after a four weeks' run, "The Magic Fiddle," a baby opera, will succeed it.

PARK THEATRE.

"Lover's Lane," which is entering upon its accond month at the Park Theatre, Boston, continues to draw enormous audiences, and the cosy house nightly rings with merriment and applause. Previous engagements will prevent this delightful play from remaining very much longer, but before it is withdrawn it will have exceeded the time originally assigned it. The popular verdict approving William A. Brady s delightful offering is thoroughly justified, for it is a sweet, wholesome, fascinating love story, blending with dramatic incidents at times pathetic and at times farcical.

The scenery is so good that it almost makes one forget that it is scenery. The views of the apple orchard give an excellent impression of distance and rolling hills. The trees with their real leaves and real apples are perfect in realism. "Lover's Lane" is not a long lane and one can get through it four turns in ample time for the suburban trains. Seats are selling rapidly for the Thanksgiving performances which include a special holiday matinee.

BOSTON MUSEUM.

One of the sweetest, purest pastorals ever put upon the stage" is what the Rev. Peter MacQueen, of West Somerville, one of the best known pastors of Eastern Massachusetts says, of "Sky Farm" now entering upon its eighth week of phenomenal success at the Boston Museum.

As one evidence of the way in which the character of the Rev. Milo Towers, one of the principal individuals in the play has influenced one clergyman who saw the performance, the Rev. Leslie Moore, pastor of the Virginia Street Universalist church in Dorchester, he took as the subject of his morning sermon last Sunday, the 17th, "Unshackled Manhood or the Virtue of Independence—I own myself!"—Neighbor Nixon in "Sky Farm." This is certainly something unusual for the pastor of a Boston church to find his text on the stage of a theatre and may be considered perhaps as a good sign of a closer union between the church and the playhouse. Thousands have witnessed this charming play, "all sunshine and love" probably the best drama of its kind ever presented upon the American stage and each one has told of its merits to friends, judging by the great demand for seats. This demand absolutely forbids the running of any special excursions or theatre parties for they could not be accommodated with seats. The matinee of Thanksgiving day offers a splendid chance for patrons at a distance to visit "Sky Farm" at the Boston Museum.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

For Thanksgiving week the Castle Square Theatre attraction will be the rollicking farce comedy "What Happened to Jones," and the success which attended the performances of this merry play last season makes its revival a welcome event. Jones and the Bishop will again disport themselves for the enjoyment of the Castle Square audiences and the immensely funny scenes and situations will make all who see them forget, for the time being, all cares. There are few of the farce comedies of the day better planned to give pleasure than this, and few productions in its line have proved better suited to the Castle Square Company. The assignment of characters in the comedy is a follows: Jones, John Craig; Ebenezer Goodly, John T. Craven; Rev. Anthony Goodly, Edward Wade; William Bigbee, Lindsay Morrison; Thomas Holder, J. L. Seeley; Cissy, Eva Taylor; Minerva, Maye Louise Aigen; Marjorie, Marian A. Chapman; Alvina Starlight, Leonora Bradley; Belma, Mary Sanders "What Happened to Jones" is announced fo only a single week and will be followed by a most elaborate production of the English drama "Harbor Lights" for which preparations have been in progress for many weeks. The usual distribution of chocolate bonbons will be made at the Monday matinees until further notice.

☞ Ask your husband if he has any idea how much real enduring satisfaction it would give you if he would replace the worn out old range with a new Glenwood.

UP-TO-DATE FOOTBALL

Harvard Put Up Superior Article In Game With Yale

BLUE COMPLETLY BURIED

Quarter-Back Marshall Does Some Sensational Work For the Crimson —Over Thirty-Six Thousand People Saw the Game

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 25.—Soldier's Field was the scene of the greatest sporting event Saturday afternoon, in point of general interest, that has ever taken place in this country. Over 36,000 people, seated in the immense amphitheatre, all wrought up to a high pitch of excitement, looked down upon the dramatic struggle for football supremacy between Harvard and Yale. It was a glorious battle and, as a climax to a season of surprises, the underestimated eleven swept all before it, defeating Yale by a score of 22 to 0.

From start to finish Yale was outplayed and outgeneralled by Captain Campbell's team. Yale was never dangerous. Har two chances of striking the crimson goal line were successfully blocked, and thus was it demonstrated that Harvard had an impenetrable defense as well as an irresistable attack. When Harvard had shown that she had these two points in her favor the jig was up for Elihu.

Harvard turned out a far better team than her most ardent supporter had thought she possessed. The superb condition of her players enabled them to go through the game without a single change. Yale, on the other hand, could not stand the terrific pace. Her captain had to retire in the second half and she was forced to put in four substitutes. It was a new experience for Yale to lose her leader in a football game, and she was completely routed.

Not once in the first half was Yale able to gain five yards by rushing Harvard's ground, and she gained very little ground in the entire game. The game was won in the first half. Yale could not gain ground and she showed her hand when she resorted to the quarter-back kick early in the contest. Then De Saulles tried a goal from the field, only to have the kick blocked. Harvard then booted the ball out of danger.

Harvard's tackle-play was brought into execution when the crimson recovered the ball after an exchange of punts, and Ristine made the first long run of the game. He carried the leather for 34 yards, planting it nine yards from Yale's goal. The rest was easy for Harvard, and Blagden scored the first touchdown.

Harvard's second touchdown was earned by steady line bucking, which forced Yale to retreat from midfield, with Kernan finally taking the ball.

Cutts, the player whose eligibility was questioned by Yale, kicked both goals.

With the score 12 to 0 in her favor, Harvard wound up the first half by two brilliant plays in which Quarter-back Marshall held the centre of the stage. Marshall, with his whole team in front of him, ran in for 47 yards after catching the ball from Olcott's kick-off. Harvard then rushed to Yale's 29-yard line, and at this point little Marshall dropped back to the 40-yard line to try a goal from the field.

The ball went flying from the centre into Marshall's hands. He stopped for an instant, and then sent the leather straight for the bars with a long, low kick that gathered force and elevation as it sailed for the uprights. It was one of the prettiest drop kicks ever seen on a college gridiron.

Harvard retired at the end of the first half with 17 points to the good, while Yale had never seriously threatened the crimson goal line.

Marshall made another sensational run of 49 yards in the second half after catching a punt. Then Cutts, Ristine and Graydon ripped through the Yale line until Graydon scored a touchdown. Cutts had to kick against the wind and he failed to negotiate the goal posts.

Only once in the last half did Yale get within striking distance of the Harvard goal line. Through a fumble she secured possession on Harvard's 15-yard line, but the wearers of the crimson regained the leather on downs on their own 10-yard line. Harvard then rallied and put up a spirited finish. Yale fought hard for every inch of ground, but she had to fall back before the crimson onslaughts.

When the final whistle blew, it was Yale's ball on her own 36-yard line.

To sum it up in a nutshell, Harvard had the weight, the speed and the brawn, and was able to put into execution a more up-to-date article of football than her opponent. Harvard went on the field an unknown quantity as to her real strength, while Yale came up from New Haven quite confident of victory after having won from Princeton.

It was well known that Harvard had the weight and the only question was whether she had the speed to go with it. This point did not remain in doubt, as Harvard was able to get the jump on her opponent at the very outset, and it was plain to see that it was only a question of time before the crimson would score.

AGED WOMAN ROBBED

Masked Men Entered Her Home and Took Money by Force

Avon, Mass., Nov. 25.—Shortly after 6 o'clock Saturday night, Mrs. George Linfield, 70 years old, had $700 forcibly taken from her by two masked men at the point of a revolver. The two men entered the house and found Mrs. Linfield and her daughter in the sitting room. The men had white cloths over their faces, with holes cut for their eyes. They asked Mrs. Linfield for money, but she denied that she had any, and then the men proceeded to ransack the room.

Not finding any in the bureau drawers, they came back to Mrs. Linfield and tearing open the front of her dress discovered $700 in $1 bills. The Linfields had recently sold their place and the money was part of the result of the sale.

The police were immediately notified after the robbery took place and the authorities in all the adjoining towns were notified. There is some expectation that the robbers may be apprehended.

Succumbed to Deadly Fumes

North Adams, Mass., Nov. 25.—A party of eight tracklayers in Hoosac tunnel yesterday began to be overcome by gas and smoke in the tunnel and started for the portal. Some fell behind the others, Michael Powers being the last of all. When the other seven reached the portal and found that Powers was missing, they went back on a construction train and found him lying unconscious about 2000 feet from the portal. He was taken on the train, but died before reaching the North Adams station. The tunnel is ventilated by a large fan, but a blizzard was raging and the atmospheric conditions made the fan ineffectual.

New England Storm Swept

Boston, Nov. 25.—A heavy November gale swept over New England yesterday, and its force was felt to some extent in and around Boston. The most damage, however, was done along the tidewater front from two very high tides. The storm put a check on navigation, but as it had been well predicted there were no wrecks and no loss of life in this vicinity. Naturally there were stories told of great inroads of the ocean at shore resorts, but careful inquiry fails to show that damage done in any locality was greater than is expected from storms at this time of the year.

Slugged Husband With Axe

Boston, Nov. 25.—Charged with attempting to kill her husband with an axe, Mrs. Mary Lewis, a colored wife of five months, and barely 20 years of age, is under arrest. Lewis was cut through his scalp, having a wound three inches long. According to the police the prisoner is declared to have stated that she bought the axe for the express purpose of killing her husband and that she was sorry the weapon was not sharp. Lewis is said to have been a dutiful husband, but the visits of another colored man to the house caused frequent trouble and finally led to the assault.

Didn't Know It Was Loaded

Portland, Me., Nov. 25.—Burdeigh E. Cornish, 16 years old, was accidentally shot yesterday by Fred Teague, a playmate of about the same age and is now in a critical condition. Teague says that he did not know the gun was loaded or how it happened to go off. Cornish owned the gun but has been in no condition to tell what he knew about it being loaded.

Many Horses Perished

Bar Harbor, Me., Nov. 25.—A fire broke out yesterday morning in the town of Eden, it starting in Graves' Bros.' livery stable, and before it was stopped it had burned several nearby structures. The stable was entirely in flames almost before the alarm was given and in consequence 18 horses were lost. The total loss reaches about $21,500.

Dr Drew Accepts Call

Boston, Nov. 25.—Rev. Dr. Simon P. W. Drew, pastor of St. Stephen's Baptish church (colored), Long Island city, has accepted a call to St. Paul's Baptist church, this city. Dr. Drew is president of the United Aid and Benevolent Association of America. He will assume his new charge Dec. 1.

Captain Didn't Reach Shore

Narragansett Pier, R. I., Nov. 25.—Captain Lewis Mackey of schooner J. G. Fell was drowned off Sandhill cove yesterday, while trying to reach shore from his schooner, which was in sinking condition in the harbor of refuge.

Caught on Monmouth Beach

New York, Nov. 25.—The full-rigged ship Flottbek, which went ashore at Monmouth beach during Saturday night's gale, is resting on the sands apparently little the worse for her experience and her crew is being cared for by the life savers of station No. 4, by whom they were rescued. The tug Robert Haddon is a wreck, but her crew were saved.

When you feel that life is hardly worth the candle take a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They will cleanse your stomach, tone up your liver and regulate your bowels, making you feel like a new man. For sale by all druggists.

CANNON AND RIFLES

Used by Insurgents to Beat Off American Soldiers

THEY SCALED HIGH CLIFFS

Took a Fort and Inflicted Severe Punishment Upon the Enemy—Philippine Constabulary Proving a Valuable Adjunct to the Military

Manila, Nov. 25.—Captain Edward P. Lawton's company of the 19th infantry has attacked and captured an insurgent fort on Bohol island (south of Cebu, in the Visayan group).

Steep cliffs surrounded this fort on every side and the only entrance to the higher ground was guarded by a stockade with a line of entrenchments behind it. Captain Lawton sent Sergeant McMahon and 20 men to climb the cliff and attack the fort in the rear. Sergeant McMahon's party accomplished their task after three hours' arduous climbing through the thick undergrowth of brush and vines that covered the almost perpendicular cliff.

They took the enemy by surprise and drove them from the fort. As the insurgents escaped they had to pass the balance of Captain Lawton's company at a distance of 150 yards. Here the enemy suffered terrible losses.

The insurgents defended themselves with both cannon and rifles. The cannon were captured, the smaller ones being removed while the larger ones were buried.

Captain Lawton, in his report, makes special mention for bravery of Sergeants List and McMahon.

General Chaffee has ordered that in the future complete records shall be kept of all natives taking the oath of allegiance to the United States. Duplicates of these records will be signed in English, Spanish and Tagalog.

The Philippines constabulary, which was organized last August, is proving itself a valuable adjunct to the military authorities, and is making an enviable record.

The United States distilling ship Iris has been aground on a reef near Iloilo, Panay Island, for three days past. The United States cruiser New York and the gunboat Yorktown have gone to her assistance.

Soldiers Descended on Union Camp

Madisonville, Ky., Nov. 25.—The camp of the striking union miners, a quarter of a mile from Nortonville, was marched upon yesterday by County Judge Hall. Sheriff Hankins and two deputies, Adjutant General Murray and his aides, Captain Ellis and Captain Gordon, and two companies of the state guard. Of the 200 men that had been in camp defying the order of County Judge Hall to move, only 25 remained when the officers and the militia descended upon their stronghold. All of these were arrested, though two escaped.

In Financial Straits

Constantinople, Nov. 25.—Never has the Turkish government been in such financial straits as at the present time. The Ottoman bank utterly refuses to make any more advances and the penury is so acute that even the troops in many of the provinces are unpaid. Hostile demonstrations here recently have only been quieted by the authorities hastily scraping together a few thousand piastres or something on account. The discontent in the army forms the real danger of the situation.

Miners Killed by Deadly Gases

Bluefield, W. Va., Nov. 25.—The dead bodies of the lost party of eight prominent mining men who entered West mine of the Pocahontas Collieries company on Friday morning last at 11 o'clock, were recovered at 12:45 yesterday. They were victims of the deadly white damp. The bodies are very much swollen and, having been attacked by mine rats, present a gruesome spectacle. The fire is still burning in Baby mine.

Old Subject's Visit Queen Lil

Salt Lake City, Nov. 25.—Former Queen Liluokalani and her attendants are the guests of the Hawaiian colony in Salt Lake City and will be entertained here until Tuesday, when she will resume her journey eastward. The Hawaiian colony here is quite large and today many of the deposed queen's former subjects called on her at her apartments.

Another Russian Gusher

Baku, Nov. 25.—The immense oil well which has been producing 1,000,000 poods daily since Nov. 17, has been supplemented by another gusher almost as large, which was struck Nov. 21. As a result of this immense production the local price of oil has fallen 6 kopecks.

Long Struggle Ended

Tampa, Fla., Nov. 25.—La Resistencia union has officially declared the cigar makers' strike off. This ends the struggle which started last July between the cigarmakers and manufacturers. The latter have not yielded a single point.

Ultimatum From Brigands

London, Nov. 25.—Mr. Dickinson has received no reply from the brigands to his ultimatum, says a despatch from Sofia to The Daily Telegraph. The brigands threaten to kill Miss Stone unless the full ransom is paid by Jan. 1.

Good Afternoon

The interview with President Jameson of the Republican City Committee, published Saturday, was an able, business-like presentation of the Mayoralty contest. Like all that has been said from a Republican standpoint it was free from "mud" and innuendoes, and a plain statement of the facts which commanded attention and was convincing. It is not the wish of the rank and file of the voters that city officials and city employes shall be active politicians, and the words of warning were timely and necessary.

Candidate Jones has already said that he has made no promises relative to appointments to office or removals, and Mr. Jameson denies that it was his object to remove either Chief Williams or Commissioner Knowlton.

No further explanation seems to be necessary relative to the conference of anti-Bryant delegates held previous to the convention. The sensational story in a Boston paper was very much overdone and has not accomplished its purpose. Only those who were outgeneraled see anything morally wrong or crooked, and it is only pretense with them. The delegates included some of our best citizens: successful business men—church men if you will—and they are not ashamed that all the voters should know what transpired.

Anti-Bryant delegates were almost without a leader, but they all had one object in mind and on that needed no urging. They were all anti-Bryant. They met to unite, and they did it at one session. They were loyal to the candidates to whom they were pledged and also to their constituents who elected them as anti-Bryant delegates.

Mr. Jameson's tribute to Candidate Jones is all deserved, and there is no reason at all why Republicans should bolt their ticket. Frederick L. Jones is a man of such sterling integrity that he is the peer of all the other candidates, and will receive the votes of many Democrats as well as Republicans, who place good government above politics, and desire economy and lower taxes.

The Democratic City Committee are conducting a clean and aggressive canvass for their candidate. Their address of Saturday to the voters was admirably written. It was devoted mainly to setting forth the good points in their Mayoralty candidate. Exceptions may be taken to the statement that "the Republican party in Quincy is irreconcilably split up." At best, it looks as if both parties would be unable to hold their full strength.

SOME FOOLISH PEOPLE

Allow a cough to run until it gets beyond the reach of medicine. They often say, "Oh, it will wear away," but in most cases it will wear them away. Could they be induced to try the successful medicine called Kemp's Balsam, which is sold on a positive guarantee to cure, they would immediately see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Price 25c. and 50c. Trial size free. At all druggists.

THE JONES CLUB.

Enthusiasm at Meeting in Ward Three Saturday.

The Jones club is now well organized and at work to elect Frederick L. Jones as Mayor of the city. The headquarters in the Doble building on Franklin street were thronged Saturday evening with enthusiastic supporters who not only enrolled their names as members but then and there contributed over $50 toward the expenses of the campaign with as much more in sight.

Previous to the meeting of the club the Ward Three Republican Committee met, and practically disbanded, it being understood that the campaign in Ward Three should be conducted by the Jones club.

No extended notice of the meeting was given but more than 100 signatures were obtained which will be published later. The club organized with John C. Murray as president and B. J. Langhorne as secretary.

Speeches were made by most of the gentlemen present, who were all of one accord, viz: that Frederick L. Jones was a man of sterling character and a desirable candidate; that Ward Three should put loyal pride into the contest and elect a Ward Three gentleman as Mayor; that the independent candidate was an unsafe man to put in the Mayoralty chair.

This club is in full accord with President Jameson and the Ward and City Republican Committee and will act with entire harmony, the main object being to elect Fred L. Jones for Mayor with the entire Republican ticket.

The organization will be completed on Tuesday evening, and a public invitation is extended to members of the Republican Ward and City Committee, and all citizens who intend to support Frederick L. Jones for Mayor.

Benefit at Wollaston.

A concert for the benefit of Mr. Herbert A. Corbett who has been taken with a serious illness and has been out of employment for some time, was held Nov. 22d, in Odd Fellows hall, Wollaston. The concert was given by the two orders, John Hancock Lodge and Hodenosaunee tribe of Red Men.

The overture, "Behind the Hands" by the Green Orchestra of Atlantic opened the entertainment. Mr. E. E. Bullock gave many select solos. "Don't you cry my Honey" and In Absence," were rendered by the Wollaston Glee Club. The feature of the evening was the singing by Professor George B. Cutter who favored the audience with many selections. Mr. Sweezey read feelingly, "Ghost," "Me and Jim." "She waited for Me" and "Dreams," while Miss Annie Lynch read interestingly, "She wanted to be a Mason," and "Sure cure for Rheumatism." A large number were present and a neat sum was netted. The committee in charge of the evening were George E. Ela, C. F. West, G. H. Wardwell, J. McLeod, M. H. Jordon and F. M. McClintock, all representatives of these lodges.

Concert and Dance.

A testimonial was given to William F. Donovan at Hancock hall Nov. 22. There was a good attendance and the several numbers on the program were well rendered and evoked hearty applause. Among the specialty artists to appear were James Lee, tenor soloist; the Dunn's in a comic acrobatic sketch; Miss Edith M. Ralph, the child reader; Pete Wiley in monologue and songs; Prof. John Robertson, champion bag puncher; Miss Belle McIntosh in coon songs; John C. McGuane, ballad singer; Garland Mischler fancy dancer; Wiley Bros., buck and wing dancers; Dan Haley in specialties and Prof. Arthur Tripp the hypnotist. At the conclusion of the entertainment there was dancing until 3 o'clock in the morning. Refreshments were served during intermission.

Jumped on a Ten Penny Nail.

The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake made of ten-penny nails, and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and a second one half way through. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes later the pain had disappeared and no more suffering was experienced. In three days the child was wearing her shoe as usual and with absolutely no discomfort. Mr. Powell is a well known merchant of Forkland, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and heals such injuries without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. For sale by all druggists.

VERY HIGH TIDE.

Floods at Quincy Point, Houghs Neck and Atlantic.

The unusually high tide this morning did considerable damage at Houghs Neck, and people who live near the shore say that had the wind blown as hard as it did Sunday they would have been floated to Quincy. As it was, many of the cellars on the low land near the Yacht clubhouse and on the west shore are full of water, and everything is afloat.

The tide came up over the street near Dunham's postoffice, store and did considerable damage. Mrs. Dunham says that it was something fearful.

The bowling alley in the Sportsmen grill, owned by A. A. Meyer is ruined. The tide came in and forced up the alleys and broke them apart.

On the shore front the tide came up the breakwater and washed the embankment away.

Over by the causeway the street was overflowed and work on the Metropolitan sewer had to be suspended.

The two wharfs at Houghs Neck were not damaged but dories owned by John Sullivan, Mr. Webber and Mr. Hammond were blown ashore and smashed.

At Quincy Point the tide did considerable damage. The road leading to the bridge from the Weymouth side was overflowed to such an extent as to stop street car traffic. Trees and fences are blown down and evidence of the storm are seen everywhere. Over on Howard street the street was overflowed and foot traffic was stopped.

The causeway leading to Squantum was entirely overflowed by this morning's tide and for several hours it was impossible for the street cars to make their trips. When the tide receded it left a high bank of seaweed in the middle of the street. Along the Squantum shore the tide has left tons of refuse in the shape of lumber, boxes, limbs of trees, etc. No other damage was done however.

At Neponset the tide came up to the bottom of the railroad and street bridges, but fortunately did not overflow them. Trains on the main line, however, crossed the bridge very slowly. The wharf of the Stearns Lumber Co. and Frost coal wharf were overflowed and some little damage done.

The track of the Granite branch of the New Haven road near Montclair were overflowed and there was quite a serious washout near the depot. Both outward and inward trains on this line were held for several hours as it was impossible for any train to pass.

Further along toward East Milton the tide came up near the tracks but not enough to stop traffic.

The tide made in around the Atlantic depot and for a time this station was almost surrounded by water. The gravel banks nearby were washed out some but no particular damage was done.

The tide was very high near the almshouse, the flats between Coddington and Canal streets being overflowed, and at one time both of these streets were almost surrounded by water. The water, however, did not go over either street.

☞ SECOND HAND RANGES as good as new for one-half the price at Frank F. Crane's, 4 Chestnut Street.

Muster Records.

The Butcher Boy and Union of Braintree are among the few hand engines in the state with a record of over 220 feet, the best record being held by Gardner No. 4 of Gardner, 241 feet, 10 inches.

In average record for 1901, however, the Union ranks No. 25, and the Butcher Boy No. 34.

The Union stands No. 8 in amount of prizes won this year, a total of $400 in nine musters.

The Butcher Boy won $70 in eight musters.

The Union made records this year of 200 feet, 3 inches; 214 feet, 6 inches; 205 feet, 9 3-4 inches; while the best play of the Butcher Boy was 201 feet, 8 1-2 inches.

Found Dead.

Patrick O'Toole, aged 35 years, employed at the Fore River works as a riviter, was found dead in bed this morning at his boarding house on Maple place. O'Toole has been drinking rather hard of late, and Sunday he went to bed about noon time. Nothing more was heard from him. This morning when the boarding mistress went to call him she found him dead. Medical Examiner Jones, who was called, gave the cause of the man's death as acute alcoholism. His home was in Baltimore where he had a wife and one child.

Ward Six Reception.

A smoke talk in the interest of Frederick L. Jones for Mayor, will be held in Music hall, Atlantic on Friday evening next. Among the speakers will be Mayor Hall, City Solicitor Sears, Senator Sprague, ex-Councilman Harry W. Read and others. All voters of the ward will be invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Mitchell Chapple, observed the fifteenth anniversary of their marriage Saturday at their home in Brookline. Mr. Chapple is the editor of that well known up to date magazine The National.

Sunday was a very disagreeable day and everybody whose business did not call them out wisely remained in doors. It was noticed that the street cars were not largely patronized and the receipts for the day must have been light.

About two columns of local news in type for Saturday's Ledger was crowded out by the pressure of political matter which accounts for apppearance of the items a little late. It looks today as if considerable would be crowded out also.

Readers of the Daily Ledger of Saturday were surprised to get such quick returns of the Harvard-Yale match. The score of the first half appeared in all the Ledgers, and the final score in all papers printed after 4.30, hours in advance of Boston dailies.

The fine estate of the late C. Philip Tirrell, on Golfe street, has been let as a boarding and lodging house and is now crowded with laborers employed on the Metropolitan sewer. It seems strange that such valuable property should be thus abandoned to misuse or destruction.

There are so many Newcombs at Quincy Point and Quincy Neck that some may have received the impression that S. F. Newcomb or Councilman Newcomb was antagonistic to the ship yard, but such is not the case, as all acquainted with these gentlemen know. It was C. Webster Newcomb who opposed the improvement.

Sunday papers reported Henry Edwards of this city to have been seriously injured Saturday evening in Boston, but the injuries were not as serious as reported. He was leaving his lodging house to come to Quincy when he slipped and fell on the steps. As he lived near the City hospital it was decided to take him there. It was thought he would be able to go to work today or tomorrow.

"Last winter an infant child of mine had croup in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist, of Filley, Mo. "I gave her a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and in a short time all danger was past and the child recovered." This remedy not only cures croup but when given as soon as the first symptoms appear, will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

The latest estimate by a prominent Republican is: Jones, over 1,700; Tirrell and Bryant each less than 1000 while 200 are divided between Turner and Mr. Blank.

BRYANT ACCEPTS.

His Reasons for Entering The Field.

Reviews the Caucuses and Convention.

Outlines His Platform as a Candidate.

To the Citizens of Quincy:

At the city election on December 3rd next my name will appear on the official ballot as that of a candidate for the office of Mayor the reasons for accepting the citizens' nomination are briefly these:

In the early fall it became evident that the enemies of the Chief Engineer of the Fire Department and of the Commissioner of Public Works were hard at work in behalf of certain candidates for Mayor who, it was said, would if elected, oust Mr. Knowlton and Mr. Williams from their positions. I was appealed to by friends of these two men to allow my name to be used in connection with the nomination for Mayor and in opposition to this scheme. It was with reluctance that I consented to run as the time which I felt would be necessary to give to the duties of the office of Mayor was needed for the proper conduct of my own business. However, as a member of the Council for eight years, and having been a close follower of city and town affairs for a much longer period, in the confidence of my experience I believed that Quincy had never been better served in these departments than by the present incumbents, Charles F. Knowlton and Peter J. Williams. It was my desire, therefore, to see these two men continue in the service of the city, that first brought me into the field as a candidate.

What then followed is well known. A delegation in my support was filed in every ward of the city; in fact in Ward 6 it was the only delegation. The result of the Republican caucuses was that half of the wards elected delegates favorable to me, all the other wards giving me substantial support. One of these elected Mr. Packard's delegation, another Mr. Jones, and the remaining ward turned a combined delegation pledged to three, namely Mr. Packard, Mr. Jones and Mr. Jameson, —a few delegates to each man. The caucus returns showed in figures 1,053 votes for Bryant, 1,193 votes for all others; 23 delegates for Bryant, 28 for all others. By this it would appear that nearly half the Republican votes were cast for my delegates, and when it is taken into consideration that in Ward 6 the other candidates did not file a delegation of any sort, conceding practically everything there to me, and that 40 votes out of 580 only were cast in the ward, it is obvious that the 1,053 votes would have been made larger by some hundreds, giving me a clear majority over all other candidates combined.

What then followed is not so well known although a partial account, the writer of which is strangely self-gratulatory considering the circumstances, has appeared in the public press. A secret convention of the Packard, Jones and Jameson delegates, in advance of the legitimate convention, was arranged for Saturday, Nov. 9th. All solemnly pledged themselves to secrecy and to abide by the result of the balloting. The balloting was prolonged into next morning and ended in a tie between Mr. Packard and Mr. Jones. At this juncture it was settled that the drawing from a hat should decide it. Mr. Jones drew the prize. Thus Jones was selected, having filed a delegation in only one ward in the city, having given the voters in the Republican party in five wards out of six no opportunity whatever to signify their choice for him, and in spite of Mr. Packard's having more delegates elected by the voters and in spite of my having as many delegates elected by the voters as Mr. Packard and Mr. Jones combined. The regular convention at which my delegates were given no consideration, was simply a mechanical endorsement of his nomination so ingeniously brought about. By this means it has been possible to defeat for the nomination a man having the backing of as many, and probably more, Republican voters than all the other candidates put together.

Citizens who believe that an important party nomination should not be determined by a lottery and given to a third choice candidate who did not go before the people throughout the city in seeking his nomination, who believe that public servants having proved themselves efficient in office should be retained, have, since the convention, urge me still to run for Mayor. The reasons that persuaded me to allow my name to go before the caucuses as a candiate are no less compelling now.

If I am elected Mayor of the city, I will give a strictly non-partisan administration of the city's affairs appointing to office only such men as are best qualified by training, experience and character for the positions they are to occupy.

I will give my time as generously and conduct the affairs of the city as prudently, conscientious and energetically as I would my own private business.

I will be as economical in the conduct of the city's finances as is possible, consistent with a purpose to secure to the city good streets and sidewalks, good schools, an efficient police department and equipment, continuing the fire department in its present efficient standing, and making the city a desirable place to do business and live in, as much from the standpoint of the taxpayer as those who desire the necesities and conveniences of a well regulated up ot date municipality.

I believe in the present policy of no license in Quincy, and if elected I will see that the laws governing the sale of liquors are honestly and fairly enforced.

Charles M. Bryant.

$200,000 FIRE.

Fertilizer Works at North Weymouth the Scene.

A disastrous fire occured about 5 o'clock this morning at the Bradley Fertilizer works at North Weymouth. The fire, which is reported to have been caused by electric light wires, started in what is known as the acid building in the cupalo.

A general alarm was sent in on the Weymouth fire alarm circuit, and the company's department did heroic service in saving surrounding property. Owing to the distance the Weymouth fire department had to travel before reaching the scene, it was sometime before they arrived and got to work.

The main efforts of the firemen were directed to saving the surrounding buildings, which they were successful in doing.

The plant is now owned by what is known as the American Chemical Co., whose headquarters are in Philadelphia. The loss is estimated at $200,000.

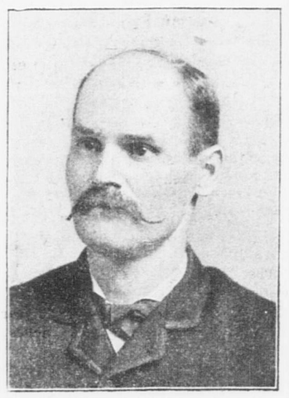

The fire made a bright illumination and was plainly seen from Quincy.

To the Public.

Allow me to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I had a very severe cough and cold and feared I would get pneumonia, but after taking the second dose of this medicine I felt better, three bottles of it cured my cold, and the pains in my chest disappeared entirely. I am most respectfully yours for health, Ralph S. Meyers, 64 Thirty-seventh street, Wheeling, W. Va. For sale by all druggists.

COUNCILMEN.

But Few Changes Are Probable.

New President Will Be Necessary.

DeNormandie, Hultman, Nicoll and Others Will Be Missed.

The Legislative branch of the city government has come in for the most criticism during the past year, but little is heard relative to the candidates for the City Council.

Sixteen of the present body have been renominated—13 by the Republicans, and 3 by the Democrats, while each party has nominated an ex-Councilman, viz. Nathan G. Nickerson at large by the Republicans, and Peter T. Fallon in Ward Four by the Democrats. The Councilmen of 1901 who have not been nominated include: Cyrus T. Sherman, Eugene C. Hultman, Harry S. Nicol, William T. Spargo, Eugene F. DeNormandie and Charles M. Bryant. Mr. Spargo, however, is running on nomination papers in Ward Three.

The chances are good for the reelection of fifteen of the present Councilmen, and it is probable that the Council of 1902 will be made up of 20 Republicans and 3 Democrats.

It is said, however, that the Democrats will make an attempt to reelect Councilman Callahan who is running at-large instead of in Ward Four; also ex-Mayor Keith who is running at large. The Social Democrats who have nominated a complete ticket at large and by wards will also attempt to land Gustave B. Bates at large. Should either Mr. Callahan, Mr. Keith or Mr. Bates succeed they would displace Republicans. In Ward Two, Councilman Thompson was the leading candidate last year, but his attitude toward the schoolhouse and in support of President Bryant will cost him many votes. A prominent Quincy Point Democrat says Mr. Carter, who made a good run last year, is sure to be elected.

The nominees of the Republicans and Democrats are given below, those renominated being marked with an asterick, and ex-Councilmen with a dagger:

AT LARGE.

G. A. R. Fair a Success.

The annual six days' fair of Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., came to a successful end Saturday night. The attendance through the week has been large and there was no night when the attendance was not as large as could have been expected with the many other events going on. The articles on the several tables were nearly all sold and the shares on the guessing and other contests were well sold up. Saturday night was devoted to the awarding of articles sold by guessing, and many received a handsome return for the money invested.

Those in charge of the table where the season tickets were redeemed were kept busy. Every holder of a season ticket got something. Some a present of trifling value while others received a crisp ten dollar bill. It is impossible at this writing to tell just how much the fair netted as the returns have not all come in as yet, but it was a financial success.

School Tickets.

Changes made by the Street Railway Company in the plan of handling School Tickets.

A new plan went into effect last week on the Old Colony Street Railway System in regard to tickets used by scholars of the public schools. Heretofore anyone could purchase these tickets and it was discovered that a number of people who purchased and used them were not attending any school. In order to overcome this the Railway Company has issued certificates which have been sent to the principal and teachers of the various schools. These certificats are issued to such pupils as ride on the company's cars and are filled out with the name of the pupil, name of the school at which he or she is an attendant and signed by the principal. These certificates are then presented at the company's office or at one of its ticket agencies for a forty ride book which are sold at the rate of $1.00 each making the rate 2 1-2 cents per ride, the same as heretofore.

A second form of school ticket has been issued which is sold strictly to the School Departments of the various cities and towns. These are issued in strips of ten each and are sold at the rate of 25 cent per strip and can only be purchased through the School Departments.

TODAY'S COURT.

Frank McFadden and Victor Boane were fined $5 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

James Keating was fined $5 for drunkenness at Milton.

George H. Fredericks was arraigned for bastardy at Randolph. Case continued until Wednesday.

A Card.

We, the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on a 50 cent bottle of Greene's Warranted Syrup of Tar if it fails to cure your cough or cold. We also guarantee a 25-cent bottle to prove satisfactory or money refunded.

COLON'S BOMBARDMENT

Task Assigned the Colombian Gunboat Pinzon

CITY IS GREATLY EXCITED

Commander McCrea Awaits Instructions From Washington—Breastworks Being Erected in Panama's Public Thoroughfares

Colon, Nov. 25.—The Colombian gunboat General Pinzon arrived in this harbor yesterday morning. The excitement in Colon at once became intense. The Pinzon will not be permitted to land the troops she is carryig at this point. If such an attempt is made the Liberals assert they will fire on them.

It is thought the landing of the government troops from the gunboat should be effected up the Chagres river, in the direction of Gatan station, and at a point about five miles from Colon, or on the beach south of Colon, where fighting would be permissible.

Senor Delarosa, secretary to General Domingo Diaz, has arrived here. General Diaz and General Lugo are expected at Colon shortly. The capture of Colon by the Liberal forces is already known at Savanilla and doubtless at Bogota.

As a result of an exchange of notes between the United States gunboat Machias and the General Pinzon, Ignacio Foliaco, commanding the Pinzon, which has 600 men on board, yesterday officially notified the American, British and French warships now in the harbor that he intended to bombard Colon at noon today, thus giving 24 hours notice.

The various consuls are notifying their respective fellow citizens that refuge may be had on board the warships.

To bombard the town of Colon it is absolutely necessary to fire across the railroad tracks, and the railroad employes will probably refuse to work. Lieutenant Commander McCrea of the Machias is the senior naval officer and he awaits instructions from Washington regarding the threat to bombard. There is much excitement in Colon.

Breastworks are being erected in the public thoroughfares of Panama. The townsfolk in the vicinity of these are hastily removing to safer places.

All persons known to be Liberals are arrested on sight. The government has declared its intention to contest every inch of ground if an intrance to the city is effected.

It is reported that some 70 who were wounded at Perequito were landed on the island of Taboga, facing Panama harbor, to avoid creating alarm in Panama. Taboga is about eight miles from Panama.

The government is very anxious that marines should be landed from the United States battleship Iowa, but Captain Perry, her commander, has not complied with this request.

The Boyaca returned to Panama Saturday afternoon with General Alban and a few men. The government claims to have effected a landing at Chorrera, routing the enemy and recovering all the prisoners previously reported taken, with the exception of two.

The government claims that the Chorrera troops are momentarily expected to Panama and that on their arrival there preparations will be made to attack the Liberal advance guard and that these will not cease until Colon has been re-captured.

Great hopes are entertained that the news of the capture of Colon will induce the authorities at Barranquilla to send big reinforcements to land at Colon and annuihiliate the enemy.

It is reported that the Liberal gunboat Almirante Padilla, with General Herrera on board, left La Libertad, San Salvador, Nov 21, bound for Panama.

The United States gunboat Concord, Commander Knox, has arrived at Panama.

Colon has become a red city, being in Liberal hands. A large red flag bearing the words "Patria Libertad" is flying at the cuartel.

Government Buys San Juan Hill

Santiago, Nov. 25.—During his recent visit here General Wood bought for the government the principal portion of the San Juan battlefield, including San Juan hill, the site of the blockhouse and bloody bend. The tract comprises 200 acres and cost $15,000. It will be considered a United States reservation and the government intends to lay out a beautiful park on the old battlefield.

Unusual Manner of Suicide

Denver, Nov. 25.—Judge M. A. Rogers, formerly of the supreme court of Colorado and one of the ablest lawyers in the state, committed suicide at Steamboat Springs. Judge Roberts laid down on the ground with a stick of dynamite under him and lighted a cigar, fired the fuse from it and calmly smoked until the shock of the explosion ended his life.

Wrecking Company Gets Bargain

Buffalo, Nov. 25.—The Pan-American exposition buildings have been sold to the Chicago House Wrecking company for $92,000. The buildings are to be removed and the grounds restored to their former condition by the company. The steel in the electrical tower alone is valued at $25,000.

Deputy Mayor Shot Dead

Mentone, Nov. 25.—At a meeting of the municipal council of Roqueburne, Councillor Orsini, after a heated discussion, shot dead Deputy Mayor Sigant, dangerously wounding also the mayor and the mayor's brother, who tried to arrest Orsini. The latter escaped.

A SUBMARINE MARVEL

Men Under Water For Fifteen Hours Without Experiencing Discomfort

New York, Nov. 25.—In the presence of a big crowd which assembled to witness the emerging of the submarine boat Fulton, that craft rose from the bottom of the bay yesterday morning at 10:30 o'clock, with all well and greatly surprised to find there was a storm raging. The test of the Fulton's staying powers was highly satisfactory, not only to the officers of the company that built her and the naval officers present, but to those who went to the bottom in the boat. They report that there was not the slightest discomfort to them during their more than 15 hours of submersion beneath the surface.

Captain Cable of the Holland company, who was in command, said that the boat could have remained down for three months if there was food enough on board. Although there was but six feet of water over the top of the turret, those on board felt nothing of the storm. Through the night there was a light rolling motion to the craft, but this was ascribed to the regular motion of the water and not to the disturbance which was rolling the waves high on the shore.

Immediately on coming to the surface the Fulton, under her own power, ran alongside the dock and tied up. Rear Admiral Lowe and Lieutenant MacArthur refused to go into any discussion of the performance of the boat except to say they would be satisfied to stay down longer. Their unwillingness to talk is because they are here as naval officers and will make their report to Washington. They are, however, known to be enthusiastic over the work of the Fulton thus far. Admiral Lowe is said to have privately praised the performance of the Fulton and to have said she was not only a wonder, but doing more than was expected.

Members of the crew say they experienced no difficulty in breathing and that the air was all that could be desired and much purer and better than in an ordinary closed room in which are several persons. Every piece of machinery worked to perfection during the night. The men ate two meals while under water and enjoyed them. Most of them obtained three or four hours sleep.

"Herod's Slaughter Saintlike"

London, Nov. 25.—William T. Stead, lecturing in London yesterday, said he thanked God that Germany and Europe were bold enough to call baby murder crime. "Compared with England's conduct," he exclaimed, "Herod's slaughter of the innocents was saintlike. Great Britain ought to be beaten in this unjust war. In the American war we employed redskins, just as we have loosed kaffirs against the Boers and, thank God, we were beaten."

Good Work of Lowell Police

Lowell, Mass., Nov. 25.—Saturday night and yesterday the police rounded up six alleged burglars. All except one were found in possession of stolen articles.

Attempted Suicide on Street

New York, Nov. 25.—Hesper Beecher, a dentist, was found siting on a curbstone yesterday with his windpipe severed. He had attempted suicide. He was hurried to a hospital, where surgeons joined the ends of the windpipe and then said he had a slight chance of recovery. This is Dr. Beecher's second attempt at suicide in the last few weeks.

Postponement of Strike

Paris, Nov. 25.—The partial strike of coal miners in the department of the Nord has been ended by a resolution adopted to resume work today and to await general action, a decision regarding which has been deferred to the congress of the federation, which will probably be held in January.

Epidemic of Incendiarism

Madrid, Nov. 25.—A number of churches in the provinces have been destroyed during the last few days by incendiary fires. Thus far the police have secured no clues as to the culprits.

Her Hundredth Ocean Trip

New York, Nov. 25.—The Cunard line steamer Campania, Captain Walker, arrived at quarantine at 1:30 p. m. yesterday on her centennial voyage across the Atlantic, after a most tempestuous passage.

THE QUESTION IS

What to do? It is not a pleasant sensation—that first certain knowledge that one has consumption. Nor is it a happy announcement for one's family and friends. But it is no time for sentiment. You can't begin right treatment too soon.

Fresh air and Scott's Emulsion! That's a good beginning. That treatment alone has cured many cases of consumption. It is always a help.

You must not lose weight. Scott's Emulsion keeps the body in good flesh and has a special action on the lungs. Take it in time.

We'll send you a little to try if you like.
SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl street, New York.

A CORN EXPERIMENT

Which May Ultimately Result In Wonderfully Large Crops

Chicago, Nov. 25.—Fresh seed corn is at a discount in the northwest since a certain Chicago man tried his hand at raising the cereal. His seed was several hundred years old and his corn crop is the marvel of the neighborhood.

Two years ago while he was investigating the Indian mounds of Colorado and studying the customs of the ancient red men as evidenced by the relics which they had left behind, he came upon a sealed jar in the interior of one of the mounds. Upon opening it he found that it contained kernels of Indian corn, evidently in good condition, although discolored from age. More from curiosity than anything else he planted some of the corn upon his return, and to his own astonishment, as well as to the astonishment of everyone else who knew of the experiment, nearly every kernel sprouted and grew. Not only that, but it grew to an unusual size, the height of the stalks measuring 12 feet and many of the ears being as long as a man's forearm. This would indicate that the Indians knew a thing or two about agriculture before we began sending them to college.

The Chicago man harvested his crop with great care and generously distributed a part of it among his friends, who in turn planted their seed the next spring. One of the possessors was John S. Dodge of the Washburn-Crosby milling company. His crop did equally well and he in turn divided the precious kernels.

The corn has naturally created much interest on the part of those who have known its ancient origin, and there is a demand for specimen kernels to plant. As each kernel of the succeeding crop is carefully hoarded, it will not be many seasons before there will be enough for a large number of curious experimenters.

AS FAST AS POSSIBLE

New Haven Road Employes Who Struck Will Be Reinstated

New Haven, Nov. 25.—The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company announced Saturday night that the strike at Harlem river had been declared off.

The following is the proposition made by the company to the committee of the strikers and accepted by them:

"We will reinstate all the men that went out so far and so fast as we can use them, but cannot, in fairness, relieve men who are now in our service who are competent to discharge the duties of their respective positions.

"All vacancies will be filled with the old men until all are provided for. This is to apply to all who report for duty before 10 a. m. tomorrow, provided the strike is declared off before 9:15 o'clock tonight.

"All complaints of unfair treatment in filling the aforesaid vacancies will be promptly investigated."

Though only the members of the brotherhood of trainmen are directly concerned in the agreement, the company expects that their action will influence the non-union strikers, of whom there are said to be about 200, or two-thirds of the total number out on strike.

Made Titular Bishop

Baltimore, Nov. 25.—At the cathedral in this city yesterday morning Monsignor Thomas J. Conaty, rector of the Catholic university at Washington, was consecrated titular bishop of Samos. An unusually large number of archbishops of the American hierarchy, as well as many clergymen from all parts of the country, were present.

Cup Belongs to Gilbert

St. Louis, Nov. 25.—Fred Gilbert, the famous trap shot of Spirit Lake, Ia., on Saturday won and now owns the Republic cup, emblematic of the live-bird championship of the world. The contest was for the final ownership of the cup.

Labor Uprising Threatened

Madrid, Nov. 25.—Meetings in denunciation of the proposed government bill dealing with strikes were held in many cities yesterday. Violent speeches were made, the speakers urging the workers to prepare for a general strike.

Steamer and Passengers Missing

Manila, Nov. 25.—The local steamer Alerta, with 200 passengers, including some discharged American soldiers from Olongapo, Subig bay, to Manila, is believed to have been lost.

FURY OF THE STORM

But Just Beginning to Be Fully Realized

DAMAGE IS WIDESPREAD

Long Branch Would Have Been a Ruined City Had Gale Continued Much Longer—In Full Swing From New Jersey Coast to Nova Scotia.

New York, Nov. 26.—Reports of the damage done by the storm of Saturday night and Sunday continue to come in. Details from points on the Jersey coast, the southern coast of Long Island and the upper shore of Long Island sound show that the destruction was widespread and the monetary loss much heavier than first supposed.

Long Branch reports show that hardly a building there escaped some damage. It is figured that if the storm had lasted another 12 hours the result would have been a ruined city.

An instance of the great force of the wind is shown by a plank from the roof of the pavilion on the shore end of the pier. This plank is about 20 feet long, 7 inches wide and 2 thick. It was torn from the roof and up-ended, apparently whirled into the air and clear across Ocean avenue and struck the Lenox hotel end on. It was driven into the side of the building to a depth of four or five feet at a height between the second and third stories. It still sticks out of the wall.

The wreck of the tug Haddon at Long Branch is complete. But almost as staunch as the day she was launched the ship Flottbek stands almost upright in the sand.

On Long Island many portions of the Long Island railroad tracks are still submerged. Besides the loss resulting from stoppage of traffic, it will take many thousands of dollars to repair the breaks. Temporary repairs are being made as fast as possible.

Huntington, L. I., suffered most severely, yachts and boathouses having been swept away, while piers went out to sea by the hundred in that vicinity.

The wealthy New Yorkers who have summer houses on the upper shore of the sound visited them yesterday to find wreck and ruin in all directions. The shore improvements are destroyed, the fine shade trees and the extensive lawns and sand and wreckage are piled up everywhere.

Advices from Toms River, N. J., say that the wrecks of four barges lie along the coast in the vicinity of Barnegat light. They came ashore during the storm and are rapidly pounding to pieces in the surf. There will be no salvage from them, as they are breaking up rapidly under the continued heavy sea. Two men were drowned.

Reports still come in from points in New Jersey, on Staten Island sound and the surrounding inland waters. It will take days to figure out the loss.

Nova Scotia Gets It

Halifax, Nov. 26.—The violent storm which swept over the Nova Scotia coast caused much damage. There was a tremeendous sea running in the harbor. The water came up over the wharves and the goods in several of the mercantile establishments on the water front were damaged. So far no great damage has been reported to shipping, as there were few vessels in part. The storm was severely felt along the western shore. At the fishing villages of Herring Cove and Portuguese Cove nearly all the stages and fish stores with their contents were swept away and many of the boats smashed. Schooner Glendale was driven ashore at Canso and lies in a bad position.

At Vineyard Haven

Vineyard Haven, Mass., Nov. 26.—The heaviest northeast gale since Nov. 27, 1898, was experienced here, but as there were but few vessels anchord here the damage was comparatively slight. All the vesesels anchored here dragged their anchors. Schooner Viola parted one chain and dragged into shallow water, where she pounded heavily and filled with water. The captain and crew are being cared for at the Seamen's bethel.

Barkentine on a Ledge

Lubec, Me., Nov. 26.—The barkentine Culdoon is pounding badly on Wormell's Ledge in West Quoddy Bay, and she may go to pieces. She is full of coal, having loaded at Sydney, C. B., for St. John. Driven off her course by the gale, and unable to beat into the Bay of Fundy, her master ran into West Quoddy for a harbor. A life-saving crew made a grand struggle through tremendous seas and took off the crew.

In Water Since Last March

Brattleboro, Vt., Nov. 26.—The body of Perly L. Blanchard, aged 25, who disappeared last March, was found in the Connecticut river at East Putney yesterday. The body was submerged and in a decomposed state, but it was held fast by a stump.

TURNED STATE'S EVIDENCE

Three Boston Politicians Plead Guilty to Caucus Frauds

Boston, Nov. 26.—On the unusual charge of conspiring and forming a confederation to fraudulently and illegally vote at a Republican caucus in this city, held Sept. 24, eight prominent politicians were placed on trial in the superior court here yesterday.

The defendants are former Representative Temple A. Winsloe and former City Councilman Alfred Newmarch; John A. Winsloe, John Rogers, William Lord, Herbert L. Averill, Arthur W. Joslin and Philip J. Kane.

Another unexpected turn came when, upon the opening of the case, Averill, Joslin and Kane pleaded guilty. This was done, it is understood, in order that those three men can appear as witnesses for the government.

The next step was the attempt of counsel to have the charges quashed on the ground that the law on which they were based was unconstitutional. Each defendant was represented by one or two lawyers. The motion to quash was made by attorneys representing Mr. Winsloe. Lengthy arguments were presented which took up all the forenoon and the judge took the noon adjournment to consider the question.

When the court came in, Judge Stevens announced that he had decided to overrule the motion. Counsel for each of the defendants promptly took an exception to the rulings.

The work of obtaining a jury occupied about an hour, and then the government called its entire list of witnesses, and 56 came forward to be sworn. A motion was made by one of the defending counsel that three of the indicted men who have turned state's evidence should be excluded from the court room, but the court refused the request. The only witnesses heard were members of the board of election commissioners, who testified as to the method of calling caucuses.

Offices Filled In a Hurry

Boston, Nov. 26.—The head office of Boston's street department changed hands with exceeding rapidity yesterday, one incumbent holding the position for 10 minutes, or thereabouts. He was City Engineer Jackson, whom Mayor Hart appointed to the temporary office of superintendent of streets under the law that requires such an office, when temporarily filled, to be occupied by the head of some other department. Mr. Jackson retained the office long enough to use his appointing power to name Guy C. Emerson as acting superintendent of streets. Mr. Emerson lost no time, upon coming into his temporary berth, in appointing Henry W. Sanborn to the position of deputy superintendent of the sewer division.

From Boston to Worcester

Boston, Nov. 26.—At the first annual meeting of the Boston and Worcester Street Railway company, which was held here yesterday, officers were elected and contracts aggregating more than $1,500,000 for the construction of a new street railway line from Boston to Worcester were awarded. William M. Butler was chosen president. The company has started work on the foundation of a power station at Framingham, from which point the line will be operated.

Lowell Banks May Consolidate

Lowell, Mass., Nov. 26.—Notices have been sent to the stockholders of the Merchants' National bank, the Railroad National bank and the First National bank of this city for special meetings on Dec. 28 next, to take action upon the proposition to place these banks in voluntarily liquidation, with a view to effecting a consolidation of their business in a new bank to be called, "The Union National Bank of Lowell."

Provisional Plans Rejected

Lynn, Mass., Nov. 26.—The provisional plans for settling the morocco strike in this city, agreed upon at a joint committee meeting in the presence of the state board of arbitration and conciliation, were rejected by the Morocco Workers' union, and the strike will continue. It appears that both sides objected to the plans, largely because of the provisions for engaging and discharging employes.

For Harvard Germanic Museum

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 26.—As a token of interest in the Germanic museum at Harvard university, Emperor William is having prepared for presentation to the senate of Harvard an unique collection of plaster casts. The casts will duplicate some of the finest German mediaeval stone-work, such as the tracery in the choir of the Halberstadt cathedral.

Ayres Held For Grand Jury

Portland, Me., Nov. 26.—Isaac E. Ayers, the negro who shot Mrs. Jennie McNulty, was yesterday bound over to the grand jury. Word having been received that Mrs. McNulty probably would get well, Ayers was arraigned on the charge of assault with intent to kill. Bail was fixed in the sum of $1000, but Ayers could not furnish surety.

Result of Nagle Inquest

Providence, Nov. 26.—Coroner Babcock has filed his report of the inquest upon the death of James Nagle on Nov. 14. From the testimony the coroner finds that Nagle came to his death from a bullet wound inflicted by Rose Nagle, his wife, with intent to murder.

REPRESENTED IN QUINCY BY MR. OTHO A. HAYWARD.

AN AMERICAN MESSAGE

On the Loss Suffered by Humanity in South African War

London, Nov. 26.—Sir Thomas W. Reid, the author and editor, in an article entitled: "A Message From America," in the December number of the Nineteenth Century and After, will quote "one of the most distinguished members of the cabinet," as saying:

"I do not think you in England realize the depth of feeling that exists outside of your own country on the subject of the South African war, nor the extreme gravity of the situation which that feeling has brought into existence. I am not speaking of American feeling, which is largely on your side, but the more friendly we are to England, the more anxious we are to see you extricated from the meshes of the net in which you are now caught. It is terrible to think of the pitifulness of the whole thing and of the loss suffered by universal humanity, owing to the effacement of England for two years and the consequent absence of her influence from the side of justice and progress."

Sir Thomas further says the member of the cabinet in question told him almost daily appeals were being made to the government of the United States by representatives of European powers to take some step to end the war. These representations from the ministers of the powers were made unofficially, although the United States government well knew their respective governments were backing them therein.

Won't Roll Again For Some Time

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Nov. 26.—In a blinding snowstorm with a stiff north wind, Knapp's roller boat rolled from Prescott across the St. Lawrence river to Ogdensburg, but missed the channel to the upper harbor and rolled into the soft mud on the bar abreast the city and settled hard. Efforts to tow the boat into deep water were unsuccessful and she may not be released until spring. The inventor and a stockholder who were on board were taken off in small boats. The inventor declares the boat a success. The boat is 110 feet long and 22 feet in diameter. An engine is suspended in a car in the center.

Says Chamberlain Was Right

London, Nov. 26.—The Earl of Durham, speaking at Durham in reference to the ill-feeling toward Great Britain in Germany on account of Secretary Chamberlain's remarks in his Edinburgh speech, said that Chamberlain might have left his words unsaid, but he told the truth. Lord Durham, referring to Campbell-Bannerman's speech, in which he accused the British troops of barbarous and loathsome behavior, said that if Sir Henry believed that he was a fool. If he only said it for party purposes he was a knave.

Kerosene and Four Deaths

Pittsburg, Nov. 26.—Four persons were burned to death and two seriously injured in a fire yesterday which destroyed the residence of J. G. Miller at Knoxville, a suburb of this city. Two daughters escaped without injury. The fire was caused by the oldest daughter Rose pouring kerosene in the stove to start the fire. Rose was burned almost to a crisp. The three others were overcome by the smoke.

Good Afternoon.

The home ward of Candidate Jones is all right.

Why don't the Bryant men publish the signatures to their nomination papers, that the backers may have weight?

An excellent comedy in three acts entitled "A Rival by Request," will be given at Music hall, Quincy, on Thanksgiving night. Those who enjoy a good laugh should be on hand, as the entertainment is sure to please.

Usually, when there is a bolt from a regular party candidate it is either because an unworthy or undesirable man has been nominated, as in the case of Watts H. Bowker for County Commissioner; or when an attempt is made to remove from office a faithful official like Chairman Porter of the School Committee last year; or to secure a reform in government.

The bolt for Mr. Bryant is entirely different. To speak plainly, it was because the leader of a ring had been thrown down, and his followers did not wish to lose their power. But Quincy wants no ring. We have too much politics for a small city. More than the taxpayers can afford.

The voters of Quincy, regardless of party, as in the recent contest for County Commissioner, have another opportunity to vote for good government, which will best be subserved by the election of Frederick L. Jones as Mayor.

We agree with the Herald in direct nomination of candidates, both for Mayor as well as for Senators and Representatives. But we cannot agree with the deductions of the Herald relative to the Quincy Mayoralty contest, because the issue was not so much among the candidates themselves as it was between the Bryant faction and their opponents. The rank and file of the Republican party preferred either Mr. Jones, Mr. Packard or Mr. Jameson to Mr. Bryant, and they will show by their votes on Tuesday next that they are satisfied with the choice of the convention.

With direct nominations in vogue, Messrs. Jones, Packard and Jameson would have united before the caucuses instead of after. Had Mr. Jameson been the only candidate against Mr. Bryant in the caucuses with a list in each ward, he would have won out, as he would have carried Wards One, Two and Three, with their 28 delegates out of a total of 51. It would have been the same had Mr. Packard or Mr. Jones been substituted for Mr. Jameson.

A majority of those who attended the Republican caucuses gave their verdict against Mr. Bryant; a majority of the delegates elected were against Bryant. Had any of the anti-Bryant delegates voted to place Mr. Byrant in nomination they would have been false to the majority of their constituents.

If the Herald knew the methods used by the Bryant faction to elect delegates, and later to buy delegates, they would probably do justice to the Quincy voters who are fighting for good government and less politics, and against one man power.

HOT QUESTIONS

For Mayoralty Candidates to Answer.

Henry H. Faxon Shows No Favors.

Cock Fighting and Sunday Observance Included in List.

To Frederick L. Jones, Republican candidate for Mayor:

To Frederick W. Tirrell, Democratic candidate for Mayor:

To Levi H. Turner, Social-Democratic candidate for Mayor:

To Charles M. Bryant, Citizens' Independent candidate for Mayor:

In order that the law-abiding citizens may be enlightened as to which candidate for the Mayoralty is most worthy of their suffrages, I would respectfully ask you, who are seeking the position, to answer the following important questions relating to the welfare of this historic city:

1.—Will you vote for No-License, and, if elected, faithfully enforce the laws of the Commonwealth regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors?

2.—Will you do all in your power to suppress gambling?

3.—Will you strictly enforce the laws relative to Sunday observance?

4.—Are you a believer in cock-fighting and other similar demoralizing sports?

5.—Are you in favor of political conclaves at which beer and other liquors are dispensed for the purpose of making votes?

6.—Will you appoint to the police force men who are addicted to the use of intoxicating liquors?

7.—Are you in favor of using the taxpayers' money for such unwarrantable municipal expenditures as have been foisted upon us the past year by the Quincy City Council?

8.—Do you favor Democrats voting in Republican caucuses?

Henry H. Faxon.

Quincy, Nov. 20, 1901.

TODAY'S COURT.

James McEwan was fined $3 for drunkenness at Quincy.

To the Public.

Allow me to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I had a very severe cough and cold and feared I would get pneumonia, but after taking the second dose of this medicine I felt better, three bottles of it cured my cold, and the pains in my chest disappeared entirely. Junior King's Daughters' Fair.

The fair of the original Junior Kings's Daughters was held in Odd Fellows' hall, Wollaston, Saturday, Nov. 23, from 2 to 10. It was a complete success; financially the best for some years. The tables were finely decorated and attractive articles were displayed for both old and young.

Table for cake, flowers, fancy crackers and lemonade,—Misses Jessie Ray and Ethel Parker.

Table for fancy and domestic articles, — Misses Ethel McKay and Mabel Wilson.

Candy table,—Miss Kathleen Reece.

Grab bag.—Miss Maud Furgeson.

The entertainment consisted of:

Piano solo, Ernest Arnold.
Reading, Mabel Johnson.
Song, Ethel McKay.
Piano solo, Ethel Parker.

Song, Ethel McKay.
Piano solo, Ethel Parker.

These six young ladies have worked to make the fair a success and have been untiring in their efforts to raise money in many ways that they may be able to gladden the homes of many in need, and brighten the bedside of the sick by their contributions of flowers as many can certify to, both in Wollaston and the neighboring places they wish to thank all those who contributed especially Mr. H. H. Faxon who so generously furnished the ice cream.

Fishing Forbidden.

President Bryant of the City Council has received from the Board of Commissioners on Fisheries and Game a copy of the regulations applied to the Quincy reservoir, which was stocked in the spring with thousands of pike, perch, to which have recently been added rainbow trout:

"The Commissioners on Fisheries and Game having caused Quincy reservoir in the town of Braintree to be stocked with food fish, in accordance with Chapter 208, Acts of 1897, hereby close said pond and its tributaries to all fishing for a term of three years from Nov. 20, 1901. Penalty for violation of these regulations $20 for each offence."

The new rule is signed by the three commissioners.

Voters Must Guess.

The notices issued and posted by City Clerk Cleaves for the City election next Tuesday, and designating the polling places, contain a glaring error. In Ward Two, two different polling places are given but in both cases they are designated as Precinct One. Of course one of them should have read Precinct Two, but it does not, and the intelligent voter is left to guess which is which.

☞ SECOND HAND RANGES as good as new for one-half the price at Frank F. Crane's, 4 Chestnut Street.

Vote for District Attorney.

The following is the vote for District Attorney, for the Southeastern District, at the recent election, as made up from returns received direct from the town and city clerks:

	Barlow	French
Norfolk County,	2,254	12,934
Plymouth County,	2,714	8,012
	4,968	20,946

Total vote, 25,914

Mr. Asa P. French's majority 15,978.

CITY BREVITIES.

More snow this morning.

Jones rally tonight at Doble's hall.

The warrant for the City election appears in this issue.

This might readily be called ideal Thanksgiving weather.

Several dancing parties are advertised for Thanksgiving evening.

Criminal business continues to be quiet at the district court.

The City Council Commmittee on Streets will meet Friday evening.

This is the kind of weather that make the dealers in rubber goods smile.

But little business will be done in the stone yards this week after Wednesday.

Diphtheria is spreading in Atlantic, and there are several red cards up on Squantum street.

The regular Wednesday night whist tournament of the Granite City club will be omitted this year.

It was rumored Monday that there was a case of smallpox in Neponset. It isn't so pleasant when it comes near home.

There will be a Thanksgiving service at the Calvary Baptist Church at 10.30 A. M. Thanksgiving day to which all are cordially invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Penniman leave Wednesday for New York to spend the Thanksgiving holidays with their daughter, Mrs. James B. Pollock.

Miss Emma D. Conklin, who has been the guest of Mrs. William M. Marden for several months, returned to her home in Jersey City this morning.

The two handsome deer shown at Johnson Bros. market are the fruits of the gunning trip of Albert Bisson and Thomas Smith to the woods of Maine.

Pastors Rogers and Mulnix will conduct Thanksgiving service at the Congregational church, East Milton at eleven o'clock on Thursday. All invited.

The contract of furnishing 560 pounds of turkey, the amount to be destributed by the income of the Johnson fund, has been awarded to L. M. Pratt & Co. About 75 turkeys will be sent out.

Monday, the water was so deep in the streets of Norfolk Downs, that a little boy on his way to school, fell down in the street and was obliged to go back home and change all his clothes. There were little rivers everywhere.

The Ward Six reception and "Smoker" on Friday evening is not alone to Frederick L. Jones, the regular Republican candidate for Mayor, but to the Republican candidates for Councilmen at large and from the ward. All citizens are invited.

The Lord family and pupils of Prof. Fred H. Lord gave a very pleasing recital at Hancock hall Monday evening. Pupils under Mr. Lord show that the banjo, mandolin and guitar are well adapted to classical music. Solos, duetts and concert numbers were given. Miss May Moran also gave readings.

☞ SECOND HAND MAHOGANY CHAMBER SET. Cost $125.00 for $80.00 at Frank F. Crane's, 4 Chestnut Street.

Thanksgiving Dinner.

Unfortunately, there are many who cannot go to their homes to partake of their Thanksgiving dinner. There are others who dislike the unusual amount of work necessary to prepare and serve this annual feast. To all such The Greenleaf, Quincy's popular hotel, is recommended. As will be seen by consulting our advertising columns, Landlord Estabrook has prepared a menu for Thanksgiving dinner that would satisfy the most exacting. Dinner will be served from 12.30 to 3.30 at 75 cents per plate.

"Last winter an infant child of mine had croup in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist, of Filley, Mo. "I gave her a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and in a short time all danger was past and the child recovered." This remedy not only cures croup, but when given as soon as the first symptoms appear, will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

—The immigrants arriving in this country last year (448,572) were greater in numbers than since 1893 (502,917). Since 1896 the heaviest immigration has been 623,000, in 1892; the lightest, 229,000, 1898.

GAINING HEADWAY.

A Good Chance for Election of Mr. Tirrell.

To Editor of the Ledger:—In reading the editorials, communications and political squibs recently published in the Ledger and Advertiser on the coming municipal election it appears very evident to the writer that the Republican party, owing to the ridiculous squabble which has arisen within their own ranks, had almost forgotten that there was any other party to be considered as in this race than Messrs. Bryant and Jones.

Now what about the chances of Mr. Tirrell? With the Democratic party solidly united, as was shown by the unanimous way in which their nomination was made, working quietly to be sure, but still gaining headway every hour, it seems as though their candidate was certainly in the swim and stands a good chance of being elected. We all must admit that Mr. Tirrell is a bright, able and very popular man among his acquaintances, having a great many friends in both parties, all of whom are determined to turn out a rousing vote in his favor on election day.

Voter.

As to Roasting a Turkey.

"Ninety-nine women out of every one hundred, ninety-nine cooks out of every one hundred will bake a turkey with the back to the pan, said a New Orleans man who keeps in touch with the kitchen, "and this is a mistake. I said ninety-nine out of every one hundred. Rather I should have said that mistake is almost universally made. But few cooks ever think of cooking the turkey the other way. There seems to be a demand for well-browned turkey breast. But in browning the breast they sacrifice the sweetness of this part of the fowl. The best way to prepare a turkey is to bake it with the breast down. I learned this lesson from Mme. Begue, whose place down in the old quarter, near the French market, has become famed all over the country. She never thinks of baking a turkey with the breast up. The breast is turned to the bottom of the pan, and instead of being dry and tasteless when it is served, is richly flavored and is sweet and juicy as one would care to have it. You see all the fine flavoring of the turkey, the juice of the dressing and all the daintier touches flow down toward the breast of the fowl, and when the white meat is served you get the full benefit of every flavor added during the processes of preparing and baking the turkey, in addition to the distinctive taste of the fowl itself.

"Inconvenient and awkward? Not at all. It is just as easy to cook a turkey in this way as in any other way, and the result is infinitely more satisfactory. It is no trouble to arrange the fowl in the pan; if you desire to place the fowl on the table before carving it you will find that it will look quite as well as it would if baked in the usual way, and certainly it will taste much better than it would if you baked the breast until it was dry and flavorless. —New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Cochato Club, Braintree.

House tournament number three, known as the "Ladies Bowling Association," opened Wednesday afternoon, teams one, three and five bowling. There are six teams, five bowlers in each. Next Wednesday teams two, four, and six will bowl. The contest is scheduled for ten weeks.

Mrs. George E. Williams and Mrs. E. H. Haskel entertained.

Mrs. Kneeland has taken the lead with a two string total of 275 on the bottle pins. Mrs. Blanchard has 247 a very good total.

Team one made a total of 916; team three, 1,038; team five 972.

The following scores were made:

To Win Lost Ground.

In answer to a letter from the Quincy Temperance League, one man has written as follows: "Your appeal for the Temperance cause is at hand, and it affords me pleasure to enclose a check with the wish that the League my go into battle to win lost ground, and carry the banner to an advanced position as it can be done by a united effort. There is great danger of our city losing her grand position unless the voters awake and push the majority up."

The section of the Metropolitan sewer on Greenleaf street has been completed as far as Woodward avenue and ground has been opened to Linden street. The street however will probably be blocked about all winter.

THE BLACK RACE.

Mrs. Woodbury Gives the Address at Hewitson Entertainment.

The third of the series of entertainments given by the Edward Hewitson Associates was held Saturday evening in the vestry of the Wollaston Baptist church at eight o'clock.

After a few introductory remarks by Mr. Frank Nichols, the chairman of committee in charge of the evening, Mr. Bullock opened the entertainment with a vocal solo. "My sweetheart when a boy," accompanied on the piano by Miss Olney. Mr. Bullock charmed the audience with the rendering of "Don't you cry my Honey."

Rev. Edward A. Chase, famed in this vicinity for his reading of the colored dialect, gave during the evening, the selections, "The old front gate" and "Candle lighting time," by Paul Lawrence Dunbar and "Golden Wedding" by Ruth McEnery Stuart.

Mrs. Woodbury, the speaker for the evening, a member of the American missionary society of Boston, proved to be a most interesting lecturer. Her talk on the "Black man and his relations to our race" was very vivid and replete with anecdotes of her own life. As an introduction to her subject, she gave a summary of the history of our race from the time of our forefathers down to the present day. She brought out as the strong point of her talk the great problem, perhaps the greatest problem now exisitng in the United States. The black race is rapidly increasing in population and lest some comprehensive means of educating these people be brought about, this race will be in such a condition and so great as to overpower the nation in a century. The theory of extermination is absolutely impossible she states, as there is not means to prevent their rapidly increasing growth, and they are closely mixed with the white race by inter-marriage. She pointed out the characteristics of the black race and especially their superstitions. She ended her talk with the relating of her experiences which were exceedingly interesting some of them being very pathetic.

After the entertainment refreshments were served by the club and Rev. Mr. Chase amused all with his witty, original composition of the Adams and High school foot ball game, after the style of Mr. Dooley.

SOME FOOLISH PEOPLE

Allow a cough to run until it gets beyond the reach of medicine. They often say, "Oh, it will wear away," but in most cases it will wear them away. Could they be induced to try the successful medicine called Kemp's Balsam, which is sold on a positive guarantee to cure, they would immediately see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Price 25c. and 50c. Trial size free. At all druggists.

How Many Will Vote?

The vote at the recent State election was over 600 short of what it was at the City election last December. There are 4,541 entitled to vote at the coming City election. Will 4000 go to the polls?

The High Tide.

Sunday's storm and Monday's high tide did a great amount of damage along the north shore. At Beachmont the tide came over the breakwater demolishing and overturning houses and flooding the lower stories. In the Back Bay district, in Boston, the flood tide from Charles river poured into the basements and kitchens on Beacon street, and more than thirty-five cellars were flooded deep. Rubber boots were in demand and in some cases rafts were brought into use in the cellars.

Like reports have been received from all along the New England coast. The high tide in most cases doing more damage than the wind.

What are Humors?

They are vitiated or morbid fluids coursing the veins and affecting the tissues. They are commonly due to defective digestion but are sometimes inherited.

How do they manifest themselves?

In many forms of cutaneous eruption, salt rheum or eczema, pimples and boils, and in weakness, languor, general debility.

How are they expelled? By

Hood's Sarsaparilla

which also builds up the system that has suffered from them.

It is the best medicine for all humors.

SWITCHMEN ON STRIKE

Seven Railroads Affected by Action at Pittsburg

DEMAND FOR CHICAGO RATE

Which Is Somewhat Higher Than Roads Entering Smoky City Are Now Paying—Companies Will Lose Heavily If Strike Is Prolonged

Pittsburg, Nov. 26.—The switchmen on seven railroads of Pittsburg have decided to strike today. At a meeting of the Brotherhood of Switchmen last night this action was decided upon and the result of this movement can only be conjectured.

In anticipation of possible trouble it is learned that the Pennsylvania railroad has made applications to the police department for 60 officers to be on hand in the union depot yards, and in the Baltimore and Ohio yards fully 100 Pinkertons are on duty.

The assertion made at the switchmens' meeting was that 700 to 1000 men would obey the strike order. The estimate was that in the union depot yards of the Pennsylvania yards 138 men would go out; that at the yards at Pitcairn and Wall men would go out in the same proportion; that the Baltimore and Ohio and the Pittsburg and Lake Erie yard men would go out solidly, and that the Monongahela, the Pittsburg, Virginia and Charleston, the Shoenberger terminal and the Pittsburg and Western would be practically without men. It was declared also that the Fort Wayne and Panhandle men would lend a helping hand.

The demand of the men is that the Chicago rate be paid at Pittsburg. This rate is 27 cents an hour for day conductors and 29 cents for night conductors of switch engines; helpers 25 cents day and 27 cents night. The Pittsburg rate at present is 25 cents for day and 20 cents for night conductors; 19 cents day and 20 cents night for helpers.

Grand Master Hawley of the Switchmen's union is expected here today to conduct the strike.

In the present congested condition of the railroads, the strike, if it is fully carried out, will be disastrous in the extreme to the companies involved.

Says Baroness Violated Agreement

New York, Nov. 26.—Schuyler Hamilton, Jr., obtained a writ of habeas corpus in the supreme court yesterday directing his former wife, Baroness de Graffenreid, to produce their three minor children in court. The Hamiltons were divorced in 1894 and he alleges that his former wife violated an agreement not to remove the children from the United States by taking them to Paris, where she lived with her second husband.

Mrs Bonine's Self Possession

Washington, Nov. 26.—The trial of Mrs. Bonine began in real earnest yesterday. The preliminary details as to the finding of the body, the location of the furniture, bloodstains, etc., were all in with conclusion of the testimony of J. F. Drew, the Capitol policeman. Mrs. Bonine throughout the trial, when witnesses described the cries, groans and death rattle of the dying man, remained absolutely unmoved.

Dr Greer Declines Bishopric

New York, Nov. 26.—Rev. Dr. David H. Greer, rector of St. Bartholomew's Protestant Episcopal church in this city, declines to accept the bishopric of the diocese of western Massachusetts, to which he was elected recently. Dr. Greer says that he has considered the matter thoroughly and, while conscious of the honor conferred upon him, has decided that his duty lies in this city.

Icebergs In Shipping's Path

St. Johns, Nov. 26.—Four large icebergs are visible from this port. They are drifting south into the track of Atlantic shipping. Icebergs have never before been known to pass here so late in the season. Their presence is all the more dangerous to ocean shipmasters who do not expect to find icebergs on the Grand Banks.

State Cannot Fix Rates

Washington, Nov. 26.—The United States supreme court yesterday reversed the decision of the court below, which was in favor of the state in the Kansas City stock yards case. The case involved the validity of the state law of Kansas, giving authority to fix rates charged at the stock yards.

Laid Up With Influenza

London, Nov. 26.—In consequence of alarming reports concerning the illness of A. J. Balfour, first lord of the treasury and government leader in the house of commons, his doctors state that their patient is suffering from influenza and cannot keep his engagements for this week.

Anti-Prize Fight Edict

Indianapolis, Nov. 26.—Governor Durbin says that he will not allow any more prize fights to take place in Indiana if it shall be within his power to prevent them. Fights have been scheduled for Alexandria and Muncie on Thanksgiving evening.

Someone's Conscience Relieved

Washington, Nov. 26.—Secretary Gage has received from an unknown person, through the collecter of customs at New York, a conscience contribution of $18,069.

Hubby Going on a Visit

The Hague, Nov. 26.—Queen Wilhelmina is improving so satisfactorily that Prince Henry will leave Het Loo tomorrow on a short visit to Prussia.

FOR TEST PURPOSES ONLY

Morrison's Statement as to Panama Canal Represented No One's Views

Washington, Nov. 26.—Considerable commotion has been occasioned by the publication in a New York newspaper of what purports to be a minority report in favor of the Panama route by George S. Morrison, an engineer of distinguished attainments on the Isthmian canal commission.

This publication is a great injustice to him. It may be stated on the authority of the commission itself that there is to be no minority report of any sort. Nor are any minority papers on file. The forthcoming report bears the signature of every member of the commission. It is acknowledged that different members reach the conclusion favorable to the Nicaraguan route by somewhat different steps; but that they all reach it is not disputed.

The history of this particular paper is interesting. It was prepared by Mr. Morrison many months ago as the strongest argument that could be made in behalf of the Panama project and was prepared for test purposes. It does not represent his opinions now, as his signature of the Nicaragua route report shows and perhaps did not then. Were all the opposition arguments considered by the commission from time to time to be printed they would fill the newspapers for many months. The commission stands squarely for the Nicaraguan project, weighing all the circumstances entering into the case. Doubtless a strong appeal in behalf of Panama will be made in congress and hence it is important to know the true status of the alleged minority report.

Must Stand as a Deserter

Washington, Nov. 26.—Thomas Gibbons, chief yeoman of the Vesuvius, deserted Aug. 27, 1898, and recently surrendered to the naval authorities and expressed a willingness to submit to trial by court martial in order to clear his record. Secretary Long, however, ruled that the alleged offense, having been committed in "time of peace," more than two years ago, was barred by the statute of limitation, and that Gibbons could not legally waive his rights under that statute.

When Sausage Is Not Sausage

New York, Nov. 26.—In an opinion written by General Appraiser Fischer in the case of a firm which protested against the decision of the collector of customs at Honolulu, sausage is only sausage when it is enclosed in casing. When packed in cans it is prepared meat and instead of enjoying free entry it must pay a duty of 25 per cent advalorem.

Police Found Dead Body

Fall River, Mass., Nov. 26.—Suspecting that someone had been drowned from Staples' wharf by the finding of a coat yesterday, the police dragged the waters nearby and brought up the body of Charles Reagan. Suicide is the medical examiner's opinion.

Olympia In Drydock

Boston, Nov. 26.—The Olympia, formerly the flagship of Admiral Dewey, was docked successfully at noon yesterday at the Charlestown navy yard. When the Olympia is floated out in about three months she will be practically completed.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Wednesday, Nov. 27.
Sun rises—6:39; sets—4:14.
Moon rises—6:14 p. m.
High water—11:45 a. m.; midnight.

The great storm has continued its northeastward movement and is apparently central near the coast of Nova Scotia. High northerly winds continued during Monday in New York and New England with rain and snow. Temperatures have fallen generally. There will be snow in northern and eastern New England. With these exceptions the weather will be generally fair. On the coast winds will be high northerly. Storm warnings are displayed at Eastport and Machiasport.

DECEPTION.

When the conjurer shows an empty hat, and at once begins to extract from it rabbits or cabbages, we know that we have been adroitly deceived, because we know we can't get out anything that isn't in it.

If people would only reason in that way about medicines they would be a great deal better off in health and pocket. A number of so called "blood making" and "flesh forming" "tonic" medicines are only stimulants in disguise. You can't get strength out of a stimulant because strength is not in it. All physical strength is derived from food digested and assimilated and in the form of blood nourishing the entire body. Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery does not make blood or make strength, no medicine can do that. But it does cure diseases of the stomach and its allied organs, and so causing the perfect digestion and assimilation of food, it enables the building of the body in sound and vigorous health.

"I can say to you one bottle of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' has cured me sound and well, after suffering two long years with stomach disease," writes W. H. Braswell, of McAdenville, Gaston Co., N. C. "My health is worth all the world to me. I will praise you as long as I live."

The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a book containing 1008 pages, is given away. Send 21 one-cent stamps the expense of mailing only, for the book in paper covers, or 31 stamps for the volume bound in cloth. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Strong Men Have Hopes Crushed

New York, Nov. 26.—The Herald says: Few, if any men who served in executive capacities in the administration of Mayor Strong will obtain positions under Mayor-elect Low. This statement, made by a man who has been in almost daily conference with Mr. Low, and reenforced by Senator Platt's recent declaration, "this will be no Strong administration," practically put an end to the hopes of several men whose applications for office were on file.

Another Squabble Smoothed Over

Washington, Nov. 26.—The threatened trouble over the boundary line between Chili and the Argentine Republic has been averted for the present, at least, the two principals to the boundary questions having just succeeded in reaching a satisfactory understanding. This gives great satisfaction here, for it is believed that hostilities between Chili and Argentine would involve three-fourths of South America before they terminated.

U. S. Indemnity Loan

Paris, Nov. 26.—The chamber of deputies yesterday, by a vote of 295 to 249, adopted the sum of 265,000,000 francs for the Chinese indemnity loan, rejecting the smaller sums proposed by the anti-Clericals. Premier Waldeck-Rousseau declared the government would pursue in the far east France's traditional policy and fulfill all the duties of her protectorate, just as she claimed all its rights.

☞ SECOND HAND OAK SIDEBOARD. Cost $75.00 for $28.00 at Frank F. Crane's, 4 Chestnut Street.

Kitchener Yields to Sprigg

Cape Town, Nov. 26.—Lord Kitchener and Sir Gordon Sprigg, prime minister of Cape Colony, have reached an agreement under the terms of which the Cape Colony resumes the control of the colonial troops in 29 districts. There has been much discontent in the cape arising from the fact that the colonial troops were being removed from the command of the colonial government.

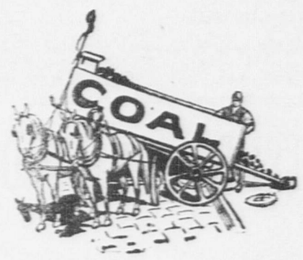

Jumped on a Ten Penny Nail.

The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake made of ten-penny nails, and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and a second one half way through. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes later the pain had disappeared and no more suffering was experienced. In three days the child was wearing her shoe as usual and with absolutely no discomfort. Mr. Powell is a well known merchant of Forkland, Va. WITH TERRIBLE CRASH

Explosion Reduces a Detroit Building to Ruins

TWENTY-SIX ARE KILLED

Many Others Are Missing, and Their Bodies May Be Found In Debris—Over a Score In Hospitals—Flames Added Horror to Terrible Disaster

Detroit, Nov. 27.—Twenty-six men are dead, five of them unidentified and so terribly burned and blackened that identification is almost impossible, and 24 other men and boys are lying in the various hospitals of the city suffering from frightful cuts and burns and other injuries, all results of the explosion of one of the boilers in the Penberthy Injector company's large plant yesterday.

In addition to the 24 at the hospitals, a dozen or more of the employes who suffered comparatively slight injuries, aside from the shock, were taken directly to their homes. Sixteen men and boys have not as yet been found either at their homes or at the hospitals. The 10 unidentified bodies may account for 10 of these.

A great force of men is searching the ruins and the work will not be stopped until every part of the debris has been examined.

The Penberthy Injector Works plant occupied half a square at the corner of Abbott street and Brooklyn avenue. It was composed of two brick buildings, separated by a 16-foot alley. The rear building, in which the boiler was located, and which was completely destroyed, was three stories in height. The boiler room was on the first floor. It was in this building that most of the manufacturing was done.

It is impossible to tell exactly how many men were at work in the various departments of the rear building when the explosion occurred, but the officers insist that the number was not over 85. There were four boilers in the plant.

The awful crash came without the slightest warning. Those in the front building said it seemed like the detonation of an immense cannon. The floors and roof of the rear building bulged upward and then toppled down with their heavy loads of machinery and foundry apparatus. Walls, roof and all dropped into a shapeless mass of debris. Windows in houses for a block around were broken by the concussion, and flying bricks filled the neighboring yards.

A dense cloud of dust arose and as it settled and was succeeded by denser clouds of smoke and steam, agonized cries began to come from the heap of tangled wood, metal and bricks. Those who were only partially buried frantically dug themselves out and then as energetically turned to digging for their comrades who were buried deeper. Flames broke out almost immediately and the horror of fire was added to the suffering of the imprisoned ones.

In a comparatively short time all the laborers who could work to advantage were feverishly throwing and pulling the debris out into Brooklyn avenue, where it was loaded into wagons and carried off.

The floors and roof had fallen at an angle and formed a sort of huge cover, under which the fire burned fiercely. Not until the firemen had chopped through this did their streams begin to have an appreciable effect on the flames. The sufferings of those who were buried beneath were testified to later by their charred and blackened bodies.

Engineer Riley was among the first to be dug out from the wreck. His escape was little short of miraculous. When the boiler exploded he was hurled to the floor and one of the smaller testing boilers was blown over his prostrate form in such a way that one end rested on some debris high above him, thereby forming a shield which kept the falling timbers, bricks and machinery from crushing him. The escaping steam, however, burned him frightfully. After his arrival at Grace hospital Riley's first words were: "How did it happen? The engine and boilers were all right."

Gradually the rescuers worked their way downward through the pile. By this time there were no cries or groans to aid them, for the flames had destroyed these unfortunates who were not killed by the explosion or the fall. But the work of rescue continued with unabated haste. When a heavy beam or piece of shafting was encountered, a team of horses was driven in and the piece of wreckage hauled to the side.

Stretcher bearers stood beside the delvers and bore away the burned and blackened bodies. In several cases the charred corpses were so hot when recovered that they could scarcely be handled by the undertakers and their assistants.

The property loss is about $180,000. The firm carried $70,000 fire and some boiler insurance.

Subscriptions for the relief of the sufferers have been started.

Nothing is known as yet about the cause of the explosion. The boilers had been recently inspected, and the engineer was known as one of the most careful and capable men in his business in the city.

Of the 26 dead, four died at the hospitals during the early evening and the bodies of the other 22 were dug from the ruins.

CONGRESSIONAL ACTION

Foreshadowed by Statesmen Who Have Arrived at Washington

Washington, Nov. 27.—Arriving senators and representatives continue to give opinions which doubtless foreshadow congressional action. Senator Fairbanks of Indiana is quoted as saying: "There is no urgent necessity for any radical revision of the tariff. The Dingley law is accomplishing marvelous results. Any modifications that might be thought necessary to conform to changed conditions should not be attempted except after the most careful deliberation. Congress should give to the pending reciprocity treaties early consideration and approve or reject them. Reciprocity is one of the cardinal doctrines of the Republican party, but the reciprocity which we favor should not undermine the protection principle."

Representative Hemenway, also of Indiana, says that the Republican congressmen of that state will not favor a subsidy unless it is based on tonnage. He cites cases where concerns in the west have to ship freight to South American points by way of Liverpool; this he thinks should be corrected by holding out inducements for the establishment of new American lines of freight carriers.

Representative Burkett of Nebraska says that his state is not worrying over any aspect of the tariff question, that what the people want is irrigation. A meeting of the western congressmen has been called for Monday evening to map out a plan for securing irrigation legislation. This endeavor will be geographical rather than partisan, and its promoters expect substantial results. Representative Shafroth of Colorado says that the fifty million dollars a year spent on our army in the Philippines, if applied to irrigation works, would give America a new domain compared with which the Philippine islands, already over populated, are of little account.

Divorce Apparently Needed

Medicine Lodge, Kas., Nov. 27.—The divorce suit brought by David Nation against his wife, Carrie Nation, the saloon smasher, has begun here. Mr. Nation alleges that his wife took away his feather bed, drew $900 from the bank and refused to live with him. The suit was completed yesterday, so far as testimony is concerned. Mr. Nation read a letter from his wife in which she denounced him as a "hell-bound hypocrite." She retaliated by denouncing him in the witness box as a husband who would not build the fires on cold mornings. The decision will be given later.

Jury Frees Mrs Folsom

Laconia, N. H., Nov. 27.—Mrs. Lonice Folsom, who has been on trial in the superior court, charged with causing the death of Mrs. Mary W. Down by striking her on the head with a lighted kerosene lamp, was yesterday acquitted by the jury. The assault in the indictment was said to be the result of a drunken carousal. Mrs. Down was frightfully burned and died at a hospital soon after being injured.

Mining Company Exonerated

Telluride, Col., Nov. 27.—The coroner's jury which investigated the Smuggler-Union mine disaster, in which 25 men lost their lives, have returned a verdict censuring some of the minor foremen at the mine for not promptly closing the entrance to the Bullion tunnel after the fire originated, but finding that the officers of the company were not guilty of criminal or wilful negligence.

Iglesias Calls Mass Meeting

San Juan, P. R., Nov. 27.—Santiago Iglesias, agent of the American Federation of Labor, has called a mass-meeting of the local labor associations for Thursday next. This is his first step towards the fulfilment of his mission here, to unite the various organizations and ultimately have them join the American Federation of Labor.

Second Largest Drydock

Baltimore, Nov. 27.—The new 600-foot drydock of the William Skinner Shipbuilding and Drydock company, the second largest drydock in this country, was formally opened yesterday. The dock is capable of docking any vessel 600 feet in length and 70 feet beam, with a draught of 22½ feet.

Claims to Own Site of City

West Superior, Wis., Nov. 27.—John E. Conner, a blacksmith, has begun suit in the Canadian courts against the Canadian government to recover an estate valued at over $3,000,000. The estate comprises the site of the town of Guelph, Ont., a city of 16,000 people.

Good Afternoon

The fools are not all dead yet. A young woman was buried alive in Boston, Monday, after having been put in a hypnotic sleep. She will remain under ground for a week.

We are pleased to learn that Candidate Jones proposes to answer the questions of Henry H. Faxon, Esq. Such questions should not bother a candidate of the high character of Frederick L. Jones.

Congratulations to Norfolk county upon the accession of Marshall P. Wright of Quincy to the board of County Commissioners. The old members of the board were a little tardy in finding out the choice of the voters, for they might with due propriety have appointed Mr. Wright during the first week of November.

"Born to no master, of no sect are we," is the standing caption of the Chestnut street semi-weekly, but it has not been observed of late any more than the "ad" of George W. Clapp who moved from Howard avenue a year or two ago. That said publication has been bought up body and soul is evidenced by the fact that the managers of Candidate Tirrell's campaign have been unable to buy space, and a reply of Edward E. Jameson to personal criticism has been crowded out. Their columns, apparently, are open to but one candidate. It is fortunate that the literature (?) published is too scurrilous to need a reply, for life is too short to even make the attempt. The intelligent public are abundantly able to pass upon such attacks, and the Republican party can safely leave it to the voters.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The asphalt pavement on Tremont and other Boston streets is causing a good deal of trouble for horse owners and now the question is about to get into politics. Already there is a demand on Mayor Hart to produce "more sand" or remove the slippery pavement before every dock-tailed nag is spavined beyond cure. With these new-fangled highways and the recent disclosures made by the public school association, Boston is in a state of mind bordering on the nervous.—Hyde Park Gazette.

HEAR GOOD NEWS.

Jones Club More Confident Than Ever of Success.

All wards of the city were represented Tuesday evening at the meeting of the Frederick L. Jones club in Ward Three, crowding the headquarters to their utmost capacity.

Among the speakers were Henry H. Faxon, James Thompson, Russell A. Sears, John S. Gay, John L. Miller, Andrew Milne, Edward E. Jameson, Theodore Hermanson, John P. Bigelow, Harry S. Nicoll, Candidates Smith, Diack and Piper for the City Council, Candidate Jones for Mayor and others.

It was not until late that Mr. Jones appeared on the scene, and he was greeted heartily. He said he should answer the questions propounded by Henry H. Faxon. He had always stood for the principles of temperance and prudence. Because of the work of Mr. Faxon, many in Quincy now owned their homes, which would not have been the case under license. He desired to have the campaign a gentleman's fight, with no "mud" on his side. Neither would he have a fight with any workingman. A man who works with pick and shovel deserves all he gets. He had assurance of support in all wards.

The New Commissioner.

Marshall P. Wright of Quincy, although elected "to fill the unexpired term of the late Edwin D. Wadsworth," has just been appointed for the balance of 1901, and has been notified of his appointment. The document in full:

To Marshall P. Wright, Esq., of Quincy in the County of Norfolk:

"A vacancy having occurred in the office of County Commissioner in said County of Norfolk, by the death of Edwin D. Wadsworth, at a meeting of the two remaining County Commissioners and the Clerk of the Courts for the said county held at Dedham in said county on this 26th day of November, 1901, you were appointed to fill such office until a person is duly elected to said office, and is duly qualified for the same. This appointment is made under the provisions of Chap. 548 of the Acts of 1898."

Signed by Thomas Blanchard and James Hewins, County Commissioners, and Louis A. Cook, Clerk of the Courts.

The next meeting of the Commissioners will be held at Dedham, Tuesday, Dec. 3, at 10 A. M. As the board will at this meeting pass on the election returns, it would seem as if Mr. Wright would have become a member then without appointment. But the end has been reached.

And Against Any Independent Movement.

Considers Republican Convention Was Clean and Straightforward.

Editors of the Quincy Daily Ledger:

I think it is a well known fact that any action I might take in local politics is principally for the best interests of Ward 6. I am regulated by the same desire at present, and when I say that I am in hearty accord with the straight Republican Nominee, and against any independent movement, I believe it is for the best interests for the city in general and Ward 6 in particular. I am amazed at the action of one of our Ward Councilmen, who, in his efforts to gain support for the Independent ticket, makes a statement for which he has no foundation.

We, in Ward 6, love our street man, Dennis O'Neil, because of his being efficient, gentlemanly and able, and I have had occasion to talk with men who signed the Independent Nomination papers, because they were told that in the event of the election of the Republican Ticket, Mr. O'Neil would have to go.

Upon understanding the facts of the case, they were thoroughly mad, and well they might be.

It is dirty politics, and doesn't help the cause of the Independent. I can see no reason for bolting the Republican Ticket as I consider the nominee, clean, open, square and honest. Now, in order to avoid any back slap, I will state that I am perfectly well aware that I once bolted the Republican nomination for a straight Democrat, and I do not hestitate to say that the time may come when I will do so again, but I don't believe in bolting for an independent movement and can see no benefit to be derived therefrom.

I was also a delegate to the convention in support of Mr Bryant and had he received the straight nomination, I should have supported him. I consider that the Convention was conducted in a clean and straightforward manner, and would have been tickled if we had had the men and power to form any such alliance and would have thought we were smart.

I am a firm believer in Mr. Williams, also in Mr. Knowlton, and while they might have monkeyed in political affairs a little too much, that does not affect their being able, efficient and careful men in the positions they now hold, and as I believe it is the policy of the Republican nominee if elected to put capable men at the head of each department, something might happen that would please even his opponents.

Yours truly,
Harry W. Read.

Challenge Not Accepted.

There was disappointment at Music hall, Atlantic; because Charles M. Bryant did not show up to accept the challenge of Mr. Turner, the Democratic Social candidate. Not having heard from him they expected he would be present.

The meeting resolved itself into a Socialist meeting at which William M. Packard presided and addresses were made by Davis J. Taylor of Watertown, James E. Campron of Maine, Candidate Turner and others.

Against His Principles.

Levi H. Turner, the candidate of the Democratic Social party, is very much incensed that a challenge in his name should have been issued to Frederick L. Jones for a Sunday debate. He informs the Ledger that it would be against his principles; and, further that no one was authorized to issue the challenge.

A Cold Day.

The temperature at noon today is 29 degrees, which is nine degrees colder than any day this season at noon. The coldest day last year in November at noon was on the 28th, when the mercury dropped to 32 degrees and it was not until Dec. 10 that it went lower than today.

"Last winter an infant child of mine had croup in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist, of Filley, Mo. "I gave her a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and in a short time all danger was past and the child recovered." This remedy not only cures croup, but when given as soon as the first symptoms appear, will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

THE CANDIDATES.

"Justice" Analyzes Positions of the Three.

Few Changes Under Bryant or Jones.

Candidate Tirrell Would Undoubtedly Make Many.

Editor of the Ledger:

As the time draws near when this very perplexing three corner fight for the Mayoralty election is to be determined, we begin to analyze the position of the different candidates.

Mr. Bryant comes out openly and states that his main object in entering this contest was to save the heads of two of our most efficient office holders. His platform as constructed, seems to consist of but two planks—Knowlton and Williams but the writer has noticed that our genial and obliging City Clerk, Mr. Cleaves, has been quite active of late in Mr. Bryant's interest, so that he undoubtedly has good reason to consider his chance of reappointment favorable in the event of the election of the Independent candidate and altogether it appears very much as though there would be very few changes at City Hall if Mr. Bryant should win.

And now let us scrutinize the attitude of Mr. Jones in the matter. He himself, so far as the writer is aware, has been very careful in his public statements regarding his position on his executive appointments, and for a short time succeeding the convention, rumors were widely circulated that there would be a clean sweep of the city officials if he was chosen. But it seems for once that "Dame Rumor" was mistaken, or else a change of policy has been decided upon. Can it be that the friends of the Republican candidate are getting worried over the outlook? What else could cause chairman Jameson of the Republican City Committee, who of course has the management of the Jones campaign and who most certainly would not speak without the Republican candidates authority, to come out as he did in his interview published in the Ledger of Saturday and intimate that Messrs. Williams and Knowlton might be retained for another year.

We notice that the Ledger, the acknowledged organ of the Republicans, immediately takes the cue, and in an editorial published Monday it reads the riot act to these two officials about city employes taking active part in politics, and then goes on to say that it was not Mr. Jones' object to remove either Chief Williams or Mr. Knowlton.

That is the position in a nutshell and we fail to see as there is any vast difference in the intention of these two candidates, Messrs. Jones and Bryant, regarding appointments. So far as they are concerned, it is only a matter of personal favoritism which one we support. But for the moment, let us go a little further. Why so much solicitude just now regarding our worthy Chief Engineer and efficient Commissioner of Public Works? Are they any more faithful or acceptable as public officials than a number of others in the service of the city? Or is it because they are supposed, having charge of a large number of laboring men in the employ of the city, to also have control of their votes.

How ridiculous, especially under our Australian system of voting, to suppose that by virtue of their official position alone, they can drive the employes into line and march them up to the polls to deposit their ballots as they direct.

Why Mr. Editor, the idea, is an insult to the intelligent working people and don't for one moment let us contemplate that such corrupt methods would be attempted in our city which has so long been favored with clean politics. Do you imagine for an instant, that there are any of our City employes who could be made to believe the nonsensical proposition that, because a change was contemplated in the executive heads, the workmen in the different departments were in any danger of being thrown out of employment? No sir, so far as the rank and file are concerned, there would be no change, whether we elect Bryant, Jones or Tirrell?

And now Mr. Tirrell's name comes up. What would be his policy? Being the regular Democratic candidate, and nearly all the present city officials being Republicans, he would naturally desire to affiliate with men whom he could trust politically as well as officially, and there would undoubtedly be a considerable change. As to a wholesale "slaughter of the innocents" we can't say, as we believe there are now a number of officials, (including Messrs. Knowlton and Williams) who were appointed by Democratic mayors, whose heads, by some chance or other, have so far escaped the axe of the Republican executioner; but on the whole, we are inclined to believe that whoever Mr. Tirrell decided to place in charge of the various departments, we would find them to be men of experience and capability, and we have decided that he is the most satisfactory candidate in view.

Mr. Tirrell is a new man, free from guile politically never having so far as we are aware been a candidate for public office or in any way active in politics, and therefore being without political obligations for past favors. He is a man who we all know comes from a family of Quincy business men; the manufacturing plant of which he is now the head, having been established by his grandfather over eighty years ago, and having been managed by the different members of the family since that time without the slightest question as to their business standing or credit, so that there is no denying from a business stand point, but what Mr. Tirrell is amply qualified to assume the duties attaching to the office of Mayor, without the least embarassment.

To be sure, it would be new to him at first, as it would to a great many of us, but the writer is one that believes that you get better satisfaction from a new man in office for the reason that he is very liable to be exceedingly anxious to make a good impression in the beginning, and therefore is very careful of all his official actions. On the whole, taking everything into consideration; it is our belief, that by casting our vote for Mr. Tirrell on next Tuesday we shall do justice to the community and taxpayers of Quincy.

Justice.

Another Freight Track.

Owing to the rapid increase in the freight business at the Quincy depot, the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. finds itself handicapped for room. At the time the old depot was demolished a spur track for freight cars was built on the west side of the tracks, the connection with the main line being just south of the depot. This spur accommodated twelve cars. The buinesss has now outgrown this spur and the car room is being increased to twice its former size. In order to do this the switch connecting with the main line has been moved further south to a point near the Granite street bridge. Leaving the main line the two freight tracks diverge; one runs along parallel to the main line and the other parallel to Irving place so as to leave a wide driveway between the two tracks. A large gang of men have been at work all the week filling in front of the Marsh houses, and building the track. The job should be completed this week.

Who Is the Best Shot?

Quite a rivalry exists between Dr. Dion of the Board of Health and Tax-Collector Baker as to who is the best shot. Thanksgiving morning there is to be a turkey shoot by the Wollaston Gun club and the two gentlemen are to try their skill. Friends of Mr. Baker however, declare that the doctor has stolen a march upon him. The way the doctor did it was to persuade Mr. Baker to get vaccinated which he did Tuesday morning. Dr. Dion did the job and vaccinated Mr. Baker on his right arm. He did a good job and feels sure that if Mr. Baker undertakes to shoot from his right arm tomorrow he will howl with pain. Mr. Baker however, says that will not bother him, as he will use his left arm, and he declares that he can shoot better from his left shoulder than the doctor can from his right.

Over Two to One Republican.

At the recent State election there was no doubt about the Republicanism of the city of Quincy. With Josiah Quincy, a native of Quincy, as the Democratic candidate, the vote was 1943 for Gov. Crane, and 963 for Mr. Quincy. Only one ward went Democratic, and that by only 28 plurality. The strength of the two parties and the Republican plurality is shown by wards:

	Republican.	Democratic.	Rep. Plurality.
Ward One	452	141	311
Ward Two	252	162	90
Ward Three	367	206	161
Ward Four	248	276	*28
Ward Five	401	70	331
Ward Six	233	106	127
	1943	963	980

SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

Basket Ball and Physical Culture at High School.

A regular meeting of the School Committee was held Tuesday evening, the members present being Messrs. Porter, Churchill, Hallowell, Smith, Dion and Miss Adams.

NEW TEACHER.

Maurice B. Smith was elected submaster of the High school. Mr. Smith has been master of the Holliston High school for the past six years.

It was voted that the salary of the janitor of the old High school building be $278.

NEW TEXT BOOKS.

Remsen's "Introductory to the study of chemistry" and "A General History of Europe" by Thatcher & Schwill were adopted as text books.

BASKET BALL.

Dr. Hallowell brought up the matter of furnishing a room for the basket ball teams of the High school to practice in during the winter.

Miss Adams and Mr. Churchill thought if quarters were provided by the School board for the exclusive use of the basket ball teams it would establish a broad principle that would be hard to overcome. If any room was provided it should be for the whole school.

This brought out an informal discussion on providing a room for physical culture for the High school, and it was suggested that the hall in the building might be used for that purpose.

Upon motion it was voted that a committee consisting of Chairman Porter, Miss Adams and Mr. Churchill be appointed to look into the matter of furnishing quarters for physical culture at the High school.

QUINCY POINT SCHOOLHOUSE.

The committee then went into executive session to consider plans for a ten-room school building at Quincy Point.

FINANCES.

The financial exhibit was as follows:

Wollaston A. A. vs. Atlantic A. A.

Tomorrow, the old time rivals of the gridiron, the Wollaston and Atlantic A. A. football elevens will meet to again contest for supremacy. After about 12 years of battling to attain this, neither team has been justified in claiming they are champions. Ever since the Atlantics lifted the laurels from the Wollastons last year the feeling between the two teams has been of the bitterest nature. With such men as Taylor, Osgood, Magnuson, Lanell Hall and Baker playing for Wollaston, and Scharnagel, Fowler, Saunders, Ago, Geerwar and Ripley playing for Atlantic, the contest promised to be a duplicate of the recent Yale-Harvard game.

Police Signal System.

Bids for establishing the police signal system in Quincy were opened Tuesday at the office of the Commissioner of Public Works. There is but one company that controls the police signal system and that is the Gamwell Co. of Boston and their bid was the only one received. The specifications call for seventeen call boxes, a receiving table at the station, the running of wires and installing the system in working order. The Gamwell bid was $6,625 and they will probably be awarded the contract.

In running the wires the underground conduit will be used as far as possible.

Candidates Withdraw.

Harrison A. Keith having declined the Democratic nomination for Councilman-at-large, the vacancy has not been filled. William H. Callahan also declined at-large and Thomas V. Keating was substituted.

The Socialists have added two candidates in Ward One for the Council,—Peter M. Carlson and Gustaf E. Livendal.

MUD! MUD!! MUD!!!

Don't Throw It But Look Out for It.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

About election time it is common for mud office seekers to protest against mud-slinging while they exhibit to citizens (reckoned as being unsuspicious and ignorant) their nice new suits of virtues and appearances, and call attention to their newly discovered business ability, smartness and irreproachable babits.

To publicly challenge a reputation which has been shined up or varnished "for the occasion" is regarded as slinging mud. Perhaps it is best that such has come to be common sentiment,—although it furnishes foil and cover for many a Tweed and Croker.

Nevertheless let it never be forgotten, here in Quincy, that every self-respecting and conscientious voter owes himself, his family and his city, the most careful investigation and scrutiny of some men who so blandly mount a pedestal and cry "Look at Me," and "Take notice of My exceptional smartness" and "Believe in my promises of loving attention to great moral issues."

Don't expect newspapers or campaign flyers to give you all the information which you ought to have about candidates for office. They cannot do so and escape stigma of mud slinging. Investigate candidates through the same channels and with the same care as you would if about to entrust to another large financial interests or about to open hospitable doors to quite a permanent guest and was desirous that none but those of strictly moral, clean temperate habits should set example or influence your sons and daughters.

You are slinging no mud when you turn down or ignore that one who cheekily comes with professions and promises of habits, and deed to which he has heretofore been a stranger. It is one of the great comforts of human experience that a wrong doer—whose influence and example have been pernicious—may reform and "turn over a new leaf." But it is only common prudence to demand evidence of its being well turned over—instead of a promise to turn over.

Away with that man who assays to lead, or govern men when he is muddy in language, conviviality, sports or irreverence for that which is sacred. Remember William McKinley, his honesty, his kindness, his purity, his modesty, his love for the great and noble and eternal. Aim at the best and forget not that smartness is not always best.

There is no mud on some men, it will not stick if thrown upon them. Choose the man who is clean. Let the other man wash up and get used to it.

To the Public.

Allow me to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I had a very severe cough and cold and feared I would get pneumonia, but after taking the second dose of this medicine I felt better, three bottles of it cured my cold, and the pains in my chest disappeared entirely. I am most respectfully yours for health, Ralph S. Meyers, 64 Thirty-seventh street, Wheeling, W. Va. For sale by all druggists.

Vote on License, 1900.

On the license question last years the "No" vote was over twice as large as the "Yes" vote, and the majority against license was 780.

Ward One cast the largest "No" vote.

Ward Five gave the largest "No" majority.

Ward Four had the only precinct which voted for license.

Ward Three was second in largest "No" vote.

DECISIVE ENGAGEMENT

Likely to Occur In Neighborhood of Colon

CONSERVATIVE LOSS HEAVY

In Yesterdays Fighting, According to Latest Reports From Colon—Telegraphic Communication Across the Isthmus Continues Uninterrupted

Colon, Nov. 27.—The overdue passenger train with a marine guard on board arrived here at 4:30 p. m., yesterday. The train brings news to the effect that General Alban, with about 500 government troops, has crossed Barbacoa bridge and is continuing his march to Colon.

He is now at Tavernilla, where he is resting. The Liberal forces continue to retreat before him. They explain their retreat by saying they have no ammunition.

All of the fighting yesterday occurred at Barbacoa bridge. Passengers by the delayed train assert that fully 100 Conservatives were killed or wounded during the fighting there and the Liberal losses were insignificant. The Liberals are now approaching Gatun Station (about five miles from Colon) and it is believed a decisive engagement will probably be fought tomorrow at Monkey Hill cemetery, distant one mile from the limits of Colon.

The trains which left here yesterday afternoon for Panama with the Iowa's marines and the passengers from the steamer Orizaba were delayed in transit, but reached Panama safely. Reports current that the General Pinzon had bombarded Porto Bello have been found to be unreliable and not authorative.

The Pinzon Again at Colon

Washington, Nov. 27.—A cablegram was received at the navy department just at the close of business yesterday afternoon from Commander McCrea of the Machias, at Colon, announcing that the Colombian government gunboat General Pinzon, which left Colon for the east Monday, had returned.

A brief dispatch came to the navy department last evening from Captain Perry of the Iowa, now at Panama. The captain simply stated that he was in communication with Commander Delano of the gunboat Marietta, stationed on the Colon side of the isthmus, which fact leads the authorities to believe that telegraphic connection between the two places continues uninterrupted.

Value of McKinley Estate

Canton, O., Nov. 27.—The appraisers have filed their report of the appraisement of the estate of the late President McKinley. The report shows that he was possessed of personal goods and chattels to the value of $2,655.80; of securities, bank deposits and life insurance, $133,105.15; money, $129.15. Total personal estate, $135,890.18; of which $60,132.19 was life insurance. The real estate was not appraised, as under the will it goes to Mrs. McKinley for life and at her death to his family. It is believed to be worth from $60,000 to $75,000.

Exceptions Overruled

Boston, Nov. 27.—The full bench of the supreme court yesterday sent down a decision overruling the defendant's exceptions in the case of the Commonwealth vs. Oscar W. Nelson. The defendant was indicted for the murder of Gustaf A. Erickson at Worcester on Nov. 10, 1900. The jury returned a verdict of murder in the second degree. The court holds that the superior court acted rightly in its rulings.

Dickenson's Departure Criticised

Sofia, Nov. 27.—The brigands are determined to wait until the disappearance of the snow permits them freedom of movements before resuming negotiations for the release of Miss Stone and Mme. Tsilka. The impression here is that Mr. Dickinson's departure for Constantinople increases the difficulty of gaining the confidence of the brigands and expediting a settlement of the ransom question.

Dolphin Safely Sheltered

Washington, Nov. 27.—Some alarm had been felt here in regard to the welfare of the government dispatch boat Dolphin, which was caught in the gale which swept up the Atlantic seaboard while she was on her way from Boston to Newport. The navy department has been informed that the little vessel is lying safely in shelter at Woods Hole Mass.

Masked Men Robbed Family

Wheeling, Nov. 27.—Four masked men assaulted and robbed Lindsay Burley and members of his family at Belton, securing over $1000 in cash beside other valuables. The family, consisting of father, mother, son and daughter, were bound by the robbers, who tortured the father and made him reveal the hiding place of the money.

Run Down in Delaware

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 27.—John T. Hayden, formerly treasurer of the Swift Beef company, who, it is alleged, absconded in July last with several thousand dollars belonging to his employers, was arrested here yesterday. He was living under the name of Walsh.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets cure biliousness, constipation and headache. They are easy to take and pleasant in effect. For sale by all druggists.

"KING'S EVIL"

Those old English Kings made history. Those old English Kings were fast livers. Those old English Kings got sick.

One disease became so common to them as to be called "King's evil"—a royal disease. It is now among us—the well known scrofula. Those old English Kings handed it down, spread it through the nations, and here it is.

Too bad Scott's Emulsion was not made in time for those Kings. Scott's Emulsion is a positive cure for King's evil—or scrofula. It heals the sores, adds strength and flesh and brings good health.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

WITHIN ALDERMEN'S RIGHTS

They Have Power to Grant Certain Licenses In No-License Cities

Boston, Nov. 27.—The full bench of the supreme court yesterday ordered a writ of mandamus to issue in the case of Frank P. Fitzgerald, a druggist, vs. John F. Hurley, mayor of Salem, ordering the latter to sign a sixth class liquor license which the board of aldermen had granted to Fitzgerald.

The respondent had refused to sign the license because he claimd the aldermen had not the power to grant such licenses, as the city had voted no license, and such power was in the board of license commissioners. The court holds the aldermen have the power.

Italian Used His Knife

Belmont, Mass., Nov. 27.—Daniel Dacy, a farmer, who, it is alleged, was stabbed through the left lung and in the face by Edward Dominick, an Italian stone cutter of this place, is at the Waltham hospital in a critical condition. Dominick and his brother, who was with him at the time of the assault, have not been found. Dacy said that he was on his way home with his wagon, but had stopped his horse, in order to light his pipe, when the two Italians came along on a wagon. Dacy asked them for a match, and a quarrel ensued in which one of the Italians stabbed Dacy.

Defense Begins in Lambert Case

Dover, Me., Nov. 27.—The prosecution in the case of Henry Lambert, charged with the murder of J. Wesley Allen, rested its case at 11 o'clock yesterday. Before the afternoon adjournment the opening argument for the respondent had been completed and the examination of witnesses was under way. In opening for the defense Mr. Hudson claimed that the defense would prove that Lambert had no opportunity to commit the crime.

Buck port Schooner Missing

Bucksport, Me., Nov. 27.—Considerable anxiety is felt at this port for the safety of the Bucksport schooner W. H. Card. The Card left Bangor Nov. 6 with lumber for Wareham, Mass. On Nov. 21 she was spoken by the steamer Arkansas. Since that time nothing has been heard from her. She is commanded by Captain Lowell, and his wife and a young niece are on board. The names of the crew are unknown here.

Strikers to Maintain Pickets

Lynn, Mass., Nov. 27.—Except at the Weber Leather company's factory, where several new men were put to work yesterday, there is little change in the morocco strike situation. In view of the reports that many of the workmen would return to work at the Pevear factory, the Glazers' union held a meeting last night and made arrangements for placing and maintaining pickets about the various factories.

McKinley's Memory Revered

Boston, Nov. 27.—A memorial service to the memory of the late President McKinley was held in Faneuil Hall last night under municipal auspices, at which a beautiful tribute was paid the martyred president by Lieutenant Governor Bates, the orator of the occasion. The audience included Governor Crane, Congressmen Conry and Naphen, members of the city government and people prominent in all walks of life.

Rejoicing at Harvard

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 27.—Harvard celebrated its recent football victory last night. There was a large mass meeting at the Harvard union, at which speeches were made by President Eliot and others. After this there was a torchlight procession to Soldier's Field, where an immense bonfire was lighted. There was an abundance of cheering, singing and fireworks.

Wholesale Larceny of Jewelry

Boston, Nov. 27.—Charged with the larceny of diamonds, watches and chains to the value of $2890, Gustav Sachs, 25 years old, a trusted employe of Solomon Robinson & Co., jewelers, is under arrest. The goods are alleged to have been taken from the store within the last 10 days and pawn tickets for a large portion of them have been recovered.

Mulvihill Has His Way

Bridgeport, Conn., Nov. 27.—By a vote of 18 to 4 the new board of aldermen decided against building a new city hall, or issuing any more bonds for the same. The reconstruction of the proposed new building has been strongly opposed by Mayor Mulvihill.

Fifth Milk Dealer to Suffer

Wakefield, Mass., Nov. 27.—A loss of $4000 was caused by the total destruction by fire of the barn of William H. Fell last night. Good work by firemen saved the house. Mr. Fell is the fifth milk dealer to be burned out within a few weeks in this town.

Hunters Lost In Maine Woods

Eustis, Me., Nov. 27.—Three sportsmen named Burke, Eagan and Collins, all of Massachusetts, are reported missing. They should have arrived here from the big dam last Saturday night. Guide Joe Green has gone in search of the party.

Sunk Off Point Judith

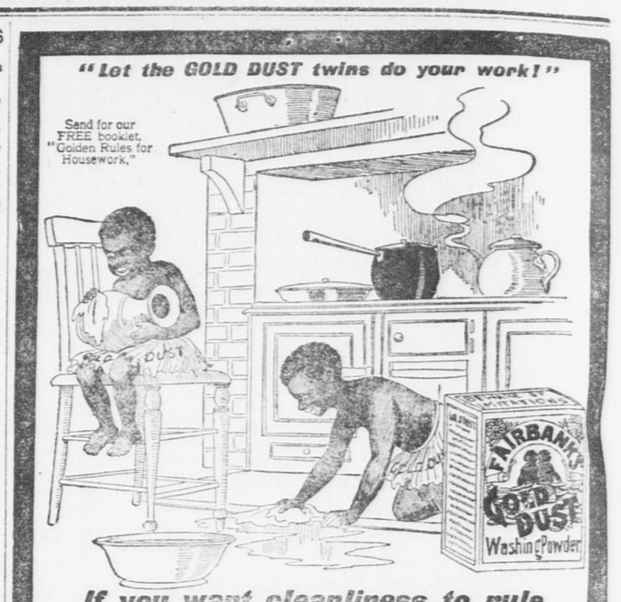

Point Judith, R. I., Nov. 27.—Schooner J. C. Fell of New London sank just outside this port yesterday. Her cargo of iron, being mostly on deck, holds her port side down. She lies in a bad location and is a menace to all shipping entering the harbor.

Winter Has a Good Start

Chester, Vt., Nov. 27.—Twelve inches of snow lies on the ground in Londonderry, eight miles north of this town, and seven inches in Weston. The snow is drifting badly in this section.

Lodge For Chinese Exclusion

Boston, Nov. 27.—The Post prints the following telegram from Senator Lodge at Washington: "I favor the Chinese exclusion act and intend to introduce a bill for its extension."

MISREADING OF ORDERS

Causes a Frightful Railroad Calamity In Michigan

MAY BE A HUNDRED DEAD

Heavily Laden Passenger Trains Collided and Cars Were Piled Up In a Wreck Which Took Fire—Most of Victims Were Immigrants

Detroit, Nov. 29.—Two passenger trains on the Wabash railroad, one going west, the other east, met in a frightful collision while going at almost full speed, one mile east of Seneca, a village 11 miles west of Adrian, shortly after 7 o'clock Wednesday night. Both trains were wrecked in the dreadful impact, entailing a tremendous loss of life, estimated from 80 to 100. The list of injured will probably reach 125.

The west bound train was known as No. 13 and was a regular, which, besides its regular coaches, had several coaches filled with Italian immigrants going west from New York. The east bound train was known as No. 4, the continental limited. It was a vestibuled train consisting of a baggage car, combination coach and sleeper.

The cause of the wreck was a misreading of orders by Engineer Strong of the continental limited. The order, it is stated, read: "Pass at Seneca," but Strong understood it to read Sand Creek. The conductor of the train did not know the engineer had misunderstood the order and supposed that his train was going on a siding. Finding that the train was running rapidly, the conductor put on air brakes himself, but it was too late. The two trains crashed together and the cars on the west bound train were crumpled up in a heap of ruins. Engineer Strong stated in positive terms to an Associated Press reporter that his order directed him to pass trains Nos. 13 and 3 (the latter followed No. 13 from Detroit) at Sand Creek. Said Strong:

"I saw the headlight of No. 13 four or five miles before the collision occurred, but I supposed that train was sidetracked at Sand Creek waiting for us to pass. The glare of the powerful electric headlight made it impossible to see the exact location of the other train. My fireman and I both jumped from the right-hand gangway."

Strong and the fireman were both hurled a great distance, but although scratched, cut and terribly jarred, they were not seriously injured.

The immigrants and other passengers on train 13 were crushed between the splintered cars. If any escaped without injury it will be considered a miracle.

To add to the horror, the wreckage caught fire instantly and in a short time the bodies of the dead and those of the injured who were pinned down were being burned.

The scene which followed was heartrending in the extreme. The spot where the wreck occurred was in the open country and facilities for aiding the injured were extremely inadequate.

As soon as the news of the disaster reached here, a relief train was dispatched to the scene with a score or more of surgeons on board. Farmers from nearby and those who escaped from the wreck alive made heroic efforts to rescue the less fortunate. The condition of the wreck was such that in the darkness it was impossible to render immediate aid.

The immigrant train was made up of nine cars behind two engines. Some of these cars were jammed together. The unfortunate inmates fought madly in their attempt to crawl out of windows and doors, thus hindering each other so that the most of them were unable to escape. Very soon the wreckage began burning fiercely and those in the cars were slowly roasted to death.

"It was a veritable hell of fire," said Victor C. Greenbaum, who escaped with slight injuries. "Some people who came hurrying to the scene from a farmhouse in the vicinity stood about the wreckage helplessly with their hands in their ears and their eyes averted because the frightful spectacle was more than they could bear."

In the semi-darkness, illuminated only by the glare from the burning wreckage, men stumbled about over corpses which fell from the ruins and which, after the flames had died out, were hauled from the debris. There they lay along the track, some covered by blankets which had been brought by farmers who had gathered at the place from the surrounding country. People came hurrying from the nearby villages and these, with the help of those who escaped on train No. 4, did what they could.

The immigrants who were lucky enough to get out alive from the last one or two immigrant cars were unable to speak English and could give no idea of the number of people that were in each car. The conductor of this train could not be found. For this reason the estimate of the number of dead must be considered purely as approximate. Railroad doctors and others agreed that the number must approach 100.

When the relief trains arrived, as many of the injured as could be carried were taken to Montpelier, O., Peru, Ind., and to the hospitals in Adrian, Mich.

At the Union station in Detriot during the night were many sad episodes. Relatives and friends of passengers who were known to have been on the wrecked train besieged the railroad officials with inquiries and entreaties. The relief of those whose friends and relatives were gradually announced to be still living was in strong contrast to the sadness of mourners.

A special relief train arrived at Adrian at 5 a. m., bringing the bodies of four men and one woman, and a stretcher full of burned and blackened pieces of dead humanity. One of the dead men was a drover from Kansas City, who had $1100 in money and a gold watch on his person. His name is not known.

Wabash train No. 6 arrived at the Union station, from the west several hours late. It carried no dead or injured but brought Engineer Strong and three uninjured passengers of No. 4. Strong reiterated his previous statements to the effect that his telegraphic order read to pass at Sand Creek and he supposed No. 13's order was to meet No. 4 at Seneca.

All the cars of No. 13 but two were smashed and burned. Of the eight coaches on No. 4 only one car was destroyed. It was a New York Central day coach. Fifteen or 20 of that car's passengers are dead. None of the occupants of the other coaches of the east bound train was killed. Fully 60 of No. 13's passengers are believed to be dead. Every occupant of both trains was badly shaken and bruised.

The few passengers who reached Detroit are still in a nervous and excited state and they declined to speak for publication.

BOTH REPORTED DEAD

Brigands' Captives Said to Have Succumbed to Hardships

Constantinople, Nov. 29.—The Turkish authorities at Salonica hear that Miss Ellen M. Stone and Mme. Tsilka, her companion, are both dead, and that their remains were buried at the village of Allidere, in the district of Dubnitza. Mme. Tsilka is reported to have died after childbirth and Miss Stone is said to have succumbed to grief and hardship. The brigands are alleged to have dispersed after the deaths of their captives.

The report is discredited at the United States legation and at the United States consulate.

The feeling here is that the strongest pressure by the United States is necessary to compel Bulgaria to effect the release of the prisoners.

Sofia, Nov. 29.—A telegram received from a private agent at Dubnitza says that Miss Stone and Mme. Tsilka were alive Nov. 24.

Washington, Nov. 29.—The rumor of the death of Miss Stone and her attendant, Mme. Tsilka, has reached the state department from Turkish sources, the first informant being the Vali of Salonica. The two women were said to have been held captives at Vvesnej and Myejrjona, two towns supposed to be on the Bulgarian frontier, but which have not so far been located in the atlases. The fact that both Mr. Eddy and Counsul General Dickinson emphatically discredit the report of Miss Stone's death is regarded here as indicating their purpose to continue without relaxation their efforts to secure her release.

Said to Have Been Murdered

New York, Nov. 29.—According to the Vienna correspondent of The World a private telegram, sent from Pera at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, reports that the news had just been received that Miss Ellen M. Stone and Mme. Tsilka have been murdered by the brigands who kidnapped them.

Tug and Barges Wrecked

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Nov. 29.—The tug Dauntless and the barge Roberval sank yesterday near here. The barge was loaded with 22,000 bushels of wheat. While running out through the ice in the channel the hull's of both boats were cut through. The barge Regina, with cement and salt, struck a pier in the Cardinal canal yesterday and sank. The crews of all of the vessels were saved.

War Hero Insane

Vallejo, Cal., Nov. 29.—Among a number of insane taken to the hospital at Ukiah from the Mare Island navy yard was Warrant Officer Osborne Deignan, who was with Hobson on the Merrimac in the Spanish-American war. Deignan was recently assigned to the Mare Island yard, but served only a few days before being placed on the sick list.

Mention of McKinley Omitted

Rome, Nov. 29.—At a reassembling of the Italian chamber of deputies no reference was made to the death of President McKinley because the radical and socialist members of the chamber had threatened to speak apologetically of Czolgosz, and the government preferred to avoid any unpleasantness.

Allow me to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Drift of Opinion.

☞ Mr. Bryant, the defeated candidate in the Repulbican convention for the nomination for Mayor of Quincy got out nomination papers and will run independenly. It is a most helpful way of electing the Democratic candidate, and probably that will be the result. The Quincy politicians do queer things!—Hyde Park Gazette.

☞ With President Roosevelt in the White House and Seth Low at the New York city hall the coming winter bids fair to be hard one for the office-seeker. The time has come, apparently, when we are to have a closed season of offices, and it will be only those which seek the man that will be within reach of aspirants. All of this is like to work some hardship among a class of men in this city who have been drawing a maximum of pay for a minimum of work, and house-holders after the first of January must look carefully after their front doors. We have a very large unemployed population as it is. When added to these are the hosts of Tammany incompetents who will shortly be left without visible means of support, the resources of those who have to look after the vagrant will be sorely taxed.—Harper's Weekly.

AN ENDORSEMENT.

Mayor Hall Enthusiastic for Republican Nominee.

Editors of the Ledger:

The citizens of Quincy now have an opportunity to secure a very efficient and capable man as their chief executive in the person of Frederick L. Jones, Esq., nominated at the Republican convention and it is to be hoped that they will rally to his support in such numbers as will secure him a substantial victory over all opponents.

Mr. Jones is not an office seeker but is a man in whom his fellow citizens have confidence as well as respect and esteem.

He is a successful business man careful, conservative and progressive. He is a man that will discharge the duties of the Mayor's office with credit to himself and to the city.

He will call around him those who will have the confidence and respect of all the citizens and those who will see that the city receives a full return for all expenditures.

He has been a loyal supporter of the government in its days of peril and should receive the gratitude and appreciation of his fellow citizens.

There is no better way and no way more gracious than to accord him this honor.

He is a leading representative of the largest industry in our city one employing the largest number of our respected citizens. The granite manufacturers and cutters are entitled to the confidence and respect of the people.

They have contributed largely to the growth and prosperity of the city. They are interested in the welfare and rejoice in the posperity she has secured.

Let us make just acknowledgement of this fact by honoring one of the worthiest members of that industry.

In convention assembled he received the unanimous vote of the Republicans of the city and the members of that party are under moral obligation to give him undivided and earnest support and surely they can justly give this support for by so doing they are working in the interest of one who is in every way worthy to receive the support of every citizen whatever his party ties may be.

These are decisive days for the continued welfare of our city. We are entering upon a large degree of prosperity and it is incumbent upon us to so conduct our municipal affairs that the advantages of this prosperity are not wasted but are so carefully husbanded so that when this wave of prosperity shall have passed and we come to the common level of the tide of affairs we shall not find ourselves burdened beyond our means.

With Councils anxious and pressing for expenditures of all kinds, it is incumbent on us to place in the Mayor's office one who is wise and conservative who will insist that all projects shall receive careful attention and only the wisest and most meritorious shall receive his sanction.

In Mr. Frederick L. Jones the citizens have such a man, and I earnestly hope that the citizens will rally to his support in such numbers as will secure him a handsome victory as they will thereby honor themselves while honoring him.

Respectfully

John O. Hall.

Ten to One.

The glass ball shoot Thursday for the championship of City Hall, between Dr. Dion of the Board of Health and Tax Collector Baker came off as scheduled. Mr. Baker's right arm was a little out of trim owing to the Doctor's having vaccinated him and it was thought the doctor would win out, although Mr. Baker had said if requested he would use his left arm and then beat the professional gentleman.

Betting on the result rather favored Dr. Dion, as he always sent home deer, as proof of his skill, every time he went to Canada.

Something went wrong, however, and Mr. Baker broke ten balls to the doctor's one, and was thus an easy winner. And now Mr. Baker's friends are unkind enough to say that the deer sent home from Canada were not shot by the doctor but by the doctor's wife. This of course is denied.

The citizens of Quincy now have an opportunity to secure a very efficient and capable man as their chief executive, in the person of Frederick L. Jones, nominated at the Republican Convention.

Mr. Jones is not an office seeker, he is a man in whom his fellow citizens have confidence, as well as respect and esteem. He is a successful business man, careful, honest, conservative and progressive, experienced in city affairs and with an unblemished record. He is a man who will discharge the duties of the office of Mayor with credit to himself and the city.

He will appoint to public offices, men who will have the confidence and respect of the citizens, and those who will see that the city receives a full return for all expenditures.

Mr. Jones was a loyal supporter of the Government in its days of peril, having participated in twenty-six battles, and being wounded three times; he should receive the grateful return of the appreciation of his fellow citizens.

He is a leading representative of the largest industy in our city. He received the unanimous nomination of the Republican party in convention assembled and he is entitled to the earnest and undivided support of the Republican party.

Leaving aside the question of politics entirely, Mr. Jones is worthy and justly entitled to receive the hearty support of the citizens of Quincy.

We therefore, again earnestly urge the voters of this city to assist in the election of Mr. Jones, who will give our city a good, clean, business like administration.

HOLIDAY FOOT BALL.

Two Games at Park and One at West Quincy.

Wollaston defeated Atlantic Thanksgiving morning at Merrymount park by the score of 5 to 0.

It was an ideal day for foot ball but a poor one for the enthusiastic spectators who however turned out in great numbers to witness the struggle which has been played for so many years with no real decision as to the superior team.

Atlantic proved to have the greatest crowd of rooters, while Wollaston played a most plucky game with little cheering against their more powerful opponents.

Atlantic's strong point lay in her line while her backs at times ripped up Wollaston's line to good advantage.

With a comparitively light team Wollaston succeeded by putting forth all its energies in winning a game which seemed so favorable for Atlantic.

For Wollaston all the players distinguished themselves at times but the playing of all the men back of the line was particularly noticeable. Miller punted in grand style while Osgood, Magnuson and Taylor excelled in long gains and hard tackling.

Scharnagel for Atlantic put up the best game by far both Saunders and Fowler made good gains and tackled finely.

A unfortunate occurrence of the game was the cowardly playing of Hayford who deliberately hit Lewis in the face while on the ground with no provocation. The air was filled with "put him out," but of course Atlantic hushed it up.

Owing to another game which was being played this match was delayed and was not commenced until close on to eleven o'clock.

GAME IN DETAIL

Taylor opened the match by kicking to Atlantic, Scharnagel receiving the ball and advancing it to their 20-yard line. Scharnagel started out at the first rush, to rip up Wollaston's line by making two successive long gains on the right side of the line. They continued for two more downs; then there was a fumble the ball going to Wollaston.

Wollaston fumbled immediately and again Atlantic had the ball. Ripley then made 3 yards around Wollaston's left end. They made two more yards but lost the same distance on the next rush.

Wollaston tried a quarter back run but gained nothing until on the next rush when they gained five yards but lost the ball.

Scharnagel now began his series of long runs. The ball appeared to be down but suddenly Scharnagel sprang from the crowd for fifteen yards, but was downed by a pretty tackle of Magnuson. Scharnagel again rushed for three yards followed by Saunders around the end for five more. Scharnagel made another gain around right end. After two or three more downs it was Wollaston's ball on their 45-yard line.

Quarter back Taylor now made five yards, followed by five more by Miller. They lost two yards on their next tackle play and Magnuson punted, Scharnagel falling on the ball on Atlantic's thirty yard line.

Again he ripped up Wollaston's line for a 15-yard run and the backs follow his play by gains through tackles and guards. The next downs Atlantic failed to gain and the ball was forfeited to Wollaston.

Miller kicked about twenty-five yards against a strong wind. Wollaston fell on the ball and again Miller punted for 30 yards, but the ball touched Taylor and Hall picked it up and made an apparent touchdown.

The ball was brought back to Atlantic's 30-yard line. Again Scharnagel assisted the backs and Fowler made gains through the line. Gradually Wollaston's goal was approached. On a fumble Linnell got the ball and Miller punted. The half ended with the ball on Atlantic's 35-yard line.

The second half, Wollaston started out in good shape. Fowler kicked to Wollaston, Colson fumbling, and Osgood falling on the fall. The latter immediately made a 30-yard run. However, they lost the ball, but held Atlantic for a few yards on the following plays. Magnuson made a 5-yard gain but again Wollaston lost ball on downs. From Atlantic's 35-yard line Scharnagel advanced the ball for 5 yards on a right-end play.

After gaining five more yards, Atlantic lost the ball on their 45-yard line. Wollaston held the ball but a short time when it became Atlantic's ball on the 35-yard line. Atlantic fumbled and then the Wollastons. The Atlantics made long end gains. During these gains Fowler made himself conspicuous.

The ball went to Wollaston in their fifteen yard line. Hall made forty yards around right end carrying the ball to the centre of the field. With the wind with him, he sent the ball high in the air which rolled over Atlantics goal line, the ball touched one of Atlantics men and Taylor fell on it, thus making it a touchdown. The game was delayed at this point, Atlantic claiming it counted no point. The decision Atlantic affirmed should be left to Coach Reid of Harvard.

Magnuson failed to kick. With 2 minutes to play, the ball was kicked to Wollaston, Colson carrying it to their 25-yard line. Miller kicked for twenty yards and Scharnagel was immediately downed. After a loss on an end play of Atlantic, time was called.

The line up:

Wollaston A. A.	Atlantic A. A.
Hill, r. e.	l. e. Saunders
Tubb, Ela, r. f.	l. t. Barry
Colson, r. g.	l. g. Hayford

Easy Victory.

The Wollaston Park and Downs foot ball association easily defeated Brockton Thanksgiving morning at Merrymount Park. After Williams had made three touchdowns the first half and Batchelder had kicked a goal, they ran up 10 more points on Brockton in about fifteen minutes.

Wollaston kicked to Brockton the second half and after a double pass and a good gain the ball went to the former on the latter's sixty yard line. Williams and Briggs both made long end plays and the former made a fifty-yard run for a touchdown.

After another kick off and many long gains through the line Briggs ran 25 yards for a touchdown. The backs continued to make long gains the second half, and the ball was on Wollaston's 45 yard line when time was called West Quincy's Won.

The annual game between West and South Quincy was played Thanksgiving morning at West Quincy and was won by the West Quincy's 10 to 0. West Quincy slightly outweighed the other team this was responsible for some of the gains through the line. The features of the were the line plunging of Martell and a 30 yard run by Herbert for West Quincy, and the all round playing of Solary and Craig for South Quincy.

The teams lined up as follows:

Thanksgiving Golf.

Owing to the cold weather yesterday, there were but ten entries in the tournament held at the Merrymount Golf club, Wollaston. Considering the condition of the ground, some very good scores were handed in. John Anderson succeeded in getting the best gross score, but as there were not sixteen entries, no gross prize was given.

The best net score was that by E. Hewson, who won a large silver cup. The results are as follows:

J. G. Anderson,	89	4	85
C. F. Irswell,	89	6	83
Ervie Hewson,	90	15	75
J. E. McLaughlin,	91	14	77

Jumped on a Ten Penny Nail.

The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake made of ten-penny nails, and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and a second one half way through. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes later the pain had disappeared and no more suffering was experienced. In three days the child was wearing her shoe as usual and with absolutely no discomfort. Mr. Powell is a well known merchant of Forkland, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and heals such injuries without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. For sale by all druggists.

C. M. BRYANT FIRST

More at Heart a Democrat Than Republican.

Has Pursued a "Rule or Ruin" Policy.

Not a Year to be Deceived or Led Astray.

Editor of the Quincy Daily Ledger.

When Mr. Bryant's independent candidacy was first announced I was approached by an ex-office holder, one who had held office under a former Democratic adminstration, and was requested to use my influence in favor of Mr. Bryant on the grounds that Mr. Bryant's election would in reality be a Democratic victory as he was at heart more of a Democrat than a Republican and he would be largely influenced in selecting his nominees by one or two Democratic ex-office holders.

It seemed to me at the time that if we could not elect our own party nominee, the election of Mr. Bryant would have practically the same effect and I agreed to carefully consider the matter. I wish through your columns Mr. Editor, to say that I have very carefully considered the whole situation and have come to the following conclusions:—

1st. Mr. Bryant has throughout his entire political career both during the municipal campaign and his legislative work in the city council pursued an arbitrary, domineering and selfish, "rule or ruin" policy.

2d. Elected to office as a Republican, Mr. Bryant has not hesitated to alternately support and oppose both parties, not however as a Republican, a Democratic, an Independent, or a public reformer, but purely and simply as a supporter of and believer in Charles M. Bryant, and influenced by his conceit, or private animosities.

3d. The present candidacy of Mr. Bryant was determined on before the Republican convention was held, in the event of his not receiving the Republican nomination, and it was not intended to be and is not in fact a "citizen's independent" candidacy.

It would be more appropriate to have his name appear on the official ballot, as follows: "Charles M. Bryant—candidate of Charles M. Bryant and certain individuals — some of whom wish to retain their present jobs and others who, having once tasted the joys of municipal positions with salaries attached, are desirous of renewing their acquaintance with—the salaries."

4th. Mr. Bryant is not the popular idol he believes himself to be, or that he wishes the people to consider him, in fact unless all signs fail, his vote on next Tuesday, will by its smallness demonstrate that his popularity has most decided limitations, also that there are many men through fear, or for policy today talking Bryant, who are at heart anti-Bryant and will on election day in the secrecy of the ballot box vote against him. How can you expect them to vote otherwise? How far should a conscientious man allow the plea of personal friendship to turn him away from his duty to his party, and good government?

5th. A man who has not hesitated in the past to prove himself politically irresponsible will not be likely in the future to be true to any ante election declared policy but once in power, will be in a positiion to, and very probably will, give full scope to his peculiar and irratic ideas of a public servant's duties.

6th. In a politically normal year the Republican and Democratic parties in this city are quite evenly divided. This year with Mr. Jones polling a larger per cent. of the straight Republican vote and Mr. Bryant receiving in Ward 5 and 6 the votes of such Republicans as he and his personal friends can jolly and persuade into supporting him and in the other wards such voters as his "I expect to get a position" friends can secure for themselves and him, there is no reasonable ground for doubting that the Democratic nominee will profit by the Jones—Bryant fight or that he will be handsomely elected to office next Tuesday.

7th. I am satisfied there is not a popular demand for Mr. Bryant's election--that he will not be elected; that it is really a fight between Jones and Tirrell; that it is the duty of all true and loyal Democrats to prove their democracy and to stand by their party and its chosen leader.

This is not the year to be deceived or led astray by false friends or by men who are Democrats only when they can personally profit by it being such.

The Democratic party is worth saving. The men who have in the past received the support of the Democratic party or for whose election or advancement the rank and file of the party have voted and worked, ought not now to desert that party, and blinded by the possibilities of city positions for themselves seek to lead its voters astray.

The Democratic voters will not be blindly led to the slaughter for the sake of an outsider or a chosen favored few.

A strong pull a quick pull and a pull altogether, and Frederick W. Tirrell will on next Tuesday be elected Mayor of Quincy and Democracy, purified and rehabilitated, will once more reign supreme. Democrat.

MILTON.

The Milton Board of Health have issued notices advising everybody who has not been vaccinated within five years to do so at once. They also give notice that free vaccination has been established in the several villages where those who cannot afford to pay will be treated.

The Metropolitan water pipes on Adams street are being changed and straightened.

Henry McKay, formerly of East Milton, died in New York on Sunday. The remains were brought to East Milton for burial on Tuesday.

Special Thanksgiving services were held last Sunday evening at the Mission of our Saviour. The services were largely attended and were very interesting.

The Milton A. A. and Dorchester A. A. played football on the playground Thanksgiving afternoon.

C. B. Sanborn opened his gymnasium class in Rugby hall Wednesday evening with a good attendance.

The sewer on Adams street between the East Milton playground and Mechanics street is nearly completed.

IT'S THE TRUTH

Tell a man it's a food and he doesn't want to pay for it. Tell him it's a medicine and he says it doesn't look like it. Then tell him it's both a food and a medicine and he thinks you're playing some game on him.

Yet these are the facts about Scott's Emulsion of pure cod-liver oil. It is the cream of cod-liver oil, the richest and most digestible of foods. The food for weak stomachs. The food for thin bodies and thin blood.

But that's only half the story. Scott's Emulsion is also a good medicine. It gives new life and vigor to the whole system and especially to the lungs.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

MR. HOOLEY ON THE FAIR FIGHTER.

"Oi see be the papers," said Mr. Fennessey, "that there be wa-arm toimes in th' town and for mesilf Oi think Oi'll be votin' for the indipindjint gintlemin Mr. Brynt."

Mr. Hooley looked sad. He turned to Fennessey with a pitting look. "Fer the indipindjint, Finnessey, fer the indipindjint? Have ye an oiron in in the foire, too? Have ye thought ye'd loose yer nine a week onless ye declared yerself? Are ye lookin' fer to sqnare yerself wid thim all be votin' fer th' indipindjent?"

"But Oi'm wid the man that says he the fair foighter" saie Mr. Fennessey, looking uneasy.

"That's phat it is, hey?" went on Mr. Hooley, "Oi knew ye loiked a foight and sure no man in the wa-ard will travel farther ter git inter wan than ye. Now, Finnessey, d'ye moind, there's foighters and foighters. It's mesself that's had a hand and a brick-bat in minny a gintlemany contest. I take off me hat whin I hear the word foight. But moind, Fennessey, the longer ye live the more ye'll larn that whin a man sthands up and swills his chist and sis, 'Gintlemin, Ol'm a fair foighter,' ye want t'keep that gintlemin right in front of ye all the toime, yere back agin the wall and see that yere artilry is in good workin' order."

"'Tis many a prayin' deacon that's roon away wid th' cash intinded fer the haythen—and it's many a man that's to his home ivery noight that's the corresponjent in the dayvoorce coort, and ye can't always be tellin' what a man is be the sthyle iv his gait or the smill iv his foine Havvannie. Fer mesself, Finnessey, I place me roll on the man thot makes no pretinshuns. Pretinshuns is a good thing whin ye want to get yere note discoonted, but it don't always go in th' perlitical wur-uld.

"Give me th' man, Finnessey, that'll sthand up man loike and foight and when he gets it in the sowler plixis and goes to shleep knows that he's done f'r; the foight's done and thin have gate receipts paid oover t' the 'best man. But, be the sowls of hivin, if whin he wakes up he crys foul and being dhrugged, I'd be wan iv the com'itee to hist him frum me lamp post.

"Now, illection day," said Mr. Hooley," illection day, I put in me vote fer the man widout th' pretinshuns of bein' th' fair foighter, but, be hivins, is the fairest of thim all. He laid out his man, and the gate receipts is his. But, Finnessey, tho' he's th' winner, Oi'm 'fraid that whin he's goin' home, a walkin' wid the receipts in his throusers, th' victum of the foight will be layin' fer him behind a three wid a a club that's intended fer business.

"D'ye think he'll hit'm," said Fennessey.

"He can't," said Mr. Hooley, fer th' brave sojer Cedric Ferrill will be watchin' and he'll roon him in when he raises his aarm"

GRAND MASQUERADE

The Thanksgiving Eve Party One of Quincy's Largest.

The Loyal Ladies of Clan McGregor held their fifth grand masquerade and ball in Music hall Thanksgiving eve. The attendance was vastly beyond the accommodations afforded by even the spacious appointments of this hall and it required the constant watchfulness and persuasiveness of the floor directors and their aids to make room for the dancers.

The grand march in mask, led by floor director Mary Kennedy and her cavalier escort was of course, the feature of the evening. Hundreds, as spectators, crowded themselves into the gallery and standing places along the corridors and door-ways on the main floor and beheld a moving pageantry of wonderously magnificient costumes mingled with creations of extreme grotesqueness and habits of sombre hue.

There were presentations of the costly and cumbersome costumes of by-gone ages, arraiments of modern brilliancy and smartness, glittering robes of fairy lightness, and garbs that clowns nor hoboes need never hope to outdo.

Among the hits were: Uncle Sam in his extravagance of cut and color, the "stars and stripes" and the "Union Jack" were cleverly intermingled in a pair of costumes worn by a couple of maskers, lady and gentleman. The city election was hit off in the clear-clean cut line of one outfit and labelled "vote for Jones."

After the grand march, followed waltz and quadrille, polka and galop, etc., in quick and sprightly order. Robinson's orchestra furnished the best of music and all were happy until the hour before the dawn.

With Agnes S. Reynolds and Mary Kennedy as floor directors were Catherine Black, Belle Ross, Bessie Robbie, Elizabeth Russell, Jennie O'Hare and Josie Daw as aids.

In the dining hall were a number of exremely busy waiters who made strenuous efforts to supply the gastronomic demands of what seemed to be an endless stream of happy humanity. Provision was made for a large patronage but the supply was inadequate.

Mrs. M. A. Smith, the president of the Loyal Ladies, and her able assistant, Mrs. Lizzie Perry, at all times solicitious and untiring in their efforts for the comforts and pleasures of the society's patrons, were almost overmatched by the throng. To their efforts were due in a large measure the unprecedented success of the occasion.

The committee of arrangements were Mrs. M. A. Smith, president Mrs. Agnes Donald (secretary) Mrs. Lizzie Perry, Mrs. Maggie Hall, Mrs. Maggie Ross, Mrs. Lizzie McIntosh and Mrs. Maggie Stronach. Mr. William Wilson officiated as prompter.

Sit Down.

Editors of Daily Ledger:
There was a man in our town,
He was so wondrous wise;
He thought the Democrats for him
Would win the Mayor's prize.
But when they counted up the votes,
This man from our town,
He heard the Demmys loudly yell
"Go way back and sit down."

Mortgagee's Sale of Real Estate.

PURSUANT to the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Nathan G. Green to Maria L. White, dated December 21st, 1895, and duly assigned to me, and for breach of the conditions of the said mortgage deed, will be sold by public auction on the premises hereinafter described, on MONDAY, the 9th day of December, 1901, at three o'clock in the afternoon, all and singular the parcel of real estate conveyed by said mortgage deed, to wit:

A certain parcel of land situate partly in the town of Milton and partly in the city of Quincy, in the County of Norfolk and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and bounded as follows: Northerly by "Edge Hill Road," so called; westerly by land now or late of one Payson, southerly by land now or formerly of Rufus Pierce, and easterly by land now or late of William Pierce. Containing by estimation about 33 acres according to a "Plan of Building Lots in Milton and Quincy made by Winthrop W. Fiske, C. E. dated September 18, 1895, and recorded in said Registry of Deeds, book 730, page 547, to which reference is to be made for a more particular description.

But excepting therefrom the following fifty-eight (58) lots situated in said Milton as shown on said plan, namely:— lots numbered 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 14, 15, 20, 21, 27, 28, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 29, 30, 31, 32, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 23, 24, 25, 26, 50, 52, 53, 55, 56, 57, 58, and excepting also any other lots that may have been released by deeds of record.

Subject to prior mortgage, which is now due, of twelve thousand, five hundred ($12,500) dollars, and interest; also all taxes and assessments if any there be.

$500 must be paid in cash by the purchaser at the time and place of sale, at which time and place the other terms of the sale will be made known. JAMES H STARK,
Assignee of the Mortgagee.

TRANSPORT WRECKED

Boat Presented to Government by Boston Women Strikes a Rock

Manila, Nov. 29.—The United States transport Wright has been wrecked in the Straits of Darman. The transport struck on an uncharted rock at the entrance of San Jacinto and sank in 15 feet of water. To raise her it will require wrecking machinery which is not available here. She will probably prove to be a total loss.

The United States transport Wright, formerly the Ald, was originally a fruiter, and was pressed to the government by some patriotic women of Boston, when the Spanish war broke out, to be used as a hospital ship. Later, she was fitted out as a despatch boat and was sent to Cuba to be used by General Wood. More recently she was sent to the Philippine Islands as a dispatch boat and storeship. She had a fine refrigerating plant and a refrigerated storeroom, which made her of great value in the islands. The Wright was first called the Bay State. This was before she was transformed into a hospital ship.

Washington, Nov. 29.—A brief dispatch came to the war department from General Chaffee confirming the press report of the wreck of the transport Wright. General Chaffee's dispatch simply said that the vessel had struck on an uncharted rock and that the question of rescue of the vessel was problematical.

Klondikers In a Bad Fix

Seattle, Nov. 29.—The long overdue schooner Ralph J. Long, from Nome, lies stranded at Unalaska, with 115 passengers. The vessel is out of food, and the passengers have spent all their money to obtain the absolute necessities of life. They now appeal for help to the war department. The Long reached Unalaska on Oct. 5, out of food and water. The storekeepers there refuse to advance enough provisions to allow the schooner to reach Puget sound, and the passengers are afraid to venture out in a helpless condition.

Recovered After Twenty Years

Kingston, N. Y., Nov. 29.—The safe of Terry Bros., brick manufacturers, was recovered yesterday, after having been buried for years. Twenty years ago a landslide occurred, carrying the house and office of Albert Terry into the Hudson river. The principal loss was the safe, containing money and valuable papers. An unusually low tide yesterday revealed the safe to the watchman at the works, who secured it. The safe was blown open and the papers and money were found intact.

Passenger and Freight Trains Met

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 29.—A special train north bound on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad, carrying 300 Syracuse Knights of Columbus, ran into a freight train on a siding at Tully at 1:15 o'clock this morning, both trains being wrecked. A wrecking train has just been sent to Tully. Railway officials say the accident is not serious. A special press dispatch from Tully says several were injured, it cannot be learned how seriously.

Prince and Princess to Separate

Berlin, Nov. 29.—The Vossische Zeitung says that the crown prince and princess of Roumania have mutually agreed upon a divorce, and that the crown prince intends to renounce his succession to the throne. Prince Ferdinand was married in 1893 to Princess Marie, daughter of the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha. The couple have three children.

Switchmen's Strike a Failure

Pittsburg, Nov. 29.—The switchmen's strike gives evidence of rapid disintegration and the officials of the different railroads with terminals in Pittsburg declare that traffic will be resumed as usual today. This result is attributed largely to the action of the Brotherhood of Trainmen in deciding against assistance and sympathy for the strikers.

A Theory of Abduction

Elizabeth City, N. C., Nov. 29.—A new clew has developed in the Nellie Cropsey disappearance mystery which indicates that she may have been abducted. New York detectives are working on the case now. The girl's father thinks that James Wilcox, who last saw his daughter on the night of her disappearance, knows her whereabouts.

Back In Webster Family

London, Nov. 29.—The mystery surrounding the sale of Battle Abbey at public auction has been solved by the announcement that Sir Augustus Webster, Bart., is the purchaser. The new owner is a descendent of Sir Thomas Webster, who bought the abbey in 1719 and whose family retained possession of it for 130 years.

Patridge For Police Commissioner

New York, Nov. 29.—The Times announces that Colonel Patridge of Brooklyn will be commissioner of police of New York city after Jan. 1. The Times says it is in a position to say that Mayor-elect Low has offered the commissionership to him and that he has accepted it.

Ibsen at Death's Door

Copenhagen, Nov. 29.—Henrick Ibsen, the Norwegian dramatist who has been in ill health for some time, is seriously ill. He is unable to walk and there is no hope for his recovery.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Saturday, Nov. 30.
Sun rises—6:52; sets—4:13.
Moon rises—9:37 p. m.
High water—2:15 a. m.; 2:30 p. m.

The weather has been generally clear east of the Rocky mountains. The temperatures continue low in the Atlantic states. Snow is probable in eastern New England tonight or tomorrow morning. It will be warmer. On the coast fresh northerly winds will become variable.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Mrs. George L. Stearns, widow of the late Major Stearns, died at her home at Medford, Mass., at the age of 80. She was prominent in philanthropic work among the negroes.

William A. Foskett, well known all over New England as a manufacturing plumber, died at his home at New Haven, aged 84.

An engine killed Richard Abbott as he was driving across the Boston and Maine tracks at Boston. The horse also was killed.

George M. Pullman, son of the late George M. Pullman, founder of the Pullman Palace Car company, died at San Mateo, Cal., of pneumonia.

Emil Caomette aged 16, was drowned at Brunswick, Me., while skating.

James Hyland, 33 years old, committed suicide at Peabody, Mass., by shooting. It is supposed that despondency was the cause of the act.

Willie Vaughan of Waterville, Me., aged 12, was drowned in the Kennebec river while skating.

The butter tub factory at Bristol, Vt., owned and managed by the Lincoln Lumber company, was burned. The loss is $10,000.

The Harvard university union now has 3172 members, made up of 1550 active, 620 associates, 500 non-residents, 430 graduated life members and 12 student life members. The oldest class represented is 1829, with one.

The Detroit Disaster

Detroit, Nov. 29.—The list of victims of the Penberthby Injector works boiler explosion will probably remain at 30, two more bodies having been recovered yesterday. All the injured in the hospitals are recovering. Superintendent Dows and Bookkeeper McEldowney went over the pay rolls yesterday and succeeded in accounting for all of the employes.

Coming Home to Recuperate

Cincinnati, Nov. 29.—Information has been received here by a friend of Judge Taft, civil governor of the Philippines, to the effect that he is about to return to the United States for an indefinite stay. Judge Taft was operated on several weeks ago and has failed to rally from the effects of it. It is said he cannot recuperate in that climate.

Books Were Being Examined

Louisville, Nov. 29.—Stuart R. Young, retiring city treasurer of Louisville, committed suicide in the rear of a warehouse by shooting. Young's books as city treasurer have been under examination by accountants at the city hall, preliminary to the office being transferred to the new treasurer, recently elected.

Can't Meet Obligations

San Jose, Nov. 29.—The financial distress of Costa Rica is increasing. The country is unable to meet the interest upon its foreign indebtedness and is experiencing difficulty in paying its public employes. The revenues have lately decreased considerably.

Guests at White House

Washington, Nov. 29.—President and Mrs. Roosevelt had quite a large party of friends at their Thanksgiving dinner at the White House last night. They included Senator and Mrs. Lodge, Commander and Mrs. Cowles and half a dozen others.

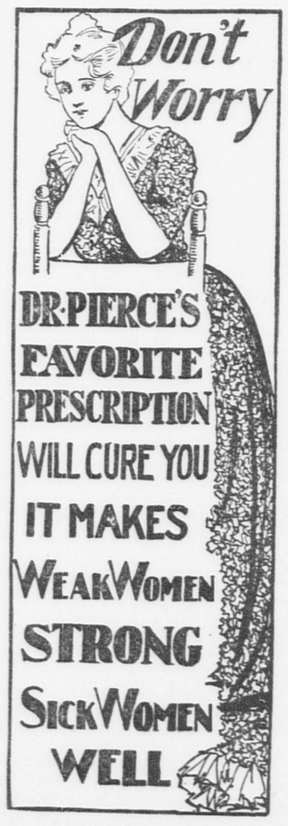

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets cure biliousness, constipation and headache. They are easy to take and pleasant in effect. For sale by all druggists.

Seacoast Submerged

London, Nov. 29.—A remarkable tidal wave, accompanied by strong winds, has done much damage along the eastern coast of England. Rivers have overflowed their banks, dams and sea walls have been invaded and miles of country have been submerged.

Something to Be Thankful For

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 29.—Purdue college has received a Thanksgiving present of $60,000 cash from Mrs. Eliza Fowler, for the erection and equipment of an assembly hall.

LOST THEIR BANNERS

Portland Disturbers Found Visitors Hard to Handle

Portland, Me., Nov. 29.—An exciting incident attended the football game between Portland High school and Thornton academy of Saco yesterday. About 500 persons came from York county on a special train to see the game. Portland won, 29 to 0, but some of the supporters of the local team made themselves obnoxious to the visitors by flaunting banners in their faces and hooting at them.

When the York county delegation crossed the street from the field to take their train which had been sidetracked there, the Portland people followed, hooting and yelling and waving their banners. Just before the train left the visitors charged the crowd and managed to secure several of the flags after rather a lively fight. The Portland people boarded the train and attempted to recover their property, but were unable to do so.

Gas Main Was Leaky

Boston, Nov. 29.—Edward W. Carroll was suffocated while he slept early yesterday morning by gas from a leaking main in Dartmouth street. Five persons were sinking into unconsciousness from the same cause, when a passing patrolman was alarmed by the pungent fumes. Seventy persons were sleeping in the buildings adjoining the pharmacy of the Henry C. Nute company, where the tragedy occurred. The escaping gas had penetrated the halls of the buildings when at 5 o'clock the discovery was made. The two policemen who aroused these tenants were so affected by the escaping gas that they fainted after accomplishing their task.

Bullet In His Thigh

Salem, Mass., Nov. 29.—John Barry, a member of the Second Corps of Cadets, was accidentally shot in the left thigh at the rifle range on Marblehead road yesterday. He was engaged with others in rifle practice. Captain Ropes was shooting with a new revolver. One of the cartridges stuck in Ropes' revolver, and as Ropes turned away from the company in attempting to fix it, the revolver was accidentally discharged. The ball passed through the rear end of the shed and struck Barry, who was outside. Physicians do not consider the wound necessarily fatal.

Father Murphy a Monsignor

Dover, N. H., Nov. 29.—The investiture of Rev. Daniel W. Murphy, pastor of St. Mary's parish, with the title of monsignor and the insignia of his office, following his appointment by the pope to the office of domestic prelate, was celebrated at St. Mary's church yesterday and the event was one of the most notable in the history of the Catholic church in New Hampshire.

Newton Worried by Firebug

Newton, Mass., Nov. 29.—The residents of the south side of this city are excited over the recent attempts to burn barns and houses. For several days the fire department has been kept busy answering alarms for incipient fires. Excepting one fire, the property loss has been small, yet the police are certain that a firebug is at work.

Got Lost In Storm

Eustis, Me., Nov. 29.—Collins, Burke and Reagan, the three Massachusetts sportsmen reported missing, have arrived here. They were found by Joseph Green, a trapper and guide. The men had lost their way in a storm, but traveled to Dead river, which they followed to the dam where they had been in camp.

Smallpox Not Yet Headed Off

Boston, Nov. 29.—The board of health did not issue a bulletin on the health of the city as regards smallpox yesterday, due to the fact that officially the office was closed. Dr. Durgin of the board says the backbone of the disease is not broken and that it is pretty certain to continue for some time.

Stabbing Prompted by Jealousy

New Bedford, Mass., Nov. 29.—Joseph Gagnon was arrested at the south end for assault on his wife with a dangerous weapon. He stabbed her in the neck and again in the shoulder. Nothing serious is anticipated from the wounds. Gagnon is said to have been inspired by jealousy.

Two Probably Fatally Hurt

New Haven, Nov. 29.—Paul Burke and David Burket, each aged about 30, were struck by a passenger train while driving across the railroad tracks near Cheshire yesterday, receiving injuries which will probably be fatal. Both men are suffering from brain concussion.

Coal Dealers to Combine

Providence, Nov. 29.—Although all of the details of the organization have not yet been perfected, it is expected that within a few days a number of the local coal dealers will form a combine.

A Russo-Japanese Entente

St. Petersburg, Nov. 29.—The czar granted an audience to Marquis Ito yesterday. An effective entente between Russia and Japan is regarded as the probable outcome of the audience between the czar and Marquis Ito, although it is not anticipated that permanent or binding obligations will be undertaken by either government.

Acid For Self and Children

Philadelphia, Nov. 29.—Mrs. Caroline Norton, aged 24 years, forced her two little daughters to drink carbolic acid and then swallowed some herself. One of the little girls, aged 2, died in great agony. Mrs. Norton has been mentally deranged for some time. She and the other child, aged 4, will recover.

Bad Collision of Electrics

Anderson, Ind., Nov. 29.—An electric car loaded with 25 glass workers collided with a coal car while returning to the city from the factory yesterday. All of the workmen were injured and three will probably die.

Surprise Party.

On Thanksgiving eve a surprise party was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dunbar at their residence on Rodman street. It is only a few months since the happy couple made their home in Quincy, but for the short time they have been here they have made fast friends with all who have had the good fortune to make their acquaintance. During the evening Mr. A. D. McGregor in behalf of those present, and in his usual pithy way, presented them with a handsome dinner set of 120 pieces; also a silver mounted cracker jar. Both Mr. and Mrs. Dunbar ably replied.

The evening was spent with songs, readings and dancing, and to judge by he hilarity of the occasion one would think that all the latent talent of Quincy had been let loose. There were songs in English, songs in Irish, songs in Scotch, songs in Hebrew, coon songs and—well, it would he difficult to tell which kind of songs were not sung. Everyone enjoyed themselves, in fact so much, that "Old King Sol" had begun his labor in this part of the sphere when the crowd began to wend their way homeward, so that they might practice the culinary art on the turkey in time for dinner.

During the evening the inner man was satisfied with refreshments enough to spoil the craving appetite for turkey, but we will hope that they all enjoyed their Thanksgiving dinner as well as they did the party.

Turkey Shoot.

A largely attended turkey shoot was held at Wollaston trap club Thanksgiving morning. Eighteen shooters were present.

Six events were shot, all at 10 unknown birds.

The 1st, 3d and 4th events were won by C. L. Prescott with scores of 7—8—8.

Whitmarsh won the second event with a score of 9.

Barry won the 5th and 6th events with scores of 8 and 9.

It is reported that Prescott will start a poultry market with the turkeys he won.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets cure biliousness, constipation and headache. They are easy to take and pleasant in effect. For sale by all druggists.

The Social Realm.

Through the harsh voices of our day
A low sweet prelude finds its way;
Through clouds of doubt and creeds of fear
A light is breaking, calm and clear;
That song of love, now low and far,
Erelong shall swell from star to star;
That light, the breaking day, which tips
The golden spired apocalypse!
—John G Whittier

IS THERE ANY?

Good Reason Why Mr. Jones Should Not be Supported?

Has any Candidate Done More for Country?

Hearty Greeting for Candidate Jones at Atlantic.

The Republican reception at Atlantic last evening was really a rousing Jones rally. From the size of the audience and the enthusiasm that greeted the speakers it was evident that all of the Republicans of the Ward Six have not bolted the regular Republican nominee. A car load of the Jones club of South Quincy were also present to whoop her up for their candidate.

Harry W. Reed presided and in opening said he did so only at the urgent request of the present Ward Committee. His letter published recently in the Ledger showed how he stood. He was glad to be one to stand up for the regular Republican nominee. The time had not come when he would desert the nomination made by a convention such as that was that nominated Mr. Jones.

Mayor Hall said he had always looked to Atlantic as a substantial safeguard of the Republican party. We come to present to you a man worthy of your respect and confidence, and ask you to endorse his nomination in so substantial a manner that the question of Republicanism in Ward Six will be solidly settled. The sooner we clear the atmosphere of mists that clouds the minds of some, as to what they should do, the better. I am a Republican, first, last and all the time. (Applause). Not a Republican when I vote on State or National affairs, but a Republican when it relates to affairs in the community in which I live. We bring to you the man whom the Republicans have nominated to present to you as executive, to have control of the affairs of our city. We are not ashamed of him. I have known him for many years and we have worked together for the welfare of our city. We are not ashamed of his ability, honesty or capacity. It has been said our candidate cannot make a glorious appearance on a platform. I have no patience with the meanness of that condemnation. We want a man to represent the city in an honest open-handed and above board course of conduct. That man we have before you and ask for your endorsement. You have named him for the highest position in your gift and in so honoring him you have honored yourself. Mayor Hall closed by paying a high tribute to the character and ability of Mr. Jones.

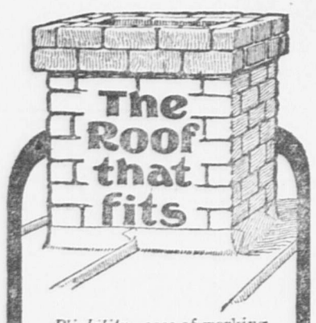

Ex-Mayor Sears said for the first time Quincy has three parties. The Republicans have a candidate, the Democrats a candidate and the Independent has a party all to himself. One of the fundamental principles of our government is that the minority should yield to the majority. Otherwise everything opposed to good government would reign. In all fairness, the minority should yield to the majority after such a fair and honest convention. Mr. Bryant has seen fit to go into a Republican caucus and convention, and after partaking of that party it is a general rule to stand by their decision. For the first time we have seen that departed from, and it should be stamped out. In selecting a captain of your craft you choose a man whom you can trust, one who has been tried for a long series of years. There has never been a time when Mr. Jones, our candidate, has been found wanting. There is no reason for deserting such an honorable candidate for private animosity. If you have an honest man nominated by your party are you justified in bolting Let it not be told that Quincy has not always proved true to the Republican party.

THE CANDIDATE.

The next speaker introduced was Frederick L. Jones, the candidate for Mayor. He was received with cheers loud and long.

This he said was the first time he had ever appeared to talk to anybody in Ward Six. I received the Republican nomination in a fair, square, just and honorable manner and I believe have a right to use every honorable means to secure election. I have been told that Ward Six was solid for the Ward Five candidate, but I do not

THE WABASH DISASTER

At Least Eighty Believed to Have Perished

FORTY-THREE ARE LOCATED

Bodies of Over Three Score Burned to Ashes In Fire Which Followed Wreck—Railroad Superintendent Insists That Estimate Is Too High

Detroit, Nov. 30.—An interview with Thomas E. Moran, deputy customs collector at this port, bears out the estimate that at least 80 lives were lost in Wednesday night's collision on the Wabash railroad near Seneca.

The two immigrant cars in which the greater loss of life occurred were part of the immigrant train which crossed Detroit river from Canada on a ferry boat on Wednesday afternoon. Deputy Moran inspected the baggage of the passengers and he says there were 100 Italians in the two cars at the very least calculation. In addition to these there were 10 more in the smoking car, which was ahead of the two emigrant cars.

Official advices to Superintendent Burns of this division of the Wabash say that of the Italians in the wreck 20 escaped unhurt and were taken to St. Louis, 15 are in the companys' hospital at Peru, Ind.; there are six others in Peru and two are near Adrian, injured. Subtracting these 43 from the 110 immigrants who Deputy Moran says were aboard the train, leaves a loss among the Italians alone of 67, their bodies being burned to ashes in the fire which followed the wreck. In addition, eight other bodies were recovered and identified, which makes a total of 75 dead.

Superintendent Burns was told of the interview with Customs Collector Moran estimating the number of immigrants on the train at 110. While he declined to estimate the number pending arrival of the official list, he thought this was too high.

"There were not that many Italians aboard the train," said he. Continuing, he said: "Another thing must be taken into account in estimating the loss from the number of passengers on the train, and that it that we have no list of the living. Our first efforts were, of course, directed to saving the injured and rescuing the dead. Therefore it was impossible for us to get anything like a list of those who were unhurt. I insist that the estimates are too high."

Cabinet Decides Against Jenkins

Washington, Nov. 30.—The major portion of the cabinet meeting yesterday was devoted to going over some recess appointments, which will be sent to the senate next week. Considerable time was spent upon the question of reappointing Governor Jenkins of Oklahoma. Charges were made against Jenkins regarding his connection with a cattle company organized in the territory, and the president gave him a hearing last Monday. It was decided yesterday not to reappoint him.

Sports Stirred Up

New York, Nov. 30.—In sporting circles here nothing is talked more of than the defeat of Terry McGovern by Rothwell. That McGovern was beaten by a two-handed rushing fighter like himself, was conceded by everybody, but McGovern's friends are evidently of the opinion that should the pugilists meet again McGovern will retrieve his lost laurels.

Whining About Professionalism

London, Nov. 30.—Outlook expresses deep regret at the decision of the Henley stewards to allow foreign oarsmen to compete at the annual regatta and says: "English oarsmen, to hold their own against Americans, will be forced to give up the ways of easy, courteous amateurs, and convert themselves into professionals in everything but the payment."

Bond of Treasurer Increased

San Juan, P. R., Nov. 30.—William F. Willoughby, the newly appointed treasurer of Porto Rico, succeeding Jacob Hollander, resigned, took the oath of office today. The executive council of Porto Rico raised the bond of the treasurer of the island from $100,000 to $150,000. This action was taken because of the increased funds handled by the treasurer.

Worcester Company Closes Shop

New York, Nov. 30.—At a meeting held here yesterday, the stockholders of the Worcester Traction company decided to dissolve the corporation. The capital stock was reduced several months ago from $400,000 to $60,000 by the merging of the company's lines with those of several other eastern lines.

Batangas Insurgents Busy

Manila, Nov. 30.—The insurgents are active in Batangas province. Recently they killed a merchant in the town of Batangas, terrorized the people living in the outskirts of the town and escaped after a running fight with a small detachment of the Eighth infantry.

Killed Wife In Public

Camden, N. J., Nov. 30.—Samuel Van-Stavern, aged 42 years, shot and killed his wife last night on the street. The couple had been married 18 years, but had frequently separated and had not been living together recently. Van-Stavern surrendered to the police.

Duke Hurt While Hunting

London, Nov. 30.—The Duke of Teck was thrown from his horse yesterday while out hunting near Nantwich. He sustained concussion of the brain and injury to his hip. The duke is a brother of the Princess of Wales. He was born in 1869.

Fusion Forces Think Partridge Will Make Good Commissioner

New York, Nov. 30.—Mayor-elect Low announced yesterday his intention to appoint Colonel John N. Partridge police commissioner of Greater New York. Colonel Partridge is now state superintendent of public works. Some other use for wardmen than being the personal attendants of police captains; treatment of the vice question according to local conditions; the possible introduction of new blood into the department, through the medium of deputies appointed from civil life; personal trial of police delinquents, and absolute fairness to all, are the principal points outlined by Colonel Partridge in the declaration of his policy.

Colonel Partridge's appointment is satisfactory to Senator Platt and the Republican organization, although he has not figured as an organization man. The leaders of the fusion forces warmly indorse Colonel Partridge's selection. They say that it means a thorough rooting out of corruption in the police department and a reorganization of the police on military lines.

State Senator Krum, one of Platt's lieutenants, expressed the general sentiment when he said at Republican state headquarters: "Colonel Partridge will be an ideal police commissioner. He has experience and military training; and will be under no obligations to anybody. He will put the police department on such a footing that the people will be wondering for the next two years why they tolerated Tammany corruption so long. The Republican organization is entirely satisfied with the appointment. Colonel Partridge is a good Republican, although he never trained with the organization. We believe there should be no politics in the police department and would, therefore, have been satisfied even if Mr. Low had appointed an independent Democrat."

Report of Death Not Confirmed

Constantinople, Nov. 30.—The report that Miss Stone and Mme. Tsilka are dead is not confirmed. It is supposed that the brigands put such rumors in circulation with the object of exciting the friends of the captives in the hope of exacting the full amount of ransom demanded.

Sofia, Nov. 30.—According to a letter dated Dubnitza, Nov. 28, Miss Stone and Mme. Tsilka are still alive. The letter in question further says that at a recent meeting of the committee held in Dubnitza it was definitely decided not to kill the prisoners upon any pretext whatever. Nevertheless, the committee insisted upon the payment of the full amount of the ransom.

More Troops Needed

London, Nov. 30.—The correspondent of The Times in Pretoria, whose recent dispatches giving the numbers of the Boer commandoes, it is supposed, were allowed to pass through the censorship as a warning that more British troops were wanted in South Africa, sends a sketch today of the positions of the British columns, and states explicitly that more men are needed to accelerate the attrition of the Boers and that a further partitioning of the country by lines of blockhouses is necessary to enable the British columns to achieve greater results.

In Interest of Federation

San Juan, P. R., Nov. 30.—The mass meeting of the local labor associations of Porto Rico, which was called by Santiago Iglesias, was peacefully conducted. Although Iglesias met with some opposition, he appeared confident of uniting the local trades organizations with the American Federation of Labor.

Shock Felt Five Miles Away

Findlay, O., Nov. 30.—Al. Halter and Earl O'Neill were installing a new gas engine at an oil well on a farm yesterday when the boiler exploded, killing both instantly. The shock of the explosion was felt in this city, a distance of five miles.

Prince Won't Compete For Cup

London, Nov. 30.—The report cabled to the United States that a syndicate composed of prominent yachtsmen was about to offer a new yacht to the Prince of Wales to enable him to compete for the America's cup turns out to be untrue.

Fishing For Sympathy

London, Nov. 30.—"The sultan has told his friends that he celebrated his birthday with a heavy heart," cables the Constantinople correspondent of The Times, "because of the humiliation inflicted upon Turkey by France."

Another Operation on Taft

Manila, Nov. 30.—An operation performed on Governor Taft yesterday was successful. He expects to start for Washington on Dec. 10, to recuperate and confer with Secretary Root.

Canal Boats Frozen Up

Schnectady, N. Y., Nov. 30.—Several boats have been caught in the canal by the ice and may be compelled to spend the winter in the levels in the neighborhood of this city.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Charles Carlson and Leroy Langdon, aged 11 and 14 years, were drowned in the Connecticut river at Wethersfield, Conn. The boys were playing hockey on the thin ice and went through.

James D. Sullivan, at one time a pitcher for the Boston National league baseball club, died at Boston. He had been in failing health for two years. He was considered at one time the most scientific pitcher in the country.

George W. Bowley, surfman at Highland Light, Mass., life saving station, has received appointment as keeper of the Pamet River station, to succeed Keeper John Rich, who leaves the service after an honorable record covering 27 years.

IN HIS OWN BEHALF

Lambert, Suspected of Allen Murders, Tells Straightforward Story

Dover, Me., Nov. 30.—Popular interest in the trial of Henry Lambert, the accused murderer of J. W. Allen, which has been at a high pitch in this section during the last 10 days, was considerably increased yesterday when the prisoner took the stand in his own behalf. Lambert was on the stand from shortly before 11 o'clock in the forenoon until court adjourned, and the whole of this time was devoted to direct examination.

Lambert made an excellent witness. He spoke distinctly and carefully, and with the assistance of a few questions by his attorney told his side of the story in a straightforward manner. He claimed that he left his umbrella and rubbers at Greenville when he started for home Sunday night, May 12, and accounted for the piece of cloth missing from his shirt by saying that he had used it to bind his blistered feet on the way home from Greenville.

Lambert denied that he had any intention of attempting to secure witnesses to prove false alibi, as testified to by Timothy E. Hartnett for the state, and claimed that he only wanted Hartnett to get witnesses to testify that they saw him, if they really did see him. He denied in the most positive way that he told Hartnett Carrie Allen "came down stairs when she heard the noise."

Captain and Crew Escaped

Boston, Nov. 30.—The two-masted schooner Lucy Belle, Captain Mathis, from Sullivan, Me., for this port, with about 135 tons of cut edgestones, lies sunk on the southern edge of Thatcher's Island, in about 25 feet of water. The vessel struck off Thatcher's, opening up her seams and within a few minutes she went to the bottom. The captain and crew had barely time to launch the boat and pull away from the vessel before she foundered.

Grand Jury Will Investigate

Plymouth, Mass., Nov. 30.—Demetrio Bagni, who is charged with having killed Mrs. Lizzie Feriolli on the night of Oct. 22, was held for the grand jury after a hearing before Judge Davis yesterday. This hearing did not develop much information about the crime, but it showed sufficient circumstantial evidence against the prisoner to secure for the government a grand jury inquiry.

Doctor Hustled to Save Life

Littleton, N. H., Nov. 30.—Like John Gilpin of story books, a Littleton doctor made a ride to save a life last night, going to Pattenville, six miles away, to treat Mrs. O. M. Moseley, who had taken laudanum. The ride was made with the thirmometer at a low point. Mrs. Moseley is said to have taken poison intentionally. The doctor says she will recover.

Murder In Boston's Little Italy

Boston, Nov. 30.—Murder was committed in the Italian section of the city, Nicola Meoli, 24 years of age, being found in the hallway on the third floor of a house in the rear of 91 Prince street last evening, with his throat cut, the head being nearly severed from the body. Nothing is yet known of the details of the murder or the circumstances that led to it.

Child Found and Ate Tablets

Clinton, Mass., Nov. 30.—The 4-year-old son of Charles R. Frazer died late yesterday, as the result of eating tablets which had been prescribed for his mother by a physician. Mrs. Frazer had put the tablets away in an upper chamber, but the child came across them and ate several of them. The tablets contained strychnine and belladonna.

Bullet In Stomach

Portsmouth, N. H., Nov. 30.—James Scanlon sent a 32-calibre cartridge ball into his stomach, while on Daniel street early this morning. He was later sent to the hospital for treatment. In one rational moment he said he shot himself because he had lost his job, and in another that his girl had gone back on him. He is 22 years old.

A Ten Percent Dividend

Nashua, N. H., Nov. 30.—Assignee Hoyt of the Mechanics' Savings bank, which was closed in 1883, announces that he will on Dec. 2 begin paying another dividend to depositors of 10 percent. This will require between $80,000 and $90,000. Two previous dividends of 15 percent each have already been paid.

Stole From the Mail

Boston, Nov. 30.—Frank S. Fellows, a Brookline letter carrier, who was arrested more than a year ago on the charge of stealing letters from the mail, appeared in court yesterday and pleaded guilty to one of the counts. Sentence was deferred indefinitely. Fellows was liberated under bail.

Cannot Do Business In Connecticut

Hartford, Nov. 30.—Insurance Commissioner Scofield announces his refusal to admit to the transaction of business in Connecticut the Union Fraternal League of Boston. The commissioner states that an examination of the organization's affairs led him to refuse the application.

Herring Fishermen Made Happy

Highland Light, Mass., Nov. 30.—The cape fishermen who have had herring traps out are looking forward to a good catch, as a school struck in yesterday and 500 barrels were taken. The fish are of fine quality.

Took Commission's Report

Washington, Nov. 30.—Carl H. Hoffman, the former stenographer to the isthmian canal commission, who was arrested in New York, has been turned over to the custody of the United States marshal here. The affidavit in the case alleges that Hoffman carried away the final report of the isthmian canal commission to the president with intent to steal.

"OUR NEXT MAYOR."

FREDERICK L. JONES,
Regular Republican Candidate.

AN ENDORSEMENT.

Mayor Hall Enthusiastic for Republican Nominee.

Editors of the Ledger:

The citizens of Quincy now have an opportunity to secure a very efficient and capable man as their chief executive in the person of Frederick L. Jones, Esq., nominated at the Republican convention and it is to be hoped that they will rally to his support in such numbers as will secure him a substantial victory over all opponents.

Mr. Jones is not an office seeker but is a man in whom his fellow citizens have confidence as well as respect and esteem.

He is a successful business man careful, conservative and progressive. He is a man that will discharge the duties of the Mayor's office with credit to himself and to the city.

He will call around him those who will have the confidence and respect of all the citizens and those who will see that the city receives a full return for all expenditures.

He has been a loyal supporter of the government in its days of peril and should receive the gratitude and appreciation of his fellow citizens.

There is no better way and no way more gracious than to accord him this honor.

He is a leading representative of the largest industry in our city one employing the largest number of our respected citizens. The granite manufacturers and cutters are entitled to the confidence and respect of the people. They have contributed largely to the growth and prosperity of the city. They are interested in the welfare and rejoice in the posperity she has secured.

Let us make just acknowledgement of this fact by honoring one of the worthiest members of that industry.

In convention assembled he received the unanimous vote of the Republicans of the city and the members of that party are under moral obligation to give him undivided and earnest support and surely they can justly give this support for by so doing they are working in the interest of one who is in every way worthy to receive the support of every citizen whatever his party ties may be.

These are decisive days for the continued welfare of our city. We are entering upon a large degree of prosperity and it is incumbent upon us to so conduct our municipal affairs that the advantages of this prosperity are not wasted but are so carefully husbanded so that when this wave of prosperity shall have passed and we come to the common level of the tide of affairs we shall not find ourselves burdened beyond our means.

With Councils anxious and pressing for expenditures of all kinds, it is incumbent on us to place in the Mayor's office one who is wise and conservative who will insist that all projects shall receive careful attention and only the wisest and most meritorious shall receive his sanction.

In Mr. Frederick L. Jones the citizens have such a man, and I earnestly hope that the citizens will rally to his support in such numbers as will secure him a handsome victory as they will thereby honor themselves while honoring him.

Respectfully

John O. Hall.

From Recent Issues of the Quincy Daily Ledger.

Usually, when there is a bolt from a regular party candidate it is either because an unworthy or undesirable man has been nominated, as in the case of Watts H. Bowker for County Commissioner; or when an attempt is made to remove from office a faithful official like Chairman Porter of the School Committee last year; or to secure a reform in government.

The bolt for Mr. Bryant is entirely different. To speak plainly, it was because the leader of a ring had been thrown down, and his followers did not wish to lose their power. But Quincy wants no ring. We have too much politics for a small city. More than the taxpayers can afford.

The voters of Quincy, regardless of party, as in the recent contest for County Commisioner, have another opportunity to vote for good government, which will best be subserved by the election of Frederick L. Jones as Mayor.

We agree with the Herald in direct nomination of candidates, both for Mayor as well as for Senators and Representatives. But we cannot agree with the deductions of the Herald relative to the Quincy Mayoralty contest, because the issue was not so much among the candidates themselves as it was between the Bryant faction and their opponents. The rank and file of the Republican party preferred either Mr. Jones, Mr. Packard or Mr. Jameson to Mr. Bryant, and they will show by their votes on Tuesday next that they are satisfied with the choice of the convention.

With direct nominations in vogue, Messrs. Jones, Packard and Jameson would have united before the caucuses instead of after. Had Mr. Jameson been the only candidate against Mr. Bryant in the caucuses with a list in each ward, he would have won out, as he would have carried Wards One, Two and Three, with their 28 delegates out of a total of 51. It would have been the same had Mr. Packard or Mr. Jones been substituted for Mr. Jameson.

A majority of those who attended the Republican caucuses gave their verdict against Mr. Bryant; a majority of the delegates elected were against Bryant. Had any of the anti-Bryant delegates voted to place Mr. Byrant in nomination they would have been false to the majority of their constituents.

If the Herald knew the methods used by the Bryant faction to elect delegates, and later to buy delegates, they would probably do justice to the Quincy voters who are fighting for good government and less politics, and against one man power.

Sit Down.

Editors of Daily Ledger:
There was a man in our town,
He was so wondrous wise;
He thought the Democrats for him
Would win the Mayor's prize.
But when they counted up the votes,
This man from our town,
He heard the Demmys loudly yell
"Go way back and sit down."

AN ANSWER TO MR. BRYANT.

Quincy Mayoralty Matter in Another Light.

President Jameson of the Republican City Committee Pays His Respects to "A Defeated Candidate," Who is "Not Willing to Stand up and Take His Medicine."

Edward E. Jameson, president of the Republican City Committee of Quincy, in an interview yesterday, said:

"In reference to the mayoralty contest in Quincy, regarding which The Herald publishes a statement purporting to have come from Mr. Bryant, in which he states his reasons for accepting the citizens' nomination, I would say that it would seem evident from his statement that there was a general uprising among the citizens of Quincy, a concerted effort made, to oust Mr. Knowlton, Commissioner of Public works, and Mr. Williams, chief of the fire department. I am very sure that such is not the case. There may be some objection to the two gentlemen above mentioned among a number of people; any man holding a public position may expect to be criticised, and they should expect criticism.

"It would seem from Mr. Bryant's statement that the only reason he wishes to be mayor of the city of Quincy is to continue in service the heads of the two departments above mentioned. I am quite certain, judging from statements made directly by Mr. Packard and Mr. Jones previously to the caucuses, that neither of these gentlemen has stated to any one that he would or would not reappoint Mr. Knowlton and Mr. Williams.

"It would seem very strange, indeed, if the decision of the people of the city of Quincy in reference to its chief executive should rest upon the question whether or not he would reappoint Mr. Knowlton or Mr. Williams as chief of his departments. It has been the aim of most of the people interested in the welfare of the city of Quincy to keep the various departments out of politics, and also to keep politics out of the various departments, and the course pursued this year before the caucuses, by both Mr. Williams and Mr. Knowlton, has been such as to make the situation even to their friends. I do not question for a moment the ability of either Mr. Knowlton or Mr. Williams, but if they wish to place their departments on the proper basis and get the best results possible, one of the first things to be done should be to keep out of active politics themselves.

"In the past few years these two departments have been bones of contention in the campaigns, and I think the Republicans of the city of Quincy should have confidence enough in any man who has received the nomination of the Republican convention to believe that he will appoint such men as in his judgment are best for the positions. I do not believe that any man who would receive the Republican nomination would refuse to reappoint the two gentlemen above mentioned if they were superior to others available for the positions.

"I repeat that the stories circulated in reference to Mr. Jones, Mr. Packard and myself, intending to oust Mr. Williams and Mr. Knowlton, are false.

"The fight in the caucuses was distinctively a Bryant and anti-Bryant fight, and the returns show that Mr. Bryant was not the popular choice of the Republican party. In reference to the so-called secret convention of the Packard, Jones and Jameson delegates, I would say that it was perfectly fair for them to meet in conference before the convention and settle the matter as to which of the three should receive the unanimous support of the 28 delegates, which 28 delegates were elected by the anti-Bryant vote, and there was no misunderstanding as to this point. Mr. Bryant took his chances in the caucuses, and carried three wards, which gave him 23 delegates. It is generally reported and without denial, that the 23 Bryant delegates had several meetings before the convention, one of which was held at the Essex House in Boston; therefore, the very thing the Bryant people are howling against so loudly they have been doing themselves. I see no reason why they did not have a perfect right to hold as many meetings as they chose and certainly the anti-Bryant delegates had

THE SAME RIGHT.

"As to the final method of deciding which one of the three, Mr. Jones, Mr. Packard, or Mr. Jameson, should receive the votes of the 28 delegates, this has absolutly nothing whatever to do with the matter, as far as others are concerned. The 28 delegates were unanimous as to the method by which it was to be decided, and Mr. Jones Mr. Packard and Mr. Jameson were satisfied and so expressed themselves at the time. The result was that Mr. Jones received 28 votes in the convention, which was more than sufficient to nominate him; the convention made his nomination unanimous, and Mr. Jones stands before the people as the unanimous choice of the Republican convention.

"Mr. Bryant stands in the position of a defeated candidate, and by his actions since the convention he has shown that he is not willing to abide by the verdict of the convention, and stand up and take his medicine."

"Mr. Jones is a gentleman of ability, fully competent to fill the position for which he has been nominated. He is a clean, honest, straightforward man, not a politican; is engaged in business in the city of Quincy; is familiar with city affairs, having had experience in them; is highly respected by all, conscientious, energetic, of an excellent reputation morally, and, all in all, a man who would administer the affairs of the city in a thoroughly satisfactory manner, as much so as it is possible for any man to do. Mr. Jones would certainly, judging from his past reputation, conduct the affairs of the city, as to finances in an able and economical manner, consistent with good results and progress. On the license question he would see that the laws relating to the sale of liquor were rigidly enforced, so far as it might lie in the power of any man to do so."

HIS WAR RECORD.

Candidate Jones One of the Early Volunteers for Country.

It is quite well understood that Frederick L. Jones, the Republican candidate for Mayor at the coming municipal election, is a veteran of the Civil war, but there are few who know what an active part he took in those stirring days to preserve the Union. He saw in all, three years of service, and during that time participated in twenty-six battles. He was wounded three times and today can show the scar of a Rebel bullet that plowed its way through his jaw.

When the call for volunteers came in '61. Mr. Jones and his brother with James Ryan of West Quincy enlisted from Quincy in the 23d Massachusetts regiment, and were assigned to Co. H. This was on Dec. 6, 1861. The first battle the three Quincy men participated in was at Roanoke Island, and the second at Newburn, N. C., March 14, 1862. At this battle Ryan was killed and Mr. Jones and his brother were both slightly wounded. His brother then contracted a fever and died.

At the battle of Drury's Bluff, in April 1864, Mr. Jones received another slight wound and again while before Petersburg, July 28, 1864. It was at this battle that the Rebel bullet passed through his jaw and came near ending his existence. At Drury's Bluff he and a few companions fell into the hands of the rebels and were prisoners for about fifteen minutes.

During his service, events followed each other rapidly until October, 1864, when the 23d regiment was mustered out of service. At that time it was Corporal Jones and as he had two months more to serve he was sent to Galloups Island as orderly sergeant of Co. B of the permanent garrison. Dec. 5, 1864, having completed his three years of enlistment he was honorably discharged.

Among the battles in which he participated other than those mentioned above were: Batchelers creek; Kingston, N. C.; Whitehall: Goldsborough; Tarbora; Swifts Creek; Little Washington, N. C.; Gettys Station Va.; Bermuda Hundred where it was fight every day for a week; Pocahontas Creek; and Cold Harbor.

The spirit of patriotism that prompted Mr. Jones to respond to the call in 1861 was imbued in his son Lieut. Walter C. Jones who is at present quartermaster sergeant of the 11th Infantry stationed at the Island of Leyte in the Philippines.

When war with Spain was declared Walter was attending the college of pharmacy. He wrote his father asking permission to enlist. At that time his father discouraged him saying that there would be plenty of time later. The next heard was a letter from the college inquiring where Walter was. Investigation showed that he had run away and enlisted in the 1st Regular Cavalry at Ft. Sheridan. Later he was sent to Santiago and on the anniversary of his 21st birthday he participated in his first battle before Santiago. The next day he was made corporal and three months later sergeant and later second lieutenant attached to the 11th Infantry at Porto Rico. For a time he was stationed at Ft. McPherson but last spring was sent with his regiment to the Philippines. He was appointed battalion quartermaster at Ft. McPherson, and as stated above is now located on the Island of Leyte in the Philippines.

In his last letter home he wrote of meeting Lieut. Bumpus and of the pleasant day they spent together talking over boyhood days in Quincy and at that time he wrote that Lieut. Bumpus expected to return home soon. His letter arrived about the time the news of Lieut. Bumpus' death was received.

A BRYANT DELEGATE

Who Is Out for Frederick L. Jones.

And Against Any Independent Movement.

Considers Republican Conventian Was Clean and Straightforward.

Editors of the Quincy Daily Ledger:

I think it is a well known fact that any action I might take in local politics is principally for the best interests of Ward 6. I am regulated by the same desire at present, and when I say that I am in hearty accord with the straight Republican Nominee, and against any independent movement, I believe it is for the best interests for the city in general and Ward 6 in particular. I am amazed at the action of one of our Ward Councilmen, who, in his efforts to gain support for the Independent ticket, makes a statement for which he has no foundation.

We, in Ward 6, love our street man, Dennis O'Neil, because of his being efficient, gentlemanly and able, and I have had occasion to talk with men who signed the Independent Nomination papers, because they were told that in the event of the election of the Republican Ticket, Mr. O'Neil would have to go.

Upon understanding the facts of the case, they were thoroughly mad, and well they might be.

It is dirty politics, and doesn't help the cause of the Independent. I can see no reason for bolting the Republican Ticket as I consider the nominee, clean, open, square and honest. Now, in order to avoid any back slap, I will state that I am perfectly well aware that I once bolted the Republican nomination for a straight Democrat, and I do not hestitate to say that the time may come when I will do so again, but I don't believe in bolting for an independent movement and can see no benefit to be derived therefrom.

I was also a delegate to the convention in support of Mr Bryant and had he received the straight nomination, I should have supported him. I consider that the Convention was conducted in a clean and straightforward manner, and would have been tickled if we had had the men and power to form any such alliance and would have thought we were smart.

I am a firm believer in Mr. Williams, also in Mr. Knowlton, and while they might have monkeyed in political affairs a little too much, that does not affect their being able, efficient and careful men in the positions they now hold, and as I believe it is the policy of the Republican nominee if elected to put capable men at the head of each department, something might happen that would please even his opponents.

Yours truly,

Harry W. Read.

Over Two to One Republican.

At the recent State election there was no doubt about the Republicanism of the city of Quincy. With Josiah Quincy, a native of Quincy, as the Democratic candidate, the vote was 1943 for Gov. Crane, and 963 for Mr. Quincy. Only one ward went Democratic, and that by only 28 plurality. The strength of the two parties and the Republican plurality is shown by wards:

	Republican.	Democratic.	Rep. Plurality.
Ward One	452	141	311
Ward Two	252	162	90
Ward Three	367	206	161
Ward Four	248	276	*28
Ward Five	401	70	331
Ward Six	233	106	127

Good Afternoon

Now it is said that the City Hall appointees of Mayor Hall, who are supporting C. M. Bryant, have advised Mayor Hall to keep out of the contest. The affrontiveness.

It will seem odd to Mayor Hall to step down and out of City Hall January 6, after so many years of public service which has caused him to spend so many hours in City Hall. The citizens of Quincy appreciate his valuable services as City Auditor and Mayor.

Although the attention of City Clerk Cleaves has been called to the two "precinct 1," in Ward Two, both on his posters announcing the polling places, and the posters giving notice of the City election, he has not substituted correct notices. As they are not legal notices, and no mention is made of precinct 2, the whole election may be invalid.

When Harrison A. Keith was elected Mayor, his right hand adviser and friend was C. M. Bryant. Mayor Keith removed Commissioner Knowlton and appointed John T. Cavanagh, but this was evidently satisfactory to Mr. Bryant, for he continued loyal to Mr. Keith. The administration of Mr. Cavanagh and his assistant, Mr. Glover are too familiar to need comment.

In 1894 and 1895 C. M. Bryant led a bolt of the regular Republican candidate for Mayor, and contributed largely toward the election of C. F. Adams 2nd, the Democratic nominee. With a knowledge of these facts and the support which Mr. Bryant gave the Democratic administrations of Mayor Adams and Mayor Keith, Mr. Adams' endorsement of Mr. Bryaat should have but little weight among Republicans. Inasmuch as Quincy was not good enough for Mayor Adams after he retired from the executive chair, and he became a non-resident, it comes with ill grace for him to speak of Quincy as "our city."

The replies of Candidate Jones to the questions which Mr. H. H. Faxon propounded to the Mayoralty candidates, are just what the people of Quincy expected they would be. Mr. Jones does not dodge any of them, if we except No 7, and all knew what his answer to that would be. Probably it is charity alone to President Bryant which caused him to answer that question as he did, as he prefers others beside himself should criticise his rival. Candidate Jones is a living exponent of temperance measures, and in his answers he is emphatic against license and the use of liquor. He is equally strong against the desecration of the Lord's day, gambling and corrupt politics.

NO EQUIVOCATION

In the Answers of Frederick L. Jones

To the Questions of Henry H. Faxon.

Sound on No-License and Sunday Observance.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

In answer to the questions asked by Mr. H. H. Faxon, my reply is as follows:

1.—Will you vote for No-License, and, if elected, faithfully enforce the laws of the Commonwealth regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors?

I always vote for No-License; I firmly believe it is for the best interests of our city. There is no doubt in my mind, at all, but what men, as a general thing, don't care about it, and won't run after Liquor unless it is handy to get. Keep it away!

2.—Will you do all in your power to suppress gambling?

I don't believe in gambling; always was apposed to it, and am ready to do all in my power to keep it down.

3.—Will you strictly enforce the laws relative to Sunday observance?

As far as in my power, I will strictly enforce the law relative to Sunday observance.

4.—Are you a believer in cock-fighting and other similar demoralizing sports?

I don't believe that any kind of sporting should be allowed on the Lord's day.

5.—Are you in favor of political conclaves at which beer and other liquors are dispensed for the purpose of making votes?

I believe that liquors of any kind should not be used, to try to pervert the minds and will of voters at political conclaves.

6.—Will you appoint to the police force men who are addicted to the use of intoxicating liquors?

If elected, I shall not appoint any men to office of any kind whom I know are addicted to the common use of liquor.

7.—Are you in favor of using the taxpayers' money for such unwarrantable municipal expenditures as have been foisted upon us the past year by the Quincy City Council?

This question is something I don't care to answer, not having made it a study. It would require a review of the whole year's city business. What is done cannot be undone. Let us rather try to do our best in the future.

8—Do you favor Democrats voting in Republican caucuses?

I don't believe that Democrats, or Republicans or any other political parties, should in any way interfere in the caucuses of other parties.

Respectfully,
Frederick L. Jones.

Not an arrest for any offence was made by the police the night before Thankgiving. This speaks well for a city of over 25,000.

The cold weather for the past few day has made good ice and many enjoyed their first skating on Butler's ond Thanksgiving day.

At the National Sailors' Home and the Sailors' Snug Harbor, the sailors were given a tempting Thanksgiving dinner, consisting of turkey and all the fixings.

Sheriff Pearson, who in such a remarkable manner has enforced the no-license law at Portland, Maine, will give one of his forceful addresses at Quincy Music Hall tomorrow evening.

Democratic smoke talks in the interest of Frederick W. Tirrell were held Friday night at Doble's hall, South Quincy, and Foresters hall, West Quincy. Candidate Tirrell appeared and spoke at both rallies. Remarks were also made by the candidates for the City Council.

Rev. Mr. Gill of Arlington gave a paper before the Woman's Alliance last Monday afternoon at the Unitarian chapel. His subject was Unitarian Literature Viewed as a Whole.

A Thanksgiving vesper service is to be held at First church on Sunday at four o'clock. Especially fine music is being prepared for this service and the pastor will give a short address.

THE MUNICIPAL ELECTION

in the City of Quincy will be held on TUESDAY, DECEMBER 3d, 1901.

The Polls will be open from 6 A. M. to 4 P. M. at the following places:

WARD 1, Precinct 1—Council Chamber, City Hall Bui ding.
WARD 1, Precinct 2—Council Chamber, City Hall Building.
WARD 2, Precinct 1—Hose House, Washington Street.
WARD 2, Precinct 2—Building, Washington Street, opposite Mill Street.
WARD 3, Precinct 1—Doble's Hall, Franklin Street.
WARD 3, Precinct 2—Falconer's Hall, cor. Pleasant and Water Streets.
WARD 4—Precinct 1—St. Mary's Hall, Willard Street.
WARD 4, Precinct 2—Hose House, Copeland Street.
WARD 5—Hose House, Beale Street.
WARD 6—Music Hall, Newbury Avenue.

The citizens of Quincy now have an opportunity to secure a very efficient and capable man as their chief executive, in the person of Frederick L. Jones, nominated at the Republican Convention.

Mr. Jones is not an office seeker, he is a man in whom his fellow citizens have confidence, as well as respect and esteem. He is a successful business man, careful, honest, conservative and progressive, experienced in city affairs and with an unblemished record. He is a man who will discharge the duties of the office of Mayor with credit to himself and the city.

He will appoint to public offices, men who will have the confidence and respect of the citizens, and those who will see that the city receives a full return for all expenditures.

Mr. Jones was a loyal supporter of the Government in its days of peril, having participated in twenty-six battles, and being wounded three times; he should receive the grateful return of the appreciation of his fellow citizens.

He is a leading representative of the largest industy in our city. He received the unanimous nomination of the Republican party in convention assembled and he is entitled to the earnest and undivided support of the Republican party.

Leaving aside the question of politics entirely, Mr. Jones is worthy and justly entitled to receive the hearty support of the citizens of Quincy.

We therefore, again earnestly urge the voters of this city to assist in the election of Mr. Jones, who will give our city a good, clean, business like administration.

Quincy Republican City Committee,
EDWARD E. JAMESON, President.
JOHN McKNIGHT, Secretary.

BALLOTS FAULTY.

"Nom. Paper" Should Appear Against Bryant's Nomination.

The law requires that City Clerks shall, at least four days before a City election cause to be posted in every voting precinct a sample ballot. If Sunday is counted, Friday would be the very latest day for posting. Were they posted in each of the ten precincts of the city yesterday? Did any one see them?

Specimen ballots are posted in some of the precincts today, and they are pretty poor specimens of typographical art. It is almost unnecessary to add that they were not printed by George W. Prescott & Son.

But are the ballots legally prepared? It would not so appear.

A part of section 143 reads:

"If a candidate is nominated otherwise than by a political party, the name of a political party shall not be used in his political designation, except as describing and preceding some other name or term, which shall not be the name of any party which cast at the preceding election more than 3000 votes for governor; and if so used in case of a candidate nominated by nomination paper the political designation shall consist of not more than two words, shall not be changed after having been placed upon the paper, and to it shall be added the words 'nomination paper' or as abbreviated 'nom paper.'"

On the specimen ballots as posted the words "nomination paper" have not been added, but Mr. Bryant appears as though a nominee at a caucus of Independent Citizens.

The same flaw also appears relative to the nomination of Mr. Spargo for Councilman in Ward Three.

If yesterday's weather is to govern next month, December will be cold.

A special town meeting in Randolph will be held this evening, "To see if the town will authorize and instruct the Board of Fire Engineers, with the approval of the Selectmen, to sell one of the steam fire engines." Very good scheme.

WARRANT ILLEGAL.

More Blundering by City Clerk Cleaves.

Acts Submitted Should Appear in Full.

Other City Clerks Would Print if Law Did Not Require It.

Heretofore when any Act of the Legislature has been submitted to the voters it has been customary to publish the same in full in the warrant for the election. It was so when the "Eight Hour day" was submitted to the voters in 1898, and on other occasions. City Clerk Cleaves in his warrant for the approaching City election, not only does not follow precedent but he does not comply with the law. Section 210 of the Election Act of 1898 reads:

"Section 210.—Notices for warrants of meetings for State and City elections and for the election of town officers in towns where official ballots are used, shall specify by name all the offices to be voted for and STATE IN FULL any proposed amendment to the constitution OR OTHER QUESTION submitted to the people. They shall specify the time when the polls will be opened and in cities when the polls will be closed and in towns when they may be closed."

The Daily Ledger has made inquiries in other cities where the same act will be submitted to the voters and every one has in the warrant printed Chapter 233 of the Acts of 1901 in full. The City Clerks in Somerville and Cambridge say the law not only requires it but they believe in giving the voters the fullest information.

Not so with City Clerk Cleaves; he not only would keep the voters in ignorance on the City Clerk act, but on the election itself. The warrant will appear but once in the Daily Ledger and not at all in the Quincy Patriot; the notices of polling places appear but twice in the Ledger and once in the Patriot. Posters of both have been issued but they are faulty. They ask voters of Precinct 1 of Ward Two to vote in two places, and specify no place for Precinct 2 of Ward Two to vote.

When you feel that life is hardly worth the candle take a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They will cleanse your stomach, tone up your liver and regulate your bowels making you feel like a new man. For sale by all druggists.

THE CITY CLERK.

Mr. Tirrell Expresses His Views on Term of Office.

To the Editor of Quincy Daily Ledger:

While, naturally, considerably interested in my own candidacy for Mayor, I think the voters of Quincy should have their attention especially called to an important matter which they are to decide next Tuesday. As no one else steps forward, I take that liberty. I refer to the question at the end of the ballot, as to whether the term of office of the City Clerk should be for three years instead of one, as at present.

This position is not a political one. The name of the office, City "Clerk," leads many people to suppose that his duties are largely those of a bookkeeper, while in fact, his time is almost wholly spent on the records of births, marriages and deaths, in which every man, woman and child is interested, and, as he is the clerk of the Registrars of Voters, he is responsible for the correct preparation of the voteng lists, of which every voter should be watchful. He records mortgages, prepares the rolls for the monthly payment of State Aid, files the city papers and has charge of all the city records.

He holds a responsible post, and when the city gets a competent City Clerk, it is in the interest of good government that he should not be exposed to the chances of a political turnover every year. A man in that office should have considerable legal knowledge. His duties are largely defined by law and have nothing to do with the administration of general affairs according to the special ideas of any Mayor.

I therefore, recommend to the citizens of Quincy to be sure to vote on this question, and to vote "Yes."

Frederick W. Tirrell.

TIRRELL REPLIES

To Questions Propounded by Henry H. Faxon.

To Henry H. Faxon, E-q.

Recognizing the right of every citizen and voter to inquire into, and know, the position of any and all candidates for public office, upon all matters which may be considered as material in the administration of public affairs, I take pleasure in replying to the questions propounded by you in the Ledger of Tuesday last.

In answer to your first question I will say that I believe our city has so far been benefited by No-License and I certainly trust that the No-Vote will be larger this year than ever before.

In answer to question 2 and 3, there can be but one answer, and that is, that any man who by the suffrage of our voters is allowed to take the oath of office as the Mayor of Quincy is thereby most certainly bound to enforce all City ordinances and laws of the Commonwealth

Now as to your next question relating to cock-fighting, etc, I have never been a follower of this sport and had not previously heard it advanced as an issue in the present campaign, and therefore cannot see that it is pertinent to the coming election.

Question 5.—Not being an experienced politician perhaps I am not so well qualified to give an opinion as you, yourself, but it seems to me that such practices would eventually re-act upon the one using such methods for his own political advancement. If you differ from me I shall expect to hear that you are supporting some other candidate.

Answer 6.—If I am elected no disorderly conduct by the police or other officers of the city will be tolerated My appointees will all be law-abiding citizens.

Question seven I hardly consider explicit enough to enable me to make an intelligent answer, and now as your 8th and last question "Do you favor Democrats voting in Republican caucuses?" Most assuredly not! We need them all in our own caucuses. However, they will all be forgiven if they will get around early next Tuesday and vote the straight Democratic ticket.

Very respectfully yours,
Frederick W. Tirrell,
Democratic Candidate for Mayor.

LIBRARIES FIRST.

Andrew Carnegie Has a Great Many Requests for Buildings.

Evidently, all the time of our city editor is not occupied in newspaper work and politics, as some would have it appear. Early in the spring he secured the cooperation of a few gentlemen prominent in the Y. M. C. A., and after several meetings a request was sent to Mr. Andrew Carnegie, that he present the Quincy Association a building.

Learning later that Mr. Carnegie was more favorable to presenting the city a technical school. Mr. Prescott laid before him the benefits such a school would be to young men desirous of becoming draughtsmen, sculptors and granite cutters, and to employes of the Fore River Ship and Engine Co. and machinists who wished to advance.

It is to be regretted that the request is not at this time successful. The private secretary of Mr. Carnegie writes:

5 West 51st Street,
New York, Nov. 23, 1901.

Sir:—In reply to your letter, Mr. Carnegie asks me to say that his field of free public libraries proves more than wide enough to absorb all the time and attention he can give, and he must restrict himself to it.

Respectfully yours,
James Bertram,
Private Secertary.

LIQUOR AND LAWS.

Candidate Turner Against License and Gambling.

Mr. Henry Faxon:

Dear Sir,—In answer to the list of questions which you have submitted to me as the Democratic Social candidate for Mayor of Quincy, will say I am opposed to the granting of license for the sale of intoxicating liquors, and my vote will be cast for No-license, not as a matter of principle, but as expediency—as a choice between two evils.

I believe the only scientific solution of the liquor question is that submitted by the Democratic Social party, viz.: placing absolutely under governmental control, the manufacture, sale and distribution of all intoxicating liquors. The attempt of the Prohibitionists to legislate alcohol out of society, is as puerile as would be an attempt to legislate oxygen out of pneumatic chemistry. Therefore, I shall continue to vote No-license until the necessary legislation can be secured that will place at rest for all time a question which in this country especially, has vexed the minds of many of our best citizens throughout our history.

In reply to your question regarding the enforcement of law, will say I am not only opposed to gambling in all its forms, in caucuses, conventions or churches, but I will not condone it. If elected I trust no citizen will violate any city ordinances while I have the responsibility of their enforcement. I shall see to it that the law is enforced and offenses punished whether the offender be "college" or lowly bred, whether the sin be rum selling or cock fighting.

As to when Councilman and Chairman of the Street Committee, Newcomb, will report back to the Council the order introduced requesting the Old Colony Street Railway to operate their cars on the Hough's Neck line without interruption. Is it politics, or is it indifference towards a very much oppressed section of Quincy? In any event, the voters should know the cause of this unnecessary delay.

IS THERE ANY?

believe Atlantic will go back on me without some good reason. Is there any good reason? Perhaps you have heard something about me to lead you to believe I am not worthy. I have been in Quincy 43 years, and have tried to be an honest man, and bring up an honest family, and I think I have succeeded fairly well. There has been a story that if I was elected, the poor Democratic laborer would be kicked out. I live in a ward where three-fourths of the citizens are laboring men and they gave my delegation a very flattering majority. I never had any trouble with laboring men for I believe they are worthy of all they get, and if elected, no laboring man who does his duty need fear me.

I am no blue blood I have worked for all I have got.

We read that all Mr. Bryant is up for is to save two trusted officials from being turned out. Who said they would be turned out? I never have said so. I have not made a single promise. If elected, I shall endeavor to put men in office who will be honest to my administration.

I have been talked about because I am a foreigner. That is right, I am. But I came here when 13 years of age. In 1860 I went to war and shed my blood, and I think I have earned the right to be an American citizen. Has any candidate done more for his country than I have. I do not believe the Republican voters will turn me down. I have voted the Republican ticket since 1866 as I believe in its principles.

One of the sore spots is the way I got my nomination. It was no snide game however. There were 28 delegates elected as anti-Bryant. They were elected for that purpose.

He then told of the meeting at the Greenleaf. How, after all agreeing that there was but one way to decide the question, a Packard delegate had written the names and Mr. Packard moved that a certain gentleman should draw the name. All agreed to support the name drawn. Was there anything dishonorable about that?

He was a firm believer in temperance and always voted for No-License.

I think I know how to conduct the business of the city. If elected, I will do my best to give a good clean administration.

Edward E. Jameson President of the City Committee said: We have four candidates. I am not sufficiently acquainted with Mr. Turner to discuss his views. I personally know Mr. Tirrell and consider him a good business man but training in the wrong school. Mr. Bryant took his chances in a Republican caucus and convention and failed to get the nomination. He was beaten at a game at which he is an expert. He now comes to fight the party of which he wanted to be the standard bearer.

I believe Mr. Jones is equally qualified and that he is entitled to the support of the Republican party.

Bryant is not entitled to the Republican vote. Mr. Jones' record is as clean as the driven snow. In a desperate attempt they attack his supporters as they can find nothing about him. If Bryant is elected, I will not be the sickest man in Quincy, as stated by a semi-occasional newspaper. He then appealed to the voters to support Jones and the Councilmen at large and Ward Councilmen.

John P. Bigelow spoke as a member of the Jones club of Ward Three. I have known Mr. Jones ever since he was a boy. I know him to be a first class Republican. He has never done a thing he or his own father or mother need blush for. He is a self-made man. Ward Six is under some obligation to Ward Three as the latter ward made it possible to nominate Mr. Moxon. It is a good time to pay back that debt. There was never anything fairer than that meeting in the Greenleaf. You at least should give us a fair Republican vote.

Senator Sprague was the last speaker. He came here to perform his duty. As a member of the Ward and City Committee it was his duty to support the Republican nominee or resign. Others have resigned but I have not heard one reason why Republicans should not stand up and support the Republican nominee this year.

I congratulate you that you have a Daniel who dares to stand alone. A Daniel who dares to have a purpose free, and a Daniel who dares to make it known. For nearly a quarter of a century, Mr. Jones has been a successful business man in Quincy, and that is no mean thing.

He has been more than that. At 17 he joined the army that gave us our homes today. As I grow older I appreciate more and more what those men of '61 did, and when an opportunity presents itself to honor one of these men I am glad to be one to do it. If any man will tell me one reason why I should not support the regular Republican nominee, the ties of friendship would tempt me to vote for my friend and neighbor. There is a moral obligation why a man who participates in a caucus should support the nominee, unless for some good reason. There is none here, and it is our duty to loyally stand by and support him.

At the conclusion of the speaking three cheers were given for Mr. Jones. Many in the audience then came forward and shook his hand and assured him of their support.

FORCES ARE LINING UP

High Tariff Men Opposed to Cuban Reciprocity

DISAGREE WITH PRESIDENT

Prediction That None of the Kansas Treaties Will Be Ratified—Proposed Amendment to House Rules Which Will Curtail Power of Committees

Washington, Nov. 30.—Something of the coherence of the high tariff forces is revealed by the prompt announcement of Payne, Grosvenor and Tawney, members of the ways and means committee, that they do not share the views of Secreteary Root and of President Roosevelt in regard to Cuban reciprocity.

Secretary Root in his annual report just issued makes an argument for some concessions to Cuba. He speaks for national obligations, and for broad economical advantage taking the country as the whole. The president is known to share his views and will so speak in the message.

But reciprocity with Cuba would constitute a tariff modification and so Payne, Tawney and Grosvenor promptly rise in remonstrance. Grosvenor makes the most extraordinary argument of the three. He is quoted as saying: "Last year we produced one-third of the beet sugar that enters into our consumption of sugars of all kinds and there is every reason to believe that if there is dustry is still further protected we will eventually raise all the beet sugar sold in the United States."

Such an assertion gives the impression that we are producing a great deal of beet sugar, whereas in the last census year our production of beet sugar will be slightly less than one-thirtieth of our total sugar consumption. The strength of the beet sugar industry must thus be in its combination with other tariff industries and the habitual disregard of consuming interests.

Senator Foster (Republican) of Washington sounds a "note of alarm" over possible reciprocity thus affecting the lumber of the Puget sound region. While he is himself a large owner in a plant in Tacoma having an output of 500,000 feet per day, Senator Foster says: "In the members of the Pacific coast the Lumber Manufacturers' association fear that under the guise of reciprocity efforts will be made by those having no money invested in Canadian lumber to place the lumber on the free list at the coming session of congress. Such action would paralyze the principal industry of the Pacific northwest."

Representative Crumpacker of Indiana is quoted as saying: "I do not believe there will be any tariff legislation during the coming session. No doubt something of the sort is needed, but the more conservative element will prevail. It is not thought best to disturb the present order of things. The reciprocity business has reached a crisis. I believe none of the Kasson treaties will be ratified. It seems to me a poor policy to make a treaty with this country and that, reducing or abolishing the duty on one thing or another; in fact, having a different tariff schedule with each country on the face of the globe. I believe in a general reciprocity treaty that will include everything from every country."

The war department has ordered a resumption of work on the 16-inch gun now in the course of construction at the Watervleit arsenal. It will be finished April 1, and placed on a disappearing carriage in New York harbor.

Representative Swanson of Virginia has prepared the following amendment to the rules of the house which he proposes to offer if an opportunity presents itself:

"Whenever a bill, resolution or other matter has been referred to a committee and the committee has failed to report on the same and a majority of the members of the house shall sign a petition to said committee requesting it to report thereon, the committee to which said bill, resolution or matter has been referred shall report to the house upon such a bill, resolution or matter within 10 weeks from presentation of said petition; and if the committee fails to report within said time, then it shall be in order in the house to move at end of such time to discharge the committee from its further consideration and proceed at once to a consideration of the same in the house. The petition herein provided for shall be presented to the speaker, who shall refer it to the proper committee to have the same printed in the record of that day's proceedings."

Mr. Swanson says that he has received a number of assurances of support in any move to change the rules as outlined. The purpose of the amendment, he says, is to put it in the power of a majority of the house to control proceedings in a regular and deliberate way and to take from the committee now possesses of determining what legislation shall come before the house.

Explaining the effect of the proposed rule Mr. Swanson says: "Under this rule, the business of the house would proceed as heretofore, except when a majority desired legislation which it was prevented from having by the speaker and the committees of the house. Under this rule, a majority of the members would be enabled in a regular way, after a reasonable time, to control the legislation of the house. The petition being printed in the record and thus making a public record of the action of members, would cause it not to be loosely nor thoughtlessly signed."

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Problem of Transportation Is Now the Chief Factor

New York, Nov. 30.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: When consumptive demand equals or exceeds supply and prices are firmly held at an exceptionally high level, it is generally considered that there is little to be desired in the business situation. These factors are now in evidence to an unusual extent, yet many industries are halting. The principal distributing element is the lack of cars to handle the phenomenal shipments that are urgently needed. To this must be added the delay caused by extensive changes under way at many railway terminals, where better facilities are being prepared, but in the meantime regular work is handicapped. In the same connection there have appeared numerous labor controversies among switchmen, freight handlers, river pilots, miners and other allied workmen, which combine to make the problem of transportation most intricate.

Although the movement of grain to interior cities is at the rate of nearly 3,000,000 bushels daily, the west bound traffic of merchandise is so unprecedented as to necessitate the return of empty cars. What the railroads ought be earning under the most favorable conditions may be surmised from reports for November thus far, which show gains of 9.8 percent over last year, and 17.0 over 1899, despite delays.

Any loss of general trade due to the holiday was more than made up by the phenomenal preparations of the preceding days and the dealings in special lines.

Shoe shops at the east are fully employed, while western producers were never before so actively engaged.

Recent buying of cotton goods for China has stimulated the export movement and for the year thus far the value shows an increase over any preceding year. Asia and South America are the leading customers. Domestic trade is of good volume and mills are busy. Conditions are even more favorable at woolen mills.

Worried by Buller's Popularity

London, Nov. 30.—Seemingly fearing that an alliance between the pro-Boerites and the pro-Boers during the demonstration to be held tomorrow in Hyde Park in sympathy with General Buller may be the beginning of a serious anti-government agitation, The Standard this morning semi-officially warns General Buller that unless he checks the extravagance of his partisans the government may be compelled to make further disclosures which will cause a revulsion of feeling against the general.

Organization of Theatre Men

New York, Nov. 30.—The Managers' Association of Burlesque theatres of the eastern circuit was formed at a meeting of a number of managers here yesterday. The announced purpose of the association is "for mutual and benevolent purposes and for protection against travelling shows or combinations which give vulgar or degrading entertainments." George F. Kraus of the Dewey theatre, New York, was elected president.

Prosecution About to Rest

Washington, Nov. 30.—Upon the eve of adjournment yesterday of the court before which Mrs. Bonine is being tried, District Attorney Gould announced that the government would rest its case after the introduction of one or two more witnesses and that he will finish his side today. Mr. Keane will then make a preliminary statement in Mrs. Bonine's behalf, after which the witnesses for the defense will be introduced.

To Meet Domestic Demand First

Philadelphia, Nov. 30.—No more foreign orders for anthracite coal are to be accepted by the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company for the present. These have become so large and so numerous in the past month that to supply them would seriously interfere with meeting the demand for home consumption.

What Ohio Campaign Cost

Columbus, O., Nov. 30.—The statement filed yesterday by Treasurer Burdell of the Republican state campaign committee, in compliance with law, shows the cost of the late campaign to have been $62,304. The report of the treasurer of the Democratic state committee shows expenditures amounting to $12,000.

Probably Retarded by Gales

Washington, Nov. 30.—The transport Buford, en route from the Philippines with two battalions of the 23d infantry aboard, bound for New York, is several days overdue. No apprehension is felt at the war department, however, as the severe northwest gales naturally would retard her progress.

Food and Medical Aid Needed

Bermuda, Nov. 30.—The British four-masted barkentine Ensenada of Windsor, N. S., Captain Morris, 95 days out from Cochin, bound to New York, put in here yesterday in distress. Her supply of provisions was exhausted and the crew are in need of medical aid.

Four Hundred Fishermen Idle

Pensacola, Fla., Nov. 30.—The strike of the fishermen now embraces 400 men. The point of contention is that they want 7½ cents a pound on all the large red snappers brought here. They are at present receiving 4½ cents.

Weather Conditions and Forecast

Almanac, Sunday, Dec. 1.
Sun rises—6:53; sets—4:13.
Moon rises—10:42 p. m.
High water—4 a. m.; 4:30 p. m.

A storm of moderate intensity has moved rapidly across the country from the west. There will be snow in eastern and southern New England, probably followed by clearing weather. On the coast variable winds will become light to fresh westerly.

SURRENDER OF REBELS

Colon Again In Hands of the Government

DETAILS OF CONFERENCE

At Which a Guarantee of Life and Liberty Was Given Those Who Took Up Arms Against the Government—Many Warships at Colon

Colon, Nov. 30.—The terms of surrender agreed upon at Thursday's conference held on board the United States gunboat Marietta are briefly as follows:

Senor de la Rosa agreed to surrender the Liberal soldiers now at Colon, with their arms, to Captain Perry at noon Friday. Captain Perry, in his turn, agreed to hand over these men and their arms later in the day to General Alban, who in his turn, guaranteed life and liberty to all men recently in arms against the Conservative government of Colombia. The surrender of arms was to be bona fide in every respect.

At 11:30 yesterday morning a large number of the marines and bluejackets from the Iowa, the Marietta and the Machias landed at Colon and proceeded to the barracks. Here the arms belonging to the Liberal soldiers were taken over by the Americans in the presence of Captain Perry, the commanders of the American, British and French warships, the American, British and French consuls at Colon and a large concourse of people who sympathized with the Liberals in their surrender.

The Liberal guard patrolling Colon yesterday morning appeared sad and downcast. Their behavior, however, has all along been praiseworthy and it is not at all an exaggeration to say that they have gained the respect of a very large portion of the community, and especially of the foreign element, during their short administration of Colon.

Later in the day General Alban, accompanied by officials of the Conservative government of Colombia, arrived at Colon from Panama, and Senor de la Rosa, representing General Domingo Diaz, whose secretary he is, surrendered himself and the Liberal troops to the Conservative general in the presence of Captain Perry and the naval and consular officers above mentioned.

For years past the harbor of Colon has not been so crowded as it is today. Five men-of-war and several German, Italian and British merchant and passenger steamers, as well as other vessels are in port. The men-of-war are moored to the wharves. The only flag bedecked ship in the harbor is the Colombian Conservative gunboat General Pinzon.

When General Alban received the surrender of the Liberals, the Pinzon blew a series of noisy, quick and irregular notes from her foghorn, indicative of her joy at the proceedings. She is now lying quite close to the docks. General Alban is on board.

The majority of the American marines and bluejackets have returned to their vessels. The Suchet has landed a detachment of marines on the property of the French Canal company. American marines are still guarding the piers and the railroad station.

Over 200 men entered the city with General Alban. De la Rosa, on handing Alban his sword, said: "I accept the conditions of the treaty to safeguard the lives and liberty of my soldiers in Colon. As for my brother and myself, we personally decline to accept the conditions of this treaty."

Trouble May Not Be All Over

Washington, Nov. 30.—With the restoration of order and open traffic on the isthmus of Panama it is expected that the navy department will be able to withdraw some of the United States warships now on duty in that quarter, and it is now probable that one ship will be withdrawn on either side of the isthmus.

There will be no haste, however, in reducing the naval strength, for the officials feel that the surrender of the Liberals on the isthmus may not terminate the entire struggle throughout Colombia. The country is so extensive and the signs of unrest at interior points are so numerous that it is believed there may be a recurrence of trouble on the isthmus if the insurgents at other points continue to show strength.

When the Iowa is withdrawn she will probably go to Talcapano to be docked. The Machias, when relieved, will come north to be docked.

Why Liberals Surrendered

New York, Nov. 30.—Limited ammunition supply of Colombian revolutionary troops at Colon is the theory upon which the members of the rebel junta here explain the surrender of the city. This explanation involves the supposition that the revolutionary generals on the other side of the isthmus, supposed to have 2000 men and known to have plenty of ammunition, failed to help their friends at Colon.

Certificates Only Are Free

Buffalo, Nov. 30.—Winners of gold, silver and bronze medals at the Pan-American exposition must pay the cost of manufacturing the medals. The executive committee decided yesterday to issue certificates of award. Holders of these certificates may secure medals of the approved design by paying the cost thereof.

Released From Mud Bed

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Nov. 30.—Knapp's roller boat was released yesterday from the Ogdensburg bar, where she settled in the mud on her trial trip. The boat was towed to the Canadian side.

Men who look much older than they are never appear to such disadvantage as with the wife who keeps her matronly beauty. The secret of health and the manly vigor which goes with health is nutrition. When the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition are diseased there is loss of nutrition, and corresponding physical weakness.
Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and its allied organs, which prevent nutrition, and makes men healthy and vigorous.
"I was a great sufferer from dyspepsia for over two years, and was a complete physical wreck," writes Mr. Preston E. Fenstermacher, of Egypt, Lehigh Co., Pa. "I also suffered much with constipation. I tried many different medicines which were recommended to cure the trouble but these only made me worse. I had such a weak and debilitated appearance that it seemed as if I had hardly any blood in my whole body. At last I came across an advertisement of Dr. Pierce's. I at once tried Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets.' I used about eight vials of the 'Pellets' and ten bottles of the 'Discovery' which brought me back to my former state of health."

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY
REVIEW OF REVIEWS

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS is commended by Statesmen, Professional men and thousands of others prominent in the world's activities, for its fine discrimination in sifting the actual news from conflicting report and the presentation of current events in their just proportion. They comment on its freedom from daily-paper sensationalism. All men and women who want to know what the world is doing find it an intellectual necessity, to judge from the letters received from hundreds. Its editorials are comprehensive, and labor saving to the busy man or woman. Its timely contributions on important topics are by the best-informed writers. Its reviews of other magazines give the best of their best work. It is profusely illustrated.

These letters will enable all thoughtful men and women to judge of its value to them:

PRESIDENT

"I know that through its columns views have been presented to me that I could not otherwise have had access to; because all earnest and thoughtful men, no matter how widely their ideas diverge, are given free utterance in its columns."—Theodore Roosevelt

EX-PRESIDENT

"I consider it a very valuable addition to my library."
—Grover Cleveland.

"It is a publication of very great value. I have sometimes found there very important matter indeed which I should not otherwise have discovered."—George F. Hoar, U. S. Senator, Massachusetts.

"I am a constant reader of the 'Review of Reviews,' and appreciate it very highly indeed. I think it a very important part of my library, and practically a necessity for one in public life."—J. B. Foraker, U. S. Senator, Ohio.

"It is one of the best and most satisfactory publications of the day."—Charles W. Fairbanks, U. S. Senator, Indiana.

"I do not have a great deal of time to read magazines, but I take pleasure in saying that the 'Review of Reviews' is among the number which finds a place on my table each month."—James K. Jones, U. S. Senator, Arkansas.

MR. HOOLEY ON THE FAIR FIGHTER.

"Oi see be the papers," said Mr. Fennessey, "that there be wa-arm toimes in th' town and for mesilf Oi think Oi'll be votin' for the indipindjint gintlemin Mr. Brynt"

Mr. Hooley looked sad. He turned to Fennessey with a pitting look. "Fer the indipindjint, Finnessey, fer the indipindjint? Have ye an oiron in in the foire, too? Have ye thought ye'd loose yer nine a week onless ye declared verself? Are ye lookin' fer to sqnare yerself wid thim all be votin' fer th' indipindjint?"

"But Oi'm wid the man that says he the fair foighter" saie Mr. Fennessey, looking uneasy.

"That's phat it is, hey? "went on Mr. Hooley, "Oi knew ye loiked a foight and sure no man in the wa-ard will travel farther ter git inter wan than ye. Now, Finnessey, d'ye moind, there's foighters and foighters. It's mesself that's had a hand and a brick-bat in minny a gintlemany contest. I take off me hat whin I hear the word foight. But moind, Fennessey, the longer ye live the more ye'll larn that whin a man sthands up and swills his chist and sis, 'Gintlemin, Oi'm a fair foighter,' ye want t'keep that gintlemin right in front of ye all the toime, yere back agin the wall and see that yere artilry is in good workin' order"

"'Tis manny a prayin' deacon that's roon away wid th' cash intinded fer the haythen—and it's many a man that's to his home ivery noight that's the corresponjent in the dayvoorce coort, and ye can't always be tellin' what a man is be the sthale iv his groit or the smill iv his foine Havvannie. Fer mesself, Finnessey, I place me roll on the man thot makes no pretinshuns. Pretinshuns is a good thing whin ye want to get yere note discoonted, but it don't always go in th' perlitical wur-uld.

"Give me th' man, Finnessey, that'll sthand up man loike and foight and when he gets it in the sowler plixis and goes to shleep knows that he's done f'r; the foight's done and thin have gate receipts paid oover t' the 'best man But, be the sowls of hivin, if whin he wakes up he crys foul and being dhrugged, I'd be wan iv the com'itee to his him frum me lamp post.

"Now, illection day," said Mr Hooley," illection day, I put in me vote fer the Jones man widout th' pretinshuns of bein' th' fair foighter, but, be hivins, is the fairest of thim all. He laid out his man, and the gate receipts is his."

"Be gorra I'll do the same," says Mr. Finnessey.

JAMESON REPLIES.

To Personal Attacks in the Advertiser, and Makes Comments.

The following letter of President E. E. Jameson to the Advertiser was "crowded out" of the issue of Nov. 26:

Editor of Quincy Advertiser:

As you have extended to the writer the free use of your columns, "that the public may be correctly informed, I wish to take advantage of the offer, and correct some of the statements which have been made in your columns. To correct all of them would take more time than the writer can possibly give at this time.

In the first place, the differences between Mr. Byant, and Mr. DeNormandie and myself really have nothing to do with the Mayoralty matters at this time; that is ancient history, and has no bearing on present affairs. I would say this, however, in reference to that particular matter, that your statements in an editorial in the Advertiser of Nov. 22, that Mr. Jameson and Councilman DeNormandie met with Mr. Bryant to further Mr. Bryant's candidacy as mayor, etc., etc., is as the three gentlemen named never met in conference on the matter mentioned, neither did the writer ever promise or agree to assist in Mr. Bryant's candidacy or urge him to be a candidate. I leave it for Mr. DeNormandie to answer in detail, in reference to his experience with Mr. Bryant on both the Representative and Mayoralty matters if he so chooses.

The writer did not decide upon nor announce his candidacy in the Mayoralty contest until after the Representative convention and he challenges any one to prove it to the contrary.

The Bryant delegates certainly got the larger number of votes cast in the Ward 5 Republican Caucus (so called) but did not get the vote of the majority of the Republicans who voted at the caucus aforesaid.

The writer as president or member of the Republican Ward and City Committee never used that office to further his own interest or that of any other candidate previous to the caucuses and convention simply acting as an individual, which he has a perfect right to do.

It would seem to one not posted, judging from various paragraphs throughout your paper, that the writer is still a candidate for Mayor of the city.

If "The Advertiser is for clean politics in Quincy," as you state it is, one thing is certain, it is now on the wrong track to obtain the desired result. The truth is, that certain people, who are interested in Mr. Bryant's candidacy have been absolutely unable to find anything against Mr. Jones, and are therefore, forced to adopt all sorts of schemes, fair and unfair; statements truthful and untruthful; in a desperate endeavor to win votes for Mr. Bryant.

You mention in another column, "Personal Spite." If there is any one man in Quincy, whose course has been impelled and governed by "Personal Spite" that man is Mr. Charles M. Bryant. It is a well known fact, that his antagonism to the Hon. Russel A. Sears and to the Hon. John O. Hall, was based entirely upon "Personal Spite." His action in defeating Mr. DeNormadie in the Representative convention was nothing more or less than "Personal Spite," and his present candidacy for Mayor on independent nomination papers is also the result of "Personal Spite," and he is apparently willing in order to satisfy that "Personal Spite" to again place in jeopardy, the interests of the Republican party of Quincy.

If you will deal in facts and truths there will be no occasion or necessity for the writer to answer any of your editorials, in the future.

Yours respectfully,
E. E. Jameson.

TRUE INDEPENDENCE

My Reasons for Voting for Frederick L. Jones.

1. I am too independent to be hoodwinked by a "fictitious" Citizens' Independent Nomination.

2. I don't like a rule or ruin politician.

3. I am nauseated with that display of "holy horror" which loudly condemns the immorality of drawing lots (often sanctioned by law) as an alternative among friends, but makes no answer to statements of attempted bribery of a delegate to the Republican convention.

4. I rejoice that the City Hall machine failed to grind and deliver its promised grist.

5. I am glad Croker is overthrown in New York.

6. I want no Croker in Quincy: Persistent hostility to Mayor Hall, (elected by large majority), because of failure to dictate policy, is a bad credential for a "Citizens' (?) Candidate."

7. I want no risk of another siege of Cavanaughism.

8. I have no use for Socialist Moonshine.

9. I object to adventurers or tools making bluff at City business.

10. I like a man of proven honesty.

11. I like a man of habits proven exemplary.

12. Temperance practices are better than temperance promises.

13. I respect a quiet, modest man.

14. I respect a man who respects and assists those agencies which seek to elevate the morals of a community.

15. I don't like to hear of beer in Ward 3.

16. I don't like to hear of gifts of ducks to prominent officials at critical time.

17. I protest against attempts of machine politicians to fool all of the people all of the time.

18. I deplore the possibility of the "Advertiser" abandoning its field of comic political specialties for the sober realities of City printing.

19. I will vote for Frederick L. Jones because I believe he has the honesty, ability and true independence requisite for a useful Mayor. Tax Payer.

Jumped on a Ten Penny Nail.

The little daughter of Mr. J. N. Powell jumped on an inverted rake made of ten-penny nails, and thrust one nail entirely through her foot and a second one half way through. Chamberlain's Pain Balm was promptly applied and five minutes later the pain had disappeared and no more suffering was experienced. In three days the child was wearing her shoe as usual and with absolutely no discomfort. Mr. Powell is a well known merchant of Forkland, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and heals such injuries without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. For sale by all druggists.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 1—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—Children of God.—Rom. viii, 14-17.

The theme of this glorious eighth chapter of Romans is the security of believers. The salvation of those who have renounced the law and accepted the gracious offers of the gospel is shown to be absolutely certain. The whole chapter is a series of arguments, most beautifully arrayed, in support of this one point. Paul takes as his text, "There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit," and develops it so forcibly and so conclusively that the weakest and most doubting child of God cannot but be convinced and strengthened by his burning words.

The second argument produced in support of the general theme that believers are assured of salvation is the fact that they are the children of God. "As many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God." Being the children of God, we are sure of eternal life, for we are "heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ," and eternal life is one of the priceless inheritances which the children of God shall enjoy in common with Jesus Christ.

The glorious fact that believers in Christ are the children of God is abundantly proved: 1. The Scriptures testify to it. 2. We are conscious of it ourselves. If we have the feelings of children toward a parent—of reverence, of confidence and of love—toward God, we know that we are the children of God. 3. The Holy Spirit testifies to this fact. "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit that we are the children of God." In some way, though we do not know how, the Holy Spirit "beareth witness with" or corroborates the testimony of our own feelings that we are the children of God.

We become the children of God through the work of the Holy Spirit. By the Spirit we are born again—changed in our natures and made in the likeness of the divine nature—and when thus changed we are adopted into the family of God; hence the Spirit is called the "Spirit of Adoption." And as a result of this adoption we no longer fear God, but address Him in confidence and love as "Abba, Father."

The general results of divine sonship are that we (1) possess the nature or disposition of God, (2) are the peculiar objects of His love and favor and (3) are heirs of God. These are priceless prerogatives, but they carry with them great responsibilities. The child of a king has the name and the honor of a king to sustain. His opportunities, his privileges, are great, but so also are his responsibilities. This is even more true as applied to the children of God. By word or deed we honor or dishonor the heavenly King, whose children we are. How important it is, considering our exalted positions, that we should know thoroughly the duties as well as the privileges of divine sonship and, knowing them, should perform them.

THE PRAYER MEETING.

Have a Bible reading covering the whole phase of this subject as set forth in the Scriptures.

BIBLE READINGS.

Matt. xii, 46-50; John i, 11-13; xx, 11-17; II Cor. vi, 14-18; Gal. iv, 1-7; Eph. i, 3-6; Heb. xii, 1-10; Jas. i, 17, 18; I John iii, 1-3; v, 1-3; Rev. xxi, 1-3.

Through Toil and Suffering.

Through toil and through suffering we are enabled to gain a keener insight into spiritual things and greater power in doing spiritual things, increased purity of heart, a deeper humility, more intense desire for holiness. Then toil and suffering are endowed with the highest of all meanings. And this meaning is given to labor and sorrow just in the degree that they are borne in humble trust in God and in the desire, so far as lies in our power, to be faithful to our profession of faith in the Saviour. That we know not the reason why we are compelled to labor so hard or to suffer so much does not affect the result. Through the presence in us of the true spirit of devotion, through the offerings of ourselves in this way, the blessed effects will be wrought, for in our lives as individuals as well as in the life of the church and the nation, there is the hiding of God's wonderful power.—Reformed Church Messenger.

Faithfulness.

Faithfulness is the explanation of many a successful career. Opportunity, ability and the friendly assistance that may be given all tend to further one's efforts, but the persistent, undaunted faithfulness to the labor in hand, in the very face of opposition and hindrance and obstacles, is that which conquers. The character that is developed by devotion to duty, in life's smallest undertakings, is being equipped for glorious achievements. Therein is found the secret of success.—Presbyterian.

The Hidden God.

We are drawing nearer and nearer to the Infinite Spirit, toiling upward in the night, fulfilling the great intelligent purpose. Not one pang is administered that does not prove a stepping stone to higher things. Still we grope onward in the dark, catching here and there a glimpse of light and hope to cheer us on our way. One day we will stand astounded when we realize that we have threaded our way into the very presence of the eternal, hidden God.—Christian Leader.

Christian's Unrest.

The cause of the Christian's unrest is you have not yet "received Jesus into the ship." You have given your heart to Him, but you have not wholly grasped Him by faith. Assurance comes only from the abiding presence in your soul of a personal, living Jesus.—A. E. Kittredge.

BRAINTREE.

The Braintree Board of Health have received an analysis of our town water. It is pronounced all right for drinking purposes, and superior to that of many surrounding towns.

Mr. William May, the promoter of the scheme to cancel the $1.000 mortgage on the Baptist church, gave $100 towards that amount. He deserves much credit from the people of his church, also the people of this town. A church debt paid pleases many people, but not so much as the cheerful giver.

At the Penniman schoolhouse, Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock, exercises appropriate to Thanksgiving day were carried out by the pupils. Several parents and friends of the school were present and enjoyed very much the program. The principal, Miss Maud Carter, and Miss L. May Whitney, are credited for the excellent manner in which the program was given. Miss Jessie L. Nolte played accompaniments on the piano for the singing.

Saturday night closed the fair which was held last week in the Town hall, under the auspices of General Sylvanus Thayer Post, G. A. R. There was no entertainment, and only the donations were awarded.

At the Pond school the scholars have been singing songs and reciting pieces appropriate to Thanksgiving day.

Cuff's orchestra have given many "Sunlight Dances" in the Town Hall, always with success, but that which was held Thanksgiving day, was the best attended and prettiest party in the list. There was only one trouble the hall was not big enough. All the surrounding towns were well represented.

The Braintree Firemen's Relief Association held their annual concert and ball in the Town hall on Thanksgiving eve, being attended by about 150 couples. An excellent concert was given by Cuff's orchestra of nine pieces from 8 to 9 o'clock. The grand march at 9.15 was led by Chief Engineer and Mrs. C. V. Cottrell, followed by 100 couples. The floor was in charge of Mr. C. V. Cottrell, assisted by engineers Mr. John Kelly and Mr. J. S. Hill.

Sad news came to Braintree yesterday afternoon from the Homeopathic hospital Boston. Mrs. Hiram H. Kelley went there for treatment. The operation she went through very successfully and she seemed exceedingly well until about three minutes before death came upon her.

Mrs. Mary H. Kingsbury and family attended the wedding of her son Joseph J. Kingsbury, at Exeter, N. H., the home of the bride, Miss Gertrude E. Smith.

Harry C. Wilbur has nearly completed his new family residence on Pond street.

The Merrymount club of Wollaston will be the opponents of the Braintree club at the latter's rooms, next Tuesday evening.

The Social Circle of the South church will meet in the chapel on Wednesday afternoon and evening, December 4.

Stevens & Willis being rushed with orders, are keeping their machines running at their factory. Generally they shut down during stock taking.

Rev. John Reid of Greenville, N. H., preached Sunday at the South Congregational church. Mr. Reid also took charge of the young men's class.

A handsome monument has been placed in the family lot of Mrs. Almira Penniman. at the South cemetery, in memory of her husband, Thomas R. Penniman.

Hon. J. T. Stevens and I. W. Gammons won at whist from Charles Hayward and Walter T. Connell at the Braintree club rooms, Monday evening. The latter pair were considered champions, but the former had an easy time "trimming" them.

The annual foot ball game between Braintree and Weymouth will not be played this year, as Weymouth would not consent to play here. The local eleven has played in Weymouth for four years, and thought that they should have the game this year.

Mr. E. W. Colton will start for Montreal, Sunday night on a business trip.

George D. Willis met with a painful accident Wednesday in Boston. He had in his right hand a piece of iron and while going up stairs in a building fell. The iron penetrated the right hand and broke the little finger. His wound was dressed at the Emergency Hospital.

Amana Rebekah lodge, I. O. O. F., gave a children's night, Thursday evening, to the children of the members only. A large number were present, and games were enjoyed. There was a short entertainment, following which a light collation of coffee and cake was served.

The annual inspection of the Ladies Aid society to the S. of V. was held in G. A. R. hall, Monday evening. The inspecting officer was Mrs. Estella Richards of East Weymouth. There was a large delegation from the Ladies' Aid of East Weymouth, present. An excellent collation of cocoa, cake and ice cream was served during the evening.

F. W. Crooker, former editor of the Observer, now living in Fitzwilliam, N. H., was recently thrown from his carriage by a runaway horse and received severe injuries to his arm.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Leonard moved Tuesday to Somerville. Lewis Richards, who is over 90 years old, has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Manley in Boston and will make his home in Somerville.

The public are most cordially invited to attend the recognition services of Rev. Mr. Burrows, of the First Congregational church, Dec. 3 at 7.30 P. M. The noted Rev. Dr. Dewey of Brooklyn, N. Y., will preach the sermon.

Rev. Frederick R. Griffin was admitted to fellowship in the Universalist Convention at the minister's meeting held in Boston last Monday. Mr. Griffin is now in fellowship with both the Unitarian Association and Universalist convention.

Mr. C. L. Kennedy, for the past two years a faithful and active employe at the Observer office, has resigned his position to work in the electrical department, under Mr. J. F. Perry, at the Fore River Ship and Engine Company's works. We wish him success in the work he has long desired to take up.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. White of Elliot street are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter Sunday, Nov. 24.

There is good skating on the large factory pond. In talking with one of our oldest residents he said that he never remembered of there being skating on that pond so early in the winter before.

To the Public.

Allow me to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I had a very severe cough and cold and feared I would get pneumonia, but after taking the second dose of this medicine I felt better, three bottles of it cured my cold, and the pains in my chest disappeared entirely. BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The management of the Castle Square Theatre have had in preparation for some time the great English drama "Harbor Lights" and this play will make the attraction at the Castle Square next week. It is fifteen years since "Harbor Lights" has been seen in Boston and it has a record of being one of the greatest dramatic successes of its day. The original production was made at the Boston Museum, under J. R. Pitman's direction, and the Castle Square presentation will also be made under his personal supervision. In addition to its its strong dramatic attractions there are some scenic and mechanical possibilities in "Harbor Lights" that add an important feature, and all the stage settings, notably the great revolving scene, will show the best work of the scenic and mechanical departments of the Castle Square Theatre. Special music has been selected and arranged by Mr. Max Heindl and many extra people have been engaged for this production.

TREMONT THEATRE.

Augustus Thomas' dramatic masterwork, "Arizona," after another record breaking run of four months in New York, will once more be seen at the Tremont Theatre on Monday next. This powerful play, as its name implies, has its scenes, characters and incidents located in the picturesque Southwest. The people comprise sturdy ranchmen and cowboys, the brisk, alert women of the pioneer generation, and their dainty, graceful, yet strong and self reliant daughters, officers and soldiers, Mexicans and Chinese—fair samples of the heterogenous community which Mr. Thomas has chosen to utilize in the way of literary material. It has a love story as tender and almost as tragic as that of "Romeo and Juliet," and it has a relief work of humor as ripe and unctuous as that in which Mr. Thomas has previously shown us in "Alabama" and "In Mizzouri." That "Arizona" will be richly staged and excellently well acted is guaranteed.

PARK THEATRE.

The attraction which comes to the Park Theatre on December 2, opening at that time a limited engagement is the Weber & Fields Company, presenting "Fiddle Dee Dee" This bright burlesque has made a great hit wherever it has been this season, and the lovers of that form of amusement may be assured that this company will be seen which is of the best. The music is bright and sparkling and catchy, the chorus large in numbers, attractively gowned and of large physical beauty. It is one also which can sing The members are all favorite in this city, among them being Joseph E Howard, John W Spark, Dorothy Drew, Ida Emerson, Eulalie, Matt M Dill, C William Kolp, and Barney Bernard The Burlesque is in two parts or Exhibits, the first being "Fiddle Dee Dee," a potpourri of dramatic fol-di-rol, the second having as its feature travesties on "The Gay Lord Quex," and a "Royal Family," The scenery in all is new and most elaborate in detail, the costumes and appointments are the same as when the show was seen for the first time at the Broadway Music Hall. Among the many hits of the show is the latest topical song success entitled "Who's Your Friend?" This has made the greatest kind of a hit in every city in which it has been sung, and the Boston theatregoers will listen to it for the first time on Dec. 2 when it is sung by Joseph E. Howard with the great chorus. It is safe to say that before many days this catchy air will become the property of the street whistler The advance sale of seats for the limited engagement opened on Monday and has been very large.

BOSTON MUSEUM.

Plays may come and plays may go, but "Sky Farm," like the proverbial brook, it would seem, could go on forever at the Boston Museum. From all classes of people have come words of the highest commendation concerning the heart-interest so forcibly presented in this play; concerning its picturesque characters, its pure and rollicking fun, its comical situations, its periods of sensation and dramatic intensity though brief, its moments not too long drawn out, of appealing pathos, its typical scenes of current New England life in a small community, its whole enjoyable and ennobling influence. Despite the fact, judging by the advance sale of seats, that "Sky Farm" could be continued at the Boston Museum for many weeks, the end is in sight and the concluding performances have been fixed. This is a warning to all to make an early application for seats, for any theatre-goer cannot have it said of him that he has not seen and enjoyed "Sky Farm."

CHILDREN'S THEATRE.

The last performance of "Alice in Looking-Glass Land" at the Children's Theatre, Huntington Chambers, 30 Huntington avenue, Boston, will be given Saturday, November 30, at 2.30 o'clock. Matinees were to have been given December 3 and 5, but it has been decided not to give these. All tickets for those days will be exchanged or money refunded on application. This change was made only after careful consideration, and the reasons for it were these. The next production will need an enlarged stage, and by taking off the last two matinees this could be done, and what is more important, the children could give all their attention to the rehearsals for the next play, which is to be given its first presentation on Saturday, December 7, at 2.30 o'clock It is called "Little Miss Muffet's Christmas Party."

KEITH'S THEATRE

Cinquevalli continues the headliner at Keith's for the week commencing Dec. 2, as he has turned out to be the strongest attraction playing the house this season. His juggling work is marvelous, nothing superior in that line ever before having been exhibited in this country. In will the last week for Papinta, the "myriad" dancer, and Frank Lincoln, the lyceum entertainer, an uncommonly clever artist. Others who will be in the bill are: Hamilton Hill, the noted Australian baritone ballad singer; Ritter troupe of dogs and lilliputian comedians; Fortunis brothers, comedy acrobats, and Kaduro's troupe of Japanese equillibrists and wonder workers. As usual, the list of pictures will be changed in the biographs, and Director Baer's splendid orchestra will perform new selections of popular music.

We, the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on a 50 cent bottle of Greene's Warranted Syrup of Tar if it fails to cure your cough or cold. We also guarantee a 25-cent bottle to prove satisfactory or money refunded.

NORFOLK, ss. PROBATE COURT.

TO the heirs-at-law, next-of-kin, creditors, and all other persons interested in the estate of late of Quincy, in said County, deceased, intestate.

ELIZABETH A. DODGE,

Whereas a petition has been presented to said Court to grant a letter of administration on the estate of said deceased to Matilda B. Park of Quincy, or to some other suitable person.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Quincy, in said County of Norfolk, on the eleventh day of December, A. D. 1901, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledger a newspaper published in Quincy, the last publication to be one day at least before said Court.

Witness, James H. Flint, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-ninth day of November in the year one thousand nine hundred and one.
